himself, said with great enthusiasm, “Books about recent happenings? Of course of course. I’ve got both historical chronicles and fictional adaptations, all kinds of biographies and annals, regional chronicles, demon suppression records, even manuscripts from ten of the most famous storytellers out there. Which would xianjun like?”

All the babbling gave Xue Meng a headache, so he waved his hand and said, “Just, just gimme all of it, money’s no issue.”

A businessman’s favorite phrases to hear are not “I love you”, “I care about you”, or “I want you”, but “buy”, “money’s no issue”, and “one of each”.

The vendor immediately grinned from ear to ear, rubbing his hands together as he answered to Xue Meng’s order and turned to gather the books from the rack. Having nothing better to do, Xue Meng went to flip casually through the books on the stand, and happened across a thin little booklet that seemed rather interesting—the page he’d flipped open read:

Cultivation World Wealth Ranking

First Place: Jiang Xi. Position: Rainbell Isle Guyue’ye Sect Leader

Second Place: Nangong Liu. Position: Linyi Rufeng Sect Leader

Third Place: Ma Yun Position: Westlake Taobao[147] Estate Master

……

So on and so forth, the entire page covered in tiny writing.

Xue Meng got fired up immediately, eager to find out his own rank, so he looked up and down the page four, five times, until his eyes started to cross, but he still couldn't find the name “Xue Meng”.

Crestfallen at first and then a little mad, but all in all unresigned, he flipped the page to keep looking, but saw only a couple more names and the following line:

“Due to time and resource constraints, rankings only go to one hundred, and those after one hundred will not be listed.”

Xue Meng slammed the booklet to the ground in a fit of rage. “Am I that fucking broke????”

The vendor jumped, startled, and then, seeing the book he had been reading, hurriedly comforted him while picking it up, saying, “Ease your anger, xianjun, these ranking booklets are just willy-nilly made up by folks, and on top of that, each region has its own version circulating. For example, if you buy one from Linyi, number one on the gentleman ranking is definitely gonna be Nangong-zhangmen. It’s just something people flip through to pass the time, don’t be mad, don’t be mad.”

His words seemed reasonable enough, and Xue Meng was pretty curious about the remainder of the booklet’s contents, so he hmph’d, took it back from the vendor’s hands, and offhandedly flipped two more pages.

This time, he saw an even more peculiar ranking.

“Young Master Ego Ranking”

Author’s Notes:

Ma Yun, who’s on the Wealth Ranking, as well as Taobao Estate are Easter eggs, hahaha~

Since Shizun is awake, we’ll resume the daily mini-theatres as well~

The reopened mini-theatre~

A hawker’s favourite phrase to hear is “Buy buy buy”, so what’s the phrase each character wishes to hear the most~

Chu Wan Ning wishes to hear: Elder Yuheng is a good shizun.

Mo Ran 2.0 wishes to hear: You are different from your past life.

Mo Ran 1.0 wishes to hear: Everyone likes you.

Mo Ran 0.5 wishes to hear: Stop dreaming and wake up, dog, your saliva’s dripping onto the desk!

Xue Meng wishes to hear: Young Master is No.1, Young Master is the most handsome, Shizun finds Young Master the most lovable!

Shi Mei wishes to hear: Shi Mei is so gentle and cute, how can he be the BOSS?

Ye Wangxi wishes to hear: Nangong-gongzi will not be short-lived.

Nangong Si wishes to hear: Your dad has stepped down and let you take his place, gongzi, you can make your own decisions on matters.

Song Qiutong wishes to hear: This is a heterosexual romance novel.

Mei Hanxue wishes to hear: Mei Hanxue, get ready to make your appearance.

Ch.125 Shizun Doesn't Need to Find a Cultivation Partner

Written in a neat and straight script, the ranking boldly declared:

First Place: Nangong Si

Position: Young Master of Rufeng Sect

Second Place: Xue Meng

Position: Young Master of Sisheng Peak

Xue Meng: "……"

He slammed the booklet shut, every muscle in his face twitching, as if just barely holding back the urge to let loose and set the book ablaze.

"I see how it is," Xue Meng spat from between clenched teeth, expression dark as he tapped the panic-stricken vendor with the booklet.

"Wrap this book separately, I'll have to look it over when I get back."

Shoving the copy of "God-Knows-What Rankings" roughly into his sleeve, Xue Meng carried the huge stack of books and scrolls picked out by the vendor and wobbled his way back up the mountain.

He was mad .

So mad he might die from it.

Second place on the Young Master Ego Ranking?

Bullshit! Which blind-ass dimwit wrote that! If he were to ever find out, he'd definitely have to give the guy a good pummeling to vent this rage—a hundred punches, maybe more! Ego my ass! What dogshit!

The rage tamped down the overwhelming joy somewhat, such that Xue Meng's state of mind was more normal by the time he got back to the Red Lotus Pavilion, no longer so easily explosive. He was still very excited of course, but the bout of anger just now had more or less cleared up his head.

There was a pair of high-level disciples standing guard outside the pavilion, keeping people out to let the elder rest.

But Xue Meng was the young master, who would dare block his way?

And so Xue Meng walked in unimpeded.

Night had already fallen, and a honey-soft light glowed through the half-open windows of the pavilion's main hall. Not knowing if Shizun was awake or not, Xue Meng softened his steps as he pushed the door open and went in with the stack of books in his arms.

It was so quiet that he could hear his own heartbeat, sounding like a bird bouncing at the tip of a branch.

Holding his breath and temporarily tossing "God-Knows-What Rankings" to the back of his mind, he looked toward the bed.

"....."

There was a long silence as Xue Meng stared blankly.

"Eh?"

There was no one on the bed?

He was just about to go closer for a better look when he suddenly felt an ice-cold hand on his shoulder.

Followed by an eerie, chilly voice from behind him. “What intentions do you have in trespassing on the Red Lotus Pavilion?”

“.....” Stiffly, Xue Meng turned his head around, neck practically creaking, to see a deadly pale face in the dim lighting. He was so frightened that he screeched “WAH——” and reflexively raised an arm to cleave down toward the other before his brain even had a chance to process what he had seen.

But the other person was even faster than him, moving with lightning speed to land a strike at Xue Meng’s neck and a solid kick to the guts before forcing him down to his knees and holding him there, sending the books he had been holding scattering all over the floor in a mess.

Xue Meng was only a bit startled at first, but getting forced to the floor like this left him absolutely shocked!

After five years of diligent training, he was no longer the boy he used to be, so much so that even Nangong Si was no match for him. But this person, whose face he hadn’t even seen clearly, had so easily dispatched him in only two moves, leaving him no room to even counter—who could it be?

There was a ringing in his ears as all the blood in his body rushed to his head.

But just then, that person spoke in an icy tone, “I went into seclusion for five years and now all of a sudden everyone just feels free to come into my residence. Whose disciple are you and where is your master? Didn't he teach you any rules?"

He had barely finished speaking when Xue Meng flipped around and threw himself at him in the tightest hug.

"Shizun! SHIZUN!!!"

Chu Wanning: "....."

Xue Meng lifted his head. He wanted to hold back, but tears fell despite his best efforts as he choked out between sobs, "Shizun, it's me… look… it's me…"

It turned out that Chu Wanning had only just woken up and had gone out for a bath, and that was why his touch was cold and a little damp. He remained standing in the same spot, and though the light was dim, it was enough to see by now that he had calmed down.

The person kneeling before himself was a young man of around twenty.

He had fair skin and thick, dark brows that were lower and closer to the eyes than most people's, making him look pensive and compassionate. As for the lips, they were full and pouty, and quite nicely shaped. A face like that would look spoiled even when angry—truth be told, it was all too easy for people with such looks to be called "coquettish", but not him.

Because the eyes were the most expressive part of the face, and Xue Meng's eyes were like a strong liquor, spicy, fiery, and unfettered in the light, giving off a domineering air.

The twin pools of liquor were unmistakable, even held within a pot of fine white jade.

It had been five years, after all. Xue Meng had been only sixteen when Chu Wanning had died; he was twenty one now.

Adolescent boys grow the fastest around sixteen to seventeen, a new look every year, a different build every half year. Suddenly seeing him again after having missed five years, Chu Wanning hadn't even recognized him at first.

".....Xue Meng."

Chu Wanning said slowly, after staring at him for a good while.

Like he was calling his name, but also like he was telling himself—

That this was Xue Meng, who was no longer that half-grown youth in his memories; he had grown up, with wide shoulders, and a height that was...

Chu Wanning pulled him up with a face that betrayed nothing.

"What are you kneeling for? Get up."

"....."

And a height that was not much different from his own.

The passage of time was the most visible on the young, carving a child into maturity in a mere few strokes. The first person Chu Wanning had seen when he'd first woken up had been Xue Zhengyong, so it hadn't quite hit him then just how long five years was, but seeing Xue Meng now, he was struck with the sudden realization that it had been a long time, that many people and things had changed in that time.

“Shizun, at the Spiritual Mountain Competition, I…” Having finally managed to calm down a little, Xue Meng began to talk of this and that, clutching at Chu Wanning the whole time. “I got first place.”

Chu Wanning glanced at him, then a small smile tugged at his lips. “That’s a matter of course.”

Xue Meng continued, red-faced, “I, I fought Nangong Si, he, he had a holy weapon, I didn’t, I…” Feeling a little embarrassed about boasting so openly, he lowered his head and bashfully rubbed at the hem of his clothing.

“I didn’t embarrass Shizun.”

Chu Wanning nodded with a small smile, then suddenly said, “It must’ve been bitterly difficult.”

“Not bitter!” Xue Meng paused, and then said, “It was sweet.”[148]

Chu Wanning reached out, wanting to pat Xue Meng’s head like he used to, but then, remembering that Xue Meng wasn’t a child anymore and thinking that it might not be the most appropriate gesture now, his hand went off-course midway and ended up patting him on the shoulder instead.

The two of them picked up the books scattered across the floor from earlier and put them on the table.

“You bought so many,” Chu Wanning mused. “How am I supposed to read it all?”

“It’s not that many, Shizun can read ten lines at a time, it’ll only take a night.”

“.....”

Xue Meng’s admiration had not waned in the slightest, even after so long, but it was Chu Wanning who found himself somewhat at a loss for words. Not knowing what to say, he lit up the candle and flipped lightly through a couple of the books.

“Jiangdong Hall has a new sect leader now?”

“Yup, the new sect leader is a woman, and rumor says she has quite the temper.”

Chu Wanning kept reading. The page he was on was a long-winded record about Jiangdong Hall, which he read with rapt attention, but as he got to the section titled “Biography of Jiangdong Hall’s New Sect Leader”, he suddenly asked, as if entirely casually, “How has… Mo Ran been, these last couple of years?”

He had made sure to ask in a very mild, carefully controlled tone.

So Xue Meng didn't think much of the sudden question, and just replied, "He's alright."

Looking up, Chu Wanning asked, "What's alright supposed to mean?"

Xue Meng thought about how to say it for a moment. "Means he's more or less a decent person now."

"Was he not a decent person before?"

But then he nodded to himself before Xue Meng could even open his mouth to reply.

"Indeed not. Continue."

"....." Xue Meng's specialty lay in describing his own deeds in lengthy, dramatic narratives while talking about other people's deeds in a simple and brisk manner—especially if that other person happened to be Mo Ran.

"He's been running around everywhere these years. Grew up some," Xue Meng said. "That's about it."

"He didn't attend the Spiritual Mountain Competition?"

"Nope, he was cultivating at Snow Valley then."

Chu Wanning didn't ask anything else.

The two of them chatted some more about this and that, and then, worried he might get tired, Xue Meng reined in all the other countless things he still wanted to say and excused himself.

After he left, Chu Wanning lay down in bed, still dressed.

He still remembered everything that had happened in the Underworld, so he wasn't at all surprised about the way Mo Ran had changed. It was just that time waited for no one; during the past several years that he'd missed, even Xue Meng had grown up so much that he almost didn't recognize him, so he wondered what Mo Ran looked like now.

He thought about what Xue Zhengyong had said to him earlier, before leaving: "Yuheng, let's have a banquet tomorrow at Mengpo Hall to celebrate your coming out of seclusion. No refusing now, I've already sent a letter to Ran-er, surely you wouldn't want him to rush back all this way and not get to have a warm meal and good wine?"

And so Chu Wanning hadn't refused. He didn't like crowds, but Mo Ran had always been his weak spot.

Xue Zhengyong also told him that many villages at the foot of Baitou Mountain had been destroyed during the last Heavenly Rift at Butterfly Town, leaving most of the survivors either injured or crippled. Due to the severity of the damage, the villages were still in ruins even now, and the entire region of snowy plains looked like hell on earth.

And that that was where Mo Ran was these days, helping the villages rebuild.

He continued reading for a while under the candle light, but in the end couldn't resist the urge. Getting up and summoning a messenger haitang with a wave of his sleeve, he thought for a moment before speaking, "Sect Leader, if I may trouble you, please send Mo Ran another letter and tell him to not rush. It would be great if he could make it back in time, but it's also alright if not, I won't blame him. The weather's getting cold lately, and winters in the Baitou Mountain region have always been harsh, so tell him to take care of the villages first, no sloppy rushing allowed."

Only after setting the haitang adrift did Chu Wanning finally let out a sigh and lie back in bed, picking up the half-read copy of cultivation world annals to continue reading.

His reading speed wasn't quite as outrageous as Xue Meng said, to be able to read the whole pile of books in one night, but finishing a couple of them was no problem.

Melted wax pooled into the candle holder as the night grew deeper. Folding the book closed, Chu Wanning shut his eyes, a slight crease between his brows.

He had read through essentially everything that had happened in the cultivation world in the last five years. The contents of the records were rather uneventful at first, but once they got to the second Heavenly Rift at Butterfly Town, Mo Ran's name started cropping up in many and more passages.

Chu Wanning was lying on his side at first, propping up his cheek with one hand while flipping lazily through the pages with the other, but he couldn't help sitting up at this part, holding up the book and reading closely.

“The people of the lower cultivation realm migrated eastward, but were met with a guarded wall at the border and denied entry. This coincided with several days of overcast skies that allowed fiends to walk freely in the open. The common people died by the thousands in front of the wall, and blood flowed in rivers. September saw the food supply route cut off for seventeen days; murder and cannibalism abounded…”

Here was written the events of when ghosts and fiends had run rampant in the lower cultivation realm, and many of the common people had thought to seek refuge in the upper cultivation realm, only to be turned away at the border, and in the end, desperate and starving, resorted to killing and eating one another to survive.

That the horror and carnage then had been reduced to just a couple of lines on paper left a sour taste in Chu Wanning’s mouth as he read.

“The defense was led by young masters Meng and Ran of Sisheng Peak. Xue Meng’s reputation soared as thousands of fiends were exterminated under the blade Longcheng and many more were driven back. Mo Ran single-handedly repaired the Heavenly Rift, banishing demons back into the Underworld, with barrier arts that were astoundingly similar to those of his master, Chu Wanning.”

Chu Wanning’s eyes opened a touch wider; though he knew that the Heavenly Rift described here was not quite as severe as the one back then, he was still a little surprised. “He can repair a rift all by himself now?”

As he kept reading, there were more passages about Mo Ran deeds, vanquishing evil as he travelled the land.

“...The Hedong region was set upon by a monster, which Bitan Sect refused to deal with for reasons undisclosed. Hearing of this, Mo Ran travelled there and found the Drought Demon of Yellow River, and after a three-day long battle, beheaded the demon and burned its head to eliminate the threat. However, the young master was gravely injured, having been stabbed through the abdomen and ribcage. He was fortunate to meet Jiang Xi, the sect leader of Guyue’ye…”

Even the tips of Chu Wanning’s fingers were ice cold.

He was gravely injured, having been stabbed through the abdomen and ribcage.

Whose abdomen, whose ribcage? Mo Ran’s?

He read it over four, five more times, refusing to believe his eyes despite never having misread anything before. On the sixth time, he even putt his finger on the page to follow along as he read the words one by one.

Hearing of this, Mo Ran travelled there...a three-day long battle...

Chu Wanning could practically see the back of a black-robed figure, long boots stepping through the enormous waves of the Yellow River, one hand held behind his back, the other grasped around a brightly glowing holy weapon in the form of a willow vine.

Beheaded the demon and burned its head to eliminate the threat. However, the young master was gravely injured.

His hand on the page clenched into a fist, so tightly that the joints turned white.

He could see Mo Ran lash out with the vine amongst the thunderous waves, Jiangui snapping across the sky in a fiery arc, severing the drought demon's head clean off and sending blood flying everywhere, but at the very same instant, the drought demon's sharp claws also pierced right through Mo Ran's torso!

The giant beast that had lost its head swung for a moment before crashing to the ground with a deafening sound, its colossal body cutting off the very flow of the Yellow River itself. Mo Ran collapsed by the riverside as well, unable to stand any longer as blood spread on his robes…

Chu Wanning slowly closed his eyes.

And did not open them for a long, long time. But the lightly quivering eyelashes grew damp.

In the end, all of the books, without exception, referred to Mo Ran as "Mo-zongshi".

Reading these words, Chu Wanning felt only an indescribable strangeness and unfamiliarity.

He couldn't reconcile the brightly smiling, somewhat lazy adolescent in his memories with such a term of address as "Mo-zongshi". When it came to Mo Ran, he'd missed so much; Chu Wanning suddenly wondered, if that person were to come back tomorrow, whether he'd still be able to recognize this disciple of his.

A disciple who carried many more scars, a disciple who had become Mo-zongshi.

He couldn't help feeling vaguely uneasy at the thought.

He really wanted to see Mo Ran, but also didn't quite have the courage to.

Troubled by such anxiety, it wasn't until the latter half of the night that Chu Wanning finally dozed off.

Even after already having died once, he still didn't know how to take care of himself, lying there in a pile of books with no blanket. He really was a bit fatigued due to not being quite recovered yet. Add on top of that the fact that barely anyone dared to enter the Red Lotus Pavilion without permission, and no one would come to wake him up. And so Chu Wanning ended up sleeping the whole day away. By the time he woke up, it was already evening the next day.

Opening the window to see a setting sun, Chu Wanning fell into a prolonged silence.

"……"

The surface of the lake reflected the dusk-red clouds as a crane flew leisurely across the horizon, returning to nest at the end of a long day.

It was already evening…

Had he slept through the night and then the entire day too?

Chu Wanning's entire face was ashen. A crack came from where his hand rested on the window frame, where he nearly snapped the wooden beam in half.

How absolutely unacceptable; the banquet that the sect leader was holding just for him was about to start, yet here he was, still drowsy-eyed, clothing in disarray and hair undone… what to do? What to do, what to do, what to do?!

He fretted anxiously to himself.

"Yuheng!" It was just his luck that Xue Zhengyong would choose this exact moment to come up here and invite himself in, only to freeze at the sight of Chu Wanning sitting on the bed with an indecipherable expression on his face.

"Are you still not up yet?"

“I’m up,” Chu Wanning replied, and he would’ve pulled off a dignified look too, if not for that strand of hair sticking up at his temple. “Did Sect Leader need something, to personally come all this way?”

“Oh no, I’m good, was just a bit worried cause I didn’t see you come down from here all day.” Xue Zhengyong rubbed his hands. “Well, since you’re up, go get washed and dressed then come over to Mengpo Hall for dinner later. Before leaving, Master Huaizui said to hold off on food for twenty four hours; you haven’t eaten anything since you woke up yesterday, and it’s now been twenty four hours, perfect timing. I had them make a bunch of your favorite dishes, like stewed crab meatballs, sweet osmanthus lotus root, and all that. C’mon, let’s walk over together.”

“Your trouble is much appreciated.” Hearing that there would be stewed crab meatballs and sweet osmanthus lotus root, Chu Wanning no longer cared to waste time getting ready, planning instead to just throw on a change of clothes and immediately go down the mountain with Xue Zhengyong.

After all, stewed crab meatballs had to be eaten while still hot, since they got all bland once they cooled.

“No trouble, no trouble.” Xue Zhengyong rubbed his hands some more while watching him put on his shoes, and then, suddenly remembering something, said, “Oh yeah, one more thing.”

Chu Wanning was no good at the mundane tasks of daily life to start with, and the five year slumber only made him even more out of it: he tried to put the left sock on the right foot for a good solid while before realizing it and swapping them around with a perfectly straight face that betrayed absolutely nothing.

Focused on putting on socks, he answered mildly without even lifting his head, “What is it?”

Xue Zhengyong said with a grin, “I got an urgent letter from Ran-er this morning, saying he’ll definitely make it back tonight. And he got you a congratulatory gift too; he’s really getting quite thoughtful the older he gets, I… hey, Yuheng, why are you taking off your socks?”

“No reason, they’re yesterday’s.”

Chu Wanning said, “They’re a little dirty, I’m changing to a fresh pair.”

“...Then why didn’t you do that earlier?”

“I only just remembered.”

Xue Zhengyong was an open and forthright guy, so he didn’t think too deeply about it, only looked around the place for a bit before commenting, “You know, Yuheng, you’re not getting any younger. It’s about time you got a cultivation partner if you ask me. Just look at your place, it was all neat and tidy when Master Huaizui left, but as soon as you woke up, haven’t even really lived in the place yet, and there’s already paper and clothes strewn about everywhere… I’ll keep an eye out for you, how about it?”

“Sect Leader, kindly see yourself out.”

“Eh?”

Chu Wanning's face was all doom and gloom. "I'm changing."

"Haha, sure, I'll get out, but, the cultivation partner thing…?"

Chu Wanning's head snapped up, eyes cold like a pair of frozen lakes as they glared at Xue Zhengyong, tactless man that he was.

Finally catching on somewhat, Xue Zhengyong chuckled awkwardly and said, "...Just asking. I was wondering what kind of things you look for, since I'm sure you won't settle for just anyone."

Chu Wanning dropped his eyelids, but seemed to have shot Xue Zhengyong a glare.

Xue Zhengyong sighed and said helplessly, "What, am I wrong? I know you're picky."

Chu Wanning replied mildly, "I just have better things to do, is all, how is that being picky."

"Alright then, if you're not picky, then tell me what kinda looks you like? No pressure or anything, just so I can keep an eye out for you."

Annoyed and not wanting to waste his breath, Chu Wanning offhandedly made something up, "Alive. Female. Sect Leader can feel free to keep an eye out. Kindly see yourself out."

He pushed Xue Zhengyong toward the door as he spoke, but Xue Zhengyong wasn't about to just give up, especially after the whole dying thing—he was really, truly, wholeheartedly invested in getting Chu Wanning hitched.

Back when Chu Wanning had died, Xue Zhengyong greatly regretted that he didn't have a child to leave behind like his brother did, that way he'd at least have some way to remember him by, someone to look after and make amends to.

But Chu Wanning had neither children nor siblings, had always kept to himself.

Xue Zhengyong had been disconsolate then, had felt incredibly guilty, and, more than that, had felt that Chu Wanning was really too pitiably lonely.

"That tells me absolutely nothing… Yuheng, really, I'm being serious here ——hey!"

Xue Zhengyong was shoved out and the door slammed in his face even as he struggled.

Followed by a barrier to make sure he stayed out.

Xue Zhengyong: "....."

Author's Notes:

New mini-theatre: "Lead Males' and Side Males' Standards For A Significant Other"

The Sect Leader handed down a little test-scroll, and required everyone to write their standards for a cultivation partner.

Chu Wan Ning: Why is it this again? It is already stated in the novel: female, alive. As long as these criteria are met.

Mo Ran: (sighs)...Actually, I don't know what qualities I want my cultivation partners to have as well, but I feel that with my IQ, I'm not suited for dating.

Xue Meng (taking this seriously, thinking very hard): They can't be below my chin in height, they can't be heavier than me, and their waist can't be thicker than my thigh. Best if they have almond-shaped eyes, I like almond-shaped eyes. They can't lose to Shi Mei in terms of looks (Shi Mei: ……), can't lose to Mo Ran in terms of martial ability (Mo Ran: Submit your scroll, there's no such woman), they must be unsurpassed in loyalty and chastity, priority given to those who can cook. Most importantly: They must be able to eat spicy food, I can't stand half-spicy, half-clear broth hotpot. Even though my family doesn't have a throne for me to inherit, I feel that I'm not yet an old leftover man.[149] I don't care whether I get married or not; after all, a man's career is more important, so as long as one of the criteria above is not fulfilled, you don't have to approach me to talk, let's not waste each other's time.

Shi Mei: I'm fine as long as they're kind. Whether they're pretty or ugly isn't very important.

Nangong Si: First, honest. Second, pretty.

Ye Wangxi: ...Not interested.

Mei Hanxue: Can I find one who can give me a bigger part? Director, do you need me as a body double for the bedroom scenes between those two male leads?

Big White Cat that has come online: [thanking jjwxc readers]

Dog that has gone offline: [thanking jjwxc readers]

Ch.126 Shizun, Wait One More Chapter For Me!

The end of Yuheng Elder's seclusion was naturally a cause for celebration for the entire sect. But Xue Zhengyong knew that Chu Wanning disliked the bustle of gatherings and didn't have much of a way with words, so he planned out what to say and what to do for him ahead of time. Chu Wanning was worried that he might be a bit awkward at the banquet at first, but he soon found out that he really didn't have to worry at all.

Xue Zhengyong may be a big, burly man, but he was keenly perceptive and had a full grasp on the mood in the room. Before the gathering of all the elders and masses of disciples, he spoke some words from the bottom of his heart—not so many as to come off like a deliberate attempt to stir up emotion, but being genuinely moving instead. Only Lucun Elder couldn't read the air, laughing as he shouted:

"Yuheng, why the long face on this happy occasion? You should say a few words too, some of the newer disciples here don't even know what you look like."

Xue Zhengyong tried to save him. "Lucun, I've already said everything there is to say for Yuheng, don't put him on the spot."

"That's different, he's gotta put in at least a couple of words."

"But he——"

"It's fine." Xue Zhengyong was about to say something else when he was interrupted by a deep, cool voice. "Since there are new disciples here, I'll just say a few words," Chu Wanning stood up as he spoke. His eyes scanned Mengpo Hall, through the bustling crowd of a couple thousand people all looking at him.

But Mo Ran wasn't among them.

Chu Wanning thought for a moment, then said, "The Red Lotus Pavilion on the southern summit has myriad defensive mechanisms and mechanical guardians. In order to prevent accidental injuries, new disciples are advised against visiting without cause."

The crowd fell silent.

Lucun couldn't help asking, "...That's it?""

"That's it."

Chu Wanning responded, then dropped his gaze and swept his sleeves aside to sit back down.

The silence stretched on.

The new disciples were pensive: dying and then coming back to life after five years of seclusion from the world was definitely not something that most people would ever experience. Shouldn't you at least say something heartfelt about your feelings, or express some gratitude to your saviour, things like that?

But he just tossed out that one line like he was reading out the tenets or something and left it at that, where's the sincerity?

But the older disciples couldn't help laughing quietly, several of them whispering to each other, "That's Yuheng Elder, alright."

“Still doesn’t like talking.”

“Pfft, seriously. Bad temper and short fuse. He’s got a good-looking face, but that’s about it.” Someone quipped under the cover of everyone else’s chattering, from where they stood far enough away that Chu Wanning wouldn’t hear. The crowd chuckled amongst themselves as they talked, then turned to look toward that white-robed person sitting next to Xue Zhengyong.

The banquet began. There were spicy and savory Sichuan dishes of course, but also lots of finely-made desserts and beautifully arranged, mild and sweet Jiangnan dishes, covering entire tables in abundance.

Xue Zhengyong also opened a hundred-some jars of top quality pear blossom white wine to share between the tables, and cups were generously filled with the amber-colored wine. Chu Wanning was on his fourth stewed crab meatball when a large bowl was suddenly put down in front of him with a clang .

“Yuheng! Let’s have a cup!”

“...That’s a bowl.”

“Aiyah who cares if it’s a cup or a bowl, just drink it! It’s your favorite, pear blossom white!” Xue Zhengyong’s bold features were practically glowing with joy in the cheerful atmosphere. “I know how much you can drink! A thousand cups won’t even get you tipsy! C’mon, cheers!”

Chu Wanning smiled and picked up the big bowl, clinked it with Xue Zhengyong.

“Since Sect Leader says so, cheers.”

With that, he downed the bowl and flipped it over to show Xue Zhengyong. Xue Zhengyong was overjoyed, but the rims of his eyes turned a little red. “That’s my man! I remember, five years ago, when you asked me for a jar of the top quality pear blossom white from the cellar and I wouldn’t give it to you back then. I couldn’t regret it enough later on, thought I’d never… never get to…” He trailed off, then abruptly lifted his head and huffed out a long exhale before declaring loudly, “Nevermind! No point dwelling on it! If you want it, you can have the whole cellar of pear blossom white! I’ll make sure you have good wine to drink for the rest of your life!”

Chu Wanning said with a smile, “Deal.”

While they chatted, Xue Meng was over in a corner with someone, whispering back and forth for a good while before Xue Meng suddenly grabbed that person and came over with them in tow, both of them bowing together to Chu Wanning in proper, upright form.

“Shizun!” Xue Meng lifted his head, his youthful face handsome and commanding.

“Shizun.” The other person lifted his head as well to reveal a face that was beautiful like a lotus coming into bloom, like whisps of clouds drifting lightly between peaks—who else could it be but Shi Mei?

Shi Mei said bashfully, “This disciple was held up seeing patients at the free clinic in Wuchang Town today, and only just now came to visit Shizun. Pray forgive this disciple’s shameful tardiness.”

“...It’s no matter.”

Chu Wanning looked Shi Mei over carefully through lowered lashes, and though his expression remained neutral, he was caught off guard by a sudden sense of loss deep inside.

Mo Ran’s beloved person had grown up to be way too incomparably beautiful.

If the Shi Mei of five years ago was still a fledgeling beauty, then the grown up Shi Mei standing before him now was like a queen of the night[150] in full bloom, its tender green sepals no longer able to hide the glistening white within, snowy petals quivering as they unfurl, its loveliness eclipsing everything else around it. He had a pair of sweet peach blossom eyes that were clear and dewy. The curve of his nose was gentle and perfect; a little more would’ve seemed too harsh, and a little less would’ve look too weak. And his lips were red and full, like a dew-laden cherry, and every word spoken was sweet and soft.

“Shizun, this disciple missed you so much.”

He rarely ever expressed his feelings so openly. Chu Wanning didn’t know what to say for a moment, caught by surprise as he was.

Shi Mei's eyes were red-rimmed with emotion, and Chu Wanning couldn't help feeling a little ashamed of himself.

What was he being jealous of Shi Mingjing for? He was so much older than them, and their superior to boot, why should he be jealous of Shi Mingjing?

Thinking thus, Chu Wanning nodded and said mildly, "You can both get up."

His two disciples stood up by his leave.

……

Chu Wanning had only just gotten his feelings under control, but then he glanced at Shi Mei and froze.

"....."

Shi Mei was taller than Xue Meng?

Chu Wanning choked a little, cleared his throat twice, and couldn't resist stealing a couple more glances.

Not just a little taller, either.

But Shi Mei's figure was even better like this, with broad shoulders, a slim waist, and long legs, looking gentle and demure but with a suggestion of subtle assertiveness, an air of grace and elegance that defies words. This grown up Shi Mei was nothing like the fragile-looking adolescent he used to be.

Chu Wanning's face fell again despite himself.

He felt like he had lost a little too pathetically.

But...forget it.

He had kept his feelings for Mo Ran to himself even until death, so there was no way he'd ever say it in the future. As for Mo Ran, that guy had chased him all the way to the Underworld and still couldn't tell that he liked him, so there was no way he'd ever notice in the future either.

The two of them can just be master and disciple for the rest of this life. That's a strong bond too, it's fine.

As for anything beyond that... no point forcing something that wasn't meant to be.

Xue Meng, red-faced, suddenly nudged Shi Mei with his elbow and shot him a meaningful look.

Helplessly, Shi Mei said in a soft voice, "You really want me to do it?"

"Yeah, it'd be better if you do it."

"But you're the one who got these things over the five years…"

"Yeah that's why it'd be awkward for me to! You do it. Besides, you brought back some stuff with you today, right?"

"...Alright." Shi Mei sighed and gave in, taking a huge rosewood box that Xue Meng had been hiding behind his back and holding it in both hands as he walked over to Chu Wanning, who had already sat back down to continue eating his stewed crab meatball.

“Shizun, the young master and I...prepared some gifts over the past five years, just some… small gestures, please accept them.”

As he spoke, Xue Meng’s face grew redder and redder behind him. In an attempt to cover up how flustered he was, he crossed his arms and turned his head away in feigned nonchalance, as if suddenly fascinated by the decoratively carved pillars of Mengpo Hall.

Generally speaking, opening a gift in front of the giver was impolite, but as their shizun, Chu Wanning didn’t want to accept anything too valuable, so he thought for a moment and then asked, “What is it?”

“It’s...just some little things we got here and there.” Smart and perceptive as he was, Shi Mei immediately figured out Chu Wanning’s concern and said, “Nothing expensive. Just take it back and open it for a look then if that’s what Shizun is worried about.”

But Chu Wanning countered, “There’s no difference between opening it now or when I get back. I’ll just go ahead and open it.”

“No no no!!!! Don’t open it!” Xue Meng froze for a second, then immediately rushed over in a panic and tried to grab the box.

But Chu Wanning had already opened it, and even threw him an impassive look.

“What are you running for, don’t trip and fall.”

Xue Meng: “.....”

Sure enough, the box was stuffed full with all kinds of interesting-looking little things, including a few delicately embroidered hair ribbons, finely crafted hair clasps, and intricate belt buckles made of jade. Chu Wanning casually picked up a bottle of sedatives, and saw on it the seal of Hanlin the Sage glistening under the candle light.

The contents of the box were quite costly indeed.

Chu Wanning really didn’t know what to say, opting instead to look up and shoot Xue Meng a glare. Xue Meng’s face grew even redder.

Xue Zhengyong watched on from the side, amused. He said, “Yuheng, just accept it as a token of Meng-er’s thoughtfulness. The other elders all got you fairly pricey gifts too anyway, what’s one more?”

Chu Wanning said, “Xue Meng is my disciple.”

The implication being that he didn’t want to accept this many things from his own disciple.

“But it’s just some things I picked up over the last five years that I thought would suit Shizun!” Hearing him say that, Xue Meng panicked. “And I only used money I earned myself, not a cent of dad’s money. Shizun, if you don’t take it, I… I…”

“He’ll be upset, won’t be able to sleep,” Xue Zhengyong filled in for his son, “might even go on a hunger strike.”

Chu Wanning: “.....”

He really didn’t know how to deal with this father-son pair, so he looked back down at the box, and noticed another, even smaller wooden box lying inside the pile of stuff.

“What’s this…” He took it out and opened it to reveal four little clay figurines.

Confused, he looked up at Xue Meng, only to see that Xue Meng’s face was currently the color of a ripe tomato. Seeing Chu Wanning look his way, Xue Meng hurriedly lowered his head, the handsome young man acting like a bashful little boy under his shizun’s stare, unable to make eye contact.

Chu Wanning asked, “What is this?”

Xue Zhengyong was curious as well. “Let’s take it out and have a look.”

“No...don’t…” Hand on his forehead, Xue Meng mumbled helplessly. But his old man had already cheerfully taken out the four little clay dolls and arranged them in a row. The little figurines were crudely made, ugly and crooked, and all looked basically the same except for one being slightly taller and the other three being slightly shorter. Xue Meng’s work, to be sure.

Xue Meng had originally wanted to learn the mechanical arts from Chu Wanning, but it only took a day before Chu Wanning had him switch to the blade instead, for no other reason than the fact that the boy had managed to make absolutely nothing after an entire afternoon spent at the Red Lotus Pavilion, but had nearly managed to tear down the machine room with just a file.

It must've been hard work to make these clay dolls with nothing but the power of his pure heart.

Xue Zhengyong grabbed one of the dolls and looked it over, turning it this way and that, but still couldn't figure it out. So he asked his son, "This thing that you made, what is it?"

Xue Meng said stubbornly, "N-nothing, I was just messing around."

"This black one is really ugly, that taller white one looks much better," Xue Zhengyong mumbled as he thumbed at the little clay doll's head.

Xue Meng yelled, "Don't touch it!!!!"

But it was too late. The little doll spoke.

"Hands off, Uncle."

Xue Zhengyong: "....."

Chu Wanning: "....."

Xue Meng gave himself a sound slap, then covered his eyes with his arms, not wanting to even look any longer.

It took Xue Zhengyong quite a while to put two and two together, laughing out loud when he finally figured it out, “Oho, Meng-er, is this supposed to be Ran-er? Didn’t you make him a bit too ugly? Hahahahaha!”

Xue Meng shot back angrily, “That’s cause he is ugly! Look at the Shizun I made instead! Pretty, right?!” His face was bright red as he spoke, pointing at the white-painted clay doll.

But the tip of his finger inadvertently brushed against the little white doll’s head. It hmph’d coldly and said, “Don’t be impudent.”

Chu Wanning: “.....”

“HAHAHAHAHAHA!!!!!!” Xue Zhengyong laughed so hard he nearly cried. “That’s pretty good, pretty good! You put a voice charm in them didn’t you? The little one’s actually doing a pretty good impression of Yuheng’s tone, hahahaha!”

Chu Wanning said with a flick of his sleeves, “Ridiculous.”

But then carefully picked up the four little clay dolls, tucked them back into the box, and put the box next to himself. His face betrayed nothing the entire time, looking calm as ever, but there was a hint of lingering gentleness in his eyes when he looked back up.

“I’ll take this one, you can keep the rest. It’s all things you can use too, and this master isn’t wanting for any of them.”

“But…”

“Young master, just do as Shizun says.” Shi Mei smiled and consoled him quietly, then lowered his voice to say, “What the young master wanted to give the most was the box of little clay dolls anyway, right?”

Xue Meng was so mad there was practically smoke rising from his head. He shot Shi Mei an angry glare, stomped his feet, then bit his lip and refused to talk any more.

Xue Meng had always been flattered and fawned upon while growing up, never had words he couldn’t say or things he couldn’t do, so if he liked something or disliked something, he’d always express it loudly and frankly.

Chu Wanning felt like he was extraordinary for that reason, because this kind of candor was something that he himself never had, and one of Xue Meng’s most remarkable qualities. He envied that about him, that openness that was so unlike the way that he himself could never be honest, claiming to not care about something even as it occupied his thoughts.

He had gotten a little better about it since coming back to life, but it was what it was, and the changes weren’t really too noticeable. It would take more than one cold day for a river to freeze three feet deep; he felt like he probably wouldn’t really change all that much, even if he were to try for the rest of his life. And besides, he wouldn’t really be him anymore if he changed too much.

The banquet was nearly over, but Mo Ran had still not come back.

Chu Wanning’s chest felt all stuffy, but he said nothing about it, even though he really wanted to ask Xue Zhengyong what exactly Mo Ran had written in that letter from earlier today, wanted to ask if he knew where exactly Mo Ran was right now.

But instead he only gripped the wine cup and downed one drink after another, his joints white with the force of his grip. The wine burned all the way down, but it did not burn enough to warm his heart, not enough for him to summon the courage to turn around and ask when he would be back.

Author's Notes:

There are perks on Weibo today~

Thankieww "Xu Liang" for your picture of Shizuwun walking in the snow looking for plum blossoms~~ A very very handsome Shizuwun with his thick cloak, I can't help but want to bury my face into the fur of his hood hehe~ It's suwuper great I want to lick it~~ thanks~

Thankieww "Salted Fish in Flying Snow" for little cutie Xia Sini~ while we're on this topic, Xia Sini will not be coming online ever again, although he's Shizun's child form, I feel kind of sad for some reason QAQ Cradling osmanthus cake and asking Dog -gege for lotus flower crisp and stuff, is he really not afraid of repeating the Fourth Ghost King's mistakes hahaha thanks~

Thankieww "Shuanghua stabbing Meatbun" for Nangong Si...hahaha I really need to have a good laugh at this, mermaid Nangong Si hahahahaha,

Ye Wangsi is probably laughing himself awake from this dream, he went again the ship dynamics hahaha. Is this cold and heartless mermaid Nangong- gege x passionate prince loyal dog Ye, hahaha~ but little koi Nangong- gege is really cute, I want to tease him~ thanks~

Mini-theatre “The Reason Behind The Team's Tardiness”

Chu Wan Ning: Late is late, I don’t want to explain, just punish me.

Mo Ran 0.5: There was an old woman walking too slowly on the way here, and she got in my way. I came here right after killing her, arriving a little late. Hand this venerable one a clean handkerchief, some blood splattered onto my face.

Mo Ran 1.0: Hahaha~ An old granny was crossing the road, the way she was leaning on her cane was sooo funny. I snatched the cane she was using to cross the road because I wanted to see something comedic happen. But I returned it to her afterwards, don’t worry, don’t worry~

Mo Ran 2.0: On the way here, I saw an elderly person who had difficulty walking, so I helped her cross the road and delayed my journey, my apologies.

Shi Mei: I ran into a patient kicking up a fuss so that he could attain some benefits he wasn’t entitled to and really couldn’t leave...sorry...

Xue Meng: None of your shitty business.

Nangong Si: The one above is really uncouth, I'll be more polite--what does that have to do with you?

Ye Wangxi: I am never late. Look again, it should be your hourglass that's malfunctioning.

Mei Hanxue: For every step I take, there'll be female cultivators coming up to pester me. Even if I leave the house four hours earlier, I'll still end up late. I've given up on fighting it.

Ch.127 Shizun, Careful, the Ground's Slippery

But Chu Wanning didn't ask, and Xue Zhengyong didn't bring it up.

In fact, the sect leader of Sisheng Peak was getting kind of plastered, feeling light-headed and slurring his words.

He suddenly leaned over, stared at Chu Wanning, and said, "Yuheng, you're upset."

"I am not."

"You're mad."

"I am not," Chu Wanning repeated.

"Who upset you?"

Chu Wanning: "....."

Should he ask?

He'd feel a lot better if he just asked. Maybe Mo Ran didn't actually say that he'd definitely be back tonight, maybe he only said that he'll try his best to make it back, and Xue Zhengyong just said it wrong, or remembered it wrong...

Chu Wanning glanced toward the door, at the darkness of night outside.

The banquet was coming to a close, and the seats would soon be cold.

His first day out of seclusion, and Mo Ran hadn't made it back in time.

Every single disciple of Sisheng Peak was here, including the ones whose names he didn't know and the ones he'd never even met before. Only he wasn't here.

Without him here, the banquet was incomplete.

All the stewed crab meatballs, sweet osmanthus lotus root, and fragrant pear blossom white wine in the world wouldn't make it complete.

Chu Wanning closed his eyes, but there was suddenly a ruckus from the direction of Mengpo Hall's front entrance, with a bunch of disciples yelling excitedly in the distance.

"Aiyah——! Look! What's that outside?"

"There's something in the sky!"

More and more people gathered over there, and even those in the hall could hear the lively crackling sounds and thunderous booms coming from the outside, one after another.

They walked out to the verdant lawn just outside Mengpo Hall, looking up at the sky all lit up by fireworks, explosions of millions of little glittering specks blooming and scattering against the backdrop of the starry night sky.

"Fireworks!" The younger disciples beamed with joy, youthful faces illuminated by the flickering lights above, the sky full of stars reflected in their eyes.

"It's so pretty, I've never seen fireworks this big, not even at New Year's!'

Chu Wanning walked slowly out from the hall as well. He wasn't in the greatest mood; though he was grateful that Xue Zhengyong had gone to the trouble of preparing such a brilliant fireworks show, the heaviness in his chest continued to weigh on him.

Fweeee ——

A sharp whistling sound pierced through the night sky.

He lifted his head listlessly to see a streak of golden-red light shoot into the open sky like an arrow loosened from its bow.

How beautiful.

If only that person were here too…

Bang!

That brilliant flare flew up to a height about level with the Big Dipper's handle before bursting in explosion to fill the night sky with countless shimmering sparkles, eclipsing all the stars of the Milky Way and stealing the light from the moon itself.

The fireworks scattered like so many petals of haitang blossoms set adrift by a passing breeze, floating and dancing like wintry snow, glimmering and rippling like open waters. Amidst the splendid display and lively bustling of the crowd, Chu Wanning slowly closed his eyes.

"Disciple Mo Ran Welcomes Shizun Back From Seclusion."

Someone said from behind him all of a sudden, every word clear and needle-like.

Chu Wanning began to tremble lightly, feeling like there were thorns in his back, fire in his throat. With his heart beating all out of rhythm, blood racing through his veins, and unable to breathe, he whipped his head around——

Standing behind him were a couple of disciples who had just come out from Mengpo Hall, all of them looking up at the sky in amazement, and one of them had read aloud thus.

Gradually, it wasn't just the one person reading aloud anymore.

Everyone found it novel and interesting; everyone, including the youngest disciples, the men and the women, the ones standing alone and those in groups, all of them were looking up at the glittering, resplendent night sky and reading out loud:

Disciple Mo Ran.

Welcomes Shizun Back From Seclusion.

The utterances carried a tenderness like the tide, gentle as sleepy whispers; the words bore a determination like a boulderstone, firm as mighty mountains. Chu Wanning's head snapped skyward, where the brilliant fireworks, guided by spiritual energy, had spelled out the sentence in huge, shimmering letters across the night sky.

The fireworks flowed into a magnificent river that could probably be seen from even hundreds of miles away, and in that moment, in that night, the colorful, glimmering specks felt like they were converging in on him from across hills and mountains, across time and bygones, bringing with them that person's joys and sorrows, longings and regrets.

He suddenly felt like a piece of driftwood afloat in the ocean, and the ocean was Mo Ran's eyes, the way they had looked when he had suddenly pulled him into his arms in front of the ghost king's palace in the Underworld, full of warm tenderness, fiery passion, and unwavering determination.

There was nowhere to run.

He was surrounded by that person's murmurs, that person's laughter, that person's affection.

Chu Wanning didn't want to think about what kind of affection it was, that of a master and disciple, or something else.

Just having the affection was enough.

Mo Ran didn't manage to make it back before the end of the banquet.

Even pushing on through the night without stop, it was simply too far away.

Luckily he still had the signal fireworks made by Xuanji Elder in his bag that had been given to him for use in an emergency, should he meet with some mishap while away from the peak. It was an ingenious creation; by writing a message on paper with spiritual energy, putting it into the tube, and setting off the firework, the message would be writ boldly across the sky in letters so large that it would be visible from Sisheng Peak from however far away.

The signal fireworks were costly and exceedingly difficult to make, but Mo Ran didn't care about that; all he wanted was to make sure that his shizun wouldn't be upset.

Even from across mountains and rivers, even separated by time and circumstances.

He had to make sure that Chu Wanning could hear these words.

“Disciple Mo Ran Welcomes Shizun Back From Seclusion.”

The banquet came to a close four hours later, and it was late at night by the time he got back to the Red Lotus Pavilion.

Chu Wanning smelled like wine. He wanted to take a bath, wash the smell off, but the weather had gotten cooler lately and the water in the pavilion’s lotus pond was too cold for bathing in—he’d nearly caught a cold bathing there yesterday. He thought for a moment, then went inside to fetch a change of clothes and a wooden washbin, and headed toward Miaoyin Springs.[151]

Miaoyin Springs was the sect’s communal bath. He’d only ever bathed there in his first few months here at Sisheng Peak.

This late at night, there would be hardly anyone bathing there. Lifting the thin layer of hemp curtain with one hand, Chu Wanning walked in. Many parts of Sisheng Peak had been renovated, but Miaoyin Springs was the same as before, with tall, black-tiled walls on all sides, and sheer veils drifting lightly in the breeze along a winding corridor that led from the front gate to a set of six narrow wooden steps lacquered with a clear varnish.

The bathers would all take off their shoes and socks before going down these steps, so just one look here would reveal just how many people were currently soaking in the baths.

Chu Wanning took a look while taking off his shoes and socks, and saw that there was only one lone pair of boots here, of a fairly large size and a little dirty, but placed neatly in the corner, rather than carelessly tossed to the ground just because it was empty here.

Chu Wanning wondered whom it was, to come here for a bath this late at night...

But it was only a fleeting thought. Holding his small washbin, he walked down the steps barefooted, brushed aside the last set of curtains at the end of the footpath, and walked into the courtyard.

The courtyard was hazy with steam from the massive hot spring pond inside that rose and fell with the ground, the water cascading down in a broad, rumbling waterfall. The thick, cloudy steam unfurled gently outwards from the pond, drifting slowly into the air, spreading into every corner and crevice.

The thick steam made everything here blurry, and a person had to get very close to another to see their face.

Walking across the little footpath of smooth, colorful pebbles under the luxuriant canopy of flowering peach blossoms, Chu Wanning arrived at the nearest entrance to the baths. There was a low shelf carved from bluestone there specifically for holding clothes. He put his wooden washbin and robe on the shelf, then took off his clothes and walked slowly into the pond.

It was nice and warm.

He sighed softly in contentment despite himself.

If not for the fact that he didn't want to crowd in here with everyone else while bathing, nor did he fancy coming here late at night every day, he'd really rather bathe here than in the cold waters of the Red Lotus Pavilion's simple pond.

Xue Zhengyong really was fastidious and thorough. He had personally overseen the construction of Miaoyin Springs; flowers bloomed along the edge of the pond year-round, there was a waterfall at the end of the pond for rinsing off, and there was even a small wooden pavilion on the side to lie down and rest in after soaking, provided with heated stones to be placed along the meridians to help relieve the pressure.

Way more indulgent than that rushed bath he had to make do with yesterday at the Red Lotus Pavilion's pond.

Delighted and seeing as how there was no one else around, Chu Wanning let loose for a moment, spreading out his slender body and swimming all the way to the waterfall.

Splash!

He had only just risen out of the water and wiped his face, a faint smile still lingering at his lips, when he abruptly noticed a man very close to him, showering in the surging waterfall with his back to him. The waterfall was so loud that Chu Wanning couldn't hear the other person at all, even this close.

If he had come out of the water a little later, swam a little further, the tips of his fingers probably would've touched the man's legs.

Good thing he had gotten up when he did and hadn't ended up touching the other person, but this was still a bit inappropriately close—he was practically standing right behind the man. He was very tall, quite a bit taller than Chu Wanning, and his sun-kissed skin was the color of honey, making him seem wild and unrestrained. His shoulders were strong and broad, shoulder blades flexing beneath golden skin with concealed strength as his arms moved.

He wasn't overly muscular, but sculpted and evenly toned. The water cascaded over his body, rivulets of it flowing down the wide expanse of his strong, masculine back to gather into streams. Some of the water splashed off, but some seemed infatuated with this body of his, clinging to him in a light sheen, loathe to part.

As someone who was used to being ascetic, Chu Wanning had never seen such a carnal sight before, and his ears burned red as he hurriedly turned to leave.

Heaven only knew if the bottom of the pond was too slippery or if he had taken a false step, but he stumbled and fell face first into the pond, sending a big spray of water splashing into the air!

" Cough cough!!!! "

Chu Wanning's face was bright red with embarrassment and, flustered as he was, he'd even inadvertently swallowed some mouthfuls of water. Remembering that the water was technically used bathwater from that guy behind him, he was so indignant and disgusted that he threw all appearances of calm and composure aside, scrambling and flailing frantically as he tried to get back up.

He was the Yuheng Elder, how could——

In his panicked fluster, with no dignity left to speak of, there was suddenly a strong, shapely hand on him, pulling him up from the streaming waters. The man had obviously been startled by the happening behind him.

“Are you okay?”

With one hand around his arm, the man spoke in a deep, calming voice. The difference in their heights was such that his breath puffed out against Chu Wanning’s ear as he lowered his head to speak, “Careful, it’s slippery here.”

Chu Wanning’s ears burned even hotter; he could practically feel that person’s chest behind him, mere inches from his back, rising and falling, rising and falling, a merciful relief in each fall like it was sparing his life, a menacing precarity in each rise as it threatened to brush against his back.

Chu Wanning was both indignant and mortified at once—never had he been touched by someone like this before!

Shaking the man’s hand off of him, Chu Wanning’s face was all surly, even as he avoided eye contact. “I’m fine.”

The deafening sound of the waterfall’s rushing waters all but covered up Chu Wanning’s voice.

But the man jolted at his voice for some reason, going entirely still for a second before slowly lifting his hand like he wanted to say something, but didn’t quite have the courage to...

In that moment of hesitation, Chu Wanning had already walked a ways into the distance and stepped into, or rather, went to hide inside the rushing, roaring curtain of water.

Author’s Notes:

This mini-theatre originates from an old joke scratches head

Mo Ran: Um...the title has already reminded Shizun that the ground is slippery, why did Shizun still slip? (LOL)

Chu Wan Ning: ...Isn’t it pronounced “slip carefully”?[152]

Ch.128 Shizun, You Can't Just Wear Whatever Clothes You Feel Like

Chu Wanning's heart beat fast, and he was so mad his face was a bit flushed.

He could see, out of the corner of his eyes, that the man was still standing there in the same spot, seemingly frozen. Chu Wanning did not look directly at him, but he could feel the man's stare on himself, open and blatant, like a sword just raised from the forging pool, hissing still with an overwhelming heat and vaporizing the curtain of water as it pierced right through the waterfall straight for him.

Chu Wanning felt absolutely scandalised for some reason. Expression growing even more sour, he bit down on his lip and moved to hide even deeper into the waterfall.

But the guy was an idiot , as it turned out. Chu Wanning scooted in to hide, and like a puppet on strings, he took a step forward too.

"……"

Chu Wanning was furious. There were always a couple of perverts at Sisheng Peak; there had even once been a woman who, instead of going to sleep at night like a normal person, had gone crawling up the roof at Red Lotus Pavilion to peek at him bathing. Just thinking about it made his scalp go numb, and goosebumps rose all along the arm that had gotten grabbed by that guy.

Luckily, after a while of him hiding in the waterfall as deep as he could go—inadvertently swallowing more than a few droplets of the water in the process—the guy finally decided to let him be, going back to the streaming water to continue rinsing, though he kept looking back as he walked away.

Holding down his anger the best he could, Chu Wanning was in no mood to soak in the baths anymore, thinking only to finish up and get out of there as soon as possible.

He reached for the towel draped over his shoulder, only to find that the towel, together with the soapberry[153] and fragrance bar wrapped inside, had fallen into the water during his great tumble earlier.

They were probably dissolved by now…

Should he get out of the water to fetch another one?

But he was naked, and that would involve walking past that guy.

Chu Wanning's face had gone from red to blue. He pressed his thin lips tightly together, mortified.

He was not going.

So he remained standing there with his arms crossed over his chest and his back against the rock like an idiot, letting the water wash over him in the deepest part of the streaming waterfall.

Chu Wanning: "……"

The man: "……"

Suddenly, in the distance, that guy raised his voice and asked hesitantly, “Do you want a soapberry?”

“……”

“And fragrance bars?”

“……”

“Surely you’re not going to just wash like that?”

Closing his eyes and staying right where he was, Chu Wanning replied coldly, “Toss it over.”

But the guy didn’t toss it over, as if thinking that it would be rude to do that with a stranger. After waiting a while under the waterfall, Chu Wanning saw a peach leaf enchanted with spiritual power drift slowly toward him, bearing a soapberry and two fragrance bars.

Chu Wanning picked up the items, but then paused upon taking a closer look.

The soapberry was whatever, since everyone used basically the same thing, but that person had picked out a plum blossom scented fragrance bar and a haitang scented one, his favorite scents.

He glanced over at the tall figure in the distance through the sparkling, translucent curtain of water despite himself.

The man asked, “Those two scents okay?”

Chu Wanning replied, “Fine.”

The man said no more, and the two of them continued washing in silence from where they stood far apart, each occupied with his own thoughts. Chu Wanning felt a little more at ease as he washed, and so cautiously stepped back out from the depths of the waterfall, since the water stream where he was standing was actually a bit too strong for comfort.

But the man looked over again as soon as he came back out. It would’ve been one thing if he was just looking over, but there was always something weird in his stare, and Chu Wanning got the distinct impression that he wanted to say something to him but kept stopping himself, and kept wavering between coming closer or not, making Chu Wanning’s skin prickle all over.

Chu Wanning washed for a bit, but then couldn’t take it anymore and decided to leave first.

But he had left his clothes at the entrance, and he’d have to go back that way to get dressed. Having no other option, Chu Wanning could only brace himself and, with his face sullen and his teeth gritted, walked toward where the man was standing.

But unexpectedly, as he was walking past in front of the man, not all that close from him but also not far enough, that guy suddenly started moving too, putting his long hair up and shaking the water from his fringe to follow Chu Wanning out of the bath.

The vein at Chu Wanning's temple throbbed. He started walking faster, but that guy was astoundingly shameless, and started walking faster as well.

Chu Wanning: "……"

The tips of his fingers had already begun to glow with the golden light of Tianwen, but he held back from summoning his weapon for the time being, not out of any concern about injuring someone, but solely because he felt that he should get dressed before beating anyone up.

So he picked up his speed even more.

This time, the man stopped instead of continuing to tail him.

Chu Wanning sighed in relief, but only managed to let out half his breath before he heard the man say from behind him, "There are… soap bubbles on your hair still."

"……"

"Aren't you gonna wash it off?"

The man approached slowly just as Chu Wanning was burning with anger, not stopping until he was very close, standing right behind him where his voice could be clearly heard.

If Chu Wanning hadn't been so furious right now, he would've been able to tell that the voice was somewhat familiar, despite the way it had changed. Unfortunately, he was currently engulfed by the flames of rage.

"You…" The man seemed to still have something else to say.

But Chu Wanning had reached the limits of his forbearance. He whipped around, golden light flashing to life in his hand as he lashed out toward the other with an audible whoosh , a dangerous glint in his eyes. Chu Wanning was so enraged that he almost wanted to just kill the guy and be done with it. "What the hell is wrong with you?!"

Tianwen cleaved through the hazy steam, snapping directly toward that person's chest.

For an instant, the golden glow lit up the man's face.

Chu Wanning saw a pair of eyes—clear, gentle, sheepish eyes that seemed to hold flowing rivers of stars within, like so many glimmering fireflies on the wind, yet were also tranquil as still waters running deep, veiling things bygone beneath.

…Mo Ran?!

He tried to pull back, but it was already too late, and the willow vine hissed as it struck Mo Ran's firm, smooth chest. Mo Ran let out only a stifled grunt, then lowered his head for a bit, and when he looked back up, there wasn't the slightest trace of anger or resentment in his eyes, but those eyes were a little wet, as if from the first rains of Lin'an.

Chu Wanning quickly recalled Tianwen and then stood there frozen in place.

A long while went by before he managed to say in a hoarse voice, "…Why didn't you dodge?"

Mo Ran replied, "Sh-Shizun…"

Chu Wanning was stunned. He had thought so many times about how the two of them might meet again, but never did he think it would be at Miaoyin Springs, in the hot spring pond. "What're you doing here? When did you get back?!"

"Just now," Mo Ran replied softly. "I got too dirty and unpresentable from rushing to get back, so I came here to take a bath before going to see Shizun, I didn't expect…"

"……" Chu Wanning was speechless.

Neither of them had expected something like this to happen.

They had both wanted their reunion to be proper and dignified.

Mo Ran had probably wanted to appear before Chu Wanning clean and well-dressed.

But in the end?

Not only was it not proper, it was straight-up laughable.

Not only was it not dignified, it was absolutely ridiculous.

Not only were they not well-dressed, they were completely naked.

They were clean though.

So clean they didn't even have a single thread of clothing on.

"Shizun, it's really…it's really you…" Mo Ran, for his part, didn't care much about these things. For five years, Chu Wanning had slept, and he had been awake; what was only the span of a dream to Chu Wanning had been more than a thousand torturous days to him.

His frame of mind was far more complicated than Chu Wanning's. Forcing down his overwhelming emotions, the rims of his eyes were a little red as he said, "It's been so long that I, just now…I didn't dare believe my eyes. I thought I might've had the wrong person, I thought…"

"……" Head ringing, Chu Wanning was at a loss for words. It was a long moment before he said, "...Why didn't you just ask me if you weren't sure? Instead of creeping after me silently like that."

“I did want to ask,” Mo Ran said softly, “but it’s been five years…and then to suddenly…see Shizun right in front of me, I thought…I thought I was dreaming…”

The more nervous as I get closer to home, I dare not ask even the passersby.[154]

What he felt, when he first saw his silhouette, was probably something like that.

He had already had such dreams too many times in the past five years; he was afraid that it was more of the same madness again, that he would wake up with tear stains on his pillow to find that the reunion was just another joyous delusion.

Chu Wanning forced a calm exterior, but his insides were a frantic mess. It was hard work, really, to speak with such stiff dryness though his heart felt all soft and gooey. “…What kind of dream would be this absurd.”

Mo Ran paused for a beat at Chu Wanning’s response, as if remembering something. He pressed his lips together as a light flickered in his eyes. He wasn’t originally going to bring this up as soon as they met again, but after a bit of hesitation, he decided that if he didn’t say it now, while Chu Wanning hadn’t yet had a chance to build up his walls, he probably wouldn’t get another chance later on.

So he spoke after a pause, “…Does Shizun not remember?”

“Remember what?”

Mo Ran’s eyes were deep and dark. “What you said to me before, that the most wonderful dreams are rarely ever real.”

“That was because…” Chu Wanning caught himself mid-sentence, suddenly realizing that those were the words he had spoken to Mo Ran at Jincheng Lake as he was saving him. He had said something so melancholic because of how miserable he’d felt back then, and he was a little surprised that Mo Ran could still remember it so easily even after this long.

But how did Mo Ran know that it had actually been him at Jincheng Lake? Had Shi Mei told him?

Chu Wanning lifted his eyes to look at him, only to see Mo Ran looking back at himself. Only then did he realize that Mo Ran didn’t actually know the truth, and was only saying that to see his reaction.

Mo Ran said softly, “So it really was Shizun, then.”

Chu Wanning: “……”

Mo Ran lifted his hand. His chest had been slashed open, and blood seeped from the wound. He smiled wryly. “I did a lot of thinking about the past during these last couple of years. I wanted to know just what Shizun had done for me. I thought about a lot of things that happened, including the illusion at Jincheng Lake——Shi Mei never calls me by name.”

He paused before continuing. “Those memories tormented me the more I thought about them; there were a lot of things I wanted to ask Shizun about once you’re awake.”

“……”

“But the thing I wanted to ask about the most was…Shizun, the one who saved me at the bottom of the lake back then, it was you, wasn’t it?”

Mo Ran walked closer as he spoke. Chu Wanning wanted to back away.

Because he suddenly noticed just how tall Mo Ran was, tall like a mountain, a powerful strength latent in every inch of his body. He suddenly noticed just how bright Mo Ran’s eyes were, like the very sun had fallen into those twin pools, all the colors of the sunrise splashing across those gleaming waters.

Chu Wanning found himself flustered for no reason whatsoever. He said, “It wasn’t me.”

Mo Ran didn’t buy it at all.

Chu Wanning scrambled to change the subject in a panic, grasping desperately at straws; but he was so startled, so nervous, and so discomfited, that he completely forgot that he had already asked the question just now, and Mo Ran had already answered it as well.

Looking at this person whose chest bore a gash inflicted by he himself, he said once more, “Why didn’t you dodge when I hurt you earlier?”

Mo Ran stilled for a second, then dropped his thick curtain of lashes with a smile.

“You said that dreams that were too good to be true probably weren’t.” And so he answered once more as well, pausing before continuing in a murmur, “I wanted to see if it would hurt. If it hurts, then it’s not a dream.”

He had walked over and now stood right in front of Chu Wanning.

Maybe it was because of how sudden the reunion had been, but the joy and fondness in his heart, the tenderness and the heartbreak overtook all else, but Mo Ran thought of nothing else, no flights of fancy. He even forgot to maintain a proper distance from Chu Wanning, a distance of propriety between a disciple and his master.

But he didn’t.

Whenever his emotions ran deep, he’d always think of the person before him as Wanning rather than Shizun.

Mo Ran’s eyes grew even more red and watery. He lifted an arm with a grin —“I think some water got in my eyes just now”—and wiped his face, along with his eyes.

Chu Wanning stared up at him in a daze. He’d been waiting for Mo Ran to come back this whole time, so he was a little more clear headed than Mo Ran right now, but the bit of clarity also afforded him enough presence of mind to notice the condition that the two of them were currently in—— talking face to face while standing there buck-naked. And not only that, but Mo Ran was so close to him that, if he were to come just a little bit closer, he'd be able to wrap his arms around him the way he had back in the Underworld.

He didn't want to continue looking up at Mo Ran's unfairly handsome face, but when he dropped his gaze a couple inches lower, the sight that greeted him was that of broad shoulders and firm chest, the blood from Tianwen's strikes spreading slowly, and droplets of water that trembled minutely with every breath that Mo Ran drew. Chu Wanning couldn't even tell which was hotter, this sculpted chest or the heated water of the hot springs.

All he knew was that he was surrounded by Mo Ran's scent, and that it was going to steal his soul away.

"Shizun, I…"

I what?

But before Mo Ran could even really say anything yet, Chu Wanning abruptly turned around and took off running.

"……"

Mo Ran was flabbergasted.

He was quite literally running .

It was the first time he'd ever seen Chu Wanning flee in such a hurry, running away like there was something behind him that was gonna eat him alive and chew up his soul.

“I’ve really missed you so much.”

Mo Ran finished lamely where he stood, then pursed his lips.

What had he run away for…

Mo Ran felt a little wronged.

When he got out of the pond and saw Chu Wanning, whose face was alternating between red and blue as he scrambled frantically to get dressed, he felt even more wronged.

“Shizun,” he mumbled.

Chu Wanning ignored him.

“Shizun…”

Chu Wanning continued to ignore him while wrapping the belt sash around his waist.

“Shizunnnn…”

“ WHAT! ” Dressed at long last, Chu Wanning could finally let out a breath, feeling his dignity and composure return to his body now that it was covered.

His sword-straight brows slanted in anger, and his stern phoenix eyes glared fiercely at that traitorous disciple of his who dared to be taller than him.

“What’s so important that you can’t wait til we’re outside to say it!? Talking to me naked like that, have you no shame!”

A little chagrined, Mo Ran raised a fist to his lips and cleared his throat. "… It's not like I want to be naked."

"Then why aren't you getting dressed!"

"…" Mo Ran paused, looking away to stare at a peach tree on the side as he began, "…So, it's like this…"

He took a deep breath, and finally steeled himself to say:

"Shizun, those are my clothes you're wearing."

Done with that, a faint blush spread across Mo Ran's cheeks as he stared fixedly at a branch of peach blossoms swaying gently in the breeze.

Author's Notes:

Mini-theatre:

Many anonymous comments appeared on the Sisheng Peak chat forum today.

Anonymous user: Accidentally wore my disciple's clothes, what should I do? Urgent, I don't want to strip in front of him. Staying online to await replies.

Anonymous user A: Sent a pile of gifts, but they were all rejected by my male god, though he did accept my handicrafts. I want to know if it's because he treats me as an outsider, or if it's because he can't bear to see me spend money. I'm actually not poor, although my name isn't in the rankings, I can still afford the limited edition jujube pills produced by Hanlin Shengshou...why? Why does he not accept my gifts? I'm so troubled.

Anonymous user B: Ai, my emotions are somewhat complicated, he's returned.

Anonymous user C: Did the top stop spinning in the end? Is this real life or is this just a dream, which level of my dream is this? Don't mind me, I just wanted somewhere secure to vent.

Ch.129 Shizun, Do You Like What You See?

For a split second, chaos ensued in Chu Wanning's head like the churning of the seas, the lashing of torrential rains, the booming of thunder, the flashing of lightning, the darkening of clouds.

To take it off or to keep it on.

A most pivotal question.

Keeping it on seemed inappropriate, now that he knew he had put on the wrong clothes, and it wasn't like he could just pretend he hadn't heard what Mo Ran had said just now.

Taking it off…?

He couldn't possibly handle the embarrassment of it, to take off the clothes he'd finally put on, piece by piece, with Mo Ran right there .

A few moments passed in an awkward silence.

Mo Ran spoke up, "But I've washed those clothes very thoroughly, they're very clean, so if Shizun doesn't mind, then…please feel free to wear them."

Chu Wanning: "Mn."

Mo Ran let out a breath of relief. He'd always been a bit slow, and hadn't even realized when he'd spoken earlier that saying that when Chu Wanning was already mostly dressed would be nothing short of forcing Shizun to strip in front of him.

He was singed by just the tiny spark of that mental image.

Mo Ran's face burned even redder, but luckily he'd been out and about these last couple of years, and was no longer as tender-skinned as he used to be, so it wasn't too noticeable on his tanned skin the color of wheat. But his heartbeats felt too loud by half, and his conscience was terribly guilty and terribly afraid that Chu Wanning would hear it, so he hurriedly lowered his head to go pick up Chu Wanning's robes and clothe himself.

They looked at each other after both getting dressed, only to fall into a different kind of awkward silence.

It didn't fit.

Chu Wanning's robes were clearly too small for Mo Ran, not even folding over in the front, leaving it wide open to reveal a large expanse of firm, honey-colored chest. And too short, too; the way half his legs weren't even covered like he was flat broke was a sorry look, to be sure.

Chu Wanning's situation was no better, either; Mo Ran's robes draped over him, covering him to the toe and pooling on the ground, dragging behind him like a wisp of white mist. It looked fine and proper and all, but it also meant that he was now so much shorter than Mo Ran.

Chu Wanning was a bit affronted.

Expression sullen, he said, "Leaving."

As in, "I'm leaving."

But Mo Ran misunderstood and thought he was inviting him to go together, so he nodded and took the initiative to pick up his shizun's wooden washbin and change of clothes, and earnestly followed behind him.

Chu Wanning: “……”

The two of them got to the entrance of the baths and lifted the curtains. It was cooler outside, away from the hot springs, and Chu Wanning shivered at the autumn chill despite himself. Noticing, Mo Ran asked, “Are you cold?”

“No.”

But how could Mo Ran not know by now that it was just prideful words? So he said with a smile, “I’m a little cold,” and lifted a hand, gesturing in the air. With a flourish of his hand, a scarlet glow sprang from his palm to form a cold-warding barrier around the two of them. The barrier was beautiful, its radiance shimmering and flowing, with a scattering of flower motifs at the top.

Chu Wanning glanced up at it, expression unreadable. “Not bad, you’ve improved.”

“I’m still nowhere near Shizun’s level.”

“You’re not far off. My own cold-warding barriers are probably no better than this.” Chu Wanning gazed at the barrier for a while, and then, noticing the faint flowers, commented, “The peach blossoms are a nice touch.”

“They’re haitang blossoms.”

Chu Wanning’s heart tremored, sending ripples reflecting through the depths of his eyes.

Mo Ran continued, “Five petals.”

"……" Chu Wanning couldn't help the puff of laughter that escaped as he instinctively tried to hide the quivering in his eyes with feigned nonchalance. He said with a slightly mocking tone, "Copying me now, are we?"

But to his surprise, Mo Ran only looked at him with a pair of open, guileless eyes before nodding in response. "It's a poor imitation, I'm afraid."

Chu Wanning was left rather speechless.

They walked side by side in silence for a while, then Chu Wanning picked up his pace, not wanting to be right next to him like this. Behind him, Mo Ran suddenly asked, "Shizun, are you…mad that I didn't make it back in time for the banquet?"

"No."

"Really?"

"Why would I bother lying?"

"Then why are you walking so fast?"

Of course Chu Wanning wasn't going to say "Because you're too tall." He was silent for a moment, before he looked up at the sky and bluffed, "Because it looks like it's going to rain soon."

As if he'd jinxed it, drops of rain really did start falling from the overcast sky not long after, pitter-pattering into a curtain.

Mo Ran smiled.

His smile was every bit as lovely as it had been five years ago, but even more dazzling now for the newfound sincerity in it.

Chu Wanning glared at him. “What’s that stupid grin for.”

“Nothing.” Mo Ran’s dimples were deep and sweet.

The young man, tall and well-built, returned his gaze with downcast lashes and a docile, obedient demeanor completely free of overbearance.

He was even a little bashful as he said, “I’m just really happy to see Shizun again after so long.”

“……”

Chu Wanning stared at him, stared at the dimples in his cheek. He had once thought that those twin pools of sweetness would always belong to Shi Mingjing alone, but that turned out not to be the case—all he had to do to be allowed a jar of the sweetness for himself was to give up his life.

Chu Wanning scolded him, “Dummy.”

Mo Ran let his long, soft eyelashes droop, and grinned big and wide like a dummy.

Getting a little carried away in the moment, Mo Ran accidentally stepped on the hem he’d been so careful not to step on this whole time. With a stern expression, Chu Wanning looked at the ground and then at him, but said nothing.

Mo Ran was very straightforward. “The clothes are a little big on Shizun.”

“……” He sure did know exactly what not to say.

Mo Ran walked Chu Wanning all the way back to Red Lotus Pavilion. Truth be told, Chu Wanning found it to be a rather strange experience, since he'd always come and gone alone, and rarely ever had the occasion to share an umbrella with someone else, be it an oilpaper umbrella or a barrier one.

So, halfway there, he stopped walking and said, "I can do it myself, it's just a barrier."

Mo Ran was a little taken aback. "Wasn't everything going just fine? So why…"

"What kind of master makes their disciple hold the umbrella."

"But Shizun has done so much for me." Mo Ran said after a moment of silence, his voice low and quiet. "These last five years, I spent every single day hoping to be just a little bit better. Because Shizun is so capable and can do everything by himself, I wanted to be able to do just a little more than Shizun, so that I could be of use to Shizun, to repay Shizun. But even after all the training and studying I did, I still feel no closer. I'm afraid that I might never be able to repay Shizun's kindness, so that's why…"

He lowered his head, hand subconsciously clenching into a fist at his side.

The rainwater gathered into streaming rivulets on the ground, droplets splashing and rippling out like blooming flowers.

"That's why, from now on, just let me take care of the little things like holding the umbrella."

Chu Wanning said nothing, only watching him quietly.

"I want to hold an umbrella over Shizun for as long as I live."

“……” Chu Wanning felt a burning in his chest. It was such a heart-warming thing to hear, but he suddenly found himself wanting to cry instead.

He was someone who had gone through so much suffering and braved it all.

He was like a traveller who had walked for far too long, who had finally found shelter and could lie down for a rest.

Even his bones felt like they might fall apart as he collapsed.

This lifetime.

Mo Ran was twenty two this year. The saying went that time passed differently once someone was past twenty. Before twenty, a mere three or five years felt so long it could be called a lifetime.

But once past twenty, time would suddenly feel like a racing current, everything surging past in a rush with no return.

He said he would pause from the racing current to hold an umbrella over him.

Chu Wanning had so rarely received any kindness that, to have his chest suddenly flooded by tenderness like this, all he felt was pain instead. He stared at Mo Ran, stared at that person standing there with his head lowered, and suddenly said, “Mo Ran, look at me.”

He lifted his head.

Chu Wanning said, “Say that again.”

Mo Ran gazed at him. His face was still a bit unfamiliar-looking to Chu Wanning; it was different from the one in his memories, and different from the one in those absurd dreams he once had.

He was gentle, composed, and steadfast, with the warmth of fire and the firmness of iron as he met Chu Wanning's eyes with neither hesitation nor avoidance.

When Chu Wanning had looked at him for the last time, five years ago, he had still been just a growing boy.

In a blink, he had already grown into this handsome, confident man before him.

This man, who was dropping to one knee in front of him, looking up at him, and saying, "Shizun, I want to hold an umbrella over you for as long as I live."

Chu Wanning stared at him in a daze, stared at those dark eyebrows and that shapely jawline, stared at those bright eyes and that straight nose.

He had already grown into an impressive pine tree, had grown to his own height, and then overtaken him. One day, this tree that had stood in the wind and rain for so long, this tree that was Chu Wanning, suddenly woke up, blinked, and found that the rain had stopped, the clouds had dispersed, and in the soft light of the sun, there was another tree standing next to him that was even taller and steadier than he was, and when the wind rustled through the leaves, the sunlight filtering through sparkled like gold dust.

This tree said he wanted to stay by his side for a lifetime.

Until they both fell over, branches bare and withered. But until then, every season from now on, he would never be alone again.

As he stared at him, Chu Wanning was struck with the sudden realization that Mo Ran was no longer the bloodied, unconscious disciple he had carried back from Butterfly Town five years ago.

Standing there in the rain, under the haitang blossoms dancing atop the barrier, he looked at Mo Ran for the first time, thoroughly and carefully, looked at this man who was promising him a lifetime.

Chu Wanning's heartbeat abruptly began to race.

He suddenly noticed just how alluring Mo Ran looked now, everything from the arc of his nose to the shape of his lips, from the line of his jaw to the jut of his throat.

What he felt for Mo Ran before was only love, something that could be kept hidden. But after meeting him again today, this man felt like nothing short of a fire to him, a fire that could so easily set him ablaze like he was mere kindling, sending flames soaring up and scorching the very skies.

He felt the magma that had been lying dormant all this time stirring awake and stretching its limbs in the abyss deep within himself, ready to burst out in a violent eruption at any time.

The magma threatened to burn through the reservations, dignity, and self-control he had always prided himself on…

Threatened to burn it all to ash.

Until there was nothing left.

Author's Notes:

There are perks on Weibo today~

Thank you "Yuan Zi'er" for Shizun and Feeding Fish, the Shizun he first met under the flowering tree is especially gentle, and is probably Dog's first impression of this immortal- gege . The Shizun leaving under an umbrella is also so entrancing, I can stare at this picture for five minutes!!! Dog's bright smile makes my heart melt, really thankuwu so much~

Thank you "Firewood" for 0.5 Dog. I've just come to the flashbacks of right before 0.5 Dog's blackening in my saved drafts today, where he's already at the grey stage, and then I saw this picture and felt that it really had that feeling, like a good teenager heading down the path towards Taxian-Jun! There's still youth lingering on his brow and in his eyes, but there's already some danger and wickedness to his smile, ahahah , so dreamy[155] ~ thanks~

Thankieww Mr Chen for drawing "Bugui", Dog's weapon. Bugui is a Mo sabre (Mo Dao), I'll drop some information here, the Mo sabre is a type of Tang dynasty sabre, and actually looks a lot like a sword: long, and narrow. It's not a dagger, aihehe ~ It's also not a machete~~

Revamping the character info card

Mo Ran 2.0

Name: Feeding fish Weiyu

Posthumous title: ...I'm not dead!!!

Occupation: Emperor (reborn)...Oh, that's incorrect, I'm no longer an emperor in this lifetime, I'm an unemployed vagrant (the kind that specialises in doing good deeds)

Appearance in society: (strikethrough) Lei Feng[156] (strikethrough) Mo-zongshi

Currently likes: To see everyone living well without troubles

Favourite food: Wontons

Hates: The people by his side leaving him

Height: 189cm

Mo Ran 0.5 has something to say: What right does he have to be 3cm taller than me?

Meatbun: Oh, because he went through puberty differently. You spent your days researching the Zhenlong Chess Formation in a dark room, but he ran around under the sun to many places. So while you two are the same person, due to different environments later on in life, you're 3cm shorter. Sorry, Your Majesty, but you're no longer the tallest person in the novel now. smiles

Ch.130 Shizun, I've Crossed Five Years To Come See You

>>self harm

Chu Wanning's breathing was a little heavy, and his throat a little dry.

He refused to give in just like that, and opted instead for being difficult. Holding down the fire raging in his chest, he asked, mild as ever, "For as long as you live?"

"For as long as I live."

"…I might walk very fast, with no regard for you."

"That's alright, I'll chase after you."

"I might not want to walk anymore and just stand there."

"I'll stand with Shizun."

Agitated by his unhesitating answer, Chu Wanning swept his sleeves and said, "Then what if I just can't walk anymore?"

"Then I'll carry# you."

Chu Wanning: "……"

Mo Ran paused, realizing that that might have been a little disrespectful, rude even. Eyes widening, he hurriedly waved his hand and amended, "I'll carry you on my back."

Chu Wanning's heart beat faster and faster, and it took everything he had to hold back the urge to help this man up, to touch him. He furrowed his brows at this urge, looking anxious and a bit cross. "Who wants to be carried by you."

Mo Ran opened his mouth, but didn't know what to say.

His shizun was just difficult like that—didn't wanna be carried on his back or in his arms; it wasn't like he could carry him lifted up over his head, and he certainly couldn't drag him on the ground. He felt like he was too dumb to figure out how to make Chu Wanning happy.

At a loss, his head drooped, like an abandoned stray dog.

He muttered in a small voice, "Then I'll stop walking too."

"……"

"If you want to get rained on, then I'll keep you company through that too."

Chu Wanning was at his wit's end from this relentless onslaught. He was so used to doing everything by himself that he blurted out without thinking, "I don't want your company."

Mo Ran finally stopped talking. From where he was standing, Chu Wanning could only see his wide forehead, dark eyebrows, and a pair of long eyelashes that were downcast and quivering slightly, like curtains rising and falling in the wind.

“Shizun…” Mo Ran had misunderstood the feelings behind Chu Wanning’s agitated refusal. He asked, “Are you still mad at me…?”

Drowning helplessly in the pounding of his own heart, Chu Wanning didn’t quite catch what he said, and so only replied, “What?”

“Back in the Underworld, I already apologized to Shizun, many, many times, but I know it’s not enough. I spent every moment of these past five years feeling guilty, I know I owe you.”

Chu Wanning: “……”

“I want to do better too, so that I won’t feel too dirty to stand before you, so that I’ll at least be able to lift my head in front of you. But I...I can’t catch up to you...every day when I wake up I worry if I was dreaming, that you’ll be gone if I were to wake up from the dream. I keep hearing the words you’d said at Jincheng Lake when you were saving me, that the most wonderful dreams are rarely ever real, and then I just…I just get so sad…”

Mo Ran’s voice grew a little hoarse.

He still had some things to say, but he didn’t want to say them. He didn’t feel like he had any right to keep talking about these things in front of Chu Wanning, didn’t have the heart to let Chu Wanning know what had happened in these last five years.

Sometimes...all alone in the Snow Valley, he couldn't tell what day it was, or even where he was. He'd prick himself with a needle then, again and again between the joints of his fingers. It hurt, but that was how he could tell that he was still conscious, still alive.

That was how he could tell that he wasn't still in his previous life, dreaming all of this up. That when he woke up it wouldn't be to a Sisheng Peak stripped of all familiarity, a Xue Meng with eyes full of hate, and a Rufeng Sect that had been demolished to the ground. That if he were to go to the Red Lotus Pavilion, he wouldn't see Chu Wanning lying there, looking as if he were still alive.

As if he were still alive, as if he were still alive.

Which words could hurt more than these.

It was strange, now that he thought about it—when he'd found out that Chu Wanning had died to save him, and when he'd gone down to the Underworld on that rescue mission, his heart had ached then, but not with the kind of irrepressible despair that he felt now.

But as time went by, day after day.

As it came closer and closer to the time for Chu Wanning's awakening, Mo Ran only felt the pain growing worse, like there was a knife cutting into his heart.

Maybe it was because he had too much time to think in those days he spent alone, or maybe it was because, during that time without Chu Wanning, he had tried so desperately, even hysterically, to imitate that person, to the extent that he wanted to tear himself apart entirely to reassemble into Chu Wanning's form.

Whatever the reason, many things that he had never really paid attention to or thought about, things that he had gradually forgotten, all of it resurfaced in his mind. Those things of the bygone past were like waterlogged shoals exposed in the wake of the retreating tide, and he stood all alone at the shore, but the waves were already gone.

He could see it all so clearly now.

He thought about the past life, surrounded by the beacons of war on all sides, at the end of his road.

Xue Meng had come to Sisheng Peak, and in a Wushan Palace changed beyond recognition, Xue Meng had interrogated him with tears in his eyes.

Demanded to know, why had he done this to his own shizun.

Xue Meng had tried to force him then, force him to turn back before death ——

He had said, Mo Ran.

T hink back properly. Let go of your vicious hatred. Look back.

He once trained you in cultivation and martial arts, and made sure to protect you.

He once taught you how to read and write, taught you poetry and painting.

He once learned how to cook just for you, even though he was so clumsy and got cuts all over his hands.

He once… He once waited every day for you to come home, all alone by himself, from nightfall...til the break of dawn...

Mo Ran hadn't listened back then, had refused to look.

Now he stood at the coast of fate, where the tide had receded, and when he looked down, there was a lost heart under his foot, a heart that had once been so good to him, so genuine to him that it had nearly driven itself to death.

But he had been so set in his ways that he had seen none of that as he'd trod it underfoot.

He had trod Chu Wanning's very heart underfoot just like that!

A chill ran through Mo Ran's body whenever he thought about it. What had he done…just what had he done ? Two lifetimes, sixteen years, had he ever repaid Chu Wanning's kindness? Had he ever, even just for one day, put Chu Wanning first in his heart?!

Damn beast!!!

Was his heart made of stone before? How else could it have not hurt?!

These past five years, how many times had he dreamt of Chu Wanning's return, in robes white as snow, looking just the way he'd used to.

When he woke, the pillow would be wet. And every single day he would say, Chu Wanning, Shizun, I'm sorry, I was wrong, I was wrong.

Every day he would say it, but it never lessened the guilt any.

Later on, when he'd seen the blooming flowers of spring, he would think of him, and when he'd seen the falling snows of winter, he would think of him as well.

Later on, every daybreak was golden like Chu Wanning's soul. Every nightfall was dark like Chu Wanning's eyes. Later on, every beam of white moonlight was like the snow on his sleeves, every rising sun was like the warmth in his eyes. Later on, he'd seen Chu Wanning's silhouette in the vermillion clouds by the horizon, in the cerulean light of dawn, in the surging, billowing clouds.

He was everywhere.

Because of this anguish and yearning that he'd felt, he'd gradually grown less resentful about being low-born, gradually felt less strongly about his nearly fanatical adoration of Shi Mei.

One day, outside Snow Valley, he had seen a snow-covered winter jasmine growing out of a crack in the wall.

He had gazed at it quietly for a while, thinking the same thing he always did. He had thought, ah, what a pretty flower, Shizun would definitely like it if he could see.

It had been such a cursory thought, about the simplest, most casual and unimportant little thing.

But between one breath and the next, all the sorrows that hadn't managed to drive him out of his mind and force him to his knees back when Chu Wanning had died suddenly rushed toward him all at once. The saying went that a thousand-mile long levee would be destroyed by mere ant tunnels—he broke down all of a sudden.

He bawled miserably, startling geese into flight from the depths of the valley. His cries were hoarse and ugly, a disgrace to the golden blossom that was blooming despite the snow.

It had been five years.

But he had never once forgiven himself.

"Shizun…sorry…I really tried my best to make it back in time today, and even had a present for you so that I wouldn't be empty-handed when I saw you…" The forced composure finally faded, the feigned ease finally collapsed.

Kneeling in front of Chu Wanning, Mo Ran finally fell apart; truth be told, it was only in front of Chu Wanning that the Mo Ran of today would let himself fall apart like this.

“I’m…still really stupid. I couldn’t even manage the first thing I promised you after your revival. It’s my fault.”

Chu Wanning could hardly bear to see him like this. He had always adored Mo Ran, and now that they had finally been reunited after such a long time apart, of course he didn’t have the heart to watch him be so miserable.

But hearing his words, Chu Wanning hesitated before asking, “Why didn’t you get back in time today?”

“There actually…was enough time to make it back. But I ran into some fiends making trouble at Butterfly Town, so I…”

“Got held up clearing them out?”

“Sorry.” Mo Ran kept his head down. “Not only did I get held up, but even the present I had prepared for Shizun got destroyed…and I also got blood splattered all over myself, so I rushed here to wash it off, only to…”

Chu Wanning could feel his heart going soft.

Mo-zongshi.

This Mo Ran was indeed nothing like how he used to be five years ago.

The Mo Ran of five years ago had been a selfish brat, but now he knew the weight of things. Chu Wanning wasn’t one to obsess over things like festivities and indulgences; in fact, if Mo Ran had seen the demon problem at Butterfly Town and had chosen to ignore it, Chu Wanning would’ve been furious with him. But looking at this man kneeling before himself now, all honesty and clumsiness as he asked for forgiveness, Chu Wanning instead found him to be so dumb it was kind of cute.

Chu Wanning stepped forward slowly, a warm feeling flowing in his heart. He reached out and was just about to help Mo Ran up when he heard him mutter, “Shizun, please don’t kick me out from the sect.”

Now it was Chu Wanning’s turn to be taken aback. He didn’t know the depth of Mo Ran’s guilt and remorse, so he hadn’t expected Mo Ran to say something like that. Hesitatingly, he said, “What…”

“Even if you don’t want me to stay with you or chase after you when it rains, even if you don’t want me to carry you, even if you don’t want any of that, even still, please don’t kick me out.”

Mo Ran finally lifted his head. Chu Wanning’s heart tremored.

He saw the faint redness in the rims of his eyes, and the way his eyes were a little watery.

Chu Wanning was usually firm and decisive, but now he found himself at a complete loss. “You… you’re twenty-two already, why are you still…”

He paused and let out a long sigh, then said, “Get up first.”

Lifting an arm to rub forcefully at his eyes, Mo Ran said stubbornly, “I’m not getting up if Shizun doesn’t want me.”

…Still a scoundrel, alright!

Chu Wanning could feel a headache coming on. Lips pressed into a thin line, he grabbed Mo Ran by the wrist and hauled him up.

But the moment the tips of his fingers made contact, all he could feel was the strength in those muscles and the heat of his skin. The firm body of this young man was also nothing like how it had been when he was younger.

Just one touch made Chu Wanning's heart pound right out of his chest, and he let go abruptly, caught off guard.

Luckily Mo Ran was currently too distraught to notice Chu Wanning's strange behavior. But Chu Wanning stared at his own hand in disbelief for a moment while bewilderment raged within.

Just what…was wrong with him?

Had the five years of slumber undone all the asceticism and reservations he had?

But then, looking up at Mo Ran with astonishment…

Or was it because this person in front of him had really changed too much, so much so that it made it hard for him to control himself?

Mo Ran worried his lip for a bit, then seemed to make up his mind to be obstinate about it, to be so obstinate that he couldn't even be kicked out. "Please don't kick me out, Shizun."

He made to kneel back down as he spoke.

How could Chu Wanning possibly risk having to help him up a second time? He hurriedly stopped him with a stern, "Don't you kneel again! I'll really toss you out if you do!"

"……" Mo Ran paused and blinked, and then suddenly figured it out. Eyes lighting up, he said, "Shizun, you aren't blaming me…you're not mad cause

I didn’t make it back for the banquet? You…”

Chu Wanning snapped, “Have I ever been that petty?”

Mo Ran excitedly tried to hug him. Chu Wanning was spooked to say the least, hastily taking a step back and scolding with a frown, “What do you think you’re doing? Where’s your propriety?”

“Ah.” Realizing his mistake, Mo Ran apologized in a hurry, “Sorry sorry, I forgot myself for a minute.”

The tips of Chu Wanning’s ears were bright red even as he tried to play it cool. “Already in your twenties and still don’t know your manners.”

The tips of Mo Ran’s ears turned red as well as he mumbled, “It was my bad.”

“It was my bad” was practically his catchphrase at this point. Hearing him say it, Chu Wanning felt a little mad, a little amused, a little pitying, and a little warm.

Eyelashes flickering upward, he secretly stole another glance at Mo Ran from the corners of his eyes.

He saw a tall, handsome man with sun-kissed skin; perhaps it was because of the lingering steam from the hot spring, or perhaps it was due to something else altogether, but his cheeks were a little flushed and a little warm, and he seemed to practically glow with the vibrancy of youth, so bright as to vaporize the steam in the air, making that pair of dark, shining eyes seem all the brighter.

Ba-dump.

Chu Wanning felt his own heart thud against his ribcage, and the tips of his fingers felt as if they were on fire again, like earlier when he had touched Mo Ran. His throat was suddenly incredibly dry, and he dared not look at Mo Ran again as he muttered, “Idiot,” and turned to leave.

But the barrier above him didn’t even shift—Mo Ran really did chase after him, just like he had promised.

Chu Wanning dropped his eyelids and didn’t dare look back, well aware that he could no longer hide the love and desire in his eyes, just as it was impossible to cover up the burning at his fingertips.

He had finally ruined him.

This man had done everything that the Mo Ran of five years ago couldn’t, had taken his heart and drowned him in the ocean of lust#.

Henceforth Chu Wanning would be a mere mortal, with a body of flesh and a soul defenseless against desire, trapped in the web, unable to escape.

Author’s Notes:

Mini Theatre “Shizun’s Back-to-School Quiz”

Chu Wan Ning: Come, let’s play a round of Trivial Pursuit. Don’t worry, these are all easy questions you can score on.

Dog: Okokok!

Chu Wan Ning: How many petals does haitang have?

Dog: Five!

Chu Wan Ning: What species of haitang are the ones in Red Lotus Pavilion?

Dog: Midget crabapple!

Chu Wan Ning: Shi Mei’s height?

Dog: 183cm!

Chu Wan Ning: Xue Meng’s height?

Dog: Hahaha, 178cm.

Xue Meng: ...ffs, what’s so funny?

Chu Wan Ning: Your height?

Dog: Hahahahahahaha 189cm!

Xu Meng: Oh.

Chu Wan Ning: My height?

Mo Ran: 1…cough, 8.1m

Chu Wan Ning: Adequate, you passed the test, I won’t kick you out from under my tutelage.

Ch.131 Shizun Does Some Reading

That night, Chu Wanning lay in his bed in the Red Lotus Pavillion, tossing and turning, unable to fall asleep.

He was contemplating how Mo Ran had ended up growing into the man that he was now. Mo-zongshi, Mo Weiyu; all he could see when he closed his eyes were that man's handsome features, and those bright, steady eyes that held determination and tenderness both.

Chu Wanning cursed under his breath and vehemently kicked the quilt off the bed, then proceeded to starfish in bed while staring up at the roof beams with a tormented gaze.

He tried all that he could to get out from the ocean of lust, to cut off the threads of desire, tried until he was exhausted.

"Mo Weiyu, you bastard," he mumbled.

He turned his head away, but couldn't escape the thoughts. It was almost as if that hot, firm body from Miaoyin Springs was right in front of him still —he could see the broad shoulders, the defined contours of his back, and the way the water had slid slowly down along his v-cut abs when he'd turned around…

He jolted up from the bed, face ashen, and dared not finish that thought.

He grabbed the first book his hand came into contact with like it was a lifeline.

How unfortunate for Chu Wanning, to have led such a respectable life only to now be reduced to having to resort to books to distract from his inner demons. He didn't even know which book he had grabbed out of all the ones that Xue Meng had bought, but the pages were covered in densely-packed rows of tiny writing. Chu Wanning's eyes glazed over the words without really taking anything in at first, and it wasn't until a while later that he suddenly realized just what it was he was reading.

On that thin paper was written a very neat line of words:

"Size Ranking of the Cultivation World's Young Heroes"

Chu Wanning knew the words individually, but they didn't make very much sense together.

Young Heroes…Size…Ranking?

What size?

Height?

Reading further, there was a side note in small writing: This observational ranking is not a comprehensive listing due to the fact that some of the young heroes never bathe outside or visit the pleasure districts. The following individuals are missing from the ranking: Nangong Si and Xu Shuanglin of Rufeng Sect, Jiang Xi of Guyue'ye, Xue Meng, Xie Fengya, and Chu Wanning of Sisheng Peak…

"……?"

Chu Wanning blinked.

What was that supposed to mean? Surely their heights were pretty obvious even without bathing outside or going to the pleasure districts?

And there was even a passing mention of himself...

He furrowed his brows and put his finger on the list to keep track as he read on, only to choke at the very first name on the list.

Mo Weiyu.

Status: Gongzi of Sisheng Peak, Mo-zongshi

Chu Wanning thought briefly about Mo Ran's figure. To be fair, he had gotten quite tall, but surely not so tall as to rank number one?

Reading on, it said: "Seen when bathing at Deyu Hall; an absolute unit, truly awe-inspiring."

"……"

Bathing at Deyu Hall…

Absolute unit…?

Something felt vaguely off to Chu Wanning, but he was really just too pure of mind, and couldn't figure out why exactly it felt off even after dwelling on it for quite a while, so he could only keep reading.

The person ranked second was a wandering cultivator he'd never heard of before, and written to the side was: "Seen when bathing in the forest; mighty."

“What even is this gibberish.” Chu Wanning was a little put-off. “It’s true that shoes and hairpieces could add to a person’s height, but it wouldn’t really be much of a difference, why go so far as to peek at people bathing? Why would this kind of trashy book would be so popular…”

Then he saw the third name——

Mei Hanxue

Status: Direct disciple of the Kunlun Taxue Palace sect leader

The text to the side was different this time; instead of “seen when bathing”, it was: “Measured by one of Chunying Pavilion’s girls and corroborated by a number of women from the cultivation world; Mei-gongzi’s endowment could leave a lady so pliant that her body would be as water and her bones as mud, and could also readily do ten people a night.”

Chu Wanning: “……”

A long moment passed in dead silence, then Yuheng Elder’s head exploded into a droning buzz. Face red-hot and gaze flickering, he flung the booklet across the room with great vigor like it was a hot potato, beyond incensed.

What did he just read?

What size?! Even if he was dense, he wasn’t that dense. What other size could it even be ?! Filthy! Shameless! Indecent! Disgraceful!!!!!!!

Still mad even after sitting in bed stiffly for a long while, Chu Wanning got out of bed and picked up the booklet just to explode it into a million tiny pieces with a pulse of spiritual energy from his fingertips…

But, like a glowing-hot branding iron, the words “absolute unit, truly awe-inspiring” had already been seared into his heart with a hiss, leaving his face flushed and his heart thundering.

He was a very proper, very upright person. Earlier at the Miaoyin Springs, he had very consciously kept his gaze up, without so much as a glance in the general direction of any place he wasn’t supposed to look at, and besides, all that steam made everything so fuzzy that he wouldn’t really have been able to see anything even if he had looked, anyway. But now this filthy book had managed to, in just a few words, paint the very image right in front of his eyes. And more than that, words often lent themselves even better to the vivid imaginations of the mind than pictures did.

Absolute unit…

Chu Wanning dragged his hands down his face, and then, after a long pause, grabbed the quilt and pulled it over his head.

It was only his first day out of seclusion, and he had already had the misfortune of suffering all that …Chu Wanning thought bitterly——the times sure had changed, he’d almost rather lie back down and go back to being dead!

But still, Yuheng Elder had always held himself to high standards, and so even though he barely got any sleep all night, and despite how aghast and unsettled he felt inside, he still got up on time the next day, got washed and neatly dressed, and then drifted gracefully down from the southern summit of Sisheng Peak with an expression that was nothing short of dignified and restrained.

Today was the day for the sect's monthly assessment. The Platform of Sin and Virtue glinted with flickering light reflected off the light armor worn by the thousands of disciples going through their martial arts drills under the appraising gaze of the elders sitting at the high platforms above.

Though he had been gone for five whole years, Chu Wanning's seat was still right where it used to be, next to Xue Zhengyong, to the left.

He walked up the bluestone steps wearing white robes that dragged on the ground and a weary expression, took the empty seat with a sweep of those broad sleeves and then leisurely poured himself a cup of tea to sip on while watching.

Noting his sullen expression, Xue Zhengyong thought that Chu Wanning was mad over Mo Ran missing the banquet last night, so he leaned over and coaxed in a low voice, "Yuheng, Ran-er's back."

But contrary to expectation, all that earned him was a scowl twitching between Chu Wanning's brows and an even more sullen expression. "I know, I already saw him."

"Ah? Already saw him?" Xue Zhengyong nodded after a pause. "Great! So what do you think? He's changed quite a lot, eh?"

"Mn…"

Chu Wanning didn't exactly want to talk about Mo Ran, considering the fact that he had been cursed with the words "absolute unit, truly awe-inspiring" being repeated over and over and over in his head since yesterday, nor did he plan to look for Mo Ran in the sea of people below, so he looked down at the table.

"That's a lot of fruits and pastries."

Xue Zhengyong grinned. "You haven't had breakfast yet have you? Go ahead and eat up."

Not even bothering to hold back for decorum's sake, Chu Wanning picked up a lotus crisp# to eat with his warm tea. The lotus crisp had a nice pink gradient from the base of the petals to the tips, with a filling of red bean paste inside the crisp, flaky layers that carried the refreshing sweetness of osmanthus flowers.

"These taste like the work of Lin'an's Breeze Bakery…" Chu Wanning murmured, then turned to Xue Zhengyong to ask, "They weren't made by Mengpo Hall?"

"Nope, Ran-er brought these back just for you," Xue Zhengyong replied with a grin. "See, the other elders didn't get any."

"……" Only then did Chu Wanning finally realize that the wooden table in front of himself was the only one that was laden with all sorts of fruits and snacks, from pastries to sugared desserts. There was even a small porcelain bowl the color of jade that, when he lifted the lid, turned out to be holding exactly three sweet tangyuan#.

Rather than the usual kind made with white glutinous rice, these tangyuan skins were mixed with the lotus root powder, a Lin'an specialty, so that they were clear and translucent, and the color of jade.

"Oh yeah, Ran-er borrowed the kitchen at Mengpo Hall this morning to make those. The red one's filling is rose and red bean paste, the yellow one is peanut sesame, and the green one's apparently got some fancy tea-based skin made with powdered Longjing tea. Interesting new things, these, too bad there isn't more…" Xue Zhengyong mumbled, "They're real fancy and all, but he spent all morning and only made the three."

Chu Wanning: "……"

"Yuheng, is that enough for you to eat?"

"Mn." Chu Wanning was quiet for a moment before nodding.

Actually, every time he ate tangyuan, he only ever ate three. The first was sweet, the second had a nice aftertaste, the third was enough, and a fourth would be too much.

It was a lucky coincidence that Mo Ran had just so happened to make exactly three, no more and no less, just the way he liked it.

Scooping up one of the adorably round lotus powder tangyuan in the porcelain spoon and holding it by his lips, Chu Wanning felt like it was just the right size too, perfect for eating in one bite, unlike the ones Mengpo Hall made for the Lantern Festival, which were so big that they stuck to his mouth and took quite some effort to chew.

The person who had made the tangyuan seemed to know exactly how much his mouth could hold, the exact size the food needed to be in order to fit comfortably in his mouth, and even the gooey filling seemed to be mixed with untold intimacy.

The thought made Chu Wanning's heart flutter for some reason, right before it got squashed by shame and swept under a semblance of cool composure.

"He's a pretty good chef."

"Too bad he only made them for you, no one else gets any, not even this uncle of his." Xue Zhengyong sighed ruefully.

Chu Wanning said nothing, only pressed his lips lightly together as he listened, stirring idly at the soup in the bowl with the spoon. The tangyuan were all gone by now, the perfect amount of sweetness spreading out slowly in his heart.

Once done with the food, Chu Wanning paid no mind to the spirited drills down below, opting instead to pick up a book from the table to read about the recent happenings at Sisheng Peak over the last five years.

These things were all managed by Xue Zhengyong, so they were simple and straight to the point, and Chu Wanning finished reading through it all in no time. He went to close the book, but then noticed another book under that one.

“What’s this…” He picked up the thread-bound book; it was very, very thick. Xue Zhengyong glanced over and said with a grin, “Another present from Ran-er. He was too embarrassed to give it to you personally ‘cause he accidentally got some blood on it while taking care of some fiends last night on his way home, and some pages got ripped too, so he asked me to put it on your table this morning.”

Chu Wanning nodded and flipped open the book, slender fingers trailing along the cover. On it was written, in a neat, straight script:

Dear Shizun .

His eyes opened fractionally wider in surprise.

Letters written to himself?

His heart suddenly felt like it had been singed by fire, hot and painful. He lifted his eyes to look for Mo Ran in the sea of people below, but saw only endless rows of glistening armor like light reflected off the scales of leaping fish.

Unable to find him, Chu Wanning could only turn back to the letters.

Mo Ran had missed his shizun for every single day of his seclusion. He had lots of things he wanted to say and worried that he wouldn't be able to remember it all, so he had a sturdy book made, a thick one with one thousand eight hundred and twenty five pages in total. For each day of the five years, he would write Shizun a letter about whatever happened, big or small, from the particularly gross-tasting leaf-wrapped sticky rice cake he had the misfortune of eating, to the insights he had gained from cultivation training that day, he wrote it all down.

He had originally planned it to have exactly one thousand eight hundred and twenty five pages, no more and no less, so that the day he finished writing the last page would be the day Shizun came out of seclusion.

But sometimes he couldn't stop writing, the words pouring out ardently in tiny handwriting squeezed onto the page, like it wanted nothing more than to show Chu Wanning the sea-buckthorn flowers of Outer Mongolia and the hazy fog surrounding Changbai Mountain as well, like it wanted nothing more than to tuck the delicious sweets tasted that day between the pages to share with Chu Wanning when he woke up.

The pages were lined with rows upon rows of the tiny writing. There was nothing too sentimental, nor did he include anything sad or upsetting, putting in writing only the happy, brilliant moments of the five years, setting down only the good to share with him.

And so the originally planned one page per day ran out, and he had to attach a thick stack of letters to the back of the book...

Chu Wanning flipped slowly through the book, his eyes a little wet.

He watched Mo Ran's handwriting go from childish to neat to elegant.

The ink on the most recent letter had not yet dried, while the earliest page had already turned yellow.

And on every letter, the words "Dear Shizun" were a little different. Slowly, gradually...from light and brisk to sure and steadfast.

Until, toward the end, it flowed like a painting yet could cut through metal, each confident stroke an art unto itself.

Flipping to the last page, Chu Wanning touched the words on the cover again.

Dear Shizun, Dear Shizun.

Looking at that neat handwriting, it was almost as if he could see the tip of Mo Ran's writing brush lifting from the paper, could see him setting it down before lifting his head, no longer the youth of the past.

From the first letter to the last, it was almost as if he could see Mo Ran growing up, from sixteen to twenty two, his figure becoming taller, his features growing defined.

And, every day without fail, he would sit down at the table and write a letter addressed to him.

“Shizun!!!”

Without him realizing, the drills had ended and there was someone calling for him. Chu Wanning looked up to see Xue Meng waving excitedly at him from the very front of the Platform of Sin and Virtue.

And next to Xue Meng, a tall man with broad shoulders, a narrow waist, and a pair of long legs stood quietly, his face flushed from the drills and a sheen of sweat covering his forehead, sleek as a panther’s coat under the sun.

Seeing that Chu Wanning was staring at him, Mo Ran paused and then broke into a smile. In the golden light of morning, his smile was bright and mesmerizing, like the gentle swaying of sun-bathed cypress. His eyes were filled with warmth, his lashes were dipped in gentleness, and that strong, spirited face seemed a little bashful, so vibrant and fiery as to steal one’s breath away.

How very handsome he was.

Keeping his expression carefully neutral, Chu Wanning crossed his arms where he was sitting on the high platform as he looked loftily down toward him. To anyone looking, he would appear cool and collected as usual, but little did they know that in truth, his thoughts were actually in utter chaos, his insides tied into a million knots of flustered panic.

Grinning amidst the crowd, Mo Ran suddenly lifted a hand and pointed at his own clothes, then at Chu Wanning.

“……” Not understanding, Chu Wanning narrowed his phoenix eyes and looked back at him in confusion.

Mo Ran grinned even wider, before cupping his hands around his lips and wordlessly mouthing something at him.

Chu Wanning: “?”

The morning breeze danced through gently rustling leaves. Mo Ran stifled an exasperated smile and shook his head, then tapped at the front of his own robes with a finger.

Chu Wanning looked down. A beat later, his ears suddenly turned red.

“……”

Under the guidance of his disciple, the esteemed and dignified Yuheng Elder finally realized that, this morning, in his hurry to get ready, and due to the mess of clothing heaped together at the Red Lotus Pavilion, he had unwittingly put on the robes he had accidentally “borrowed” from Mo Ran last night.

...No wonder it felt like there was something dragging on the ground behind him as he walked today! It was the hem of the robe!!!

Mo Weiyu, the nerve of you . Chu Wanning turned his face away in a huff. You tactless bastard, why do you only ever say exactly what you shouldn’t!

Author's Notes:

Mini-theatre: The Contents of Dog's Letter

If we speak of the ancients composing letters, "Letter to Yuanwei" alone is considered very grossly sentimental. I can't help but applaud Sir Bai Juyi and Sir Yuan Zhen's friendship, hahahaha.

Dog's letter isn't as sophisticated, and he won't know how to be as eloquent as Bai Juyi upon opening a scroll, like the sappy "Weizhi, Weizhi", or "our hearts as intimate as if they were bound together by glue". So what did Dog write?

"Selections from Dog's Letter"

The almond candy of Linyi is yummy but a little pricey half a kilogram costs forty copper coins but it is yummy yummy.

Pork stew with potatoes is very filling after one meal I won't get hungry during the night it is yummy yummy.

Accidentally mistook the honey in my qiankun pouch for oil and brushed it onto roasted chicken wings it is yummy yummy.

The fish grown in Quanzhou is really yummy, it is yummy yummy.

When Shizun wakes, let's eat these together!

Ch.132 Shizun and Shi Mei

>>dub/non-con flashback

In the evening, as the birds were returning to roost, so too did the disciples of Sisheng Peak make haste to Mengpo Hall after finishing their tasks for the day. Only Mo Ran stood still by the practice dummies, as if waiting for someone.

His relationship with Xue Meng had been much improved in recent years; there was much less animosity between them now, especially after Mo Ran had given him that top grade spiritual stone to be inset into his Longcheng blade. So Xue Meng turned to look toward him as he asked, “Aren’t you coming to dinner?”

“Not yet.”

Standing in the dusky light of the setting sun, Shi Mei was devastatingly beautiful, the afterglow making his skin look even fairer. Brushing back a strand of loose hair, he asked, “Is A-Ran waiting for Shizun?”

“Mhm.” Mo Ran had already seen him at morning practice earlier, and when he had worked together with Xue Meng to repair the Heavenly Rift that year, he had noticed that Shi Mei was just about to outgrow Xue Meng back then too.

But still, in this moment, with the sun setting in the west, the sight of him standing in front of Xue Meng still felt strange to Mo Ran. Of course he didn’t think that Shi Mei was bad-looking, it was just that…

He couldn't really put his finger on it. Mo Ran didn't know what kind of feeling it was, exactly; maybe he was just too used to the way Shi Mei's delicate figure had always been covered up behind Xue Meng before, so he'd never expected this kind of role reversal.

Mo Ran smiled at Shi Mei and said, "Since I missed the banquet yesterday, I wanted to invite Shizun for a meal down the mountain as an apology, so I won't be going to Mengpo Hall today. You guys are welcome to come too if you want."

Xue Meng and Shi Mei weren't used to eating together with Chu Wanning, so they looked at each other then left. Mo Ran had nothing else to do, so he crouched down on a large rock and plucked a foxtail grass to play with while waiting for Chu Wanning to come down the mountain.

The setting sun was already a dark crimson and the crescent moon was beginning to peek out from behind purple-red clouds when a person finally appeared on the bamboo footpath from the southern peak, walking slowly. That person had changed into a set of light robes in white, and was carrying a cloth bundle in hand. He paused for a beat upon seeing Mo Ran, and unease flashed briefly across his features.

"I was just about to go look for you for something…what are you doing here?"

"Waiting for Shizun to have dinner together." Mo Ran jumped off the rock as he replied, still holding the foxtail grass and beaming brightly. "There's a new restaurant at Wuchang Town, and I heard they have a famous chef from the upper cultivation realm who makes really good pastries, so I wanted to invite Shizun to go try the place."

Chu Wanning looked him up and down mildly. "Not bad, got money to throw around now I see."

Mo Ran grinned and said nothing.

Chu Wanning hmph'd and tossed the cloth bundle at him. Catching it, Mo Ran asked, "What's this?"

"Your clothes," Chu Wanning replied as he walked past. Hurriedly catching up to walk side by side with him, Mo Ran said with a smile, "This robe's made of a pretty good fabric, light but warm. If Shizun likes it, I can have it altered down to be smaller and…"

"I don't wear secondhand clothes."

Mo Ran faltered before the embarrassment hit him. "That's not what I meant. I just...I saw Shizun wearing it this morning, so I thought Shizun liked it…that was thoughtless of me, I'll send someone to the store to have a new robe tailored."

Chu Wanning asked, "Do you even know what size I wear?"

Mo Ran thought to himself, how could he possibly not know Chu Wanning's size?

He could approximate the size of Chu Wanning's waist just by circling his arms, and he knew that if Chu Wanning stood on tiptoes, his chin would be at the height of his own shoulders. In the past, Chu Wanning couldn't help but bite him in the throes of passion sometimes, leaving two rows of teeth marks by his collarbone that wouldn't fade for days.

Of course he knew the length of Chu Wanning's legs as well, legs that were so powerful as they wrestled, but so helpless when wrapped around his waist, slim calf muscles quivering slightly, smoothly rounded toes tightly curled…

And how could he possibly not know the exact width of Chu Wanning's shoulders, the full, plump curvature of his buttocks.

Chu Wanning, for his part, was pure as untainted snow and had no idea what he had just asked, thinking only that he had stumped his good disciple Mo Weiyu with this brilliant query of his.

Chu Wanning said with a sweep of his sleeves, "And how are you going to tailor anything without knowing the size?"

"……"

Mo Ran had nothing to say for himself.

It's not like he could say that he did know, that his mind had kept drifting off to the way Chu Wanning's figure had looked yesterday while he was making tangyuan earlier, strong and toned and well proportioned even in the steamy air of the Miaoyin Springs, looking just as amazing as he remembered.

And that his mind had wandered to Chu Wanning's thin, lightly-colored lips, had thought about the way those lips had looked, stretched painfully around his own girth in the past as he'd been forced to swallow him, the spasming of his throat as he'd gagged.

Mo Ran had closed his eyes, the jut of his throat bobbing as he'd mentally condemned himself a beast.

Respect him, cherish him, don't have any more improper thoughts toward him.

Respect him…respect him…

Two deep breaths later, he'd managed to suppress the burning arousal, but the tangyuan had ended up a bit too big, Shizun would probably find them sticky when eating, so he'd thrown them out and remade them, three dainty little ones this time. Mo Ran held them between his fingers contemplatively for a while, thought about those thin lips of Chu Wanning's parting slightly to take the sweet, sticky tangyuan into the soft warmth of his mouth…

And the curl of that tongue was like a searing flame, igniting all of Mo Ran's passions and desires, just about taking his life.

He even knew the exact size a sweet should be in order to fit into Chu Wanning's mouth, but Chu Wanning had actually asked him——asked if he knew what size clothing he wore.

The question lapped kittenishly at the inside of his chest.

Not daring to think any further, Mo Ran lowered his head and said, "Of course I'd ask Shizun for his size beforehand."

Finding it a little odd, Chu Wanning shot him a glance. "Did you catch a cold?"

"Nope."

“Then why is your voice so hoarse?”

“…Inflammation.#”

After a moment of blank staring, something seemed to occur to Chu Wanning, because he suddenly turned his face away, lips pressed into a thin line and gloom congregating between his brows, but the back of his ears were flushed pink.

The faint pinkness persisted all the way until they got to Wuchang Town and sat down in a room with a view inside the newly opened Zhongqiu Restaurant before finally fading away.

This was the first time Mo Ran had earnestly invited Chu Wanning out for a meal; although he’d done it before, those times had always been out of either necessity or exasperation, so the frame of mind was completely different.

The waiter steeped a pot of Lushan Mist and delivered some melon seeds and nuts before very respectfully taking out two menus written on bamboo scrolls to hand to the pair of cultivators from Sisheng Peak. Mo Ran flashed the waiter a smile as he took the scroll and said, “Thanks.”

Chu Wanning lifted his eyes slightly to glance at Mo Ran.

This person never used to have a habit of saying thanks before.

“Shizun can feel free to order whatever he likes, but I recommend their sweet and sour mandarin fish with pine nuts, which I heard is both tasty and well-presented.”

Chu Wanning nodded. “Then we’ll get that. You pick the rest.”

Mo Ran grinned. “I’ll order according to Shizun’s tastes then.”

Chu Wanning said mildly, “You know what kind of food I like?”

“…Mhm, I do.”

He’d always known, he’d just never bothered to remember before.

But from now on, he intended to never forget.

He was still looking at the bamboo scroll when the sound of footsteps came from the stairs, along with the tinkling of the bead curtain. Then he heard the waiter’s voice saying, “Ah, right this way sir, the sirs you’re looking for are in this room…yes yes yes, they haven’t ordered wine yet.”

The curtain of blue silk and agate beads was gently lifted by a smooth, fair-skinned hand.

A extraordinarily beautiful man with soft, inky black hair and a smile in his eyes that could chase the clouds from the sky appeared at the doorway carrying a pot of wine. Mo Ran turned around and was visibly caught off guard before saying, “Shi Mei? What are you doing here?”

“I ran into the Sect Leader at Mengpo Hall. He heard that the two of you were eating out here and was concerned that this restaurant wouldn’t have aged wine since they’ve just opened, and so sent me to deliver a pot of pear blossom white to go with your meal.” Shi Mei swung the wine pot dangling from his hand as he spoke; the cutely stocky pot was made of red clay and held in twined bamboo rattan, and the wine could be heard swishing inside with the movement, its sweet fragrance just about noticeable even through the sealing clay.

Shi Mei said with a smile, “Good thing I made it in time; it would’ve been a wasted trip if you’d already ordered drinks.”

Chu Wanning asked, “What about you? Have you eaten yet?”

“I’ll eat when I get back, Mengpo Hall will be open for a while yet, I have time.”

“You’re already here, so just stay.” Chu Wanning was a courteous person. “Have a seat and eat with us.”

“Uh…I shouldn’t put A-Ran to the expense.”

Mo Ran smiled and said, “What expense, it’s just a matter of adding a chair.” He had the waiter bring out another set of bowls and chopsticks as he spoke. This Zhongqiu Restaurant really was quite fancy—even the chopsticks used in the private rooms had threads of gold and silver inlaid into the tips, glittering and sparkling in the candle light.

Shi Mei took a seat and poured wine in luminous cups# for each of them, the rich aroma of the pear blossom white immediately permeating the air. It was a familiar scent; in the past life, Mo Ran had drunk it when Shi Mei had died, and again, all night on the rooftop, when Chu Wanning had died.

But they were both still alive now, and the calamity had already passed.

Mo Ran suddenly felt like all those things in the past, be it the possession or the affection, none of it really mattered anymore. What did matter was that the two best people in his life were still alive, and he could treat them to good food and good wine with the money he’d earned. This was enough.

These drinks shared were worth more than all the lands he'd owned in the past.

"Excuse me waiter, can we get an order each of mandarin fish with pine nuts, stewed crab meatball, pork trotter aspic, cherry ham, three delicacies soup, and steamed pork in bamboo leaf, all mild, and then poached fish in hot chili oil, mapo tofu, beef tripe in chili sauce, and kung pao chicken, as spicy as you make them. For dimsum we'll have shrimp dumplings, steamed spareribs and taro with soy sauce, golden tripe with scallop, and chicken feet in soy sauce.# And for dessert…" Mo Ran glanced at Chu Wanning and closed the menu. "We'll have one of each."

Without even looking up, Chu Wanning said, "We can't finish all that."

Mo Ran insisted, "We'll just take the rest back."

"It'll get cold."

"…We can have Mengpo Hall heat it up."

Chu Wanning didn't feel like wasting any more breath on him—Mo Ran was acting like one of those merchants that struck gold and got rich overnight, way too extravagant—so he opened his own menu, looked it over, and said, "Just one order of kidney bean rolls, one order of leaf-wrapped sticky rice cake, and three bowls of tangyuan with sweet red bean paste filling, thank you."

The dishes were quickly brought out one after the other. Shi Mei liked spicy food, Chu Wanning couldn't take even a hint of spice, so Mo Ran arranged the dishes separately, with half the table being light and refreshing, the other half bright red and scrumptious, the colors complementing one another in a surprisingly appealing way.

“Here comes the last one, our signature dish, mandarin fish with pine nuts ——”

With the waiter’s announcement, a plate of vibrantly colored and delicious-smelling mandarin fish in a thick stew was carried over by a pair of attendants. The fish looked like it weighed at least five catties, fried to a golden crisp and plated in an enormous, sky-blue porcelain dish. The fish was cut into flower-like slices of even thickness, with a thick, richly red sweet and sour sauce poured on top, and topped with a sprinkling of emerald peas, pieces of Yunnan ham, and translucent shrimp. Just the sight of the dish could make one’s eyes twinkle and mouth water.

Chu Wanning liked sweet things, especially sweet and sour things. Although his expression remained neutral as ever when the fish was brought out, even he couldn’t keep the twinkle from his eyes.

Mo Ran caught the twinkle.

The waiter glanced at the table, and seeing that there was some space in front of Shi Mei, went to rearrange the plates so as to make room for the fish there.

But a pair of hands faster than his beat him to rearranging the table. Standing up, Mo Ran moved a couple of the meat dishes that Chu Wanning wasn’t eating much from to his own side of the table, then put a few of the tasty and spicy dishes in front of Shi Mei, leaving an empty space in front of Chu Wanning. Mo Ran grinned at the waiter and said, “Go ahead and put the fish there.”

“Alrighty then!”

The waiter was all smiles, more than happy to have customers that would help make room on the table themselves, and immediately took the plate from the attendants to set down in the open spot before leaving with a bow.

The rearrangement had been done so naturally that anybody looking would only think that Mo Ran was just helping the waiter out, but Shi Mei had noticed the hidden bias. Somewhat surprised by the gesture, lights flickered across Shi Mei's eyes for a long moment before he lowered them, looking a little upset.

Shi Mei felt that Mo Ran, having returned after being away for five years, not only looked completely different, but even the special attention that he once gave him seemed to have faded away a great deal.

He liked mandarin fish with pine nuts too, so why did Mo Ran put it so far away from him? Did he not know? Or…

Or did he no longer feel the way he used to.

Shi Mei well knew his own worth. His looks and his temper were both better than Chu Wanning's; in fact, very few people in the entire cultivation world were even in his league in terms of looks.

But right now, he suddenly felt a little uncertain.

He knew that, despite Mo Ran's fickle and flirtatious behavior in his youth, acting as if he cared only about pretty looks, in truth it was all an act, and that, to Mo Ran, the most precious thing was in fact the genuine sentiments beneath.

If someone were to give him a tael of copper, he would repay them with one thousand gold.

Now that the bitterness born of past misunderstandings between him and Shizun had been dispelled, Chu Wanning's kindness to Mo Ran was not something he could compare to. The thought brought a sudden chill to Shi Mei's heart, and he snapped his head up to look at the other two's faces under the candle light.

One was drinking wine with his head lowered and his expression mild, phoenix eyes molten as water, lashes soft as mist.

And the other was smiling as he watched the former, cheek propped up in one hand and eyes reflecting the candle light. The reflection of that light held the snow of early spring layered upon an open balcony, pear blossoms blooming under clear moonlight. And the fluttering of those eyelashes was as ripples spreading across the mirror surface of a lake, sweeping across glittering stars untold with feelings that were probably unknown to even the owner of the eyes himself.

In his moment of distraction, Shi Mei accidentally touched his chopsticks with his elbow, sending them clattering to the floor. He snapped out of it and bent down to pick them up with a muttered apology.

But then paused when he'd leaned over.

The chopsticks had landed right next to Mo Ran's boots, faintly reflective as they laid there quietly, waiting to be picked up.

He could've just asked the waiter for another pair, but Shi Mei never liked bothering others; or perhaps, faced with such a downfall, even the most mild-tempered and laid back person would feel a little bit unresigned, a little bit at a loss. Or maybe it was nothing so complicated—after all, a person's actions really were just a matter of a passing thought sometimes.

In this moment, the opportunity just so happened to present itself, and Shi Mei really did want to know just how much Mo Ran still even cared for him now...and so, after a few moments of hesitation, he made up his mind and lowered his head, reaching out with a fair, slender hand to go pick up the chopsticks by Mo Ran's feet.

The chopsticks had fallen too close, and it was completely natural and unavoidable that the back of Shi Mei's hand would brush against Mo Ran's lower leg as he retrieved them.

Author's Notes:

《When I'm Rich》

Mo Ran: Look at the main novel.

Chu Wan Ning: Impossible, I spend a lot on buying various materials for machines and mechanisms, I cannot possibly have much money.

Ye Wangxi: It is merely an external possession. As long as one has enough to use, it is adequate. Donate the rest.

Mei Hanxue: Buy accessories, woo chicks.

Nangong Si: Do you think that being wealthy makes you happy? None of you understand the pain of a rich person like me at all.

Xue Meng: When I’m rich, the first person I want to destroy is this dumb fool above. I am very willing to experience your pain, come, give me your vaults.

Ch.133 Shizun Has the Purest Mind

>>sex of the dubcon variety

Mo Ran was just taking a sip of the pear blossom white when he suddenly felt something brush against his leg. He instinctively tried to move his leg away, but the contact became even more evident before he could, practically pressing against him as it grazed past.

Caught off guard, for a moment he couldn't even process what had just happened, until Shi Mei sat back up, and he saw the light pink flush on that beautiful face, the way he had his lips pressed into a thin line and his brows lowered as if there was something on his mind. Only then did Mo Ran suddenly realize——

Just now, was that…?

Mo Ran choked and burst into a violent coughing fit.

In his mind, Shi Mei had always been as the untrodden snow in the spring, the new moon atop the branch, to be gazed upon appreciatively from a distance and not to be frivolously touched in any way. But although he loved Shi Mei to death, and in fact would happily die for him, he'd rarely ever had any dirty thoughts about him, much less did anything of the sort in real life.

Had this pure, untainted person just...felt him up?

The thought shocked Mo Ran to the core, and he shook like a rattle drum#, horrified. Chu Wanning noticed and asked with a frown, "What's wrong with you?"

“Nothing!”

And right in front of Shizun too! ...Surely not?!

Th-that didn’t seem like something Shi Mei would do…

Mo Ran’s expression grew more complicated by the second; but rather than it being an awed surprise, it was more like an awful surprise.

After a long moment spent calming his nerves, he heard Shi Mei call out lightly, “Waiter, excuse me, these chopsticks got dirty, can I trouble you for a new pair?”

The waiter came as called and left to fetch a replacement. Mo Ran turned his head nervously, only to come face to face with Shi Mei’s gentle, mild expression and the same calm gaze as always, as if he had imagined the bashful blush earlier. Sensing the eyes on him, Shi Mei lifted his own peach blossom eyes to look back at Mo Ran with a subtle, barely-there smile.

“What is it?”

“Nothing, nothing.”

Shi Mei said, “The chopsticks landed at an inconvenient place, right by your foot.”

“Ohh…” Mo Ran let out a breath of relief as he felt his heart settle back into place. He was overthinking things after all. He was going to chitchat with Shi Mei some more to ease the atmosphere, but Shi Mei had already turned away and stood up to ladle out soup.

Still feeling rather bad about the misgivings he had just now, Mo Ran said, “Here, let me help.”

“That’s alright, I got it.”

Shi Mei pulled back his sleeve as he spoke and calmly started ladling out the three delicacies soup for himself.

Mo Ran had put the soup there, close to Chu Wanning, far from Shi Mei. It had seemed okay enough at first while sitting, but now that he had to stand up to reach, it really became apparent just how far away the soup was from him—he practically had to stretch his arm all the way out just to reach it from the other side of the table.

One ladle, two ladles, slow and leisurely.

Mo Ran: “……”

Shi Mei said nothing when he met Mo Ran’s uneasy gaze, only smiled slightly before looking back down to continue ladling out his soup.

Feeling a bit awkward, Mo Ran waited for Shi Mei to finish ladling, then asked Chu Wanning if he wanted the soup. Chu Wanning said no, so he moved it to the middle of the table, not too close or too far from anyone, just right.

His esteemed teacher and his favorite person.

There shouldn’t have been any bias in the first place.

Partway through the meal, Shi Mei suddenly said, “A-Ran, you’ve really grown up a lot, and you’re no longer that disciple who used to make Shizun angry all the time. So since we’re all here today, there’s something I want to tell you, and an apology I want to make to Shizun.”

Seeing how serious Shi Mei was being, Mo Ran gave him his full attention. “What is it?”

“Do you remember the first time I brought you wontons?” Shi Mei said. “That bowl of wontons wasn’t made by me, I never was any good at making those, it was…”

Mo Ran smiled. “Oh, that. And here I was worried it was something serious. I already knew, a long time ago.”

“Ah, you already…?” Shi Mei’s pretty eyes opened wide in surprise, then he turned to look at Chu Wanning, who was minding his own business drinking his wine. “Did Shizun tell you?”

“Nope, saw it for myself right before going to the Underworld.” Mo Ran was just about to say more when Chu Wanning suddenly put down his wine cup, cleared his throat, and shot him a glance with a cool, stern expression.

Mo Ran knew that he had a thin face and didn’t want others to know about his soft underbelly, so he said to Shi Mei, “Anyway, I found out about the whole thing five years ago already. It’s kind of a long story, so let’s not go into it.”

Shi Mei nodded. “That’s just as well.” Then he turned to Chu Wanning to say, “Shizun, back then, when you didn’t want to take the wontons to A-Ran yourself and had me do it instead, I didn’t think much of it at first. But then, watching the misunderstanding between you two deepen over time, I felt terrible about it and was going to find an opportunity to clear it up with A-Ran, but every time I tried, the words never came out…I was being selfish, to be honest, because aside from the young master, A-Ran is my only close friend at Sisheng Peak, and I was afraid that he'd be unhappy if he found out, so…"

"It's fine, I did say not to tell him. You did nothing wrong."

"Still, I feel really bad about it, because it's like I took credit for Shizun's kindness. Shizun, I'm sorry." Shi Mei dropped his gaze as he spoke, and then a moment later, added, "A-Ran, I'm sorry as well."

Mo Ran had never blamed Shi Mei for that; even though his initial fondness for him was due to the mix-up with Chu Wanning's wontons, Shi Mei had also been genuinely good to him afterwards. Not to mention the fact that Shi Mei had only been doing what Chu Wanning had asked of him, not intentionally trying to take credit.

Mo Ran said in a hurry, "Nonono, don't worry about it, it's all in the past already anyway…"

He stared at Shi Mei in the light of the candle. It was a face he'd never seen before in the past life, because Shi Mei had already died by then, his life cut short, wilted before it could bloom, and became the sorrow of his lifetime.

He didn't even get the chance to find out that, ah, so this is what Shi Mei would've looked like if he'd lived to be twenty four.

Tall and slender, with a face that was fair as jade and a pair of warm peach blossom eyes that were clear and glistening, he looked so gentle that even his anger would probably be soft and mellow.

His tightly clenched heart relaxed by degrees and he secretly let out a sigh of relief, suddenly feeling very giddy, his heart feeling warm and settled.

Compared to Shi Mei when he was nineteen, this twenty four year old Shi Mei felt a little like a stranger, no longer so intimate and familiar as they used to be. Maybe this unfamiliarity was the very reason that a thought so ridiculous as “Shi Mei was feeling up his leg” would even pass his mind, but Mo Ran was sure that he’d get used to it in time…and, as for the matter of romantic sentiments, he didn’t want to force it anymore—whatever happened would happen.

He had wandered about for five years, hardly leaving a trail the whole time, and still had a couple of close calls. He didn’t know if the fake Gouchen had a hand in any of those incidents, but the fact was that the person behind it all had neither revealed themselves nor been caught. Mo Ran was sure that there would be trouble down the line, and he knew better than to let his guard down.

He was going to keep the two people beside him safe and sound, even if it cost him his life.

And so Mo Ran set his heart at ease for now, but little did he know that the inner demon never rests, turning to another as soon as it relented its grasp on him.

Maybe it was because of how much he had eaten at dinner, but Chu Wanning got sleepy soon after getting back. He had originally planned to work through the night to finish the blueprint for the new mechanism he was designing, but he only managed to get halfway through it before the yawns hit him. He tried to keep going for a while longer, but eventually gave in and, blinking sleepily, plonked into bed and passed out without even changing out of his clothes.

It was a hazy sleep, and he dreamed of all kinds of nonsense.

First it was that “Size Ranking of the Cultivation World’s Young Heroes”, then it was that firm, toned body he’d seen at the Miaoyin Springs.

In the dim light of the candle, Chu Wanning’s brows twitched into a frown, as if trying to free himself from this shameless dream, only to inadvertently sink deeper into it instead...

And then, he had that dream again, the same one from before.

A Sisheng Peak that looked nothing like the one he knew, a Loyalty Hall that was and yet wasn’t.

And a grown-up Mo Weiyu who was grasping him by the jaw, looking at him with venomous, mocking eyes as he said obscene things to him.

He said, “Let me fuck you and I’ll agree to your terms.”

This Mo Weiyu was a bit different from the Mo Ran he knew—his expression was too crazed, his handsome face was too pale, and his skin wasn’t tanned the color of wheat.

“Get down on your knees… and suck me off…”

The disjointed words came in fragments from the depths of the nightmare, and it felt like there was something in his head that was just about to break apart, just about to break free of its chains and charge toward him.

He felt a chill run down his back, yet also for some reason felt inexplicably flustered.

In his dream, he watched as Mo Ran closed in on him and tore at his clothing, the sound of the fabric ripping clearer than it ever had been before. Then it all went black, like he was sinking into morasses.

The dream cut off there, the same way it had countless times before.

Except that, before, once the dream ended, he was able to sleep peacefully the rest of the night with no further disturbances. But today, for some reason, his vision gradually lit up again after that dream had ended.

Chu Wanning tried to see, but the new dream was so hazy it was like looking through a layer of mist. He couldn't quite see his surroundings, only that it was scarlet everywhere.

He couldn't see clearly, but his sense of smell and sense of touch gradually came back as the dream went on, became more acute than usual, even. He was suddenly assailed by an indescribably heated arousal, and he saw a toned body moving above himself, pressing down against him and rocking. Startled, Chu Wanning instinctively tried to struggle, but it was as if his body didn't belong to him at all, but to the him of the dream.

He could feel himself trembling, and he could hear the man's rough breathing, the hot puffs of breath against his ear, lips that kept brushing against the lobe of his ear time and again but did not kiss him there nor take his earlobe in to suck.

He turned his head; he was lying on a large, soft bed that creaked and rocked with their movements, and he could smell the musky scent of a beast pelt that seemed to be spread across the bed. He tried to reach out with a hand and grasp the bedcover amidst the vague fuzziness of it all, but didn't have the strength to move.

The man was so vicious, holding nothing back like he wanted to tear him apart. He heard a moan ripped from his own throat, hoarse and strangled.

He shook his head desperately, trying to struggle free, but that person had so much strength, as if he could crush him in his hand. Chu Wanning felt numbness spread across his scalp as his entire body shook uncontrollably…

Maybe it was because the dream had been too realistic and too draining, but Chu Wanning slept all the way until noon the next day before waking up, and then spent a long while just lying there in bed staring off into space. And when he turned his head, it was almost as if he could still smell the scent of the beast pelt from that dream, musky and sweet.

But then he blinked, and he was back in his black sandalwood bed in the Red Lotus Pavilion, and everything was perfectly fine, with nothing out of the ordinary.

Except…

Chu Wanning froze, then slowly looked down at himself.

"……"

Yuheng Elder, who rarely ever had any physical reactions after the years spent practicing asceticism due to his cultivation method, discovered that he actually… shamefully… had… morning… wood……

Did all his years of ascetic training get eaten by a dog or something?!

And those dreams last night——what the hell was that? Why did he dream of such absurd things! How…how did it even happen?

Surely not from just seeing Mo Ran's body that one time at the Miaoyin Springs and then accidentally reading that trashy book with the "truly awe-inspiring" garbage?

Chu Wanning's entire face darkened. He buried his face in his hands and rubbed vigorously at it, but it was still just as dark when he looked back up.

……

Just what was wrong with him?

Chu Wanning pressed his lips together and was just about to go have a soak in the cold lotus pond to cool himself off, but his toes hadn't even touched the ground when he felt a ripple in the barrier of the Red Lotus Pavilion.

He had a visitor.

Chu Wanning immediately paled and yanked the quilt over to cover up his lower half. That person walked fast too, probably using light footwork. He heard two knocks at the door.

"Shizun, are you up yet?"

The voice sounded just like the one in his dream, except the one in his dream had been deeper and throatier, steeped in a fervent, bottomless lust.

But the voice outside the door now was gentle and respectful, even a little worried, probably because of how late Chu Wanning had slept in.

The sound of that voice seemed to smash through the wall between dream and reality as Chu Wanning leaned against the bed, clutching the quilt to himself. The voice of that person outside brought back the entanglement in the dream and the intense motions one by one, rousing passions into turbulent tides, making it even harder for him to calm himself.

He was just about to lie back down and pretend to be sleeping when he heard Mo Ran say from the outside, “Shizun, are you in there? I’m coming in if you don’t mind.”

I’m coming in...

It was such a simple, normal phrase, but it made Chu Wanning think of the way that man had lain atop himself in the dream, lips closing and parting, the way that masculine body had felt so hot he was sure he was going to get burnt.

That person had said between pants, “Relax, I’m coming in.”

Chu Wanning’s face burned red-hot; he sat in bed in a daze with his clothes in a disheveled mess and a fire burning him up from the inside. There was ferocity and denial in his eyes, but they were like the gravel at the shoal, with sharp points that could ward people off in the bitter cold of winter, but once the snow melted in the spring and the tide rose, washing over the jagged edges with flowing, glimmering water, they no longer seemed half so threatening.

He’d rarely ever been so mortified and helpless, and had practically never felt such intense desire before.

Chu Wanning sat there in a dazed stupor, only snapping out of it when Mo Ran pushed the door open to come inside, but by then it was already far too late to feign sleep.

And so the sight that greeted Mo Ran when he walked in the door was that of Chu Wanning sitting in bed, the inky black hair draped loosely about him a sharp contrast against his face like the radiant surface of a frozen lake under the sun. His eyes and brows looked even more stern than usual, and when he lifted his eyes, the look that he directed his way was like the cold light reflected off the frosty edge of a blade drawn just a bit.

But there was a touch of red at the corners of his eyes, and so the cold light was tinged with allure and the ferocity was weaved with chagrin, as if he'd just suffered at someone's hands, had unspeakable things done to him, his eyes filled with indignation and a glassy hint of wetness.

Mo Ran's breathing abruptly slowed down as he stared wordlessly at Chu Wanning, this man who was like a tender bud growing out of a thorny thicket. He felt like a heavy rock had been dropped into his chest, sending waves splashing high…

Author's Notes:

Yesterday, an adorable cutie said that Shi- meimei picking up the chopstick was like Ximen Qing flirting with Pan Jinlian#, so the question is: is Shizun Granny Wang, or is he Wu Dalang?

Mini Theatre "How Atrocious Can The Title Of This Novel Get":

"Jinlian And His Dalang Shizun"

"I Fell In Love With My Little Wolfdog - Granny Chu's Autobiography"

"The Plum in The Golden Vase and Those Things That Happened Between Dalang and Jinlian"

"The reformed slutty wife Jin Buhuan"#

“The Handsome and Charismatic Chu Dalang”

Ch.134 Shizun Sure Can Eat

Mo Ran said nothing for a long moment; only the jut at his throat bobbed slightly.

It was as if he was drowning in torrential desire, clinging desperately to a piece of driftwood to keep himself afloat as he thought in a stutter:

R-respect and cherish him.

Respect as in respect and cherish, cherish as in respect and cherish. Do not defile, do not harm, do not have any unnecessary feelings, and definitely do not do anything like those outrageous things he had done in the past life to humiliate Shizun.

The inside of his chest burning like hot lava, Mo Ran had to repeat the sentence in his head four, five times before finally gathering enough of his wits to walk into the room with feigned composure and greet Chu Wanning with a smile.

“Shizun, so you were in after all...why didn’t you say something?”

“Just woke up,” Chu Wanning replied dryly.

The dryness was no joke—his throat was dry, and his desire too, so much so that a single stray spark just might set off an uncontrollable blaze.

Mo Ran was holding a five-layered, heavy-looking bamboo meal box in his hands. He thought about putting it on the table, but one glance and he could see the mess of files, drills, mortise-tenon joint parts, nails, and all manners of blueprints scattered all over the tabletop. With no other option, he could only carry the box over to Chu Wanning’s bed.

Chu Wanning seemed even more irritable than usual this morning, looking visibly agitated as he glanced at Mo Ran and snapped with a frown, “What do you want?”

“Shizun woke up pretty late. There’s not much food left at Mengpo Hall now, and I had nothing else to do, so I made breakfast to share with Shizun.”

He opened the box as he spoke and began to take out its contents one by one. The topmost level held a plate of sauteed mushrooms, next was a plate of tender, stir-fried celtuce stem, then silk thread rolls and honey glazed sweet lotus root, and on the very bottom was two bowls of rice, each grain full and translucent, as well as a bowl of bamboo shoot and ham soup.

Two bowls of rice…

Chu Wanning was a little speechless—did Mo Ran really think that he was this much of a glutton?

“The table is a bit messy…does Shizun want to eat in bed, or should I clean the table up and move the food over?”

Of course Chu Wanning didn’t like eating in bed, but the quilt was the only thing hiding his yet-to-subside arousal from view. He wavered between poise and dignity for a moment, then firmly chose the latter.

“There’s too many things on the table, it’ll take too long to clean up. Here is fine.”

Mo Ran nodded with a smile. “Okay.”

He really had to admit that Mo Ran was very skilled at cooking. He was already quite the good cook five years ago, and now, five years later, he was easily better than most ordinary chefs. Not only that, but Mo Ran also somehow knew his tastes very well—he knew that he didn't really like to eat congee in the morning, made sure to pick straw mushrooms for the mushroom dish, stuffed the silk thread rolls with sweet potato rather than bean paste, used only the tenderest tip portions of the bamboo shoots, and chose a cut of ham with a nice amount of fat, red and white interspersed like dusky clouds by the horizon…

Mo Ran had never asked him what he liked to eat, yet he had made everything just right, as if they'd already lived together for many years.

Chu Wanning was quite delighted with the food—he maintained his collected composure, but his chopsticks never stopped moving for even a moment. When he finished the last bit of the soup and looked up, he saw Mo Ran sitting at the edge of the bed with one foot on the cross bar of a chair next to the bed, cheek propped up in one hand as he watched him with a faint smile.

"What is it?" Chu Wanning subconsciously took out a handkerchief to wipe his mouth. "Is there something on my face…"

"Nope," Mo Ran said, "I'm just happy that Shizun liked the food."

"....." Feeling a little uneasy, Chu Wanning said in a mild tone, "It was good, but there was too much rice. One bowl will do, next time."

Mo Ran seemed like he was about to say something, but in the end decided not to, opting instead to grin at him, revealing a row of neat, pearly teeth.

“Got it.”

What a dummy, so careful and meticulous about serious things, but ridiculously careless when it came to the normal day-to-day things, completely not noticing that there were two pairs of chopsticks at the bottom of the box.

He ate two people’s worth of food all by himself, then turned around to tell him that there was too much food, that he’s a bit stuffed...

The more Mo Ran thought about it the funnier it became, until he couldn’t help putting his hand to his brow and letting his eyelashes droop down as they quivered with laughter.

“What’s so funny?”

“Nothing nothing.” Mo Ran didn’t want to embarrass him—his shizun valued his image above all else, after all—so he changed the subject to offer him an out. “Shizun, I just remembered something that I forgot to talk to you about yesterday.”

“What is it?”

“On my way back, I heard that Great Master Huaizui left the day before you came out of seclusion.”

“Mn, correct.”

“So you didn’t even see him after waking up, right?”

“I did not.”

Mo Ran let out a sigh and said, “Then it’s not a matter of Shizun being discourteous at all. I overheard people on the outside saying that Shizun didn’t have any manners, that Great Master Huaizui had spent the last five years to bring Shizun back to life and didn’t even get a thanks for his trouble. But the Great Master himself left first, and it’d be totally unreasonable to expect Shizun to run over to Wubei Temple as soon as he wakes up to kneel outside shedding tears of gratitude or something. Those mouthy people are really annoying, so now that we’ve cleared that up, I’ll have Uncle address it at tomorrow’s morning assembly——”

Chu Wanning suddenly interjected, “No need.”

“Why not?”

“...The Great Master and I have long since burned our bridges,” Chu Wanning said. “I wouldn’t have thanked him even if he was still here when I woke up.”

Mo Ran was taken aback for a moment. “How come? I know that Shizun chose to leave the temple of his own volition and had already severed his master-disciple relation with Great Master Huaizui then, but he still came to Shizun’s rescue at his time of need, and…”

But Chu Wanning interrupted before he could finish. “Things between him and I are hard to explain, nor do I care to talk about them. If people want to call me a cold-blooded, ungrateful person with no conscience, then let them. It’s only the truth.”

Mo Ran fretted, “How is that the truth? You’re clearly——you’re clearly not that kind of person!”

Chu Wanning's head snapped up and his expression abruptly iced over, blood pouring like a dragon touched on its inverse scale#.

"Mo Ran," He said suddenly, "Just what do you even know about me?"

"I——"

He looked at Chu Wanning's bright eyes, at the frosty cold inside; here was a man who never let his guard down, who always kept his distance.

For a moment, he wanted nothing more than to disregard all consequences and say, I know, I know a lot of things about you, I understand, and even if there are some things from your past that I don't know about, I'm willing to listen, to share the burden with you. Don't just keep everything to yourself, under all those locks, behind all those walls. Aren't you tired? Isn't it hard for you?

But what right did he have to say any of that?

He was his disciple. Be not impetuous. Be not irreverent.

In the end, Mo Ran said nothing.

A moment passed in silence, and Chu Wanning's tense frame, taunt like a bowstring, finally began to relax by degrees. He sighed, as if drained, and said, "People are not saints, and little can be done against fate. There are certain things that can't be changed even if you want to. Never mind, don't bring up Master Huaizui to me anymore. You can leave, I'm going to change."

"...Yes." Mo Ran drooped his head and quietly collected the meal box. But just when he got to the door, he suddenly spoke up, "Shizun, you're not mad at me, are you?"

Chu Wanning shot him a glare. “Why would I be mad at you?”

Mo Ran beamed brightly. “That’s good, that’s good. Then can I come again tomorrow?”

“Suit yourself.”

He paused before suddenly remembering something and adding, “In the future, there’s no need to say things like ‘I’m coming in’ to me.”

Mo Ran blinked. “Why not?”

“You’re going to come in anyway! So what’s the point in saying something like that?!” Chu Wanning was getting all worked up again, but whether it was at Mo Ran’s untimely bout of purity or at his own uselessly reddened face was anyone’s guess.

Chu Wanning didn’t get out of bed until after Mo Ran had left, all confused. Not even bothering with shoes, he walked barefoot to the bookcase and took out a bamboo scroll, unrolled it, and stared at the words written there with an unreadable expression for a long, silent moment.

Huaizui had left the bamboo scroll at his pillow side before leaving. A spell on the scroll prevented anyone other than Chu Wanning from opening it. The writing on it was neat and straight, and read, “Confidential. For Chu-gongzi only”.

His own teacher calling hm Chu-gongzi.

Ridiculous.

The letter was neither too long nor too short. It went over some things that Chu Wanning should be mindful of after waking up, before going into great length “entreating” him for one thing.

Great Master Huaizui asked that he absolutely go to meet him at Longxue# Mountain near Wubei Temple after he has recovered. He had written, in earnest terms, that he was getting on in years and would not be long for the world, that he felt immense guilt over certain things of the past.

“This old monk hopes to speak with you before his passing. You still carry that old injury, and hearing that the adverse effects of the injury cause you to have to go into seclusion for ten days every seven years, this old monk feels truly remorseful. If you would be willing to come to Longxue Mountain, it can be healed. However, the healing spell is quite risky, so you must also bring along a disciple of dual wood and fire elemental to stabilize the array.”

Old injury… Longxue Mountain...

Brows furrowed deep, Chu Wanning’s fingers nearly dug into his palm.

Healed? How? How could something that has been destroyed, been lost, and those one hundred sixty four days spent at Longxue Mountain, how could any of that ever be recovered?

Just how masterly did Huaizui think he was, that he could level out a scar this deep?!

His eyes snapped open as golden light cracked in his palm, the letter written on sturdy Xiangfei bamboo shattering instantly into powder in his hand and scattering away into the air.

Never again would he set so much as a single foot into Wubei Temple for as long as he lived.

Nor would he refer to Huaizui as Shizun ever again.

In the blink of an eye, it was already the fourth day since Chu Wanning came out of seclusion. Xue Zhengyong had called him to Loyalty Hall on this day and handed him a letter of commission. He shook open the letter and read the few simple lines written on it.

Chu Wanning lifted his gaze and said, “I think you gave me the wrong one.”

“Huh?” Xue Zhengyong took the letter and read over it again himself, then replied, “Nope, this is the one.”

“.....” Chu Wanning narrowed his eyes. “It says to help with the farming at Yuliang# Village.”

“Do you not know how?”

“.....”

Xue Zhengyong’s eyes went wide. “Wait, you seriously don’t know how?!”

Backed into a corner by the string of questions, Chu Wanning seethed. “Isn’t there anything more normal, putting down demons and whatnot?”

Xue Zhengyong said, “Y’know, things have been pretty peaceful lately, so there actually aren’t any places being troubled by demons right now. Aiyah it’ll be fine, Ran-er’s going with you anyway, you can just sit to the side and take it easy while he does all the hard work if you want, harvesting some rice and threshing some millet’s no big deal to the young and spry anyway.”

Chu Wanning’s inky black brows were furrowed so deep. “Since when did Sisheng Peak start taking odd jobs like these?”

“...Since always? Like when Granny Wang’s cat gets stuck in a tree at Wuchang Town and Shi Mei goes to get it down. It’s just that there were usually more hard-to-handle issues before, so I never bothered you with any of the simpler ones,” Xue Zhengyong said. “Besides, didn’t you only just wake up? I was actually gonna send someone else, but I thought you’d be bored just sitting around.”

“But even then I don’t...want to harvest rice.” Chu Wanning narrowly avoided blurting out that he “didn’t know how to harvest rice”.

Xue Zhengyong insisted, “Like I said, Ran-er will be there to help you out, so just take it as a leisure trip to relax and stroll around a bit.”

“Can I not relax and stroll around just fine without taking an assignment?”

“I mean, I guess.” Xue Zhengyong scratched his head. “But Yuliang Village is pretty close to Butterfly Town, with that Heavenly Rift that Ran-er patched up last time. He’s not you, after all, so why don’t you check on it while you’re there and see if there’s any parts that need reinforcing?”

Only then did Chu Wanning finally see a need for him to go, so he took the letter without another word and turned to leave Loyalty Hall.

Author’s Notes:

Congratulations, players, you have entered the new instance dungeon “If I Can’t Blueball You To Death, Consider It My Defeat”.

Dog and Shizun are about to embark on an instance dungeon of unprecedented low difficulty, and the wingwoman# is about to come online to deal this dumb dog the final blow, so that he can accelerate his revelation of what love is, ah, fuck!! Die of stupidity, I don’t care!!!

I will maintain my principle of “If I can’t blueball you little vixens to death, I’ll perform ‘swallowing a bite of durian’ on the spot”. In this raid, there’s no actual smut, but I’m driving fake cars all around; hope everyone’s happy reading the fake smut~ hahaha~

Ch.135 Shizun Learns Sneakily

Yuliang Village was a tiny village, and most of its villagers were on the older side, with very few young people, so every year when it got to be the busy season in farming, they would ask the cultivators at Sisheng Peak for help.

Some request like this, that has absolutely nothing to do with cultivation, would've gone totally ignored at any other sect, but Xue Zhengyong and his older brother had started Sisheng Peak from scratch, and had gone through their share of hardships when they were young—rumor had it that, growing up, they had to rely on charity to fill their stomach#. Thus, not only did he not have it in himself to refuse such requests from the old tenant farmers, he would take them very seriously, sending disciples to properly fulfill the requests each and every time.

The village wasn't exactly far from Sisheng Peak, but neither was it close, a middling distance that would be too inconvenient to walk and too pretentious to ride a carriage for.

So Xue Zhengyong had two good horses prepared for them. It was late autumn, the foliage were turning their fall colors, and when Chu Wanning came down the stairs to the main gate, the sight that greeted him was that of Mo Ran standing beneath a tall maple tree, its bright red, frost-adorned leaves rustling in the wind like the sheen of fine brocade, like the splashing of red carps.

Mo Ran had the reins of a black horse in hand while a white horse nuzzled his cheek, and was in the middle of teasing them with a tuft of alfalfa flowers when he heard the sound of footsteps approaching. A few pieces of red leaves fluttered down just as he turned to look over his shoulder, beaming brightly up from between dancing leaves.

“Shizun.”

Chu Wanning’s footsteps slowed, then came to a stop on the last couple of steps.

Sunlight filtered through the luxuriant leaves to fall on the moss-covered stone steps. He stared at the man standing there, not far away; maybe because they were setting off to do farm work, but Mo Ran wasn’t wearing Sisheng Peak’s disciple uniform today, nor was he wearing those white robes from when he first got back.

Instead, he had on a set of black raiments with wrapped wristguards, a simple getup that accentuated his slim waist, long legs, and broad shoulders. It was a good figure, especially around the torso area, where the open collar revealed a firm, toned chest the color of honey, rising and falling with each breath.

If Xue Meng’s getup with the sparkling silver armor was showy like a peacock fanning its tail feathers, then this look of Mo Ran’s was sultry, an innocent kind of sultry, an unmeaning kind of sultry—that was to say, it gave off an air of “I’m a decent, honest person, I’ve never teased or provoked in my life, and the only thing I know is honest hard work.”

“.....” Chu Wanning looked him up and down several times before opening his mouth to say, “Mo Ran.”

“Hm? What is it, Shizun?” The strapping young man replied with a smile.

Chu Wanning's face was deadpan. "Aren't you cold, with your collars open that wide?"

After the initial surprise had passed, Mo Ran came to the conclusion that Shizun was expressing concern for himself and felt all giddy about it. He put the alfalfa back into the hay basket for the horses, dusted his hands off, and bounded up the bluestone steps to stand charmingly in front of Chu Wanning, and then to proceeded to grab Chu Wanning by the wrist before he could even react.

"Not cold at all, I'm actually kinda hot right now from rushing about all morning." He grinned guilelessly as he pressed Chu Wanning's hand against his own chest. "See, Shizun?"

It felt scalding.

The young man's chest was hot to the touch, and together with that strong heartbeat and that pair of star-bright eyes, Chu Wanning could feel his entire back going numb. He hurriedly ripped his hand away as his face sank.

"Indecent."

"Ah...is it sweaty?" But Mo Ran misunderstood. As things stood, he thought that Chu Wanning wasn't into men—their entanglement in the past life had all been due to his own unreasonable coercion, after all—so he didn't think that Chu Wanning would have any interest in himself, thus Shizun must be annoyed at his sweatiness.

Remembering Chu Wanning's love of cleanliness and dislike of touching people, Mo Ran felt embarrassed, scratching his head as he said, "That was thoughtless of me…"

If he had looked closely, he would've seen the blush at the base of Chu Wanning's elegant neck, and the glimmer of affection beneath those coolly drooped lashes.

But he had missed that singular instant of opening, and Chu Wanning wasn't going to give him another. His snow white shoes walked down the slippery bluestone steps, headed directly for the black horse, mounting it in a single graceful motion that was smooth as flowing waters.

With the sunlight illuminating the land and red autumn leaves as far as the eye could see, the white-robed man sitting atop the large black horse glanced down over his shoulder at the disciple of his standing on the ground, his face like cool jade giving off an air of loftiness, ever the sharp and handsome Yuheng Elder.

"I'm off. Keep up."

And with that, those long legs clamped about the horse and it set off in a gallop.

Mo Ran stood rooted to the ground in a daze for a while, then picked up the bamboo basket, still half-full with the alfalfa flowers he was in the middle of feeding the horses with, and tied it to the white horse's saddle before leaping up himself, caught between laughter and tears. "But Shizun, the black horse is mine, don't just… Shizun! Wait for me!"

Galloping on swift horses, they arrived at Yuliang Village within the hour.

A few hectares of rice paddies# stretched out along the outside of the village, waves rolling through the fields of golden grain in the breeze. Some thirty-odd farmers were toiling away in the paddies. Due to the shortage of hands, everybody, young and old alike, were working the fields, backs bent low and trouser legs rolled up as they swung their sickles, large beads of sweat dripping off their faces with the exertion.

Mo Ran immediately went to find the village chief and hand him the letter, then changed into a pair of hemp shoes and headed for the fields without further ado. He had plenty of strength and stamina both, and was a cultivator to boot, so something like reaping crops was nothing to him, and it only took him less than half the day to harvest two whole rows of rice.

With the golden ears of rice piling up on the side of the paddy fields, soaking up the sunlight, the sweet scent of grains wafted through the air. The rustling sound of the farmers' sickles could be heard throughout the plateaus, and sitting at the ridge between the paddy fields, a maiden leisurely sang a farming song as she gathered the grains.

"The sun setting behind a mountain shines like a red flower, painting all four mountains red oh~ red like peonies. A red fan to sing my love song, a hydrangea to ask my loverboy, I tug at loverboy's belt, just when are you coming? Today I have no time, tomorrow I have to chop firewood, the day after I can come over."

The farmer girl casually sang these coy lyrics in that soft little tune, the words drifting in the air, landing in the listeners' hearts.

"Today—I have no time, tomorrow I have to chop firewood, the day after—I can come over."

Chu Wanning did not go to work in the fields, sitting under a tree drinking from a jar of hot water instead. His eyes followed that black-clothed, hard-working silhouette in the distance as he listened to the song, his thoughts all over the place, so much so that the water he swallowed seemed to flow into his chest rather than his stomach, making it feel all hot.

“What an obscene song,” he commented coldly when he finished the water, then went to return the ceramic jar to the village chief.

The village chief stared at him with hesitation.

Chu Wanning asked irritably, “What is it?”

“...Is xianjun...not going to work the fields?” The old village chief was a straightforward kind of person, and answered the question he was asked in a shaky, wizened voice, white beard trembling and white brows creased. “Is xianjun...just here to oversee things?”

“.....”

Chu Wanning had never felt this put on the spot before in his life.

Work the fields...

Didn’t Xue Zhengyong say he could just sit on the side and watch Mo Ran do all the work? Does he actually have to work too?

...But he didn’t know how!!!

But the old village chief was staring at him like he still had more to say, and even the couple of little kids and old women nearby heard the exchange and looked up to stare at this immaculately dressed man.

Children hold nothing back, and a little kid with his hair in buns asked crisply, “Granny granny, this daozhang-gege is wearing all white, how is he going to do any work in the fields?”

“His sleeves are so wide…” Another kid murmured.

“And his shoes are so clean…”

Chu Wanning was on pins and needles with how awkward he felt. He stood there for a bit, but his thin face really couldn’t keep lounging around after that, so he grabbed a sickle and waded into the paddy field without even taking his shoes off, the slippery, muddy swamp clinging to his feet immediately and the sitting water coming up past his ankles. Chu Wanning gingerly took two steps, frowning at the slippery feeling, then tried swinging the sickle a couple of times, but it was fumbling at best, as he knew nothing of the technique.

“...Pfft, this daozhang-gege sure is clumsy.” A pair of little kids had seen his attempts from under the mulberry tree, laughing at him with their cheeks propped up in their hands.

Chu Wanning: “.....”

Face darkening and not wanting to be near these people for even a moment longer, Chu Wanning summoned all the poise he had in him to keep his handsome face straight and his pace calm and steady as he waded through the mud in great big strides toward the figure that was busily cutting rice in the distance.

He was going to go sneakily observe how Mo Ran was doing it.

The saying went that one could always learn from others; he was going to learn it sneakily.

When it came to farming, Mo Ran was clearly more skilled than Chu Wanning. He was bent over under the blazing sun, each swing of his sickle reaping clumps of golden rice that fell softly and obediently into his waiting embrace, which he held with one arm until he'd gathered a large armful before tossing into the bamboo basket behind him.

He was so absorbed in the task that he didn't even notice Chu Wanning's approach, eyelashes drooped gently down as he continued to work diligently, a vague shadow cast by his straight nose as a bead of sweat trickled down the side of his cheek. There was a feral kind of scent coming from his body, scorching yet wild, muted yet fervent. Under the sunlight, his skin was like red-hot steel, as if having just come out of the casting pool, still crackling with sparks and hissing with steam with how blindingly bright it seemed, how beautifully brilliant.

Standing a distance away but not too close, Chu Wanning appreciated the view for a while before abruptly realizing just what it was he was doing. He furrowed his brows, shook his head, and mumbled something, then continued wading forward with a straight face.

He was going to learn, sneakily!

He was here to see just how Mo Ran was holding the sickle and just what kind of angle he was swinging it at, to find out why the rice that was stiff as iron wires in his own hands were pliant as boneless maidens in Mo Ran's, falling so willingly and eagerly into his arms.

Chu Wanning was so focused on staring that he didn't even notice the frog by his foot until it leaped up with a loud "Ribbit!" and hopped off toward the ridge.

Caught by surprise, Chu Wanning hurriedly pulled his leg back, but the paddy field was too slippery and he was too unprepared, and so it was that the great Yuheng Elder tipped forward, on track for a direct faceplant into the muddy paddy field, all because of a single brazen frog!

Woosh!

With his face just about to meet the mud, Chu Wanning had no time to cast anything, and could only reflexively reach out to grab at the hard-working person in front.

The village maiden's singing sounded even more coy. " I tug at loverboy's belt —— just when are you coming ——"

As his luck would have it, Chu Wanning ended up grabbing onto Mo Ran's belt and stumbling forward a few steps, before falling against a broad chest that was hot to the touch and smelled of masculine musk and finding himself wrapped in a pair of strong, solid arms.

Author's Notes:

Wingwoman: I've already come online in this chapter, really.

Mo Ran: ...Erm...are you that frog?

Wingwoman: Goodbye.

T/N meatbun? Hewwo? Is this an abo? Be straight with us Is This An A/B/O,,,,,, Ch.136 Shizun, Relax

>>noncon mention

Mo Ran was minding his own business reaping rice when he suddenly felt a hand from behind pulling his belt down. Quite the shocking feeling, really.

Turning around to see that it was Chu Wanning, who was about to fall over, was even more shocking.

Mo Ran hurriedly threw the sickle aside to support him, but it was such a bad fall that Chu Wanning was practically already halfway on the ground, and a hand in support wouldn't help any, so he had no choice but to hold him up with both arms. That person dressed in floating white robes and smelling faintly of the fragrance of haitang blossoms landed solidly against his chest, and Mo Ran reflexively closed his arms around him in an embrace, the ears of rice previously occupying his arms scattering all over the ground.

"Shizun, what are you doing here?" He asked, not yet recovered from the shock. "You scared me."

Chu Wanning: "....."

"The paddy field is slippery to walk in, be careful."

The person in his arms didn't look up or say anything, feeling so awkward that he couldn't even form any words. But the village maiden continued warbling mercilessly, " I tug at~ loverboy's belt~ hey~ just when are you coming ~"

As if struck by lightning, Chu Wanning abruptly let go of Mo Ran's belt and stood back up on his own feet. He took a breath before suddenly shoving Mo Ran away, and although his expression might pass for calm, his eyes were frightfully bright, like rolling waves catching the sunlight, obviously flustered but still forcefully faking composure.

"....." Mo Ran suddenly noticed that his earlobes were red.

It was a pretty color, a light pinkness in the skin like tender peaches at the tips of branches. He suddenly thought of the way those earlobes had tasted in his mouth as he sucked on them in the previous lifetime, the way Chu Wanning had trembled slightly every time he had done that, the way that, despite the utmost unwillingness, his steel-boned body had gone soft and pliant in his arms.

Mo Ran swallowed, his gaze unconsciously growing deep and dark…

But Chu Wanning was absolutely livid—though it was uncertain whom at—snarling between gritted teeth, "What are you staring for! What is there to look at!!"

Jolting back to reality, Mo Ran's blood ran cold.

Beast!

Just what despicable things had he done to Shizun out of his own selfish desire in the past? Shizun was so proud, how could he possibly accept being taken like that? Not only that, but such a dispassionate person as him probably didn't even feel any desire whatsoever to start with, so how dare he even think about these deplorable things again!

Mo Ran shook his head over and over again like a rattle drum.

Chu Wanning snapped, “What are you shaking your head for! Having fun?!”

“.....” Mo Ran immediately stopped shaking his head, but secretly snuck a glance.

Chu Wanning was clearly embarrassed, but trying to cover it up with this mask called anger as he was wont to do. Now that he was looking closely, it really wasn’t difficult to tell from his eyes.

He was probably just embarrassed that he had tripped over in front of his own disciple, and due to a ribbiting frog at that.

How cute.

Mo Ran couldn’t help chuckling at the thought.

But the chuckling only made Chu Wanning even angrier, his brows slanting in fury as he flew into a rage. “What are you laughing at?! So what if I don’t know how to do farming things, what’s so funny about that!!”

“Nothing, nothing funny, nope.” Mo Ran coaxed as he tucked his smile away and straightened his face into a serious expression, though he couldn’t hide the smile in his eyes, bright and shining with amusement.

After a few moments of holding in his laughter, and just as it seemed like this matter was about to be dismissed, the frog that had hopped over to the ridge between the paddy fields puffed out its cheeks and croaked out two more self-righteous ribbits, as if in a show of force.

Mo Ran fumbled his self-control, tried to turn his face away and cough into his fist to cover it up.

But he fumbled that too, and let out a “pfft” of laughter.

“……” Chu Wanning was really going to lose it, dragging his muddied robes behind him as he made for the ridge in a rage, but then he heard Mo Ran call out for him.

There was hardly any distance between the two of them; normally, Mo Ran would’ve just reached out and grabbed him—but he didn’t, because he could still feel Chu Wanning’s warmth against his chest, could still smell the scent of haitang from Chu Wanning’s robes.

His heart felt all mushy like it was about to melt.

But he didn’t dare allow his heart to melt. This person in front of him was so good, he wanted to treasure him, to cherish him, to revere him as he would a god. He didn’t want to hurt him any more with his own vulgarity.

So he only called out to him, “Shizun.”

“What, not done laughing yet?” Chu Wanning glared at him out of the corners of his eyes.

Mo Ran’s dimples were filled not with mocking, but gentleness. “Do you want to try learning? I’ll teach you, it’s actually quite simple, and Shizun is so smart, you’ll definitely pick it right up.”

As Mo Ran personally taught him how to reap the rice, Chu Wanning couldn’t help wondering just how things managed to turn out this way—he had come over with the intention of learning by covert observation, so how had he ended up in an official apprenticeship instead?

What a mess.

But Mo Ran was taking it so seriously and attentively, and didn't even laugh at his clumsy attempts.

His brows were inky-black, and his features were sharper and more defined than when he was younger. These looks would usually seem handsome yet arrogant, but his gaze was gentle and patient, as if hiding a great many things that weighed on him, or perhaps hiding nothing at all, only conveying the depth of tenderness, the weight of the years.

"Just like this, it's all in the wrist, get it?"

"...Mn."

Chu Wanning tried doing it the way he instructed, but still didn't quite get it right. He was used to working with stiff blocks of wood and whatnot in his work, but these soft ears of grain were somehow harder to deal with.

Mo Ran watched from the side for a while, then reached out with a toned, muscular arm, and adjusted his grip on the sickle.

Skin contacted skin for only an instant; Mo Ran didn't dare touch him more than that, nor did Chu Wanning dare allow him to touch himself more than that.

One was clearly a torrential stream that had nowhere to pour, and the other clearly a pond that was all but dried up. They were clearly a perfect match—if only he would go into him, he would no longer churn restlessly with no outlet, and he could be filled and watered, parched cracks all mended.

But they just wouldn't, each hiding from the other.

He instructed from behind him, “Put your finger a little lower, careful not to cut yourself.”

“I know.” Came the stiff response.

“Relax a little, don’t be so tense.”

“.....”

“Relax.”

But the more Mo Ran said that, the more Chu Wanning’s back tensed and his grip stiffened.

Relax relax relax, it’s not like he didn’t want to! Easy for him to say! But Mo Ran was hovering right next to him as he spoke, his breath practically caressing the back of his ear, hot and heavy, carrying this man’s unique scent of wildness— how was he supposed to relax like this?!

For some unknown reason, his brain chose this exact moment to remember that shameful dream.

They had been in more or less the same position in that dream, with Mo Ran’s lips by his ear, touching yet not, ghosting along his earlobe.

He had said between panting breaths, “Relax a little...don’t clench around me so tight…”

Chu Wanning’s entire face turned red.

He tried his best to get away from these weird thoughts, but a second wave rolled in right on the heels of the first, and he struggled free of these thoughts only to recall that “Size Ranking of the Cultivation World’s Young Heroes” booklet instead…

“.....”

Chu Wanning was afraid that there might be smoke rising from his head.

But Mo Ran was none the wiser. “Why are you so tense? Re——”

“I am quite relaxed!” Chu Wanning whipped his head around, eyes a little watery yet also filled with flames of anger as he glared at him, so close that it was practically like a sword piercing directly through Mo Ran’s heart.

Both their hearts were clearly drumming fast in their chests, but however loud the drumming, the other still could not hear, not unless he were to step closer, not unless he were to press his chest against his back, not unless he were to grab his hand, bite his ear, suck on his earlobe, murmur to him between heavy breaths, “Relax, don’t be so nervous.” Only in this way would they understand each other.

But Mo Ran would never, and neither would Chu Wanning.

So Mo Ran awkwardly drew his hand back and straightened back up sheepishly, saying, “...Then, does Shizun want to try again like this?”

“Mn.”

Mo Ran flashed him another smile before picking up his own sickle and getting back to work not far away. Two slices later, he seemed to suddenly remember something, turning to say over his shoulder, “Shizun.”

“What?” Chu Wanning’s expression was sullen.

Mo Ran pointed at his shoes. “You should take off your boots.”

“I will not.”

“You might slip wearing them,” Mo Ran said earnestly. “Those boots have smooth soles, I won’t always be there to catch you every time you slip.”

“.....” Chu Wanning mulled it over gloomily, then walked over to the ridge and took off his shoes and socks, tossing them next to a haystack before walking barefooted back into the paddy field to slog away at the rice.

High noon, and Chu Wanning had finally become more or less proficient with the sickle, his motions growing more fluent. The rice that he and Mo Ran reaped piled into quite a mighty little golden-colored mountain.

After harvesting another batch of crops in one go, Chu Wanning finally felt a little tired, straightening up to take a deep breath and wipe his sweat with the corner of a sleeve. A light breeze swept past golden waves of grain, bringing with it a refreshing autumn chill. He sneezed, and Mo Ran turned around immediately in concern.

“Is it cold?”

“I’m fine.” Chu Wanning shook his head. “Some dust got in my nose just now.”

Mo Ran smiled and was just about to say something when the clear voice of a village maiden rang out from beneath the mulberry tree in the distance, hands cupped around her mouth as she shouted “Lunchtime——it’s lunchtime——!”

“It’s the lady who was singing earlier,” Chu Wanning commented without even turning to look.

Mo Ran turned to the side and lifted a hand to his brow to squint into the distance. “It really is her. Shizun can tell by voice?”

“Mn, all that warbling just to announce mealtime, who else could it be.” Chu Wanning brought the last basket of rice over to the pile as he spoke, then headed off toward the mulberry tree, not even bothering with shoes since his feet were already dirty anyway. Mo Ran shook his head with a smile, picking up his abandoned boots before running to catch up.

Food was cooked in large pots for the entire village, and four or five women of the village carried out three wooden barrels and opening them to reveal a barrelful of steaming rice, another of braised pork with cabbage, and the last one filled with tofu and vegetable soup.

Honestly speaking, life for the common folk in the lower cultivation realm wasn’t exactly the greatest, and meat was considered a luxury to most people. But Sisheng Peak’s cultivators were here, and what kind of host would the village chief be if he fed them nothing but vegetables? And so there was a hearty portion of cured marbled meat in the pork and cabbage dish.

The moment the lids came off, all the big burly villagers, smelling the meat, had to swallow their drool.

“It’s not much, xianjun please make do.” The village chief’s wife was a stocky woman, fifty-something years old with a loud voice and a wide, unreserved grin. “We cured the meat and picked the vegetables ourselves, hope ya don’t mind.”

Mo Ran waved his hand in a hurry. “Of course not.” He scooped two full bowls of rice and handed them to Shizun before getting a third bowl himself.

Peeking into the barrel, Chu Wanning saw that the braised pork with cabbage was covered in a whole layer of chili peppers. He was rather apprehensive at the sight, but the auntie waved him over with such enthusiasm before scooping a big ladle-full of hot, spicy broth and putting many pieces of bright red meat in his bowl.

“.....” It would’ve been a delicious treat to the people of Shu who loved spicy foods. But to Chu Wanning, this bowl just might be the end of him.

But it wasn’t like he could decline the hospitality of the villagers, either. Chu Wanning was frozen in uncertainly when a hand reached over and offered him another bowl.

The bowl was filled with tofu and vegetable soup. It was kind of plain, but Chu Wanning liked it.

“Here, swap with me,” said Mo Ran.

“...It’s fine, eat your own.” Chu Wanning did not take the proffered bowl.

The auntie was puzzled for a while by this exchange before she put two and two together and smacked her head, hollering, “Aiyah, can this xianjun not eat spicy food?”

Seeing the guilt on her face, Chu Wanning replied, “No, I can eat it a little.” Then he picked up some of the broth-soaked rice with his chopsticks and put it in his mouth.

“.....”

A few moments passed in silence, Chu Wanning's face growing redder by the second as everyone watched, and then even the tightly-pursed line of lips began to quiver, until——

"...Cough cough cough cough!!!!"

An earthshaking coughing fit.

Who was it that said the only unbearable things in this world were love, destitution, and sneezes.

They clearly forgot about chili peppers.

Chu Wanning had woefully overestimated himself and sorely underestimated the chili peppers, choking so bad on the spice that his entire face was beet-red and he couldn't speak at all. The onlooking villagers were all aghast, while the kids, being kids, giggled from behind the adults, only to earn themselves swats on the head.

Mo Ran hurriedly put down the bowl and chopsticks he was holding and scooped another bowl of soup for him. The soup seemed to help somewhat, but his tongue felt like it was on fire from the hot soup on top of all that spice. His face was flushed and his eyes were watery when he looked up at Mo Ran, saying in a hoarse voice, "More."

More.

Chu Wanning clearly meant more soup, but Mo Ran felt his whole body burning up at the sight of those teary eyes, that face the color of haitang flowers in early spring, and his mind drifted off course of its own volition.

For a brief moment, his mind conjured up an image from the past life, of that man lying beneath himself, panting from need and the effect of the aphrodisiac both, eyes open but glazed over and unfocused, body trembling ever so slightly, voice hoarse as those moist lips parted in soft moans, “Please...more…”

Author’s Notes:

Mini Theatre: “Examples of some things these people can’t stand most”

Chu Wanning: Eating spicy food

Mo Ran: Watching Chu Wanning eat spicy food

Shi Mei: Participating in a triathlon with his muscles on display

Xue Meng: Forced to be gay

Mei Hanxue: The authorities closing down the brothel

Ye Wangxi: Marrying Song Qiutong

Nangong Si: His dog dying

Meatbun: Working overtime

Ch.137 Shizun and I Get Put Up As Guests

>> noncon flashback

The tips of Mo Ran's fingers were a little shaky, and his heart felt like it was going to beat right out of his chest.

The worst thing about men was that the head between their legs never listened to the head on their shoulders. Regardless of how much he really, truly, whole-heartedly did not want to, it still grew hot and hard, making him feel numb and prickly all over.

Cursing himself under his breath, he adjusted his sitting position so that no one would see before leaning over to ladle out another bowl of soup for Chu Wanning.

But then his fingertip brushed against Chu Wanning's as he reached over to hand him the bowl. The contact sent a jolt through his spine that made his hand quiver, spilling a bit of the soup.

Chu Wanning frowned a little but had rather more pressing concerns to care all that much. He took the soup and downed it to ease the spicy numbness in his mouth. Next to him, Mo Ran stared speechlessly at his lips, lips that were a vivid shade of red from the spice, like a ripe fruit hidden between leaves, or a vibrant blossom upon a branch.

Lips that, if kissed, would be soft, warm, moist…

Pa!

Mo Ran slapped himself none-too-gently.

Caught by surprise, everyone stared at him wordlessly.

Finally coming back down to earth, Mo Ran cleared his throat awkwardly and said in a hoarse voice, “There was a mosquito on my face.”

“Aiyo.” A clear, female voice made itself known and began to raise a fuss. “Autumn mosquitos are the worst, just looking to suck enough blood to get through the winter. Did xianjun bring any medicinal salve?”

“Huh?” Mo Ran looked toward the source of the voice, a bit caught off guard. The speaker was a fetching young woman, her comely figure dressed in a blue coat and her shiny black hair brushed into a braid. She had a pretty face and fair skin, but when they made eye contact, her gaze was anything but shy as she made eyes at him.

Mo Ran didn’t even get the drift, only thinking, oh, it’s the lady who was singing earlier.

He might be slow, but the auntie sitting next to the lass wasn’t. As someone who’d already had seven kids, she could read these little missies like open books, and so she followed through without missing a beat, “They’re only here for a little while to help with the harvest, of course they didn’t bother to bring any medicinal salve. Ling-er, go bring him a jar of it later.”

The lass called Ling’er beamed happily. “Of course, I’ll come by tonight with it.”

“……” Mo Ran hadn’t even gotten a word in yet and this enthusiastic pair of women had already decided for him between themselves, leaving him a little speechless. He turned to look towards Chu Wanning, just in time to see him taking out a handkerchief and slowly wiping the spilled soup from his hand, a touch of distaste in his expression.

Mo Ran was no good at dealing with women, so he said to Chu Wanning in a small voice, “Some of the soup got on my hand too, let me borrow the handkerchief when you’re done?”

So Chu Wanning handed him the handkerchief, the same haitang-embroidered one that he had before.

Mo Ran remembered him carrying it around back at the Peach Blossom Springs too. Chu Wanning looked cold and distant, but was actually a sentimental person, something that Mo Ran had already noticed in the past life in the way that the type of clothing he wore and the decor in his room stayed more or less the same throughout the years. He just hadn’t expected it to extend to even this handkerchief.

The handkerchief was so old that the color of the embroidery had already gone dull, but this nostalgic person still hadn’t tossed it.

Mo Ran wiped his hand, then took another look at the handkerchief. Upon closer inspection, he was surprised to find that although the flower was carefully embroidered, the needlework was rather poor, clearly the work of a beginner.

Thinking that Shizun must have done it himself when he was bored once, and mentally visualizing the way he must have looked, all serious and deadpan while stitching the haitang flower with a tiny little needle, Mo Ran couldn’t help wanting to laugh…

He wanted to look some more, but Chu Wanning took the handkerchief back.

Mo Ran said, “What are you taking it away for, I’ll wash it.”

“I can wash it myself,” Chu Wanning replied as he picked his bowl up once again. Mo Ran was not about to watch him tempt fate again, and so he hastily swapped their bowls, saying, “Here, eat this bowl instead, I haven’t touched it.”

The village chief’s wife hurriedly agreed, “It’s alright if xianjun can’t handle spicy foods, no worries, no worries.”

Chu Wanning pressed his lips into a line, then after a moment, lowered his eyes and said, “Sorry about that,” before exchanging bowls with Mo Ran. With Chu Wanning’s bowl and chopsticks in hand, Mo Ran was just about to dig in when it struck him that Chu Wanning had already eaten from it, and his heart, suddenly all soft and warm, started pounding for some reason.

He picked up a piece of marbled meat and put it in his mouth, the chopsticks just barely scraping past his teeth, sliding past his lip…

What improper, preposterous thing hadn’t he done with Chu Wanning in the past life? But in this life, just the touch of chopsticks he’d used against his own tongue, the bowl he’d eaten from held against his own lips.

Just this, and he could already hardly contain the flame within.

Regardless of how harshly he admonished himself, how many times he told himself not to think indecent thoughts about his pure, virtuous shizun, it was like his heart wasn’t even his—he could make himself not touch him, but he couldn’t make himself not think about him.

He had long since stopped hating Chu Wanning, but he had thought that, after peeling away the hatred, what remained of his feelings toward Shizun would only be respect and the desire to cherish.

But it seemed he was wrong. What was revealed when the black feil of hatred fell had actually been tender affection and scalding desire… he drifted in the ocean of desire, wanted to cling to the driftwood called rationality until he could climb ashore, but just one glance from Chu Wanning, one lightly spoken word, was enough to pull him back into the abyss of yearning.

He felt like he had truly gone mad.

Chu Wanning wasn't into men, so Mo Ran would sooner die than he would touch him, bully him.

And so the desire in him burned until it was a blazing inferno, swelled until it was a vast ocean, and he, drowning and burning, had little care to spare for anything other than the person in front of him, this pure person who filled his impure thoughts.

The autumn breeze picked up, bringing with it the fragrance of the harvest and a chorus of frogsong, and in this moment, sitting next to him, Mo Ran suddenly thought—absurdly, ridiculously—that it wouldn't be bad to spend the rest of their lives like this. He used to feel like he had nothing, and so fought for everything like his life depended on it, but now he felt like he had everything, and dared not ask for more.

The busy season for farmers lasted a little over half a month, during which Chu Wanning and Mo Ran stayed at Yuliang Village.

The little village could spare two rooms for them, though it wasn't exactly well-off so the place was rather barren. The village chief's wife gritted her teeth and fished out two thick mattresses# for them, only to have her offer declined in unison.

Chu Wanning said, "We can just sleep on the straw, it's warm enough. Please keep the mattresses for yourselves."

Mo Ran agreed with a smile, "We're cultivators, after all, can't just take your bedding like that."

The village chief was guilt-ridden as he said, over and over, "We're really sorry about this, we had more mattresses before, but the village caught on fire last year when we were beset by an evil spirit, and a lot of things…"

Chu Wanning said, "It's alright."

The village chief and his wife finally left tremulously after some more consoling. Mo Ran set about adjusting Chu Wanning's bed, packing more straw under the padding in hopes of making it softer, looking rather like a dog busily dragging cushions and pillows to its nest.

Chu Wanning looked on mildly from where he was leaning against the side of the table, and said, "That's good enough already, any more and I'll be sleeping in a haystack instead of a bed."

A little embarrassed, Mo Ran scratched his head and said, "There wasn't any time today, but tomorrow I'll go to the nearby market and buy Shizun a proper mattress."

"And am I supposed to do all the farmwork while you go to the market?" Chu Wanning shot him a glare. "Just leave it, it's fine." He walked over and took in the scent as he spoke. “It has that nice grain smell.”

Mo Ran protested, “No way, Shizun is no good with the cold, you can’t just…”

“It’s not even winter yet.” Chu Wanning frowned. “What is all this fuss. Go back to your room already, it’s been a long day, I can’t even feel my feet anymore, I’m going to bed.”

Mo Ran left obediently.

Chu Wanning took his shoes off, haphazardly rinsed his feet with water from the large clay jar, and was just about to climb into his straw bed when he heard knocking at the door. Mo Ran had come back, and was yelling from the outside, “Shizun, I’m coming in!’

“……” Chu Wanning was furious. “Didn’t I tell you not to say that to me anymore!”

But Mo Ran only grinned and bumped the door open with his head as Chu Wanning fumed. He couldn’t push the door open otherwise, because both his hands—with sleeves rolled up to the elbows to reveal firm, sexy arms the color of honey—were busy holding a bucket full of clear water with steam rising from it.

The young man’s eyes seemed especially bright behind the steam, practically sparkling.

Chu Wanning’s heart raced under his gaze, and he found himself at a sudden loss for words.

Mo Ran carried the heavy bucket of water over and set it down next to his bed, and then he said, face glowing and dimples warm, “Shizun, you worked too hard today, soak your feet first, then let me give you a foot rub before you go to sleep."

"N…"

"I know I know, Shizun's gonna say no need," Mo Ran said with a smile. "There is a need. It's your first time doing farmwork, you're going to be achy all over. If you can't get a good night's rest because of that and then can't get up tomorrow, the little kids in the village are going to make fun of you again."

The water in the wooden bucket was hot, just a little bit too hot, but not unbearably so.

Chu Wanning's bare feet sat in the water, the toes smooth and delicate, the lines of his ankles flowing and defined. His feet never saw the sun, and so the skin there was fair, pale, even.

Mo Ran mused about how nice Chu Wanning's skin was as he took it all in, even fairer and smoother than that of delicate ladies.

Thinking about it now, even that woman Song Qiutong whom he'd married in the past life hadn't felt as nice as Chu Wanning did... bah , what was he thinking about.

So while Chu Wanning soaked his feet, Mo Ran sat down at the table across the room and took out a book to read.

He'd brought the book along himself, some dry tome about healing spells. It was so quiet in the room that they both subconsciously slowed down their breathing so that the other wouldn't hear. In the room lit by a single candle, the only sound was that of Chu Wanning's feet occasionally moving in the water.

"I'm done soaking, it doesn't ache anymore, you can go now."

But Mo Ran was persistent—he knew better now than to take Chu Wanning at his word when he said things like "it doesn't hurt" and "I'm fine"—and had already put down his book and come over to Chu Wanning's bed to kneel down on one leg, grabbing the foot that Chu Wanning tried to pull back and looking up at him with eyes that were not going to take no for an answer.

"I'll go after I give Shizun a foot rub."

"……" Chu Wanning really wanted to kick him, so that he would get the hell out and stop saying whatever the fuck he wanted in front of himself.#

But the hand gripping him was so strong, the skin a little rough, and the calluses at the pads of the fingers and between the thumb and forefinger rubbed against his foot, where the skin was extra sensitive from soaking in the hot water, so much so that it felt a little ticklish, and he was so busy trying not to laugh that he missed his last opportunity to pick up his dignity and kick Mo Ran out.

Half-kneeling on the floor, Mo Ran had already put his foot on his knee and began to massage it, gently and carefully, his eyes lowered in concentration.

"Shizun, was it cold in the paddy field?" He asked while massaging.

"It was alright."

“There’s tons of dead branches and stuff in there, look, you got scratched on the side here.”

“……” Chu Wanning looked over at the side of his right foot, and sure enough there was a small cut there. “It’s just a scratch, doesn’t even feel like anything.”

Mo Ran insisted, “I packed some herbal ointment for such things, wait here a moment, Shizun, I’ll go grab it and put it on for you, Auntie made it so it’s really good, it’ll be all healed up by morning.” He walked out the door as he talked, toward his room that was right across from Chu Wanning’s, separated by a small courtyard that was only a dozen or so steps wide, and came back in no time with a small jar of sweet smelling ointment.

“Isn’t this a bit of an overreaction?”

“Of course not, what if it gets infected? C’mere, Shizun, gimme your foot.”

Chu Wanning felt a little awkward about it; in all the years he’d lived, his feet had always been a private part, since he’d always been fully dressed and never gone anywhere barefoot as a matter of course. This was a part of him that barely anyone had ever seen, and no one had ever touched.

It is said that the unknowing are fearless; he’d let Mo Ran give him a foot rub earlier because he hadn’t known what it would feel like, not having expected the tender, aching feeling, like getting gnawed at by ants, so now he was a little hesitant about giving him his foot again.

So Mo Ran stared at that pair of feet hiding hesitantly under the robes, pale white feet with a bloom of rosiness from their soak in the hot water. Chu Wanning’s toes were fine and delicate, with nails that were translucent like the thin layer of ice upon the surface of a lake in the depth of winter, and a light pink blush of color at the tips of the toes from the soak.

Like budding haitang blossoms frozen beneath the ice.

Mo Ran knelt back down, his expression gentle and respectful as he took the warm haitang flower in hand.

He could feel the haitang trembling minutely in his hand, petals quivering, and he was struck by the sudden urge to lower his head and press a kiss to it, so that it wouldn't hesitate or be afraid, so that it might blossom and unfold.

"Shizun…"

"What is it?"

There seemed to be a raw quality to Chu Wanning's voice, like the branches of a flowering tree laden with the weight of desire, the blossoms on the verge of giving way, droplets of dew just about to fall upon parched soil.

Mo Ran's head snapped up, the candle flame choosing that exact moment to crackle, setting free a burst of sparks as a small stream of candle wax dripped slowly down. His gaze met Chu Wanning's by chance, both their eyes bright in the light of the candle, with desire, with hunger.

"You…"

Chu Wanning dropped his gaze and said, mildly, "Get on with it, my feet are ticklish."

Mo Ran's entire face went red, but luckily it wasn't too visible through his tan. He mumbled an acknowledgement and lowered his head back down to apply the ointment, the blush burning all the way to his ears.

But he couldn't help hearing "get on with it" repeated over and over in his head.

He swallowed, eyes fixed on the soft skin.

Images from the past surfaced in his mind, becoming clear, coming into focus. He remembered the disheveled bedding in Wushan Palace, and the way Chu Wanning had looked all the fairer against those scarlet sheets, the way they had entangled like caged beasts, neck against neck, heavy breaths and low groans filling the hall with a ferocious, savage kind of tension.

He thought about Chu Wanning's muted moans, that icy voice melted into softly flowing water by the flames of desire, heated into a boil.

"Stop this nonsense… ah …" He could almost hear Chu Wanning's voice by his ear.

Mo Ran squeezed his eyes shut, furrowed his brows deep.

In this moment, he finally realized something: it wasn't going to be easy for him to be good to Chu Wanning.

If he were to keep his distance, he wouldn't be able to take good care of him, keep him warm.

But if he were to stay close, he might not be able to control the flame of desire within; he was afraid that his rationality might catch on fire in a moment of carelessness, that he might do something outrageous.

He wanted him, wanted to bed him. Even in this very moment, he suddenly thought that what he wanted to do wasn't to be kneeling here, giving Chu Wanning foot rubs and applying ointment to his cuts. This person was sitting right here in front of him, on the bed, and his own strength now was already no different from what it had been in the past. Chu Wanning wouldn't be able to push him off.

He wanted to take him, wanted to push him down onto the bed, wanted it so bad his throat felt parched, wanted it so bad it burned and ached, he wanted to kiss the breath out of Chu Wanning, he wanted…

"All done, Shizun!" He practically yelled out, startling Chu Wanning.

Only Mo Ran himself knew of the cold sweat drenching his back.

He suddenly felt so miserable——why couldn't he just be good to Shizun in a clean, genuine way? Why couldn't he just be rid of this burning desire?

Chu Wanning, Chu Wanning…

His Shizun was the loftiest person in the world, if he were to find out that his own disciple felt thus toward him, how disdainful would he be, how scornful?

It had been two lifetimes, already.

He didn't want to be looked at with scorn by him anymore.

Chu Wanning put his shoes back on. The whole time, Mo Ran sat to the side with his head lowered wordlessly, looking rather like an obedient, docile dog; only he himself knew of the insatiable wolf locked up inside.

A long moment passed before Mo Ran managed to suppress the burning in his chest. He said, “Shizun, rest well. If you feel unwell at all tomorrow, then please just rest, I can do both our shares of work.”

Before Chu Wanning could reply, a delicate sounding voice rang out from the outside, “Mo-xianjun, Mo-xianjun, are you there?”

Author’s Notes:

Mini-theatre: If the main cast transmigrated to the modern day, what occupations might they have based on their skills?

Shizun: First, he’ll be valedictorian of Lanxiang Vocational School, then become a mechanic who operates excavators and operators. Oh, right, speaking of which, I swear if I write a modern BL in the future, I will write a CEO who drives a tractor. I’ve had enough of CEOs who drive Lamborghinis and Ferraris--if they don’t drive a Lamborghini or Ferrari, is it not a BL about CEOs? I’m so angry, I want the CEO to drive a tractor! I want to write about him driving a tractor! Chu Wanning, you are the protagonist in a BL about CEOs! Drive your tractor! Bump into someone’s Ferrari! Go!

Dog: Chef, valedictorian of New East Cuisine Education. A chef who drives a Porsche, happens to be a couple with the CEO who drives a tractor, not bad not bad.

Xue Meng: Doesn’t know anything, will probably die.

Shi Mei: Selling counterfeit medication. It’s easier to earn money, but he has a good conscience and might not bear to do so, he’ll probably go bankrupt in the end.

Ye Wangxi: Cop.

Mei Hanxue ： ……Gigolo.

Nangong Si: Pet shop owner. If this really doesn’t work out, the superintendent at a pig farm is fine too.

Ch.138 Shizun Just Might Blueball Me To Death

Chu Wanning directed a mild glance Mo Ran's way and said, "Someone's looking for you."

"...Ah? Who'd be looking for me this late in the day?" Mo Ran had nothing but Chu Wanning on the mind right now, long since having forgotten all about whatever had happened during the day with the villagers.

"It's the person who was singing earlier," Chu Wanning said in a pointedly understated manner. "You know, the prettiest girl in the village."

"Eh, really…? All the girls in the village looked more or less the same to me…"

Hearing that, Chu Wanning was silent for a moment before saying, "I was only gone for five years, when did you go blind?"

"……"

Chu Wanning's tone was mild, but in the instant that he looked up, Mo Ran caught a hint of what seemed to be a smile in his eyes, as if teasing him with some good-humored bantering. Happily surprised, Mo Ran felt his mood instantly lifting as well.

The farmer girl named Ling-er was holding something wrapped in a blue cloth with white floral patterns on it and yelling as loud as she could toward Mo Ran's room, "Mo-xianjun, Mo——"

"I'm over here." Hearing the deep voice of a man from behind her, Ling-er turned around to see Mo Ran lifting up one side of the curtain and leaning by the door to smile at her, "It's already so late, did you need something?"

Ling-er was startled for a moment before it melted into delight and she went happily over. “Good thing xianjun hasn’t gone to bed yet! Here, this is for you, I got it from my auntie, like I mentioned during lunch earlier. P… please use it.” She handed him the cloth bag in her arms as she spoke.

Opening the bag, Mo Ran found three little clay jars.

“What are these?”

“Medicinal salve,” Ling-er explained enthusiastically while pointing at her cheek with a smile, “for your mosquito bite, from the field earlier…”

“Ah.” Finally remembering what this was all about, Mo Ran was a little embarrassed that his offhanded excuse had been so naively believed that the girl had actually come all this way to give him the salve.

The villagers here were rather too gullible…

“You probably didn’t get bit too badly though.” Ling-er suddenly stood up on tiptoes and gave Mo Ran’s face a careful once-over, smiling even more brightly. “I don’t even see a mosquito bump.”

Mo Ran cleared his throat. “I am a cultivator, after all…”

Ling-er clapped her hands together with a laugh. “You cultivators are so interesting! If I had the talent for it, I’d want to become one too, too bad it’s not in the stars for me.”

They chatted a bit, then Mo Ran thanked her and went back inside with the salve. Chu Wanning had moved to sit at the table and was flipping idly through the book that Mo Ran had left there; hearing the movement, Chu Wanning looked up at him.

“Medicinal salve,” Mo Ran explained bashfully.

Chu Wanning said, “Did you really get bitten? Come here, let me see.”

Under the candlelight, Mo Ran’s skin was the deep color of honey candy, making his feature look all the more dashing. Chu Wanning stared for a while before asking, “...Where’s the bump?”

Mo Ran scratched his head, embarrassed. “It went down already, my skin’s thick.” He put all three jars of the refreshing medicinal salve on Chu Wanning’s table as he spoke. “I don’t need these, Shizun should hang onto them instead, since you’re more likely to get bug bites.”

Chu Wanning said, without accepting or declining, “First the herbal ointment and now this medicinal salve, I’ll have to open an apothecary at this rate.”

Mo Ran only rubbed his nose and beamed a sincere, reserved grin. Chu Wanning reached out and poked his forehead, saying, “It’s getting late, go back to your room and go to sleep.”

“Mn, sleep well, Shizun.”

“Sleep well.”

But that night, in the two run-down straw huts separated by the small courtyard that could be crossed in ten steps, neither of the two could sleep despite the exchanged wishes, both of them tossing and turning restlessly.

It was needless to say that, for Chu Wanning’s part, he could still feel the tingling in his feet, could practically still feel Mo Ran’s callused fingers rubbing against his skin.

But Mo Ran's thoughts were rather more complicated as he turned this way and that, head pillowed on his arm while tapping restlessly at the seam between the bed boards, repeating over and over in his head: Shizun is a god, an immortal, an otherworldly being; no matter what happened in the past life, he definitely won't do anything stupid in this life, definitely won't bully him, definitely won't mess things up again…

And besides, there was still Shi Mei.

Yes, he should think more about Shi Mei instead——Shi Mei…

He suddenly felt even more uneasy.

Truth be told, ever since returning to Sisheng Peak and seeing Shi Mei again, he had found himself feeling rather lukewarm toward him.

To him, liking Shi Mei and protecting Shi Mei had already settled into a kind of habit, things that he was constantly doing, but then what?

He still felt fond of the Shi Mei of five years ago, but that beautiful man of five years since felt like a stranger to him.

The unfamiliarity left him at a loss; he didn't know what was wrong with him, or what to do about it.

Chu Wanning woke up early the next day.

Stepping outside, he came face-to-face with Mo Ran, who was just lifting the curtain and coming out of his own room.

Mo Ran greeted, "Good morning Shizun."

"Morning." Chu Wanning glanced at him. "…Didn't sleep well?"

Mo Ran forced a smile. “I’m not really used to the bed. It’s alright, I’ll just take a nap later.”

They set off for the fields together, the early morning breeze bringing with it the refreshing fragrance of grass and trees. It was empty and quiet all around, with the only sound being the occasional singing of frogs and chirping of cicadas.

Chu Wanning yawned languidly, then caught something out of the corner of his eye that made him smile.

“Mo Ran.”

“Mm?”

Chu Wanning reached over with a hand to brush through Mo Ran’s fringe, plucking a piece of straw from his hair and saying with a small smile, “What were you doing, rolling around in bed? You’ve got straw in your hair.”

Mo Ran was just about to defend himself when he spotted a small piece of straw on the side of Chu Wanning’s head as well, so he also smiled and said instead, “Then Shizun must’ve been rolling around too.”

And helped pick the golden straw off Chu Wanning’s hair as well.

As the sun rose from the east, the master and disciple gazed at each other against a backdrop of resplendent gold, one with his head slightly lowered, the other with his head slightly tipped up, just the way they’d used to.

Except that, five years ago, the one with his head lowered had been Chu Wanning, and the one with his head tipped up had been Mo Ran. But years had flown past and Mo Weiyu was no longer a youth; in this moment, it was as if time was finally willing to slow down, and in the gentle dawn, Mo

Ran suddenly jumped into the paddy field on an impulse, opening his arms and smiling toward the person standing on the raised ridge, “Shizun, jump, I’ll catch you.”

“……” Chu Wanning glared at the ridge that was only half a person tall. “Is something wrong with your head?”

“Hahaha.”

He took off his shoes and hopped gracefully into the paddy field himself, sending a ripple through the water and a chill through the bottom of his feet. With a grand sweep of one broad sleeve and an air of imposing dignity, Chu Wanning marked off a large stretch of the field for himself. “This whole area is mine. I didn’t cut as much as you yesterday, but I fully intend to beat you today.”

Mo Ran’s outstretched arms went up and scratched his head, then the corners of his lips quirked up and an especially charming smile spread across his face.

“Okay, if I lose, I’ll make Shizun lots and lots of lotus crisps and stewed crab meatballs.”

Chu Wanning said, “And lots of honey glazed sweet lotus root too.”

“Sure! But what if Shizun loses?” Mo Ran’s eyes were clear and bright, like they held the entire starry sky. “Then what?”

Chu Wanning glanced at him coldly out of the corners of his eyes. “What do you want?”

Mo Ran mulled it over for a long while, chewing on his bottom lip, then said, “If Shizun loses, Shizun will have to eat all the lotus crisps and stewed crab meatballs I make."

A pause, and then, in an even gentler voice spoken into the refreshing breeze:

"And all the honey glazed sweet lotus root too."

Win or lose, I just want to find some way to treat you well.

Chu Wanning had gotten quite adept at harvesting rice in no time, and he did not like to lose. It was enough that he had gotten made fun of yesterday, he was not going to be the butt of jokes today too. Thinking huffily thus, he worked with singular diligence, slicing away at the rice, and by midday he'd cut down way more than Mo Ran had.

He was rather proud of himself as they ate lunch under the mulberry tree. He didn't say it, nor did it show on his face, but his eyes kept wandering over to the side of the paddy field, where the rice he'd harvested was stacked into a formidable little mountain of gold.

"Ling-er, go get xianjun another helping of rice."

Everyone sat together, eating their lunch. Mo Ran ate fast, and his bowl was cleared out in no time. Noticing his empty bowl, the auntie spoke up in a hurry.

But Mo Ran put down his bowl and chopsticks like he was in a hurry, flashed a smile and said, "That's alright, I'm done eating. I have something to take care of so I'm gonna run out for a bit, it might take a while, go ahead and eat without me."

Ling-er was surprised at first, before it turned into unease. "Does xianjun really only eat so little? Is the food not to your taste? If you don't like it… I could… go make something else for you…?”

“No no, that’s not it, the food’s great.” Of course Mo Ran was completely oblivious to the overtones of the offer, only waving her off with a forthright grin and heading off toward the stable with large strides.

Chu Wanning asked, “Where are you going?”

Mo Ran replied over his shoulder with a smile, “Just buying some things, I’ll be right back.”

“Xianjun——”

“It’s fine, let him be,” Chu Wanning said mildly as he picked up a piece of fried tofu with his chopsticks.

Although the two cultivators had arrived together, anyone with eyes could tell who had the higher status, who had the lower status, and whose word counted. On top of that, Chu Wanning looked cold and severe to start with, and now that he’d spoken, the villagers couldn’t exactly press the issue, so they could only let Mo Ran go.

After lunch, everyone split off into small groups, some whiling the time away chewing tobacco, some napping under the sun; the women sat together knitting winter clothes, while the children played amongst themselves, riding on bamboo stick pretend-horses. A stick-thin cat sniffed hopefully at the ground, little pink nose twitching and ears sticking straight up, looking for leftovers to eat.

Chu Wanning was resting against a pile of grain with a cup of warm tea in hand when he saw the pitifully skinny cat and tried to wave it over, thinking to find it something to eat. But the cat was wary of strangers, thought Chu Wanning was raising his hand to hit it, and hightailed it out of there.

Chu Wanning: "……"

Did he really look that scary? Even cats didn't like him?

In the middle of sulking with cheek in hand, he heard the sound of copper pieces jingling. Ling-er came over cheerfully, also holding a cup of tea, and sat down next to Chu Wanning.

Chu Wanning turned to look at her without much of an expression.

She was very pretty, and more than that, she wasn't skinny and frail, but a full-figured woman rarely found in such remote and desolate places. And she knew how to dress herself, too—she didn't have the money to buy accessories, so she had gathered some bits and pieces of copper and iron, washed them clean and ground them into smooth rings to string along the hem of her clothing so that she jingled as she walked and fairly gleamed under the sun.

"Xianjun," she called to him with a voice that was crisp as a ripened berry.

Chu Wanning replied, "What is it?" His voice was cool and clear like drifting mist.

Ling-er was a little taken aback at his standoffishness, but quickly put on a smile as if things were perfectly amicable and said, "Nothing, I just saw you sitting by yourself and thought I'd come over and keep you company."

"……"

Chu Wanning knew he didn't have a friendly-looking face, as evidenced by the cat just now. But people and cats were different, after all—cats never had any schemes, but people might have ulterior motives.

Sure enough, after a while of chattering about empty pleasantries and trifling nonsense, Ling-er threw out a casual, "Xianjun, what does it take to be…a disciple at Sisheng Peak? Do you think…I have a chance?"

Chu Wanning said, "Give me your hand."

"Ah…" She opened her eyes wide and excitedly did as told. Chu Wanning pressed the tips of his fingers lightly against the inside of her wrist, then drew back after a moment and said, "You do not."

Ling-er's face flushed red instantly. "D-do I not have the aptitude?"

"You knew I was going to check your core as soon as I asked for your hand, so you must've already had someone else check for you in the past," Chu Wanning said. "Cultivation is not in your fate, and you will likely not be able to build even just the foundation for it, even if you spend your whole life trying. It would only be a waste of time if you were to go to the peak, so it'd be best to forget about it."

Ling-er fell silent and her head drooped, crestfallen. A long while passed before she bit her lip and said in a small voice, "Thank you for the advice."

"Welcome."

She left quietly. Watching her back, Chu Wanning felt a little mixed. The common folk of the lower cultivation realm hoped even more fervently than those of the upper cultivation realm to be able to join a cultivation sect. Because to the people of the upper cultivation realm, cultivation was just a means of bringing honor to one's ancestors and making a name for oneself.

But to people of the lower cultivation realm, it was sometimes a means of survival.

Leaning against the pile of grain, Chu Wanning took another sip of the tea. The weather really was getting colder; the tea had gone cold in the few short moments he didn't drink it. He gulped down the rest and closed his eyes, thinking to rest for a bit, but with how late he had slept last night, together with all that physical labor this morning, he ended up sleeping through most of the day.

When he woke up again, the sky was already a deep red color, the crows were cawing at the branches, and all that was left between the paddy fields were stems of rice, neatly arranged, and scattered pieces of grain.

Chu Wanning's eyes snapped wide open in startlement.

To think that he had slept all the way to sundown, leaning against the pile of grain like this. The farmers probably hadn't had the guts to wake him up due to his status—not only did they just let him sleep the day away, someone had even covered him with a piece of clothing so that he wouldn't catch cold.

"……"

The clothing…

Chu Wanning was about to sit up when he smelled a familiar scent. Breaking out of his daze, he looked down at the clothing covering him. The fabric was coarse, but it was very clean, with the refreshing scent of the soap beans used for laundering still clinging to its seams.

It was Mo Ran's clothing.

Upon realizing thus, Chu Wanning stopped in the middle of getting up and lay back down for some unknown reason, the muscles in his back relaxing as he hid half his face under the clothing, leaving only a pair of bright eyes above, slightly narrowed, holding some kind of indescribable and indecipherable emotion within.

He really must have lost his mind.

Eyes narrowed, he looked for that person in the paddy fields. It didn't take long—after all, Mo Ran had grown so handsomely tall that he stood out easily wherever he went.

He was currently helping the villagers load the cut grains onto the ox cart, and Chu Wanning could only see his back from here. He was probably hot from having worked all day, and so had stripped out of his outer robe and shirt like the other villagers, leaving his muscular, honey-toned back in full view.

In the burning heat of the setting sun, sweat slid slowly down the lines of his broad back with every flex of those muscles, trickled to the dimples of his back, snaked beneath the toned line of his waist…

He was like red-hot iron, like the coal in the furnace, taking every tender sentiment and turning it into burning carnal desire. Watching him from a distance, Chu Wanning gradually stopped seeing everything else around him, leaving only that person's gorgeous body, muscles flexing and sleek like a panther's, and the side of his face whenever he turned to chat with the village chief, with a soft dimple and a kind gaze, full of handsome charm.

As if sensing the eyes on his back, Mo Ran turned to look over his shoulder. Chu Wanning hurriedly closed his eyes and pretended to be asleep.

But his heart beat so fast it sounded like a rainstorm, the blood racing through his veins a low rumble in his ears.

A long moment passed before he sneakily cracked open one eyelid and peeked out from under his eyelashes. Mo Ran had already turned back around, and Ling-er was walking up to him with a bashful gaze and holding out a handkerchief to him.

“Xianjun, here, wipe your sweat.”

Hearing that, Mo Ran, whose arms were full with a pile of rice straws that he was moving onto the cart, smiled and said, “Later, I’m busy right now.”

Ling-er seemed very happy to watch on from the side, reaching out now and again to help straighten things from falling. A bit surprised by her eagerness to help, Mo Ran said, “Thank you.”

She grew even more delighted, standing there next to this tall, well-built man who was practically radiating masculine allure. Listening to his breathing and looking at his muscular shoulders, she couldn’t help the blush that spread across her face, and for a moment forgot all about things like distance and propriety between men and women, clutching her handkerchief and saying in a soft voice, “Xianjun, it’s gonna drip into your eyes if you don’t wipe your sweat~”

Mo Ran bustled busily. “I don’t have any hands right now.”

“Then I can wipe it for you…” She felt a chill at her back before she’d even finished speaking.

Chu Wanning had come over to stand behind them without either of them noticing, still wearing Mo Ran’s thick black outer robe draped over his shoulders, looking a little listless and irritable, like he had just woken up. He said, “Mo Ran.”

“Yes?” The person who’d been so busy that he’d absolutely no time just now immediately put down the grain in his arms, and rubbed the tip of his nose as he turned around, beaming brightly the moment he saw Chu Wanning. “Shizun, you’re awake.”

Chu Wanning looked him up and down. “Aren’t you cold?”

Mo Ran smiled and said, “I’m kind of hot, actually.”

Right when he said that, the droplet of sweat that had been gathering at his dark brow dripped down and into his eye, and he squeezed it shut with an “aiyah” while the other eye stayed stubbornly open to gaze at Chu Wanning. Of course he couldn’t just ask a lady for her handkerchief, so he said pleadingly toward Chu Wanning instead, “Shizun, my eye…”

“My handkerchief’s hanging out to dry right now.”

“……”

Ling-er hurriedly offered, “You can use mine——”

Paying her no heed, Chu Wanning walked up, expression impassive even as he leaned forward and tipped his head back slightly to look up, holding the cuff of his snowy white sleeve closed as he lifted his arm and used his sleeve to carefully wipe the sweat from Mo Ran’s eye.

Author’s Notes:

Mini-theatre “What is the meaning of love”

Shizun: ...I don’t know.

Xue Meng: Praise me, praise me as hard as you can, that’s love.

Shi Mei: sigh It’s love if you don’t think that I’m a black-hearted lotus.

Mei Hanxue: It’s love if you can help me get the role of the lead male.

Nangong Si: I’m only accepting Naobaijin as gifts#, loving my dog is loving me.

Ye Wangxi: ...Someone who likes me more than they like dogs?

Dog 1.0: (biting his pencil) ... sigh Who has the answers? Lend them to this venerable one so he can copy them.

Dog 2.0: I feel that I am about to find the answer to this question very soon.

Dog 0.5: ....(annoyed) What kind of question is this? -- “What is the meaning of ‘ shou ’?” I don’t understand, what is this shit, take it away, get lost get lost get lost.

Liu-Gonggong: (whispering) Your Majesty, this is read ‘love’, not ‘ shou ’#

Ch. 139 Shizun, Sleep Well

Mo Ran froze in an instant.

The fragrance of the haitang blossoms was familiar to him. Although Chu Wanning did not have much of an expression on his face, the cuffs that landed on his eyelids were very gentle.

He wiped it very carefully. The most important thing was that the man in white was standing so close to him, he could even see the fine lines on his lips. He just needed to lower his head to kiss them.

Hold the soft, tender stamen between your lips and teeth.

“You won, but you didn’t wake me up.”

Chu Wanning finished wiping the sweat off his forehead and suddenly said this.

“I didn’t win. The one who won was Shizun.”

“You didn’t cut any rice this afternoon?”

“No, I don’t have much left. I went to the market and spent some money to buy items for winter. I went from house to house and took some time off. That’s why Shizun cut more than me.”

Chu Wanning hummed in a light and satisfied voice.

After a while he asked, “What did you buy at the market? A mattress?”

Before Mo Ran could speak, Ling’er, who was standing beside him, interrupted with a smile, “The Immortal has bought a lot of things, but he has exhausted himself to the point of killing that camel horse."

"Not much. Just charcoal. I bought some meat and some candy."

"More than that." Ling'er said. "The immortal also bought a mattress for everyone, and the old lady who played cotton balls followed him directly into the village. They loaded it up to the brim."

Chu Wanning was surprised, "Where did you get so much money from?"

"Usually saved. Actually, those mattresses are not expensive, they are much cheaper than the ones in the cultivation world."

"What about the meat?"

"I bought it casually. I told the village chief to bring it back to cook tomorrow for everyone to eat."

Chu Wanning's expression did not change as he asked, "What about the sugar?"

Ling'er clapped her hands and smiled. "Of course, we should buy it for the children at the head of the village. Immortal Mo has been giving them the malt candy and osmanthus cakes the moment we got back. Many of the girls in our village have never eaten these sweets before, so we can't say how happy they are."

She paused, then said with a hint of sweetness, "I got one too."

This girl was one of those who would get into trouble, and she was naturally familiar with him. Previously, she had interrupted him a few times, but Chu Wanning didn't mind.

“Is it delicious?”

Ling’er said without holding back, “It’s very delicious. It’s so sweet.”

Chu Wanning seemed to sneer, “Then eat more.” With that, he flicked his sleeves and left. Mo Ran had made him unhappy again. Just as he was about to give chase, he was met with a burst of darkness. Chu Wanning threw the robe he was wearing over his face, and Mo Ran caught it, pulling it down to look at him anxiously.

“Shizun?”

“Naked as hell! Even if you weren’t cold, I would still feel cold!” Chu Wanning snapped, “Put it on!”

“…”

Although Mo Ran was very hot, he did not say a word since Chu Wanning had already said so. He immediately put on the clothes, sweat sticking to the fabric and feeling a little uncomfortable. He lifted his head and looked at him blankly.

Chu Wanning frowned and said, “Pull down your sleeves!” Who was he showing it to! “No rules!”

“…” Mo Ran immediately straightened his clothes. He folded his collar very high and it was very tight. There was not even half an inch of skin and flesh exposed, but there was a kind of restrained beauty to it. When Chu Wanning saw this, he became even more furious. He cursed under his breath and left, leaving Mo Ran standing there like a silly dog.

The couple and Ling’er, who were watching from the side, were completely confused. Ling’er said with concern, “Immortal… So fierce… I’ve never seen anyone with such a weird temper…” She whispered, somewhat piteously, even ingratiatingly.

“Your Shizun really doesn’t treat you well. Only with your gentle nature can you endure –”

She muttered as she turned her head back, but suddenly met Mo Ran’s gaze. Half of her words were instantly cut off from her lips. This was because she saw that Immortal Mo, who had always been smiling and amiable, suddenly had a sullen look on his face.

She stopped talking abruptly, but Mo Ran turned his face away. The light changed, and the color of his eyes was no longer easily discernible. Ling’er’s heart was pounding. She didn’t know if it was her imagination, or the mountain of a man in front of her, but another face appeared.

Mo Ran said in a muffled voice, “I’m sorry, you guys stay busy. I’m worried about him. I’ll go take a look.” As he spoke, he took a big step away.

Chu Wanning stood by the riverbank, the sky was full of reeds and flowers, the setting sun was half soaked in the sparkling water, and the river seemed to be burning with fire.

Mo Ran panicked and ran away. When he stopped behind Chu Wanning, he panted, “Shizun.”

“…”

“What did I do wrong?”

“Nothing.”

“Then why are you unhappy?”

“I’m happy.”

Mo Ran was stunned. “What?”

Chu Wanning turned around and said gloomily, “I’m not happy.”

Mo Ran: “…”

He didn’t intend to talk with Chu Wanning like a tongue twister. He took a closer look at his face and suddenly thought of something. He couldn’t help but laugh, “I know why Shizun is unhappy.”

Chu Wanning’s hands were tightly clenched in his sleeves, his shoulders were slightly moved, but his face was still calm. “I said that I’m not…”

On the other hand, Mo Ran walked over and stood under a tree with his hands behind his back. The old banyan tree by the side of the river had some thick meridians that were exposed on the ground.

He was standing on a protruding vein, appearing even taller.

Chu Wanning was alarmed, but at the same time, he felt displeased and said, “Get down here.”

“Oh.”

Mo Ran jumped lightly and the tip of his foot left the boil in the tree, landing in front of Chu Wanning. This tree was made of only a few thick roots, so Mo Ran could only stand very close to him in order to avoid the high ground.

He lowered his head, and his breath could almost touch the lashes of Chu Wanning. Chu Wanning then said with a dark face, “You go up.”

“…Go up and come down. Is Shizun joking with me?”

Chu Wanning also knew that he was making a ruckus in a fit of rage. Once he was exposed, he simply kept silent and said nothing gloomily.

Mo Ran stretched out his hand from behind his back. A handful of candy appeared out of nowhere. It was wrapped in rice paper and held in the palm of his hand in all sorts of colors, forming a sweet little mountain.

“Don’t be angry, I left it for you.”

“…” Chu Wanning was angered to the point that he wanted to vomit blood. He raised his eyebrows and shouted, “Mo Weiyu!”

“Here!” Mo Ran hurriedly stood up straight.

“Who wants to eat sugar? Do you think I’m a three-year-old kid? Or do you think I’m a girl? I don’t even— mmph?!”

A candy was pressed to his lips and placed in his mouth.

Chu Wanning was stunned.

In a split-second, his ears turned red and he didn’t say anything. His face also turned red. It was unknown if it was because of shame or anger, but his phoenix eyes widened as he stared at the smiling man in front of him in both surprise and anger.

“It’s made of cow’s milk. You like it the most.”

Chu Wanning was suddenly at a loss for words. He felt powerless, like a cat whose claws had been cut off. The threat of baring its fangs and brandishing its claws became completely useless.

He had a candy with the smell of cow's milk. Because he had just left in a hurry, a small amount of hair on his forehead had been blown up by the wind, causing it to quiver softly like a blade of grass. When Mo Ran saw this, he felt very itchy in his heart. He wanted to reach out and touch that strand of hair.

He was a man who liked to do things.

As he thought of this, he stretched out his hand.

"…" Chu Wanning was speechless.

Mo Ran laughed, "I bought some sweets and snacks for everyone in the village, but I bought the most delicious ones for Shizun. I hid them in my sleeves. The pastries are in your room, so when you go back in the evening and stealthily eat them, don't let those little fellows see it. It's a Lotus Blossom Sesame, and it's very beautiful.

Chu Wanning did not say anything. After a long time, he used the tip of his tongue to roll up the melted milk candy. He raised his eyes and looked at the man in front of him in the reeds beneath the old banyan tree.

After a long while, he threw out two words without any warning, "Sweet osmanthus root."

Mo Ran smiled. "Bought it."

"Crab powder and lion's head."

"I bought it too."

"…"

Chu Wanning tilted his head. He felt that he had lost a lot of his dignity today. He wanted to pick up his dignity from the dust, so he straightened his posture and raised his chin, “Too bad I missed Pear Blossom Bai.”

He probably thought that the way he lifted his chin was very serious and very oppressive.

However, that was in the past, when Mo Ran was only a teenager.

Chu Wanning didn’t know that if he continued to do so, it would only show Mo Ran the soft lines of his lower jaw, the Adam’s apple that was exposed after raising his chin, and his neck that was as white as porcelain.

He was like a cat with a high opinion of itself, putting its weakest spot under the lips of a wolfhound, but he was unaware of his pride. He thought that he had intimidated the wolf, but he did not know that the wolf just wanted to suck his throat into its mouth, lick, kiss, and swallow it.

Idiot.

It took Mo Ran a lot of willpower to move his gaze away from Chu Wanning’s chin. When he looked at the person in front of him, his eyes turned dark and his voice was low.

He forced a smile and said, “Yes.”

Chu Wanning did not react and frowned, “What?”

“Pear Blossom Wine.”

Mo Ran heaved a sigh of relief, suppressing the desire in his heart as he said hoarsely.

“Pear blossoms wine, there is some too.”

Chu Wanning: “…”

“Walking on the road, I thought Shizun might want to drink it. Fortunately, I bought it.”

Chu Wanning stared at the disciple in front of him who was trying his best to curry favor with him. Suddenly, he was speechless. He suddenly felt that his actions of making things difficult were too boring, and so he pretended to be cold.

Finally, he slowly relaxed his tense body and leaned against the old Banyan tree with his back against it. He sized up Mo Ran and then said, “Mo Ran.”

“Yes.”

“You’ve changed a lot.”

After he finished speaking, for some reason, he felt a trace of unease in the depths of Mo Ran’s eyes. He then said with his long and thick eyelashes fluttering, “Then does Shizun like it?”

“…” Chu Wanning said, “I don’t dislike it.”

Then, as if he suddenly remembered something, he stood up straight and lifted his finger. He hesitated in midair for a moment before landing it on Mo Ran’s waist.

Mo Ran trembled violently. He did not know what was going on, but he still looked at Chu Wanning uneasily.

“I read in the book that you fought with the emperor of the Yellow River. The wound is here, right?”

“… Right.”

Chu Wanning let out an almost imperceptible sigh and patted Mo Ran’s shoulder, “You’re doing very well now. You can be a Mo-zongshi now.”

“This disciple wouldn’t dare.”

Chu Wanning smiled, his finger poked between Mo Ran’s eyebrows, then he lowered his head, “That’s true. All day long, you have been running around in disarray. Indeed, you don’t look like a Shizun. Let’s go. The sun has set. Let’s go back and rest early. What are we going to do tomorrow?”

Mo Ran thought about it and said, “I think he said steaming the rice and wanted to make a New Year’s cake.”

Chu Wanning nodded and suddenly said, “Don’t take off your clothes.”

Mo Ran blushed. “Yes.”

“Since it’s hot, let’s rest.”

“Alright.”

Chu Wanning thought about it for a while and said, “Remember to bring a handkerchief with you. Don’t always hang out with an unmarried lady. Do you have a handkerchief?”

“… No.” Mo Ran felt embarrassed.

“… Then what do you usually use to wipe your face?…”

“…Sleeves.” Mo Ran felt even more embarrassed for his roughness.

Chu Wanning was speechless. After a while, he said, “I’ll help you make a handkerchief then.”

Mo Ran’s eyes immediately lit up. “For me?”

“Yes.”

Mo Ran was overjoyed. “That’s great! When is Shizun going to make it?”

Chu Wanning frowned, “…We’ll have to wait until we’re done with this.”

“Then I… I also want one that has haitang blossoms, is that possible?”

“… I’ll try my best.”

The promise made Mo Ran elated all night. He was immersed in the joy of exchanging a handful of sweets from handkerchief. He covered himself with a newly changed quilt and rolled around happily, unable to sleep.

For the past five years, he had been in the throes of intoxication.

This was the first time he was unable to sleep due to joy.

His heart was beating fast and he could not calm down for a long time. Finally, he sat up in his bed and looked at the window in Chu Wanning’s room. He was lying on his stomach on the edge of the bed. Through the gap that was slightly opened up, his nose revealed the sweetness of the night in the countryside. In front of him was a small courtyard.

Chu Wanning was still awake.

What was he doing?

Was he trying to figure out how to cut a handkerchief, or was he eating the Lotus Blossom Sesame that he had brought with him?

Mo Ran looked at the warm yellow light coming from the opposite window for a long time. When the lights went out and Chu Wanning fell asleep, he reluctantly whispered:

“Shizun, sweet dreams.”

There was another sentence that was buried deep in his heart. Even if no one heard it, he wouldn’t dare to say it out loud.

Chu Wanning.

Good dream.

Ch. 140 Shizun, Turn Over

That night, Chu Wanning had a dream, but unfortunately it was not a good dream.

In his dream, he had returned to the year of the Heavenly Rift in Butterfly Town, only the person person who repaired the Rift with him was Shi Mei.

It was snowing heavily in the leaden sky. Shi Mei could not hold on any longer, and his heart was pierced by a ghost. He fell from the coiling dragon pillar into the endless snow. Mo Ran ran over and carried the bleeding Shi Mei. He knelt at his feet and begged him to help him.

Save his disciple.

He wanted to save him as well, but under the effects of the Twin Seals, his wounds were as severe as Shi Mei's.

His face was pale and he did not say a word. He was afraid that if he spoke, he would choke out blood and the ghosts around him would rush over and tear them to shreds.

"Shizun… Please… I beg you…"

Mo Ran was crying and kowtowing to him.

Chu Wanning closed his eyes and fled in the end…

Shi Mei died.

Mo Ran never forgave him again.

He dreamt of the Naihe Bridge at the Sisheng Peak. It was during the cold spring, when the rain fell, and the tender sprouts of the spring trees were moistened by the rain. The bluestone path beneath his feet seemed endless. He walked alone with an umbrella.

Suddenly, he saw another person walking over from the other side of the bridge. He was dressed in black and did not hold an umbrella. He was holding a stack of books wrapped in a piece of parchment and was walking towards him. Chu Wanning slowed down his pace.

The man obviously saw him too, but his pace did not slow. He only lifted his wet eyelashes and glanced at him without feeling.

Chu Wanning wanted to call out to him, to say: Mo Ran…

Mo Ran did not give him any chance to speak. He carried his book and walked the far left side of the Naihe Bridge. Another inch and he would be in the river — just to stay away from Shizun, who was walking on the right, just a little further.

They were halfway across the bridge.

A person who used to hold umbrellas, walking in the rain, a person who was not used to holding umbrellas, also walking in the rain.

Then they passed each other.

The head of the person in the rain walked away, and the person holding the umbrella stopped and stood in place.

The rain pattered on the umbrella. Chu Wanning stood there for a long time, his legs numb from the rain. It was as if the cold moisture in his body had seeped into his bones.

He suddenly felt very tired and couldn't walk anymore.

Dreamscape darkened.

It was heavy and cold.

It was as cold as rain, as heavy as legs that could no longer move.

In his sleep, Chu Wanning turned his body over, shrinking down to a small size. Something trickled down from the corner of his eye and moistened the pillow. He vaguely knew that this was only a dream, but why was it so real? The truth was so clear that he could feel the hatred, disappointment, and derisiveness of Mo Ran.

However… Is that all?

Is this the end?

He was unwilling. It was as if his unwillingness caused the surrounding light to shine again.

It was still a dream. It had been many months since Shi Mei's death.

Mo Ran's personality became more and more gloomy as he talked less and less. However, he still came to all the cultivation classes, but he just listened to them and didn't say anything to Chu Wanning.

Chu Wanning did not explain why he did not save Shi Mei. He had seen Mo Ran's attitude, and he knew it was useless to say anything about it now that things had come to this.

Today's cultivation class, Mo Ran followed the instructions and stood at the top of a pine tree to train his spirit energy.

However, for some reason, he suddenly lost his stamina and fell straight down. Chu Wanning didn't have time to think, he quickly rushed over to help him, but in a hurry he had not time to cast spells, the two of them heavily fell from the treetops and landed on the ground.

Fortunately, the soil was soft and there was a thick layer of pine needles on the ground. Neither of them were injured from the fall, but Chu Wanning's wrist was cut by a sharp branch. There was a hideous cut on it, and blood flowed out.

Mo Ran looked at his wound, then for the first time in months, he raised his eyes and looked at Chu Wanning's face.

Finally he said, "Shizun, you're bleeding."

His tone was somewhat numb, but what he said was a sentence that eased the tension.

"I have some ointment and bandages in my pocket, let's deal with them."

They sat in the dense coniferous forest. The air was filled with the fragrance of pine and cypress. Chu Wanning did not say anything. He looked at Mo Ran lowering his head and silently bandaged himself one after another.

The young man's eyelashes trembled, but Chu Wanning could not see the expression on his face. For a moment, he wanted to gather enough courage and ask:

Mo Ran, do you really hate me that much?

But at that time, the wind was too slow, the sun was too warm, and there were birds chirping and insects chirping in the leaves. His injured hand was quietly held by Mo Ran, and he was taking care of the bandages.

In the end, he did not ask about it, nor did he try to break this painting.

He suddenly felt that the answer wasn't that important. What was important was that in this dream, after Shi Mei had died, his blood and wounds could be exchanged for an inch of gentleness from Mo Ran.

The next day, when Chu Wanning woke up, he was still in a trance for a moment.

As he lay on the bed, he could even feel the pain in his arms, as if they were warm. After a while, he rubbed his face tiredly and found it funny.

What kind of nonsense was he dreaming about?

People always say your thoughts in the day are dreams at night. Could it be that when you see the handsome appearance of Shi Mei, you become depressed? To think that you could dream about Shi Mei dying…

How ridiculous.

He got dressed and got out of bed. After washing his face and rinsing his mouth, he quickly forgot about last night's dream.

Today, the village chief and the others were going to make a New Year's cake.

The New Year's cake is a must on New Year's Eve in order to win the prize. The japonica rice noodles and the glutinous rice noodles were grind on the night before, and then the women and old people had to heat the stove and cook the powder. This process took quite a bit of effort, but it didn't require the hands of the young and strong men, so it didn't matter if Chu

Wanning got up a bit later and slowly walked to the end of the line. (TL: Chinese rice noodle.)

When he arrived, he saw a big pot on the large sunning ground. The half-a-man tall wooden bucket was steaming hot and was constantly emitting steam. The Village Head's wife was standing on a short stool, occasionally filling the pot with rice powder. A few children were running and playing around the stove. From time to time, they would take out a string of roasted peanuts and a corn cob from the fire pit.

What surprised Chu Wanning was that Mo Ran was working very early, helping the village chief's wife to watch the fire. A child ran happily, fell to the ground, choked and cried loudly.

"How did you fall?" Mo Ran helped her up, dusting off the mud on her body and said, "Is there any injury?"

"Hand—" The little girl wailed as she raised her dark hands for Mo Ran to see.

Mo Ran picked her up, took her to the well and washed her hands with a bucket of clear water. The distance between them was too far, so Chu Wanning didn't hear what he said to the child, but the little girl was sobbing and crying. After a while, she burst into laughter, looked up at Mo Ran with a runny face, and began to talk to Mo Ran chirping.

"…"

Chu Wanning stood quietly at the corner watching him, watching him coax people, watching him carry the child back to the fire, watching him take the child back to the pond, watching him pull out a sweet potato from the fire, peel it carefully and hand it to the little girl.

He just watched.

It was as if he had seen the five years that Mo Weiyu had gone through.

“Ah, Shizun is here?”

“Yes.” Only after a long while did Chu Wanning walk to Mo Ran’s side and sit down. He looked at the flames dancing under the boiler for a moment and said, “What’s in it?”

“Peanut, sweet potato, corn. Here you are, I’ll roast a candy for you.”

“… Sweets can even be roasted?”

“Shizun can’t roast it. It’ll burn immediately.” Mo Ran laughed, “I think it would be better if I do it.”

As he said this, he took out another malt candy from his pocket and went outside to the brown paper. He took the poker and turned it over in the oven, then he immediately put it away and took out the candy, “Hiss, it’s a little hot.” He blew on it before passing it to him.

“Taste it.”

“…” Chu Wanning was not used to being fed by others, so he reached out for a piece of candy. The milky-white candy was a little soft and when he chewed it, the fragrance of milk permeated the air and he said, “Not bad. Roast one more.”

Mo Ran was happy and another one was roasted. Chu Wanning took it in his hands and ate it himself.

“Give me another one.”

“…”

Mo Ran had roasted eight of them in a row. When it reached the ninth one, some kids ran over to ask Mo Ran for sweet potatoes. Since Mo Ran couldn’t get his hands on them, he had to let Chu Wanning take them.

Chu Wanning picked up the other poker and picked the biggest one. Mo Ran looked at it and said, “Put this back and take the small one next to you.”

“It tastes great.”

“Unripe.” Mo Ran laughed.

Chu Wanning was unconvinced, “How do you know?”

“Believe me, I often roast food in the wild. Take the little one and give it to him, the little one is sweet.”

The child didn’t know what kind of outstanding person Chu Wanning was in the cultivation world, but seeing that he was willing to pick out sweet potatoes for him, he leaned over and whispered to him, “Gege, I want to eat that big one.”

“Tell the other big brother. He didn’t let you eat it, he said it wasn’t cooked.”

The child then went to find Mo Ran. “Mo Ran Gege, I want to eat that big one.”

“If you want to eat something big, wait a little longer,” Mo Ran said.

“How long will it take?”

“From one to a hundred.”

“But I can only count from one to ten…” The child felt wronged.

Mo Ran laughed. “Then you will only eat the small ones.”

The little guy had no choice but to sigh and accept the injustice fate had done to him. He said with a listless face, “Alright, then this little one will be fine.”

Chu Wanning peeled the sweet potato for him. When it was almost done, the burnt candy was roasted until it was soft. If he didn’t eat it now, it would melt completely. He quickly took it off and passed it to Chu Wanning, “Shizun, come here, open your mouth.”

He still had sweet potatoes in his hand, so he didn’t think too much and just opened his mouth naturally. It wasn’t until Mo Ran fed him the warm milk sugar and rubbed the corner of his mouth with his rough fingers that he realized he had eaten a candy that his disciple had personally fed him, causing his ears to turn red.

“More?”

Chu Wanning coughed lightly. Fortunately, the light from the fire was already warm, reflecting off his face, but it was hard to see the change in his expression. He said, “No need.”

Mo Ran smiled and said, “Just to feed you. There’s only one last cow’s milk left. If you eat more, there won’t be any more left.”

He was lazy to use words because he was relaxed and did not think twice about it.

Thus, he naturally said the word “feed”. However, a disciple would naturally not dare to speak to his Shizun like that. These two words were filled with pampering and forcefulness, such as the Shizun feeding the children, the emperor feeding the wives and concubines, and even becoming the leader of the bed. The conquerors above used their scalding hot flesh to feed the woman who was groaning beneath them.

Chu Wanning was immersed in the rough words, unable to recover for a long time.

After the rice was steamed, it was time to set up a stall. It was a manual labor. All the strong men in the village were swinging their hammers to make the cake. The village chief gave Mo Ran a wooden hammer wrapped in gauze and wanted to pass it to Chu Wanning, but was stopped by Mo Ran.

Mo Ran smiled and said, “Village Head, my Shizun has never done this before. He can’t do it.”

“…” Chu Wanning was silent on the side.

He was very unreconciled, and even a bit angry, because from the moment he came out of the mountain until now, there had never been a person who could relate him to the word “not doing well”.

In the mouths of others, all he could hear was begging, begging, and “Immortal, how about you do me a favor?”

This was the first time someone blocked his way and said, “He won’t, he can’t do it well.”

Chu Wanning was furious, he wanted to shake his sleeves and shout, “You are the one who is not good at this!”

But he restrained himself.

Because what Mo Ran said was the truth, he really couldn’t do it well.

Finally, the Village Chief arranged for them to sit in front of a stone block. Inside the stone block, there was a steaming bowl of rice flour.

Mo Ran said, “Shizun, I’ll make a cake later. Remember to turn the rice cake over for me every three tries. Be careful not to get burned, and don’t be in too much of a hurry, don’t get smashed by me.”

“… If you could hit me with a hammer, then you quit cultivation, go home and farm.”

Mo Ran laughed. “I only meant it’s better to be safe than sorry.”

Chu Wanning was too lazy to waste words with him, the two on the side had already started swinging. He didn’t want to be too far behind, so he stood beside the stone block and said, “Come.”

In the first hit, he hit the soft and hot rice noodles, causing the rice noodles to sink in and wrap around the hammer. He hit it three more times, raised his bright eyes, and said to Chu Wanning, “Shizun, turn over.”

Chu Wanning flipped the rice ball over, and Mo Ran dropped the hammer.

After several rounds of working together, they had mastered the rhythm of Mo Ran. With the third wave of Mo Ran, Chu Wanning neatly turned the ball over. When he withdrew his hand, Mo Ran launched a new attack. The beating of the cake seemed simple, but to grasp it well, one had to be strong and energetic, turning it over and over again so many times that the rice noodles became thoroughly soft and sticky before it could be considered complete.

After working for a while, the farmers were tired, they started shouting, “One, two, three — one, two, three —” The rhythm of the falling hammer was what they were shouting, and as if it was interesting for them to do so, they hit the rice ball until it was half sticky, the people beside them were already panting, but Mo Ran didn’t feel anything, so he smiled and said to Chu Wanning, “Come again.”

Chu Wanning glanced at him. The young man’s forehead was covered in sweat, shining like honey under the sun. His lips were slightly parted, unlike the usual sigh of exhaustion, but his breathing was somewhat heavy and his chest was heaving.

Seeing Chu Wanning looking at him, he was stunned for a moment. He wiped his face with his sleeve and smiled: “What’s wrong? Is there rice on my face?”

“Nope.”

“That is…”

Chu Wanning watching Mo Ran’s forehead, sweating profusely from the heat, but he could not bear to watch him fold the lapels of his shirt to his Adam’s apple. He asked, “Are you hot?”

Yesterday, he had asked Mo Ran if he was “cold”, and today, he asked if he was “hot”. This confused Mo Ran very much; it was obvious that the two days of temperature was not too far off.

“If it’s hot, just take it off.”

“If Shizun doesn’t like it, I won’t take it off.”

“…You’re sweating all over, and it’s even more annoying.”

Since he said so, Mo Ran started to feel uncomfortable, so he took off the outer robe and the upper garment and threw them onto the graphite. Chu Wanning watched coldly, but his heart was gradually getting hotter, he watched as Mo Ran revealed his broad shoulders, firm arms, and a layer of hot air that could be felt on his face after the inner garment was taken off. He was like a mermaid out of water, turning around and smiling at Chu Wanning, so handsome that it made one’s heart race.

“Two cultivators, would you like some water?” The Village Head’s wife, carrying a cup of tea, asked about them one by one.

Mo Ran returned to the stone block and once again picked up the wooden hammer. He smiled and said, “No need, I’m not thirsty yet.”

A hand reached over and picked up a teacup from the tray.

Under their astonished gazes, Chu Wanning took a whole cup of tea and passed it to the Village Head’s wife, “Please have another cup.”

“… Shizun, are you very thirsty?”

Unknowingly, these words had stabbed him. Chu Wanning abruptly raised his head, his eyes burning with caution, “Thirsty?… No, I’m not thirsty.”

He gulped down another glass of water.

Mo Ran looked at him and couldn’t help but be puzzled. When had his Shizun’s self-esteem become so serious that he was even ashamed of his thirst?

Ch. 141 Shizun, Don't Strip!!!!

After drinking the water, the two began to get busy again. However, once Mo Ran swung the hammer, Chu Wanning knew that things were not looking good.

The huge movement made the young man's body even more tense and fierce. The golden sunlight poured down on him like a waterfall, flowing down those sexy muscles. When he raised his arm, his shoulders were stretched wide open.

His chest was as smooth and firm as a piece of scorching hot rock, containing astonishing heat and strength.

The wooden hammer ruthlessly smashed into the stone block. It was tightly sucked up by the soft and wet rice cake. In the end, it became even more viscous…

He used so much strength that Chu Wanning felt that if he was unlucky enough to get hit by it, he would be smashed into smithereens.

Crushed to bits. His chest rose and fell together with his heart. His pitch-black eyebrows were covered with sweat, and his Adam's apple was moving up and down. The muscles on his upper arm relaxed as he watched his movements.

Suddenly, he couldn't help but think back to that dream he had over and over again.

In his dreams, he would be invaded, rubbed, humiliated, and turned into mud on Mo Ran's bed like a rice cake in a stone mortar… He was lost in thought until Mo Ran called out to him again.

“Shizun.”

Or maybe he shouted a few times.

“Shizun, Shizun?”

He regained his composure but his heart was beating wildly. Glimmers danced in his eyes. His throat moved and his eyes lost focus. “Hm?”

Mo Ran’s cool eyes looked down at him. Because of his body heat, he appeared to be extremely hot. He said, “Shizun, come. Turn over.”

“…”

He suddenly felt a little dizzy, and a scarlet shadow seemed to flash before his eyes. He saw two people rolling in the middle of a red bed embroidered with a golden phoenix soaring dragon, and a muscular man pressing down on the other man. The man below tightened his toes, and his calve muscles were spasming.

“Shizun, turn over…”

He seemed to hear the man’s hot breath, as if it were just behind his ears.

“Let me see your face.”

Chu Wanning was shocked by the inexplicable flash of light. He abruptly closed his eyes and shook his head – what was going on? Illusion? Or was it a memory that was too detailed in that dream?

He felt his heart tremble, and his blood was boiling, yet cold sweat was dripping down his face.

Mo Ran sensed that something was amiss, he put down the wooden hammer and walked over to his side, “Shizun, what’s wrong? Is there something wrong with it?”

“Nope.” His voice made Chu Wanning feel as if he was being bitten by an ant. Chu Wanning abruptly pushed him away, raising his embarrassed and angry phoenix eyes which were slightly red. He panted heavily, hating himself, “The sun is just too bright, I’m seeing things. Don’t stand so close to me, you’re all sweaty.”

Mo Ran lowered his head and looked. As expected, he felt uneasy. He knew Chu Wanning loved cleanliness, so he immediately stood to the side. With a concerned gaze, he continued to chase after the man, unwilling to move away for even a moment.

After that, Chu Wanning remained silent. By the time the steamed cake was done and everyone was seated in a circle, he was no longer around them.

“Oh, ask Chu Wanning. He said that he has a headache and went back to his room to rest.” The village chief said, “When he left, his cheeks were a little red, could it be that he had a fever?”

Upon hearing this, Mo Ran was extremely anxious. He stopped helping to store the New Year’s cake and rushed back to the small courtyard where the two were staying.

He pushed open the door, but no one was on the bed. He was even more worried when he heard the sound of water coming from the kitchen. He hurriedly lifted the curtain and rushed in recklessly.

Then, he saw Chu Wanning with his clothes off, holding a bucket full of water, standing barefoot on the brick-red floor while taking a shower.

By the end of October, the frost had passed.

Chu Wanning… Washing the fuck out with cold water?!

Mo Ran was shocked, his face alternating between green and white, then red. He glared at his Shizun who was completely naked and only felt that other than the rumbling sounds of blood flowing like the surging of money, he could not hear anything else.

What did he see…

Since his rebirth, this was the first time he saw Chu Wanning's body in full detail. There was no mist, no concealment, nothing but this familiar figure, this body that had shattered the defense he had built and his tight memory lock. He felt as if all the blood in his body was burning like lava, wanting to break free from the flesh and skin.

Everything was exactly the same as what he was familiar with, not changing in the slightest.

He suddenly found himself unable to breathe.

He saw Chu Wanning's shoulder, with its perfect curve and force, like a bow that had been pulled to seventy percent full, ready to strike. He saw Chu Wanning's shoulder blades moving under his skin that was as thin as ice.

Then, he followed the stream of water. Yes, he followed it, and the water washed his gaze down to the ground. He saw Chu Wanning's slim waist, and behind his were two shallow grooves filled with wine, trying to kill those who desired him.

Further down, he saw a pair of buttocks, straight and firm, like the full fruit of an autumn honey, and he knew how they would feel when he touched it. When he touched them, they would tremble with pleasure, their souls would seem to break apart, and from then on, they would be kneaded together with the person beneath them.

“Immortal Mo!” Suddenly, someone called out to him. “Immortal Mo, are you there?”

Mo Ran was shocked and turned around, but before he could do so, the curtain on the door was lifted. Ling’er leaned in, and said as she walked, “Why did you run away in such a hurry? My aunt told me to call you to eat the sweet rice cake, you —”

When she saw Chu Wanning taking a bath, she went silent.

Chu Wanning: “…”

Ling’er: “…”

“AH!” The girl screamed as she covered her eyes in panic. Chu Wanning also had a very bad complexion, it was rare for him to run to get some clothes, but he didn’t expect to run back here to take a shower, and there would be two uninvited guests barging into his room.

He had always been casual, leaving his clothes at the door when he took them off. Was he supposed to walk naked through the kitchen and fish for his clothes under the eyes of a girl?

While he was overwhelmed with anxiety, Mo Ran walked straight towards him. He actually raised his hand to press against the wall, blocking Chu Wanning's entire body in his arms.

Mo Ran turned around and said to Ling'er, "Get out."

"Ah! Yes! Yes!" The girl, too, was stunned for a moment, then she stumbled out the door and ran away, frightened.

Chu Wanning: "…"

Mo Ran's face darkened. After confirming that she had really walked far away, he heaved a sigh of relief and turned around.

It was a cold expression on Chu Wanning's face.

Only then did he realize that his movements were similar to a dog protecting food. He bared his teeth and scared away the intruders, then turned around and whined as he licked the food that was difficult to come by.

His hands were still leaning on the wall. In order to cover Chu Wanning tightly, he stuck close enough to him that he could easily smell his scent. He couldn't help but freeze…

His head was very hot and heavy.

Smells are the easiest to evoke memories and desires, like the smell of meat and hunger, the smell of plum blossoms and winter snow, and so on.

Emotions were the same.

Mo Ran could only feel his spirit surging. The wall built with great difficulty seemed to be about to be overthrown. The smell of Chu Wanning's body was like a spark, falling into his dry chest, igniting his beastly nature to burn him into ashes.

Normally, when he got close to him, even if he was dressed neatly, he would still be tempted, not to mention that the person in front of him was not wearing a single piece of clothing at all…

He wished that he could grab hold of Chu Wanning's cold, beaded wrist, twist him over and press him against the wall, then tear off his own clothes, fiercely sticking to this person, lifting him up so that his back was pressed against his chest. Just like in his previous life, he went in brutally and ruthlessly, killed and reborn in the midst of his sweat and breath.

He really couldn't do it anymore… He really wanted him.

Mo Ran's breathing suddenly became heavy.

He did not say anything, and neither did Chu Wanning.

The two of them stood very close to the wall, almost touching each other, but Mo Ran's arm muscles were taut and his veins were popping out, trembling slightly and holding on.

Don't touch him, don't touch him.

To respect him, to love him.

I can't do something stupid like cheating on my Shizun and exterminating our ancestors again.

He repeated to himself, mechanically.

It was cold, but his forehead was starting to sweat.

I can't… I can't… Mo Ran, you can't. Don't let your thoughts run wild.

His Adam's apple rolled and he closed his eyes with a tremble. He closed his burning gaze under his eyelids, but his face was filled with confusion…

If it was the usual Chu Wanning, how could he not see the difference?

But at the moment, his condition was not much better than Mo Ran's, or worse.

He looked cold, but God only knew how much effort it had taken him to keep his balance.

Mo Ran's breathing was so hot and heavy that it had a strong male scent, almost as if it was going to burn him. He had not fought with Mo Ran since his rebirth, but he knew that if he fought hard enough and did not use any spells, he would only end up as a pile of bones in front of his arms.

He was unwilling to look at Mo Ran's eyes. He lowered his gaze a little, and his gaze fell upon Mo Ran's chest.

Although they were not stuck together, Mo Ran was so close to him that it was almost a straight line away, and he could clearly feel the male tension radiating from the hot chest, broad and blazing.

It was as if he could melt the coldest ice in the world and turn it into a weak spring tide.

"Shizun…"

The young man suddenly called out to him. He didn't know if it was his imagination, but he felt that the other party's voice was a little hoarse, filled with a moist desire and heat.

Mo Ran had called him Shizun countless times, calm, respectful, angry, and ridiculing, countless.

But this was the first time he heard a different 'Shizun'. It was mixed with the fishy smell of love and lust, making it look dirty and bewitching. Chu Wanning felt his bones tingling.

Impossible, Mo Ran couldn't call him that.

He had heard wrong, he had thought too much.

It was his heart that was dirty.

He subconsciously retreated backwards, his bare back knocking against the cold wall. He couldn't help but shiver, his lips quivering as he slightly opened them. He seemed somewhat at a loss.

Mo Ran's eyes darkened.

He looked at the moist, pale lips. Although he did not move, his mind was preoccupied with the thought of lowering his head to kiss him, prying open his lips, his hot tongue savagely invading that forbidden land that had never been invaded before. He imagined his hands grabbing onto his waist, vigorously rubbing it, and his skin stained with a violent red color with his marks.

No matter how he tried to suppress it, the blood in his body was still wolf blood.

The sex he released was always hot and violent. He even wanted to tear up the person he slept with, eat it clean from inside out, and lick the last drop of blood, an inch of meat.

He couldn't help but be a carnivore.

Closing his eyes, he suppressed the lava boiling in his chest. He knew that the situation was not good, and he knew how close a man's desire would be to a wild beast.

He withdrew his hand and spoke in an almost hoarse voice, "Shizun, I'll give it to you… Take your clothes."

A heavy breath brushed Chu Wanning's eyelashes.

Mo Ran turned around and strode to the door, picking up the robe Chu Wanning left behind.

Chu Wanning was still leaning against the wall, but he felt as if he had run a hundred miles and was completely exhausted. He could not even breathe. He narrowed his phoenix eyes and saw Mo Ran looking at his clothes. He suddenly thought of something and was stunned for a few seconds. Then, he suddenly woke up!

When Mo Ran entered the room, he was showering with his back facing him. However, when he turned around, Mo Ran was stuck close to him, so he didn't look down. That was why he didn't notice his desire.

However, if Mo Ran took his clothes and turned around, then the aloof Elder Yuheng, the image of the aloof and restrained Chu Wanning, would be shattered into ashes in an instant.

Chu Wanning was instantly anxious.

He saw that Mo Ran had already parted his clothes and was holding them in his hands. He was about to turn back…

There were only two choices left for Chu Wanning.

First, his leg suddenly hurt and he squatted down.

Second, poke him blind.

Before he could come to a decision, Mo Ran had already turned around and said, “Shizun, you…”

You what?

He did not finish.

The rest of his words, the moment he saw the scene before his eyes, were all cut off between his lips and sunk deep into the quagmire, unable to be pulled out again.

Ch. 142 Shizun, This Is Cruel Torture

It turned out that the moment when Mo Ran turned his head around, Chu Wanning's mind was set ablaze. Almost at the very last moment, he turned around and leaned against the wall with his arms crossed, leaving the man with a firm and powerful back.

This way, he wouldn't be able to see the man's face. Chu Wanning felt that he was really smart.

This fool didn't even know that what he has exposed under Mo Ran's eyelids was a low-lying, sexy waist, a full, firm butt, and a pair of long, powerful legs… He was like a rabbit that had been skinned.

The roasted meat was crisp, almost saying, "Please eat, thank you."

Mo Ran felt his throat go dry and his eyes were bloodshot. After enduring for a while, he said, "Shizun, what is this… for?"

What for?

…Hmm… This posture was indeed a bit strange. How could he describe it in such a way that he could quietly muddle his way through…

Chu Wanning turned his face to the side. His expression was cold and solemn as if he wanted to cover it up.

Mo Ran had already put down his clothes and was walking towards him. Perhaps because of the light, he felt that the expression on his face was extremely chilling. He was like a wolf that had been starved for a long time in the jungle.

The wolf hesitated. The thirst in its stomach and the reason in its mind fought intensely. The flames of war spread from its body to its eyes. Its black burning eyes were very bright and gave off a ghostly light.

Chu Wanning finally felt that something was amiss. With a single word, he placed the bowstring on the bow and spoke in a sharp tone, piercing through the eerie silence.

“Rub my back.”

“… Hmm?” The voice of Mo Ran was stuck in his throat, carrying a bit of a nasal sound, making him seem very sexy. “What?”

This was an excuse that Chu Wanning came up with when he was in a hurry, but since the words were already in his ears, he had no choice but to pretend to be calm and say, “Since you’re here, why don’t you rub my back and leave.”

Mo Ran: “…”

“I’ve been busy these past few days. My body is covered with sweat and I feel uncomfortable.” Chu Wanning tried his best to act casual and nonchalant, “Washing is always good.”

He didn’t know if he had tricked Mo Ran, or if his lies were natural.

In the end, Mo Ran listened to him and obediently took out a towel. He poured warm water over his body and started rubbing his back.

Yuheng had always been a wise man. But this was the stupidest thing he had ever done.

What was the most tormenting thing in the world?

The one he loved stood behind him, with a rough towel, rubbing his whole body with his large hands. Every touch was like a sail over spring water, leaving a hot red mark. Although the power of Mo Ran had been restrained, it was still very strong. Moreover, his skin and flesh had never been caressed like this before. He could only feel his muscles twitching, and he had to tighten his body to barely be able to keep from being seen by the person behind him.

His forehead was pressed against the wall. In a place where one couldn't see it due to Mo Ran, he tightly bit down on his lips. His eyes were red at the edges of his eyes.

He was still an innocent person, so what if he had to endure such a provocation in front of someone he deeply loved? He pretended to be aloof.

It was too unbearable…

However, if one were to ask Mo Ran, what was the most torturous thing in the world?

I'm afraid the answer will be very different, he might say. The man is standing naked before you, his hands against the wall, his back relaxed, the man completely confident of himself, giving you everything but himself, while you rub his whole body with your hot, dirty hands, through an obstructing towel.

Of course, he knew that he was rubbing the back of his Shizun, but with just a little bit of strength, that person's skin would turn red. It was the sexy look of someone who had been humiliated and abused.

He ran his hand over his shoulder blade and wound it around the side of his waist. He felt the person beneath him tremble slightly, but he did not know if it was an illusion. He stared at the white and plump arc, and restrained himself until his eyes were bloodshot, so as not to lose the bath towel, grab him directly with his hands, and press hard, five fascinating red marks.

He had already tasted the ecstasy of the man before him. So what if he held back his words and forced himself to act like a gentleman in front of him?

It was too unbearable…

The two of them felt uncomfortable for a long time. If they continued to rub on it, they were afraid that they would start a fire.

Chu Wanning finally could not hold it in anymore and said hoarsely, “Okay, you can leave. I can do the rest, I’ll do it myself.”

Mo Ran heaved a sigh of relief. His forehead was covered in sweat.

He lowered his voice and said, “Yes… Shizun…”

The curtain of the door was lifted and fell, and Mo Ran left.

Chu Wanning had not recovered from his shock for a long time. He was still leaning against the wall, his forehead pressed against the wall. His ears were blood-red, the same as the marks of being rubbed on his back. He did not know whether Mo Ran had actually seen it or not.

“…”

He slightly opened his phoenix eyes as if he was feeling humiliated. He bit his lower lip and hesitated for a long time. However, he still reached out his hand and grabbed onto his desire.

Originally, he came back to take a shower to suppress this foul mood.

Who would have thought that by chance, Mo Ran would push him deeper into the sea of desire. Chu Wanning, who had been relying on the Heart Cleansing Method to defend against human nature, could not help but release his overflowing desire for love in the most ordinary and embarrassing way.

His lips were slightly parted and his almond-shaped eyes were half-closed. His expression was somewhat pitiful and somewhat aggrieved…

He stood against the cold wall, his forehead burning, his beautiful shoulders hunched, his Adam's apple rolling, his breath coming in low gasps and gulps.

So sinful, yet so beautiful.

It was like a white phoenix tail butterfly that had fallen into a spider web. It shook its wings powerlessly in the tightly-knit emotions, but it could not, never, never escape from the clutches of death.

He was dirty after all.

Dirty to the bones, dirty to such a miserable, so pitiable, tempting to invade, addictive.

In the end, Chu Wanning was furious. He punched the wall. He was so ruthless, so angry, and so unwilling. He even used a lot of strength. His finger bones were broken and blood seeped out.

“Bastard.”

It was unknown whether he was scolding himself or Mo Ran.

Chu Wanning’s eyes were moist. There was affection, there was hatred, and there was also bewilderment.

In the blink of an eye, more than half a month had passed since they had arrived at the village.

From the day he took his shower, Chu Wanning had been avoiding Mo Ran like a scorpion or a wild beast. He did not feel anything strange about Mo Ran, but he could not bear the change in his body.

A person, when light and elegant for a long time, would be easy to carry around. Otherwise, why would Chu Wanning despise a pair of cultivation lovers? He really wasn’t jealous. Elder Yuheng truly felt that it was unbearable, that he was fed up with it, and that he loathed it.

He didn’t want to look at the painting because he really didn’t want to, not because he was pretending. For Chu Wanning, things like “liking” and “kissing” were still acceptable, but if he got any closer, such as consoling or intruding, his face would turn green and he wouldn’t be able to accept it.

This was just like a vegetarian. If you were to secretly place some lard in his bowl, he would probably find it fragrant. However, if you were to give him a piece of roasted yellow meat that still had a bloody smell to it, he would probably feel extremely disgusted.

After venting that day in a daze, Chu Wanning woke up. He gasped for breath as he looked at the sticky feeling in his hands. He felt as if a handful of cold water had been poured over his head.

His face turned green.

What was he doing? He was actually tempted by a twenty-something year old brat, and had to rely on self-consoling to calm his surging emotions.

Chu Wanning felt goosebumps rising all over his body. When he encountered Mo Ran, he had to step back, afraid that he would accidentally release the power in his heart and do something that would make him regret.

He retreated, and Mo Ran retreated as well.

Mo Ran was also truly afraid. He felt that his desire for Chu Wanning was much stronger than he expected. The dam he had built was about to collapse from the raging waves, and the enthusiasm in his bones was about to burst out at any moment.

He knew that being human and being a beast was just a thought, and he did not want to hurt Chu Wanning again because of that thought, so he avoided him.

The distance between the two of them was too far. Instead, it gave him the impression of a respectful disciple or a benevolent Shizun.

The days passed peacefully.

On this day, the hunters in the village came up to the mountain and slaughtered a fat and beautiful deer. The villagers proposed to hold a bonfire in the small sunning ground at the entrance of the village in the evening.

Therefore, every household brought out some food, be it cakes or dried meat. The Village Head even opened two jars of sorghum wine, and sat in a circle around the bonfire, smelling the scent of roasted deer, eating and drinking in a discontented manner. Chu Wanning and Mo Ran were not sitting together. The two of them were quite a distance away from each other, and there was a fire burning between them. They looked at each other through the fire, not wanting to be seen by each other.

You glanced at me and thought it was silent, but the two sets of eyes always met halfway, so you pretended to glance down and then, after a while, sneaked up on each other's cheeks.

The orange flames were surging and the firewood crackled.

The people around them were all talking and laughing. However, none of them could hear or see what was happening. The only thing they could see was the moon in the sky, illuminating the hearts of the two of them.

The village chief's wine soon ran out, but the crowd still felt that it wasn't enough to enjoy themselves to their heart's content.

Mo Ran recalled that there was still a jar of top-quality Pear Blossom White in his room, so he bid his farewells and went back to get his wine.

Halfway through, he heard a sound behind him.

He turned around. "Who?"

The rustling footsteps immediately stopped, and a pair of green shoes embroidered with yellow flowers slowly emerged from the corner.

Mo Ran was stunned. "Miss Ling'er?" It's you."

She stood in the moonlight with her eyes fixed on the wine as her chest heaved up and down along with her rapid breathing. She said, "Immortal Mo, wait a moment, I have something to tell you.”

Ch. 143 Shizun Turned Out to Be My Pure Unattainable Love, My Bedazzling Passion, the Apple of My Eye, My Fated One

No matter how slow Mo Ran was, how could he not know what was going on when he saw her burning gaze? He immediately said, “Miss Ling’er, you drank too much. If you have anything to say, you can say it tomorrow…”

“I want to talk about it today!”

This little girl was quite fierce when she was bullied. Her hair was a little scattered, and her eyes were glowing.

“…” Mo Ran was afraid that he would get pestered. He wanted to run away, but the corner of his sleeve was pulled by her. He was angry and amused at the same time and said, “Let go of me.”

“Not letting go.” The so called wine strong courage, not to mention Ling’er was not small, and the idea of clinging onto the Sisheng Peak was not a day or two, so she loudly said, “I like you, do you like me?”

Mo Ran: “…”

Seeing no response from the man, Ling’er became anxious.

Ever since Mo Ran arrived at Yuliang Village, she had felt that this man was a formidable and heroic figure. When she found out that he was the famous “Mo-zongshi”, her heart sank deeper and deeper into her thoughts.

The only thing she could show was her pretty face and good figure. Although she didn’t know what Mo Ran thought of her, if she didn’t express herself now, it would be very difficult for her to have another chance in the future. Thus, tonight, with the help of some alcohol, she was able to muster up the courage to follow Mo Ran around and disable Mo Ran to block her from confessing.

To be honest, even Mo Ran was a bit taken aback by this torrent of courage.

Ling'er's face turned red.

She thought, if only Mo Ran could promise her, then that would be great. With such a handsome brother, not to mention climbing up to him, that would be the same as climbing to the Sisheng Peak. Then from now on, she wouldn't have to stay in this crappy little village to be insulted, and she could live a comfortable life.

"I'm sorry, Miss Ling'er, you should let go."

However, his words had easily shattered the floating pavilion in her mind.

Ling'er's blush had yet to fade as her pale face turned ugly. After a while, she said anxiously, "I-am not good-looking in any way?"

"You look good everywhere." Mo Ran was very polite and gently pulled her hand away. "But I don't like it."

If it was said that he had left her with some face just now, then the phrase "I don't like it" could be said to be like pulling apart dry weeds or rotten wood, ripping off the last bit of her face.

Ling'er's eyes were filled with tears. She was sad. Although she admired Mo Ran, she wasn't that emotional. She wanted to improve a bit more, so she lost most of her dreams.

“Then you…” She held back her tears and asked, “Then what do you like?”

“I —”

Mo Ran was stunned by her words.

What does he like?

Out of habit, he felt that he liked Shi Mei’s appearance, but when the words came to his lips, he suddenly felt that this wasn’t the case.

“Tell me, what do you like?” Ling’er pressed on him. Her beautiful eyes stared at his face. She didn’t want to let him go.

She was also a pitiful person. She had an older sister who had married an ordinary cloth merchant from the upper realms. She had moved to Laizhou a few years ago to live a good life.

She had visited her sister with her mother and carried a pile of dried pepper on her back. But her brother-in-law had felt that the fish was very smelly, that the two of them had been very shabby and he was too ashamed to have them live in his own house, so they had driven home within a few days. This matter was deeply engraved in Ling’er’s heart. From that day on, she was unwilling to live a poor life. She swore to live a better life than her elder sister, and to return all the grievances she had suffered in the future.

So all these years, she had been searching for a hero, wanting to submit herself to others and change her fate.

She really did not want to let go of Mo Weiyu.

So she was almost anxious and crazy, under the wine, she lethargically leaned against him, she had a soft and graceful body, and on summer days when she walked through the fields, the men would steal glances at her, and she was betting on herself to use her warm body to tear open Mo-zongshi's armor.

"What's wrong with me? You didn't even think about it, didn't even think about it, and rejected me just like that?"

Her hot and soft body stuck close to Mo Ran's body, but he felt that his entire body was not used to it. He felt ill-suited and pulled her away, his face already mostly black.

"Miss Ling'er, how long have I known you? Why would I like you? Why would I consider you?"

"How do you know if you don't try!"

Seeing that she was about to come over again, Mo Ran immediately said, "Don't get any closer!"

"You don't like it that much?" Ling'er's eyes were wide open as she said in disbelief, "Just a little…Just a little bit…"

"I don't like it at all." Mo Ran felt that he hadn't said it clearly enough, so it was better to end this matter thoroughly. Even though it was cruel, he still added, "Not a single bit moved."

Ling'er was speechless.

No, she could understand.

But she wasn't moved…

How many unmarried men, facing a woman with an extremely good face and figure, and facing a woman who took the initiative to throw herself into his arms, would be righteous enough to say “not moved”? To be able to face the gentle fragrance and soft jade, he doesn’t have any desire at all?

She stayed in place for a while, then said: “You… How could you. How could you…”

She found it hard to speak.

What she’s really wanted to say was, How come you don’t have any desire? This isn’t normal.

Mo Ran also understood what she meant from her hesitation, but he didn’t want to explain it to her. They had originally met by chance, and this concubine wanted to have some sort of relationship, but he didn’t have this intention at all.

She could think what she wanted, and let her like it.

Mo Ran whispered to her, “I’m sorry.” He slipped into the night.

The night wind blew against his cheeks, and he couldn’t help but squint.

After talking with Ling’er for a while, he suddenly realized that he had been wrong about love.

Ling’er asked him, “What do you like?”

It seemed that he had never asked himself this question before.

To those who received less warmth, they would never have the right to choose. As long as there was someone who treated them well, he would be the one to offer all his blood.

“Like what?”

These were words that he subconsciously did not dare to even think about.

Actually, everyone in this world originally had their own unique tastes and hobbies. As a child, Mo Ran often heard other children tugging at their parents’ clothes, saying, “I like to eat this. This one has green onions.” Or “Mother, this red lantern looks better than the yellow one. I like the red one.”

However, he could not say it. It was useless even if he said it. The only thing he could afford to eat was the cheapest white flour cake. He still had to open it up and eat half of it with his mother.

Later, when he was in the library, he would sneak glances at the rich young masters who had come to listen to the play. He would watch them wave their silk fans and slowly say something like, “I like that Cui’er from the last time. This time, I will sing for her.” Sentences like that.

In fact, in the eyes of Mo Ran, Sister Cui’er was not as beautiful as Sister Bai Rong, but who would care about what he thought?

No one would ever ask him, “What do you like,” or the aesthetic, or the choice, these words were related only to the rich. For Mo Ran, what others gave him was what they gave him, what he ate he should be grateful for, what clothes covered him he should slobber — “like?”

What right did he have to like it? How could he dare to like it? What right did he have to like it? He had to struggle with all his might to survive this wretched life of his.

As time passed, this habit of grasping whatever he got went down to the bone marrow. Later on, even with all the gold, silver, and jewelry that entangled his body, the Dragon Saliva from his brain made him sneeze, but was still unable to cover up the layer of poverty in his bones.

Throughout his life, Mo Ran had fallen into poverty when he was young. His emotions were like the mud on the soles of his shoes, worthless, so he asked, “What do you like?” No one would ask him that.

Later on, his rise to greatness was simple in the Emperor’s heart, accompanied by a king and a tiger. Others could only guess at his thoughts, so he asked, “What do you like?” No one dared to ask this question.

Just now, Ling’er suddenly asked him that. It was just a few simple words, but he actually stopped her.

He had thought that when you love someone, you would be respectful. You would hold them in your hands and not dare to have any wild thoughts.

Just like how he treated Shi Mei.

He felt that this was love, that nothing was wrong.

But at this moment, he faintly understood that this situation wasn’t what he was thinking.

Did he really like gentleness more than he liked stubbornness?

Did he really like delicate instead of strong?

Did he really like his eyes that were like peach blossoms, sharper than phoenix eyes, two blades of frost?

He… Did he really like Shi Mingjing instead… instead of…?

He did not dare to think about the name, but his heart was beating fast, and his blood has become hotter.

Mo Ran was shocked by his desire for love.

Love, desire, love and desire were originally inseparable. Being attracted by the other party's appearance, being bewitched by his voice, his smell, and even a single glance from him, he wanted to seize and possess them. He wanted to leave behind his own aura on the body that originally had nothing to do with him.

He had always believed that love was sacred and that those he loved could not be desecrated.

But how could he not blaspheme?

When a body that he loved, yearned for, and admired appeared before his eyes, how could he bear it?

All the love in the world, only love, and clean fate.

It was destined to be hot and sticky with sweat, to have the color of flesh, to have tangled hair and the smell of heather, to have something to do with moans and passions, to have a delicate stamen to grow in the damp and humid beds.

In the darkness of the night, Mo Ran suddenly stopped in his tracks. His eyes were frighteningly bright, and his expression was aghast.

Something in his skull seemed to have broken. It had been suppressed by his steadiness, his stupidity, and his stubbornness. It had drowned him and swallowed him up with a force that could topple mountains and overturn seas.

He stood in shock on the spot.

Desire, desire.

Love.

Chu Wanning…

He finally dug out the name.

As the sands were emptied, treasures were revealed.

It had always been Chu Wanning… Such private feelings, such passionate love, had always belonged solely to Chu Wanning!

He felt his vision darken, the obsession of two lifetimes shattered, the shattered brick walls washed away by the violent tides, slapping him hard in the chest and making him almost breathless.

He was overwhelmed with shock.

Could it be… so… Could this be the case…

Had the person he liked, the love he called, been wrong all along?

By the time Mo Ran returned to the bonfire with Pear Blossom Bai, Ling'er was already gone.

Of course, no one noticed the departure of a young girl. Naturally, no one knew about the conversation that Mo Ran had with her. They were still chatting and drinking merrily.

After three rounds of drinking, the villagers began to play games. They made a straw ring with the rice stalks and invited a man to beat the drum. When the drum was extinguished, whoever held the ring would be asked a question and would have to answer.

This was a free time for the peasants in the lower cultivation world. It was simple to play and easy to get started. Even for someone like Chu Wanning, who couldn't play, it was not hard to get involved.

"Alright, it's time for Old Bai! Come on, Old Bai will draw lots!"

With a bitter face, Old Bai grabbed a folded piece of paper from the big bowl and unfolded it. He then read it out loud, "Is it a woman with big breasts, or a fat buttocks, that looks good?"

The surrounding crowd immediately burst into laughter.

Old Bai was so angry that his face turned red. He raised the paper slip and cursed, "Which bastard wrote this kind of question and threw it in? This old man will fuck you up!"

"Don't." One of the villagers laughed and pulled on his clothes. "Don't be so hasty, you answer the questions first."

After a few moments, Old Bai's wife came and also sat down and stared at him. Old Bai's hair stood on and he mumbled after a while, "I think it's about the same."

Immediately, someone laughed and shouted, “What the fuck are you talking about? There’s no point in lying! You clearly told me a few days ago that a woman who thinks she’s as big as a butt is good to look after, so why aren’t you telling me the truth! Drink, drink, drink! The forfeit!”

Old Bai had no choice but to drink the wine with a grimace of pain on his face. After that, he was constantly being scolded by his wife.

Chu Wanning hid in the crowd, looking at the awkward yet novel situation. However, this kind of question was too vulgar. If one were to ask about him, he would definitely not be able to answer.

At this time, the village chief took a foot of black cloth, smiled and said, “Someone else can beat the drum. Change Old Zhang and let him play with it. Who can replace him?”

Chu Wanning immediately said, “Let me do it.”

He walked over to the leather drum, which was tied with thick leather, and took the drumstick. He then sat on the ground.

The village chief carefully tied up the blindfold with a black belt. After adjusting it left and right, he asked, “Is it tight?”

“It doesn’t matter.”

“Is it see through?”

“Not a bit.”

The village chief smiled and said, “Then I’ll ask the Immortal to beat the drum. If you want to stop, just do it.”

Chu Wanning agreed, “Sure.” He took up the wooden hammer and knocked on the surface of the skin, then he nimbly struck out the dense drum, creating a cacophony of noise.

His eyes were blindfolded, and he did not notice the gaze of Mo Ran through the bonfire. It was so complicated and confused.

Mo Ran looked at him, the sparks flying, like an orange firefly scattering into the night. He looked at the man in white clothes lying on the ground, his gaze moving inch by inch, like a sharp knife, across Chu Wanning’s forehead, the tip of his nose, his lips, his chin.

To him, the black cloth that covered Chu Wanning was an indescribable temptation. However, this time, Mo Ran did not let this temptation slip away. He chewed and licked it.

He tasted love in it.

Once again he felt the tremor in his heart, once more he confirmed. That’s right.

He loved Chu Wanning. That love had nothing to do with the relationship between Shizun and disciple, and nothing to do with kindness.

He simply adored him, longed for him, wanted him.

He…

Finally, he realized that he loves Chu Wanning.

It was love.

He was so confused, so paranoid, so stupid, so blind.

He was finally enlightened today.

He loves Chu Wanning.

He had thought through this part thoroughly. The layer of sealed soil that had been accumulating in his mind had finally collapsed. Many things that he could not understand in the past, many answers that he could not come to any conclusion, all came flooding in this love that came too late.

But before he could taste it, before he had time to ponder.

With a “dong” sound, the sound of the drum stopped, and the sound spread out like ripples.

At this time, the grass bracelet landed on his knee. He picked it up in a daze, and when he looked up, he saw that Chu Wanning was relieved. He took off the black ribbon with one hand and opened his beautiful eyes, looking over at him.

He was also curious to know where the flowers had fallen when he stopped drumming.

He met Mo Ran’s gaze.

Chu Wanning: “…”

Mo Ran: “…”

There’s nothing more awkward than when he peeked at you, and you peeked at him, too. Their eyes met, and they both avoided each other.

However, Chu Wanning stopped hiding very quickly because he suddenly realized that there was a complex feeling on Mo Ran’s handsome and upright face. He could not hide it even if he went past the bonfire that was surrounded by gold stars and the bustling crowd.

Chu Wanning widened his eyes.

“Immortal Mo, good luck.” The village chief smiled and went to pull Mo Ran up.

He hesitated for a while and put on the grass ring according to the rules. His black eyes were very bright, but he did not know what to do. He put on his hat and looked at Chu Wanning again carefully. That handsome suntanned face actually gradually turned red in the midst of the flames.

Chu Wanning was shocked by his abnormal behavior. His eyes widened as he stared at him.

Under Chu Wanning’s undisguised gaze, Mo Ran lowered his eyes and pursed his lips without saying a word. He looked obedient and shy at the same time.

He seemed to be like one of those stupid young men in love for the first time. At this stage, his emotions had just started and everything seemed so clumsy. He was a bit pitifully stupid and a bit cute at the same time.

Chu Wanning: “…”

If he had been shocked just now, it could be said that he was terrified now.

…… He must be going blind!

Otherwise, why would he feel that this big and stout bear had suddenly become so hypocritical, as if it had taken the wrong medicine?

Ch. 144 Shizun, I Like You

Mo Ran took out a piece of paper from the big bowl and unfolded it.

When he saw the contents on the paper, he was first relieved, and then a little nervous.

“What is it?” the village chief asked.

Mo Ran showed him the piece of paper. The Village Chief read it and said, “Haha, fortunately, this came to Mo Xianjun. There is nothing to do with elders and sisters. Otherwise, he might offend others.”

Chu Wanning was already curious about what he picked, but after hearing what the Village Head said, he became even more curious. He stared at the piece of paper as if he wanted to dig a hole in it.

Mo Ran laughed, “But, Village Head, look at what is written on this piece of paper. It should be against the rules. Other people said one question, but this one asked me three questions.”

“Who said that an cultivator could hit the spot? I got this one.” The village chief said, “If the immortal is not satisfied, then I will just throw it away and catch it again.”

It was unknown if he caught something like “a woman with long legs looks good or a woman with small waist” again. Mo Ran smiled and said, “Forget it, then let’s just keep it here.”

As he spoke, he handed the paper back to the village chief and said, “What I got was to say about the three people I liked most in my life.”

Chu Wanning: “…”

At this moment, Ling’er returned with reddened eyes. She did not move forward, afraid that others would notice that she had just cried and was sitting at the outermost edge of the fire. Thus, Mo Ran did not see her.

In fact, after Mo Ran finished with his question, no one looked at him. He felt that such an overly private question was awkward for anyone to answer, so he could not say a single word. Thus, he simply stared at the fire.

The bonfire flickered within his black eyes, causing his handsome face to flicker between light and darkness. He stared at that cluster of flames for a long time before saying:

“Let’s talk about my mother first.”

“My mother left rather early. In fact, I don’t really remember her face anymore. I only remember that when she was here, I could always eat and sleep well. So if you’re talking about three people, she’ll be one of them.”

The village chief nodded his head, “You have a deep relationship with her. Fine, let’s consider it one for the immortal.”

“The second is my shixiong. He treats me gently. Although I am not related by blood, he treats me like his own brother.”

Chu Wanning had expected this answer, so there was not much of a stir on his face or in his heart. It was obvious that Mo Ran liked Shi Mei. Back then, when he was at Jincheng Lake, he had heard it personally, so it wasn’t surprising at all.

He only gazed at the man under the light of the night flames. He had the rough outline of a cleaver and an axe, appearing extremely handsome. Deep in his bones, however, he was also somewhat stubborn. A person's spirit could be largely reflected in their eyes. The eyes of Mo Ran were dark and bright, extremely spirited. It was like a lamp that would never be extinguished unless it ran out of oil.

A person with such a pair of eyes was destined to be extremely stubborn.

Chu Wanning was obsessed with stubbornness, but unfortunately, it did not belong to him.

Mo Ran said that Shi Mei was so good that Chu Wanning didn't listen to him. He felt that the night wind was a little cold, so he poured himself a cup of hot tea and drank it slowly with the cup in his hand.

The tea warmed his throat all the way down to his stomach, warming his flesh and blood, softening his heart.

He quietly poured another cup and was about to drink again when he suddenly heard Shi Mei's part finish. He then paused and said,

"There's still one more person. The third person to speak is my Shizun."

"Cough, cough, cough!" Chu Wanning choked on his tea as if he had been scalded. His face was flushed red from coughing. He tried to wipe the water away and did not look up at Mo Ran.

If you pull him up from the ground, he will only panic because his body is covered with dust. He wants to hide in the dark again, to curl up and hide.

However, Mo Ran clearly did not intend to give him an opportunity to escape.

Chu Wanning had such a aloof personality, if you let him have his way he would withdraw, only giving you view of his back and the back of his head. He looked fierce, and between his eyebrows was purple lightning and blue frost. Faintly, it seemed to be filled with the will of thunder. However, he was clear that this was just a polished human skin mask.

He had seen Chu Wanning's gentle soul in the steaming mist of Mengpo Hall, pitiful and helpless.

He did not want Chu Wanning to continue looking down on himself.

He could not afford Chu Wanning to wear such a ferocious mask. If this self-respecting man was unwilling to remove the mask, he would extend his hand for him.

The tea had only been spilled a little bit, and had long been wiped clean. However, Chu Wanning was still repeatedly wiping away the dried water stains.

He was used to building an emotional armor around himself, so he didn't look up.

Gradually, they began to feel that the surroundings were very quiet, so quiet that it was a bit strange. Then, some children began to laugh. Their laughter seemed to be suppressed very low, but anyone could hear it.

"Mother, Immortal Chu is so dumb."

Mother quickly covered his child's childish mouth. "Shh —"

However, Chu Wanning still heard it.

Stupid…

No, in this lifetime, Elder Yuheng had always been different from the word “idiot.” He was arrogant, sharp, fierce and cold, and —

“Shizun, if you rub again, I’m afraid the table will make a hole for you.”

The black cloth boots came up to his desk, close enough to be considered offensive, and then stopped. Chu Wanning saw a black shadow fall over him, pressing down on him like a mountain, crushing him to the point where he almost couldn’t breathe. It made him feel humiliated and angry at the same time.

He was suddenly a little angry with himself for his sudden weakness.

Therefore, he threw the handkerchief aside and suddenly raised his head, full of provocation. His pair of angry and wanton phoenix eyes stared at Mo Ran, as if he was ready to fight at any moment.

Almost at the same time, Mo Ran spoke in a respectful and gentle tone:

“Shizun, please take care of me.”

This sentence was like a magic spell. It was the same reaction as Chu Wanning’s. Only Chu Wanning knew that it wasn’t because of the “you reason me” that he raised his head. It was just a coincidence.

But what was the use?

Other than him, whether it was Mo Ran, or the onlookers, they all felt that it was because of this plea that Chu Wanning quickly agreed to his disciple’s request.

Quickly.

There was nothing more humiliating than these two words.

Chu Wanning's face was as cold as ice, but his eyes were ablaze.

But the only thing he bumped into was Mo Ran's soft and warm gaze. Like the spring water, it easily wrapped around his anger, his sharp teeth, and his sharp mouth.

Mo Ran said, "Shizun, the third answer is you."

Chu Wanning had nowhere to vent his anger, so he became expressionless, "…Right."

He was truly calm and indifferent.

He had a calm demeanor and was worthy of being called Chu-zongshi. Chu Wanning cheered for himself in his heart.

But Mo Ran looked at him in amusement.

Mo-zongshi thought, could this Chu-zongshi be a little fool?

Chu Wanning was completely unaware that he had placed a signature of a little fool in his disciple's heart. Due to his nervousness, he appeared even more aloof and arrogant.

He said, "So? What are you doing here?"

The question hit him squarely in the face, and the smile on his face stiffened.

Mo Ran wanted to do anything.

But he could do nothing.

So what if he liked Chu Wanning? He discovered it too late, so he couldn't be pursued anymore. Furthermore, he had already spent two lifetimes chasing after Shi Mei. Suddenly telling him that he loved the wrong person and wanted him to turn back wasn't that easy to accept in his heart.

If he could understand his own thoughts when he was reborn, perhaps he would have had time to do so.

Until now, this 'discovery' was just an addition to his suffering.

Chu Wanning had suffered too much physical torture in his previous life, and he was used to seeing lovemaking as the most brutal form of torture for such a proud man.

As such, in Mo Ran's heart, Chu Wanning had always been an image of a deity. He never ate the hardships of the mortal world, much less had any desire for love.

He had thousands of intimate ways to destroy Chu Wanning.

However, he had to be good to Chu Wanning.

He couldn't think of too much.

He suddenly became very stupid. All he knew was that he had to keep his Shizun at a distance. He had to lift him up onto the altar and kneel down to welcome him.

This "like" actually contained a boiling and hidden desire for love.

However, he could not let Chu Wanning see through him. He could only restrain himself, using his love as a Shizun and disciple to hide his feelings, before respectfully presenting it to him.

Mo Ran replied, “I just wanted to let Shizun know.”

“…” Chu Wanning quietly looked at him.

Mo Ran said, “It’s just that I can’t help but want everyone to know that…”

“Know what?”

Mo Ran smiled. His black eyes were very bright, and the light was very bright. It was able to cover up the surging undercurrents of desire below.

“I know my luck is good. Worship the best, best, best Shizun in the world.”

He used three of his best, very clumsy, very forceful expressions.

It had a rough and simple style.

Chu Wanning looked at him with unfathomable eyes, only his eyelashes moved.

Mo Ran took in a deep breath. He had no idea where he got the courage from, but he felt that if he were to miss this opportunity, he would never again be able to express his feelings so brazenly in his entire life.

He suddenly half-knelt, wanting to be on the same level as Chu Wanning. Unfortunately, he was still too tall. He was still looking down on his Shizun even though he was kneeling in front of him.

He couldn’t care less. He felt his heart beating so fast, the blood flowing so fast.

“Shizun.”

“…” Chu Wanning suddenly felt that something was amiss.

The man’s eyes were so anxious that he had to lean back.

However, in the end, the arrow still pierced the heart.

“I like you.”

There was nowhere for him to run. The deer that was jumping in the forest had its legs pierced by the hunter’s arrowhead and fell down. Chu Wanning looked at him in a daze, a loud noise echoed in his mind. He could hear nothing and see nothing else…

Like — the word is more subtle, more vague.

It was not as straightforward as “love”. It could burn someone’s heart with just one word. It had many ways of understanding, giving many men and women the opportunity to express their feelings and love.

Mo Ran thought to himself, I like you, but I will not disturb you. I will not force you, but you think that what I am talking about is just the relationship between Shizun and disciple. Although it is regrettable for me, it’s better for you.

Chu Wanning thought to himself, “You said you like me because of pity, because of the love of teaching, because of saving your life, but in exchange for your good feelings, I’ve done everything I can to help you. I don’t have the strength or the chips to exchange for more of your feelings.” To be able to gain your acknowledgment of me as your Shizun with a single word of love, that is enough. I don’t insist.

They didn’t say anything more to each other, and the surrounding onlookers only praised their Shizun-disciple relationship.

Only Ling'er, who was in the corner, vaguely felt that something was wrong. She looked at Mo Ran's handsome face. That face contained a desire that was too deep for her, and a passion that made her feel strange.

However, she was still a pure and honest person. She had never heard of anyone who grew up in a small village having even heard of Long Yang's good fortune. Thus, she only felt that it was strange.

In this world, there were always some people who were heartless when they didn't like it. They were unscrupulous when they walked, and even the gods would be afraid when they came.

However, once they fell in love, it would be like boiling oil, and their hearts would turn hot and their eyes would turn red. They yearned to be discovered all the time, and they would be unable to part with each other no matter how hard they tried.

But what if the other side really found out? They were afraid that the other party would not like them and would reject them, but they were also afraid, not to mention the God of Heaven, this time it was just a cold cicada on the tree chirping twice, nothing could stop it, they would all be worried and think, "Oh my god, the cicada on the tree is chirping, it's so scary, does it not like me?"

The most hazy of love, often you guess, I guess, you hide, I hide, the distance of two miles can smell the pervasive sour smell.

In his previous life, Mo Weiyu had been Taxian-jun, and in this life he had been Mo-zongshi.

The notorious, the wise one.

He had been the most evil of ghosts and had now become the best of men. However, in the end, he was still unable to escape from this sour stench.

What about Chu Wanning?

That guy would always be a fish in a net, even the slightest bit of love could give him a headache, causing him to be at a loss.

However, he still insisted on keeping his face and said with a snort, what can be said about such a vile and rotten matter.

He was truly courting death.

Ch. 145 Shizun, Has a Meal Companion Now

The layer of forest had been dyed completely, and the farming was over.

The villagers of Yuliang Village prepared several bags containing dried meat, rice cakes, spices, and coarse cloth, stuffing them into the arms of Chu Wanning and Mo Ran.

Although the Sisheng Peak did not lack food and clothing, this was the heart of the villagers. If they did not accept it, then it would not be good. Therefore, the two of them did not hold back and helped the village chief fill up the saddlebags.

Ling'er also came with a bamboo basket in her arms. The basket was covered with a small blue and white cloth. When the cloth was opened, there were steamed buns and ten cooked green shells and eggs.

She walked up to Mo Ran's Horse, her clear black and white eyes avoiding him. She wanted to look at him, but she felt embarrassed when she remembered her bold confession that day when she was half drunk and half awake. After waiting for a long time, they finally got close.

Raising the basket above her head, she said to the handsome man who had mounted the horse, "Immortal Mo, these… I cooked all of these this morning. Bring them along with you and eat them along the way with Immortal Chu."

Mo Ran didn't know what she was doing, so he hesitated, unsure whether he should refuse or accept.

Ling'er, however, understood his worries. She suddenly raised her head. Her face was red, but her eyes looked stubborn and hurt.

Although she mustered all her strength and wanted to climb up to become an outstanding immortal, she was not the type of girl without dignity who would continue pestering others even if she was rejected.

She said, "Don't worry, immortal. Ling'er doesn't have any other intentions. She just wanted to thank the immortal for taking care of our village over the past half month."

Mo Ran then kept the bamboo basket. He sat on the horse and looked at her with his eyelashes down. He said sincerely, "Thank you, Miss."

"Thank you, Immortal."

Seeing that she was willing to let it go, Mo Ran was somewhat moved. So he asked, "What is Miss's plan for the future?"

"Why do you ask, Immortal?"

"I don't think the girl is someone who wants to stay in the village for a long time."

Ling'er then laughed, and her eyes were filled with warrior power again: "I want to go up to the cultivation world to see, and I heard that the Shizun of the Rufeng Sect is kind and willing to help the world, as long as we lower ourselves to find a job here, he will not chase us away. I'm a good girl, and I can cook. I can always stay for a few days."

Of course, the most important thing she didn't mention was that the Rufeng Sect had the most disciples out of the ten great sects. The Rufeng

Sect had the most disciples out of the ten great sects, with a total of seventy-two cities.

Chu Wanning did not know what she was thinking. Hearing that she was going to Linyi, he frowned and said, “The Rufeng Sect is complicated, it is not as simple as you think. If you want to stay in the Upper Cultivation World for a long time, you might as well consider Yangzhou Linling Island.”

“Yangzhou can’t survive any longer, the cost of food and clothing is too high.” Ling’er said, “Thank you for your kindness, Ling’er has her own considerations.”

Since he had already said so much, Chu Wanning knew it was useless to say anything more, so he gave up.

The two of them were carrying bags full of food as they whipped their horses. When Chu Wanning passed near Butterfly Town, he paid attention to the boundary. Fortunately, it was full of spirit and was stable. As a result, the horses never stopped galloping. It was now noon, and they had finally returned to the Sisheng Peak.

Chu Wanning went to report the situation to Xue Zhengyong, Mo Ran didn’t have anything to do, so he wandered around. He bumped into a person at the bridge, wiping the stone lions off the pillars.

Mo Ran thought, I don’t know who made the mistake of being punished to come here and work hard.

The faces of those who were punished would usually be a little ugly, so Mo Ran did not intend to walk onto the bridge. Just as he was about to turn around, he suddenly heard someone call out to him from not too far away.

“A-Ran!”

“…”

Upon closer inspection, it turned out that the person wiping the lion was not just anyone else, he was actually Shi Mei. Mo Ran was stunned for a moment, but he felt an indescribable strangeness in his heart.

The first reason was that even a person like Shi Mei, who followed the rules, would be punished to wipe the Bridge of Helplessness.

Second, was the appearance of Shi Mei.

It had been a long time since he last saw Shi Mei, but he hadn’t been able to recognize Shi Mei’s current appearance. Instead, as time passed, he felt more and more unfamiliar with Shi Mei, to the point where he couldn’t recognize him when he first saw him on the bridge.

“Why are you here? Did you do something wrong?” asked Mo Ran, walking up to him.

Shi Mei was clearly a bit embarrassed: “Um… I was punished along with the Young Lord.”

“Xue Meng?” Mo Ran paused, then laughed.

This was not strange at all. Xue Meng’s mistake was nothing new.

“What did he do to you?”

“He said that he wanted to go to the back of the mountain and capture a few ghosts to practice.”

“…”

“In the end, we almost broke the barrier that Shizun sealed before he left.”

Mo Ran did not know whether to laugh or cry. “Does he think ghosts are cats and dogs? He caught them as he said he would, he raised them as he said he would. You too, he’s messing around. You shouldn’t have followed him in, why aren’t you persuading him?”

Shi Mei sighed and said with a helpless look on his face, “Of course I tried to persuade him, but it’s useless. I was afraid something would happen to him, so I could only go in with him… Forget it, let’s not talk about it anymore. Fortunately, there was no need to stir up any trouble. A-Ran, tell me about you. A few days ago, you and Shizun went to the village of Yuliang to farm?”

“Yes.”

“How was it?”

“Yes, it went pretty smooth.”

The two chatted nonchalantly for a while longer. After bidding farewell to Shi Mei, Mo Ran silently walked along a small tree-lined path by himself. When he pushed his mind away and looked back, he felt his feelings for Shi Mei more and more clearly. It was a kind of obsession, a kind of habit, not a love that he thought it was.

He had once thought that looking at Shi Mei’s appearance, he felt that he was beautiful, that he was amazing, and that it was very comfortable. This was desire, but actually, it wasn’t.

Humans always admire beautiful things. He admired the appearance of Shi Mei, but if one were to carefully distinguish it, this appreciation did not contain any hint of intimacy.

He liked to look at him as if he liked to see the red leaves of the autumn mountains and the lotus flowers in the summer pond.

He still cherished Shi Mei as before.

But it was different from the past. The current Mo Ran finally understood what love was. He was not a Willow, his love was probably moist and hot, accompanied by encroachment, with physical collisions, and with the gushing of blood and turbid fluid.

He was a wolfhound, and he could sniff roses.

However, if one were to eat a tooth, it would not be eating flowers or grass. It would be flesh and blood.

During dinner time, Xue Meng finally finished compiling all the books in the second book section of the Compendium Pavilion. He was so tired that he sighed and lied down on Mengpo to complain.

Just as he was bored to death playing with the chopsticks, he suddenly saw Chu Wanning walk into the dining hall. His spirits were lifted as he stood up and shouted, “Shizun!”

Chu Wanning looked at him and nodded.

Mo Ran sat beside Xue Meng. He, Xue Meng and Shi Mei, the three of them normally ate together, but today, when Chu Wanning walked in, Mo Ran moved the plates on the table, leaving a large space.

“What are you doing?”

However, Mo Ran smiled at Xue Meng without saying anything. He stood up and waved at Chu Wanning, “Shizun, come sit here.”

Xue Meng, “…”

Shi Mei: “…”

Respect was one thing, but eating together was another.

Most people who were able to sit at a table and chew on bones did not have very stiff relationships with each other. At the very least, they would have to get used to each other’s smacking lips, endure each other’s unsightly manner, and occasionally lose their composure.

Seeing the expressions on Xue Meng’s and Shi Mei’s faces, even though Chu Wanning was usually calm and aloof when eating, they were still not used to it. They did not want to eat together with him.

To them, eating occasionally with their Shizun was the same as socializing. Both of them had to be taut and polite, and their backs were often stiff from eating without a care in the world.

Chu Wanning understood this as well. He looked at Mo Ran in surprise and shook his head. He then carried some vegetables to where he was used to going.

It had been five years since he had last eaten at Mengpo Hall. The moment he sat down, Chu Wanning saw a small copper piece carved with six small cards: “Elder Yuheng’s Special Table”.

“…”

Was Xue Zhengyong sick?

Placing the wooden tray heavily on the table, Chu Wanning sat down gloomily. Before he could even eat two bites, a person suddenly pulled up the wooden chair in front of his and sat down on the “jade seat”. The tray he brought was placed right in front of his plate, very close to each other, almost touching.

Chu Wanning looked up, “…Why are you here?”

“It’s too crowded over there.” Mo Ran said, smiling as he picked up the rice bowl, “So I came to eat with Shizun.”

Chu Wanning glanced at Xue Meng and the others, feeling quite baffled: where was it too crowded?

Not to mention him, even the other two people who were thrown away by Mo Ran had complicated expressions on their faces as they stealthily looked at Chu Wanning and Mo Ran’s table.

Xue Meng muttered, “Could that dog have gone mad?”

Shi Mei: “…”

However, Mo Weiyu did not care much about it. Just then, he felt uncomfortable when he saw Chu Wanning sitting alone. Chu Wanning was a person with a sharp tongue, and he was very pretentious in the way of food and drinks. He had always either eaten this or tasted that disgusting dish, and he felt that this was not a good situation, as he was going to get sick when he grew older.

In the past, he did not care much about what Chu Wanning ate, but now it was different. Not to mention liking this matter, even if it was out of respect for his teacher, he still had to feed his Shizun.

But feeding Chu Wanning was a type of knowledge. It was like feeding a cat, he couldn't be too forceful. He wouldn't want to eat it, so he wouldn't be able to do it.

Thus, Mo Ran came up with an idea. He picked up a piece of fat Red Braised Meat and placed it in Chu Wanning's bowl.

"Shizun, try this."

Sure enough, Chu Wanning frowned, "I don't like streaky pork, take it away."

Mo Ran was prepared for this and laughed, "I heard that it's made in a very sweet manner, with a Jiangnan flavor."

Chu Wanning said, "Jiangnan cooking is different from this."

"If you don't eat it, how do you know the difference?"

"Seems like it can be seen."

"But the chef said it was Jiangnan flavor." Mo Ran threw it down and waited for the cat to take the bait. He smiled and said, "Mengpo Hall's chef is an old cook. How could he be wrong? Shizun must have left home for too long, and have forgotten what the Red Braised Meat looks like at home."

Chu Wanning said, "… Nonsense, how could I be wrong about that?"

Mo Ran then ate a piece and seemed to really savor it seriously. He sincerely said, "I think Shizun is wrong. This meat is very sweet. Try one if you don't believe me."

Chu Wanning did not notice the intention of Mo Ran at all. He picked up the plate of Red Braised Meat with chopsticks and put it in his mouth indignantly.

“How is it?” Mo Ran suppressed his laughter as he looked at the hooked white cat.

Chu Wanning frowned seriously and said, “No, the star anise is too fragrant. I’ll go tell the chef that this is not the way to cook the Red Braised Meat in Jiangnan.”

“Ai ai –” Mo Ran immediately pulled him back. He could not help but feel speechless. Who would have thought that this fellow would be so serious? If he really went to argue with the chef, wouldn’t he be exposing the filling? “Shizun is not in a hurry. Right now, the chef is busy. Since Shizun has tasted the wrong food, then it’s definitely not the case. I’ll go tell him later. Let’s eat first.”

Chu Wanning thought about it for a while and agreed. He then sat back down and continued to eat.

Mo Ran began to trick him again, this time with a piece of fish.

Chu Wanning’s chopsticks paused for a second before he asked, “A sage fish?”

“Yes.”

“No, take it away.”

“Why not?”

“I don’t like it.”

Mo Ran laughed. “Isn’t it too much?”

“… No.”

“But every time Shizun eats fish, he picks the ones without bones or the ones that are easy to choose from. It can’t be that Shizun isn’t going to eat the little Thorny Fish, hahaha.”

He was very familiar with Chu Wanning’s soft side, he was very picky. Chu Wanning was fooled again, he was a little angry and said, “Ridiculous.” He picked up the grazer that Mo Ran had given him and ate it, showing by his actions that he was not a fish that could not eat bones.

Just like that, under the coaxing of Mo Ran, Chu Wanning unknowingly ate a lot more dishes than usual. It was as if he had tasted all kinds of vegetables and fowl meat. Originally, he had eaten a very fast meal by himself, but in his confusion, he had not finished it even after an hour.

By the time they cleaned up the dishes and went out, Xue Meng and the others had already left, and the disciples of Mengpo Hall were only left in groups of twos and threes.

The night breeze was blowing. He put his arms behind his head and walked leisurely. Suddenly, he smiled.

“Shizun.”

“What?”

“Nothing, I’m just calling you.”

“… I think you ate your fill tonight.”

Mo Ran smiled even more gently. “Yes, it’s so full. Shizun, in the future, can I always eat with you?”

Even though he knew it was useless to refuse Mo Ran, Chu Wanning’s heartbeat still missed by two beats. Fortunately, his eyes remained calm and collected.

“Why, did you and Xue Meng quarrel?”

“No, no.” Mo Ran waved his hand and laughed, “It’s just that I haven’t eaten with the two of them for a long time. It’s been five years, and sitting with them again feels a little awkward. If Shizun thinks that I’m a hindrance, then I’ll find another place to eat tomorrow.”

“…”

Of course, he could not say “I feel very sorry for you to be eating alone”, nor could he say “I want to feed you more food”. He did not even need to say these words because Mo Ran knew that it would not work. He could only show mercy. He had to say that he was pitiful, that he needed someone to accompany him. Chu Wanning was kind, and he would not reject him.

Mo Ran could almost see the wavering in his eyes. He was only missing the last bit of strength.

So he continued, “But in fact, I really don’t want to eat alone.”

“Why?”

Mo Ran lowered his soft eyelashes, and half of the emotion in his smile was real, the other half was just coaxing Chu Wanning. “Don’t you think so, Shizun? If someone were to casually eat his food, it would be called having a stomach."

He paused for a moment. In the red glow of the embroidery, he brushed away the strands of hair that were blown in front of his forehead.

"If two people eat together, talk, talk, taste in the mouth, it is hot in the stomach. That's what eating is all about."

"…"

"Shizun, can I still go with you tomorrow?"

The little wolfdog's heart-warming words were truly unstoppable.

Mo Ran was so obstinately moving that he said:

"Shizun, I've been alone outside for five years. When you woke up, I ate with you."

"I'm not used to it without you."

"I don't eat rabbit heads nor duck necks." At the end of his sentence, he burst into laughter and pulled on Chu Wanning's sleeve, acting like a scoundrel. "I'll eat scallion tofu and osmanthus root with you. Just promise me, okay?"

It would be better if he didn't say anything. Once he said it, Chu Wanning suddenly thought of an old grudge and his face darkened. He then sneered and said, "That's fine, but you have to eat the same food as me in the morning."

Before Mo Ran could react, he agreed. "Sure, what's the same?"

“Salty bean blossoms.” Chu Wanning was merciless, “Add more seaweed.”

Mo Ran: “…”

It seemed like this was a grudge he had gotten from eating hotpot with Xia Sini!

Chu Wanning ground his teeth and spoke word by word, “And dried prawns.”

Ch.146 But Shizun, Her Wanting to Marry Really Has Nothing to Do With Me!

From that day onwards, a wondrous sight appeared in Mengpo Hall.

There had never been an idle person who dared to sit proficiently in the “Elder Yuheng’s Special Table”, but now there was the addition of Mo Weiyu.

The disciples that came and went would always see Mo Ran and Chu Wanning eating together. The two of them sat opposite to each other, and Mo Ran would always bring some dishes to his Shizun’s plate.

“Hush, look, shixiong Mo gave Elder another piece of beef belly. Wow, such a big piece, I bet Elder Yuheng won’t eat it.”

Not far away, a group of disciples whispered to each other as they placed their bets in low voices.

“I also bet that he won’t be able to eat it. Elder Yuheng doesn’t seem to like eating beef.”

“Then I bet he would eat it. After all, he also accepted the pigeon eggs.”

The group of people sneaked glances over and held their breath. They saw Chu Wanning frowning and poking the piece of beef with the tip of his chopsticks. His face was sullen as he said something to Mo Ran.

They were a little further away, so they couldn’t hear him clearly. However, since Mo Ran seemed to have said something, Chu Wanning’s expression became even more unfriendly.

The juniors who bet on Chu Wanning's not eating were immediately overjoyed. They were so engrossed in the sight that their spoons almost went down their noses.

"Look, the elder is not eating anymore, he is not eating anymore!"

"Don't poke me with your elbows. Be quiet. If Elder Yuheng hears that you're using him as a wager, he'll skin you alive!"

"Hehehe, I don't care. These twenty silver leaves are mine now ~"

As the disciple spoke, he wanted to use the silver leaf placed on the table as a bargaining chip, but before he could even touch it, he heard the voice of the person beside him whisper nervously, "Wait, victory is uncertain. The elder is using the chopsticks again!"

"What?"

When he looked again, he found that Chu Wanning had picked up that piece of beef. The gamblers could not wait and felt their hearts being pinched by that piece of white jade. It hurt to pinch.

"He wants to eat, he wants to eat, he want to eat…" "Twenty silver leaves, twenty silver leaves, twenty silver leaves…" The disciple who had bet that Chu Wanning would eat a piece of beef was talking nonstop, shaking his legs nervously. Suddenly, his gaze froze, as though his entire body had frozen over. "Ah!"

Elder Yuheng had actually thrown the beef that had already been picked up back into Mo Ran's bowl without any explanation!

"…"

“Ha ha-ha ha, victory is a close call, victory is a close call!”

“I already said that the elder definitely won’t eat it. Come on, the leaves all belong to me.”

The disciple who had lost the bet sighed and was immediately dispirited, knocking his head against the table. He turned his head to the side and was speechless, staring blankly in the direction of Chu Wanning.

“Elder, I was wrong. I should not have made you my wager.”

As he was complaining, he suddenly saw Mo Ran’s elbow move. He leaned his tall body forward and said a few more words to Chu Wanning. Then, the defeated disciple saw with his own eyes that their shixiong Mo picked up the beef, along with some vegetables, and brought them to Chu Wanning’s lips.

……

This disciple was stupefied… was senior apprentice brother Mo planning to feed the Elder directly!?

Apparently, Chu Wanning was not used to it either. He took his chopsticks and knocked on Mo Ran’s chopsticks, saying two words seriously.

That mouth was too easy to understand.

Drop!

Mo Ran then smiled as he put back the chopsticks, vegetables and beef, but not in his own bowl but in his shizun’s bowl. Chu Wanning had no choice but to sigh and eat the vegetables and beef silently under the watchful eyes of the other bandits.

“…”

The gamblers at this table were all dumbfounded. The disciples who thought they would win for sure were all flabbergasted. The silver leaves in their hands slid off.

However, the man lying on the floor immediately got up and revived with his blood flowing out. His eyes lit up as he said passionately: “Hahaha, victory is lost ah! To turn a defeat into a victory! shixiong, shidi, sorry, but these leaves belong to me. Hahahaha, I’ve sent it, I will bet again tomorrow, haha, I will bet again tomorrow!”

On the other side, the master and disciple were completely oblivious to it. Mo Ran was holding the chopsticks, slowly eating the rice in the bowl while watching Chu Wanning eat the beef jerky.

Mengpo’s Hall was a little hot. He had rolled up his left sleeve all the way to his elbow, revealing a firm and slender arm. The arm muscles moved, undulating under the honey-colored skin. He scooped up a bowl of soup and added a few more ribs into the bowl, especially when Chu Wanning wasn’t paying attention.

“Shizun, finish the soup and dispel the cold.”

“Clear soup?”

Mo Ran blinked his eyes. “I think so. I didn’t notice it when we fought. I forgot.”

Chu Wanning took a look at the noodle soup. There was a piece of green, greasy, and hairy vegetable leaf floating on the surface. It looked extremely tasty, so he did not reject it. He picked it up and drank a spoonful.

“Is it good to drink?”

“Not bad.”

“Then don’t waste it. Drink some more.”

Chu Wanning glanced at him blandly, “You still dare to say anything about me? In the future, don’t cook so many dishes for me. If you can’t even finish your own food, I’ll share all of it with you.”

“Haha, good, then I’ll play a bit less next time.”

Seeing Chu Wanning nod, Mo Ran picked up his bowl of soup. The soup was a bit hot, he blew on it and the steam dispersed, causing his resolute face to appear gentle.

It was clearly just a bowl of boiled water with some meat seasoning, but it was able to warm his entire body from the pit of his stomach to the depths of his heart while he drank the soup with the people he loved. That kind of feeling of satisfaction was as if he had thrown a small stone into the water, and ripples spread out on the surface of the lake layer by layer, flickering with light.

Mo Ran, in the peace that he had experienced in his entire life, couldn’t help but sigh softly.

As it turned out, time was carefree. Once it entered one’s mouth, one would only be able to taste the flavor of a bowl of soup.

For this bowl of soup, he had once grind his teeth and sucked his blood, killing people to death just like he did for this bowl of soup.

He held the bowl of soup in his hands and drank very quickly.

The uneasiness in his heart, the uncertainty of his future, and the guilt of his regret were all things he didn't want to think too much about. His good days lived too little, and he needed to fight for them day and night. It wasn't that he didn't want to taste it slowly, but that he was very relaxed. In fact, he was very envious of people like Xue Meng. Because they were born rich and powerful, they were always calm and unhurried.

Mo Ran could not remain calm, as there were so few things in his possession that he could only grit his teeth and constantly fight for them, while the things that he had stolen would not be taken away, so he could only immediately devour them. In this aspect, he had retained almost the nature of a beast, and felt that only by eating the food and hiding it in his stomach would he be able to feel at ease.

When he was a child, he fought with other children for food.

In his previous life, he fought with the various deities for the land under the heavens.

In this lifetime, he only wanted to snatch this bowl of soup.

He knew that he had done many evil things, and feared that fate would one day settle with him. Thus, all he wanted was to snatch away his pitiful happiness and run for his life, leaving fate far behind him.

Like all those who tried to start over after committing a felony, Mo Ran was still laughing, but his heart was still uneasy. When the liveliness gradually turned cold, he would always feel that the peace in front of him was fake. It was like a mirage, like the reflection of the moon in a mirror. In the end, he would still wake up and return to the empty Wushan Palace and return to hell.

Thus, he wanted to drink a few more mouthfuls before the soup turned cold.

If this was the case, one day, if he really did get his retribution for his sins, be despised by the world, be judged by fate, and be once again pushed into the depths of the cold pond, then he could use this hot breath to walk down by himself.

“What are you thinking about?” Chu Wanning asked him.

“Ah!” Mo Ran came back to his senses and gently replied. He then smiled and said, “It’s nothing. I like to be in a daze when I’m full.”

Chu Wanning glanced at his empty bowl, “Have you finished drinking?”

“Yes.”

“You seem to like the soup today?”

“Haha, that’s right.”

Chu Wanning took his bowl and said, “I’ll go get more for you.”

He returned very quickly, and sure enough, he brought a big bowl full of broth. It was a bit hot, so after putting the bowl down, Chu Wanning used his fingertips to warm his ears, warming his ears and lowering the temperature of his fingers.

He sat down again and said, “Drink.”

“A full bowl.”

“Drink slowly. There’s more than enough, no one will fight with you for it.”

Mo Ran was moved by this simple sentence. He held the bowl of soup in his hands, his black eyes drooping. With a shallow nasal voice, he smiled and replied, “Alright.”

Chu Wanning did not know that at that moment, Mo Ran had used all the effort of his life to prevent himself from holding the bowl full of soup. When he heard the words “not enough, no one will fight with you”, tears fell from his eyes.

Chu Wanning had been gone for five years, and he had been tormenting himself for five years.

Five years later, his shizun told him to take his time.

Mo Ran’s heart suddenly hurt. The closer he got to Chu Wanning, the more upset he felt. In fact, if he did not pay attention to many things, he would not be able to see the emotions behind them. However, when he looked at them with his heart, he could see how kind and tolerant Chu Wanning was to him.

He had defiled such a person in his previous life.

In this life, what virtue or ability did he have to be able to be his companion for the rest of his life?

His heart was trembling, he was painfully struggling, while feeling that he was unworthy. He felt that he should have stayed far away from Chu Wanning. Where did he get the face to have a smile on his face? Shameless!

But on the other hand, he longed for it all the time — was this it, could it be that they were still a long way off in their lives, letting him redeem, little by little, the sins he had committed, all right?

—

I have returned from the mountain of corpses with all my sins.

I hold the rich and warm soup of this life with hands that were full of blood in my previous life.

I am willing to kneel for the rest of my life and return my soul to Purgatory after death. I only hope that you… will still willing to hold a cup and have a taste.

“Shizun.”

At some point in time, Xue Meng had arrived.

In fact, ever since Chu Wanning died, he had been feeling this way of self-reproach and unease all day and all night. After being immersed in this sort of emotion for a long time, his entire body would seem very heavy, which was not a good thing for others.

However, there were one or two things in life that would occasionally touch him, and he would once again fall into a dilemma and self-loathing because of a single sentence, a single matter.

He raised his head and looked at Xue Meng. His gloomy face had not yet disappeared, which caused Xue Meng to jump in fright.

“Oh, what are you doing, you dog? That kind of gaze at me? Do I owe you money?”

Mo Ran knew that he was in a good mood and couldn't recover it in a short while, so he forced a smile and said, "I ate too much, do you have something to say to Shizun?Then you guys can talk, I'm going out to get some fresh air."

"No, don't go. Sit down. This has something to do with you."

"It has something to do with me? What is it?"

The expression on Xue Meng's face was somewhat subtle. "Speak out and don't be disappointed…"

Chu Wanning said, "Alright, Xue Meng, just say it directly."

"Oh, oh." When Xue Meng, who had originally wanted to keep him in suspense, heard his Shizun's words, he immediately said, "It's like this. I just received an invitation. Song Qiutong is getting married."

Mo Ran's expression changed, and his face instantly lost all color.

However, the trembling was not because of Song Qiutong, but Xue Meng — In his life, Mo Ran knew very well what kind of trash Song Qiutong was. He wished that he could walk around her and pay her back with clean water.

But Xue Meng…

Why would Xue Meng believe that he would be disappointed when Song Qiutong got married?

Mo Ran felt his heart clench. Almost at the same time, he thought of the fake Gouchen who had been causing trouble all this time, the mastermind who had yet to surface and was hidden very deeply.

That person was most likely someone who had reincarnated. If that was the case, then that person would be very clear about the past of Mo Ran. He would be very clear about the sins that Mo Ran committed in his previous life!

Mo Ran's face was pale, but he forced himself to remain calm. He calmly looked at Xue Meng and asked, "Why is it related to me?"

"Don't you know that yourself?" Xue Meng's expression was somewhat strange as he said, "Today, the Rufeng Sect came to deliver the wedding invitation. That Miss Song even specially arranged for someone to send you a letter. You don't want to have anything to do with her, so why would she write to you? Mo Ran, I am not talking about you, but when did you offend her?"

"…" Mo Ran's emotions were difficult to calm. It felt like a thorn in his back. After a while, he said, "To me? Could it be that I made a mistake…"

"It can't be wrong."

As Xue Meng spoke, he took out an envelope from within his robes and slapped it onto the table in front of Mo Ran.

Mo Ran glanced at the envelope, his heart beating like a drum as countless thoughts flashed through his mind.

It was indeed Song Qiutong's handwriting, but why had he coincidentally met Song Qiutong in this life and fixed a letter for him before her wedding?

Xue Meng crossed his arms and said unhappily, "Are you going to break it off privately, or do you want to watch it with us here?"

"…"

Mo Ran turned his head to the side and saw Chu Wanning staring back at him with a frown on his face.

“Remove it?” Xue Meng couldn’t hold back his anger. He hated the act of messing around with a man and a woman the most, and it was somewhat overbearing.

If that was the case, there was no way to avoid it…

Mo Ran only felt a wave of weakness. His outstretched fingers were cold. He did not make a sound, but silently took the letter and opened it.

Ch. 147 Shizun, We Can Talk This Out

There was only a thin piece of paper inside, with a few words written on it.

Mo Ran took a glance and his heart dropped. He was almost relieved to find that his heavy shirt was soaked with cold sweat.

Xue Meng also came over to take a look.

“What?” With a single glance, he frowned, “How could this happen?”

“… Otherwise, what else would it be? I already said that I’m not familiar with her.” With ease, Mo Ran truly laughed. He placed the letter on the table and said, “You made the matter sound so weird, you’ve really fooled me.”

One of them was a carp essence, which was a disaster for the Dreamy Cloud Swampland. Because of its profound magic power and its desolation, many cultivators went out to fight, turning into bones that could be used to build caves.

Although the Dreamy Cloud Swampland was filled with demonic aura and was a place where demons could easily cultivate to the Exquisite Spirit Realm, carp were not animals with high attack. It was reasonable to say that demons that cultivated this kind of aura would not have such a strong killing ability. After battling with it for over eighty rounds, Mo Ran finally killed it under the effect of ‘the devil’. He cut open the fish’s belly and finally found out the reason.

“The carp essence from back then had a Wangshu Crystal in its abdomen. The thousand year moonlight condensed from this crystal is a top grade spirit stone. It can be used to temper weapons or to cultivate spiritual cores. It is a top quality spirit stone."

Chu Wanning said, "She's just a Butterfly-Boned Beauty, why would she want this for?"

"She said that she wanted to ask for her husband's Fire Spirit Core, but he's been cultivating too fast these past few years and is in danger of going berserk, so she didn't hesitate at all and wanted to ask me to buy the Wangshu Crystal as a dowry to help her husband suppress the evil aura."

Hearing this, Xue Meng nodded his head. "To think that she would ask her husband to be at peace even after his daughter has gone missing. Her intentions are rather hard to come by."

Upon hearing that, Mo Ran laughed, "Where did she get the money from? Wasn't she just asking for it from the Rufeng Sect? She was so good-looking and had spoken a few words in a soft voice, which martial brother could reject her? If it was you, could you?"

Xue Meng immediately opened his eyes wide. "Don't make me sound like I'm a fool."

"Don't be angry, I'm just making an analogy." As Mo Ran said this, he handed the letter back to Xue Meng. If one did not reply to the letter at the summit of the dead, it would usually have to be stored in a box in the Compendium Pavilion.

Xue Meng was stunned. "Archive?"

"No return? Then you can burn it."

“… No,” Xue Meng was getting a bit anxious. “She asked for a spirit stone for her wedding, but she didn’t ask for one for nothing. She said she would pay at all costs and was sincere. Why didn’t you sell it?”

“It’s not that I don’t want to sell it, it’s not useful for me to keep the Spirit Stone. But I’ve already given it to you.”

“To, to me?”

“Yeah.” He smirked and pointed at the saber, Longcheng, that was at Xue Meng’s waist and said, “Didn’t I send you a crystal a few years ago so that I could temper the Longcheng for you? The Longcheng today is no longer the same as the Longcheng from before. Aren’t you going to thank that carp spirit?”

Xue Meng’s mouth was agape and he was speechless for a long time.

“…”

He only knew that when Mo Ran traveled the world, he obtained a gem. However, he had never cared about where this gem came from. Towards Mo Ran, he was always holding back a breath. No matter if this person was evil or kind, he still retained a trace of unwillingness, a trace of rejection.

Therefore, when his father said that the gem Mo Ran had given him could help him ascend to the Longcheng, although he was grateful in his heart, he was also very aggrieved. He felt that he had been favored by his competitors for no reason, so he didn’t ask any questions.

Unexpectedly, Mo Ran had actually given him a priceless “heavenly weapon”. Xue Meng’s mood immediately became even more complicated, and he was unable to tell what he felt like.

After a long while, he finally said, “Thank you.”

“You’re welcome, you’re welcome.” Mo Ran smiled and waved his hand, “It’s just a coincidence.”

Xue Meng’s expression became even more unsightly, and he stubbornly said, “It’s not as if I’m thanking you, it’s that carp spirit that has lost its life. I thank him.”

“Hahahahaha, then in the future, don’t eat carp meat anymore. You must be generous to your benefactor.”

“Humph!”

After laughing for a while, Mo Ran suddenly thought of something and asked, “Oh right, who was Song Qiutong going to marry when you bluffed her? To be able to cause such a big commotion, he is merely a junior, to be able to make the Rufeng Sect send out invitation cards. Amazing, is she going to get married to the Bitan Manor?”

“That’s not it.”

“Not with Bitan Manor? I thought that old shizun of the manor was lustful and that the Rufeng Sect was on good terms with them, so I gave Song Qiutong to him.” Mo Ran smiled. “Which one is that? To be able to get engaged with the Rufeng Sect and even cause such a ruckus… It can’t be the Taxue Gong, right?”

“What are you thinking!” Xue Meng glared at him. “Why must we get married?”

Mo Ran was stunned. His smile froze as he asked, “Then who else can he be with?”

“How dare you! Have you forgotten, this wild horse Young Master of the Rufeng Sect is already old enough to get married. Song Qiutong is so beautiful, it’s not bad if it’s compatible with him…”

Before he could finish his muttering, Mo Ran suddenly stood up and exclaimed: “Nangong?!”

Xue Meng jumped in fright. “What are you doing?”

“She… How did she get married to Nangong Si? How could this be…” He was too shocked, Mo Ran’s heart was in turmoil, he was unable to calm down for a long time, he could only mutter, “Nangong Si…”

No wonder he had this reaction.

One had to know that at this time in his previous life, Nangong Si had already died from a serious illness!

All these years, he had wholeheartedly bowed down to the conflict among the refugees and had not cared about the matters of the famous sects and clans. Since he did not have many connections with the Rufeng Sect, he was naturally even less worried. It was only at this moment that Xue Meng suddenly announced to him the marriage of Song Qiutong and Nangong Si that he suddenly realized —

That’s not right.

All of this was wrong. The change in the fate of this world did not only happen to him, it even happened to the Rufeng Sect of Wind, which he did not seem to want to close.

Yet, the person who should have entered the coffin did not go in. Instead, it became a hot affair and he even wanted to marry his previous life’s empress as his wife…

This news was a bit shocking, and he was momentarily unable to swallow it. He began to choke.

Also, was Nangong Si blind!? To such a woman?

However, he still had to celebrate. He had to present gifts. Since Sect Leader Nangong had delivered the invitation card to him, how could he not go? The wedding banquet was set to be held on the 15th of the month. Xue Zhengyong had properly arranged the affairs of the sect and handed them over to the two Elders Tanlang and Xun Ji, preparing to set out on his journey to Linyi.

Besides him, due to the etiquette of the cultivation world, Madam Wang, Xue Meng, and Mo Ran all had to attend the meeting. In addition, Nangong Si specially invited Chu Wanning by name, saying that he had received some advice from the elder when he was young. He wanted the elder to show him some face, so Chu Wanning had to go as well.

“The Rufeng Sect is the number one sect in the world. Their Young Master’s wedding, all the reputable people in the world will come to celebrate.” Xue Zhengyong said, “The Sisheng Peak is usually free from trifling matters, but when encountering a situation like this, one must still discipline themselves and not let others see them as a joke.”

Xue Meng asked, “What rules? I think I’m good enough myself.”

Xue Zhengyong tugged at his bun and said, “It’s wrong to wear a crown like this. You’re wearing a golden one.”

“What happened to the gold crown?”

Madam Wang smiled sweetly. “Meng’er, this is your first time attending a wedding and you still don’t understand many things, so let me tell you, you better listen carefully, marry in the Upper Cultivation World. Only the groom is allowed to wear a gold headdress. If you wear a gold crown on your head, you’ll go and snatch the bride away.”

Xue Meng’s face suddenly turned red and he stuttered, “Snatch the bride? No, no, no, I won’t take the bride.”

Mo Ran then teased him,” And then we capture you and Miss Song and lock them in the small house, are you afraid?”

“You’ve only just been locked in the small house!” Xue Meng was ashamed and angry at the same time. “I won’t wear it!”

Xue Zhengyong said, “I can see that you don’t have a clear request to make for the wedding decorations. How about this, I’ll have someone order something for each of you. When the time comes, you can wear it.”

He paused for a moment, and looked at Chu Wanning in particular, and asked tentatively, “Yuheng, is it okay?”

Xue Zhengyong did not fear the others and would at most make a joke, but Chu Wanning was too used to wearing white, and if they did not mention him, it would be possible for him to attend the wedding. By then, Nangong Si would be so angry that he would vomit blood.

Chu Wanning agreed, “Sure.”

The evening before the departure, the wedding attire Xue had ordered for everyone had arrived. He had specially hired Linyi’s tailor to make these clothes. They were well-made, with dense threads, and very beautiful appearances. Even a picky person like Xue Meng nodded in satisfaction upon receiving the clothes.

Mo Ran carried a pile of clean clothes to the top of the southern peak, then he entered the Red Lotus Pavilion and said in a clear voice, “Shizun, Uncle entrusted me with the task of sending this set of clothes to you.”

He walked over to the lotus pond and saw Chu Wanning practicing his swordplay.

He recalled that Chu Wanning’s second weapon was a sword, but that sword was filled with killing intent. It had the power to destroy the heavens and the earth, so Chu Wanning did not use it lightly. However, the blade was not sharpened, nor was it skillful. Even if the blade didn’t have any chance to leave the sheath, Chu Wanning would still swing the other swords from time to time.

At this moment, the moon was cold. Perhaps it was because he was practicing his sword, but he took off his outer robe. Inside, there was only a white silk undergarment.

Instead of his customary high ponytail, he had pulled up his hair and tied it into a neat bun, making his face appear exceptionally spirited and thinner. When the frost bloomed, it was as light as a lotus illuminating the water, and when the cold electricity appeared, it was like a flood dragon tearing through the air, opening and closing, retracting and releasing, all pointed at the best advantage, and even with Mo Ran standing not far away, he could not find the slightest flaw.

All of a sudden, Chu Wanning’s eyebrows shot up as he pointed his long sword at the lotus pond. The water in the pond was cut in half by the sword's aura and was forced by the blade of the sword to stop moving for a long time. With a tap of his toes, his long body gracefully flew over the center of the water wave. His arms were spread open and his white sleeves were flowing. Like a fairy, he gracefully landed on the pavilion on the other side of the pond.

"Shizun!"

Mo Ran was afraid that he would run far away with another leap, so he hurriedly chased after him to the pavilion and called out to him. The bright moon hung high in the sky, and the night was a little cold. The tall haitang trees beside the pavilion were covered in snow-white petals, Chu Wanning stepped on the sharp end of the pavilion, his clothes somewhat spread out, revealing the jade moonlight. When he heard the commotion, he lowered his head, his eyes were black and bright.

"Why are you here?"

He narrowed his eyes as the night wind blew through the scattered strands of hair on his forehead.

"I'm here to give you some clothes. Why don't you try and see if they fit?"

Chu Wanning humphed lightly, suddenly remembering that Mo Ran had been reputed as a Grandmaster in this world. He had not fought with him after waking up, and his heart skipped a beat. In a flash, he flew down with his sword in his hand and shouted, "Try catching my sword first!"

Ch. 148 Shizun, A Natural Tease

Mo Ran was shocked. He did not expect that Chu Wanning would use this move. He hastily dodged and used his sword to cut his chest.

“Shizun wants to spar with me. At least try on your clothes first. Uncle is still waiting for me to return to him.”

“Let’s spar first, and then I’ll test the clothes.”

“Uncle is in a hurry. The tailor is still in the hall. If you want anything, you have to change it.”

“Then let’s hurry up and do it.”

“…”

This point was very similar to that of Xue Meng. They both competed in the heart of martial arts and it was extremely difficult to suppress them. As the two of them spoke, the long sword had already pierced several of the vital points of Mo Ran. It was fortunate that Mo Ran had been tempered for a long time and had dodged in time.

Otherwise, if he was not injured, his clothes would have been riddled with holes.

Suddenly, the blade of the sword landed on Mo Ran’s shoulder. Chu Wanning retracted his momentum and just raised his sword to attack him, “Mo-zongshi, is this all you’ve got?”

Mo Ran was forced into a corner by this person, he had nowhere to put the clothes in his hands and said with a bitter smile, “Shizun doesn’t plan on letting me go now, but bullies me instead?”

Chu Wanning’s eyes were like sharp knives, his brows were slightly knitted, “Do you want me to let you live a life?”

“Haha, that’s true.”

“… Are you going to fight or not?”

“Alright, alright, alright. I’ll fight, I’ll fight okay.” Mo Ran smiled and shook his head. Flames shot out from the tips of his fingers. “Jiangui, summon them!”

He had just grabbed hold of the willow vine, and with another sword thrust forward, Mo Ran flew back a few feet, and suddenly shot out a whip, wrapping itself around Chu Wanning’s sword hilt. Chu Wanning didn’t seem to mind. With a flick of his wrist, he broke free from the shackles and appeared behind Mo Ran in a flash. He raised his long blade and pressed it against Mo Ran’s neck.

Chu Wanning stuck closely to his back, looking a little gloomy, “You’re not paying attention, start over.”

His throat moved under the blade of the sword as he said with a low laugh, “Shizun, don’t be so hasty with your words. If you look carefully again, have I put in the effort?”

As the sound of his voice faded, Chu Wanning was startled to find that the burning willow vine had wrapped itself around his arm and was holding him firmly in place, not allowing him to move an inch.

Chu Wanning stared at his arm for a while. Suddenly, his eyes lit up.

“Hmm? That’s right, take it back.”

Mo Ran smiled and said, “How can you just accept it as you please?”

“What are you going to do?”

“I want Shizun to go change.”

Chu Wanning snorted coldly, “…Let’s decide who wins and who loses.”

As he said this, he poured his powerful spirit energy into his right arm, forcing Jiangui out of the way. Then, he suddenly flew backwards, creating a distance between him and Mo Ran.

For a time, the willow vine and the long sword clashed against each other in midair. The two weapons didn’t give any spirit energy, so when they fought, they didn’t have the spectacular momentum of the Spiritual Current colliding with fire and lightning, but each move was executed perfectly. Mo Ran was still holding onto the robe that he wanted to change for Chu Wanning with one hand, so Chu Wanning used his right hand to fight with the other.

Chu Wanning was breathing heavily, a drop of sweat was flowing through his pitch-black brows, almost reaching his eyes, but he was too focused on Mo Ran to be distracted. The sweat seeped through his eyelashes and into his eyes, and he endured not blinking.

The fighting spirit of the Beidou Immortal had been aroused by his disciple. He loved to fight and fight to his heart’s content. He was usually indifferent and cold, but it was only because he was hard-pressed to meet his opponent. Mo Ran was like a fire. With a boom, it lit up the entire pool of liquor. In an instant, flames lit up the sky.

At the end of their fight, their swords made ominous creaking sounds because it could not handle such a powerful impact. In the end, when they got close to each other in the air, it actually made buzzing sounds and broke into thousands of pieces of iron powder!

“The sword is broken.” Mo Ran said helplessly, “Do we still need to fight?”

Chu Wanning’s eyes were filled with the smoke of the beacon. He threw away the hilt of his sword and stood tall and straight with his white robe slightly open. He said firmly, “Fight.”

“…”

Before Mo Ran could react, Chu Wanning had already shot out a crossbow and an arrow. Like a cheetah in the forest or a falcon in the snow, he attacked Mo Ran. Mo Ran hurriedly retreated Jiangui. He raised his hand to block and the two of them once again used a new method to contend for the upper hand. It was a difficult fight.

Close combat was not the same as melee combat. Powerful men usually had the advantage, not to mention the fact that there was already not much of a difference between Chu Wanning and Mo Ran. Thus, this time, Chu Wanning was at a disadvantage.

Mo Ran smiled. “Shizun, stop fighting. If you don’t use your spiritual power, then to be honest, you can’t beat me.”

Chu Wanning was furious, “You are an arrogant renegade disciple!”

“If Shizun is angry, I’ll let Shizun have ten moves.”

“Mo Weiyu!” Chu Wanning became angry out of embarrassment, and his punches and kicks became faster and fiercer.

The haitang blossoms fell one by one, soft as the wind and the snow. Under the tree, the Shizun and disciple duo lashed out with their kicks, doing whatever they wanted. After another 80 or so rounds, Chu Wanning gradually felt exhausted — he had first practiced the sword for an hour before Mo Ran came, then he had used the weapon and Mo Ran to fight a hundred times. He was truly exhausted.

However, his eyes were very bright, and his heartbeat was very fast. His handsome face was filled with spirit and radiance.

The longer they fought, the more entangled they became. Chu Wanning suddenly turned to the side and used his elbow to slash towards the chest area of Mo Ran, but he was stopped by Mo Ran.

The two of them pressed against each other as their arms trembled…

Chu Wanning's arm was held so tightly by Mo Ran that his long, coarse fingers looked like they were going to crush him to pieces. Even his bones were broken.

The beast nature of Mo Ran and the desire to conquer him were also ignited. With a sudden burst of strength, he finally managed to control Chu Wanning's strength and then suddenly flipped his hand.

Chu Wanning was shocked. By the time he regained his senses, Mo Ran had already buried his body into his sweaty embrace.

"Do we still need to fight?" Behind him, Mo Ran's voice was laughing, his back pressed against his broad chest. His heart was pounding, and the young man's chest was hot as fire, solid as iron, like a rock that was about to melt him down. Mo Ran's lips were pressed against the back of his ear, and his breath was scorching hot, spraying all over the back of his bare neck. Since Chu Wanning had tied a bun around his head and no hair on his neck, he could feel the terrifying aura of a tiger or wolf, almost to the point of ripping his entire male body apart.

Due to his perspiration, the ruthlessness was intertwined with his embrace, and it was as moist as spring water…

“Shizun, are we still fighting?”

“…” Chu Wanning bit his lower lip until his eyes turned red.

fuck, he was unwilling!

Just as he was about to fight again, his lips were pressed down, as if by coincidence, a rough yet warm feeling caused goosebumps to rise all over his body. Chu Wanning’s hair stood on end as he shouted through gritted teeth, “Let go of me!”

Although his words were fierce, his body was trembling uncontrollably in Mo Weiyu’s embrace. Luckily, Mo Ran was unable to distinguish that he was trembling because of his exhaustion. In fact, Mo Ran could not protect himself, so how could he be distracted and discover Chu Wanning’s abnormality?

Chu Wanning heard his low and hoarse voice. It sounded like he was on the verge of breaking out into a deep smile, “After I let go, will Shizun be willing to go back to your room and change?”

Chu Wanning’s eyes reddened in anger, “……Let go!”

His evasion was rewarded with an even more forceful and brutal clamping. Chu Wanning’s arm was almost crushed into a dislocated position. His body went soft, and he couldn’t help but let out a hoarse moan.

This moan was too similar to a moan from a bed. Mo Ran froze for a moment, then his lower body immediately reacted. At this moment, he was very close to Chu Wanning. He was afraid that his Shizun would feel his anger at the hot and hard moment. How could Mo Ran dare to let Chu Wanning know? Instinctively, he pushed Chu Wanning away, not daring to continue suppressing him from behind.

The instant he let go of him, Chu Wanning was caught off guard. He hugged his arm that was in pain and turned his head to give him a powerful kick. With real strength, he threw the unprepared Mo Ran onto the ground. Mo Ran didn't expect the fellow to suddenly kick his butt. His entire body went numb as he laid on the floor. Feeling as though his ribs were about to break, he frowned in pain.

"Shizun, you're too…"

The victory was a bit unfair.

He didn't dare to say anything else. He forced himself to squint his watery eyes and tried his best to raise his head to look at Chu Wanning.

He saw that his Shizun's clothes were in a mess. The white silk robe had long since been opened due to the intense fight, revealing a firm and smooth chest that rose and fell with the rapid breathing. Chu Wanning was gasping for breath. He pulled on his messy clothes, his hair was in disarray, and his temples were in disarray. Due to the intense fighting, his eyes were slightly red.

Chu Wanning slowly stood up, looking down on him from above. His chin was slightly raised and his eyes were filled with arrogance.

He caught his breath and said, "You lost. It's useless to be tall."

Mo Ran did not know whether to laugh or cry. As he spoke, the corner of his mouth curled up into a bloody foam, “Didn’t I lose? Even my bones will be broken by Shizun’s kick.”

“…”

As he said this, Chu Wanning felt a little weak. He had been enjoying the fight, and he did not remember if his last kick had stopped yet. He bent over and pressed his chest bone, “Where did I kick?”

“Here…”

“Does it hurt?”

“…” Of course it hurt, but he wasn’t a fifteen-sixteen year old boy at the moment.

Seeing that he was not in a good mood, Chu Wanning grabbed the stack of clothes. With his other hand, he tried to lift Mo Ran up, but unexpectedly, he had exhausted too much of his strength. Mo Ran was heavy and high so he didn’t pull him up, instead his whole person fell on Mo Ran’s body. He heard the groan of the man below him, and quickly sat up. Without thinking, he went to check Mo Ran’s injury.

“Does it hurt?” Chu Wanning’s face turned pale.

“Get off me first.”

Luckily, he was still able to speak. It seemed that he wasn’t dead yet.

Chu Wanning got up in a hurry, but those who were weak would find it difficult to get up once they fell. His legs were actually soft, and they were unstable, not standing still.

He fell back down in a sorry state.

At first, Chu Wanning didn’t notice, but at the moment, he was only wearing a thin layer of silk, and this position was very awkward. As soon as he moved, he felt that there was something huge sticking out of his body.

Ch. 149 Shizun, I Can't Stand Up

"…" Chu Wanning was speechless.

Mo Ran: "…"

Almost in a panic, with an unknown source of strength, Chu Wanning got up abruptly. His lips quivered as his face alternated between green and red. It was as if he was extremely shocked, and frightened.

The mighty and prestigious Elder Yuheng, to think that he actually, really seemed to have been shocked.

Mo Ran's heart was instantly thrown into disarray. He felt extremely uneasy. He clutched his chest, which was in so much pain from the kick, and sat up. He carefully said, "Shizun…"

Chu Wanning took a big step back as if his tail had been stepped on.

It must have been hard on him to be able to open his phoenix eyes so wide.

It seemed like he was really shocked…

Mo Ran smiled bitterly, "I'm sorry, I'm not… I…"

He didn't know what to say.

In fact, it was Chu Wanning who was the most shocked. What do you mean by 'I am not'? What am I? How could Mo Ran react? Was he mistaken? But if there was no response, how hard and big could he usually be? That would be more.

Suddenly, he thought of that damned ranking list. There were four words written on it.

This was definitely not a common thing…

Chu Wanning's face turned completely red. He saw that Mo Ran still wanted to say something, so he raised his hand and said, "Don't say anymore, you can go back now."

He endured the pain and got up. When he got up, he maintained his half-kneeling posture and said in a low voice, "Shizun, I'm sorry, I didn't do it on purpose."

"…" Chu Wanning looked at him with a complicated expression. He looked like he was thinking about a lot of things, but in reality, his mind was stuck on the word 'definitely not normal'.

After Mo Ran had ran away, Chu Wanning stood still for a long time.

The fine hairs on his arms stood on end, and he seemed to be in a daze.

He suddenly recalled that when they went to the Jincheng Lake to ask for a sword, he accidentally wrestled while bathing in the hot spring, and they also encountered him accidentally. However, they only came into contact for a short period of time, Chu Wanning wasn't sure if he was mistaken or not, but just now, Mo Ran personally said that he was sorry, and that it was an accident, which also meant that he was really… Desire. It wasn't an illusion.

Although he knew that it was normal for men to want to burn because of what they saw in front of their eyes, Chu Wanning knew from his own heart that he wasn't that attractive. There were many more people in the world that were more handsome than him.

…… What's there to look at?

Even though he was confused, the creepy feeling between his legs would not fade. Even though there was a layer of clothing between his legs, it still seemed so fresh and ferocious.

In the midst of all the jumbled thoughts, a thought suddenly popped into his head at the wrong time.

He couldn't help but think, if such a ferocious beast was thrown out of the cage, who would be able to withstand it…

Chu Wanning clenched his teeth gloomily, but the blush on his face could not be hidden as the contents of his eyes were blurry and messy.

It was as if he had been set on fire and was being entangled by hot flames.

He stood outside for a long time before returning to his room. Chu Wanning took off his bun and bit down on his lips. He raised his hand and rearranged his long hair, tying it tightly into a ponytail.

He heaved a sigh of relief and raised his head to look at himself in the mirror.

The phoenix eyes were narrow, and when he wasn't smiling, there was always a domineering and ruthless feeling, not pleasant to look at.

The nose is not too high, the curvature is gentle, the outline is not very vivid, not likeable.

His mouth…

Forget it, this mouth was just like the words that came out of his mouth. It was very thin, and its color was cold. There was no warmth within it, and of course, it was also unlikeable.

Who knew what kind of madness Mo Ran was, to be so fervent.

Chu Wanning had always been a conservative person who didn't know much about matters of the heart. Even when he met those books, he felt that they were dirty, so he stared at the mirror and tried to figure out what was going on.

Forget it.

Then, he might as well forget about it, Elder Yuheng, who had never experienced love before, thought to himself. After all, it wasn't necessarily true that men would only react when they were in love. Perhaps this was just a coincidence.

The next day, Xue Zhengyong and Madam Wang stood in front of the mountain gate, waiting for the arrival of the other three guests. The first person to come was Xue Meng. He usually wore the Bluesilver Flexible Armor on the Sisheng Peak, always appearing to be sharp and overbearing.

However, he was dressed in an elegant and dignified ceremonial robe today. He had combed his hair very simply, leaving behind only a jade hairpin. His entire demeanor was a bit different. He was dignified, and his shoes were elegantly made of clogs.

Seeing his parents, he actually felt a little embarrassed. He tugged at the corner of his sleeves and said, "Father, Mother."

Xue Zhengyong couldn't help but exclaim, "Meng'er is so pretty, he's basically carved out of the same mold as your mother."

Madam Wang had a pair of beautiful eyes that dropped downwards. Her face was a little red from being praised like that by her husband.

She waved at Xue Meng and said, "Come here, Meng'er. Come here."

Xue Meng stood in front of her. She raised her head to look at him for a while, and her eyes seemed to contain the passage of time, wasting away time. After a while, she lightly sighed, "This dress looks white and very nice on you."

Xue Meng laughed. "It's all because my mother was born and raised."

"All you know how to do is talk like your father." As Madam Wang spoke, she felt somewhat sorrowful. "In the blink of an eye, more than twenty years have passed…"

Xue Meng seemed to have anticipated what she was going to say next. His smile suddenly froze, and he subconsciously took half a step back.

But what use was half a step like this? He still couldn't avoid his mother's nagging.

Sure enough, Madam Wang pulled him along and said earnestly, "Meng'er, today we are going to the Rufeng Sect to congratulate Young Master Nangong. Look, you and him are around the same age, shouldn't you be at the age to discuss marriage?"

"Mother, I still don't want to get married yet…I don't have anyone I like…" Xue Meng mumbled.

“Mom knows you don’t have anyone you like, so you should pay more attention to other girls when you go to the meeting. They don’t necessarily have to be rich or powerful. As long as someone is good and you like them, your mother will definitely make sure to find someone to matchmake for you.”

Xue Meng’s face turned red.

“You haven’t even said a single word. How could I, your mother, directly think of a matchmaker?”

“Mother only mentioned it…”

“But I don’t like anyone. Mother, just speak of those girls we’ve seen in the cultivation world. They’re not even as good-looking as me. If I marry them, won’t I suffer a loss? Not marrying, not marrying, not marrying.” Xue Meng’s head shook like a rattle drum. Suddenly, an idea came to him, and he said, “Besides, why did you just urge me? Isn’t Mo Ran a year older than me? Why don’t you worry about him? And my Shizun—”

“What realm is Elder Yuheng at? Are you going to compete with him?” Madam Wang found it somewhat amusing. “Alright, I won’t force you. That’s all Mother said. She wants you to take a look, but if you really don’t like her, then forget it. Mother can even tie you up to go to school?”

Xue Zhengyong thought about it for a while and said, “But I think Meng’er is right. I mentioned to Yuheng about a cultivation partner last time.”

“Huh?” Hearing this, Xue Meng was very surprised. “Father, you mentioned this to Shizun? He didn’t fall out with you?”

“So hostile.” Xue Zhengyong laughed bitterly, “He kicked me out.”

Madam Wang, "…"

Xue Meng laughed loudly. "Like I said, my Shizun is an immortal, not an heavenly god. Someone like him has long since lost his passion and desire. What does he need a cultivation partner for?"

Xue Zhengyong sighed, obviously not resigned. He was about to argue with his son when suddenly, Madam Wang covered his mouth with her sleeve and said softly, "Husband, don't say anymore. Elder Yuheng is here."

In the undispersed morning mist, Chu Wanning slowly walked on the wet stone floor, his robe was as wide as a mountain, and his sleeves were fluttering.

As he moved, the golden threads of his robe began to ripple under the sunlight. His hair was tied with a white jade hairpin, and the end of the hairpin was inlaid with a plum flower carved from a ruby. He looked very pure and dignified, as well as cool and aloof.

At that moment, Xue Zhengyong suddenly felt powerless. He opened his mouth and closed it.

He thought that Xue Meng was right.

What kind of woman would be placed beside such a person, so that she wouldn't be annihilated by his brilliance and be covered in dust because of his imposing manner?

The God of Heaven walked to the mortal world and stood in front of the mountain gate. He frowned and glanced at Xue Zhengyong.

"Sect Leader."

“Haha, Yuheng, your clothes really suit you.”

Chu Wanning raised his hand, a scented sachet with intricate patterns was swaying in the air. He said, “This scented sachet that was delivered along with the ceremonial robe is different from the usual one.”

“Ah, that was according to Linyi’s skills. What happened?”

The high and mighty Elder of the Heavengod Society slightly frowned. He said, “It’s too difficult. I don’t know how to do it. I hope that Sect Leader can give me some pointers.”

Xue Zhengyong: “…”

He taught Chu Wanning three times. Chu Wanning still couldn’t get around the knot, and finally gave up. Xue Meng could not bear to watch any longer, so he volunteered to help his Shizun tie the scented sachet. He quickly put the sachet on his waist, and Chu Wanning looked at it and was a little surprised. He praised, “Not bad.”

Xue Zhengyong couldn’t help but think, “Oh my god, if such a person didn’t have a cultivation partner, would he really not die in his own hands?”

After a while, Mo Ran came down, his face was a a little afflicted. Yesterday, Mo Ran was kicked too hard by Chu Wanning, so he was too embarrassed to find someone to treat his wound. Others would ask who had kicked him, but he could not say that he was being disrespectful to Elder Yuheng, right?

He could only meditate and rest. He was feeling better now, as his chest didn’t hurt so much that he had to breathe.

However, he saw Chu Wanning, who was standing beside Xue Zhengyong, quietly waiting for him. This man was dressed in a suit of gold silk embroidered in white. His collar was pressed very high, and he was both restrained and solemn. He was a very proper and handsome man.

Mo Weiyu felt a movement in his chest. His breathing, which had calmed down with great difficulty, seemed to have stopped. He was unable to catch his breath and became disordered.

“Cough!”

This was terrible. He had fallen in love with a man he could never, never, never touch again.

This time, the old ghost of the second reincarnation was really like a young man in his early twenties. He was impulsive and hot-blooded, and would feel the world was in chaos because of a glance from his lover, or the change of a piece of clothing, or the happiness he would experience would be related to him. The sadness was related to him, his heartbeat was related to him, his breathing was related to him, even the moonlight shining into the window, the line of stamens attracted by an ant in the moonlight was related to that person.

He felt very tormented and aggrieved in this kind of affection.

Because every flower and leaf was him, but he could not get it, and could not pick it.

Fuck, the human world was making things difficult for him.

After temporarily handing over all the matters of the sect to Elder Tanlang, Xue Zhengyong was on his way with his wife and invitation card.

As long as Chu Wanning was on schedule, they would usually travel in carriages, and this time was no exception. The group of people leisurely walked along the public road towards Linyi. They were sightseeing along the way and even helped to get rid of some of the smaller monsters.

It took them more than ten days to reach Dai City.

The rouge in Dai City was famous. Once in the city, Xue Zhengyong took Madam Wang to buy rouge first. Xue Meng despised the old couple for being so bored. He rubbed his goosebumps and refused to follow them.

The Shizun and disciple duo sighed as they revisited the place.

Xue Meng said, “Unfortunately, Shi Mei is not here. Otherwise, it would be just like when we were begging for the sword six years ago. We could still go to the Dawning Peak to play.”

Mo Ran laughed, “Aren’t you afraid that the fake Gouchen will still be there? Seeing that you’ve come, I’ll pull you to the bottom of the lake to reminisce about the past.”

After speaking of the fake Gouchen, Chu Wanning frowned, “It seems like he hasn’t made a move in the past five years?”

Mo Ran said, “It’s hard to say. There were a few large incidents that occurred, but they were all related to the Divine Martial Realm. I suspect it was him, but there’s no evidence either.”

Xue Meng played with the cup in his hand, looking at Mo Ran and said, “I actually don’t think those pending cases have anything to do with him. Think about it, a few years ago, he spent a great deal of effort to find a Spiritual Body. Since you are a Wood Spirit Body, he chased behind you to harm you, so he should be looking for a human and not a weapon."

Chu Wanning said in a low voice, "But there haven't been any cases of people disappearing in the past five years."

Mo Ran raised his hand: "I didn't encounter any kind of encirclement or trap. But it could also be that I've been wandering around for the past five years and he doesn't know where I am."

The three of them pondered in silence until the Lady Boss brought them the tea leaves and dried fruits. Then Xue Meng scratched his head and said, "Say, could he have done too many bad things and died playing with fire?"

"…"

"Don't look at me like that, aren't most evil spells easily devoured?" Xue Meng mumbled, "Otherwise, why is it that even after five years, he still hasn't made any big movements?"

Mo Ran suddenly said, "There is one possibility."

"What?"

"Look, Shizun hasn't done anything in the past five years."

Before Mo Ran could finish his sentence, Xue Meng knocked him with his chopsticks. "What do you mean? You suspect that the fake Gouchen is Shizun?"

"… Can you wait for me to finish?" Mo Ran said helplessly, "I'm just making an analogy. I was thinking that if those cases of the theft of a godly weapon had nothing to do with the fake Gouchen, then he really didn't do anything important in the past five years. Then, could he be the same as Shizun? For some reason, such as him being injured or some other reason, he must stay in some place and not come out."

At this point, he suddenly thought of something and froze.

"Shizun…"

"What?"

Mo Ran first shook his head, as if he did not believe his thoughts. But after a moment of hesitation, he still stammered out two words, "Master Huaizui…"

For the past five years, he did not know about the other experts, but there was one person who was trapped in the Red Lotus Pavilion like Chu Wanning, not even half a step away.

Master Huaizui.

However, this idea was too outrageous. No matter what, Master Huaizui had done Chu Wanning a favor by imparting his knowledge to him. Mo Ran did not know what kind of feelings his Shizun held for Huaizui, so he did not dare to be too rash.

"There's no need to think about it, it can't be him."

His words were light, but there was no hesitation.

Mo Ran immediately nodded his head. Since Chu Wanning didn't want to talk about the past when he was a boy, he wouldn't force himself to ask.

He continued to ponder, “Then, are there any other experts who have never appeared in the past five years?”

“Guyue’ye’s head, Jiang Xi.” Xue Meng said, “In the Spiritual Mountain Competition, all the Sect Leaders are present. Only he claims that he is sick and rarely shows himself.”

Mo Ran laughed, “That’s your mother’s shixiong, right? You suspect him?”

“Jiang Xi has a very high opinion of himself and has never been willing to let Guyue’ye stay under the Rufeng Sect. Thus, ever since Nangong Liu became the head of one of the top ten sects, he has not attended any gatherings. It’s not just five years.”

“Then that’s all.” Xue Meng said, “Sigh, forget it. If you can’t figure it out, then forget it. There are too few clues, so thinking about it makes my head hurt.”

It just so happened that Madam Wang and Xue Zhengyong had returned. It was already late at night, so the five of them prepared to find a place to stay in Dai City.

Xue Meng said, “I know an inn that is especially good. There is also a hot spring pool that we can soak in.”

Mo Ran: “…”

Using his brain, he already knew which inn Xue Meng was talking about. Wasn’t it the same inn they had stayed on when they were teenagers?

When he was bathing in the hot spring, he had fallen into Chu Wanning’s arms without a reason…

Thinking of this, he could not help but lightly cough and silently turn his face away. He did not want others to discover the slight blush and anticipation in his eyes, but his heart involuntarily began to beat faster.

Xue Meng always exaggerated the things he liked and was blind to its faults, whereas the things he hated gets stepped upon so hard that they will never recover. Xue Zhengyong felt that his sons words were only to be half believed, so he asked Mo Ran, “Ran’er has also stayed at that inn before, what do you think?”

Mo Ran coughed twice, and did not dare to look his uncle in the eye. “It’s not bad.”

“Then go and stay.” Xue Zhengyong made his decision. Mo Ran then sweat on his palms, his fingertips curling up from the throbbing of his heart.

He lowered his head and gave a seemingly tame and gentle “En”. But in his heart, he was thinking, “I…” Could he soak in the bath together with his Shizun again, just like that year…

He could not help but recall the blurry mist. Chu Wanning’s tall and handsome body was lined and taut, filled with an alluring and aggressive tension.

However, if he was in the same bath as Chu Wanning and was shrouded in the steam, would he really be able to hold it in?

After discussing where to go, the others had already stood up. After eating the peanuts in his hand, Xue Meng also dusted off the pieces and stood up. He turned his head to look at his cousin, who was still sitting there with an unfathomable expression.

“What’s the matter, let’s go?”

Mo Ran’s expression was somewhat subtle. It was unknown whether it was due to the setting sun, but his handsome face seemed to have turned red.

He reached out his hand to pour himself another cup of tea, and refused to stand up. He continued to sit there awkwardly, and said with a few light coughs, “… I’ve not finished after ordering so much, I don’t want it to go waste. You guys go first, I know the way. After drinking the tea, I’ll come over.”

Ch. 150 Shizun Change Rooms With Me

Speaking of which, this small town was famous for its Dawning Peak. However, after the fake Gouchen's incident that happened back then, Jincheng Lake's weapons were all destroyed. In the blink of an eye, many years had passed, and the small town gradually became lonely.

Many of the inns that were used as lodgings for the swordsmen had closed their doors because their business was in a bad mood. They had started other businesses instead.

However, the inn where the Shizun and disciple stayed in that year, the hot spring pool, was still tenaciously surviving. Moreover, because of Young Master Nangong's wedding, the guests who came to congratulate the Rufeng Sect would all stay in Dai City.

Xue Zhengyong pushed aside the bamboo curtain and walked into the lobby. "Boss, going to stay here!"

"Four people?"

Before Xue Zhengyong could answer, he heard a soft voice from behind him, "No, five."

Mo Ran had left in a hurry, and had arrived just at this moment.

When Xue Meng saw him, he was somewhat surprised. "So fast?"

At first, Mo Ran was taken aback, but then his face darkened as he thought angrily to himself, "Are you going to disappear very slowly?" Sitting in front of the tea stand, he had read out a few words about the mind cleansing spell.

However, he also knew that what Xue Meng said and what he was thinking were not the same. It was not good to flare up, so he could only nod his head rather subtly.

“You’ve swallowed all the melon seeds at once, haven’t you vomited the shells?”

Mo Ran: “…”

“Five guests, how many rooms do you need?”

Xue Zhengyong said, “My wife and I will share a room, and we’ll have another three rooms of the highest quality, a total of four rooms.”

Listening to his uncle’s arrangement, Mo Ran remained silent, but his heart was slightly agitated. He actually secretly hoped that the conversation with his uncle from back then could be repeated. The boss told them that the restaurant was full and that they had to squeeze together.

Forget it, he still could not do anything. However, if he could be alone in the same room with Chu Wanning, he would feel warm, uneasy, and excited. In the end, the blood that flowed in his veins was still the blood of tigers and wolves.

However, coincidences didn’t happen that many times. This time, the shopkeeper happily said, “Good job, four rooms!” He turned over and went to the cabinet to get the key. He drawled: “Dear guest, the second floor, please do —”

Mo Ran looked at him in silence, his eyes gloomy.

Stupid thing, he thought, four rooms and you’re so happy? What’s there to be happy about! What’s there to be happy about! What was there to be happy about earning more money!

“A-Ran, why are you pinching the tabletop on the other side of the counter?”

“…” Mo Ran calmly retracted his hand and smiled. He had already made a few cracks on the floor where the board had fallen. He was afraid that if he used more strength, it would shatter. “Nothing.”

When he took the key from Xue Zhengyong and went upstairs, Mo Ran stood in front of the room that belonged to him and was suddenly startled.

Turning his head, he saw that Chu Wanning was also looking at him.

“You live in this room?”

“Um… Yeah.” Mo Ran hesitated for a moment, his eyelashes drooped, but he still couldn’t help but raise his eyes to look at Chu Wanning’s face, “Shizun still remembers?”

“… Remember what?”

Mo Ran pointed to his own room and said, “When we came to ask for the sword, Shizun slept in this room.”

“…”

Mo Ran carefully looked at him, his voice very patient, but he could not conceal his weak anticipation. “Shizun, do you still remember?”

How could he not remember?

As he walked up the stairs, he noticed that the old staircase was creaking. It smelled like old wood being soaked in water and rotting away.

He could almost see the teenager, Mo Ran, pushing open the door with a cynical expression, grinning at him. The dimples were shallow, and the years were long.

Seeing him keep silent for a long time, Mo Ran seemed to be disappointed. He lowered his gaze and said, “Perhaps I remembered wrongly and confused it…”

“That’s right.”

Mo Ran suddenly raised his head.

Chu Wanning looked at him and gave a faint smile, “You’re not mistaken, it’s this one.”

The sentence was like a spark igniting the darkness in the depths of Mo Ran’s eyes. Mo Ran gradually cracked a sweet smile, as if he had eaten a candy. He pointed to the room Chu Wanning was in now and said, “Also, Shizun stays in my old room today.”

He was very happy, but he spoke frankly.

Chu Wanning was a little embarrassed, but he stopped laughing and said sullenly, “I can’t remember.”

As he spoke, he pushed the door open and shut off Mo Ran.

“…”

Uh… What did I do wrong to make him unhappy?

That night, Mo Ran did not dare to go to the bathhouse to soak in the hot spring. There were some things that he was afraid of, just in case. He felt that he was close to the limits of his desire.

He laid on the bed with his head resting on his arm. He was bored and started to think about how he and Chu Wanning would get along.

He wanted to be nice to him, wanted to take care of this snow-white kitten. However, he would roll up his fur a few times and the white cat would trade him for a paw. It was as if he was not comfortable touching him and was not satisfied.

He felt guilty, but he didn't know where to touch or where not to touch the cat. He was like a man who had just raised a cat and knew nothing but how to lick the whole white cat under his palm.

Then, he let out a furious roar, and gave himself another slap.

Mo Ran rolled over and blinked his eyes, looking very depressed.

He suddenly recalled that the layout of the inn, the bed in the next room and his own room should only be next to a wooden wall.

The moment this idea appeared, Mo Ran could no longer fall asleep. He felt his mouth going dry.

Had Chu Wanning gone to take a bath? Or was he preparing to go?

However, he didn't hear much from his room… If Chu Wanning did not plan to take a bath, would he have been lying down by now? Then they were actually very close to each other now. If it weren't for the thin wooden partition in the middle which separated them by two rooms, they would actually be lying down together…

Lie down together. The thought made the young man's blood hot, flowing dangerously like a dormant volcano, but not gushing.

He could not help but sleep further in. He slept close to the wall, which was made of wood and mud. The wood was so thin that it was at most three fingers wide.

Mo Ran thought that Chu Wanning was lying about 3 feet away from him. He took off his clothes, or perhaps he was just wearing a thin undergarment… He closed his eyes and swallowed something down his throat. He felt as if his heart was burning, covering his entire body and burning to the corners of his eyes. He did not open his eyes, but if he did, there would definitely be traces of blood inside.

Ah, and then he suddenly remembered something else — it had been so exciting that his whole body tensed and blood was rushing down his lower body.

He had once, slept in the same bed as Chu Wanning.

The old memories were so damp, so sinful and sweet, that Mo Ran's scalp tingled as he recalled the incident. He thought back to that year when he was soaking in the hot spring and accidentally fell into Chu Wanning's arms. The hot and dry feeling would never go away, so he could only rub himself against the wall and let out his desire for love…

Mo Ran slightly opened his eyes. His eyes were gloomy. The dark area was like a rock, but there was also scarlet red lava flowing under the rock. He pressed his forehead against the wall again.

His heart felt like it was about to burst. Why was he so silly all those years ago? It was clearly such a bright desire and love, why… I just can't find it…

He pressed a hand against the wall, trying to restrain himself, but he could not.

When he thought he wasn't in love, he could think about Chu Wanning venting his anger without restraint, but when he fell in love, he was destined to beg for the life of the man who was separated by a wall. Even when he was dreaming, he felt that it was a blasphemy to Chu Wanning.

His nose was pressed against the wall, and his body was boiling hot as he pressed his body against the thin wall as hard as he could. His thoughts were in a mess, and his eyes were blurred.

It was as if Chu Wanning's breath, along with the faint fragrance of haitang from his body, had seeped through the gaps of the wood pattern and seeped into his bed, wrapping him tightly.

The smell of Chu Wanning seduced him and pitied him.

The beast that seduced him pitied his humanity.

To seduce him and set him on fire, he felt pity for him.

Amidst such enticement and pity, Mo Ran painfully furrowed his brows, supporting himself against the wall with his hands. His joints were clearly defined, and his veins were popping out one by one.

Contrary to his violent expression, he was begging with a whimpering voice, "Chu Wanning…Chu Wanning…"

What he did not know was that on the other side of the wall, Chu Wanning did not dare to bathe in the hot spring.

The two of them had misunderstood each other so deeply in their past life that they were separated by a huge abyss. Therefore, in their lifetime, they had used their blood to water the abyss into a sea of blood and swam towards each other. However, because of a barrier, they could not see each other's surging emotions, and could only allow their love to flood by itself.

But they had clearly stuck it so close.

It was so close to Mo Ran that he seemed to have heard Chu Wanning's heartbeat. As for Chu Wanning, he seemed to have heard Mo Ran's breathing.

Knock, knock, knock!

Mo Ran was shocked and didn't seem to be in a good mood. "Who is it?"

Hearing his shout, Chu Wanning, who was sitting next to him, realized that Mo Ran was really sleeping close to him, close to the wall. His hoarse voice sounded as if he was crying right next to his pillow.

"…" Chu Wanning clenched his fingers and opened his phoenix eyes in the darkness.

"It's me, Xue Meng. My mother said she left me with your luggage, so you should open the door. Just wait for me to take a bath."

Eavesdropping was not a good thing, but Chu Wanning thought to himself, he did not eavesdrop. It was because the wooden board was too thin, the room was not soundproof, and it was because Xue Meng shouted too loudly.

In short, he didn't want to listen.

As Chu Wanning thought of this, he wrapped himself in a blanket and leaned even closer to the wall.

The creaking sound of a bed came from next door. After a while, the door opened, and Xue Meng's voice sounded again: "Hey, why are you already asleep? So early?"

"I'm sleepy." Mo Ran felt a little choked. "Hurry up, you woke me up halfway through my sleep. Take your clothes and let's go for a walk."

"Why are you in such a hurry?" Xue Meng paused for a moment, his voice carrying a trace of suspicion. "You left the door latch so early and kept bored inside. I was just talking to you and you got angry. You couldn't be…"

What are you doing?

Chu Wanning suddenly opened his eyes wide, unconsciously thinking about how in the lotus pond, he accidentally rubbed against Mo Ran. That youth was overly passionate and high-spirited, ready to take a person's life at any time.

If a young man in his early twenties didn't cultivate the path of abstinence like him, how much lava would he be hiding within his body? How often does it have to be vented before it's normal? This was something that Chu Wanning did not know. He had been quiet for too long, he did not understand.

Now, he wanted to know a bit, but he couldn't let go of his pride due to his thin face.

He was such a prideful person, yet he asked such a question. Who else could he ask? He couldn't just grab a disciple and say, "Sorry to bother you, but I would like to ask an ordinary able-bodied man, how many days should I release him?”

…… Just by thinking about it, he felt that the other party was ineffable.

Of course, at the Sisheng Peak, there were books related to love affairs. But to borrow every book, one needed to register and create a book. Chu Wanning could not imagine the words that would appear in the book.

“The Legend of the Wise Sea” and “The Sea of Desires and the Floating Record”

Borrower, Yuheng Elder Chu Wanning.

…… Just kill him.

Ch. 151 Shizun, I Only Want You

>>sexual content

Just as he was lost in his thoughts, he heard a low voice from the neighboring Mo Ran say, “Where are you looking? If there’s nothing wrong, I’ll grab your clothes and quickly scram.”

Xue Meng froze for a moment. “I want to see where you are?”

Mo Ran: “…”

Xue Meng looked at his cousin’s face and pondered for a long time. Suddenly, he thought of something. “What I was going to say, you left the door locked, do you think there are too many people in the bath house? If you want to take a bath in your own room, your head is full of dirty thoughts!”

In the next room, Chu Wanning’s face darkened.

His mind was filled with dirty thoughts…

Xue Meng let out a heavy sigh. He stared at Mo Ran as he sized it up before saying, “I hadn’t thought of that kind of thing at first. Just saying it in this way is actually reminding me of something. You couldn’t have really been…”

“… Aren’t you bathing? So much talk!”

“No, I suddenly feel that you’re very suspicious.” Seeing how hostile the other person’s tone was, with sparks burning in his black eyes,

Xue Meng felt that something was wrong. “When you first became a weakling, you ran all the way to the brothel. All these years, you’ve been walking everywhere, yet there wasn’t even the slightest bit of romance. How did you suddenly change your personality?”

“…” Mo Ran seemed to be silent. Chu Wanning waited in this silence, he actually also wanted to know how Mo Ran would answer.

The longer he remained silent, the more agitated he became. Why didn’t you say anything? Embarrassment? Regret? Or…

“Do you really want to know?”

Mo Ran opened his mouth, his voice clearly filled with anger.

He still had the face to be angry.

Chu Wanning was amazed. He felt that Xue Meng’s question was reasonable, there was no reason for him to be unhappy just because the other party dug out their secrets, so he just tried to cover it up.

Before he could finish his last cover, he heard Mo Ran say, “I’m sick of it. I’ve had enough. Alright, you can scram now.”

“…” Chu Wanning was speechless.

Xue Meng, “……”

After a long period of deathly silence, Xue Meng burst into an angry roar that the entire inn would probably hear, “Mo Weiyu, you shameless dog! You scoundrel!”

“Fine, whatever you say is fine. Get out, and don’t fucking disturb my sleep.”

“Don’t touch me! I hate it!”

“What do you hate?”

He had originally wanted to make Mo Ran feel uncomfortable, but who would have thought that Mo Ran would shamelessly rebel against the army? He couldn’t help but think that he was already in his twenties, at this age, Nangong Si had already become married to the number one beauty of the cultivation world, and Jiangdong’s fourth Young Master was already the father of three children, and the Mei Hanxue of the Taxue Palace on Mount Kunlun…

Mei Hanxue hadn’t died of Flowering Willow Disease yet.

It seemed that he was the only one who had yet to experience love affairs. Xue Meng felt very aggrieved.

It wasn’t that he was sullen because of his lustful nature, he wasn’t lustful at all. Instead, he felt that he was much worse in this aspect. He had left more than ten streets behind, which was why he was so angry. If Mo Ran didn’t mention avoiding it, if he was deeply ashamed, then Xue Meng’s mentality would probably be different. However, Mo Ran actually threw a sentence at him with a look of despise and annoyance on his face.

“I’m sick of it, I’ve had enough.”

Young Master Xue felt that he couldn’t take it anymore, and his pride had taken a blow.

He said, “You, you, you,” and after a long time, he angrily shouted at Mo Ran, “You are annoying anyway, you are not human!”

As he spoke, he slammed the door.

Chu Wanning also choked. Although he was calmer than Xue Meng and could hear that Mo Ran was deliberately bullying Xue Meng, he could not help but feel a surge of emotions and could not calm down for a long time.

The man next door used words that were too crude, and the low growl was like a lion’s breath bursting out of the muscles of the jungle. The low growl combined with the coarse word, and like a crude, hot poker, it plunged into his heart.

Chu Wanning’s throat moved, his eyes were gloomy and flickering.

Before, Mo Ran had broken the rules while strolling in the brothel, so he knew that Mo Ran was not as pure as Xue Meng. It was just that the previous Mo Ran was not enough to capture one’s soul, causing him to be unable to stop himself from thinking and depicting such a scene in his mind.

But now that the old story was brought up again, Chu Wanning could not help but think of the hot, smooth, smoky, and sturdy body that he had seen before. It had been coquettish with those charming, white, and alluring young men.

He felt like he was once again burning with anger, and his heart felt like it was being scratched by feathers.

In the midst of his anger and desire, Chu Wanning’s eyes were slightly red. In the dark night, there was the color of a flower…

Xue Meng returned after leaving.

“Open the door!”

“… What’s the matter again?”

“Busy arguing with you! Where are my clothes!”

“Take it from the table.”

“Humph!” Xue Meng carried his clothes and angrily left.

This time, it was finally quiet. Chu Wanning heard the heavy footsteps of Mo Ran, then the creaking of the bed. This time, he could clearly hear the man next door lying back on the bed, he even felt the shaking of the bed supporting his hot mountain-like body.

He felt thirsty and wanted to get up and drink a glass of water.

But he heard Mo Ran lying down, and he knew that if he got up, the man would be able to hear him too, so he stayed still, like a piece of rock with a cold exterior and colorful rocks inside.

Next door, Mo Ran was actually feeling uneasy.

Men who were dissatisfied with their desires were always irritable, yet Xue Meng chose to disturb him at this moment. He kept going back and forth without controlling himself. He shouted without shame just now, but he didn’t know if Chu Wanning heard him or not.

If he wasn’t asleep, he must have heard it…

He lay on the bed, regretting his decision the more he thought about it. He turned his body back and forth and Chu Wanning listened to his restlessness from behind the wall.

After a while, Chu Wanning heard a low voice, “Shizun…”

In the end, Mo Ran was unable to calm himself down. He could not suppress his anger, so he tried to call for Chu Wanning to see if he had any reactions.

“Shizun, are you asleep?”

“…”

“Can you hear me?”

Chu Wanning’s heart thumped like a drum. He felt that his heart was beating too loudly, making him feel embarrassed. He quietly pulled the blanket over his head and tried to cover his heart which he could not hear at all with a quilt.

“Shizun…”

But this quilt, the sound of Mo Ran was so close, it was as if they were lying on the same bed, the moment Chu Wanning lifted the quilt, he could see his handsome face and his bare chest, looking at him sideways, his eyes shining like wolves and tigers, staring at him hungrily, wanting to devour him along with his belt and blood.

“Can you hear me?”

Chu Wanning made up his mind to pretend that he didn’t hear him. He naturally knew that Mo Ran was hoping he didn’t hear his question.

Otherwise, they would be embarrassed when they met tomorrow morning.

The man called out to him a few more times. Seeing that Chu Wanning had not moved, he sighed softly. Mo Ran really thought that Chu Wanning had fallen asleep. He was relieved, but also a little regretful.

He wanted Chu Wanning to take care of him.

However, Chu Wanning ignored him. First, he caressed the thin wall that separated the two of them with his rough fingers and closed his eyes, as if caressing his chest. Then, he touched his hot lips and murmured softly, as if he was touching his lips.

Mo Ran said, “No need. I just want you…”

But the sound was too light. Chu Wanning did not hear it. He wrapped himself in the blanket and rolled himself up on the bed. His face and heart were very hot, and after a while, he heard the sound of the bed next door creaking, as if the person lying on it was very anxious and had turned over in anger.

He said, “Fuck it!”

Chu Wanning had the sensitivity of an animal, he could predict what he might hear. For a moment, he felt the hairs on his body stand up, and he wanted to cover his ears. However, he only moved his fingertips before lowering them.

He stared blankly in the quilt, and, after a while, he heard.

He heard the low, hoarse breathing coming from outside of the blanket. The breathing was rhythmic, violent, and urgent. A layer of goosebumps appeared on Chu Wanning's arms, and from this sound, he felt as if his spine was going numb and soft.

Mo Ran's breathing was so sexy, so sinful, choked in his throat, repressed and unrestrained. He could hear the sound, and there was nothing he didn't understand.

Chu Wanning closed his eyes. He felt suffocated, his lips trembling slightly.

He thought of the wet dreams he had had many times, the dreams in which he had seen Mo Ran's body, naked. Thus, when he closed his eyes, he could clearly see what was happening outside the blanket. He felt that Mo Ran was right beside him. His robust and well-built body was lying on his back, and his inky black eyes were squinting as they flickered with a hazy luster…

Mo Ran's hands stretched down, untied his pants, and the angry cockhead popped out. Chu Wanning did not dare to think about the shape of the giant, but only roughly depicted a contour, imagined the furious flesh red. He held the life-threatening thing moving, rolling with Mo Ran's prominent throat knot, swallowing saliva, wondering who he was thinking about, so passionately and painfully pleasuring himself.

"Ah…"

Chu Wanning heard the deep groan of the man next door. It was deep and sexy. His scalp felt numb. In the darkness, his phoenix eyes were steaming with lust.

He couldn't stand it anymore…

After several struggles, the slender white hand of elder Yuheng eventually stretched out, trembling, and reached down, holding his already boiling length.

The rough touch made him feel ashamed but also stimulated. He raised his throat slightly, suppressed a gasp, and under the cover of the bedding, faded the cold skin. He floated in Mo Ran's gasp and was brought into the sea of desire. He treated himself clumsily and roughly. He hurt himself several times, and finally he could not bear it any more. He threw open the bedding, hung down on the bedding surface and grind it. Rushing, rubbing, long legs shaking, eyes half open and half closed, falling a few wisps of wet and sweaty hair, lips open, silently breathing heavily.

Maybe because he was suddenly exposed to the air, he could hear more clearly, or maybe he was confused. Either way, his listening became more blurred. He seemed to hear the wet sound of water, thinking it was the motion of Mo Ran next door, but when he looked down, he found that it was the crystal secretion oozing from the top of his own tip, which lubricated his palm and made an obscene noise.

Chu Wanning's face was even hotter. He looked sideways and did not face the wall, so that he would feel Mo Ran beside him, pleasuring and loving each other's naked bodies.

His loftiness and reservation had already collapsed. He could only hear the breath from next door and feel the pleasure under him. He could not stand the stimulation of eroticism even if he tried to. Every inch of his skin was sensitive. He longed to be close with another burning body. He was like a dry well that had dried up for a hundred years, hungry and thirsty.

With the voice of the next room becoming more and more urgent, Chu Wanning felt his heart burning, waist becoming more and more soft, legs almost unable to support himself, his body fluids had already wet the sheets. He vaguely felt that all this was ridiculous, that he shouldn't be doing it, but he could not help but feel too good. He had never tried it in so many years, and didn't know there was such a pleasurable thing.

If he once relieved himself in the past, he would suffer from the first break of the precepts, feeling bored and nauseous. But this time, apart from the loved one, he heard the repressive and sexy breathing of the other side, he did not feel so ugly, but could feel more pleasure in the ups and downs of the sea of desire, rather than excluded.

He opened his wet and misty eyes slightly, and a few strands of hair drooped over his eyes.

Gradually he lost his focus, and for some reason flashed some strange phantom before his eyes.

Or maybe not a phantom?

It's the weird, too real dreams he's had before.

In his dream, the bedding was golden and red, and the smell of animal skins between pillows and quilts seemed clear and visible. He was lying on the bed like this, sweating on his forehead, lips slightly stretched out, hair scattered and falling in front of his eyes.

The candle was not extinguished. The man behind him thrusted fiercely into him. Their legs and feet were overlapping and entangled. He could clearly feel the man's tense bones and muscles because of the stimulation.

The bedding sheets were out of place. The men could not help stirring and twitching around. Sexy and hot gasps overflowed from their throats. He heard him speak behind him: “Why don’t you say a word? Moan for me”

Dreams and reality overlapped and Chu Wanning clenched his teeth. Even in the accumulation of ferocious desires, emotions can not be curbed, but also inclined to face unwilling to open.

He closed his eyes and his movements became more violent.

He closed his eyes, but could not forget the details of those dreams.

After several times of pulling in, the man scolded, and then stepped back. Strong and powerful hands forced Chu Wanning to turn over. In the light of the lantern, he saw a handsome, lustful face. It was Mo Ran’s face.

Because Chu Wanning clearly depicted Mo Ran in his dream, he felt more and more tortured and excited. He shook his head almost in shame, trying to get rid of the phantom in front of him.

But it was no use.

He heard Mo Ran’s gasp across a wall.

Like the rough and lingering man in his spring dream, he was silent and hot.

He even recalled shamefully the details of the dream, turning him over in Mo Ran, a wet and sticky cock against his spasmodically contracted hole, a huge tip rubbing at his entrance, shallow thrusts, but not yet penetrating inside.

In the inn, Chu Wanning's other hand, which had never soothed his desire, tightly grasped the mattress.

Shame.

He felt extremely humiliated.

How could he have such a dream?

He obviously did not… He has never seen anything like this before… How can you dream something so real, as if this body had really carried such hot and crazy, ugly and lingering passion? Is this the animal nature carved into bone marrow by human beings?

"You are stubborn, do you think you can keep your innocence forever if you bite your lips and keep silent?" His dreams are full of Mo Ran and wet eyes, with a somewhat grim look, and full of erotic desire.

"How many times have you been with me? What about the struggle? It's you who want me to fuck you. It's you who want to be fucked under me."

"Stop talking…"

Dream, reality.

They were all murmuring.

"What if you were noble? You were already dirtied by me, holding me, sucking me, spreading your legs and letting me thrust into you, and all that I gave you. Innocent? Don't be silly. When you went to bed with me on the first day, this word was no longer related to you."

"Don't say that…"

Clean.

No more innocence.

Pride.

It’s like a torn shirt.

“You really ought to see what you look like below…” Mo Ran’s eyes moved down inch by inch, like a sharp knife cutting the person under him. At last, his eyes fell on the trembling and convulsing hole, which was still smeared with body fluids and blood.

His eyes became deep and his throat was swollen. He cursed in a low voice, held his angry cock, and then slowly thrust in again, stretching the shrunken entrance one inch at a time.

Strange to say, Chu Wanning, floating in the memory of this spring dream, seemed to have really produced an illusion, as if he had a tough blade of flesh and blood impaling and filling him up inside…

Mo Ran went deep, inserted to the bottom, even his ballsack was close to the mouth of the hole and could not wait to go in, a huge sexual organ suddenly stretched him to the extreme. He felt that he could no longer withstand even a slight penetration of that length pulsing in his body.

“Ah…”

Dream? Or reality?

Eventually a moan overflowed, and it was this moan that made Chu Wanning suddenly wake up.

The illusion was rapidly dissipating and the smoke was vanishing.

The last thing he saw was that Mo Ran was thrusting into him fiercely on top of the bed. They were almost madly mating on the mattress. He heard Mo Ran gasping roughly; his voice was hoarse and hot: “If you were a woman, with how I fuck you every day, you would have already been pregnant with my seed… Oh, you, bearing my son, should we call it a sin?”

Shame, stimulation, animal desire, human nature.

Inside his room at the inn, Chu Wanning turned over and seemed to want to get rid of such a dirty scene in his mind.

Suddenly he felt very wronged.

Why was it that his eyes were reddish?

He had never dreamed of these things before. He had never seen anything he should not have seen. He had never even seen an erotic picture. Why did he dream of such an absurd and shameless spring dream? What would he do if it was known?

The memory of the dream disappeared, but the bed next door suddenly shook, and Mo Ran kept going for a long time before Chu Wanning. At this time, the pleasure accumulated. When he wanted to spray thin, he could not help but stiffen his strong waist and make an involuntary gesture. He was really holding back for too long and let out in a low roar.

Chu Wanning heard his hoarse growl and was stimulated. He almost looked red and wet. He moved himself roughly and could not help coming on the bedding.

He had never experienced such an exciting orgasm, the end of ejaculation.

He could not help but gasp and shout out, "… Ah ah…"

Suddenly he wanted the wall to disappear, to have the same sweaty Mo Ran leaning over, his heaving chest against his back, gasping, kissing his shoulder, his neck.

After releasing, his vision blurred. Chu Wanning did not know how he fell into such a sticky situation. He had no strength left, so he laid on the quilt with a dazed look in his eyes, gasping for breath.

He rejected desire.

However, he was willing to be in love.

When desire and love intertwined, lust seemed to become less difficult to accept. As a result, the self-reproach vent from Yuliang Village finally became different. He still felt ashamed, but shame was swallowed up by the warmth in his heart, swallowed up by comfort and excitement.

Suddenly he wished for the wood wall to disappear and for the same sweaty Mo Ran to lean forward, for his rising and falling hot chest to press against his back, gasping, kissing his shoulders, his neck.

Chu Wanning lay there in a daze. He thought, if that was the case, then everything would be perfect.

Then he would be enough.

The next day, Mo Ran woke up early.

This was Linyi, Chu Wanning wasn't used to eating spicy dishes, and there weren't any light dishes in the tavern, so he went to the west market to buy ingredients and borrow the kitchen to cook some food for his Shizun.

In this world, there were some men who pursued others, using all sorts of tricks. A single breakfast would be enough to fill the entire banquet, but as long as they saw that they could not catch up, they would immediately turn around. There were so many beauties in this world, how could they spend even the slightest bit of effort on an object that was absolutely impossible to catch up with?

But Mo Ran is different.

He had spent two lifetimes chasing after his Shizun.

Now that he understood his own intentions, he knew that he would never be able to have a relationship with Chu Wanning that surpassed Shizun-disciple level. However, he was still willing to do it, and he treated him well day after day.

He knew better than to do anything. Even after his death, he had never changed.

“Young Master, why are you out so early to buy vegetables? Take a look at this radish, do you want to buy some? But it’s already watery.”

“Young Master, look at the decorations here. There’s a sword in your hand, a necklace and a hairpin. There’s everything. The craftsmanship is excellent.”

“Come, come, let’s take a look. All kinds of spirit stones are necessary to temper weapons. Come, come, come —”

Mo Ran had intended to leave after buying some food, but he carried a full basket of vegetables and walked past a grocery store. On the counter, there was a pile of beautiful and fragmented items. His gaze was attracted by one of the items. Unknowingly, he walked over and stopped in front of the counter.

On the other side stood a man wearing a hat and a hood. He was sizing up a wide variety of goods.

The man raised his hand. Beneath his black sleeve was an extremely pale, exquisite, and beautiful five fingers. Because of those five fingers, Mo Ran noticed this person.

He looked at his body and thought it was a man, but when he saw the hand, he also thought it was a woman.

Thus, he turned his head and curiously sized up this person's appearance. However, he only saw a black veil covering his face, revealing only a pair of clear and cold eyes.

The two looked at each other, and Mo Ran smiled at him out of habit.

The man withdrew his hand that was about to touch the stone in front of the stall. Out of the corner of his eye, Mo Ran saw a ring on his thumb.

Silver snake markings, thick scales.

He suddenly felt that the snake pattern on the ring looked somewhat familiar. When he looked more carefully, that person had already retracted his hand from his wide sleeve. He calmly glanced at Mo Ran, then wordlessly turned around and left.

"What a weirdo…" Mo Ran muttered. However, the Young Master of the Rufeng Sect was overjoyed. With so many wedding invitations, all sorts of weird figures were rushing to Linyi. This sort of person, who was covered with a cloak, was actually nothing much.

At this moment, Mo Ran heard the wind chimes from the back door of the shop. The curtain was lifted and lowered as the Lady Boss came out.

Mo Ran then threw the matter of the black clothed man to the back of his mind. He smiled as he pointed to one of the spiritual tools and asked, “Lady Boss, how much is this?”

Ch.152 Shizun, Look! Mei Hanxue!

The Lady Boss just released the door latch and yawned as she lazily stretched, preparing to start a business. Her eyes were sleepy. Suddenly, she saw the bright morning light.

A tall and handsome man was standing in front of her shop. He clearly had an air of grandeur and a posture that was as straight as a pine tree. He should have been accompanied by a sword and a knife.

However, this handsome man was smiling. The dimples on his cheeks were light, and his eyelashes were thick and gentle.

In his arms was a bamboo basket. Inside the basket were neither spirit stone materials nor magic scrolls, but a basket of fresh and tender fruits and vegetables. The apple was red, the radish was white and fat, and the lettuce was verdant and lush. The dew on them glistening. Against his handsome face.

His handsome face.

The Lady Boss's yawn was frozen in place. She stared blankly at the sight of the iron-blooded and the gentle side in front of her. She blinked for a long time, unable to recover from her shock.

"Lady Boss?"

"Ai ai ai, what do you want?"

"That's it." Mo Ran picked up a pair of light red crystal pendants and asked, "How much?"

“Young Master has good eyesight, these pendants are made from top-grade Dragon Blood Crystals, carved by the craftsmen of Kunlun Sword League. Although the materials are not expensive, the pendant itself is very special, Young Master definitely knows about Dragon Blood Crystals, it will turn red with the temperature of the wearer…”

At this point, the Lady Boss laughed. “Since the cultivator has taken a liking to a pair, he probably wants to be each of his companions, right? I wonder which nun is so blessed to be able to climb up to you. If you buy the pendant, you definitely won’t lose anything. When you go back, each of you will put it on.”

Originally, Mo Ran wanted to buy a pendant, but he thought that the Dragon Blood Crystal was the best way to nurture a cold body.

But hearing the Lady Boss’s words, his heart was moved. He thought of Chu Wanning who had a captivating look on his face. The pendant was bright red from his Shizun’s excessive body temperature, like a bead of blood on a knife.

He coughed lightly and said, “Let’s wrap it up for me.”

In order to prevent Chu Wanning from feeling strange, Mo Ran bought gifts for Xue Meng, Xue Zhengyong and Madam Wang. When he returned to the inn, he put down all the random things on the table and took out the small paper bag with the Dragon Blood Crystal wrapped in them. There, the water droplet shaped pendant on his head had already turned crimson due to his high temperature.

After doing all this, he straightened his clothes to ensure that the pendant did not show up. Then, he picked up the remaining one and wrapped it again.

He touched his chest and felt that his heart was beating fast. He had experienced all sorts of ridiculous things in his previous life, but now he was flustered because of a little hidden secret under his clothes. He could not help but feel surprised.

“For me?”

During the meal, Xue Meng took out the tasseled short sword (dagger) that had been gifted from Mo Ran, revealing an expression as if he had seen a ghost.

“Why did you give me this? It can’t be that you want to apologize to me for yesterday’s matter, right?”

Speaking of last night’s incident, because he did not know Chu Wanning was awake, Mo Ran was quite calm and did not show any signs of emotion.

Chu Wanning, on the other hand, could not take it anymore. He picked up the teacup and drank a few mouthfuls of cold tea in an attempt to calm himself down.

Mo Ran smiled at Xue Meng, “What are you thinking? You obviously provoked me first. This is something that I thought was pretty, so I bought it for you to wear and play with.”

He paused before continuing, “It’s rare to be able to come out together with you. At least I have to buy some things. I bought them for Shizun and Aunt too. They’re all small things and aren’t worth much.”

“We have one too?” Madam Wang appeared very surprised.

“Auntie’s is a saffron box, Uncle’s is a folding fan pendant.” As he spoke, he handed over the Dragon Blood Crystal to Chu Wanning, “And this one is for Shizun.”

“… What is it?”

“A pendant. The Dragon Blood Crystal can dispel the cold. Linyi produces this kind of stone and I bought it for Shizun to warm his body.”

Chu Wanning took it. This stone was not expensive, but it was very easy to use. He said, “Thank you.”

“Don’t thank me, Shizun, why don’t you put it on for me to see?”

Chu Wanning glanced at Mo Ran, but he did not see the intimate look in Mo Ran’s eyes. It was only natural that he wore it around his neck. The light red crystal was shining. As Xue Meng looked at it, he could not help but say, “It’s nice to look at. This one is good. It’s better than my sword. Where did you buy it? I want to get one too.”

Mo Ran said, “No, there’s only one. I can’t buy it even if I wanted to.”

Xue Meng was greatly disappointed. He picked up his tasseled sword and looked at it, then turned his head to look at the Dragon Blood Crystal around Chu Wanning’s neck and mumbled, “… I don’t believe it, in any case, Linyi has a lot of these things. When we arrive at the Rufeng Sect, I will go and ask Nangong Si. He will definitely have a lot more of them, piled up like a mountain…”

Mo Ran ignored him and looked at Chu Wanning. After Chu Wanning put on the pendant, he did not hide it into but left it hanging on his lapel. After a while, he could not hold it in and said, “Shizun, this pendant is not for the outside.”

“Hmm?”

“It should be in you.” As he spoke, he leaned over to help Chu Wanning put the pendant in. He got too close to him and his breath burned his ear. He pushed Mo Ran away.

Chu Wanning lowered his eyes, his expression was solemn and cold, but this time, Mo Ran looked more carefully. He saw a layer of red from the haitang blossoms around Chu Wanning’s ears, both pitiful and adorable, making people want to kiss it, sucking and licking those trembling petals.

Mo Ran was surprised. He was thinking, why would Chu Wanning blush?

He didn’t seem to be doing anything excessive. If it was helping him with the pendant, then it was nothing…

He thought about it carefully and recalled what he had just said.

“It should be in you.”

Mo Ran was stunned for a moment and his face suddenly turned red. If it wasn’t for the fact that his skin was darker than Chu Wanning’s, it would have looked even more red than his skin.

He swore that when he said those words just now, he really didn’t want a double entendre…

He suddenly felt astonished, thinking that he did not think wrongly. How could a righteous person like Chu Wanning think wrongly?

Mo Ran pondered over this, but he was unable to come up with an answer no matter how much he thought about it. Even when Chu Wanning stuffed the pendant into his clothes without saying a word, his face was expressionless and his ears were bare. He could not figure out what was going on.

Last night, there was a three-finger-wide wooden board wall, causing Taxian-Jun to miss out on too many wonderful scenes. He missed out on spring sunshine, green impurities, and even missed out on Chu Wanning, who had fallen into a quagmire of love and flesh. He did not know anything about what had happened in the bed, so of course he did not understand. At this moment, Chu Wanning was still immersed in yesterday's quagmire, throbbing with love, ashamed for love, sensitive for love.

Because of that dream, because of the wet and hot words in the dream, because of that tiny thought that he did not want anyone to find out, he had uncharacteristically misread that simple sentence.

Chu Wanning raised his head and looked at him, feeling the heat in his heart. The evil fire from yesterday had yet to completely subside, he stretched out his hand.

The beam of the teapot was caught by Mo Ran.

"Drink less. This tea is too cold, it hurts the stomach."

"…" Chu Wanning was silent. He looked at him, his hand still outstretched, indicating that he just wanted some cold tea.

"I'll get you a hot one."

"There's no need…"

However, Mo Ran had already gone to find the shopkeeper. After a while, he brought out a pot of boiling hot tea and poured a cup for Chu Wanning, “Shizun, please drink this.”

“That’s right. Yuheng, drink some hot tea. It’s not cold at all. It’s really helpful.”

Chu Wanning had no other choice but to accept the cup of tea. He blew on it but didn’t drink it. Instead, he placed it by his side.

His heart was already burning.

If the heat continued, he was afraid that the last layer of ice in his eyes would melt as well. When the endless spring water overflowed and he raised his eyes to look, he would no longer be able to hide his shameful thoughts.

Then where else could he put the face of the Immortal Elder Yuheng?

When they were about to leave the store, a group of people came in.

The leader was wearing a light blue straw cloak that covered his face, making him look very low key, so he was not noticed by the crowd. However, when he entered the inn and saw Xue Zhengyong, he took the initiative to walk over and bowed to him.

“Hello, Uncle Xue.”

“You are…”

That person took off his cape and hat. Xue Meng saw him and let out an “ah.” He took a big step back. Xue Zhengyong laughed. “Aiya, isn’t that Hanxue?”

Mei Hanxue raised his head. He was born with a fair skin and a high nose, distinct eyebrows and profound eyes. He was quite handsome, clearly different from the rest. This person's skin was extremely good. Even though the room was dark, he still emitted a faint glow. Perhaps it was because he had grown up in the ice-cold snow of Mount Kunlun since childhood, but his face was drenched in a frosty aura.

All in all, based on his temperament, no one would believe that he was that renowned seed of romance, Mei Hanxue.

"There's something going on at the palace. This humble one only came to Linyi today. I didn't expect to meet Uncle Xue here." Mei Hanxue was too cold. Although he politely smiled, his eyes were clear and cold. "This nephew will pay his respects to aunt and uncle."

"Very, very good, alas, if only Meng'er had been as polite as you."

However, when Xue Meng heard this, he was not happy. He kept shooting poison arrows at Mei Hanxue with his eyes, each one more vicious than the last.

He thought to himself, This grandson, Mei Hanxue! One in front of the other! He was clearly a cold rogue that didn't care about eating both men and women. Back then, at Peach Blossom Springs, he had reached out his hand to touch his waist, but now, standing in front of his elders, he acted like a prideful monk, this guy was really good at acting!

However, Mei Hanxue didn't even look at his young playmate. He only lowered his eyebrows and narrowed his eyes, even his lips didn't move slightly. He said in an extremely orderly manner, "Uncle must be joking. Young Master Xue is the pride of the heavens."

“That’s right, father. This fellow was defeated by me…”

“Meng’er…” Madam Wang was rather embarrassed as she reached out her hand to pull Xue Meng. Only then did the irritable Phoenix finally mutter nothing, but his nostrils still burned.

Mei Hanxue asked, “Uncle, are you leaving for the Rufeng Sect?”

“It’s about time. It doesn’t matter if we go earlier or later. Nangong Liu doesn’t lack a room. Didn’t he say that every month before and after the wedding, a whole city was vacated for the guests to settle in?” Xue Zhengyong laughed, “Let’s go over and take a look first, so that the juniors can interact more with each other.”

As he spoke, he glanced at Xue Meng, implying that he wanted to find a wife for Xue Meng.

Xue Meng, “…”

“Won’t Hanxue go directly to the Rufeng Sect?”

“Shizun has asked me to buy a lot of Spirit Stones so I will stay in Dai City for a few more days. I will go the day before the wedding.”

Xue Meng muttered in a low voice, “You clearly feared that it would be over soon. Those righteous members of the famous sects and schools that you failed to meet, chased you and beat you up into a dog.”

Mo Ran’s ears pricked up as he laughed, “Mengmeng, what did you say? What dog?”

“…”

Xue Meng harrumphed and crossed his arms. “It’s nothing. I’m still meditating.”

“Pfft, I’m afraid you’re reciting the plum blossom cultivation method.”

“Keep talking nonsense!”

When Mei Hanxue heard his words, he finally glanced at them. Xue Meng’s eyes met his, and he suddenly froze —

He felt that something was wrong. This Mei Hanxue was very strange. The last time he saw him at the Peach Blossom Springs, the grandson’s eyes were filled with flowers. Those eyes seemed to be laughing when he was angry.

However, the eyes of the person in front of him, not to mention seeing, there were no ripples at all. His entire being was cool, neat, restrained, and even when he was smiling, his eyes seemed to be filled with anger.

Xue Meng blinked and paused for a moment. He thought of the battle in the Heavenly Rift. Mei Hanxue and the Taxue Palace disciples had come to help. In front of the crowd, everyone was acting all serious. He couldn’t help but be furious. How could this guy act so well? Why was he acting like this? This was truly the heart of a beast with a human’s face! A scoundrel with a gentle face!

“Hey, Meng’er, where are you going?”

“The room is too stuffy! I’ll wait outside for you guys, and come out after we’re done talking!” As Xue Meng said this, he strode to the door, lifted up the curtain, and angrily walked out. The son of heaven really felt wronged.

He was puzzled. The room was filled with the smell of human scum. How could no one else see it?

How infuriating!

Ch.153 Shizun's Most Hated Sect Leader

Infuriating or not, he still had to hurry on his way.

After bidding farewell to Mei Hanxue, they ascended from Dai City and walked for over an hour before finally arriving at the world's greatest sect — the Rufeng sect of Linyi.

It could be seen from the name that according to Linyi, the Rufeng Sect had built 72 Ethereal Immortals' Residence in the city. Because the mansion was too big, from the front door to the back door, riding a horse would require a whole meal's worth of time, so these residences were simply called "cities". Even someone like Xue Meng, who hated the cultivation world to his bones, couldn't help but be shocked when he stood at the city gate.

Heaven decorated the Rufeng Sect gate.

These words were true.

They came to the main city, which was also the largest city in the entire Rufeng Sect. The white wall, Deva, from the top to the bottom, from the four corners of the tower, towering in the sky, from all four directions with stars and stones in the north, south, west, and red painted on it. The main city gate was extended by five feet of road, a long road without an end in sight, paved with top-grade Qi Refining Stones.

Xue Zhengyong sighed, "It's good to have money…"

Madam Wang laughed. "You want to lay down a path of refinement at the Sisheng Peak even with money?"

“No, I will make a plaza in every village in the lower cultivation world. This stone is full of spirit energy, and normal ghosts would not dare to approach it. If we can make one in every village and encounter some demons, our disciples would be able to hide in time.” Xue Zhengyong mumbled to himself as he counted with his fingers. He shook his head and said, “Unfortunately, I can’t afford it.”

Hearing this, Xue Meng sighed as well. “The Sisheng Peak, alas, is a bit poor.”

“Yeah.” Xue Zhengyong nodded his head like he was pounding garlic, “We all cultivate our path, I wonder where the Rufeng Sect got so much money from.”

At this point, Chu Wanning, who had been silent all this time, spoke, “Does Lord knows how much is an ordinary disciple of the Rufeng Sect asking for to get rid of demons?”

“I’ve never asked around. How much?”

Chu Wanning extended four fingers.

“Four hundred silver?” Xue Zhengyong’s eyes widened. “That much?”

“Four thousand gold,” Chu Wanning replied.

“…”

“There are a lot of wealthy people in the Upper Cultivation World. It’s easy for the Rufeng Sect to earn money, but with the Sect Leader’s 80 silver method of earning money, how can we catch up to them? Moreover, sometimes Sect Leader doesn’t even take a single cent.” Chu Wanning said, but his eyes were gentle, “Let’s go into the city.”

Large sects tended to treat people with respect. Recently, the Si Li Division of the Rufeng Sect had been waiting at the city gate. Although they were all smiling at everyone, they were very clear on the importance of the guests.

A small wandering cultivator would accompany them on a tour around the area before bringing them to their residence. As for the smaller sects, they would bring them to see the head Protector Elder, which would then receive them.

As for the top of the top ten sects, the Rufeng Sect did not put on any airs and directly invited them to the Warm Pavilion to rest. After the Rufeng Sect's leader, Nangong Liu, was done with his work, he would come to the Warm Pavilion to meet the distinguished guests.

The pavilion burned with the fragrance of dragon saliva, and the soft carpecould almost cover half of one's feet. Inside the pavilion were alluring camellias, eight of which were of the same color, the Eight Immortals Crossing the Sea, and the White Petals Dotted with a rosy red. It was made of red makeup, and the stem of the petals were stained with red silk.

Xue Meng also did not understand. Seeing that one of the tea leaves was so lovely with a pair of black spots on it, he felt it to be fun and reached out his hand to touch it.

Chu Wanning said, "Don't move."

"Why?"

Chu Wanning didn't say anything and just shook his head. Madam Wang sighed and said, "Such a precious item would sell for more than ten thousand taels of gold."

"…" With an ashen face, Xue Meng retracted his hand and then slumped into the cushions of his teacher's chair.

He thought back to the ranking list he had seen in the bookstall before. Back then, he was still angry because he wasn't among the top 100 young elites of the cultivation world, but now, he felt that that book was sincerely deceiving him.

On his forehead, there was actually a huge character that was covered in black air.

Poor.

But then again, he didn't know where the book had gone. He hadn't even finished flipping through it before he'd lost it…

After a while, the curtains made of red coral and freshwater pearls began to creak, and two dainty ladies, dressed in snow-white gowns, arrived, lifted the curtains, dropped their eyes and bent their knees, their voices like the warbler's.

"The Sect Leader Immortal has arrived."

With that, a man in his forties walked in with a smile. His appearance was ordinary and somewhat bookish, like someone who would drown if thrown into a crowd of people. Other than his fair skin, there didn't seem to be anything else to say.

However, the moment he opened his mouth, Mo Ran that was sitting there almost spat the tea out.

"Aiya, Sect Leader Xue, Sect Leader Xue, I was anticipating at the stars, anticipating at the moon, hoping that you can come to Rufeng Sect soon.

Look, this time, you are extremely handsome and imposing, a hero of the world, who can compare to you! Great, great, great! Great! Great! Alright!”

Xue Meng, “…”

Mo Ran: “…”

The dignified head of the number one sect in the world, against the last ranked dead leader of the top ten sects, he was actually sparing no effort and giving praises without restraint. Each of the three “good” words was more generous than the last.

Xue Zhengyong, of course, enjoyed the praise he gave to him. He smiled and said, “No, not at all. Sect Leader Nangong is being too polite.”

“There’s no need to be polite. Merely a sincere admiration for Sect Leader Xue. He is a hero of his generation, majestic, awe-inspiring, capable of making others submit to him.”

Nangong Liu’s words were filled with enthusiasm. Xue Zhengyong originally wanted to hold it in, but the tail of the peacock couldn’t hold it in and started to move on: “I don’t dare, I don’t deserve it. Haha, hahahaha, Sect Leader Nangong is too modest.”

In his previous life, Mo Ran had never interacted with Nangong Liu before. When he was slaughtering his way through the Wind Gate, this person quickly ran away. Mo Ran could not be bothered with this random fish and did not care if he died by his saber, spear, and stick, or escaped to hide his identity for the rest of his life.

This was the first time in his life that he had such close contact with Nangong Liu. However, when he saw his tone, Mo Ran disliked it. He lowered his voice and said, “So the sect leader of the world’s strongest faction has a mouth.”

Xue Meng heard him and unexpectedly agreed with him. He said in a low voice, “That’s right, the moment he opened his mouth, he truly has a sharp tongue. I can’t smell even the fragrance of flowers in the room. Tsk tsk, what’s left is only the sweet taste of Nangong Liu’s mouth.”

After Nangong Liu finished praising the old, he came to praise the young.

“Aiyo, isn’t this the pride of the heavens, Young Master Xue?”

Poor Young Master Xue Meng was quite poor.

He cupped his hands in an indifferent manner: “Sect Leader Nangong.”

“Truly a young and handsome hero! Powerful! Look at this nose, these eyes, tsk tsk, spirit! As expected of a tiger father doesn’t have a dog son!”

Xue Meng, “…”

Nangong Liu turned around and said to Xue Zhengyong, “Brother Xue, I am truly envious of you. Look, across the entire world, which Young Master has half an inch of air for a son? Speaking of me, in such a vast cultivation world with so many outstanding youths, if your son is ranked second, then no one can be considered as number one!”

Xue Meng was originally carrying the basket and loathed him, but Nangong Liu acted as if he didn’t see the distance between the two of them. He threw a basket full of warm praises at Xue Meng, causing the perfectly fine Young Master Xue to faint.

When he once again whispered to Mo Ran, he said, “Cough, this Sect Leader Nangong, although he is exaggerating a bit, he is speaking the truth.”

“What truth?” Mo Ran found this funny. He squinted his eyes and said, “what if I say you’re number two, no one would dare claim to be number one?”

“What’s wrong, I won the Spiritual Mountain Competition…”

“That was a competition, and many rogue cultivators did not participate. Do you think that the heroes of the realm can truly compete in that small competition?”

“…” Xue Meng’s face flushed red. After a while, he muttered indignantly, “Forget it, I know you’re envious of me.”

If it was when he was young, Mo Ran would definitely mock him again. But now that the words were about to come out of his mouth, he felt that with Xue Meng’s competitive and narcissistic temperament, what was there to argue about. Thus, he nodded and laughed, “Okay okay okay okay, I envy you, you’re the strongest.”

However, when he looked at Nangong Liu again, the smile in Mo Ran’s eyes disappeared.

In this world, there were many types of villains. Some people were unscrupulous, and their sins could reach the heavens. The entire world wished to kill them because they wanted to kill them as soon as possible.

However, there were some people who were extremely powerful. With their sharp tongues, they were able to flatter others. They were clearly rotten to the bone, yet they were not despised by the crowd.

In his previous life, Mo Ran was the first person to do this, but he hated people who went against him the most, not the kind people in this world. He did not hate Mei Hanxue, nor Xue Meng.

What he hated the most was people like Nangong Liu. As long as there was anything he could use, they would kneel on the ground and lick other people's hemorrhoids.

Shit, sucking carbuncle licking hemorrhoids.

Ever since Nangong Liu came in, Chu Wanning had been standing by the window, watching the magnificent scene outside.

The wind was blowing strongly from high up, causing the fragrant curtain covering the window to become hazy. Chu Wanning stood in the mist, Nangong Liu's face was filled with warmth for a moment before he quickly tidied himself up and walked towards the window.

"Chu-zongshi…"

Chu Wanning did not look at him. With an indifferent expression, he said, "Sect Leader Nangong, you and I have long known each other."

The muslin that was as soft as spring water blew against his face under the influence of the east wind, causing Chu Wanning to become impatient. He raised his hand to block that annoying thing and said, "No need for pleasantries."

Nangong Liu smiled and said, "I have no other intentions for being a mere person. I've not seen Zongshi for so many years, that's all. Zongshi, why do you keep people at arm's length?"

“I have come for Nangong Si.” Chu Wanning still did not turn around, “Not for you.”

“No matter what, I will be very happy to see you. Although you didn’t take him in as your disciple, you have shown him great kindness. After you left, he would often tell me that he missed you.”

“…”

Seeing that Chu Wanning finally did not retort, Nangong Liu continued to speak, “Zongshi, when Butterfly Town was in the Primordial Heavenly Rift, you suddenly stepped forward, causing the world to sigh in admiration. Later on, you were saved by master Huaizui and you returned to Yuan Yang. Rufeng Sect has specially prepared twenty top-grade Soul Nurturing Pills for you to help immortal scholars of the world to express their goodwill towards Zongshi. I hope that Zongshi can accept them —”

“Nangong Liu.”

Chu Wanning finally looked back at him, but the way he addressed him had changed. He withdrew his arm from the muslin and suddenly turned around, his slender figure seeming to merge with the sunlight.

His eyes were like fiery lightning, his brows were furrowed in cold frost, and his gaze was extremely sinister.

“Don’t put me on such a high pedestal that cannot be climbed down from. How can a mere Rufeng Sect like that thank me on behalf of all the immortal warriors in the world? Who gave you face?”

“…” The corner of Nangong Liu’s mouth twitched, but his charming smile did not fall. After a long while, he said, “Why do you think that……”

When Chu Wanning was fifteen years old, Nangong Liu acknowledged him as a guest. He ate well, drank well, and lived well as a god, but a few years later, Chu Wanning suddenly fell out with Nangong Liu in front of everyone. The two of them were talking about Jincheng Lake, Godly Martial Arts, the requests of the monsters at the bottom of the lake, the morals and the long illness of the Rufeng sect madam. The bystanders were all completely confused by what they heard.

However, everyone knew that in the end, Chu Wanning was unable to contain his rage and stood up in anger.

At that time, he was paid ten thousand gold coins and received over a thousand spiritual stones and talismans every month. He stood in front of the hall and took out the Qiankun bag at his waist, returning all the remaining money. Then, with a dark face and no words, he took down the jade crown that Nangong Liu had previously given to his guest, the top-grade Shizun Jade Crown. His long hair was scattered about, and he returned the jade crown to the Gift Officer of the Rufeng Sect.

This was a part of the story that many teachers of the lower cultivation world loved to talk about.

So, he said to Chu-zongshi, 'Since Immortal Elder Chu has worked in our sect for so long, even if you have to leave now, we still have to settle the score. The Rufeng Sect does not want to have any words that would take advantage of usual.'

However, Chu-zongshi replied, "Back in the day, I only served the Hall to repay Madam for a single meal. Now that Madam has passed away, I have no intention of staying. There's no need for money, I'm ashamed of my salary.” With that, he closed his eyes and turned around, bidding his farewells to the Rufeng Sect.

At first, Xue Zhengyong thought that the storyteller was exaggerating, so he tried to ask Chu Wanning how the Feng Clan had offended him. However, Chu Wanning didn’t like to talk about people behind his back, so he could only shake his head and never go into detail.

But from the looks of it, Mr. Storyteller’s words might actually be true.

When Madam Wang saw the tense atmosphere, she couldn’t help but step out to smooth things over. She said softly, “Elder Yuheng, don’t be angry. What if you ruin your body?” Then, she turned around and bowed towards Nangong Liu, “Nangong-xianjun, we appreciate your kindness but Sisheng Peak does not lack spiritual stones and precious medicines. We cannot accept your Soul Nurturing Pills…”

“… Haha, Madam is right. It’s just a mere miscalculation.” Nangong Liu picked up the steps before speaking in a friendly manner, “Elder Yuheng, please forgive us. Elder, please do not take it to heart.”

Mo Ran watched on from the side and thought to himself, “This person was splashed with cold water by his shizun, yet he can still smile so calmly. Truly amazing.”

As he thought of this, he lowered his head and took a sip of Sunshine Snow Green Tea.

Who would’ve thought that just as he was drinking his tea, Nangong Liu had already arrived before him with a smile on his face.

Ch. 154 Shizun, I'm Gonna Look For Ye Wangxi

This was not good. When Nangong Liu entered the room, Madam Wang, Xue Meng, and Xue Zhengyong immediately stood up and greeted him courteously.

However, Chu Wanning was not in the mood for this, so he just stood by the window.

As for Mo Ran, from his past life, he had flattened the Rufeng Sect. No matter how bright and beautiful they were, he knew that they would be reduced to a pile of loose sand in the future.

Nothing to fear. However, he did not intend to make things difficult for Nangong Liu. Instead, he got used to it and never thought of standing up.

This scene was strange.

As the Shizun and elders, Nangong Liu stood there with a pleasant smile. He was not angry, and his face was filled with the same warmth as before.

As a guest and a junior, Mo Ran's lazy sitting posture was caught red-handed. He leaned against the armchair with his legs crossed and a cup of hot tea in his hand.

Xue Zhengyong didn't pay attention to Mo Ran's actions earlier. Now that he turned around, he couldn't help but feel embarrassed.

This Mo Ran was too unruly!

"This is… In recent years, the famous Mo-zongshi should be doing well."

He stopped drinking tea and covered the lid. He raised his eyes and said, “Yes.”

“He really is a hero!”

Mo Ran interrupted him and said with a smile, “Immortal Nangong, you have already used the phrase ‘Hero spawns’ on my younger cousin, so you don’t need to use it on me anymore, right?”

His tone was gentle and his smile was gentle, as if he was very polite. However, what he said was not polite at all. He did not even stand up. After saying this, he picked up the teacup again, scraped the rim of the cup with the blue and white porcelain lid, and blew away the rising mist.

He lowered his long and thick eyelashes, lowered his eyes, and took a sip of tea at a leisurely pace.

He was young, handsome, tall and calm. His demeanor made it seem as if he was the true owner of the Rufeng Sect. He stood at the peak of the cultivation world.

“Haha, Mo-zongshi is right. I’m just an inexperienced genius who was unable to think of a better way to put it, so…”

“Not at all.” Mo Ran set down his tea cup and raised his eyes to smile, “Since Immortal Nangong has entered this room, he has already spoken a bunch of good words. If the Immortal doesn’t know how to speak, who would be able to speak?”

“Aiya, Mo-zongshi’s praise isn’t worthy of it.”

“Who said I was praising you?” Mo Ran looked at him with his pair of black eyes, smiling, “Being able to speak too well is not always a good thing.”

Xue Zhengyong couldn't resist anymore, he lowered his voice and said, "Ran'er —!"

From his point of view, it was still reasonable for Chu Wanning and Nangong Liu to have a falling out. At least, there was a reason behind it. Chu Wanning also had the same identity, but Mo Ran…

Mo Ran ignored Xue Zhengyong and instead said to Nangong Liu, "Please leave these words of praise for the other juniors. I'm a boor, I don't understand, and I don't want to hear it."

Xue Zhengyong: "…"

Of course, Mo Ran knew that if he did this, his uncle would be unhappy, but he did not regret it.

There were too many disgusting things in this world, Chu Wanning had a fiery temper and was willing to take the lead. Long ago when he was exterminating evil in Luo Jian's residence, Chu Wanning humiliated a weak old man of the Chen family members, and disregarding his own reputation, he beat the flesh out of the client's body.

Chu Wanning did not do anything wrong, but he was always condemned for being "cold-blooded", "reckless" and "ungrateful".

Mo Ran did not want anyone to say that his Shizun was 'disrespectful.'

As a result, he would rather go out of line than Chu Wanning. He could only use such a stupid method to protect him. Thus, in this house, the three of them accepted Nangong Liu's flattery and kind intentions out of courtesy. However, Mo Ran did not do so.

This was not a moment of excitement, since he knew that it was Chu Wanning who had carried him on his back, crawling from the mountains of corpses and the seas of blood. Ever since he saw his soul in Mengpo Hall, that bowl of wonton in his hands. Ever since he went to the depths of hell to save Chu Wanning, he swore an oath —

As long as Chu Wanning was still willing, he would stand with him.

Nangong Liu had bumped into it twice in a row. If it was the other sect leader, he would have flipped the table and chased him away in a fit of rage.

But Nangong Liu didn't, he just pretended that nothing had happened. He happily chatted with Xue Zhengyong for a while, making Xue Zhengyong feel very awkward. He pulled Nangong Liu to the side and apologized, saying that he didn't discipline his nephew.

Nangong Liu laughed and said, "Aiya, young people, who doesn't have some guts? I think Mo-zongshi is a man of character and good."

After meeting up with Nangong Liu, the disciples of the Rufeng Sect led the group to the guest courtyard.

Mo Ran kept sneezing along the way. Xue Meng turned around and looked at him, "Don't tell me that you were cursed by Sect Leader Nangong for not keeping your mouth shut just now…"

"Go away, you're the one being cursed." Mo Ran's eyes filled with tears, "I… Achoo, I can't smell the heavy incense, that house just now — Achoo! The spice was so… Jiu! That's too…"

"It smells so bad."

“Ah, Shizun — Ah choo — ah.”

Chu Wanning passed the handkerchief to him, frowned and said disdainfully, “Wipe it, it’s nothing.”

With tears in his eyes, Mo Ran received the handkerchief embroidered with flowering blossoms with a smile. “Shizun still loves me dearly. Thank you, Shizun.”

Chu Wanning was embarrassed by his words, “Who cares about you?”

“Exactly!” Xue Meng was unconvinced. “Who cares about you? The one Shizun cares about the most is obviously me!”

Mo Ran was slightly contemptuous, “How old are you to compare yourself to someone else?” Then, he took the handkerchief in his hand and said seriously, “Look, Shizun promised to stitch me an identical piece, what about you?”

“…” Chu Wanning grabbed the handkerchief and said harshly, “Mo Weiyu !”

Xue Meng was stunned at first when he heard this, but then he immediately became angry. “Only a genius would sew a handkerchief for you. Even in your dreams, you didn’t do that. How shameless.”

As they talked, they arrived at the courtyard Nangong Liu had arranged for them. The courtyard had four entrances; with Xue Zhengyong and his wife, the other three entered as well. The courtyard was serene, the shadows of flowers dancing in the breeze could be heard, and the sound of water flowing could be heard.

As Mo Ran hesitated, his eyes were unconsciously covered with a layer of dust. When he followed everyone into the courtyard and saw the bricks and tiles, as well as the plants, trees, and rocks, his mood became all the more gloomy.

This was a place that had left a deep impression on him from his previous life's Rufeng Sect.

Now that he was back at his hometown, he couldn't help but think that if it wasn't for the fact that Chu Wanning had given his life in exchange for his, perhaps he would still have walked the same path and become Taxian-Jun. Thinking of this, he couldn't help but break out in cold sweat. For a time, thousands of thoughts flooded his mind and chest.

Mo Ran closed his eyes. He was able to hold back his emotions. He was no longer a youth who was sharp in both joy and anger. Therefore, no one could see the haze hanging over his heart.

They all went back to their respective rooms to rest. Mo Ran stood in front of the courtyard he had for himself. He stood with his hands behind his back for a while, but he did not push open the door to enter.

The female attendant in the courtyard was a little uneasy as she cautiously asked, "Is the Immortal not satisfied with this room?"

"Oh, no." Mo Ran came back to his senses and smiled. "I feel that this courtyard is very similar to the one I used to live in. It's just that it's so romantic."

"What a coincidence. This servant even thought it was because the immortal lord didn't like this place. If the cultivator has other requests, you only need to tell me about them. I will do my best to help the cultivator."

Mo Ran smiled and said, “I’m fine. You guys go back to your work.”

After he finished speaking, he raised his head and looked at the hundred year old laurel tree in the courtyard. The shade of the tree was like the ghost from his previous life brushing past his eyelashes.

His eyelashes trembled slightly, and his heart raced.

Suddenly, he turned around and called for the maid who was about to leave. “Wait a moment!”

“Immortal, do you have any other orders?”

“… I want to ask you about someone.” Mo Ran paused, raising his eyes like torches, “Do you know, there is one…”

“What?”

“Forget it, let’s not ask about this. Let’s ask about another one. Do you know where Ye Wangxi is?”

The maid said, “Lord Ye is Elder Xu’s direct disciple. He lives in the same yard as Elder Xu. If the immortal wants to see him, then we can just go there.”

The last time he had met Ye Wangxi was in the restaurant. Ye Wangxi had begged Nangong to go back with him, but at that time, Nangong had refused. Ye Wangxi had said, “If it’s because of me, you don’t want to go back to the Rufeng Sect, then I will go.”

In fact, he was missing Ye Wangxi. He felt that Ye Wangxi had suffered enough in his previous life. He was actually very similar to Chu Wanning.

Both of them were gentlemen who would not regret their actions even if they died.

Mo Ran regretted what he had done in the past, so he hoped that Ye Wangxi could lead a better life. He could not help but rejoice. It was fortunate that Nangong Si had not been so heartless as to really drive Ye Wangxi away.

Elder Xu's courtyard was called "Sansheng Yard". It was said that it had the meaning of "one drink of Mengpo's Water, and then forget three lives". Elder Xu wanted to show how long life could last, so he should have forgotten the things that he should have forgotten earlier. He shouldn't leave them in his heart to add to his worries; in any case, after he died, he wouldn't remember anymore once he reached the Bridge of Helplessness.

He sounded like a pessimistic person, no wonder Ye Wangxi was taught to be so stingy.

"Interesting, this parrot is really clever. Come, carry it a bit more. A gutter, a ladle of wine, in the alleyway…"

"Please report to the guards and inform them of your intentions." Before he could get around the wall, he could hear a man's lazy laughter coming from the courtyard.

Mo Ran took a few steps forward and saw a man in his early thirties standing in the sunlight. That person was dressed in plain clothes, and there were even a few patches at the corner of his robe. It was a cold day, and he did not wear a pair of shoes; he stood barefoot on the cold stone tiles, holding a handful of melon seeds and teasing a snow-white, blue-eyed parrot with long feathers.

The parrot flapped its wings left and right as it moved back and forth on the shelf. It seemed to be very proud of itself as it chanted loudly, “Ahhh ~ a gourd of food ~ a ladle of wine ~ in the alleyway ~ ~”

“Mm, good, not bad. “You’re smarter than Xiao Yezi, Xiao Yezi wasn’t as good as you when he was young, so he can’t even recite this part of it.” The man fed a handful of nuts to the parrot, “Come, your father will reward you.”

“…”

This person called himself a father for a bird.

Does that mean he’s a birdman?

The man turned around and saw Mo Ran standing next to the wall. He first knocked a melon seed on the ground, then spat it out and suddenly laughed. His smile was bright, yet it also had a hint of malice to it.

“Mo Ran, Mo-zongshi, right?” He laughed. “Nice to meet you.”

Thus, Mo Ran smiled and said, “It’s a pleasure to meet you.”

After he smiled, he carefully sized up this man’s face. He felt that this man’s face was a bit good. In his previous life when he massacred the Rufeng Sect, he seemed to have seen this man before. He was…

“Father, why are you running around without your shoes?”

Suddenly, a familiar voice rang out. It was clearly such a light sentence, but when it entered his ears, it was as if spring thunder had struck.

He was still tall and straight, with a warm expression and a pair of bright yellow satin shoes in his hands. He walked up to the young man and bent down to put them down.

Foster father?

[Ye Wangxi's foster father…]

The blood in his heart ran like wild wolves, and he could almost hear the cries of the next generation, the clashing of swords and drums.

"Foster father!"

A bloody face suddenly appeared in his memory.

It was Ye Wangxi. He was crying and screaming… Back then when he massacred the Rufeng Sect, Nangong Liu secretly ran away while the 72 cities were in chaos. Later on, the number one protector of the Rufeng Sect, Elder Xu, stepped forward and swept up the sand.

He clearly did not have the surname 'Nangong', but he did what the Sect Leader Nangong was supposed to do. As an elder, he lived and died with the 72 cities of the Rufeng Sect.

He was clearly not Ye Wangxi's biological father, yet when the sharp blade filled with spiritual energy stabbed towards Ye Wangxi's back, he stood in front of Ye Wangxi, using his flesh and blood to protect the child he raised with his own hands.

At that time, Mo Ran was standing on top of the city wall looking down at the crowd. Seeing this scene, a twisted smile appeared on his face — only God knew how jealous he was at that time.

A person without any blood ties would actually be willing to die for another person in this world!

His narrow heart was in shock, in pain, he was mad with jealousy, his eyes were red.

He was thinking, “Good, very good, Ye Wangxi is really lucky, he’s made of ink and drizzling…’ If there was anyone in this vast world other than his mother who was willing to die for him, Mo Weiyu, then how could he have reached his current state?!

The heavens were good to anyone, but they were only so stingy and vicious to him!

He wanted to destroy all the people he envied, making all those who were hugging each other all fall into hell. Why was he the only one who didn’t have a day’s worth of good days, didn’t have a moment’s warmth, and the only one who was kind to him, was already long dead.

He only had that little bit of warmth left, why would he take it away?!

He hated it!

“…”

Thinking about it later, Mo Ran felt that he was such a fool back then. There was clearly a person in the world of mortals who was willing to die for him. He had missed out on that person. He had failed, and he did not know that.

Mo Ran closed his eyes and calmed his surging heart. Only then did he raise his eyes again.

He now knew who this man was. He was Ye Wangxi's Shizun, and also his foster father — Xu Shuanglin.

On the second day after he left the Rufeng Sect, he had died in the midst of battle in order to save Ye Wangxi.

Mo Ran turned around with bitterness in his heart. He could not bear to look at the smiling and handsome man in the sunlight any longer.

He went to greet Ye Wangxi.

"Lord Ye."

Only then did Ye Wangxi realize that Mo Ran was standing far away. He was stunned for a moment before he smiled and said, "Ah, Brother Mo is here too. Long time no see."

"Long time no see."

In fact, Ye Wangxi had only met Mo Ran a few times in his life and was not very familiar with him. Hence, he continued to smile and said, "Are you here to find my foster father?"

"…" Mo Ran glanced at Xu Shuanglin, feeling somewhat embarrassed. Shaking his head, he said, "No, I came looking for you."

"Xiao Yezi, how long has it been since anyone came to find you in this courtyard? It's not easy." Xu Shuanglin smiled lazily and stuffed another melon seed into his mouth. "Where did you meet Mo-zongshi?"

"I met him at Peach Blossom Springs."

“That’s good, that’s good.” Xu Shuanglin smiled and threw the rest of the melon seeds into the birdseed bowl, saying, “You youngsters can continue chatting. I’ll go somewhere else for now.”

Ye Wangxi pulled him back, “Father, why aren’t you wearing shoes again?”

“Oh, I forgot.” Smiling, Xu Shuanglin put on his shoes and said, “That’s good enough.”

From the corner of his eye, Mo Ran saw the man slowly cross to the corner, then bend down to take off his shoes. He actually put his shoes into his pocket and walked away leisurely.

“…”

Because of the mental cultivation method, Xu Shuanglin was very young, and his face did not age even at the age of thirty. He looked just like Ye Wangxi’s brother.

Judging by his temper, this person was a little stubborn. He didn’t seem like a big brother at all. He looked like Ye Wangxi’s little brother.

Therefore, was the solemn “Sansheng Courtyard” plaque outside a tease?

Ye Wangxi and Mo Ran walked slowly along the boulevard, shoulder to shoulder.

There were many flower trees and fruit trees planted in this yard, but it was midwinter right now, so only a few dried up yellow leaves hung from the treetops. The wind blew, rustling in the air.

“I’m sorry, I let you down last time in the restaurant.”

“It’s nothing. How have you been these days?”

He felt a little regretful when he said it, because someone like Ye Wangxi would never say anything, no matter how bad his life was. As expected, Ye Wangxi smiled and said, “Not bad, what about you?”

“I’m fine.”

The two of them were actually not that close. The reason why Mo Ran came to find him was because he thought of the grievances from his previous life. He wanted to see Ye Wangxi who was still alive, but he did not know what to say when they got to being alone.

Mo Ran knew a lot of Ye Wangxi’s secrets, but he couldn’t tell him any of them. The two of them walked for a while in silence before Ye Wangxi asked, “How is Xia Sini?”

Mo Ran was stunned and then laughed, “You still remember this name? So powerful.”

“His name is especially easy to remember.”

“Haha, that’s true. Xia Sini also came along this time. You’ll be able to see him in the future.”

Ye Wangxi was surprised, “He is here too? However, the Sect Leader shouldn’t have invited…”

“You still don’t know who Xia Sini is, right? Let me tell you, this is a long story.”

Thus, he told him the whole story. Ye Wangxi sighed and said, “Young Master Mo is so lucky to have this man as your Shizun.”

Mo Ran said, “How lucky is the Rufeng Sect to have Lord Ye as their disciple.”

Ye Wangxi was a little embarrassed, he smiled and said, “Young Master Mo, you’ve gone overboard.”

They arrived at a small floating bridge painted with red wood. Along the way, it was filled with withered branches and withered leaves. Only the lush greenery could be seen, and the trees planted here were lofty and the snow were in the wind. The water of the Rufeng Sect was imbued with spirit energy, so it would not freeze over. Thus, when standing at the end of the bridge, one could hear the gurgling sound of the water beneath their feet.

Mo Ran turned around and saw Ye Wangxi staring at the crystal stream. His black eyes were filled with light. He was still the same person, but everyone could see the haggard look on his face.

Nangong Si’s wedding, to him, was just too cruel.

Suddenly, he couldn’t bear it anymore. It was as if he saw Chu Wanning, who had paid a great price, looking back at him and asked, “Lord Ye, why don’t you come to the Sisheng Peak?”

“What?”

“…” He felt that he had been too rash and also knew how Ye Wangxi would reply. Mo Ran sighed, “I was just casually asking. Young Master, you don’t have to take it to heart.”

Ye Wangxi smiled. His smile had originally been filled with vigor, heroic spirit, and elegance. But now it was the same person, the same smile, but his cheekbones were slightly sunken, his heroic spirit was still present, but his three points of beauty had dried up, leaving only two pools of desolation.

He wanted to hide it, but the sadness was too deep. He used all his strength, but he still could not hide it well.

He smiled and said, “So Brother Mo is here to steal someone for Sisheng Peak?”

“Haha, yes, yes. But I don’t think Lord Ye will come. It was just a joke.”

“Mm. Since my foster father is still here, I won’t leave.”

“What does Young Master plan to do in the future?”

“…” Ye Wangxi seemed to be in pain. He actually couldn’t answer him right away. What was he going to do in the future? He also did not know that he felt like he was a moth and Nangong Si the flame. He always wanted to follow the light, even if it would only cause him to break apart.

But Nangong Si did not want him.

“I will still be doing what I should in the Rufeng Sect.” Ye Wangxi smiled, “Assisting the Sect Leader and foster father. In the future, I will support the Young Lord.”

He paused, his hand forming a fist, his knuckles white as jade.

Mo Ran was surprised that Ye Wangxi could actually say the last half of the sentence calmly. He could really say it…

“Adjunct, Young Madam.”

When he had finished, as if at last he could bear it no longer, he lowered his eyes. But after a while, he raised his head and looked at Mo Ran with a humble and elegant expression. His face was still smiling, and his entire body stood there like a bamboo in the winter.

Suddenly, a westerly wind rose up, blowing the accumulated snow between the bamboo forests, like reeds fluttering in the wind.

In that instant, Mo Ran thought, he can’t. Nangong Si can’t marry Song Qiutong.

Ch. 155 Shizun, Are You Shocked?

The the wedding day of the Young Master of the Rufeng Sect was getting closer and closer. Suddenly, rumors began to spread among the guests of the various sects.

“Master Zhang, I’ve heard a lot about myself recently, but I think it’s really out of the question. I think it’s very likely to be true, do you want to hear about it?”

“What a coincidence, I also have a secret about the Rufeng Sect. It’s also very shocking, it can’t be that you want to talk about the same thing.”

The other party raised his eyebrows meaningfully and asked, “Is the secret that master Zhang knows related to only two people?”

“Indeed.”

Both of them exchanged glances. One of them lowered his voice and said, “Let’s talk about me first. I heard that Ye Wangxi from the Rufeng Sect and…”

When the other person heard this, he could not hold it in any longer.

Young Master didn’t even want to be elegant anymore. Laughing loudly, he slapped his thigh, his eyes flashing with the radiance of the gossip, excitedly said: “Right, right! Ha ha-ha ha, that’s what I’m laughing about! The Ye Wangxi from the Rufeng Sect is involved with Song Qiutong!”

“Truly, good things never go out of doors and bad things spread far and wide. Who would have thought that even Young Master is aware of this person who doesn’t like to listen to gossip.” But talk about it in a softer voice, this is Linyi, wherever we go we will bump into people from the Rufeng Sect, I'm afraid they will hear us."

It was hard to say if they had ears or not, but it was true that the three of them had become like tigers in water. Even if no one had seen it with their own eyes, the content was becoming more and more plentiful and alluring…

In the end, even those villagers outside Linyi City who did not cultivate were aware of this and the rumors were spreading.

"Brother Goudan, I'm going to tell you a secret, don't tell anyone else."

"What secret?"

"If you are so cautious, come and listen to me. It's not like you don't know what I'm talking about and you definitely won't reveal it."

"Then you better listen up, there's a huge scandal in the Rufeng Sect, you know that Song Qiutong, who is about to marry the Young Master Nangong Si, she is really a slut. Although Brother Goudan doesn't know it, she has long been carrying her fiancé behind his back and has fallen in love with Ye Wangxi!"

"How is this possible?!"

"How is that impossible? Didn't you know that back then, when Song Qiutong was taken out for the auction, Ye Wangxi was the one who saw her beauty and stirred up those dirty thoughts, buying her for a double cultivation?"

Lee Goudan was extremely shocked. His mouth was wide open, and only after a long while did he stutter, "Heavens, heavens… How could there be such a thing…”

When he slept at night, he would hug his wife and chat with her. He sighed with emotion, “Chunhua, you’re still the best.”

The townsman’s wife Zhao Chunhua blinked, “What’s wrong? Why are you suddenly talking about this?”

“You see, although you are a bit ugly, a little bit fat and a little bit short, you are diligent and fertile, unlike some women who would steal men behind their husbands’ back and disobey the rules of women.”

Zhao Chunhua was a bit annoyed. “How am I ugly? Isn’t my face just a bit yellow?” And then she became curious, “Which wife has a broken shoe? How could I not know?”

“It’s not the villagers, it’s a group of nuns and Dao Lords that fly here and there on their swords all day long.”

Zhao Chunhua was shocked. “Who is it?”

Lee Goudan said, “Whoever gets married recently will be the one.”

Zhao Chunhua subconsciously did not think towards Nangong Si. She was stunned for a while before realizing what was going on and suddenly sat up from the bed, “Oh my god, that’s amazing! There was actually such a thing? Don’t spout nonsense.”

“Why would I speak nonsense?” Lee Goudan stuck out his chest, in order to make his wife more trusting of him, he swore, “A friend of mine saw it with his own eyes. Those two have already slept on their backs since long ago!”

The romance between a man and a woman was often one of the fastest things to fly in this world. The poor and the rich would not cultivate the real thing, and would be happy to talk about it. In the blink of an eye, more or less all the guests gathered at Rufeng Sect were aware of the scandal. When it reached Chu Wanning's ears, the details were already so extravagant that even Ye Wangxi's meeting with Song Qiutong on a certain day in a certain month of the year was described in detail. It was also said that Song Qiutong had married Nangong Si because she already had Ye Wangxi's child, but Ye Wangxi was unfaithful and did not want to meet his mother and son for the sake of his own future.

"If you don't believe me, just you wait and see. Look at that little kid's birth! Does he look like Nangong Si or Ye Wangxi!"

Chu Wanning understood Nangong Si, but he did not know about Ye Wangxi and Song Qiutong. Thus, he was not sure if what he said was true or false, and only felt very angry. However, for someone like him, although he was good at dealing with evil that had a clear outline, he was helpless when it came to matters that involved men and women.

That day, when Nangong Si came to visit him in his courtyard, Chu Wanning faintly hit him on the head, but he could not hear any hidden meaning behind his words. He was still happily telling Chu-zongshi the story of how he raised the demonic wolf, Neptune and Platinum.

"A few days ago, I gave it some seed and it was quite smooth. That female Demonic Wolf should be coming next month, I wonder how many little wolf pups will be born in this nest. If there are any good ones, I will ask my father to send one of them to Sisheng Peak."

Chu Wanning heard this and thought it was a good opportunity, so he said, “Yes, but I’m afraid that the wolf cub’s lineage is not pure.”

“How could it be impure? Naobaijin and the female Demonic Wolf were both cultivated by the Snow Wolf tribe, and were extremely pure.”

“Are you certain that the female Demonic Wolf was not bred with any other Demonic Wolves before?”

Nangong Si was stunned for a moment, “How could that be? That female demon wolf was raised by the Bitan Manor, and there’s only one of it in the entire manor. If she wants to match it, she doesn’t have the right to, she has to rely on our family’s Naobaijin.”

Chu Wanning felt that he had pointed out the truth. He understood that he was comparing people to wolves, implying that Nangong Si should pay attention to those rumors. How could he not understand?

After thinking for a moment, he continued, “Although the Bitan Manor only has one wolf, when you take it over to breed Naobaijin, you should at least stay at the Rufeng Sect for a while, right? You raise so many demon wolves, do you think…”

“No, no!” Nangong Si laughed heartily. “So the Zongshi was worried about this? That female Demonic Wolf and Naobaijin are in the same cage, locked in the same cage.

“…”

Forget it, you idiot!

He stood up and invited Chu Wanning, “Zongshi, when you left, the Moonhowl Courtyard was not completed yet, but it has been expanded twice already. I will bring you over to take a look, how about riding a mount with some gold?”

“Nope,” Chu Wanning replied.

Nangong Si was clearly disappointed, “Why?”

“I don’t know how to ride anything but horses. You are going to be a husband soon, so don’t be too playful. If you aren’t raising wolves all day long, you should be busy on the school field. If you have the time, you should go back and accompany Miss Song. People and animals are the same. If you don’t accompany her, the relationship will be estranged.”

“No, Song treats me very well and is very obedient.”

“…”

“If the Zongshi thinks I’ve neglected her, I’ll call her along. I’ve often mentioned you to her, and she should be happy to see you.”

Hearing him say so, Chu Wanning thought to himself, he doesn’t know much about Song Qiutong, and he doesn’t know if the rumors were true or false. To be able to know more about this young couple before Nangong was married, it might be a good thing.

Thus, he nodded his head and stood up. “Sure, then you can go and find her. I’ll wait for you at Howling Moon Academy.”

The two of them greeted each other in front of the wall and exchanged a salute. Mo Ran made his way into the courtyard and saw Chu Wanning standing under the osmanthus tree. There was a small red-clay stove in front of him that was steaming with water and two half-drunk Eight Treasures Tea were placed on the stone table.

“Shizun, Nangong Si was looking for you?”

“Yes, I’m going to Howling Moon Academy to take a look at the demonic wolves he’s raising.” As Chu Wanning spoke, he turned around and prepared to return to the house, “It’s inconvenient to ride in this outfit, I’ll change my clothes.”

The demon wolf was ferocious. Although Mo Ran knew Chu Wanning was capable, he was still worried about letting him go alone. Thus, he said, “I will go with Shizun.”

Chu Wanning stopped and glanced at him, “Do you know how to ride a wolf?”

Mo Ran smiled, and his black eyes were very bright. “Why not? I am good at riding horses, not to mention riding wolves, I’m good at riding anything.”

Chu Wanning wanted to laugh at him, but he suddenly felt the choice of words “I am good at riding” was a bit vague and wet. He couldn’t help but think of the scene in his dreams, the posture of the two, the sweat converging on their belly, and the powerlessness of his body while lying on the bed. It was as if he had really become a plaything under Mo Ran.

Suddenly, Chu Wanning’s face turned red.

He cursed under his breath, “Shameless!”

It was unknown if he was cursing Mo Ran or cursing himself. He turned around and slammed the door and entered the room, leaving only the half-rolled curtain outside the door slightly swaying in the wind, like the trembling heart of the person who hid inside.

At present, the sky was freezing cold, the vegetation was bleak, and the green and yellow intersecting fields were covered with a thin layer of frost. Winter was neither salty nor light as it hung in the sky, but because of the clouds covering it, it seemed a little cold, and the sunlight that sprinkled down was perfunctory and lifeless.

Suddenly, Nangong Si saw two people walking over from the mist. It was Chu Wanning and Mo Ran. He could not help but be slightly startled at first, but then he smiled and said, “Master Mo, are you worried about handing your Shizun over to me, so you came as well?”

“No.” Mo Ran also laughed, “I followed you because I’m afraid that if Shizun meets with any troubles and is unable to vent his anger, it would be unfair for him to get angry at Young Noble Nangong. So I came here just to be a punching bag.”

“…” Chu Wanning glared at him and said coldly, “I think you’re here to make a fire knife.” (to be a reason of troubles)

“Pfft.” When Song Qiutong, who was standing behind him, heard this, she let out a soft laugh. She lifted up her feather-like eyelashes and walked out from behind her fiancé.

She looked at Mo Ran and Chu Wanning and said gently, “I’ve long heard that Chu-zongshi and Mo-zongshi have a deep relationship. It seems that it’s true today.”

Ch. 156 Shizun, Good Riding Skills

Chu Wanning looked her up and down. When he was at Xuanyuan Pavilion, he had felt that this person had the disposition to topple nations, and now that he saw her up close, she looked even more beautiful, like a lotus blooming in the morning sun. Her ebony hair seemed to shine brightly, and she was indeed a peerless beauty in the world.

As he thought of this, he could not help but stealthily glance at Mo Ran, wanting to know how he would react.

Unexpectedly, his eyes met Mo Ran's, who didn't even look at Song Qiutong. It was as if Nangong Si was standing next to thin air, but was staring at him instead. Mo Ran smiled gently when their gazes met.

Chu Wanning was stunned by his gaze, but he still pretended to be calm. He exchanged a glance with Mo Ran for a moment before turning his gaze away.

"Howling Moon's drill ground is filled with many demonic wolves. The most valiant one is Naobaijin. I also like it the most."

Nangong Si led the crowd to the center of the open grassland, took out the jade flute at his waist, and blew three urgent whistles. After a moment of silence, in the distance, a gust of wind blew from all directions, and a snow-white figure leapt out of the forest like lightning, and in the blink of an eye, a glittering and translucent demon wolf whose claws were covered in gold leaped into the air, its body drawing a smooth arc, and it let out a howl, which reflected the cold and desolate winter sky.

"Aooo!"

Nangong Si stepped forward and stroked its fluffy neck, turned his head and smiled, “Zongshi, look, it has already grown so big. When you left, it was still a little puppy.”

“When I left, he was already as tall as a grown man.” Chu Wanning said expressionlessly.

“Ha ha-ha ha, is it? I always thought it was small and a baby.”

“…”

“Zongshi, come ride and see.”

As Nangong Si spoke, he blew his flute again, summoning the two snow-white demonic wolves from the forest, “Mo-zongshi, are you here to play as well?”

The three of them jumped onto the back of the demon wolf. “Hold onto the rope chain or the hair on the neck tightly,” said Nangong. “You have to hold on to your legs. It’s actually more or less the same as riding a horse.” After he finished speaking, he lowered his head and said to Song Qiutong, “Qiutong, ride with me. I’ll take you with me.”

Initially, Chu Wanning thought he wouldn’t, but after walking a few steps on the back of the demon wolf, he felt that it was not that difficult. In fact, because the demon wolves were intelligent, they could understand the riders’ intentions and so were much easier to control than normal horses.

Nangong Si laughed, “How is it? Run a round?”

“Can I go anywhere?”

“Anywhere is fine. You can just run around the forest garden at the back of the mountain or the Howling Moon Academy.”

Mo Ran smiled and said, “Is this a competition?”

“Give it a try.”

Chu Wanning took a look at the Young Master, who was riding on the demonic wolf with Song Qiutong. He thought that this was an opportunity to improve their relationship, so he readily agreed.

Nangong Si said, “In that case, let’s first go to the northern part of the Forest Boa Lake and catch five of the Groper Fish. The first person to come back here will win, and this chain will be the prize, what do you say?”

“Seven star spirit stone chain, Young Noble Nangong is too generous with his money.”

“I’m happy that you can’t buy it with a thousand taels of gold.” Nangong Si tightened his grip on the rope, then lowered his head and said to Song Qiutong, “Sit tight, don’t fall down. If you run fast, tell me.”

Mo Ran glanced at Song Qiutong and smiled, “I’m afraid that Young Master Nangong’s chain can be taken out in advance.”

“Ha, belittling me. I grew up on a wolf’s back. Not to mention bringing one more person, even if I brought one more, it wouldn’t be much of a big deal. Let’s go. I’ll count to three and two, then start.”

“Three, two — one!”

As the voice faded, three snow-white figures shot out like arrows piercing through the forest. Stepping into the killing fields, they instantly disappeared into the depths of the forest.

At first, Chu Wanning had slowed down his pace to follow behind Nangong Si and Song Qiutong, but later on, Song Qiutong's screams came rushing towards them from time to time. After listening for a long time, he could not help but feel the pain in his ears.

As the "Gongzi, slow down" cry of surprise rang out behind him, Chu Wanning gradually felt the joy of riding a demonic wolf. This type of spirit beast was extremely intelligent, he only needed to lift his finger a little and Naobaijin would understand his intentions. It was no wonder that Nangong Si would care so much about these animals.

Chu Wanning raised his head and looked at the mottled sunlight that fell in front of him, it was a continuous, self-contained, and unending stream of sunlight that flowed like a torrent, rolling far away in the distance. He couldn't help but laugh, feeling that this was a very good run, so he urged his onyx gold to run, his wolf claws stepping on the thick coniferous forest, raising a cloud of dust.

Behind him, Mo Ran, who was riding the black wolf, followed closely. In that split-second, a sense of happiness and relief arose in Chu Wanning's heart.

He suddenly had an uncertain feeling that he finally had the power to move forward on his own. It was as if no matter where he went, there would always be the sound of footsteps behind him.

Chu Wanning and Mo Ran arrived at the same time at the spring lake, which was filled with blue waves, clear as a calabash, rich in water and spirit energy, nourished by the spirit flow on both sides of the lake, the trees and flowers were not affected by the four seasons, the orange trees in the winter were still lush with leaves, countless golden fruits were hidden behind the dark green leaves, the wind was filled with a sweet citrus fragrance.

He landed firmly on the ground. Chu Wanning looked around and said, “It’s quite a nice place.”

“If Shizun likes it, when we go back we can plant a lot of fruit trees at Sisheng Peak, keep it nourished with spiritual energy all year round, and pick it whenever you want to.”

Chu Wanning gave a “hmph” and walked to the lakeside, raising his hand to call Tianwen.

Seeing that something was wrong, Mo Ran stopped him and asked, “What are you doing?”

“Catching the fish.”

“… Shizun shouldn’t be thinking of using Wind and wringing all the fish out of the lake, right?”

“What are you thinking about?” Chu Wanning glared at him and tossed the golden vine onto the lake. He then said to the lake lightly, “Who’s the one that is tired of living? The one who wishes to take the bait.”

After saying this three times, Chu Wanning retracted Tianwen. On its golden leaves, there were actually some chubby fishes that looked up to the sky with their white eyes.

Chu Wanning took a look and asked Mo Ran, “Did he say he wanted the Groper?”

“Yes.”

“…” “Do you know what Groper looks like?” After Chu Wanning finished speaking, he felt that asking this question would be a bit of a detour, so he simply picked up Tianwen and showed it to Mo Ran, “Among these, are there any?”

“… it’s better if I capture it for Shizun.”

After that, he caught ten fish and placed them in the Qiankun bag by the two demon wolves’ necks. Chu Wanning then put the “tired of living” fish back into the water and said, “Life is short, so I’ll have to trouble you all to endure a little longer.”

Hearing this sentence, Mo Ran felt that this man was both funny and cute. He put down the last stone speck and turned around to see Chu Wanning walking over from the edge of the Frost Jade Pool. The lake water was flowing behind him, gently soaking his white figure.

Suddenly, he had a strong desire to walk over and hug him. He wanted to be close to him, touch him as gently as he could, but he also wanted to crush him. He wanted to drag him into the orange grove, press him down on the tree, and lift his legs to occupy him.

He watched as Chu Wanning got closer and closer to him. He was surprised to find that his desire was so contradictory and strong. The softest and toughest kind of karma could even be born from an Emperor.

Love, love.

Wasn’t it just like that?

Hard heat is when you cut open your fiery blade.

Soft, is wrapping up your spring water tenderness.

“That’s true.” Chu Wanning, however, did not notice the uncertainty in Mo Ran’s eyes. He walked up to him and checked the Qiankun bag on his neck, “He brought a girl with him, running so slowly.”

“Maybe he’s doing something else.”

Mo Ran felt his head burning. His wolf-like eyes were fixed on the white neck Chu Wanning had exposed when he lowered his head. His stomach was burning as he mumbled to himself without a second thought.

Chu Wanning was stunned, “What?”

“…” Mo Ran finally reacted and felt like he had misspoken. He coughed dryly and turned his head away, “It’s nothing.”

Chu Wanning, on the other hand, had already thought about it. His eyes widened as he narrowed them dangerously, and angrily said, “What are you thinking about? Get on the horse and go back!”

Mo Ran moved his lips, wanting to say, “It’s not a horse, it’s a wolf.” But looking at Chu Wanning’s sullen face and flushed ears, he swallowed his words.

He watched with some regret as Chu Wanning mounted the platinum wolf, riding with unparalleled grace and beauty. He could not help but crave for more, he thought, if only Chu Wanning were his man, he would have been too weak to get on the horse or the wolf’s back, so he could only get on his lap.

Then he was shocked and guilty at the thought, and he shook his head.

This action was seen by Chu Wanning. He asked, “What’s wrong? Why did you shake your head? Did I say anything wrong?”

“No, no. Shizun taught me the correct lesson. I was thinking too much.”

However, he was not thinking about the ridiculous things that had happened between Nangong Si and Song Qiutong.

The person I am thinking of is you…

Then, he thought, “Sigh, if only I could break the legs of that platinum wolf. That way, even if Chu Wanning had no wolf to ride, he might be willing to ride that black claw of his.”

He really wanted to hug him again, like a person on the verge of death due to thirst, and miss the sweet dew that he had once defiled… While Mo Ran was still indulging in these lingering thoughts, he followed Chu Wanning back to the Moonhowl Courtyard where he saw Song Qiutong and Nangong Si already waiting.

Song Qiutong sat on the ground, her feet that were sparkling like jade sticking out with traces of blood on them.

It turned out that they were only halfway through running and had forgotten that Nangong Si had warned her to tighten her leg. Therefore, her skin was cut by thorns. Even though it was only a small wound, Nangong Si still wouldn’t let her go and brought her back to bandage it.

Mo Ran glanced at her legs. They could be considered beautiful, but compared to Chu Wanning, they were nothing. It was a shame that he still liked Song Qiutong’s feet in his previous life.

How blind.

Right now, he felt that everything about Chu Wanning was perfect, whether it was looking at things horizontally or looking at things vertically. Even his always cold and emotionless eyes that felt proud and reserved, that was his temperament, Chu Wanning should be like that.

When he saw him glaring, scolding, or rolling his eyes at him, he felt overjoyed.

“I admit defeat.” Nangong Si was straightforward. He casually passed the gold chain to Chu Wanning, “Here, give it to Zongshi.”

Chu Wanning looked at the chain and said, “Seven star spirit stones are good for raising spirit cores, I do need it, thank you very much.”

Hearing this, Mo Ran did not feel good. Somehow, he muttered, “Next time, I’ll buy you something even better.”

“What?” Chu Wanning did not hear him clearly and turned to look at him.

Mo Ran saw his pair of phoenix eyes that were so close to him, and the clear reflection of his face in his eyes. The distance between them made the astringent feeling in his heart slightly fade.

Mo Ran smiled, “I said, the next time I see something more suitable for Shizun, I will buy it for Shizun.”

“Alright.”

Chu Wanning agreed without hesitation, which made Mo Ran even more happy.

He even went so far as to look at Nangong Si, who didn’t care about this at all. He was still competing with him, proudly wanting to let him know, that Shizun would politely thank you for taking your things, but not me for taking mine. Look, he wasn't even distancing himself from me.

"Just remember to ask the boss to give you the bill, and I'll give you the money."

Mo Ran: "…"

Ten flecks of fresh water were taken out of the Qiankun bag and led to the hunting cabin at the edge of the Moonhowl training field. Outside, there was a dark gray furnace with pots and pans all around, but the cabin looked old and mottled, which didn't seem like it was built at the same time as the magnificent grassland.

Chu Wanning's fingertips brushed the fence, stopping in front of a bundle of rope tied to the fence. The rope had experienced countless winds and rain, so it no longer looked as gorgeous as it did before.

Nangong Si took the seasoning and came out of the wooden house. Seeing Chu Wanning looking at the rope, he smiled and said, "That was the year the Zongshi left, the ones I tied here, they are all almost all gone."

Chu Wanning did not say anything. He just sighed and sat on the wooden bench.

When he was serving the Rufeng Sect, Nangong Si was still just a child. He often brought him to the Howling Moon Academy to walk around, leaving behind this hunting room.

The fire soon started, and the Grouper was roasted on the branch of a tree. Fat Fish dripped down from under the crispy skin, emitting a rich smell of meat.

Nangong Si gave six pieces to the demon wolves squatting by the wooden fences, while the other four were sprinkled with salt to serve the crowd.

Song Qiutong only ate a few bites before handing the grilled fish to Nangong Si, who had already quickly finished gnawing on the whole fat fish. She said, “I’m not eating anymore. Young Master, please share some with me.”

Chu Wanning glanced in their direction, and seeing that Nangong had accepted the roasted fish, he happily ate the second fish. He thought to herself that this Song Qiutong seemed to be well-behaved and gentle, a very considerate person.

While he was deep in thought, a lotus leaf was handed to him. The top part of the fish was carefully divided into different parts, and the main fishbones had been removed. The white and tender meat was exuding heat and burnt fragrance.

Chu Wanning was taken aback. He turned his head and saw Mo Ran putting away his silver dagger. He smiled and said, “Shizun, let’s eat this.”

“Where did you get the lotus leaves?”

“Just now, when I was catching fish by the lake, I picked them along the way.” Mo Ran passed the fish meat to him, “Eat while it’s hot. It won’t taste good if it’s cold.”

Chu Wanning took the lotus leaf, his heart rippled as he said, “Thank you.”

He really did not like fish bones, so the prepared spots melted immediately in his mouth. Chu Wanning ate them piece by piece, but he did not feel bored. After he finished eating all of them, the tea that was hung over the fire had also boiled up. Song Qiutong got up and took down the pot, pouring a cup for everyone and offered it to them with both hands.

“Chu-zongshi, please have a cup of tea.”

She held the small white porcelain cup in her slender hands. Her arm was like the bright moon, and her wrist impressively held a bit of cinnabar.

Chu Wanning suddenly recalled that back at the “Xuanyuan Pavilion” auction, the pavilion shizun said that she had a cinnabar mark lit up on her wrist by the Cold Scale Sacred Hand. Presumably, it was this one.

Having thought so, Chu Wanning finally heaved a sigh of relief in his heart. Nangong Si was a heartless person, like a wild horse on the prairie, like a lone wolf on his own, with a simple and vigorous blade and axe. Chu Wanning did not hate people like this, so he did not wish for Nangong Si to be unlucky.

Song Qiutong’s tea was served to Mo Ran, who accepted it but did not drink it. He placed it to the side and smiled. “Miss Song, I have something to give you.”

Ch. 157 Shizun, That Wedding Night, Truthfully I…

While speaking, he took out a thin chain, which was made from pearl mother of the East China Sea and the Xihe crystal of Zhu Rong Mountain. From a glance, one could tell that the chain was quite valuable.

“Earlier when you were cultivating, you wanted to ask for carp crystals, but unfortunately, that stone has already been taken by my cousin to refine the sword. I also did not prepare any other gifts. After buying this chain of fire and water, it should be suitable for you to wear.”

“This… This is too precious, I’m afraid Qiutong cannot accept it…”

“What logic is this?” Mo Ran laughed, “Moreover, the fire and water chains can also suppress the fire elemental spiritual energy, but they are only suitable for women. If you wear it on your body, you will be able to accompany Young Master Nangong in the future. It’s a practical thing.”

Song Qiutong turned to look at Nangong Si, accepting his nod. She then received the chain with both hands and bowed respectfully, saying in a warm voice, “Thank you, Mo-zongshi.”

The four of them drank tea and chatted for a while.

Chu Wanning was concerned about the grand matter of Nangong Si’s life so he asked him to pay more attention to the details of the wedding ceremony so that no mishap would happen.

He finished his tea in a few gulps and tossed the empty cup in his hand.

Then he smiled and said, “Don’t worry, Zongshi. I go to see her every night. I’m different from when I was young. There are some things that I should take seriously. As a result, yesterday, I noticed that there was a pearl inlaid on the gown of Qiutong, so I immediately sent someone to go back to work."

When he spoke of the wedding, a hint of shyness actually appeared on his face that had always been free and unrestrained.

He glanced at Song Qiutong and smiled, "Qiutong will definitely look good then."

These words fell into the ears of Song Qiutong's husband in his previous life. Mo Ran absentmindedly poured another cup of tea for himself. Of course he knew Song Qiutong was a beauty with peerless grace, but so what?

Back then, Xunyang Peak offered sacrifices to the heavens and Taxian-Jun married the first queen of the cultivation world. The night of his wedding was shining with the light of a phoenix candle, but he had never stayed in his new home.

That night, he drank too much, the red candle smoke, the drowsy, he raised the bride's flushed face, and stared at for a while. Before the great ceremony of life, it is easy for people to give birth to the emotion of the passage of time and the vicissitudes of life. Even Taxian-Jun was no exception.

He suddenly felt that it wasn't real. His gaze seemed to pierce through the charming and beautiful red light in front of him, and it landed on the snowstorm that covered the sky many years ago.

When he was naked in the cold wind. When he was dying of hunger and thirst, when he was being pitied and licking the rice soup that the man brought him… When he first came to Sisheng Peak, feeling anxious and fearful… When he stood on his tiptoes to pluck a haitang blossom… When he knelt in front of Chu Wanning, with lashes his body…

He had never imagined that one day, he would trample over all the Immortals to gain the respect of the world.

“Husband, what are you thinking about?” Her red lips parted and her eyes focused on him. The air she exhaled was all sweet and extravagant, just like his lofty status today.

He seemed to have everything. Beauty, status, power…

What was he not satisfied with now?

He couldn’t think of anything to be dissatisfied with, but he felt very empty. He felt as if he was standing at the peak of a steep cliff, surrounded by a face that was low and blurry.

He walked through the fawning faces, they praised him, they knelt to greet him, they fawned over him, they had the same faces.

He heard someone calling to him in an extremely alluring manner. Her voice was soft and tender like the petals of a peony. “Darling…”

He felt sick and disgusted, and he tried to get away from the tide of fans, but the sweet voice held him like sugar.

He suddenly pushed Song Qiutong away, the charming bride was pushed extremely violent as she crouched on the crimson dragon and phoenix bed. Her head full of golden and silver jade was trembling, her steps trembling, and within the precious jewel like illusions, Mo Ran felt that everything was so distorted, so unreal, that the golden light was like a ghost's fire, and the bright red candle was like a bloody tear.

He felt so disgusted. Who was he disgusted by this, Song Qiutong? Or he could become like this.

He rushed out the door.

In his previous life, very few people in the world knew that on the day of the grand wedding of Taxian-Jun, Empress Song Qiutong was ignored, her red dress burning as she pushed open the door of the Red Lotus Pavilion.

He walked in. After a while, the fire in the pavilion extinguished and Song Qiutong's new husband stayed there for the entire night.

It was only on the evening of the second day that Xue Meng rushed to the Sisheng Peak to stir up trouble. Mo Ran lazily opened the door, tidied up his messy clothes, and with a lustful expression on his face, strolled to the front hall.

What happened in the Red Lotus Pavilion that night was something that no one else knew about.

After bidding farewell to the two of them, Chu Wanning and Mo Ran returned to the courtyard where they were staying.

Chu Wanning suddenly asked nonchalantly, "When Nangong Si said that Song Qiutong was good-looking, why were you staring at her in a daze?"

"I was thinking of her in her wedding dress," he said.

Chu Wanning was still jealous. He shook his sleeves and coldly said, "Don't think about molesting someone else's fiancee. What do you have to think about?”

Mo Ran laughed. “Who said I was thinking about her? I was thinking about the way she looks in her wedding dress, that’s all. It was not even half the beauty of Shizun (in the wedding dress;).”

“…”

He was just about to vent his anger, but he was caught off guard and was licked in the palm by the little wolfdog’s tongue.

Chu Wanning’s face turned red and he couldn’t utter a proper sentence for a long time. Finally, he waved his sleeves and said, “The Ghost Master Illusion, you can’t bring up that ridiculous matter again.”

Mo Ran sighed in his heart. It’s not that I want to bring it up, it’s that you asked me. It’s not like I want to lie to you.

However, I feel very pleasant when I get hurt by you.

When he thought about how he had lost him before, he felt like he would be scolded for the rest of his life just like that. It felt like he was soaking in a sugar bowl, Chu Wanning…

What to do, I can’t help but yearn for you.

The days passed quickly. There was still one more day before the day of Nangong’s wedding.

The Rufeng Sect was already filled with guests from all over the world, whether they were sect heads of major sects, wandering martial practitioners, or wealthy merchants without spiritual energy, all of them arrived early on this day in front of the main city. For a moment, the city was covered with clouds, carriages and horses, and a stream of men and women dressed in luxurious clothing flowed in.

Xue Meng was dragged along by his father to greet those female cultivators who were about the same age as him.

“Wang Xianjun, long time no see, it’s nice to meet you! Aiya, isn’t this little Xue Meng? You’ve already grown up this long. Truly beautiful. Come, Xue Meng, come quickly and say hello to your Uncle Wang.”

Unwillingly, Xue Meng moved over and said, “Greetings, Uncle Wang.”

Xue Zhengyong slapped the back of his head and smiled, but he gritted his teeth and said, “It’s Uncle Wang, not Uncle Wang.”[157]

“Hahaha, it’s the same. It’s all the same to me. The proud son of heaven is truly handsome. He’s just like you! Old Xue, you’re so lucky.”

After a while, Xue Meng was pushed along with “Little Man Tuo” to stroll in the garden. Little Man Tuo was sixteen this year, which was exactly twenty-eight years old, but he looked a little cold. After walking together with Xue Meng for a while, she said, “Young Master Xue, you should understand the meaning behind our elder’s pushing us out together.”

“Yes.”

“But as I said, we can take a walk. I really don’t like the way Young Master Xue is. So don’t think about the others.”

“Oh… Hmm?”

Xue Meng was shocked. He suddenly stopped his steps, his face ashen as he waited for little Man Tuo.

That little wild flower lifted her chin in a rather haughty manner, and with rather a demonstration of her strength, looked at Xue Meng and coldly said, “I have my own possessions, even if you fell in love with me…”

“Are you sick?! Me?” He pointed at himself in surprise, “To you?”

“Why else would you pull me down a deserted path? It can’t be that you have something on your mind, right?”

“Why didn’t you say that you had a hole in your brain!”

Xue Meng’s temper flared up in an instant. He was furious and his eyes shone with fire as he repeated: “I like you? I like you? I —”

“Why do you say you like me so many times? You lecher!” little Man Tuo was very tough. She stomped on the ground, raised her head and slapped Xue Meng’s face.

Xue Meng was already so angry that his vision was spinning. To be slapped by this tender and delicate hand for no reason, he felt like spitting out a few more mouthfuls of blood. If not for the fact that Madam Wang had taught him how to be courteous to girls, he would probably have smashed little Man Tuo into the ground and turned her into a blooming trumpet.

Right at this moment, a man with light eyes and a high nose bridge walked over from afar. When little Man Tuo saw it, she was stunned at first. Then, her eyes filled with tears. Her charming voice sounded, “Young Master Mei!” She ran straight towards the man.

The man who came was none other than Mei Hanxue. He did not think that after walking down such a remote path, he would be able to meet other people. He was obviously startled for a moment, but seeing that Little Man Tuo was flying towards him, he raised his hand and threw down a barrier. The girl was caught off guard. She was hit by the force of the lightning and fell to the ground.

Mei Hanxue didn't intend to help her. He looked down at her and frowned. "Miss, you have recognized the wrong person."

"How could it be wrong? How could it be wrong… That year, you promised me a golden scented sachet, saying that it would be hard to forget after meeting me. When I turn eighteen, you will marry me, you… Have you forgotten?"

Mei Hanxue: "…"

"Young Master Mei…"

"You really recognized the wrong person." Mei Hanxue didn't say anything else. He just shook his head, dropped the sentence, and walked past the tearful girl.

When Xue Meng saw this scene, he felt both angry and relieved.

Angry because Mei Hanxue really was a seed of wind and truly did not recognize people when he lifted h pants. It was no wonder that he only dared to choose the small path in this kind of situation.

It was also because he did not expect that the one little Man Tuo liked was actually Mei Hanxue. Mei Hanxue was the same name as him, flowery and ruthless. It was said that before and after hooking up with women, they were two completely different faces, and little Man Tuo's love for him was really bad luck for eight lifetimes.

Mei Hanxue walked up to him and narrowed his pale glass-like eyes. He looked at him for a moment.

Xue Meng thought to himself, what are you looking at? How dare you look at me like that? You are renowned throughout the world. My name is renowned throughout the Nine Prefectures, and I cannot lose in terms of momentum.

So he proudly raised his head and swept the tail of his eyes over Mei Hanxue. He was prepared to give a rather disdainful and cold snort to the two of them when they completely missed each other's shoulders.

"Why is your face swollen?"

However, when Mei Hanxue was halfway there, he stopped and stood in front of him, looking at him indifferently.

"The swelling is quite unique."

Xue Meng could not get up in one breath, but he still could not stop the car. He let out a proud "hmph".

Mei Hanxue: "…"

"…" Xue Meng's face quickly turned red and he abruptly turned his head. His killing intent surged, "Why do you care about me? I accidentally fell!"

"Then watch your step in the future. It's not easy to fall like this."

With that, he left, leaving Xue Meng standing blankly on the spot for a while. Then, he stomped his feet in anger and said, "Mei Hanxue! You son of a bitch! You, you just wait for me! We are irreconcilable!"

After suffering from a belly full of grievances, Xue Meng ran out from the garden with red eyes. He was in a hurry to run, but he suddenly bumped into a person's chest.

Xue Meng was furious and scolded, "What the hell is that thing! Do you not know how to walk?"

Raising his head, he was a tall and elegant man clad in green, his clothes embroidered with golden threads of pollia pattern, with Guyue'ye's green jade crown on his head, and two long and soft eyelashes that fell before his eyes. When he lifted his eyes, he saw the hazy figure of Jiang Nan's Misty Rain, a face that captivated one's soul.

He pushed Xue Meng aside and adjusted his clothes. He seemed to be in a bad mood as his slender fingers smoothed the wrinkles on his front. Xue Meng was stunned for a moment when he saw the silver ring with the Black Tortoise shell on his index finger.

Guyue'ye's head, the richest man in the world, Jiang Xi!

This person was about the same age as Xue Zhengyong, but his mental cultivation method was different. Jiang Xi's appearance was also around twenty years old.

At the time, Xue Meng was still thinking about how this absent fellow looked like. Now that he saw him today, he couldn't help but be shocked. He stared at the other party with his eyes wide open.

Jiang Xi's face was sullen but he was not in a good mood. "You can call the name of the sect Master? How laughable."

Hearing these words, Xue Meng felt that the humiliation he felt was a hundred times greater than the humiliation he received from Mei Hanxue. He immediately said angrily, “What? Do I have to call you Sect Leader Immortal? Even Nangong Liu does not have such arrogance!”

“How unruly! Whose disciple are you?”

“Why would you answer whenever I ask? What are you? When Guyue’ye’s group of monkeys listen to your commands, do I still want to buy your money? I won’t tell you! I think you’re just a —”

“Meng’er!”

Suddenly, a gentle voice sounded. Xue Meng abruptly stopped his mouth and looked behind him, avoiding Jiang Xi.

Madam Wang had walked over at an unknown time. She had probably heard Xue Meng’s unruly retort, so her face was pale and somewhat anxious. She quickly stopped him. “Meng’er, quickly don’t say anymore. Come over here and come to your mother’s side.”

Xue Meng glared fiercely at Jiang Xi and walked toward Madam Wang as he respectfully lowered his head. “Mother.”

Jiang Xi stood in the same spot for a moment before slowly turning around as well, narrowing his eyes. Those eyes of his, which were obviously beautiful to behold, were actually flickering with a sinister light.

He looked at the mother and son beside Dewar on the pink wall and said coldly, “Oh, so this is the son of Heaven, the good son of Xue Zhengyong. Xue Meng?”

Madam Wang, “…”

Jiang Xi's eyelashes trembled for a moment before he closed his eyes. When he opened them again, his eyes were filled with ridicule. "As expected of Xue Zhengyong's seed. Truly good self-restraint."

"You are not allowed to insult my father!"

"Meng'er!" Madam Wang immediately grabbed him and pulled him behind her. Then, with a pale face, she bowed slightly to Jiang Xi and said, "My son, Xue Meng, is too willful. Sect Leader Jiang, please forgive me."

"Heh, Sect Leader Jiang…" Jiang Xi was like a venomous snake, soaking the three words in his moist lips for a while before swallowing them down, and then he said, "It's alright. At least he has half your blood, shijie, if you count him in seniority, I can recognize him as my nephew…"

"Who wants to be your nephew?! Why aren't you looking at that ugly face of yours? Scram!"

"Meng'er…"

Jiang Xi laughed coldly, staring at Xue Meng for a moment before shifting his gaze to Madam Wang's face. Madam Wang lowered her eyes and said, "Sect Leader, please stop joking. I am no longer Guyue'ye's disciple. How can I continue to talk about seniority with Sect Leader?"

"… Alright." Jiang Xi nodded and replied coldly, "Great, great. Seeing an old friend and son of an old friend today has really broadened my horizons. I wonder how the Sisheng Peak is raised, and how the fine White Yulan can be covered with mud."

"Jiang Xi! Say that again! I'll tear your mouth apart!"

When Xue Meng heard this person insult his mother in front of him, blood immediately rushed to his head and desperately rushed forward. Seeing that the situation had gone out of control, he suddenly heard a loud sound in the sky. A bright firework exploded with a loud sound, and the sound of the drum rumbled.

“The welcoming banquet for the hundred families will be held at the Poem Hall at the same time. Distinguished guests, please enjoy the limelight…”

Jiang Xi coldly glanced at Xue Meng, flicked his sleeves and left.

Ch. 158 Shizun at the Wedding Reception

The wedding ceremony was held three days in a row. The first day was a welcoming banquet, held on the night before the wedding ceremony. As the name implies, it was meant to be a welcoming reception for the guests. However, the most lively part of the evening was not the tables, but the hunting grounds. According to the rules…

That evening, before sundown, a venerable elder would put three spirit deer in red silk into the garden, and the groom's father would select twenty-two unmarried men and women and send them out to the garden to chase the deer.

Three spirit deer, if the guests were able to hunt one, they would receive ten million gold coins. In the end, it was just a gimmick for the rich and oil-filled sects like the Rufeng Sect and Guyue'ye sect.

The Shi Le Hall was a large hall, and looking down from the hall, one could see a hunting forest not far away shrouded in the afterglow of the setting sun.

The guests came in succession to greet Nangong Liu. Nangong Liu, regardless of whether they were high or low, politely returned their greetings and invited them to take their seats. They busied themselves for half an hour before all the guests took their seats.

The night banquet officially began.

"I wonder which guests Sect Leader Nangong will send to the forest garden to chase after the deer."

“Didn’t you say to draw lots?”

“If you ask me, those who were chosen were all extremely lucky. Think about it, for the Spirit Deer, a bounty of ten million, other people who didn’t have a Spirit Deer could also obtain other spirit beasts or immortal fruits. Is there anything better in the world?”

As the discussion was going on, the door of the hall suddenly opened and both Nangong Si and Song Qiutong walked up the balcony at the same time. Both of them came before the Sect Leader, the handsome man and the golden-red woman.

Nangong Liu stood up and smiled as he nodded, saying in a clear voice, “Esteemed guests, you come from all over the world. It is truly a great fortune you were able to visit the Rufeng Sect and attend my son’s wedding.”

The guests below all cupped their hands and said, “Sect Leader is really courteous.”

“Young gongzi and young madam are a perfect match. Truly a rare pair.”

“Yeah, yeah.”

These flattering words were almost exactly the same as what his fans told him when he was married in his previous life. Mo Ran was annoyed by what he heard. His gaze subconsciously scanned the crowd and soon found Ye Wangxi, who was sitting beside Elder Shuanglin.

Ye Wangxi had his eyes downcast and was still dressed in simple attire. He was busy eating the food in the bowl and had not raised his head to look at Nangong Si at all.

His expression, his manner, everything was the same as usual, even calmer than usual, perhaps because he had been having a hard time all this time, and such a man already knew that he was powerless to fight for his life. Mo Ran looked at him and suddenly thought back to when he was young, he really liked lantern on sale at the night market.

The lantern was made in an exquisite manner. Every roof tile had been outlined, but the prices for the old artiste were not low. Thus, although the lantern was good, he could never buy it. Mo Ran naturally couldn't afford it, but almost every night, he would wait until the night market opened before running to the side of the stall to take a look.

However, one day, a young man and a young woman came to the scene. They were dressed in silk, and the young girl took a fancy to the lantern. She then gave the lantern to the man beside her with a coquettish expression.

The lantern was taken away. Mo Ran raised his head and watched as the old artist took it off the wooden shelf that had been hung for a long time. He handed it over to the girl, and the flickering light illuminated the face of Mo Ran.

At that time, Mo Ran felt very uncomfortable, but he was also very obedient and calm.

He was the same as the current Ye Wangxi. In fact, the moment he saw the lantern, he knew that such a luxurious item was destined not to belong to him. Every night when he were illuminated by the pagoda, the scene of him losing this ray of light had already been practiced countless times.

It wasn't something he could let go of, it was something he could be at ease with.

It was because from the beginning, he was very clear about what the outcome would be, so he had never dared to pick it up.

"Come, come, come, draw, draw —" The old servant of the Rufeng Sect held onto a bronze twined branch and walked to the seat of honor with a face full of smiles. He held it above his head and presented it to Nangong Liu, "Sect Leader, the time has come, please draw your lot, Sect Leader!"

"Good! Come! Sect Leader Nangong has come to capture one!"

Nangong Liu smiled and said, "Then we will do as you say. We will draw twenty-two lots and the young heroes that have been selected will have to show their respect and participate in the night deer hunting. If anyone is unwilling to go, I'll have to trouble you to inform me in advance. Thank you!"

After a while, there were a few girls from some small sects who had low cultivation bases and were too timid, so they asked their parents to go up and tell them their names, and had Sect Leader Nangong take their names away in advance.

Xu Shuanglin glanced at Ye Wangxi and lazily smiled, "Xiao Yezi, do you want to go play? If you want to go, I'll do it for you. Open a secret door."

"I'm not going." Ye Wangxi said, "Foster father, may I trouble you to inform the Sect Leader to remove my name?"

"How can we do that? What if we get lucky and get ten million gold?"

Ye Wangxi: "…"

Xu Shuanglin's personality was far more untamed than his adopted son. He thought for a while, his lips curling into a wry smile. "Then if you don't want to go, I'll go."

"Foster father… You are already in your forties this year…"

"Why, I look young. When I get all three deer back, I'll have thirty million gold. If we do not take the windfall, we shall destroy the heavens and the earth."

Xu Shuanglin was stubborn, not noticing his foster son's depression at all. He put on his shoes and went to find Nangong Liu with a smile. He whispered a few words beside Nangong Liu. The others would have thought that he was going to take away Ye Wangxi's lot. Who knew that he loved money so much that he wanted to go in and play with them himself?

Nangong Liu quickly picked out the guests for Zhulu.

"Shen Feng, Lin Sheng, Qu Yanran…"

Elder Shuanglin stood at the side and took the lot from the Sect Leader. He reported them one by one in a slow and unhurried manner, "Oh? This is a bit amazing, the proud son of heaven, Xue Meng."

Soon, all twenty-one people had been selected, leaving only one remaining. Elder Shuanglin was extremely thick-skinned and smiled as he raised his hand. "One more person is me. I'm old bones now. Please advise me." Nangong Liu knew his elder's personality and did not stop him. He only gave a helpless smile and gave everyone a fuse.

"Deerchaser, the fuse as evidence. After three messages, it means that all three Deer have been captured. The hunt will be over." Nangong Liu said,

“At that time, we will personally welcome all of you back from the Moonhowl Courtyard. The winner will receive a reward of ten million gold.”

Everyone applauded when they heard the commotion, cheering for their acquaintances.

Nangong Liu smiled and said, “In addition, under the instruction of my son, I will add another one. The person who gets first place will be rewarded with ten Demonic Wolves. Make a blood contract and bring it home!”

Demonic Wolf!

Even on the black market, such a precious spirit beast was hard to find, imagine ten of them!

The main hall was in an uproar, someone couldn’t help but stand up and shout at his fellow sect members: “Senior Brother, it’s up to you! If you take first place, I’ll brush your boots for you for a year!”

The crowd burst into laughter.

A female cultivator was not convinced and shouted, “Senior brother, let’s beat them all. If you win, I will agree to dual cultivate with you!”

“Waa— That’s good. That’s good. Hahaha, which girl is so spicy?”

For a moment, the entire Poetry Hall burst into cheers and laughter. Those who were initially uninterested had looks of anticipation in their eyes as they watched the grand show with glasses in hand.

Mo Ran left amidst laughter and said, “Shizun, I’ll accompany Xue Meng to the hunting grounds. You sit and eat well, wait for me to come back.”

Chu Wanning said, “Go on, pay attention to Xue Meng, he is too reckless.”

“Alright.”

Mo Ran walked down the brightly lit grand hall with the other 20 people. Chu Wanning watched the tall and straight stature of the young men and women disappear into the night, gulping down the red wine in his cup.

He felt that once he reached Sisheng Peak, he would have the money to build a spiritual energy stone path for himself in the cultivation world. He was confident in his disciple’s abilities.

Thirty million gold was easily obtainable.

After entering the forest, before he could even send Xue Meng back, the first bright red firework exploded in the sky. Nangong Liu clicked his tongue in wonder and sighed, “Amazing, someone is hunting the first deer before I even finish my cup of tea. Who knows which disciple is it? Such courage is truly admirable!”

Li Wuxin from Bitan Manor sat beside Nangong Liu, and upon hearing that, he twirled his beard and laughed, “If everyone here is interested, why don’t we make a bet? These twenty-two young talents, just who will die and who will win the prize money?

As everyone seconded him, twenty-two wooden sticks with names written on them were placed on the long table. Red silk was placed on the bottom, and those who wanted to bet quickly wrote down their chips and signed their names.

Xue Zhengyong turned around and whispered to Chu Wanning, “Why is the Bitan Manor giving out 50,000 credits? With so little money, is that Old Man Li very poor?”

“It’s a small gamble, a big gamble that hurts the body,” Chu Wanning replied.

Xue Zhengyong chuckled and asked Chu Wanning, “Then why don’t we have some fun?”

Chu Wanning just stared at him, not saying a word. Xue Zhengyong felt goosebumps all over his body. He pulled back his neck and said, “Good, good, good. I know you don’t like it, so—”

“What are you doing?” Elder Yuheng took off his money pouch and slammed it on the table, then said expressionlessly, “If you want to do it, then go on and harm your body.”

“…”

Xue Zhengyong stared at him for a while as if he had seen a ghost. Then he asked, “How much do we bet?”

“Three hundred thousand.”

“… So many? What happens if I lose?”

“We can’t.” Chu Wanning said, “Don’t you want to cultivate spirit stones? If I gather more money, I can build a few more villages with especially heavy poverty-stricken people.”

Xue Zhengyong: “You’re really going? What if Xue Meng loses?”

“He won’t lose, he is your son. You should know this better than I do.”

“…”

Seeing that Xue Zhengyong was still worried, Chu Wanning said straightforwardly, “If you lose, so be it. If you win, so be it.”

The names were all written on the paper, and the small sects who didn’t want to bet felt their hearts itch. They couldn’t help but spend a little bit of money to try their luck.

He stood up and was about to take a gamble when Song Qiutong called out to him. “Husband, why are you going as well?”

“I’ll buy you some jewelry if I can earn some money.”

Song Qiutong stopped talking. She lowered her head with her glossy face and a strand of black hair falling down her forehead. She looked especially shy and pitiful. Chu Wanning glanced in that direction and felt awkward seeing the newlywed couple’s sweet expressions. He quickly turned his head back, so he didn’t notice the faint trace of unease on Song Qiutong’s face.

Suddenly, he heard a sharp sound behind him. In a split-second, his reaction was as quick as a lightning bolt, and he suddenly turned his body to the side, dodging the attack. A snow-white light flashed past his face, and then, “Bang!” With a loud sound, it struck the main pillar of the palace.

The powder scattered in all directions and entered into the three points of the tree!

“Who is it!”

“Assassins!”

“Watch out! They are blowing the martial law’s entry!”

A sharp whistle sounded throughout all seventy-two manors, and just then, the singing hall that was filled with music suddenly became chaotic, and swords were pulled out in all directions.

Nangong Si's eyes were gloomy, a ruthless light could be seen flowing out of them. He suddenly wiped off the blood on his face and walked towards the pillar, lifting his head to take a look.

It was just an ordinary arrow, yet it was able to pierce deep into the hard Nan Mu.

Suddenly, his face greatly changed. His fingers clenched into a fist and he looked at the letter in disbelief. As he read the letter again, his entire body was trembling, and his fingertips had even punctured the letter.

"Qui, what's wrong?"

Nangong Si raised his head, his nose was wrinkled, and his face was ferocious, as if he had transformed into a leopard.

"This is simply a rumor!"

As he spoke, he prepared to destroy the letter.

But Nangong Liu was faster than him by a step. He raised his hand and used his spirit energy to trap his son, "Give me the letter."

"Father, you don't need to read it. It's just a piece of nonsense!"

However, Nangong Liu did not listen. Waving his hand, he got the letter from the paralyzed Nangong elder. He took the letter and scanned it, the color of his face turning extremely ugly in an instant. Before anyone could react, he had brought the letter into the fire and instantly burnt it into a greyish black, then laughed dryly, “My son’s words are correct, it’s really too absurd. I don’t know who did this, but they made such a cheap joke, it’s really…”

“What is it?”

Suddenly, a low and hoarse voice came from the corner of the eaves.

Everyone’s expressions changed. Ye Wangxi drew his sword and stood in front of Nangong Si. Chu Wanning stood up and stared at where the voice came from.

One had to know that the Rufeng Sect hosted such a grand meeting. The disciples in charge of martial law were all senior disciples of their sect, yet this person had stealthily arrived at the top of the hall without anyone noticing. Moreover, no one noticed him when he spoke.

“Sect Leader Nangong, I kindly remind you not to let your son marry a woman with a lustful nature for no reason. Not only did you not listen, you even said that I am a fool. You truly opened my eyes.”

Before he finished speaking, a shadow flashed past, and before the others could see clearly, he was already standing with his hands behind his back in the middle of the hall, in the middle of the crowd.

“AHHHHH!”

“Run, run!”

The people who were nearby instantly turned pale with fright. They fell down like the tide, scattering out a circle with no one around. The senior martial siblings protected the junior brothers and sisters, the Sect Leader protected the disciples, and the robust youths protected the younger ones.

The black clothed man wore a ferocious bronze mask and an ink-black cloak, and said indifferently: “Run away from what? If I wanted to hurt someone, this hall would have long been filled with blood. Just stand there.”

Ch. 159 Shizun, I'm Scared of Tianwen the Most

Nangong Liu appeared calm, but beads of sweat had already appeared on his forehead. He estimated this person's strength and felt that what he said was not false. He could not help but feel more flustered.

"Who exactly are you? What do you intend to do by barging into the wind sect at night?"

"Like I said, I just wanted to remind you not to let your son marry someone he shouldn't."

As soon as he said this, the guests couldn't help but glance at each other.

The news of the affair between Ye Wangxi and Song Qiutong had already spread to every corner of the streets. Everyone was aware of it, and the only ones who did not know of it were Nangong Si and Nangong Liu.

However, the marriage contract had already been sent out, and the marriage contract had already been passed down. At this moment, he was regretting it. What face does he have now? Nangong Liu's lips trembled for a moment before letting out a cold snort. He said, "It's fine as long as my son likes her. There's no need for outsiders to worry about it."

The man in black smiled, "The Sect Leader has such a big heart. He doesn't even care about Song Qiutong's heart. Is she from your Nangong Clan or the Ye Clan?"

Song Qiutong was alarmed and furious, her face pale as her beautiful eyes widened as she shouted, "You're slandering me!"

“Why am I slandering you? You and Ye Wangxi, don’t you know what you’ve done?”

Ye Wangxi did not expect to be mentioned. He was stunned for a long time before he knew what the man in black was talking about. However, his first reaction was not anger, but laughter. “What are you talking about?”

“I did not say any nonsense. What I said was true. I saw it with my own eyes.” The man in black spoke clearly, “Everyone knows that you have spent a lot of money to save Song Qiutong in Xuanyuan Pavilion. Master Ye, what are your intentions?”

“Looking at her in such a pitiful state, I couldn’t bear to watch.”

“You saved her, so you can just let her go. What do you want to do? Go in and out and bring her along with you.”

“Miss Song is from the Butterfly-Boned Beauty Feast Sect, and everyone knows about that. If I let her go, I’m afraid that she would immediately be targeted by some unscrupulous people. That is why she was brought back to the Door of Justice and given a place to rest.”

“What a good place to stay. Lord Ye is so kind. He stays with such a beautiful lady all day long. He actually dares to be rude.”

The man in black mocked him, but Ye Wangxi did not seem ashamed at all as he said, “I have a clear conscience.”

Ordinary people would be willing to judge everyone’s mind with their own knowledge and experience. Most of these people were from the Upper Cultivation World, so if they were able to obtain the Butterfly-Boned Beauty sect, they would have to protect the spiders in their arms even if their heads were bleeding, or they would even stew them to eat. Who would believe that Ye Wangxi was innocent?

As a result, the group of people exchanged glances with each other. Their expressions couldn't help but carry a look of contempt. In the originally uneasy atmosphere, there was also a distinct sense of pleasure in peeping into one's privacy.

Nangong Si said in a gloomy voice: "I think you are just looking for trouble, take this opportunity to discredit my Door of the Rufeng Sect. What does it have to do with you who I marry? There's no need to say it anymore. Where did you come from and where are you going?"

"Young noble Nangong, you truly do not recognize good intentions." The man in black was pacing around the hall. He suddenly stopped not far from Song Qiutong, smiled at her, and said, "Miss Song, your husband blindly trusts you, no wonder you are able to stand here with your face unflustered and act like the young mistress of the Rufeng Sect."

Song Qiutong, on the other hand, was far less composed than the other two as she said nervously, "Don't you dare insult my innocence!"

"How can you and Lord Ye be innocent?" The man in black spoke confidently, "Not long after you were saved by him, you volunteered to serve him. When the two of you met in private, you thought that no one had seen you, but you didn't know that I had been watching you in the dark all this time. If you want people not to know, then don't do it…"

Song Qiutong suddenly shouted, interrupting him. "You're lying!"

"If I'm talking nonsense, why are you trembling?"

“I-I am being humiliated…I…” She panicked and looked towards Nangong Si, “Young Master…”

Nangong Si went back to her side and protected her from the rear. He stared at the black clothed man with a pair of wolf-like eyes. “Stop slandering me.”

“Whether I’m slandering you or not, I have something to tell you.” The black-clothed man laughed, “Young noble Nangong, this beauty Song’s left thigh has a drop of red mole, is it not so?”

Hearing this, Nangong Si was stunned, “You…”

“It is about the size of a grain of rice. It is bright-colored, not dark red, but blood-red. If I didn’t see her having fun with Lord Ye, how could I know such details about her?”

“This…”

“Young Master!” Song Qiutong panicked and pulled at Nangong’s sleeve, saying with tears in his eyes, “No, no, he wronged me… He must have taken advantage of the time when I was bathing…”

“What’s so good about watching you bathe?” The black clothed man was somewhat unhappy and interrupted her, “Why don’t you go to Sisheng Peak and watch Elder Yuheng bathe and change his clothes.”

The fact that Elder Yuheng was spied on by the female disciples was also one of the rumors in the cultivation world. Now that the topic was brought up, everyone felt that it was a little funny. The braver ones glanced over at Chu Wanning, but were shocked by the astonishing killing intent on his face and lowered their heads in succession.

As the black clothed man walked around Nangong Si and Song Qiutong, he suddenly seemed to have thought of something. He clapped his hands and smiled, “Right, I suddenly remembered something. Back then, when Lord Ye smacked Miss Song, Miss Song had a Shrine Sand personally placed on her wrist by the Cold Scale Sacred Hand. If Miss Song is truly pure and clean, and I was the one who cursed and slandered her, then her wrist must still have some cinnabar sand left on it.”

He paused for a moment, and then smiled at the pale-faced Song Qiutong, who was trembling like a sieve. “Miss Song, if you really want to return your innocence, why don’t you show us that gatekeeper sand?”

He turned around and comforted Song Qiutong, “It’s alright. Take a look at everyone, you…”

However, when he saw that Song Qiutong’s lips had lost their color and her face was as white as paper, shivering with fear, he could not help but be stunned. After a while, he asked with some doubt, “Why are you… What’s wrong?”

Song Qiutong loosened her grip on Yuanyu’s hand and took a step back, clutching her sleeve as she shook her head tearfully.

“No… No…”

Nangong Si’s eyes suddenly widened, as if he knew something had happened that made him unable to speak.

The black clothed man laughed coldly and said, “What happened? You don’t dare?”

“No, that’s not it. I don’t know either…” Song Qiutong slumped to the ground, her tears falling like rain as she said sorrowfully, “I don’t know, I don’t know either…Please… Let me go…”

She tightly held onto her sleeve, not letting anyone see it. However, this sort of concealing sensation was no different from telling everyone that the gatekeeping sand on her wrist had indeed disappeared just as the black-clothed person had said.

She was a virgin, but she was not married yet, and the red marks on her hands were gone.

Even if she jumped into the Yellow River now, she wouldn’t be able to wash herself clean.

The black clothed man was just about to say more when he heard a cold and harsh voice not far away. In the light, Chu Wanning stood tall and said, “The sand on Miss Song’s wrist was still there a few days ago.”

For some reason, the man in black had a look of speechlessness in his eyes. That aggressive look disappeared as he turned around to face Chu Wanning, “…”

After a long while, the man in black sighed.

Some of the people present felt that they had misheard. This man, who had just started spouting nonsense to force them onto a dead end, seemed to have spoken with a tone of indulgence.

“Chu-zongshi is right, but I didn’t say that Song Qiutong and Ye Wangxi had an affair at that time, I only said that the two of them had an affair. If we were to talk about the time of an affair, it would only be a few days ago.”

Ye Wangxi murmured, "… This is ridiculous…"

Chu Wanning's face was cold and dignified, "Words are no proof. Is what you said true? Allow me to interrogate."

"You…"

As he spoke, a gold light flashed on Chu Wanning's fingertip. The pupils of the man in black suddenly contracted. He turned his body to the side and barely dodged the Divine weapon Tianwen that came piercing through the air.

"Chu-zongshi, what are you doing?" The black clothed man was both helpless and funny. He was extremely agile, Chu Wanning's whip could not wrap around him for a while, and he did not retaliate. He was chased by the vines all over the place, and the originally tense and weird atmosphere suddenly turned comical, revealing a hint of a spoiled child, "Don't hit me, I haven't finished my sentence."

"If you want to complain, why don't you take off your mask and talk about it?" However, Chu Wanning's sharp voice was filled with contempt.

"If you want me to, I'll take it off for you. Just not now."

"Why not!"

"I'm not good-looking. Under these lights I can intimidate people."

After running for a long time, the man in black noticed that Chu Wanning's skills were getting fiercer and fiercer. He couldn't help but think that something was wrong as he moved to the back of the pillar, dodging the attacks of the golden light and shouted, "Ye Wangxi, aren't you a gentleman? Today, I will let the world know your true face! You bought a pair of female cultivators and forced Song Qiutong to serve you, you disregarded others and bullied the lord's wife! You – you are dressed like a beast, with a human's face and a beast's heart!"

Ye Wangxi flew into a rage, "What nonsense are you talking about?!"

"Am I wrong? Don't you know how Song Qiutong's gatekeeping sand disappeared? She knelt in front of you the other day and said that she was Nangong's unmarried wife. Please let her go and don't get entangled with her again. Yet, you insisted on not listening to her, and you still said —"

Ye Wangxi's face turned green as he gritted his teeth and said, "What did I say? You're making it up!"

"You have already forgotten what you have said, so you still need me to remind you. You said at that time," The man in black cleared his throat, changed his tone, and imitated Ye Wangxi's tone, "Miss Song, I spent so much money and made clothes for others. Now that you have the favour of Young Master Nangong, you will not leave here unscathed."

In the end, he even laughed out loud three times. His tone of voice was that of a rogue.

Ye Wangxi, "…"

Ch. 160 Shizun, Do You Still Remember That Voice-Changing Spell

When the surrounding guests heard this, quite a few of them revealed a look of disdain. Their gazes swiveled between Ye Wangxi, Nangong Si and Song Qiutong.

Someone said softly, “What a scum…”

“Young noble Nangong is still not angry?”

“So Miss Song was forced into a corner because of helplessness, that’s why… Sigh, she could not be blamed… As a daughter, what can she do in front of the two famous Young Masters?”

Luckily, he was able to avoid it quickly. His wounds were not heavy and he was not entangled, but his cloak was still torn. Blood splattered everywhere. He let out a muffled groan, no longer daring to be negligent.

The willow vine was hiding more frequently than before, but it still did not let Ye Wangxi go.

“Master Ye, Miss Song did not dare to admit to what happened two days ago. She was probably worried that she would hurt your relationship with Master Nangong. However, the blue sky has eyes and it is clear that it is not open to the public. Do you not have the slightest bit of shame, and do not intend to lower your head and apologize in front of everyone?!”

Ye Wangxi was extremely angry, but he also found it laughable. He said, “What crime have I committed?”

“You are not guilty, is it still Miss Song’s fault? Even though she didn’t resist, I think she was only being coerced by you. Are you trying to say that she took the initiative to recruit you? You didn't force her?"

At this moment, the quiet Nangong Si suddenly turned around. He lowered his head to look at Song Qiutong and reached out a hand to help her up.

Song Qiutong thought that he had extended his hand in an attempt to confirm the cinnabar mark on her wrist. When she woke up this morning, she found that the cinnabar on her wrist had disappeared, causing her to panic even more. However, this situation was getting darker, and she was unable to explain it clearly for the moment, she thought that she would soon have a wedding night with Nangong. When that time came, the cinnabar would also disappear, so it would be better to not say anything for the next two days, in order to avoid any further misunderstandings.

Who would have thought that someone would splash dirty water on her like that…

Recalling that she was indeed saved by Ye Wangxi, and that she had once served him, and that the red mole on her leg had been clearly pointed out, she felt her mind buzzing and did not know what to do.

Amidst the chaos, she raised her moist eyes and looked at the crowd. She saw those people looking at her with disdain and pity, whispering to each other and gossiping among themselves.

That black-clothed man was still being chased around by Chu-zongshi's willow vines, as he shouted, "Ye Wangxi! You and I have accumulated resentment for a long time, today I will expose you, you are a hypocrite! You secretly made contact with the Young Master's wife, forcing a young lady from a good family, how vicious is that!"

Song Qiutong was stunned for a moment, then realized what she should do. It seemed that the man in black had a deep grudge against Ye Wangxi, and was trying his best to destroy Ye Wangxi's noble reputation as a gentleman.

She could not afford to commit the crime of fornication, but if she were to follow the words of the black clothed man and say that she was forced to do so by Ye Wangxi, then at least…

She almost hysterically shouted, "He's the one who dirtied me!"

Nangong Si's hand suddenly froze. He stood on the spot and looked at her in shock. It was as if he couldn't believe that his fiancee had been tainted by his father's right hand. He was completely shocked.

Song Qiutong covered her face and sobbed. She choked and said, "Yes, it was Lord Ye who humiliated me. He… He forced me to. I never promised…"

Nangong Si stared at her, the candle light suddenly flickered, his eyes darkened, and after a while, he lowered his hand that was about to pull Song Qiutong away. His voice was hoarse and sparks flew everywhere. "Do you know what you are talking about?"

Seeing that he was angered, Song Qiutong felt even more uneasy as she cried, "Young Master, I'm sorry… I was afraid that my Young Master wouldn't allow me to, so… Always. I never dared to say it… I'm more afraid. I was afraid that if I said it out loud, I would make Lord Ye and Master Nangong be enemies. He is so highly valued by the sect leader." As she spoke, she leaned forward, her long sleeves falling to the ground. Her slender shoulders couldn't help but tremble, and she looked miserable and lamentable at the same time.

“Qiutong really doesn’t know what to do…” He didn’t dare to ask for the Sect Leader to make the decision. The humiliation he had suffered could only be concealed by himself “… Young Master, you and Qiutong have our faults, but… But to you, it is something that I am sincere towards…”

But Nangong Si’s face was pale white. He retreated backwards and shook his head, repeating: “You knew… Do you know what you’re talking about?”

Song Qiutong’s silky black hair covered her shoulders as the dim light in the lantern’s shadow glimmered like silk, further making her seem delicate and pitiful. She sobbed sorrowfully, “It’s Qiutong’s fault. Young Master should not have hidden it from you. But I’m lonely, I…”

Nangong Si suddenly shouted out and interrupted her, “Do you know what you just said!?”

“I…” Song Qiutong’s entire body shook violently from his voice as she raised her head. Her beautiful hair was wet from the rain, and her beautiful face was full of tears. Her lips could not help but tremble. “I…”

“You can actually do such a thing? How dare you… You can actually do such a thing!”

When the crowd heard Nangong Si’s words, they could not help but frown and exchange glances with each other. Some of them could not help but softly say, “I have long heard that the Rufeng Sect respected men and women are lowly and despicable, but I did not expect that such a thing would happen. The one Nangong Si blamed was not Ye Wangxi, but the plain and innocent Miss Song.”

“Yeah, he’s really shameless.”

Chu Wanning had retracted his willow vines when he heard that Song Qiutong had admitted to it. Seeing Nangong's reaction, he was also at a loss.

In his memory, although Nangong Si was occasionally arrogant and willful, he was still a righteous man. He was definitely not a person who did not understand anything. If this matter was true and he pursued his crimes, then he should at least investigate Ye Wangxi and not Song Qiutong.

But from the looks of it, all of Nangong's anger was directed at Song Qiutong… How could this be?

Among all the guests, only Mei Hanxue was safely seated. He drank his wine as he watched the scene unfold. If Xue Meng was here, he would have noticed that Mei Hanxue and what he saw just now were completely different. At this moment, he was like a romantic seed from the Peach Blossom Springs.

Song Qiutong was still weeping and complaining, pushing all sorts of ugly things onto Ye Wangxi. Ye Wangxi was probably shocked by her identity, and could not even utter a single word. He could only stare with wide eyes at the girl whom he had shot down from Xuanyuan Pavilion.

"Qiutong was weak. She didn't have the courage to prove herself before Lord Ye showed up. The Young Master had bestowed everything that he had gained upon the body of the duckweed, and everything that he had gained was due to him. But now… Now that he knew he was in the wrong… I… I've heard everything from my Young Master…"

When he had finished listening to her cries, he suddenly raised his head and closed his eyes.

The light that was originally lively and warm was now shining on his face, causing a dark shadow to billow about. His eyelashes trembled as if he was doing his best to restrain something.

His palms were like fists, devoid of any flesh. His Adam's apple was rolling in his throat, and his heart was in turmoil. He endured, his cheekbones cold, his veins bulging, his bones trembling, blood burning in his heart.

He held it in and finally could not hold it in anymore. With an explosive curse, he pulled out his sword and slashed the table before Song Qiutong into two! The cup was a mess!

"Song Qiutong, do you know… In my life, the thing that I hate the most, hate the most, and cannot tolerate the most is lying!" As soon as he finished his sentence, he shouted, "Ye Wangxi!"

"… Young Master."

"Ye Wangxi, get over here!"

"…"

He suddenly turned around, his eyes red with tears. "Come here!"

Ye Wangxi walked over, and the spectators thought that in the next moment, Nangong San's sword would stab straight into Ye Wangxi's chest, directly cutting open the stomach of the courteous beast, pulling out the heart and throwing it onto the ground. They held their breath, staring nervously at the scene before them.

Nangong Si gasped for breath and stared at Ye Wangxi for a while before saying hoarsely, "… You, remove the Voice Transmission Technique."

“Sound Changing Technique?” Everyone was stunned as they looked at each other: “What does this have to do with the sound changing technique?”

“That’s right. Ai, but it’s so strange. What is this Ye Wangxi trying to do with the Sound Changing Technique? Was his original voice really that scary that it would frighten others? Or was there something shameful about his original voice?”

However, Ye Wangxi lowered his eyes and said, “Young Lord, I can’t.”

Nangong was startled, he stared at him and asked: “What did you say?”

“Since I was thirteen, I have been using the Sound Changing Technique. I have been using this voice for over ten years, and the Sound Changing Technique has already penetrated deep into my spirit core.” Ye Wangxi paused for a moment before saying calmly, “I will never be able to regain my original voice.”

“…” Nangong Si took a step back in shock. After a long while, he raised his head to look at the man sitting on the chair with an obscure expression and muttered, “Father?”

Nangong Liu finally spoke out, “Si Er, this matter is indeed a pity, but… The change of tone was indeed a voluntary act on Ye Wangxi’s part. He hadn’t expected it at all. You don’t have to think too much about it.”

“But…”

Nangong Liu walked down the stage and stood behind the many guards. He stood with his hands behind his back and said, “Father knows that you are very friendly with Ye Wangxi and is very grateful to him for his dedication.

But this matter, he… To have an affair with Song Qiutong and not care about anyone else is a capital offense.”

Never would he have thought that Nangong Liu would say such a thing. He was stunned and said, “Father!”

Nangong Liu waved his hand and a blue light flashed and Nangong Si was immediately enveloped by a binding enchantment. He was stunned for a moment, but then he angrily roared and smashed into it, but that enchantment was passed down by the Rufeng Sect for generations, and because the Rufeng Sect had once killed his father for the throne, the Sect Leader’s son was able to sign a blood contract with his father when he was young. This enchantment was specially used by his father to detain his son, but it lasted for less than an hour.

The words that he had shouted inside the barrier had been completely sealed and couldn’t be transmitted to the outside world at all…

At this point, it was better to admit that Ye Wangxi had a secret relationship with Song Qiutong than to reveal the other secrets of the Rufeng Sect. Nangong Liu walked over to the black-clothed man and cupped his hands in greeting. “Although I do not know what grudges Mister has with Ye Wangxi, it is fortunate that Mister has brought up this matter today. Otherwise, we would have truly met with misfortune.”

The black clothed man said lightly: “Sect Leader Nangong is courteous.”

“Men, capture Ye Wangxi immediately! To —”

“Wait.”

The sudden action of the black clothed man caused Nangong Liu to feel uneasy. However, his face remained impassive as he smiled, “Mister, do you have any other advice for me?”

“I am thinking that your son has only said a few words about the art. Why is the Sect Leader so anxious to imprison Lord Ye?”

“Cough, this is a private matter of our Rufeng Sect, so it would be inconvenient for us to talk about it in detail…”

The black clothed man laughed, “Sect Leader Immortal, for the sake of the reputation of the Rufeng Sect, you really know what it means to abandon your home. The pitiful Miss Ye has risked his life for your sect for more than ten years, and now, you actually caused him to suffer innocently in order to preserve your dignity.”

After he said those words, before the others could react, Nangong Liu’s expression abruptly changed.

Mei Hanxue smiled, poured another bottle of wine, took a sip, and put it down.

Nangong Liu’s face turned sallow under the candlelight. After a long while, he asked with a forced smile, “What about him? Sir, you…”

The man in black’s eyes were bright as his voice echoed clearly in the hall. Each word was spoken with shock.

“Ye Wangxi isn’t a man at all.”

Ch. 161 Shizun, Let Me Take You Flying

“Ye Wangxi isn’t a man at all.”

“…”

After a few moments of silence, the crowd burst into an uproar!

All the guests in the hall turned pale with fright. All of their gazes were focused on Ye Wangxi. She lowered her head, closed her eyes and did not say a word.

Not a man?!

This handsome and upright young man was actually… Was it a girl?

This sentence was like a drop of water entering a wok, instantly causing a wave of heat to rise. Some people sucked in a breath of cold air, and immediately after, the buzzing sound exploded like a wok exploding with a crackling sound.

“Ye Wangxi is a girl?”

“Oh my god… How could this be…”

“No wonder Nangong Si didn’t blame her. He clearly knew about this! Then Song Qiutong just…”

“She is framing someone for her own safety!”

“This is too dangerous! If you didn’t do it, then you didn’t. Why do you need to frame others just to clear your name?”

“But I still don’t believe it. How could Ye Wangxi be a girl? I can’t tell at all…”

Nangong Liu’s eyes became cold. He stared at the black clothed man’s black eyes and said, “Sir, please don’t speak nonsense. Where did you get this evidence from?”

Nangong Si gasped for breath and stared at Ye Wangxi for a while before saying hoarsely, “… You, remove the Voice Transmission Technique.”

“If you do not feel guilty, then release Nangong Si. Fortunately, although your son has a wild temper, he is still a righteous man. He is not as cold-hearted and ruthless as you.”

“…”

Seeing that Nangong Liu’s face was covered in perspiration, the black clothed man clenched his fists and did not say a word. He coldly said, “What? Go ahead and release him.”

Nangong Liu said, “A mere unfilial son cannot allow an outsider like mister to poke fun at a person and put on airs!”

Although he didn’t admit that what the man in black said was true, everyone knew clearly that those who didn’t believe his words couldn’t help but waver. They once again looked at Ye Wangxi’s handsome face, wanting to find some clues about her womanhood.

At this time, someone from the crowd shouted: “Sect Leader Nangong, you are in the wrong.”

Everyone turned their heads and saw Mei Hanxue, dressed in a fox fur coat, looking dignified and graceful. He stood in the light of a candle and said, “Although Miss Ye is a valiant and imposing woman, she is still a woman. The Sect Leader, as a man, should have mercy on the fairer sex. How can you bully a girl like this just so that you don’t lose face for the Rufeng Sect?”

He walked to the front of the hall slowly and smiled: “I am not ashamed, I have met Miss Ye before at Peach Blossom Springs, and felt that she was valiant, different from the weaklings of the Wind Raiser, and loved her in my heart. But I was stupid, so I offended Miss Ye with my words, causing her to feel disgusted, and had an argument with me. After receiving the high praise from Lady Ye, I could not help but exclaim at the number of outstanding people in the Rufeng Sect. The female cultivator was also extraordinary, and even secretly applauded the sect leader. However, seeing that the Sect Leader was acting today… Heh, but I feel that the brilliant and learned Rufeng sect does not deserve such a proud beauty.”

“… Immortal Mei, you and Ye Wangxi have only met once, it’s only natural that you would be mistaken.” Nangong Liu’s expression was dark, but he was still biting his lips with a smile. He said, “Considering the fact that you are from the Taxue Palace, I will not bother you. You better not make any mistakes.”

The way he spoke was no longer as calm and composed as it was at the beginning.

The man in black smiled and said, “The name of Young Master Mei is well-known everywhere. If he can’t tell whether a person is a man or a woman, perhaps no other person in the world can.”

When Nangong Liu heard him say so, he could not help but burn with anger. He said stiffly, “Sir had just accused Ye Wangxi of bullying Song Qiutong, and now you are saying that Ye Wangxi is a woman. You are trying to disrupt the reputation of our Rufeng Sect by turning things around like this!”

The black clothed man said: “If I don’t come up with this plan, how can I let Young Noble Nangong clearly see Miss Song’s true personality? If he marries the wrong person, that would be enough to make him sick for the rest of his life.”

“But you clearly said it was reasonable! Furthermore, if Ye Wangxi was a woman, how did the cinnabar on Song Qiutong’s wrist disappear?”

“Why aren’t you asking her? Why are you asking me?” The black clothed man laughed coldly, “What’s more, your Rufeng Sect has thousands of male disciples. If the Sect Leader is free, he can interrogate them one by one. He will definitely find a satisfactory answer.”

No one spoke a word, but the contempt and curiosity in their eyes could not be hidden. Nangong Liu only felt a prickle in his back as he stood still for a while. Suddenly, he turned his head and shouted towards Ye Wangxi, “Come here!”

“…”

“Tell me yourself, did Miss Song wrongly accuse you?” Nangong Liu stared at Ye Wangxi’s face. He was betting on himself and he still had an important bargaining chip in his hand. He knew that Ye Wangxi loved his son deeply, so he did not want the reputation of the Rufeng Sect to be ruined. “Tell everyone, who exactly are you?”

Ye Wangxi had always been very obedient. Since she was young, she had always been the most obedient chess piece on his board.

He clearly remembered when Ye Wangxi was thirteen years old, she was ordered to come to the magnificent hall of the Rufeng Sect.

The doors of the palace were tightly shut, leaving only the two of them behind.

He sat on the cold pedestal and looked down. The thirteen-year-old girl was still in her hair, and she wore a green coat. Her hair was tied up in a satin ponytail and she had a small silver bracelet on her hand.

He smiled at her and said, “Forgotten, for you to come here today means that you already know the meaning.”

Ye Wangxi knelt down and kowtowed, “Yes, Sect Leader.”

“Your foster father was heavily injured many times before, and his muscles and bones were damaged. He is no longer fit to be the leader of the Dark Guard. You are his adopted daughter, and also the young plum and bamboo horse of a man. As for the others, I don’t trust them, I only trust you.”

Ye Wangxi didn’t get up. She was still lying quietly on the ground. Under his bun, his slender neck was exposed, just like a lamb that was about to be slaughtered.

Nangong Liu said, “Your talent is extraordinary and your future is immeasurable. I have the intention of making you the leader of the hidden guards of the Rufeng Sect and then ruling one of the cities within the 72 cities. In this way, you will be able to share both your foster father’s worries and become the right-hand man of my son. From now on, he is in the light, while you are in the dark. We will share the glory of the Rufeng Sect of Wind for a hundred years.”

He paused.

“However, if you don’t want to, then so be it. Your foster father can still hold out for a while, so I’ll look for a more suitable candidate. This matter is too much of a sacrifice for you, and I know it, so there is no need for you to force it.”

After Nangong Liu said this, she changed her sitting posture and waited patiently. This girl had no mother or father, no one to rely on, and he was absolutely certain that he could rely on her. He waited for her to nod.

At last Ye Wangxi straightened her back and looked at him silently.

For a moment, Nangong Liu trembled with fear, as if this girl had seen through his schemes and his fake smile. But the next moment, Ye Wangxi said, “My life was given to me by my foster father. In return for my father’s kindness, there is nothing that I am unwilling to do.”

Nangong Liu was quiet for a moment before he sighed, “In the end, I have wronged you.”

Ye Wangxi calmly said, “I should be thanking the Sect Leader, my eyes are clear.”

Nangong Liu changed the topic, “But, the Rufeng Sect is always inferior to men and women. When it comes to women, they are always weak. In this world, only as a man would one be able to convince the masses, and only then would one be fit to lead a city. Forget the past, since you’re so smart, you should know what to do.”

Ye Wangxi was silent for a moment. In front of Nangong Liu, she coldly took off the silver bracelet and tied it with a ribbon. Then, she took off her jacket, leaving only her pure white robe. After doing all this, she let go of her hair and changed it into a ponytail, tied up high. The sunlight shone in, shining onto her body. Her back was straight and her expression was resolute. Although she was still young, her temperament was already like that of a cypress.

“That’s right.” Nangong Liu reminded her without leaking, “You should dress up like this in the future. But don’t forget, there’s still sound.”

Ye Wangxi lowered her eyelashes. She had already noticed when she entered that there was a pair of golden scissors in front of her seat.

She picked up the pair of scissors and wiped it down her throat.

Blood dripped.

“The old melody vanished, never to be changed.”

She slowly spat out the spell, then closed her eyes and tossed the scissors to the floor.

The scissors were stained with blood. Nangong Liu stared at it for a while before replying, “Good, good.” From now on, you will be the successor to the leader of Dark City, the Master Ye of the Rufeng Sect. Even if there is a debt, I will still call you…”

Ye Wangxi opened his mouth, but it was already a different kind of youth’s voice.

“May I trouble Sect Leader? From now on, do not let my foster father be troubled alone. I am willing to share the worries.”

Thus, Nangong Liu knew Ye Wangxi very well.

Ten years had passed, and he had learned to be a man without leaking a drop of water. He had taken a secret medicine every day while he was still enduring the pain from the medicine. Only then had he grown into a man.

In his eyes, she was a dog raised by the Rufeng Sect. In order to return the favor of raising her, she would never betray.

Ten years ago she cut her throat and bled, forever changing her voice.

Today, she wouldn't disappoint him either.

He was betting that Ye Wangxi would help him.

As long as Ye Wangxi could say "I am not a woman," what could they do even if the others didn't believe her?

The black-clothed man obviously thought the same. He took two steps forward and stood in front of Ye Wangxi, raising his hand to block her way, "Nangong Liu, Miss Ye has already spent all her efforts and years for your Rufeng Sect. Now that you can't argue, do you want to use the rest of her life as a sacrifice?"

Nangong Liu was just about to open his mouth to argue, when suddenly, in the distance, an orange light rose into the sky and exploded – there was another person that caught a Spirit Deer.

No one cared who got the second place, as everyone's gaze was still locked tightly on the center of the hall. The tables and chairs were all lying on the floor, and the table was almost split in half, the mysterious black clothed expert stood between Nangong Liu and Ye Wangxi. Tonight, the groom was trapped in the barrier by his father, while the bride was kneeling on the ground, her face full of tears and crying.

This was really too unexpected. From accusing people of having an affair to having a wife and daughter, and now the Sect Leader was adamant that he wouldn't admit it. This liveliness would probably cause the teahouses and restaurants to discuss it in three to five years.

Who would care about those three poor deer?

As a result, no one noticed a dark red crack in the sky of the dense forest until the sounds of fireworks suddenly echoed in the sky.

It was only then that the people from the Shi Music Hall felt that something was amiss and rushed to the fence to take a look.

"What's going on?"

"Why did everyone's fireworks explode at the same time?"

"Look! In the sky! What is that?"

"… Heavenly Rift!"

"It's the Heavenly Rift!"

Instantly, the hall was dead silent, followed by cries of surprise and screams: "Ghost World Heavenly Rift! How could the Upper Cultivation World have the Ghost World Heavenly Rift!?"

"Above the hunting grounds!"

"Senior! My senior brother is still there!"

"Sister!"

The crowd was like a fish swimming in a pond, tightly packed together in one area. Panic and shock were bait thrown into the pond, causing a wave of activity. In order to save face, Nangong Liu shouted with a sound amplifying technique, “My lords, do not be surprised. It is only a crack in the sky, a ghost realm. Everyone is in the Rufeng Sect, Nangong Liu will not cause any harm to our guests!”

As he spoke, he waved his hand summoning his sword. Stepping on the hilt of his resplendent blue sword, he brandished it and stood in the middle of the night wind.

“Guards of the five branches of the Rufeng Sect, immediately follow me to the dense forest to investigate. The rest of the elders and disciples, guard the poetry stage and ensure that the guests are well organized!”

After he finished speaking, he unexpectedly, in order to escape the interrogation of the black clothed person, led his five close guards and hastily rushed towards the Howling Moon Academy to ride his sword.

“Everything is fine, why did it suddenly turn out like this?”

“Yeah, the Upper Cultivation World has never had a crack in the sky of the ghost realm. What… what is going on here?”

On the jade beaded pavilion, people were anxious. These cultivators of the Upper Cultivation World were used to living a comfortable life. Facing the sudden invasion of the Ghost World, they were actually more afraid than responsible. It would be fine if they had to kill a lone Greater Demon, but Heavenly Rift was different. If it was a crack in the upper levels of hell, then it was an ordinary ghost that came out, that would be fine, but if it was like the change in Butterfly Town five years ago, then the crack would be an unending hell…

They shuddered at the thought of a Grandmaster like Chu Wanning dying in that brutal battle. They could not help but feel threatened as they squeezed to the edge of the scarlet appendix and gazed at the scarlet crack in the sky.

Chu Wanning stood up and said to Xue Zhengyong, “Sect Leader, the color of this rift is wrong. After it breaks, it is most likely in the later levels of hell. I’m worried about Xue Meng and the others. I’ll go take a look.”

With that, he jumped up into the air and walked straight to his appendix. Under the astonished gaze of the crowd, he jumped onto a roof and quickly disappeared into the distance.

“Yuheng!” Xue Zhengyong was about to call for him, but Chu Wanning had already disappeared into the dark night.

He wanted to jump down as well, but his shoulder was caught. Turning around to face a bronze mask that was baring his teeth, the man in black patted him on the back and said in a low voice, “Uncle, you stay here and guard aunt. Rest assured with me by Shizun’s side.”

Xue Zhengyong was shocked. “Mo —”

The man in black lifted his hand and placed it on his lips, shaking his head.

“…” Xue Zhengyong never thought that the man in black would actually be Mo Ran. Mo Ran didn’t wait for him to ask any further questions, he supported himself with one hand and jumped into the darkness like a falcon. His cloak rolled around like ink, and in a short while, he disappeared behind the same vaulted roof as Chu Wanning.

“Shizun!”

Mo Ran’s Flowing Light Technique ran along the eaves of the house. It seemed slow, so it summoned a sword that had its own agreement with it. The sword quickly caught up to Chu Wanning.

He lifted his hand and lifted his mask. He pushed the ferocious bronze mask to his forehead, revealing a handsome face. “Wait for me.”

Chu Wanning’s eyes widened, “It was you?”

“Come up, I’ll bring Shizun over on the sword. I’ll tell Shizun in detail on the way.”

Chu Wanning held onto the hand he extended towards him, lifting him up and landing steadily on the blade. He wanted to let go of Mo Ran, but his thick and rough hand tightened his hold, and Mo Ran was standing behind him. As he spoke, the unique hot breath of a young man brushed against the back of his ears, making the night air feel hotter and hotter.

Mo Ran said, “This sword’s momentum is too strong. It flies too fast. Shizun, hold tight.”

Both of them rode the wind on their swords, Chu Wanning asked, “Everything that happened in the hall just now, were you the one who planned it all out?”

“Yes. I’ve been travelling in the martial arts world all these years, and I’ve heard quite a lot about Song Qiutong. Although she doesn’t have the guts to kill people for the evil deeds she did, she is still a person who added insult to injury. If she were to marry Nangong, and become the Young Master's wife of the Rufeng Sect, then this sect will probably be even worse off than it is right now."

However, Chu Wanning replied, "The Rufeng Sect will not be any worse off than it is now."

After he finished this sentence, he frowned and looked at the inky black cloak again. He felt suspicious, "… Come to think of it, how did you know that Ye Wangxi was a girl?"

Ch. 162 Shizun, I Will Fight With You

“I won’t hide it from Shizun; I’ve already known about it since I was at Peach Blossom Springs.”

He already knew about it in his previous life, but he couldn’t tell Chu Wanning the truth about it. Mo Ran then laughed, “I heard Mei Hanxue and the people from Taxue Palace talking about her while we were on the road. At that time, I believed that Mei Hanxue was right.

“I am even more sure that Miss Ye is not a man.”

“Why?”

“Didn’t Shizun notice that she always wears clothes with her collar pulled up very high? “They are all the type that covers the neck. The style is very strange. It’s one or two for an ordinary person, and that’s one or two for her.”

“… I didn’t notice.”

Mo Ran took his empty hand and gestured to Chu Wanning, “Everyone get to this position, it’s about this size.”

As he spoke, he inadvertently touched Chu Wanning’s Adam’s apple with his fingers. The slightly raised area felt very fragile, he couldn’t help but linger there for a while. He thought, his master was so ruthless, so wild and untamed, but he would expose such a weak spot to his fingers and let him hold it. This feeling was too inciting.

He was in a daze and forgot to look at the road. The sword was swift and fierce, but it was too late when he heard Chu Wanning’s “Careful!”. The heavy sword collided squarely with a towering tree.

“Bam!” A loud sound rang out.

The only thing he could remember was to hold onto Chu Wanning’s hand tightly. In his anxiety, he called out “Wanning”, but everything happened too fast. The sound of trees breaking in his ears was so noisy that Chu Wanning didn’t hear it clearly.

Chu Wanning nearly fainted with anger. What kind of sword was this?! Can’t you just run on the roof? He had to be arrogant!

The two of them fell to the ground. Mo Ran was the first to hit the ground, and his back crashed into the rocky forest floor. Although it was unlikely he would be injured, the pain was certain. However, as he lay on his back and watched the stars twinkle through the branches, he suddenly felt very happy…

Haha, luckily the one who fell was him, not Chu Wanning.

He couldn’t help but laugh. Even though Chu Wanning had hit his chest and caused him pain in his ribs, he still couldn’t help but want to laugh. He narrowed his eyes and grinned, his dimples were deep and full of infatuation.

Chu Wanning looked up and saw him smiling like that. He was furious, “What are you laughing at?! Had you turned stupid?”

Mo Ran took the opportunity to hold him in his arms and press him against his chest. Although this was not the right time to do so, he still wanted to lift his hand to stroke Chu Wanning’s hair.

He thought so, and so he did.

Chu Wanning was right, he must have turned into a fool.

“Shizun…”

He ruffled Chu Wanning’s hair. The dark night seemed to give him a key, and the box that contained his private love was opened. The intimacy in his words could no longer be controlled, turning into a disaster.

His voice was deep, so hoarse it made Chu Wanning stiff at first, panic arising in his heart, and he hurriedly gathered his fierce dignity, “What? You can even throw your sword, you sure are capable.”

Mo Ran sighed softly, and then caressed his hair. He cleared his throat and said with a bitter smile, “Shizun, it was my fault. Please get up from my body quickly.”

Even though he was thinking to himself, he wanted Shizun to lie in his arms for a while longer.

However, such words obviously couldn’t be said out loud.

With a darkened face, Chu Wanning got up quickly and helped Mo Ran up.

“How is it?” He asked stiffly, “Where is the injury?”

“I’m fine. I have rough skin and thick flesh, so I can withstand a fall.”

Chu Wanning was about to say something when he realized that a withered flower was hanging on Mo Ran’s head. It must have fallen off and landed on the top of his head. He narrowed his eyes and said, “Your head…”

“Am I hurt?”

Mo Ran raised his hand and touched it, but it was all right.

“No, it’s blooming.”

Chu Wanning picked the flowers off his head and passed them to him expressionlessly. Mo Ran was a bit embarrassed. He rubbed the back of his head in a rather reserved manner, and his smile was even more brilliant.

“…” Chu Wanning turned around and coughed lightly, “Since there’s nothing wrong, then let’s move on.”

Mo Ran said, “Yu—”

“I won’t.” Chu Wanning looked back angrily, “qinggong!”

“… qinggong is qinggong.” Mo Ran waved his hand, reluctantly putting the heavy sword back into his Qiankun bag.

However, the deeper they went into the forest, the denser the trees became. The speed at which they controlled the sword was not as fast as qinggong, and Chu Wanning’s kung fu was good as well.

A cool breeze blew across his face, calming his heart, which had been unable to endure the agitation in his heart.

Chu Wanning’s voice suddenly came from the front, his tone was calm as he asked carelessly, “There’s a mole on Song Qiutong’s leg, how would you know?”

Mo Ran was taken aback. He was caught off guard. With a “peng” sound, Mo-zongshi crashed into a pine tree once again.

Chu Wanning: “… Are you blind at night?”

“Oh, no. Sorry, I was a little distracted today.”

Chu Wanning slightly frowned, then he seemed to have thought of something and flew into a rage, “Isn’t the mole on Song Qiutong’s leg making you lose your mind? The most important thing for cultivators is that they they have a pure heart and lack desire. When you peek at beauties, your heart will waver, so what else do you need?”

Mo Ran was speechless for a while and felt that what Chu Wanning said made sense. It was just that Chu Wanning had made a mistake. The beauty that he coveted was not Song Qiutong, but the man with a fierce temper who was roaring like a snow leopard.

He sighed and looked at Chu Wanning gently, “Shizun, I don’t like Miss Song’s looks. You think too much. There is a mole on her leg, and that’s what I heard from the people from the Xuanyuan Pavilion Auction House. What I said is not what I saw with my own eyes, Shizun, don’t be angry.”

“What’s there to be angry about? Fine, let me ask you, since Ye Wangxi is a woman, why doesn’t Song Qiutong have any cinnabar in her hands? This should not be a coincidence.”

“It’s indeed not a coincidence. Shizun, do you still remember the bracelet that I gave to Song Qiutong?”

“Yes.”

“There’s a spell on that chain that I created. It took four days. It’s not very good, but in a short period of time, as long as Song Qiutong wore that chain, it would be able to cover the cinnabar that was dropped by the Cold Scale Sacred Hand.”

“…” Chu Wanning did not say anything, but his expression was rather unsightly.

He felt that Mo Ran was hiding something from him.

After all these years, Mo Ran had changed a lot. He had learnt seventy percent of his disposition to meddle in other people’s business, but the so-called meddling in other people’s business was like seeing injustice and helping out with all one’s might. Having to go through so much trouble, even creating a small spell to expose one’s true colors and prevent her from marrying into the Rufeng Sect of Wind was a bit too much.

Unless there was a huge conflict between Song Qiutong and Mo Ran, or Ye Wangxi had a huge relationship with Mo Ran, this fella would not do such a thing.

In the silence, Mo Ran could also feel Chu Wanning’s emotions.

He flew a few feet behind Chu Wanning and said, “Shizun.”

“What?” Chu Wanning replied indifferently.

What happened in his previous life was naturally unspeakable, but Mo Ran did not want to make Chu Wanning uncomfortable. He thought for a moment, then decided to tell him half of his true feelings, “Shizun, Ye Wangxi is a very good person. She spent a lot of money at the Xuanyuan Pavilion to save a woman she did not know, you should know.”

“Yes.”

“But, Shizun, I can really tell that Ye Wangxi likes Nangong Si.”

“… Not bad, I can see that tonight.”

“It’s good that Shizun saw it. Since I already knew of Miss Ye’s true identity, I have always understood her feelings. Besides, he had no idea that Ye Wangxi was a girl before Song Qiutong, so he was only respectful and had no evil intentions towards her. However, if she marries Nangong Si, then the Rufeng Sect will not keep this a secret from her anymore. With Song Qiutong’s personality, she will definitely view the woman who loves Nangong Si as a thorn in her side.”

Mo Ran paused for a moment. He thought of his previous life. Song Qiutong could feel the private love between him and Chu Wanning. With jealousy and hatred in her heart, she tore apart Chu Wanning’s nails while he was not in the palace.

What would happen if a woman like this ever fell into her hands? The answer was obvious.

The evil that Song Qiutong had done was like pulling out a fingernail. It was not too outrageous. It was enough for her to hide behind other people’s evil deeds. It was enough for her to stay alive behind other people’s evil deeds.

In this world, doing good and doing evil were the same. One would fall from the heavens to the ground. The first smashed to death would be the most kind-hearted, such as Chu Xun, who would be pushed out by pairs of weakling hands to be a sacrifice. Kill the most vicious people first, such as Taxian-Jun, and the whole world would fight and kill tens of thousands.

However, if it weren’t for the accumulation of evil and evil one after another, if it wasn’t for those not-so-evil people slicing and scarring Mo Ran’s body.

Then, in this world, will it really create the likes of Taxian-Jun Mo Weiyu?

“It’s none of your business, aren’t you afraid of asking for trouble?”

Mo Ran also knew that he had revealed too much power this time.

In this lifetime, even if the rise and fall of the Rufeng Sect had nothing to do with him, he still owed Ye Wangxi a life. Therefore, even if it would arouse suspicion, he would not hesitate to do so.

Not only did he want to make life better for the people he had mistreated in his previous life, he was still hoping that he would be able to atone for his sins.

“I’m afraid. But now that I know the truth, I want peace of mind.”

Although Chu Wanning still felt that Mo Ran’s actions were too rash, after hearing his words, he did not think too much about it. Just then, a strong sweet smell came from the wind, along with a strong aura of spirituality.

Before Chu Wanning could react, Mo Ran’s color changed. He whispered, “Not good. It’s a Zhenlong chess game!”

“In that direction.”

The thick night sky was filled with a fishy smell. There were already ghosts crawling out from the crack in the sky. Five pillars of light shot up from the ground, one of them metal, wood, water, fire, earth, five of them were exactly the same as when Butterfly Town was shocked.

Chu Wanning’s eyes turned cold as he said, “It’s him.”

Mo Ran naturally knew who he was talking about. Jincheng Lake, Peach Blossom Springs, Butterfly Town…… He had stopped for five years, and now he had returned. It was the person who had been hiding behind the scenes all along, the one who had faked it!

However, there was a vague feeling in Mo Ran's heart. This chess game was completely different from the previous ones. It was done without any concealment or camouflage… That person seemed to feel that victory was within his grasp and that he was determined to win.

The birds in the forest were startled, flapping their wings and fleeing in all directions. Mo Ran sprinted forward, one in front and one behind.

When he got closer, he saw evil spirits rolling out from the cracks. Mo Ran muttered: "The Infinite Hells… The barrier to the Infinite Hells…"

This time, it was the same as five years ago in Butterfly Town, it was still the Infinite Hells!

Mo Ran turned his head around in panic and grabbed onto Chu Wanning's wrist, "Shizun, don't go over there!"

"… Don't be silly."

Mo Ran knew this was nonsense, but in his two lifetimes, he had seen the Heavenly Rift twice. The consequences of those two breakthroughs had been a nightmare. How could he not be worried now that he had seen it for the third time?

But what was the use of saying "you don't want to go"?

A person's nature was hard to change. Even if a person like Chu Wanning was given thousands or even tens of thousands of choices, he would never run away from disaster. Mo Ran stared at Chu Wanning, not knowing what to say.

Chu Wanning looked at him and said, “Don’t worry, I will be cautious.”

After he finished speaking, he raised his hand to call out Tianwen. Golden light gleamed around his slender frame, fireworks splashing everywhere.

Mo Ran stared at Chu Wanning’s gaze for a long time, and finally sighed. A dazzling light shot out from his hand and grabbed onto the tip of his finger. The fiery red light and the golden light of Tianwen collided, and the two weapons met each other after a long time.

“… Alright, I understand. I won’t advise you. Whatever Shizun wants to do, I will accompany you.”

The resplendent light shone in their eyes. The bright red was burning the liquid gold, and the liquid gold was dyed a deep red.

“I’ll go with Shizun.”

Chu Wanning felt warm and helpless at the sight of Mo Ran’s dazed appearance when he was about to fight alongside him. There were too many emotions in Mo Ran’s eyes. It was as if he was no longer Shizun and disciple, but he was not sure what they were.

Thus, he raised his hand and poked Mo Ran’s forehead, saying, “There’s no reward.”

Mo Ran was stunned for a moment, then he pulled down Chu Wanning’s hand. When he held it in his palm, he tried his best not to kiss it. He smiled and said, “En, no, let’s go.”

Like a celestial shadow in the night, the divine martial spirit's light met with the golden red light and instantly reached the heart of the jungle.

Ganquan Lake.

Chu Wanning and Mo Ran hid in the orange grove and looked in that direction. The flow of spiritual energy that was supporting the lake was cut off. A thick layer of ice formed on the surface of the lake during the freezing night. Four formations were drawn around the lake, each with a weapon embedded within.

Chu Wanning said in a low voice, "Four godly weapons with different attributes?"

Mo Ran was stunned at first, but then he said, "The theft of his godly weapon during these five years is indeed related to him…"

"But back in Rainbow Butterfly Town, he was clearly using the heart of a living person, how come he suddenly changed the array?"

Mo Ran wanted to say something, but was stopped by Chu Wanning, "Silence, look over there."

Following his gaze, Mo Ran saw a group of close guards of the Rufeng Sect walking slowly on the surface of the lake in the distance, including the young cultivators who had come to hunt in the dense forest earlier. Their chests were pumping out a steady stream of spirit energy, converging towards different types of martial arts, and this strong and pure spirit energy caused the godly lights of the martial arts to continuously increase, shining through the heavens, and then tearing open a huge crack in the night sky, crazily biting open the opening of the Infernal Hell.

“What are they doing?”

“Looks like these guards have lost their minds. It seems like they were controlled by Zhenlong Chess.” Chu Wanning frowned with a depressed look on his face. His gaze swept across the crowd and stopped abruptly. His face suddenly turned pale. Unusually, he tightly gripped Mo Ran’s shoulder, his fingers trembling.

“…”

“What’s wrong?” Mo Ran turned his head and a moment later, he saw a familiar figure walking amongst the crowd. He said in fear, “Xue Meng?!”

Ch. 163 Shizun and Bu'gui

As one of the more than twenty youths chasing a deer in the forest, a Zhenlong chess piece was buried inside Xue Meng's body.

They were like puppets that were unafraid of pain or death, slashing at the ghost monsters with their swords, not allowing them to destroy the array, but they did not care about the ghost monsters that escaped into the darkness.

The purpose of these chess pieces was very clear. They were protecting this Five Elements formation.

Seeing his disciple being restrained, Chu Wanning could not bear it any longer. Just as he was about to get up and rush out, Mo Ran restrained him.

Chu Wanning gritted his teeth and said in a low voice, "Let go."

"Don't go out, wait a bit —"

"How can we wait? That's Xue Meng!"

Chu Wanning was too strong, Mo Ran couldn't grab him with one hand, so he could only hold him tightly in his arms. He covered his mouth with his other hand and refused to let go even when he was struggling in his embrace.

Mo Ran whispered in his ear, hot breath on his back.

"It's too rash to go out at a time like this. Don't be so impulsive, and listen to me for once. Hmm?"

The only response he got was a backhand kick, and Mo Ran was hurt in the face. Chu Wanning pulled his hand away and took a deep breath, his eyes were filled with anger as he said in a low voice, “Under the control of Zhenlong’s chess game, his spiritual force is being depleted rapidly. This place is full of evil spirits. If anything goes wrong, he will lose his life!”

“I won’t let that happen.”

“…”

“I know the game of chess. Believe me.”

Seeing his stern expression, Chu Wanning was slightly taken aback, but his breathing slowed down. At this time, a strange howl came from afar. They suddenly turned their heads and saw an evil ghost flying out of the sky and pouncing towards Xue Meng —

“Swish!”

The scimitar Longcheng reflected the cold moonlight. Xue Meng’s body was as light as a swallow, and the blade instantly pierced through the ghost!

“A living person who has been hit by a Zhenlong chess piece will gradually lose their spirit energy, and in the end, will no longer be as strong as before. However, the time that he has to stay under control is short, so he will be fine for now.”

Chu Wanning turned to look at him, a mark appearing on his forehead. “Why are you so clear about this?”

“… From my travels.”

The evil ghost fell and was quickly crushed into ashes. Xue Meng held the Longcheng scimitar in his hand. Black droplets of blood dripped down from the blade of the scimitar, dragging out strange and crooked marks on the snow.

The moonlight fell on his face, his expression was cold, and his eyes were devoid of light.

Mo Ran's heart clenched.

Xue Meng had never suffered being a pawn in his previous life before, just who…?

Suddenly, a commotion could be heard in the distance.

Mo Ran came back to his senses and whispered, "It looks like someone is coming."

Sure enough, two people walked into the forest. They walked along the frozen lake towards the eye of the formation. There was a jade-green brilliance at the eye area and one of them held a godly weapon. However, because of the angle, Mo Ran did not see clearly what that godly weapon was.

The man struck the ice layer and threw the godly weapon into the center of the formation. In an instant, the center of the formation lit up with a brilliant light, and the dark clouds dispersed. The moon appeared from behind the thick clouds, shining a cold light on the ice, illuminating the figures of the two people guarding the formation.

One was elegantly dressed in golden silk, but his face could not be seen clearly due to the thick and large demon robe he wore on his bamboo hat.

The other was barefooted in this cold world, so he didn't mind the cold.

The man raised his head, staring at the Seamless Gate.

Mo Ran suddenly widened his eyes.

"How is this possible!"

Xu Shuanglin?

Extremely shocked, extremely shocked. Xu Shuanglin… Elder Shuanglin?

He was Ye Wangxi's foster father. In his previous life, he had used his flesh and blood to protect Ye Wangxi. He was the one who had died under the random knife. How could it be him?!

Chu Wanning did not know the shock on Mo Ran's face. He patted his shoulder and said in a low voice, "Go."

"Why hasn't he appeared yet?" The man wearing the bamboo hat beside Xu Shuanglin spoke. When Mo Ran heard this, he realized it was Nangong Liu's voice.

Nangong Liu's tone was clearly anxious and depressed. He could not help but curse, "Damn it, are you mistaken?"

Xu Shuanglin said, "Let's wait and see."

"Faster! Tear this crack a little bigger. I do not know when the guests will send someone to follow, or else it will be too late!"

"I know you are anxious, but don't you know that Heavenly Rift can only be bigger? Last time at the Butterfly Town, because they were in a hurry, the situation had gotten out of hand, leading to the arrival of the ten great sects. If you want to lose your patience, you will still fall short."

"… Sigh!"

Xu Shuanglin closed his eyes and said, "Sect Leader, it wasn't easy to find five Martial Spirits of different attributes that can absorb the accumulated spiritual energy of cultivators. You've endured for so many years, so why would you still need this short night?"

"You're right." Nangong Liu took a deep breath and nodded, "I've waited for five years already… No, it's not just five years. From the day I became the head of the Rufeng Sect, I have been waiting for it…" He rubbed the thumb ring in his sleeve, his eyes blazing with the dark knight.

Nangong Liu muttered, "I've been waiting……"

"You don't have to wait."

All of a sudden, a stern male voice resounded in the empty lake. It was like a bolt of lightning breaking the clouds, shocking the two people on the lake as they looked up at each other.

The bright moon hung high in the sky, and tens of thousands of mountains and rivers flowed freely. A slender man stood on top of a tree, his narrow and long phoenix eyes were shining, his white robes billowing.

"Nangong Liu, let's stop here."

Nangong Liu was shocked and then he clenched his teeth and said, "Chu Wanning…!"

The sky was bursting with golden light, which made Chu Wanning look even more dangerous than before.

“It’s Elder Yuheng of the Night Sky, Beidou Immortal, why didn’t you die after the calamity at Butterfly Town? And now you are messing with me, you evil creature!”

Chu Wanning was stunned, he lowered his eyebrows and said harshly, “So you were the one who caused the disaster five years ago?”

When Nangong Liu saw that the matter was exposed, he did not try to hide it and coldly laughed, “So what if I am?”

Chu Wanning lifted up Tianwen, his fingers brushed against the willow vine, and the cane was shining on his fingertips inch by inch. The light was so bright that it was almost platinum. His eyes were like a hawk’s. “At that time, when you were asking for a sword from Jincheng Lake and the spirit in the pool, you ordered your wife’s heart to be cut open and thrown into the lake. At that time, I was so disgusted that I wanted to kill you, yet you told me that Nangong was still young and couldn’t afford to lose a father… You said that you were in a trance and are full of remorse. You also said that from that day onwards, you would become a righteous man in the Rufeng Sect and would no longer be evil, you…”

As the willow branch brushed past the last branch, a golden light shone.

Chu Wanning gritted his teeth, “Nangong Liu, you are so vicious!”

“Blaming me?” Nangong Liu suddenly laughed deeply, “How can Chu-zongshi not blame yourself for being young and immature? At that time, you were only 15 or 16 years old, right? It was truly naive. After I said a few words, I shed a few tears, and used my responsibility as a cover, you showed mercy and let me go. Heh, Grandmaster, why don't you think about it, what I have today, is it something due to you?"

Before the sound of his voice faded, Chu Wanning's Wind struck.

Tianwen broke through the dark night and headed straight for where Nangong Liu was standing. In an instant, dragon lights danced, flames broke through the heavens, and the frozen lake was split into two, completely shattering the ice!

Nangong Liu angrily shouted, "Everyone rise!"

The puppets that were walking around the lake suddenly had a glint in their eyes. They turned their heads and rushed towards Chu Wanning. Xue Meng had the most combat power, and he was leading the charge.

Clang!

Longcheng and Tianwen clashed fiercely. Afraid of injuring Xue Meng, Chu Wanning retreated in time and retreated a few feet back. With a ruthless expression, he said, "Nangong Liu, what kind of ability do you have to use him as a betrothal gift?"

"Ha, I won't let you kill me. This is my ability." Nangong Liu laughed out loud, "Hah, ah, ah. They are all living people who have just been taken over by me. Chu Wanning, is this Young Master Xue your disciple? Do you have to? You are helpless, you just have to sit back and wait for death. You are just like how you were more than ten years ago, there is nothing you can do, you can only let me go, you…"

He suddenly stopped. The smile on his face was like a bucket of cold water being poured down.

Chu Wanning was too calm.

He stared at Chu Wanning. The calmness on that person's face made him uneasy. He shivered and Nangong Liu's lips moved. He seemed to be afraid of him and said, "What do you want to do…"

Chu Wanning did not waste time talking with Nangong Liu. His eyes were cold. He raised his hand to wave Tianwen and shouted, "Tianwen, ten thousand coffins!"

Dozens of golden vines rose from the ground, trapping those puppets one by one. Like a dragon rising from the frozen lake, a thick and powerful vine flew out from the waves, scattering ice crystals everywhere. Chu Wanning sat on top of the ancient vines with his clothes fluttering in the wind as he raised his long and powerful hand, pausing after each word.

"Jiuge, be summoned."

Strands of golden light poured out from his palms and gathered at his knees to form a completely jet-black zither. The zither's tail twisted and turned like a tree that still had life, its branches having luxuriant foliage, haitang blossoms, and strings that were completely clear and ice-white.

Jiuge the godly weapon.

Tianwen's most commonly used ace attack was 'Wind', which was a killing move. Jiuge's most commonly used ace attack was 'Ode', which was a technique used to clear the heart and heal the body. Chu Wanning only lightly strummed the zither a few times and played the Ode. The people who were struck by the Zhenlong chess game had confused expressions on their faces. They were originally struggling with Tianwen vines, but now they looked left and right, as if they were confused.

Nangong Liu was furious. He chanted an incantation silently with veins popping out on his forehead as he fought against Chu Wanning. Seeing that he couldn't hold on any longer, he angrily turned his head back and said, "Shuanglin, interrupt his zither music!"

"… Me? Sigh, fine, fine."

Xu Shuanglin sighed, helplessly wanting to fly over to the top of the tree where Chu Wanning was. But a black shadow suddenly appeared in front of him, and he raised his whip, blocking his path.

"Elder Shuanglin, please advise."

Xu Shuanglin blinked his eyes, and suddenly laughed. "Stop me? Both of you are truly master and disciple, truly touching."

Meanwhile, Chu Wanning said to Mo Ran, "A barrier."

"It's all set up."

As it turned out, Mo Ran did not appear just now because he had been ordered to place a barrier around the lake. Although the Heavenly Rend was not as exaggerated as the time at Butterfly Town, the Unbroken Hell only held three or five Demonic Ghosts that were twisted in nature and lost in thought. If they escaped too much, then there would be a rain of blood in the mortal world and they wouldn't be able to stop for a long time.

Mo Ran and Shuanglin clashed, and in the blink of an eye, the two of them had exchanged more than ten moves. Mo Ran said, "Elder Shuanglin, don't try to run over to my Shizun's side. The person you should be dealing with is me."

“What for?” Shuanglin suddenly laughed, “Do we have to force our target to fight now? It’s not that I’m talking about it, young man, you’re too fierce. Uncle is too old, I’m afraid he won’t be able to stand up to your rudeness.”

Mo Ran: “…”

“If I come with you, I will break.” He grinned and said, “Little brother, have mercy and let me have some water. Let me play with your Shizun, okay?”

In his previous life he had seen Xu Shuanglin’s death and knew that he was probably not a bad person. Unexpectedly, the person behind the scenes, aside from Nangong Liu, also had his share. For a moment, he was somewhat helpless, so he remained silent and only focused on exchanging moves with him.

As long as he successfully entangled Xu Shuanglin, it would not be difficult to find out what he was truly thinking. However, Xu Shuanglin’s movements were light, and his speed was much better than Nangong Liu’s. He floated gracefully above the shattered frozen lake like a kite dancing, and the red light could only hit him, but not completely lock him down.

Besides, he was Ye Wangxi’s foster father, so before the matter was made clear, Mo Ran could not help but have some feelings for him…

Xu Shuanglin suddenly laughed sinisterly again. “That’s about it, Mo-zongshi. Let me apologize first.”

Mo Ran did not know why he said this, but he was startled. “What?”

“Because I’m going to bully your Shizun.”

Xu Shuanglin raised his hand and a light flashed on his fingertip. A white streak of light flew towards the direction where Chu Wanning was playing his zither.

Mo Ran was the most concerned with Chu Wanning, so he was momentarily distracted. Xu Shuanglin's eyes darkened as he used his other hand to restrain the folding fan at his waist. He then moved it towards Mo Ran's throat.

"Swish!"

Instantly, blood blossomed and splattered. Although Mo Ran dodged quickly, his neck was still scratched by the sharp barb of the fan. Xu Shuanglin retracted the handle which was stained with Mo Ran's blood and pointed downwards, only to see a drop of blood fall into the lake.

Lowering his head to take a look, he discovered that Nangong Liu and Xu Shuanglin were actually protecting the core formation of the wood element. That godly weapon was actually submerged in the frozen lake and was absorbing the surrounding plant essence.

At this time, because of Mo Ran's drop of blood that contained extremely rich spirit energy, the godly weapon suddenly erupted with a dazzling jade-green brilliance. The earth trembled, and after a few moments of deathly silence, an old sharp and ferocious black blade broke out of the water.

Xu Shuanglin shouted at Nangong Liu, "The forbidden spell has been cast! He was about to come out — hurry up and go down to meet him! Fight!"

Fight?

Did they call someone from the Infernal Realm just to fight?

However, this thought only flashed through Mo Ran's mind. When he saw the godly weapon floating in the air, he did not think of it anymore. His entire body seemed to have been whipped, standing there stiffly without uttering a word.

The reason for that was because the weapon before him that contained the wood element was…

Taxian-Jun's vicious blade that has experienced a hundred battles – the godly weapon Bu'gui!

He felt a dull pain in his chest, and his vision went black. There seemed to be some kind of inaudible mumbling in his ears that kept repeating itself. He couldn't breathe. He felt the blood of his previous life rushing towards him from the darkness, soaking his entire body. He felt disgusted, dizzy, and his heartbeat quickened…

Seeing what Xu Shuanglin was going to do after taking it, Mo Ran didn't have time to think. He raised his hand, wanting to recall his godly weapon. However, as soon as his spirit energy was released, he heard the sound of Chu Wanning's zither stop. He suddenly felt that something was wrong and turned around, enduring the indescribable stifling feeling.

The pupils of his eyes suddenly contracted.

"Shizun!"

How could he have forgotten!? Chu Wanning's core was fragile. Back in Xuanyuan Pavilion, a doctor had said that Bu'gui seemed to have some sort of repelling force towards Chu Wanning. It would devour his already weak core, making it even more unbearable.

How could he forget!

Mo Ran suddenly cut off the connection between him and Bu'gui, flew onto the huge vine, and jumped right before the spirit vine stopped moving. He hugged the pale-faced Chu Wanning, and together they landed in the orange grove.

At the same time, the ten thousand man coffin that Chu Wanning had summoned also disintegrated. Fortunately, the people who were bewitched were confused. Although they were not completely awake, they no longer listened to Nangong Liu's orders.

"Shizun!" He knelt in the snow and held the frowning Chu Wanning in his arms, stroking his face, "How are you?"

When he saw the blood seeping out of the corner of Chu Wanning's mouth, his heart ached even more. Wiping it, he suddenly thought of his previous life when Chu Wanning was lying in his arms on the peak of Mount Kunlun, bleeding to death from all seven orifices. Just like now, he wiped away the mottled blood in a flurry, but he could not wipe it clean no matter how hard he tried.

It was like stabbing into the heart.

His eyes were red. "Does it hurt?"

Chu Wanning was greatly affected by the aura of death. He felt as if the aura of death had instantly rushed towards his chest, as if it wanted to tear it open.

What was even more frightening was that there seemed to be many broken illusions in front of his eyes that were twisting and flickering.

He shook his head and tried his best to shake off the blurry illusions. He struggled to look towards Nangong Liu. With just a glance, the last bit of blood on his face faded away.

Unknowingly, he managed to gather his strength and grabbed Mo Ran's arm. He said hoarsely, "Over there, be careful!"

Mo Ran saw that his face was like golden paper, and his eyes flickered with extreme astonishment, reflecting the fiery light…

Flames?

He turned around and saw that what was gushing out of the Heavenly Rift wasn't a little ghost, but surging lava from hell. Earth Fire was rolling down from the sky. Those ghosts that managed to escape at the same time were burnt to ashes by the raging evil fire. They didn't even have the time to wail before they turned into blue smoke.

What kind of strange situation was this?

The infernal lava hung in the sky like a magnificent red-gold waterfall, slowly and leisurely flowing, dangerously and magnificently licking the lava. As the lava flowed to the lakewater, the crushed ice and the lake water were ignited and set ablaze like firewood. Nangong Liu and Xu Shuanglin, who were standing at the very front, activated the most powerful water-type incantation in order to prevent themselves from being engulfed by the flames.

Even though the flames were slow, it would soon reach those who were standing stiffly and fell victim to the Zhenlong chess match.

Mo Ran cursed silently and formed a seal with his hand. However, he was not familiar with water-type formations, so he was halfway done. Chu Wanning, who was in his embrace, suddenly held his hand and said with a pale face, “You are doing it wrong. Allow me.”

Mo Ran embraced him and allowed him to sit up, but stopped his hand. “Don’t move anymore. Teach me.”

Even though Chu Wanning was hesitant, he knew that his spiritual energy was damaged and he could not cast any spells. Therefore, he held Mo Ran’s hand and placed his ten fingers one by one in place. Then, he said hoarsely, “Cast the spell.”

Spirit energy flowed from the tips of his fingers and quickly formed a barrier in the air, forming blue water waves that wrapped around those puppets that were lost in thought.

Chu Wanning let out a sigh of relief. Just as he was about to say something, he raised his eyelashes and saw that under the light of hell, there were traces of tears on his handsome face.

He… Why are you crying?

Who was it?

Chu Wanning was at a loss.

If Shi Mei wasn’t here, Xue Meng wasn’t injured, so Mo Ran didn’t know who the others were. So, would he dare to cover up the greed in heaven and earth for the sake of himself?

“… Don’t cry.”

Mo Ran regained his senses and wiped his face in a panic.

“Such a big person, what does he look like?”

Mo Ran only looked at him with moist eyes and asked, “Does it hurt?”

Hearing his words, Chu Wanning froze for a moment. Then, a wave of warmth that was like a hot spring stream spread across his still aching chest. Grief and tenderness were intertwined, bitterness and pain, sweetness and astringency. For the first time in his life, before the catastrophe, he was filled with private emotions. That would be inappropriate, but it would be impossible to stop.

“It’s only a small wound. It was probably from summoning two godly weapons at the same time. The consumption of my spiritual power was too great, so my old illness flared up.” Chu Wanning raised his hand and touched his hair, “Don’t worry, it won’t hurt me.”

Then, he turned around to look at that vast soup of hellfire, that Blazing Flame Red Lotus.

His gaze gradually darkened, the pain in his eyes subsided, and his gaze became more and more vicious.

“You search what Nangong Liu was planning to do and find the right time.” He paused, and when he spoke again there was no hesitation. “Kill him.”

Chu Wanning’s gaze was filled with hatred and regret.

Nangong Liu was right. At Jincheng Lake, it was his fifteen-year-old self who hadn’t known the world well. He let go of Nangong Liu, who had already exposed his demonic face at that time. In order to ensure the stability of the cultivation world, in order to not let the young A-Si know, he did not reveal the matter of Nangong Liu giving up his own wife in order to obtain the godly weapon. He did not let the world know about this, nor did he reveal the matter of Nangong Liu giving up his own wife for the sake of obtaining the godly weapon.

It was due to his ignorance when he was young and his excessive kindness that resulted in the current situation. It was due to him releasing the tiger back into the forest that the flames of the red lotus burned…

What did Nangong Liu want to do?

Ch. 164 Shizun's Killer

As if responding to him, a huge skeleton foot stepped out of the surging lava. Just its fingernail was as wide as the wheel of a car, and as soon as the foot fell into the spring lake, half of the lake was filled up. The other foot fell down, breaking countless pieces of orange wood on the shore.

A gigantic skeleton roared out of the fissure. It turned its stiff skull, howled into the sky, and let out a deafening roar. Then, with a sharp axe with its shackles jingling in the air, it slammed it down onto the shore.

The giant axe sank into the ground, stirring up waves of heat waves. Mud and rocks rolled about, and vegetation broke in an instant.

Seeing that the place where Xue Meng was standing was about to collapse, a blue light suddenly appeared. Nangong Liu was wielding both swords and he was using the spiritual energy in his body to contend against him. With a loud bang, the two forces collided, causing the soil and wood to shatter. At his side, Xu Shuanglin supported the water barrier and shouted, "Hit him between the ribs! Did you see that!"

"I saw it." Nangong Liu gnashed his teeth as he swept away his usual meek and submissive appearance and attacked the chest area of the giant skeleton. Upon closer inspection, he saw a flame burning on the chest area of the skull. Inside the flame, there was a faint shadow of a human figure that was hanging and bound. He wanted to get a better look, but he couldn't see clearly because of the flickering flame between the giant skeleton and Nangong Liu.

It was reasonable to say that Nangong Liu had spent a lot of effort summoning this fiend from hell. No matter what, it should have been ordered by him to bring disaster to the human world. That was understandable. But looking at Nangong Liu's current stance, it was as if he was risking his life's cultivation to fight this thing.

This was really strange…

However, Mo Ran did not have the time to think about it. Xue Meng and the rest were still standing at their original positions. If they continued fighting like this, they might be affected. Mo Ran recalling Chu Wanning's technique shouted: "Damn it, Ten Thousand Coffins!" Dozens of red vines swarmed over from all directions like a soaring snake, wrapping up all the chess pieces on the shore and then retreating towards the outside.

"Not bad, you used it well."

Chu Wanning's words must have warmed Mo Weiyu's chest. At this moment, the people he loved were right around him, and the people he needed to protect were protected by the god-like godly weapon. Seeing their fight this time, Mo Ran felt much more at ease.

He discovered that even though Nangong Liu's offensive techniques were not too impressive, his evasion and defense were first-rate. He did not know that this person had taken a liking to this type of spell since he was young. No wonder when he slaughtered the Rufeng Sect in his previous life, the head of the city escaped faster than a rabbit.

The giant skeleton's attack was ruthless, but because of its huge body and its slow movements, it did not harm Nangong Liu at all. Nangong Liu walked higher and higher along its bones, his Chinese robe fluttered, and the red tassel of his bamboo hat flew up — He stood on the giant skeleton's ribs, through the white bones, he could clearly see the person who was hanging on the skeleton's heart.

Nangong Liu first loudly shouted, as if he was a person who was released from an extreme torment. His voice twisted sinisterly as he laughed loudly while facing the sky, "Hahaha… Hahahahaha! I found it! Finally… I've finally found you!"

His gleaming eyes were bloodshot from the depths of his bamboo hat. He yelled in fury, ecstasy, and roared: "I've found it!"

Wrapped in that flame was a man with his eyes tightly closed. He looked frail. He did not have a very striking appearance, a face that could easily be forgotten.

Nangong Liu muttered nonstop and nearly went insane, "I found it, I found it… Haha, hahaha… I found you. I found you…"

He suddenly raised the flowing blue light sword in his hand and fiercely stabbed towards the giant skeleton's inner core, towards the sleeping man!

But at that moment, the silent man suddenly raised his head and opened his eyes. Xu Shuanglin anxiously and angrily shouted from below, "Don't look at his eyes! I told you not to fucking look at his eyes!" However, Nangong Liu was too close to the man. He was caught off guard and met the man's eyes. Nangong Liu only had enough time to see the red bloodshot eyes of the dog. Immediately after, he felt a tearing pain all over his body.

He let out a loud "Ah!" and actually fell straight down, falling to the ground. If it weren't for Xu Shuanglin supporting him with a barrier, his bones might have been broken.

Xu Shuanglin walked over quickly, his bare feet stamping the ground. “What are you doing? Look at him? Didn’t I tell you that when you look at him, you will feel the pain your spirit soul suffers? You…”

He stopped midway through his sentence. Nangong Liu stood up shakily. His bamboo hat had fallen off, revealing a messy bun and a pair of panicked eyes under his messy hair.

“Ah… Ahhh!”

The moonlight shone on his face without any concealment. His fingers spasmed in pain as he tried to cover his face, but it was to no avail. All the skin exposed to the moonlight rapidly began to crack and burst, revealing fresh red flesh.

“AHHHH!!”

Nangong Liu screamed and attempted to use his sleeves to cover his face. However, his hands and forearms were exposed in panic. His skin and flesh began to tear and become mottled.

Mo Ran and Chu Wanning watched from afar in disbelief — what was going on with Nangong Liu?

He actually… What is happening to him under the moonlight?

Xu Shuanglin took off his outer robe and threw it all over Nangong Liu’s face, covering him tightly while he stood there in the winter night, wearing only a white undergarment. He did not feel cold at all. His clothes were slightly open and his chest was moving up and down below him. Seeing that Nangong Liu was limply sitting on the ground, he got angry and used his bare feet to kick the head of the Sect Leader without any respect, “Why are you sitting there, why aren’t you standing!? If you still can’t kill it after using up all your gathered spirit energy, don’t even think about it for the rest of your life!”

Who would have thought that Nangong Liu, that trash who acted tough but was actually weak at heart, would actually sit on the ground with tears and mucus flowing down his nose, and cry, “I’m in so much pain… It is better to die than live like this… this life is living hell… My face is covered with blood. My hands also… I can’t stand it. Shuanglin I can’t take it anymore. You’ll do it for me…”

“I’ll do it for you, I’ll do it for you, I’ll do everything else for you!” Xu Shuanglin flew into a rage, kicking him in the face. “Why don’t you just give me the position of Sect Leader, and let me take it for you!”

“Do you think I don’t want to!?” Nangong Liu was kicked to the ground and he howled, “Do you think I don’t want to!? I’m sick of it! The curse that Luo Fenghua left behind will affect me for the rest of my life! He wants me to remain in this seat for the rest of my life! Come on! I wish someone would do it for me! I just can’t take off this ring!”

“Luo Fenghua?” Mo Ran asked in a low voice, “This name is very familiar, I seem to have heard of it somewhere before.”

“… That is Nangong Liu’s preceding head of the Rufeng Sect.” As Chu Wanning listened to their conversation, his eyebrows tightened, “It only took him two years, and he has already passed away from illness.”

Mo Ran was stunned for a moment, “The descendants of the Rufeng Sect will be inherited by the Nangong Family, so why would there be a Sect Leader with the surname Luo? Shouldn't he be surnamed Nangong?"

"Normally, his surname would be Nangong. However, Luo Fenghua had usurped his position and became the head of the Rufeng Sect."

Listening to Chu Wanning's words, Mo Ran suddenly recalled that he had read about this person in a book that recorded the history of the Rufeng Sect. However, due to the chaos of the family history, there were too many disputes and grudges in the book, so Mo Ran had no interest in reading this book.

He opened his eyes wide, "The power of the Rufeng Sect has been usurped?"

"Yes. Because this matter is disgraceful and involves the current Sect Leader, very few people would bring it up today. Nangong Liu's position as a Sect Leader was not easy to obtain. When he was young, his father went berserk and died. Before he died, he chose Nangong Liu as his successor, but Nangong Liu had a younger brother who was proud and had unparalleled magic. He refused to accept this decision, so on the night his father died, he took over the Sect Leader's ring, replacing Nangong Liu and became the leader of the sect."

"The person who usurped the position should also be his younger brother. His surname should also be Nangong. Why would he have the surname Luo?"

"Let me finish." Chu Wanning looked at Nangong Liu who was trembling as he climbed up from the ground and wrapped himself tightly in the clothes Elder Shuanglin gave him. He then ran towards the flame on the giant skeleton's chest and continued, "That little brother of Nangong Liu was bloody and brutal. Later on, he was even more vicious. He captured everyone who denounced him, dragged them to the plaza of the Rufeng Gate, and began to dig out their eyes one by one. I have never seen the catastrophe myself, but there are records in the books that the eyes dug were carried away in three carriages."

Mo Ran's heart trembled, but he remained silent.

It was only natural for him to curse, but what right did he have to curse?

The current Chu Wanning did not know what Mo Ran had done in his previous life. He had killed almost everyone in the 72 cities of the Rufeng Sect because of his personal injustice and even tortured one of them with a Lingchi Fruit for a whole year before letting that person die.

Actually, when he came to the Rufeng Sect this time, Mo Ran had always tried his best to avoid encountering that city lord. His enmity with that person was too deep.

He was afraid that if he saw him, he would do something crazy.

Even now, it was still vicious.

What right did he have to curse others' ruthlessness and bloodlust?

Nangong Liu was approaching the core of the giant skeleton step by step, once again heading towards the burning flame with his sword. He drew closer and closer, the sword in his hand glinting with a cold light.

Chu Wanning said, "Luo Fenghua, as that person's shizun, could not tolerate his atrocities. Thus, he joined in the mutiny with Nangong Liu. The two of them started their army one night and successfully drove that person from the position of Sect Leader of the Rufeng Sect. However, driven by power, Luo Fenghua was unable to hand over the sect head's thumb ring to Nangong Liu…"

Mo Ran was shocked. "He wore it himself?"

"That's right. All the sect heads' tokens are supplemented with powerful spiritual power. These tokens are owned by the shizun, and so is the ring of the Rufeng Sect. Whoever wears it will have it. Unless the sect changes hands, death is the only option."

"… That Luo Fenghua has only been in power for two years and he already died, could it be that Nangong Liu killed him in order to regain his position as sect head?"

Chu Wanning shook his head, "According to the history of the Rufeng Sect, Luo Fenghua died of illness. After he died of sickness, Nangong Liu reclaimed the Sect Leader's ring, but no one can say for sure. Nangong Liu had spent so much effort to lure this monster out to fight, and he had even cursed at him… I'm afraid that what happened back then was not that simple."

Mo Ran also felt that things would not be so simple, but he had another question in his mind, "Where is the little brother? What happened to Nangong Liu's little brother after he was kicked off the stage?"

"Dead." Chu Wanning said, "On the night of the mutiny, Luo Fenghua was able to clean up the mess and personally took his disciple's life. It was said that he was hacked and chopped into mincemeat."

Mo Ran: "…"

He could not help but feel weak. If he did what he did in his previous life and let the current Chu Wanning know, would his shizun also clean up and chop him into mincemeat before turning him into a thousand pieces?

As he was lost in his thoughts, suddenly, there was a loud bang. Nangong Liu's sword stabbed into the man wrapped in the giant skeleton, causing the skeleton to grit its teeth and let out an extremely painful howl. The huge, bony palm created craters in the ground one after another, and it angrily waved its hand.

Amidst the strange scent of blood and fruit, the giant skeleton suddenly stopped moving. It knelt down on the ground, causing lava to fly everywhere and its bones to shatter into fine powder, turning into ashes in the blink of an eye…

Nangong Liu pulled out his sword and caught the man that fell from the giant skeleton. He said ecstatically, "I did it! I'm free! The curse has been broken — The curse has been broken — Hahahaha!"

He descended from the wind and landed on the ground. At this moment, a group of cultivators who had rushed over from the Poetry Hall saw that something was amiss and rushed over to the lakeside.

As soon as the Sect Leader of Guyue'ye, Jiang Xi, saw the bubbling lava, his handsome and lofty face revealed a look of surprise, "Unparalleled Earth Fire?" He immediately raised his hand and sprinkled a layer of water type spiritual powder on the people behind him. Every sect had different defensive techniques and usually used a barrier, but when Guyue'ye used spiritual powder, he was also able to resist the scorching sun's flames.

After Jiang Xi finished all of this, he turned around in anger and asked with a stern voice, “Nangong Liu, what is going on?!”

Nangong Liu did not reply. He tightly held onto the man pulled out from the giant skeleton. The fire surrounding the man’s body had disappeared, and he had lost his strength and consciousness. He did not open his eyes again.

When Xue Zhengyong saw Mo Ran and Chu Wanning, he immediately rushed over and shouted anxiously, “Ran’er, Yuheng, are you guys alright? Meng… Where’s Meng’er?!”

Mo Ran hurriedly comforted him, “Xue Meng is fine, he is there—”

Xue Zhengyong looked towards where he was pointing and saw Xue Meng wrapped up in a huge vine, revealing only his pale face. Xue Zhengyong’s face couldn’t help but change, and he staggered as he rushed towards Xue Meng. Mo Ran pulled him back and said, “Uncle, it’s only temporary. He’ll be fine soon. He’ll be safer in the rattan tree. Don’t go over there. Stay with us.”

Xue Zhengyong said anxiously: “What happened?! From a distance, we can see the arrival of evil spirits, Sect Leader Nangong…” As he spoke, he turned around and saw Nangong Liu standing in the lava, as well as the lifeless corpse in his arms.

He suddenly felt that something was wrong. That corpse, why did it seem so familiar?

It seemed a long, long time ago, a long, long time ago… He seemed to have seen this man’s face before.

This person's facial features were too ordinary. It was easy for him to be submerged in the past. Xue Zhengyong was unable to recall it at the moment. But he felt that something was wrong. All of this was wrong. At this moment, he saw Nangong Liu suddenly raise his head. His face was covered with blood, but his mouth was wide open.

Nangong Liu was laughing out loud as his eyes flashed with a strange glow. It was completely different from his usual fawning appearance.

Among those who rushed over were Ye Wangxi and Nangong Si.

Nangong Si murmured, "Father…"

Ye Wangxi, on the other hand, saw Xu Shuanglin, who was standing at the side, and exclaimed in shock, "Foster father?!"

Xu Shuanglin glanced at Ye Wangxi and shook his head, indicating that he should not come over. His loose white robe fluttered in the wind. There was a trace of a lazy smile on his face as he slightly raised his chin and looked at the bustling scene in front of him, Red Lotus Hell.

When his bare feet touched the ground, his rounded toes moved, causing sparks to fly. Then he lowered his head, as if he was waiting for something, and the light reflected in his eyes, like a golden-red carp swimming through a dark pool.

"AHH!!"

Suddenly, a female cultivator cried out in alarm from the crowd.

Xu Shuanglin did not raise his head, but only smiled. Of course he knew what had happened. He had heard the sound of chewing flesh.

Behind him, Nangong Liu grabbed the man's shoulders. Under the moonlight, he tore open the man's neck and greedily drank the blood.

After that scream, no one made a sound, no one denounced him. For a moment, no one understood what was going on, and they were all shocked…

The number one sect in the world, the Rufeng Sect Leader Nangong Liu, was actually chewing on a corpse in such a sorry state?

This… Why… Perhaps…

"Father!"

Nangong Si was the first to collapse. He frantically ran toward Nangong Liu. Since Ye Wangxi was unable to stop him, they ran together to Nangong Liu.

"Father, what are you doing? What are you doing!"

"Sect Leader —"

The clothes he had used to cover his face had long since fallen off, and the flesh of his skin was constantly being rolled up in the moonlight, causing him to suffer even more. The more he suffered, the more he madly chewed on the flesh of the corpse, as if it were a spring, a medicine for suffering, a release he could not ask for.

Some of the cultivators couldn't take it anymore, and the sound of vomiting came from the crowd. Some people weakly muttered, "How could this happen…"

"Madman… Madman…"

“So disgusting…”

The moonlight slowly moved and shone onto Nangong Liu’s body. Nangong Liu first lowered his head and spasmed, blood continuously flowing out from his mouth. Then, he suddenly raised his head and opened his sticky mouth that was filled with blood.

The flesh on his face didn’t heal just because he ate the man’s corpse. Instead, it was still torn into pieces in the moonlight.

His face was already covered in blood, but his eyes were still white. He threw the corpse to the ground and stepped on it. Why wasn’t it of any use… “It’s useless!”

His meridians bulged, his hands trembled, his eyes were bloodshot, and large tears rolled down from the intense pain.

“Pain…” It hurts so much… He really wished he could die… “I wish I could die!” He let out a low growl, almost in despair. Suddenly, he thought of something, and let go of Xu Shuanglin, lowering his head to dig out that man’s heart. “Spirit Core!” He definitely didn’t have enough strength “… I want to eat his spirit core! Spirit core… A Spiritual Core…”

He reached into the wound on the man’s chest and kept rubbing it. His hands were covered in blood and he was almost crazy.

However at this time, a sharp claw pierced his back and penetrated his chest!

Blood spurted out!

Nangong Liu was momentarily stunned and did not seem to be able to react in time. He did not feel any pain and just blankly turned his head back.

He opened his bloodshot eyes and saw Xu Shuanglin looking up, a smile on his clean and fresh face.

“What do you want to eat? For people like you, eating anything is a waste.”

Ch. 165 Shizun, It's Him!

The claws that had been infused with spiritual energy were abruptly retracted, bringing with them a large amount of bright red blood.

Nangong Liu's lips opened and closed repeatedly, unable to utter a single word for a long time. It was as if he had never expected that Xu Shuanglin would stab him from behind. After a long while, he spat out a large mouthful of blood and knelt on the ground.

"Father! Ahhhhhhhhh!" Nangong Si screamed in pain.

"Leader!"

"…!" Everyone was shocked.

Xu Shuanglin calmly squatted down and nonchalantly took out a fruit from his Qiankun bag. He stuffed it into Nangong Liu's mouth, forcing him to swallow it.

The tip of Mo Ran's eye immediately changed color: "lingchi guo?!"

The fruit that Xu Shuanglin had fed to Nangong Liu was the same lingchi guo that had been hanging onto the feathers of the people at the Peach Blossom Springs, making people want to beg for death! Nangong Liu instantly wished he was dead. He curled up on his knees like a shrimp.

A violent shudder ran through his body. Xu Shuanglin looked at him, the light in his eyes very warm.

"Sect Leader, I pity you for the greater half of your life, but in the end, you are still a good-for-nothing that is being manipulated by others."

Ye Wangxi was frightened, “Foster father?!”

“Father… Let go of my father! Let him go!” In the end, blood was thicker than water. Even though Nangong Liu was in dire straits, Nangong Si could not bear to see him in such a miserable state.

He attacked Xu Shuanglin, but Xu Shuanglin was able to block him with a single hand.

Xu Shuanglin rolled his eyes, coldly glancing at him.

“Since the elders have spoken, this junior shall not interrupt them. Kneel before them!”

With that, he pointed his finger into the air and felt as if a thousand pounds had fallen from his back. Surprisingly, he could not even stand properly. Gritting his teeth and enduring for a moment, he still knelt heavily on the ground.

“Ah Si.” Ye Wangxi immediately stood in front of Nangong Si to protect him. She could not raise her sword to face Xu Shuanglin, nor could she just stand by and watch without doing anything. For a moment, her expression was filled with pain and confusion, “Foster father, don’t hurt him…”

“Who cares who wants to hurt him?” Xu Shuanglin turned back and looked at Nangong Liu. He raised his foot and kicked Nangong Liu’s bloody cheek, “It’s been so many years. Now that we’re in front of the world’s heroes, I can’t help but want to reminisce with this person.”

Nangong Liu coughed out a large mouthful of blood, “Reclaiming from the past? What was there to talk about? Didn’t you tell me that as long as I recall Luo Fenghua’s soul from the Infernal Realm, the curse he placed on me will be broken? I will recover from my illness, and I will no longer be afraid. No fear of the night. You lied to me… You actually… You actually lied to me…”

Hearing this, the young cultivators did not react yet, but the faces of Xue Zhengyong and his generation changed. Xue Zhengyong then looked towards the young man’s corpse.

“Luo Fenghua?”

“It’s Luo Fenghua!”

The one who was lying on the ground was the Shizun of Brother Nangong many years ago, the short-lived Sect Leader who had usurped the position of Sect Leader. He was the only disciple of the Rufeng Sect with another surname – Sect Leader Luo Fenghua!

“Your imagination is too beautiful.” Xu Shuanglin laughed, “A curse can be broken? You killed him with your own hands, and now you drink his blood and eat his flesh. You’re so naive.”

“Shouldn’t I drink his blood and eat his flesh?! Although I have stolen his position of power and sent him to his death, before he died, he left a curse on the ring of the Sect Leader, allowing me to wear it. Not a day passed… Cough cough, no… Not a day passed… He could lead a normal life at night! I… Could it be… I shouldn’t have…”

“Of course.” Xu Shuanglin expressionlessly agreed. “Too appropriate.” He twisted and laughed. He then squatted down, raised Nangong Liu’s face and said, “You have done very well. No one can do better, more outstanding and more obedient than you… Sect Leader, no one is more stupid than you.”

He smiled evilly and concluded, “Trash.”

After Xu Shuanglin finished speaking, he slowly stood up, his face carrying a solemn and gentle smile. Spreading out his arms, he said cordially to everyone, “Esteemed guests, the banquet has finished. I also have a snack, and would like to invite everyone to have a taste.”

Someone shouted angrily, “Xu Shuanglin! What exactly are you trying to do?!”

“Actually, it’s nothing much. I just want to invite everyone to share some interesting things. The Rufeng Sect of Wind looked down on the cultivation world for a hundred years, and has countless foul smelling scandals. And among them, there is one thing that I have waited more than ten years for, and will make it public today in front of the entire world.”

As he spoke, his voice turned from high-pitched to gentle.

He then said lightly, “This is probably the last part of the secret history of the Rufeng Sect.”

Hearing him say that, Nangong Liu felt a strong fear in his heart. He shuddered violently and his lips quivered so badly that he could not even speak. All he could do was stare at the person standing on top of the river of flames with his eyes fixed, “You… What the hell are you? Who is it?!”

Xu Shuanglin turned to the side and smiled, but did not answer.

Suddenly, a bright light shone from his hand as a dagger appeared in his palm. He gripped the dagger tightly and cut through the flesh, causing blood to flow out from the center of his palm. He dipped it in blood and drew an array formation on his arm.

Then, he turned around and smiled: “Sect Leader, if you want to know who I am, after you’ve seen all these things, you will understand very clearly.”

Mo Ran tried to stop him, but he was stopped by Chu Wanning.

“Shizun?”

“It’s not a curse, it’s the Dream Reflection Formation. It’s extremely similar to the magic of the Peach Blossom Springs’ Yu Min. It’s magic that allows everyone to see his memories. Wait a minute, let’s see what he has to say.”

Xu Shuanglin blew the light of the formation into the wind, soaring higher and higher, constantly expanding, instantly enveloping the entire lake below the formation. Fragments of memories fell from the sky like dust, and the lake surface was soon covered by Xu Shuanglin’s memories…

Like heavy snow, the ground was replaced with new clothes. As the power of the formation continued to spill out, the scene changed.

Although everyone was still standing around the lake, the wood and lava in front of them were gradually fading away, finally turning into the appearance of the Rufeng Sect’s Yao Tai.

In this illusion, the flying jade platform was empty. There were only two people there, one standing, one sitting.

The person standing barefooted and dressed casually. His hair was not properly combed, and his hair was even slightly crooked. It was Xu Shuanglin. The person who was sitting there was wearing a dark red robe and a white complexion. It was Nangong Liu.

Nangong Liu caressed the Sect Leader’s finger that was embedded with the jade green jade. His face was filled with excitement and anxiety.

“Have the five godly weapons been prepared?”

Xu Shuanglin lazily said, “You’ve already asked it for the ninth time. If you ask me for the tenth time today, I’ll give up.”

Because Nangong Liu’s mood was bad, he could not help but shake his legs, “Alright, alright, then we will wait for the guests to arrive and wait for the day of the wedding. Show me the sacrificial list again. I want to see for myself how many people are still missing from this list.”

Xu Shuanglin threw him a book, and Nangong Liu immediately flipped through it. His eyes were burning with passion, like someone who had gone crazy from thirst, as he flipped through the book. He counted them again, unconvinced, then counted them a second time, his fingers poking at the pages as if he were about to poke a hole in the page.

“Everyone is here.” Xu Shuanglin saw how crazy he was mumbling to himself, and said, “More than twenty pure people of the five elements, in addition to the five elemental spiritual energy guards that you’ve organized over the years, with their combined spiritual core power and godly powers, although their power may not be as great as using an elite spiritual body, it’s still more than enough. I guarantee that I will be able to open the doors to the Infinite Hells.”

Nangong Liu gripped the book tightly and nodded his head, “Alright.”

“However, this is our last chance. If we screw it up again, it will be even more difficult for you to break the curse.”

“We can’t smash it!”

Xu Shuanglin said lazily, “You should say it, it definitely won’t be smashed.”

“Good, good, good. I won’t smash it, I won’t smash it.” Nangong Liu paused for a moment before saying, “Shuanglin, I’m still worried. Shall we go over the plan again?”

“… Brother, you have already matched it more than ten times.”

Nangong Liu did not care. “Repeat it a few more times. It’s always better to be cautious.”

Xu Shuanglin seemed rather helpless. “Sure, it’s up to you.”

Nangong Liu calculated, “On the eve of my son’s wedding, all of the guests will come to the music platform. I will arrange for lots to be drawn, and the twenty-one lots that have been pre-marked will be drawn.” He raised his head to look at Xu Shuanglin. “Now it’s your turn.”

“… Yes, I’ll ask to go with you.” Xu Shuanglin had no choice but to follow him, “After entering the dense forest, I will lead the offerings to the spring lake and plant them with Zhenlong chess pieces, making them obediently obey me, giving their spiritual energy to the Divine Martial Realm. When this matter is successfully completed, I will control everyone to launch the fuses and fireworks into the air, and at the same time tear open the Infernal rift.”

“Good, good!” In contrast to Xu Shuanglin’s laziness, Nangong Liu was very excited, he began to talk on paper, “After seeing the fireworks, I will lead five squads of guards, and in the name of calming the chaos of heaven, I will first rush to the hunting forest to meet you. Afterwards, we will also turn the five squads of guards into Zhenlong chess, offering them as sacrifices!”

Xu Shuanglin nodded and concluded, “It shouldn’t be a mistake.”

“There must be no mistake.” Nangong Liu clenched his thumb tightly and his face turned blue. “I’ve had enough. I’ve had enough…” He mumbled to himself for a while, then suddenly lifted his head to ask Xu Shuanglin, “Shuanglin, is there really no problem in not using an essence spirit body? If the power of the Divine Martial Realm is not pure enough…”

“Don’t worry. These five godly weapons are the highest quality martial skills. They are at the peak of their ability to move mountains and fill the seas. Once they absorb the spiritual energy from the offerings, they will definitely succeed.”

“What if? I said, just in case, just in case the Gates of Hell couldn’t be opened, just like in Rainbow Butterfly Town, someone had to come out to obstruct us… Look at that Chu Wanning!” Nangong Liu said, “What do you mean by meddling in other people’s business? The last time in the Butterfly Town, accidentally killing him was originally a great thing, who knew that the old bald donkey who was carrying the crime had the ability to bring him back to life, it was truly hateful!”

When Mo Ran saw this, he was extremely furious. Back then, Butterfly Town was shocked, and the Rufeng Sect even sent a large number of cultivators to pacify the chaos. Over a hundred disciples of the Rufeng Sect also died in that battle, so the two of them knew this very well…

Then who was the fake Gouchen?

Was it Nangong Liu or Xu Shuanglin?!

“Chu Wanning deserves not to die.” In the illusion, Xu Shuanglin said, “He is a capable man. To die so easily is always a pity.”

“So what if you have the ability? I can’t stand his arrogant face!”

“Oh, so you’re saying, I remember now. Head Immortal, you saw Chu Wanning a few days ago, right? How was it? Resurrected from the dead, did he suffer any damage to his spiritual energy?”

“I do not know about Spiritual Energy, but his temper has not diminished at all.” Nangong Liu hatefully said, “High and mighty, looking down on everyone else. I’m like a dog that rolled around in the mud in front of him!”

Xu Shuanglin laughed, “Sect Master’s analogy is quite interesting.”

“It’s fine if you don’t mention it, but if you do, I’ll be filled with anger! I am a mighty Sect Leader of the world’s number one sect. It’s one thing for me to bow to Chu Wanning, but I still have to see the expression on his disciple’s face. That disciple of his is incredible. Mo-zongshi, he has no sense of etiquette. His character is even worse than his Shizun’s.”

He let out a breath, his eyes flashing with malice.

“What a great wood essence spirit body, I only wish I could abandon the godly weapon and use him. It’s still the same as the initial plan, using his flesh and blood as a pillar of power to sacrifice to the heavens! Go and tear open the gate to the Infinite Hell!”

“Jincheng Lake, Peach Blossom Springs, failed twice.” Xu Shuanglin said, “Afterwards, he walked alone for five years. In these five years, it was difficult for us to find his whereabouts, and we only tricked him once, successfully tricked him into getting severely injured by the Yellow River Pisces. However, that kid was lucky and was saved by Jiang Xi who passed by. Now that Mo Ran has grown wings, he’s no longer that sixteen or seventeen year old youth. None of us can touch him. The path of a Spiritual Body won’t work.”

“Just you wait!” Nangong Liu said angrily, “Once I break the curse, my power will increase greatly. When that time comes, both Chu-zongshi and Mo-zongshi will have to kneel in front of me and listen to my commands!”

Hearing this, Xu Shuanglin only laughed, but did not reply.

He let out a sigh of relief as he stared at the ring on his finger. Suddenly, he said, “Shuanglin, five years ago, you gave up on searching for the essences of the spirit body. And it’s not only because of Mo Ran’s traveling down the mountains, and you don’t know his whereabouts, right?”

“…”

Slowly moving his gaze away from the ring, Nangong Liu said, “It’s because you found out that the earth type soul is Ye Wangxi, right? You don’t want to give up your adopted daughter, she’s the only family you have in this world…”

“I have no family in this world.” Xu Shuanglin interrupted him with a deadpan expression, “Furthermore, Sect Leader, you are well aware that the fire attribute is your son. Even if I can bear to let Ye Wangxi go, can you bear to let him go?”

“Forget it.” Nangong Liu waved his hand with a dispirited expression, “Since godly weapons can be used as a substitute, then what else is there to say? Let’s not talk about it anymore, let’s do it this way.”

“Then what if the godly weapon cannot be replaced?”

Nangong Liu was shocked, “What do you mean?! Didn’t you say that nothing could go wrong?”

“Sect Leader, there is no need to be nervous. I am just curious, if in this world only the five living spirits were to sacrifice themselves to their families, then we would be able to smoothly open the gate. Do you want to continue enduring the pain of the curse, or…” There was a trace of ridicule on the corner of his mouth. He did not continue speaking.

Nangong Liu did not reply. After a long time, it was so long that everyone thought that this part of their memories would come to an end. Nangong Liu said in a soft and slow voice, “Look out for yourself, or heaven and earth will destroy you.”

“AHHH!”

Hearing him say that, everyone’s faces started to ripple, especially someone like Xue Zhengyong who loved his son as much as his life. They were completely unable to understand Nangong Liu’s choice, and angrily said, “Preposterous… The tiger was venomous, but he didn’t want to eat it. He didn’t hesitate to sacrifice his own son for the sake of living? This is ridiculous!”

Nangong Si stood stiffly on the spot with a blank look on his face. Other than that, he didn’t have any other expression on his face. His eyes were empty…

The scene turned dark, and the sparkling memory fragments once again fluttered, emitting the delicate sound of the wind chimes colliding with each other.

When the illusion lit up again, the sky was clear and the towering snow mountain reflected the blinding white light. Someone exclaimed: “It’s Jincheng Lake?!

Ch. 166 Shizun's Respect for Mrs. Rong

Near the edge of Jincheng Lake, a sign with strong red lettering read "proceed with caution, the road is difficult".

The scene was still filled with Nangong Liu and Xu Shuanglin. The only reason why they were still alive was because there were countless corpses lying on the ground.

Or it could be said that they were some of the dead merpeople.

"Hurry up, if we block the path and prevent other cultivators from going up the mountain, it might arouse suspicion."

"It's almost done." Xu Shuanglin stuffed a black seed into the mouth of one of the merfolk, then silently chanted a spell. The merfolk shakily stood up from the ground and bowed towards the two.

With a "putong" sound, he leaped back into the Jincheng Lake that was filled with floating crushed ice. Xu Shuanglin said, "I'm still not proficient with this forbidden technique. Once I'm somewhat proficient in it, I won't need to feed them pawns one by one. I can volley the pieces from afar and they will still follow all my orders."

"That powerful?"

"Why else would it be called a forbidden technique? And even if you can cultivate to that degree, it's just superficial knowledge. I've seen people…" Xu Shuanglin suddenly stopped talking and laughed, "I mean, I saw that there was someone in the books that could preserve the consciousness of a living being, and at the same time make them willingly listen to his orders. That's amazing. At my level, I can only control the body. I can't control the mind, I'm still far from it."

Nangong Liu nodded his head, "You don't need to cultivate too well. It is not a good thing to attract attention."

"Sect Leader is right."

"But fortunately, you thought of this method— Undoing the curse requires one to open the Gates of Hell, and opening the Gates of Hell requires one to possess the five elements of metal, wood, water, fire, earth, and spirit energy. The spirit bodies in this world are hard to find, we can't just go through them one by one, but with the ability to change the heaven and earth from Jincheng Lake. It'll tell you what kind of spirit core those cultivators who came looking for swords have. It's really a good thing to sit back to enjoy."

As he spoke, he took out an orange from the horse's backpack and peeled off its skin. As he ate, he sighed in admiration, "Shuanglin, Jincheng Lake's monsters can't beat you. You're quite capable."

Xu Shuanglin smiled, "Even though Jincheng Lake is an ancient ruin, it has been hundreds of millions of years. The Heavenly Strength of Gouchen the Exalted has long been reduced to almost nothing, otherwise, with my abilities, how could I possibly enter it through the thin air? The Sect Leader is too kind."

Nangong Liu laughed loudly, "Speak, how do you want me to reward you?"

"I have nothing to ask of you."

"Sigh, no way. You have to say it."

“Then, Sect Leader, please give me half of the orange.”

Nangong Liu was stunned, then he smiled and said, “What is this?” Still, he peeled the orange and handed it to Xu Shuanglin. “I’ll give it all to you.”

“Half is fine.” Xu Shuanglin smiled faintly. “I don’t want much either.”

“You are truly a strange person. Half then.”

As Nangong Liu spoke, he handed the orange meat over. Xu Shuanglin’s fingertips had traces of blood on them, which was inconvenient to catch. He directly picked it up from Nangong Liu’s fingertip and said: “Sweet and juicy, not bad.”

In that instant, under the sunlight, Xu Shuanglin’s smile seemed to be somewhat terrifying. The droplets of orange juice dripped down to the corners of his mouth, but he stuck out his tongue and licked it away, like a poisonous snake flicking its tongue.

Nangong Liu was suddenly somewhat afraid and immediately retracted his hand. However, his face immediately revealed a look of vexation and confusion. He did not seem to understand what he was afraid of.

Xu Shuanglin suddenly said, “Look at that.”

“What?” Nangong Liu looked over when he heard that. After a moment, his eyes suddenly widened and an extremely complicated expression appeared on his slightly fat face, “Yes…It…”

“The man-eating fish.” Xu Shuanglin picked up the dead pomfret and threw it onto the sandy beach. The lion-faced fish monster bared its fangs, revealing its mottled, bloody canine teeth. Its grayish-black eyes bulged out, and there was no light coming from its eyes.

Xu Shuanglin dipped a little in his blood, smelled it, and subconsciously rubbed his bare feet. With a frown, he said, “Ugh, how stinky.”

He stood up and kicked the pomfret, “This should be one of the few evil beasts left in the golden city. Although the ones that Gouchen left to guard the Divine Martial Realm were auspicious beasts, the passage of time is enough to change a lot of things. The evil ghost can escape, the deity can fall, not to mention a mere Divine Beast.”

Nangong Liu muttered, “Back then, it was this… You want me to offer up Rong Yan’s heart…”

Everyone outside the illusion was shocked, other than Chu Wanning, who already knew the truth, everyone else was even more shocked than before, “What?!”

“Rong Yan… That was… That is…”

Some of them were muttering, while others had already turned their heads to look at Nangong Si, feeling both shocked and pity him, “That is his…”

At first, Nangong Si was stunned, then his entire body began to tremble. He staggered back, and his entire body fell to his knees. His face was paler than a dead person’s, and even more terrifying than a ghost’s.

“Mother? Impossible… That’s impossible!”

Ye Wangxi tried her best to hold back her tears as she said, “A-Si… Ahhhhhh!”

“Impossible.” He was so mad, his handsome face contorted with fear and anger, grief and horror. His facial features were almost dislocated, he could not hear anyone’s words, could not even hear a single sound, “Impossible!

My mother died while killing the demon beasts! Father told me that she died through the heart when she killed the demon beast!”

Then he suddenly shook and muttered to himself, “No heart…It pierced the heart, then died…”

He did not cry, his eyes were wide open, his eyes were bloodshot, he kept repeating in a hoarse voice, from mumbling to growling, from growling to growling madly, “Piercing through the heart! Piercing through the heart!”

Memories flashed back.

That year, when he was still very young, his parents and a group of people had set out together to ask for swords from the Jincheng Lake. He remembered very clearly that the night before, because he was a little too fond of fun, he had gone mad with Naobaijin in the forest garden at the back of the mountain. Only when it was late at night did he sneak back into the house and tried to look like he was revising his lessons all day. But he did not know that his mother had come to find him after dinner to give him a new embroidered cloth quiver. In the end, after looking around and not seeing anyone at the mansion, she knew that he had sneaked out to play again.

Rong Yan was an extremely cold woman, she would never be like an ordinary mother who doted on Nangong. When she came back to his bed, he was pretending to read a volume of “Free Travels” while shaking his head. So she told him to stop and asked him, “After dinner, what did you do?”

Nangong Si did not know that Rong Yan had already discovered that he was fishing. He put down the book, scratched his head and smiled brightly,

“Mother, I am reciting.”

“You were always here reciting?”

The child was afraid of being punished, so he stammered for a while and still nodded, “Hmm… Yes, yes!”

Rong Yan slightly raised her elegant neck, raised her chin, looked down, and coldly said: “Liar.”

Nangong Si was shocked and his face flushed red, “I did not.”

Rong Yan did not say much, took her bamboo scroll, and asked: “All the world does not have to be silent, what is the first sentence?”

“Moreover… And the whole world… And…”

“You are renowned throughout the world and yet you refuse to advise me!” Rong Yan frowned, she slapped the bamboo scroll on the table and said sternly, “Nangong elder, how does mother usually teach you? It’s fine if you just went mad and played outside so late, but how did you learn to deceive people?!”

“Mother…”

“Don’t call me!”

When he saw that she was annoyed, he panicked. Compared to his amiable father, he was actually more scared of his mother, who always came in and out of the military uniform.

“You’re too outrageous.”

The little child's eyes turned red. He was afraid that she would scold him again, so he argued, "I-I didn't come back too late. I just finished my meal and played outside for a while."

Rong Yan stared at him, his mother who was originally not so angry, became more and more disappointed after her son tried so hard to think of an excuse, and she became more and more angry.

"I returned as soon as the sky turned dark."

"Pah!"

A resounding slap on the face interrupted Nangong Si's words.

Rong Yan's chest moved up and down, she maintained her raised hand, and angrily shouted: "Nangong Si! Greed, hatred, lies, murder, rape, robbery and pillage are seven things a gentleman of Rufeng can't do. Have you not learned these words? Are you still going to continue lying to your mother?!"

It took him a while to regain his senses. Tears welled up in his eyes, and he felt wronged. "If you weren't so fierce, why would I have lied to you? You always hit me and scold me… You, you didn't treat me well at all! I don't like you! I like Daddy!" As he spoke, he prepared to run out to find Nangong Liu.

"Stop right there!"

She pointed at the tip of her son's nose with a finger that was wielding a red cardamom, the flames of fury in her eyes surging.

"Why are you looking for your father? Your father was always submissive, always flattering, and he was just a piece of trash. Are you going to learn from him?! Sit down!”

“I don’t want it! I don’t want it!”

But the moment she let go of him, he wanted to run away again, so in the end, she had no choice but to raise her hand and suddenly place down a restriction, binding him completely. Nangong Si fell to his knees, both humiliated and angry. He was like a trapped beast in a cage, constantly gasping for breath.

“Let me go! I don’t want a mother like you! You. You’ve never spoken to me properly, you’ve never cared about me, you’ve only scolded me… You only know how to scold me!”

Rong Yan’s face was red and white, her lips were trembling slightly as she said halfheartedly, “Stay in your room and recite the entire Free and Unrestrained Tour, I will inspect it tomorrow. If you continue to be so mischievous, I’ll…”

As she finished her sentence, she was at a loss as well. So what? Actually, what she didn’t know was that she had always been a hard-blooded person with a strong personality. Even when facing her weak husband, she would not hesitate to reprimand him in public and teach him a lesson.

But, to Nangong Si… What could she do?

She stood in place for a while, feeling sad and resentful, sad and helpless. Under the rage that attacked her, she started to cough violently, she was an old patient, coughing and coughing up a mouthful of blood, but she did not care, before Nangong Si could even see it, she had used a handkerchief to wipe it off, and then spoke in a hoarse and heavy voice.

“Si’er, you are still young, and the world is full of right and wrong. It’s not always possible to see through them with just your eyes. Sometimes, the people who treat you with tolerance may not want you to be good, or those who treat you seriously may not want you to be bad. Your father is weak and incompetent, what’s more…” She paused for a moment and did not continue. After thinking for a while, she gave up and said, “Mother does not wish for you to become a cultivator like him in the future, a Sect Leader like him.”

Nangong Si bit his lips in silence.

“You are mischievous, your work is not diligent, these are not important, but how can you learn to lie and deceive people? Our Rufeng Sect, the School of Wind, has a hundred years of history. We have always stuck to the character of a gentleman in order to have the face to stand at the peak of all immortals. Your father never taught you these truths, but I’m your mother. He wouldn’t tell you, so I told you again and again. Even if you don’t listen, even if you think I’m strict, even if you hate me.”

“… Daddy didn’t tell me, it’s because he treats me as his boy. He makes me happy, so he’s happy. What about you?! What mother? You think I’m the Young Master of the Rufeng Sect, that I’m the future head of our sect?! I’m with you, and I haven’t had a good day! I won’t listen to you!”

She covered her face with her handkerchief and coughed for a while. After that, she panted for a long time before saying sternly:

“Alright. If you do not listen, I will continue to talk to you until you understand.”

“…” The child was stubborn, so he covered his ears with his hands.

She thought back to the injuries she had suffered when she was exterminating the Demons. Despite holding onto the medicine every day, it had turned into a grave disease which was getting worse and worse. When she looked up and saw the young child disobeying the orders under the lantern light, she could not help but close her eyes.

After a long while, she slowly said, “I will pay you back. Your mother will not be able to accompany you forever. One day, I will no longer be able to keep my eyes on you, and will no longer be able to warn you. I only hope that you can understand it for yourself in the future…”

She suddenly stopped talking.

Because she saw Nangong Si sitting on the ground, his small body curled up in a ball, crying under the forbidden spell she had cast, and her child, the one who had always been happy and smiling, sobbed and cried under her insults.

Rong Yan was stunned for a long time before she slowly stood up and walked over to the forbidden enchantment. She raised her hand, wanting to remove it, wanting to lean over to pick it up, caress his red and swollen cheeks, and kiss his forehead.

However, she endured it. In the end, she was still able to ruthlessly stand up.

She slowly finished the second part of the sentence. “Greed, hatred, lies, murder, rape, robbery and pillage are seven things a gentleman of Rufeng can’t do.”

“I don’t understand, I don’t want to understand, I…I…” Nangong Si raised his tearful eyes and cried out to his mother, who was outside the forbidden spell, “I hate you! I don’t have a mother like you!”

“…”

In that instant, outside the Forbidden Spell Formation, Rong Yan’s face was so pale.

That face had appeared in Nangong Si’s dreams many times over the past twenty years. When he woke up, the pillow was already wet. At that time, he was like a venomous scorpion, waving his pincers and stabbing the vicious juice into his mother’s heart.

It was painful, really painful.

After a lifetime will never slow down, never be able to reconcile with themselves.

On the third day, Rong Yan did not come to see him at the mansion. She only asked the maid to bring him a quiver embroidered with camellias and a letter.

In the letter, his mother wrote solemnly, saying only that she had been practicing martial arts and loved bows, so she had embroidered a backpack for him to use. She also said that she was going to Jincheng Lake’s place with his father, and when she returned, he would properly read “Carefree Wanderings”[158] once again, hoping that he wouldn’t be so willful.

What about him?

How did he do it?

He was still angry and resentful, and he cut the quiver of arrows his mother had made into pieces with his knife. He threw his mother’s letters into the fire and burned them to ashes.

He took revenge on her.

He hated her.

He wanted to let her know that he would never listen to the teachings of such a terrible mother.

He bared his teeth in the utmost malice, and he plotted his way up the wall.

He waited for his mother to bow her head to him, to apologize, or maybe. At that time, he was only using his pitiful malice to exchange for a soft word from his mother and a hug.

But she did not come.

It didn't matter if he made a mistake, hugged, regretted, or was gentle.

He was looking forward to his victory, waiting to declare war on that woman once more, and then —

He waited for her bones.

"The Sect Leader of the Rufeng Sect was ambushed last night. His wife protected him with her body and died from a heart wound."

When the coffin was brought back, Nangong Si stood in a daze beside the towering tower of the Julou Wind Gate. White silk and paper money were scattered all over the place, and as the sole legitimate son, he stood at the front of the group, waiting. According to custom, when an elder fell a basin, the Madame's coffin could be carried across the fire and back to the sect. At this time, the first son was going to kneel down and cry. He was going to use his head to snatch the ground to welcome his mother's spiritual return.

However, Nangong Si could not cry.

He felt so ridiculous, so false, so unreal. The sun was shining down on the ground with a blinding white light, and he felt dizzy and nauseous.

Not real.

… It's not true!

If that was true, what should he do? How could he accept that… In this life, Yin and Yang were separated. The last warning she said to him was, "Greed, hatred, lies, murder, rape, robbery and pillage are seven things a gentleman of Rufeng can't do."

And what did he answer to her?

He didn't want to remember, but that hatred was so deep, and that yell was so deep-rooted. His mother's face was so painful and sorrowful outside the barrier.

Pain…

It was really painful.

He said that the last words he had said to his mother in his life… What he said was…

I hate you.

I don't have a mother like you.

The coffin was supported by the elder, who had broken the porcelain bowl on the side. A thousand people were kneeling on the ground and crying bitterly. His father was already weeping silently beside the coffin, while Nangong Si was just standing there, clutching the tea plant quiver that he had cut into pieces.

The bright red petals, the goose yellow stamens, were covered in snow. It was as if her warm fingertips had just touched the silk and touched the luxuriant purple flowers. It was unknown if it was because she had a premonition before she died, or perhaps it was a coincidence, but she was embroidering very carefully. It was as if she was embroidering all of the love she did not say, all of the advice and instructions for the rest of her life into that thread, locking them in that small cloth quiver.

Nangong Si gripped it tightly.

That was the last thing his mother, his mother, had left him in this life.

Ch. 167 Shizun, I Don't Want You to Be Scolded Again

The illusion did not disappear because of Nangong's pain. Instead, it continued to ruthlessly spread the bloody truth in front of everyone.

Beside Jincheng Lake, Nangong Liu used his foot to crush the man-eating fish's face. He looked around and said, "Beast."

"Bastard wants Madam's spirit core, the Sect Leader can't give it to you." Xu Shuanglin said, "But for the sake of the godly weapons, the Sect Leader sold off Madam."

"What are you talking about? Don't make it sound so bad. Senior Sister Rong was already in poor health, so she had invited the best doctor on Rinling Island to see her. They all said that her time was running out. If she was healthy, how would I be willing to give her up to this beast?"

Xu Shuanglin slightly raised his brow, but said nothing.

Nangong Liu stared at the man-eating fish for a moment and suddenly became somewhat angry. He angrily grumbled, "Destiny is unfair."

Xu Shuanglin seemed to have not expected someone like him, who had both fame and fortune, to criticize fate. Surprised, Xu Shuanglin couldn't help but laugh. "What?"

"I say, fate is unfair."

"…"

"Why is it that when people ask for a godly weapon, all of the tasks entrusted to them by the auspicious beasts are all broken branches, or songs. Coming to my place, I just have to summon a vicious beast and take my wife's life… What can I do? How can I choose?"

Nangong Liu was clearly very angry.

"Back then, when I was asking for a divine might at Jincheng Lake… As you can see, the attendants are silent, and the Grandmasters criticize them. That Chu Wanning… Damn it, a fifteen or sixteen year old brat dares to offend me like that. It was so painful to stand and talk! I don't believe that if he was given the choice, he would choose the former from among a wife who is on the verge of death and a powerful godly weapon!"

Xu Shuanglin laughed. "I really can't say for sure. Don't look at me like that, I'm serious. You'll never be able to guess what they're thinking."

"What else can I think? It was nothing more than making a name for himself in the sea of history. How could I not know them?"

The more Nangong Liu thought about it, the more he felt aggrieved. He cursed and kicked the pomfret.

"Ever since I became the Sect Leader, I have truly suffered grievances. Not only do I have the curse, I even have to smile and welcome others all day long… I was lucky enough to swallow my anger and endure the humiliation. Otherwise, I would have died at the hands of Chu Wanning the year I sought for the sword."

"You're right." Xu Shuanglin was actually still smiling, "I also think that Chu Wanning really wanted to kill you back then. But I didn't expect you to persuade him. Not only did you escape death from his Tianwen, you even sealed his mouth to prevent him from making public what you did at Jincheng Lake. Speaking of survival skills, I quite admire the Sect Leader."

“He also knows that the Rufeng Sect cannot fall into chaos. No matter how angry they are, what can they do?” Nangong Liu said, “Moreover, I still have Nangong Si. For him to think that his mother died from serious injuries while exterminating the demon is much less of a shock to him than the truth.”

Xu Shuanglin sighed, nodding his head in a very just manner. “No wonder he wants to leave. If I were him, I would be completely disgusted by you.”

“Do you think I want to? Do I have a choice? I’ve already said —” Nangong Liu said, “Destiny is unfair.”

Upon seeing this, someone stealthily looked over to Chu Wanning and muttered, “So Chu-zongshi actually knew about Madam Rong’s matter?”

“He even helped Nangong Liu hide it. Yet, he actually did not tell the world about it.”

“He’s probably afraid of something. He was only fifteen at the time. If he really offended the Rufeng Sect, then he wouldn’t be able to take the consequences.”

Someone spoke up for Chu Wanning in a soft voice, “I don’t think so. He was merely making a big loss. Didn’t Nangong Liu say that Chu-zongshi would not tell the truth? He was afraid that Nangong Si would feel sad if he found out.”

“But he seems to be of a different level. Is he a child, or is it the head of the sect, that is more important?”

“Ai, if he had said it earlier, the Rufeng Sect would not have reached its current state.”

“You can’t say it like that. If he really said it back then, the Upper Cultivation World would probably fall into chaos… In short, everyone has their own choices. If it were you, you might not necessarily be willing to stand out.”

“Heh, that might not be the case. If it were me, I would definitely reveal myself to Nangong Liu. For a matter like this, if you do nothing and watch from the sidelines, it would be equivalent to being an accomplice.”

Although their voices were soft, Mo Ran’s hearing was good. A few sentences floated into his ears, and he was immediately enraged. He wanted to go and argue, but someone grabbed his sleeve.

“Shizun!”

Chu Wanning shook his head, “No need to say more.”

“But it’s not like that at all! Didn’t they understand? How can you make this public? Who couldn’t distinguish between priorities? Clearly —”

Chu Wanning said flatly, “Are you angry?”

Mo Ran nodded.

“Do you have to do something?” Chu Wanning asked.

Mo Ran nodded again.

“Okay, then help me cover my ears.”

“…”

“I have no intention of arguing with it, but I do not want to hear it either. You help me cover it up, and when they stop talking, you can let go.”

Mo Ran walked behind Chu Wanning, raised his hand and covered his ears one by one. He lowered his eyes and looked at the person in front of him. He felt both angry and pained. He could not understand why Chu Wanning did everything so well, how could anyone be dissatisfied with what he did? This person seemed to have lived two lifetimes for others, never taking his own life for granted. Why would he be poked in the spine by so many people if there was a dispute over just one thing, as long as there was not a clear distinction between the black and the white?

It was as if things were always like this, and people were used to weeping for a good deed of the wicked, and biting at a little mistake of the good.

In the previous life, Taxian-Jun killed countless people. One day, he bestowed 10,000 taels of gold to each of the masters of the Wubei Temple. As a result, people praised him and said that he had become a Buddha by setting down a butcher's knife.

As for Chu Wanning? Chu Wanning was an undisputed Grandmaster and the world's most benevolent cultivator. If there was even the slightest mistake, people would start to speculate on him maliciously.

How many times.

When Chu Wanning did something ruthless, people would scold him for being cold-blooded.

When Chu Wanning became soft-hearted, there were people who questioned his cowardice.

Mo Ran had even heard people talking about what happened outside of Butterfly Town during his five years of travels. There was someone who pointed out that Chu Wanning was whipping his employer and injuring mortals because he wanted to attract attention from the public.

“He’s just a wooden person without a conscience. How else can a normal person not have three to five good friends?”

“Look at this Chu Wanning, he betrayed his Shizun at the age of 15 and has been alone ever since. Who would be willing to be his friend in this big world?”

“That’s right, that year outside of the Butterfly Town, no matter how wrong he was, he was still an employer.”

Psychological distortion?

In the end, who was the one who was being twisted?

Wasn’t this person paying enough?

If he really had to squeeze out all of his blood, chew his flesh to pieces, and even sacrifice his bones, wouldn’t that be the right decision? As expected of a true Chu-zongshi?

Mo Ran covered his ears. Chu Wanning was tall and slender, but in front of the current Mo Ran, his head was still as tall as his chin. Chu Wanning was not a weak person, but when Mo Ran looked at him with his lowered eyelashes, he suddenly felt very pitiful. He could not help but feel a boundless amount of love and tenderness towards him.

He wanted to hug this person more than ever before.

He just wanted to hug him, to warm him in this hard world with his flesh and blood. That was it.

Towards these questions that came from the mouth of his brain and the words “If it was me, I would do it to you, how would you do it to me?”, Chu Wanning was more used to doing it than he was to use Mo Ran.

At this point, Jincheng Lake’s memories also came to an end, the fragments of his memories started to collapse and reform themselves. Chu Wanning shifted his gaze to Nangong Si.

Nangong had his back to him and was still kneeling, never getting up again.

Chu Wanning sighed softly.

Although he and Nangong Si did not have the title of Shizun and disciple, they had the ability to be Shizun and disciples. If possible, he wished that Nangong Si would spend his entire life thinking that she died tragically while killing the demon beasts. However, things didn’t go as he wished.

In Chu Wanning’s eyes, the kneeling Nangong Si, and the child kneeling in the mourning hall, suddenly overlapped.

The child was clumsily swimming around on his back, but his back was rough and he could not get it coherent. As he wiped away his tears, he slowly recited it to his mother.

“There is a fish in Darknorth. Its name is Kun. The size of the Kun is unknown, but if it were to transform into a bird, then its name would be Peng…” He stumbled. Every time he stopped, his young and tender face would be filled with pain that he shouldn’t have felt at this age. “The entire world… He would not advise it, but the entire world… The difference was… And if he didn’t add it… Ju, it must be… It must be differentiated from the outside and the inside, and it can be argued that…”

The child's soft voice suddenly stopped. He did not turn around, but his small body lightly trembled like a willow in the wind. In the end, he covered his face, and could no longer hold back his tears.

"Mother… I was wrong, I was wrong… Wake up, will you, Mother… I don't want to play anymore. Just wake up and teach me again, okay?"

Later on, the free and unrestrained tour became a silent transcript of every morning lesson by Nangong Si. Accompanying him, he went from a dying child to a high-spirited, scholarly Young Master.

Madam Rong had left and could no longer teach him.

Not long after, Chu Wanning also left, never turning back.

He relied on the old arrow quiver that had been sewn up to make up for his mistakes and the words, "Greed, hatred, lies, murder, rape, robbery and pillage are seven things a gentleman of Rufeng can't do." Finally, in this world's number one sect, which was separated from the hearts of many people, he became a righteous hero that was completely different from his father.

At this time, nearly fifteen years have passed since Madam Rong's death.

The illusion gathered once again. This time, it was Nangong Liu's sleeping hall that appeared before the crowd. It was a full moon night and Nangong Liu was curled up on his bed.

Chu Wanning patted Mo Ran's hand, "Let go, I want to keep watching."

Mo Ran said, "You can also choose not to watch. I'll tell you." He still didn't want to let go of the hand that was covering Chu Wanning's ears, but after being patted by Chu Wanning twice, he knew that he couldn't refuse, so he lowered his hand and gloomily scanned the surroundings. He thought that if anyone said anything more about Chu Wanning's wrongdoings, he would secretly record it down in his head and then find these people to settle the score alone.

In the illusion, Xu Shuanglin walked in from the doorway and gave a crooked bow, very lacking in manners. However, Nangong Liu seemed to be used to it and did not care. His eyes were bloodshot and he trembled as he asked, "Shuanglin, where's the medicine? Where's the medicine?"

"Yes, I failed."

Nangong Liu cried out 'ah'. He was so scared that his tears flowed down his nose. "How could it be… How could this be… You said you could. I can't take it anymore, all the bones in my body are stabbing themselves like spikes! You, hurry up and shut the windows tightly for me, don't let even a speck of light in, don't let even a speck…"

"It's already closed. Today is the full moon, so even if you don't go out, you will still feel pain. "Xu Shuanglin said, "It's useless. You won't be able to escape."

"No-no! Where's the medicine?" Nangong Liu was a little crazy, "What about the medicine?! You said it's worth it! I believe you! Where's the medicine?!"

"I reread the book. It's not worth it. The evil curse on you is too vicious. You need something to get rid of it."

"What?!I can give you anything you want! Just give me the medicine! Give me the medicine!"

Xu Shuanglin said, “I want the spirit core of the person who cast the curse.”

Nangong Liu’s face instantly turned pale.

“Spirit core… You want. You want his Spiritual Core?”

“Is there?”

“Why would there be more!” Nangong Liu roared, his hair was in disarray and he was drooling, “You know who cursed me! My good Shizun, that piece of trash… Pus… A gentleman! Luo Fenghua! He took my place, and I cut him to pieces when I cast him out of the throne! I even placed his ashes in the extremely dangerous blood pond. I sent his spirit soul into the Unbroken Hell and he will never be able to be reincarnated! Now, even his corpse is gone! You want me to find his spirit core? How can I find it? How am I supposed to find him!?”

Xu Shuanglin was quiet for a while. After Nangong Liu finished his roar, he gradually began to despair, and his throat began to choke. Only then did he slowly say, “I have another method, but it’s very difficult. Do you want to hear it?”

“Speak… Speak, speak quickly!”

“Even though Luo Fenghua is dead, you should know that the ‘Record of the Dead’ has recorded that ghosts that fall into the Infernal Realm of the Unmatched may never be able to reincarnate, but they are able to combine the three souls and seven souls to give birth to a demon that looks just like it did before death. The more miserably it dies, the stronger it becomes, and some will even grow out a giant skeleton to protect the soul.”

“So what? I can’t possibly go to the Infernal Realm to retrieve his corpse…”

“You can’t go, but he can come.” The expression in the candle flame was very serene, as if they were discussing which friend’s dwelling place they would go to for tea tonight. “The Ghost World and the Yang World are separated by a barrier, and as long as the five spiritual energies are gathered into pure spiritual energy, they can tear open the gaps of the Unbroken Hell.”

“Rip…that is part of the Infernal Realm of the Seamless?”

Xu Shuanglin laughed, “That’s right, tear open that gap and bring out Luo Fenghua’s Ghost Embryo. That Ghost Embryo is exactly the same as the one before death, and it also has a spirit core. You can eat his flesh and then take out his spirit core without worrying about not being able to curse it.”

He paused for a moment and continued, “However, the five great spiritual energies are a little difficult to gather. The best would be if one needs a superior essence spirit body… Don’t be impatient, just allow me to think of a way.”

Nangong Liu opened his mouth as if he wanted to say something, but the only thing he could cry out was a terrifying wail. His tears and snot flowed as he lay on the bed, trembling violently.

“Is it really that painful?” Xu Shuanglin sighed, “That master of yours must also hate you for murdering your master, to actually place such a ruthless curse on the ring. Truly, the heavens have pity on you.”

“Woo…”

“Alright, just bear with it. It won’t hurt anymore when the sun rises.” As Xu Shuanglin said this, he sat down on the edge of the bed, his legs crossed, one hand on his cheek, the other on his foot. “I’ll accompany you. I’ll talk to you and distract you, so you won’t hurt so much.”

Nangong Liu was buried deep within the blanket, gasping for breath.

Xu Shuanglin said, “Ai, what should we talk about? Why don’t we talk about Si-er? He is also not an easy child. The Heaven’s Spirit Core is tyrannical and easily causes one’s cultivation to go berserk. This seems to be a chronic disease of the Nangong Family. I heard that his great-grandfather also has this disease?”

Nangong Liu hid under the blanket and swallowed his saliva: “En.”

“What are you going to do?”

“What should we do?” Nangong Liu’s voice was filled with a fighting tone, “His illness is better than mine, so it’s much easier to deal with. In the future, when he married his wife… All of them could suppress the flow of spirit through dual cultivation. It’s better to be more concerned about my curse…”

“Haven’t I always cared about your curse? But the more you think about it, the more it hurts.” Because of this, Xu Shuanglin changed the topic again, picking at his toes and giggling, “However, isn’t this dual cultivation a bit too good for a Dao-companion’s body? I heard that Nangong Si’s great-grandmother went there at a very young age.”

“Trash, nonsense.”

“Aiya, I was just casually asking, but I didn’t expect that she really died long ago due to dual cultivation.” Xu Shuanglin sighed, “The Rufeng Sect is truly deep, the Sect Leader actually wants to use the Madame’s life to help him through this tribulation.”

“Women’s lives… It was already… Useless.”

Xu Shuanglin laughed, “Why are you looking down on women so much?”

“It’s not like you don’t understand the Grand Sect Master’s teachings.”

“I don’t understand. What did the Grand Sect Master say?”

“The Rufeng Sect should be led by a gentleman.”

“That’s right.”

“What is a gentleman? It’s a man, do you understand?”

“… Pfft, that’s rude. Sect Leader, your misinterpretation might cause the Grand Sect Leader to come back to life from the Hero Tomb in anger.”

Nangong Liu trembled and said, “You have never married before. You don’t understand. Women… It’s no use, it’s just a family heirloom, it’s… It was their responsibility. Grandmother was willing to sacrifice her life for grandfather…”

“Willing?” Xu Shuanglin smiled. “Then do you also have to find a willing dual cultivation partner for the Young Master to sacrifice her life for him?”

“… I have already found it…”

Xu Shuanglin was stunned. “What? Who is it? Who?” He seemed very gossipy as he crawled deeper into the bed. He almost wanted to pull Nangong Liu out of the quilt, “Sure, you actually have a candidate in mind for the Young Master’s wife of the Rufeng Sect. Quickly tell me about it.”

Nangong Liu wrapped himself in the blanket and dragged himself deeper into the bed. After enduring the pain for a while, he said hoarsely, “Your adopted daughter, Ye Wangxi.”

Ch. 168 Shizun, Someone Is Maligning The Corpse

In the middle of the screen, Xu Shuanglin's eyes suddenly widened, and at the same time, most of the people outside the screen stared blankly.

When Mo Ran saw this, he vaguely felt that something was wrong.

He was someone who had lived for two lifetimes. This conversation, combined with the events from his past life, allowed him to come up with some intriguing details.

He knew that Ye Wangxi's friendship with Nangong Si was more than that because of Ye Wangxi's request to be buried together with Nangong Si before her death. It was because in his previous life, Ye Wangxi's female identity had long been known to the world.

Let her marry Nangong Si…

From the looks of it, it seemed like his father was looking for a dual cultivation partner for his son. However, not long after the marriage agreement was set, Nangong suddenly died, while Ye Wangxi managed to survive… Mo Ran could not help but think about Nangong Si's death that year…

Was it really just a coincidence?

He didn't think so.

On the screen, Xu Shuanglin's fingers were clenched into a fist. Although he was still smiling, his tone was somewhat cold.

"You want Ye Wangxi to marry A-Si?"

“Yes, she’s the most suitable.”

“What’s ‘suitable’?” Xu Shuanglin couldn’t help but laugh. “You wanted to raise her up to be a leader of the Dark Guard, so you turned her into a virgin. Now that you’re saying you’re going to give her to your son, you aren’t afraid that he’ll despise her.”

“He was really unhappy, when I first saw how he often chatted and laughed with Ye Wangxi, and treated her well, I thought he would more or less accept it. However, when I told him about the marriage, he got angry and said that he didn’t like Ye Wangxi at all. The reason he took care of her was because she was a girl and didn’t have an easy time in the Dark City. He won’t accept this marriage.”

Xu Shuanglin: “…”

“How could I compromise? He had a huge quarrel with me. He said that I disrespected his decision and casually dealt with his life. He even avoided Ye Wangxi’s decision and kept a cold and distant relationship with her. The more I tell him about it, the worse his attitude will get. In the end, he even thought that I was biased towards Ye Wangxi and didn’t know what’s good for him.” Nangong Liu scolded, “Didn’t he just despise her because she isn’t good-looking?”

Xu Shuanglin was rather impartial. “If the previous Sect Leader suddenly asked you to marry a woman you didn’t like, would you be willing? I don’t think that’s a good question. You really don’t respect him.”

“He is shallow! To be able to take a wife, one has to marry someone useful and virtuous. If he likes pretty girls, won’t he be unable to take concubines when his body stabilizes?” Nangong Liu sighed, “Ai, I was also to blame for that. Cough cough, did not… See the feelings Ye Wangxi has for Si-er in time. If she still looked the same as before, Si-er would like her."

"You're ridiculous." Xu Shuanglin said, "Si-er will not accept it."

"Unless he doesn't care for his life. It was extremely painful to dual cultivate with a tyrannical person like him. If he were to marry an ordinary woman… I'm afraid… I'm afraid I can't take it at all…" Nangong Liu panted, "Ye Wangxi loves him. If she is willing, she can bear it."

"How could she be willing?!"

"I asked her."

"… What?!"

"I've asked her. I've already told her about this." Nangong Liu said, "She was more afraid of him being hurt than of her own death."

"…" Xu Shuanglin said no more, lowering his head. It was unknown what he was thinking, but after a long while, he finally said, "She really is a fool."

Seeing this, Mo Ran was almost certain— in his previous life, when did Nangong Si suddenly die from an illness? There was a very high chance that Xu Shuanglin had personally killed him.

If Nangong Si died, Ye Wangxi would be able to live.

The reason why Nangong was still alive in this life was probably because of the incident with Song Qiutong. With her marrying Nangong Si, the father would naturally have nothing to say. He even felt that a pie had fallen from the sky and would not force Ye Wangxi to marry Nangong Si.

Since the marriage engagement between Ye Wangxi and Nangong Si had been annulled, and Xu Shuanglin would not harm Nangong Si for the rest of his life, it was completely reasonable. Xu Shuanglin looked like a crazy devil right now, but why did such a devil see Ye Wangxi as so important? She was obviously just an adopted daughter… What was he thinking about, that creepy, unreadable man?

What was he looking for?

This short period of time soon came to an end. When the illusion appeared again, it was much earlier than before.

Nangong Liu seemed to be younger and not fat yet. He was holding a small jade colored item in his hand, and upon closer inspection, it turned out to be the finger ring of the Sect Leader of the Rufeng Sect.

This ring could not be taken off once it was put on. Until the day it was taken off duty and Nangong Liu did not wear it on the screen, it proved that he had yet to become the true master of the Rufeng Sect.

One of the attendants came in and knelt down to pay his respects. The attendants' robes were still stained with blood; it seemed like a battle had just broken out. This period of recollection should've happened the night when Master Nangong Liu Shi Shi seized back the Sect Leader's ring.

"Sect Leader, what should we do with Luo Fenghua's corpse?"

Nangong Liu turned the ring around and thought for a while before saying, "Buried in the Hero Tomb. We are master and disciple after all. The least I can give him a decent home."

"Yes sir!"

The attendant left.

He felt that it was a bit strange. According to the memories he had seen, the Nangong brothers' Shizun, Luo Fenghua, had clearly been torn to shreds by Nangong Liu. He had sunk into a pool of blood and turned into an evil spirit.

But why did it say that Nangong Liu buried his Shizun safely in the Hero Tomb?

In the illusion, Nangong Liu rubbed the jade ring on his Sect Leader's finger. His eyes flashed with a complex and strange luster, as if he was afraid, but also full of desire.

His Adam's apple moved, and he slowly raised his hand to the candle flame. He solemnly put the ring on his thumb.

He stared at his hand and looked back and forth. The corner of his mouth slowly curled up, as if he was about to burst into a bright and happy smile.

Nangong Liu gave a loud shout and suddenly fell down from the Sect Leader's throne. His entire body was trembling from spasms.

"Leader!"

"Sect Leader, what happened to you?"

He hurriedly went to help him up, but Nangong Liu raised his head. His face was covered in blood, and his face, which was still fine a moment ago, suddenly had countless small wounds, which immediately healed after the wounds were torn. Once they were healed, they immediately began to bleed profusely from those mysterious wounds.

“What’s going on!” Nangong Liu panicked, “Pain… So painful… Why… How could this be? What’s going on?!”

Footsteps outside the door.

Facing the moonlight, a man with a pair of smooth bare feet stepped onto the ice-cold bricks. He arrived in front of Nangong Liu and lifted up his robe before half-kneeling.

This person was Xu Shuanglin, who was even younger than he was right now. He bent over and pinched Nangong Liu’s face to carefully examine him. Nangong Liu was constantly struggling, his tears, snot and blood mixing together. Xu Shuanglin seemed to be somewhat disgusted, creasing his brow. He then asked, “How did it suddenly turn out like this?”

“I don’t know. Dao… I don’t know. Mr. Shuang… Sir, please save me…”

At this time, Xu Shuanglin was only an advisor to Nangong Liu, so Nangong Liu called him Mister Shuang, not an elder.

After some investigation, Xu Shuanglin grabbed Nangong Liu’s right hand and looked at the brilliant ring. Suddenly, his expression changed. “There’s a Ten Thousand Tribulations Curse attached to this?”

Only Nangong Liu was still in a daze, not knowing what the curse of life and death was. He only raised his head in a daze as tears streamed down his face and his nose dripped with blood onto the brick floor.

“Ah, what is that?”

“Death Curse.”

Xu Shuanglin’s expression was very ugly.

“This ring has been cursed with a death curse by Luo Fenghua. If the person wearing the ring can see even the slightest bit of moonlight, their skin would be chapped, and they would rather die than live… It’s the same every night.”

“What?!”

“More than that. In the fifteenth moon, even if you don’t leave your home, with the four walls sealed and not even a hint of darkness penetrating, you will still feel the pain of a thousand cuts and no escape…”

He opened his eyes and looked at Nangong Liu, who was curled up on the ground with a miserable expression.

“Until you die.”

Under the thick stench of blood, Nangong Liu’s pupils suddenly contracted. His appearance was that of a panic-stricken rat, or a venomous snake that had sought its head in a black cave.

He gave a comical twitch and muttered, “Until death?”

“Yes.”

“Can, can’t break it?”

“It can’t be broken.” Xu Shuanglin said, “At least right now, I can’t think of any other way… It can only be in the future…”

Before he could say anything, Nangong Liu had already broken free of his grasp. Laughing hysterically, he climbed down the steps, dragging a crooked bloody mark on the cold, shiny floor. He was crying out in pain while laughing, his voice hoarse and distorted to the extreme.

“Hahahaha — curse me? You cursed me?”

“Luo Fenghua! You stole my Nangong Family’s seat, I threw you off the stage, leaving you with an intact corpse, it was already… It was a matter of course! You actually cursed me? How can you bear it — how can you have any face!”

“I read you… The favor of teaching… Buried you in. Buried in the Hero Tomb. Ha! Hero Tomb! Yet you want me to suffer through night after night, until my skin and flesh are lacerated… until I die!” He roared and moved inch by inch to the door of the hall, hiding in the dark shadow cast by the red copper heavy door of the hall. His fingers twitched ferociously as he smacked the ground, unable to stop himself from hitting the ground.

“Relax until you die! How can you be cruel! How can you be cruel — Bastard! Beast! You destroyed my life!”

“Sect Leader…” He could not bear it any longer and wanted to bring him back, but Nangong Liu roared and shouted like a madman.

This bloody face had always been weaker than any other color, but this time it was different. There was a deep-seated hatred on his face, dancing in his pupils like wildfire, burning his reason to the point that he couldn’t grow a single blade of grass.

Nangong Liu screamed hysterically, “Pass it to me…… The first path… The Sect Leader’s order…”

The attendants all knelt down to obey the order.

“The previous sect leader, Luo Fenghua, committed a heinous crime… Extreme Evil… Unforgivable! Order people to take his remains… A thousand cuts… Shatter, death, ten thousand pieces —!”

Xu Shuanglin stood quietly at the side, his eyes lowered, not a hint of emotion on his face. “……”

At this time, a new round of tearing came about and Nangong Liu could not endure it anymore. He collapsed and started crying again, but as he was crying, he continued to give the first order for him to ascend to the throne of the Rufeng Sect. Each word was squeezed out of the back of his mouth, “Grave… The blood pool…”

You curse me to death.

I sink you into the Infernal Realm of the Seamless Purgatory, unable to reincarnate for all eternity.

At the end of the illusion, Nangong Liu opened his empty eyes and his voice was hoarse like a broken clay xun. He muttered, “Luo Fenghua, you beast… You beast…”

The memory shards started to collapse and reconstruct like snowflakes once again, the unveiling of the secret information of the Rufeng Sect caused everyone to be lost in thought. Some people, like Ye Wangxi and Nangong Si, were watching because of the matter that had happened, while many others were excited by the fact that they were lurking around others.

Jealousy was one of the ugliest feelings in the world, how many of the people invited to this marriage were sincere in their worship of the Rufeng Sect? How many of them had passed through the grand and magnificent Three Exclusions Gate, passed through the spirit stone of every inch of land, and even looked upon the seventy-two cities of the Emperor, with only admiration and not a hint of jealousy in their hearts?

The higher one's tower reached into the clouds, the more collapsed it would collapse, which would attract more attention. The melon seeds were knocked all over the ground, and saliva was splattered everywhere.

The pain of others was always the best topic of conversation.

Mo Ran was not willing to watch any longer. However, this matter was a little doubtful and was of great importance. Although Xu Shuanglin's recollection seemed to have no problem at all, able to explain the changes in the Jincheng Lake and the Peach Blossom Springs, he still faintly felt that something was not right.

He had always felt that there was something wrong about this memory.

…… What is it?

He frowned, thinking sullenly.

However, from the corner of his eyes, he saw a strange light flashing in the distance. However, as the illusions were unfolding one after another, no one dared to look out of the woods, so they did not notice it.

Mo Ran was stunned for a moment. Then, his face suddenly changed as he shouted, "Tribulation Fire!"

Everyone turned their heads when they heard that. Where is the tribulation fire?"

"Over there — over there!"

“That’s not right! This way too!”

No one would have thought that when they looked at Xu Shuanglin’s memories, the surrounding area of the Rufeng Sect, as well as the seventy-two cities, would all be set ablaze with a scarlet flame. That light was still far away, and the dense forest they were in was too deep for them to see it clearly if they didn’t pay attention.

The fire tribulation was one of the fierce fires. Unless it was raining heavily and the dew was used to extinguish it, it would never stop unless the surrounding grass was burned to ashes.

Thick smoke rose up into the air, and the flames were like water poured on a piece of silk. They quickly spread out and covered the surroundings, and from afar, one could see bright meteors flying in all directions from the 72 cities. It was clear that they were the disciples of the Dojo of Limits who had escaped from the sea of fire and flown into the sky on their swords.

When the people in the forest saw this, quite a few of them paled and shouted loudly, “What happened?”

Some people immediately turned around and ran towards the Shi Le Hall, calling out the names of their companions. Xue Zhengyong’s face changed as well. With Madam Wang still there, she didn’t know how to control the sword…

“Mo Ran! Yuheng! I’ll leave Meng’er to you. I’ll go take a look at Madame…”

Mo Ran was also very anxious. He nodded and said, “Uncle, quickly go. Bring Aunt away first. With us here, I definitely won’t let anything happen to Xue Meng.”

Xue Zhengyong patted him on the shoulder and flew towards the music hall, which was now ablaze with flames.

Seeing this chaos that had suddenly erupted, Xu Shuanglin quietly stood where he was, suddenly revealing an extremely bright smiling face. He smiled and said, “What a scene of a tree falling and monkeys scattering.”

Mo Ran suddenly turned around and saw Xu Shuanglin snap his fingers, causing the colorful memory fragments to gather in his palm like millions of snowflakes.

Once again, the sea of flames returned to normal. In the sky, the Seamless Hell’s Heavenly Rift still did not close. It still continued to emit a golden-red flow, slowly spreading out into the forest.

Mo Ran stared at Xu Shuanglin and suddenly felt a chill run down his spine.

There was something wrong with the look in this person’s eyes. This look was too familiar…

In his previous life, he was at Sisheng Peak, he was at the empty Wushan Palace. After Chu Wanning died, he would look at himself in the mirror and see a pair of terrifying eyes.

The eyes that were suffused with madness and bloodlust, giving up on themselves, wanting everyone to die for their own sake.

“You want to destroy the Rufeng Sect?”

Hearing Mo Ran ask this, Xu Shuanglin’s reaction was only to rub his two toes against each other.

Then he smiled.

“So what if I am? I destroyed my own home, so how can you be in charge of it?”

“Your own home…”

Xu Shuanglin walked over to Nangong Liu and grabbed him by his collar. He pulled him up from the ground and said with raised eyelids, “That’s right, my own house.”

He forced Nangong Liu to face him. Then, he raised his other hand and slowly, inch by inch, from under his neck, he began to slowly tear, bit by bit…

Sssii.

In the end, with a light sound, an exquisite human skin made from the skin of a hundred-year-old serpent demon was ripped off, revealing the back of its face.

Nangong Liu’s body first trembled before he began shaking violently. His breathing was erratic, but he managed to drag out bits and pieces of his voice with great difficulty.

“You… It’s you…?! You. No… Die? You actually… You actually…”

“I’m not dead. You’re still alive. How could I possibly die before you?” Xu Shuanglin said with a smile, “I’m just too much stronger than you in every aspect, including my lifespan. You’re rotten to the ground, so I’ll live a good life. What? It has been a long time since we last met. Are you so happy that you can’t say anything else?”

He produced a flame and casually burned that human skin and mask. The flame spread all the way until it reached his fingertips, but he did not care nor feel any pain. He shook his hand and pressed his burnt black fingertip to Nangong Liu's lips, then crooked his head and said with a smile.

"Sect Leader Immortal, long time no see… Or I should call you. 'Brother?'"

Ch. 169 Shizun, the First Forbidden Technique

“Nangong Xu!”

Amongst the crowd that had yet to leave, there were some older people who suddenly reacted and exclaimed, “It’s him?”

“It’s Nangong Xu…”

“Didn’t he die a long time ago?”

“Luo Fenghua personally killed him that year… How could he… How can he still be alive?”

Ye Wangxi was even more shocked. Her pretty face was pale and her lips were moving. After a while, she shook her head with tears in her eyes and stepped back, “Foster father…”

Xu Shuanglin stared at Ye Wangxi, then smiled at her. “Little Ye, come to father’s side. Father won’t hurt you.”

“Don’t you dare touch her again!” Suddenly, someone shouted, and Ye Wangxi’s wrist was grabbed. He turned around, and his eyes were filled with endless pain, dripping blood. “Ye Wangxi, get behind me.”

Xu Shuanglin smiled. “My good nephew, why is it that your temper is not like your father’s at all, only like your mother’s?”

“Shut up! You are not worthy of mentioning my mother!”

“Why am I not worthy?” Xu Shuanglin said slowly, “Did you know that the person your mother liked the most was not your father, but me?”

“AHHHH!”

Seeing the twisted fury and disgust on the young man’s face, and the crazed and painful look in his eyes, Xu Shuanglin actually enjoyed it. It was as if he was being nourished by such deep-seated hatred, and couldn’t help but laugh out loud.

“Your father destroyed my reputation and stole everything from me, but so what? The Door of the Noble Wind… The Rufeng Sect was still in his hands as they walked towards the end of the evening. Hate me, pay me back, hate me — Big Brother! Hahahaha — do you think that the pitiful Nangong Xu died that year? Do you think that I will obediently lie in the grave and watch you two roam freely and contentedly in this Yang World?”

His smile suddenly tightened as he spat.

“In your dreams!”

As he spoke, he walked around the dying Nangong Liu, who was still unbreakable, and grabbed the lapels of his big brother’s clothes, just like he was lifting a puddle of mud.

“What use would it be for such a waste to bring down the brilliant scholar of the Wind Sect? Sect Leader… Heh, what a joke! As the Sect Leader, I have been toying with him for so many years. If I say I want it, then I’ll just pout my butt like a dog and he’ll obediently find it for me.” He smilingly patted Nangong Liu’s bloody cheek. His smile was very intimate, but his eyes were shining with a sinister light. “Big Brother, you really are a lustful coward. A good-for-nothing snack.”

At the side, the Sect Leader, Jiang Xi, said, “Your Excellency’s goal is only to destroy the one hundred years old foundation of the Rufeng Sect?”

Xu Shuanglin turned around and blinked. “Hundred years of foundation? What did that matter? With their foundation destroyed, they could start over. Once the 72 cities were burnt down, they could start over again. Only when a person’s heart is dead will they be reduced to dust, and once the wind blows, they will scatter. That would be great.” He paused for a moment, smiled brightly, and said:

“I’m going to destroy all of your hearts.”

These words were said in an insidious manner. Coupled with his radiant face, it made people shudder in fear. The others had yet to react, but Nangong Si could no longer restrain himself.

His eyes burned with endless karmic flames, filled with despair and smoke. Those eyes contained only hatred and madness, not the slightest bit of lust. The sound of a jade flute, a three-meter-tall demon wolf cutting the wind and breaking the waves came out from the forest, leaping towards Nangong Si. Nangong Si jumped up onto his back, but before he could even sit still, his figure had already flashed by.

“Man Tuo, summon him!” With his shout, a shining Divine Martial Bow appeared in his palm. Nangong Si held the demon wolf tightly, mounted on the back of the wolf, his body straightened, and he brandished the Jade Bow Mantua, his face filled with crazy hatred. In an instant, he shot three arrows consecutively, aiming at Xu Shuanglin’s vitals.

Xu Shuanglin laughed, “My liege, you are very naughty.”

He dodged two arrows and saw that the third arrow was unable to pass. However, he was not in a hurry. He grabbed his brother’s limp body and blocked the first arrow.

After all, he was his own father. No matter how heartless the other party was, it was still a habit that was carved into his bones for him. He could not help but tighten his body as his temples throbbed.

“Do you still want to play with uncle?” Xu Shuanglin, however, was very friendly. Smiling, he said, “Uncle will accompany you.”

“Nangong Xu! I’ll kill you!”

“Kids, what’s the point of shouting for a fight?” His words were light, but Xu Shuanglin’s movements were not slow at all as he began to call out to his nephew.

In merely a few moves, his speed caused all of the surrounding cultivators to be dumbstruck. Some people could not help but think — no wonder when Nangong Liu took over the position of sect head, his attitude toward being a younger brother had to distort — the spirit energy of these two brothers was like heaven and earth. The difference was like the difference between clouds and mud.

“So powerful.”

“Didn’t Nangong Xu secretly learn his brother’s spell back then? How could he have such ability?”

“He is on par with the number one Grandmaster…”

There were a few people who wanted to help Nangong Si and attack him, but at this moment, all of them withdrew their attacks. There were also some who were more astute, thinking that the calamity that had befallen the Rufeng Sect could no longer be solved, they took advantage of the chaos to run away. This kind of mentality could be felt very quickly. In a short moment, all of the cultivators that had left immediately ran away. They all disappeared without a care for the fellow disciples who had been turned into pawns and had yet to regain their senses.

In the blink of an eye, there were only a few people left in the hunting grounds. Mo Ran turned his head and saw that he, Chu Wanning and Ye Wangxi had not left.

No, there was also Jiang Xi.

This was something he did not expect. Jiang Xi was the richest man in the world, the leader of the Linling Flower Island, the world's most proficient merchant, and also the leader of the largest sect in the cultivation world, excluding the Rufeng Sect.

He didn't expect him to be willing to care about such a thankless stall.

"Sect Leader Jiang…"

A slightly trembling voice startled Mo Ran even more. He turned his head to look and did not notice that there was a person hiding behind the orange tree. Although his face was pale and his lips were trembling, he forced himself not to leave.

Li Wuxin?!

As the leader of one of the lowest ranked sects in the Upper Cultivation World, Li Wuxin swallowed his saliva. His yellow face was covered in sweat as he looked at the remaining people with uncertainty, "Are we going up together?"

Jiang Xi did not answer immediately. His gaze quickly swept across the remaining people before he spoke decisively, "Palace Master Li, come with me. I'll go save those sleeping chess pieces. You'll be responsible for bringing them all to the complete location on the sword."

"Good, good, good."

"As for Chu-zongshi and Mo-zongshi…"

Chu Wanning said, "Mo Ran, go help Nangong Si. Once I fix the Heavenly Rift, I'll immediately come help you."

This Heavenly Rift was different from the ones in Butterfly Town, there were no hundreds of evil spirits surging around, only a golden red hell flowing around, so it was not dangerous, but the tear was huge, and it was more suitable for Chu Wanning to repair it.

The twenty-odd young cultivators that were used as chess pieces collapsed limply to the ground. With a flick of Jiang Xi's green sleeve, thousands of powder was scattered on the ground to stabilize their weak states. Then, he turned his head to Li Wuxin and said, "I'll have to trouble you."

Li Wuxin nodded his head, summoning a heavy sword shining with a dark green light. He chanted an incantation, and the heavy sword that could only carry two or three people suddenly expanded by dozens of feet, hanging in the air. Jiang Xi carried the people to his sword hilt one by one. It was Xue Meng's turn at the end, but Li Wuxin's weapon could not support him.

Li Wuxin said, "I can't carry it anymore. There are too many of us, let's talk after I return from this trip."

Jiang Xi glanced at the battle that was not far away. Fire was flying everywhere, and the spirit energy flow was becoming increasingly terrifying. The surrounding orange trees were being destroyed one after another, and it was obvious that the battle would soon spread to this area.

There was nothing he could do. Lowering his head, he looked at Xue Meng in disgust and said, “Forget it. You go. I’ll take the rest of the trash.”

Once finished, he called out in a low voice: “Xuehuang, summon here.”

A silver sword covered in blue light suddenly appeared under his feet. “Xuehuang” was extremely luxurious and exquisite, the sword hilt was thin, and the decorations were exquisite beyond compare, but it was obviously not good at carrying weights. Jiang Xi held the unconscious Xue Meng in his arms. Thinking of how this person had talked back to him before, and how he was the son of Madam Wang and Xue Zhengyong, he couldn’t hide his disgust, and his disdain was written all over his face.

Li Wuxin: “…”

Seeing Sect Leader Jiang like this, shouldn’t the sword be halfway through, pick the highest point and throw the Young Master of Sisheng Peak down into mash?

“What are you looking at? Hurry up and leave. We need to send them out early and come back to help.” Jiang Xi said with a gloomy face, “We can’t just let the Rufeng Sect be wiped out like that.”

The two Divine Martial Weapons soared into the air, carrying the youths of the Spiritual Flow. Then, they flew into the distance.

At the same time, Chu Wanning had sealed the Hell Heavenly Rift Sundering to the last phase, and the fight between Mo Ran and Xu Shuanglin was reaching its climax. Mo Ran’s power was strong, and Nangong Si's killing intent was even more resolute. Although Xu Shuanglin's Tao technique was powerful, he was still unable to defend himself when surrounded by the two of them.

As he was struggling to make ends meet, Xu Shuanglin shouted at Ye Wangxi, "Ye, what are you trying to do? Do you really want to see your foster father die at the hands of others? Hurry up and help me!"

Ye Wangxi clenched her fingers into a fist, her expression pained. Her entire body was trembling, but she did not move forward. Instead, she retreated step by step.

"Are you really going to stand by idly and watch? Do you forget who brought you back from the orange grove when you were a child, raised you, and gave you a name?"

"…No."

She was on the verge of collapsing, but because she had been strong since she was young, both the Sect Leader and the Elders treated her like a man and raised her. Now that she had met with such an unexpected situation, she still persisted.

However, it was as if her flesh and blood had already shattered. At this moment, it was as if when someone lightly touched her, and all the muscles in her body would peel off from her bones and crush into mud.

Seeing her like this, Xu Shuanglin silently cursed, but did not force her. Instead, he turned his head and began to fight even more ferociously with the other two.

"Clang!"

The saber in his hand suddenly emitted an ear-piercing metallic sound. The top-grade weapon from the Taxue Palace on Mount Kunlun could no longer hold on. It shattered into pieces under the force of the vine and fell to the ground.

Mo Ran said coldly, “What else can you use to fight?”

He suddenly raised his head and saw that Chu Wanning had completely filled up the crack in the sky. The night sky above the Hunting Forest returned to its normal state, and the hellish lava that had lost its spiritual flow of the underworld turned into a golden red, drifting about like fireflies in the forest.

The stars were all over the sky. Chu Wanning floated down from the night sky, his dark ceremonial robe fluttered in the wind, his face was as white as a porcelain plate, his face was handsome and unparalleled.

However, no matter how handsome he was, it could not conceal the killing intent emanating from him.

“Damn.” Xu Shuanglin gritted his teeth.

Just Mo-zongshi was more than enough for him. With another, such as Chu-zongshi, who in the entire cultivation world would be able to fight against them one on one?

Xu Shuanglin took a step back, then suddenly used the knife to cut open his palm, squeezing out some blood. He rubbed the curse mark on his forehead and softly said, “Still not coming to save me? How long will it drag on for?!”

Then, he grabbed at the air, his fingernail suddenly increasing by a few inches. With a “pu” sound, he tore apart Luo Fenghua’s body that was lying on the lake surface, pulling out his spirit core with blood dripping from his body, putting it into his bosom. Then, he quickly jumped back, grabbed his elder brother who was still half alive, removed the barrier around his feet, and jumped into the spring lake.

Mo Ran immediately came back to his senses — the godly martial blade, “Bu’gui”, which he used to open the Heavenly Rift, was stuck at the bottom of the lake!

Even though he was dragging a living corpse, he immediately grabbed the pitch-black blade floating in the lake. The moment he appeared, another rift suddenly appeared in the sky.

Chu Wanning frowned, “Heavenly Rift?”

What he said was not certain. The crack was very small and was only as tall as a person. It was different from the normal Heavenly Rift of the Infinite Hells, and there was no Yin Qi coming out of it.

Xu Shuanglin threw a splash and leapt into the air. He carried his brother in one hand, and with the Divine Martial Blade in the other, he slashed down with a stream of sword Qi, forcing the three people who were chasing after him to a halt. He took this opportunity to push himself upwards, and from the narrow crevice, an extremely beautiful hand suddenly extended and tightly gripped Xu Shuanglin’s arm.

“…The Time and Space Gate of Life and Death!”

His mind flashed like a flash of lightning, and Chu Wanning’s eyes widened. He had always been calm and collected, so even if he had seen a beautiful chess match, he would not be this shocked. However, the color of his face faded in an instant, and his sleeves curled into a fist.

As for Mo Ran, he felt as if a bucket of cold water had been poured over him. He turned his head and asked, “What?!”

How was this possible?!

This was the strongest of the three forbidden techniques. Rumor has it that it can tear apart time and space, causing people who are not in the air to become unlucky and appear at the same time. This was a forbidden technique that had long been lost in the cultivation world.

The Time and Space Gates of Life and Death!

Ch. 170 Shizun, Don't Look, It's Dirty

In the blink of an eye, Xu Shuanglin was already dragged into another space by the hand that came out of the Gate of Life and Death. Although Nangong Si wanted to give chase, it was impossible to do so.

The door was shut.

There was nothing left in the night sky but a small piece of Xu Shuanglin's clothes that he had not brought in before the gate of life and death had closed. At this moment, they were floating in the dead silence, falling into the lake.

Slowly sinking into the lake…

"How is this possible? How can there be anyone in this world who can truly control the Space-Time Gate of Life and Death?"

As Taxian-Jun in his previous life, he was very clear that there were three forbidden techniques in this world: Zhenlong Chess, Secret Technique of Rebirth, and the Gate of Life and Death.

Although the first two forbidden techniques were difficult to learn, they weren't unheard-of in the cultivation world. For example, in his past life, there was always someone who could use these two techniques like master Huaizui.

There were very few records about the Life and Death School. The most recent one was thousands of years ago, when a Grandmaster died because he loved his daughter.

Thus, he opened this forbidden door, wanting to bring his daughter, who was living in another time and space, back to her own world.

However, his actions were caught by him in the air and time. As her father, how could the 'he' of that world allow his beloved daughter to be snatched away? In this desperate battle between the two, the spatial crack that had opened was twisted and deformed.

After the Grandmaster came back, he collapsed. From then on, he sealed the scroll in the Flame Emperor Divine Wood, and he became the last person in the endless river of time to completely master the 'Portal of Life and Death'.

During these past few years, more and more cultivators believed that there was no such thing as a space-time distortion spell. Instead, it was Mo Ran from his previous world. Because of the boundless Tao technique, he had actually used the remnant scroll in his hand to tear a similar crack open with his own strength…

Mo Ran had once tried to throw a rabbit inside, trying to move it to a location thousands of miles away. The rabbit had passed on the message, but because of the instability of the crack, the rabbit had turned upside down when it came out, its innards had turned upside down, its fur had turned inside out and became a bloody mess, and its heart was still thumping…

After that, he tried many more times, and there were at least five or six times that something went wrong. The moment something went wrong, it would be extremely disgusting; some parts of the body would split, some parts would be shattered, and some parts of the head would soon appear, but the body would be an hour late.

Almost everyone felt that Mo Ran had recovered and become proficient in the “Gate of Life and Death”, but he himself was not sure: he had not seen the first forbidden technique from thousands of years ago, but based on the historical records, he felt that the technique he had copied was far from the real Gate of Life and Death.

Chu Wanning rushed to the surface of the lake and picked up the piece of cloth Xu Shuanglin had left behind. He opened his eyes and carefully examined it, before letting out a sigh of relief. Soon after, he became even more depressed.

He shook his head and said, “It’s not a complete Portal. That person should have only grasped half of the remnant scroll. According to the spiritual energy that was left behind on this cloth, it should only be a Gate of Space and not a Gate of Time.”

“What do you mean?”

“In other words, this spell is very different from a real forbidden spell. I can only sense the remnant Spiritual Energy of Space. In other words, Nangong Xu was instantly dragged to another place by someone through this rift in space.”

Isn’t this similar to the Gate of Life and Death that he had restored in his previous life? If that was all, it wasn’t impossible.

However, a shadow still lingered in his heart. He asked, “What if it is the true Forbidden Technique? What will happen when it is used?”

Chu Wanning’s expression became more subtle for some reason. He paused for a moment and then said, “If it is the real Gate of Life and Death, then it can do more than just tear apart space. It can even take Nangong Xu to another world."

However, upon hearing these words, Mo Ran's expression changed slightly. He then pursed his lips and did not say another word.

In his previous life, he didn't have much knowledge, and the documents he had gathered were quite believable. As for the rumor that the great Grandmaster had torn open the Heavenly Rift and brought back the daughter of another world, he didn't really think that it was reliable.

Now that the words had come out of Chu Wanning's mouth, Mo Ran was finally convinced. However, this sort of certainty brought a chill down his spine.

In the five years that Chu Wanning was gone, Mo Ran had read many classics. In fact, he was feeling weird about the mystery of his rebirth.

He had never seen true rebirth in his previous life. He had thought that the so-called "rebirth" would be similar to his own rebirth, going back to a certain month before death.

However, in his entire life, he had witnessed Master Huaizui casting this forbidden spell. There was a place in Mo Ran that he could not figure out: Shizun's rebirth technique was to bring back Chu Wanning's soul from the Underworld, back to that body that did not rot nor suffer any serious injuries, and then continue to live in this world.

This rebirth was different from what he had experienced.

In his previous life, if someone was to use the same method of rebirth as master Huaizui to save him, then he should have been reborn in the Wushan Palace. These people should still be dead, and no one would be by his side.

Because of this, he guessed that there was more than one method of rebirth in this world, which resulted in him being reborn in a different way from Chu Wanning. However, at this moment, after Chu Wanning confirmed that the most unknown of the three forbidden techniques, the 'Gate of Life and Death', he had a very scary thought.

Could it be that not only had he been reborn, but he had also been affected by the Gate of Life and Death, tearing apart the space and time of his evil soul that should have been suffering in another time and space. That year when nothing had happened and he could still turn back in time?

If that was the case, then wouldn't all his actions be in the eyes of the person behind the scenes? Everything, including his rebirth, had been planned by that person and watched silently from behind the scenes.

Mo Ran felt a chill run down his spine.

However, before he could think about it, he suddenly heard an earth-shaking explosion from the distant land of tribulation and fire.

"Let's go take a look," Chu Wanning said.

Before he finished speaking, the burning 72 cities of the Rufeng Sect seemed to have been set on fire by Xu Shuanglin. Suddenly, the fire intensified as it soared dozens of feet into the sky, its light reaching into the heavens!

At this very moment, even if Mo Ran and the others did not rush over, even if they were several hundred miles away from the door, they would still be able to see the raging inferno that would burn through the dark night.

Xue Zhengyong had already brought Madam Wang out of the sea of fire, but when he looked back, he saw the fire had coiled into two intertwined bodies, a man and a woman slowly taking shape. Xue Zhengyong was stunned, “This is… What’s going on?”

As a member of a distinguished family, Madam Wang had seen many precious artifacts. Her expression immediately changed as she said, “They are a kind of scroll that can be used to record memories. This kind of scroll does not need any magic to support it, it was laid down by the caster beforehand. As long as it is ignited by the Heaven Calamity Flame, the memories sealed inside will appear in the fire.”

“Continue to echo?” Xue Zhengyong couldn’t take it anymore. Looking at the door of the Rufeng Sect that was engulfed by the tribulation fire, a trace of pity was revealed in his eyes.

When others revealed the truth, they would find a few witnesses and pull them together to tell them a few words. Then, they would throw away a few pieces of evidence. This matter was about to come to an end.

As for Xu Shuanglin? He was a lunatic, making scrolls of all the memories he had been searching for and setting fire to the sky so that the whole world could see how dirty and filthy his home was. Using the grand sea of fire as a canvas, he magically expanded the shameful whispers of his temples into a thunderous roar, so loud that even deaf people would be able to hear it.

“Just what is this Xu Shuanglin up to?” Xue Zhengyong sat on the extended iron fan with Madam Wang in the middle of the air. His face was lit up by the blazing flames, and sometimes darkened by the flames. He mumbled, “Could it be that he hasn’t found out enough about the Rufeng Sect?”

Madam Wang, “…”

“Enough, this is really enough. The Rufeng Sect has already been torn apart by him to such an extent that they became the laughingstock of the cultivation world. Why is he still not letting this opportunity go…”

However, as the voice of a woman rumbled from the sea of fire, the cultivators who escaped from the Red Lotus Purgatory and watched the show in the air were all stunned.

Xue Zhengyong was also stunned.

“Brother Liu, we are already so old, why… why are you still not so serious…”

“Hmm…”

Along with this soft groan, the two blurry figures in the sea of fire gradually became clearer. The tribulation fire of the 72 cities of the Rufeng Sect spread out the two naked bodies, and just the five bats on the woman’s white arm were enlarged to the size of a building. The hair of the bats on them could be clearly seen.

Everyone was dumbfounded as they turned their heads to look at one of the ten great sects of the cultivation world, the Jiangdong Hall.

The disciples of the Jiangdong Hall were even more frightened. Their eyes were all as big as bells. They stared blankly at their Sect Leader, Qi Liangji.

This newly appointed Sect Leader's face was ashen. She stood on her sword like she was made out of wood, standing in the night wind.

On her arm, clearly, was the ornament of the pentathlon.

She had never thought that her private affair with Nangong Liu would be seen by others. Furthermore, they had even made a memory scroll for her. She was now naked, completely naked.

It was made public.

She was instantly stunned.

The same was true for Mo Ran. The moment he appeared in the air, he blinded Chu Wanning.

"Don't look."

Chu Wanning: "…"

This was almost a subconscious action. He was full of possessiveness towards Chu Wanning. He wanted to seize this person's body, their breathing, their moans, and the broken sound of their lips. Now, he wanted to possess a pure heart like Chu Wanning.

"Don't look, it's very dirty."

Wasn't it very dirty? Chu Wanning thought. So what if he covered his eyes? The ambiguous voices of a man and a woman's lovemaking still echoed clearly in his ears.

Chu Wanning kept silent, letting Mo Ran place both of his hands in front of him. He tried to maintain his composure, but his face unconsciously turned a little hot.

“Ah… Quick, quick… Ah, ah. Mmm…”

Mo Ran: “…”

Chu Wanning: “…”

Perhaps it was because his eyes were covered, but the other senses were all the clearer. Sect Leader Qi’s voice was like a tiny fluffy claw, climbing up a person’s spine, causing a tingling sensation wherever it passed. It was unknown if it was on purpose, but her voice was filled with passion. To her, a man’s invasion was like the thick roots of a huge tree, deeply buried into the fertile soil. The gurgling spring water beneath the soil was drilled out, and the air was tainted with the fishy smell of a heavy rain.

This sound made Mo Ran very anxious and did not know what to do.

He wanted to continue covering Chu Wanning’s eyes, but he also wanted to cover his ears.

He wanted to cover his ears with his hands, but he didn’t want to take them away from him.

What was even worse was that in this suddenly alluring atmosphere, Mo Ran suddenly felt that the thing he longed for the most was neither to cover his ears nor to cover his eyes. There was a violent tiger wolf in his chest, growling and urging him on.

Although the timing was not right, he suddenly realized that what he wanted the most was to grab him from behind, hug him tightly, intimately rub his back, eagerly suck on his ears, and then pull his face over and fiercely hug and kiss him.

His eyes were dark as he stared at the nearby Chu Wanning. His breathing gradually became more uncomfortable.

Although Chu Wanning was strong and fierce, his physique was no longer his opponent. If he had any ulterior motives, then Chu Wanning would not have a chance to fight back. This stubborn man's accumulated strength could only be used to suppress the moan in his mouth.

He endured to the limit, but he could not escape the fate of being crushed into nothing.

The person in front of him did not know what was going through his mind. To ease the awkwardness, Chu Wanning cursed under his breath, "How outrageous."

"Yes." Mo Ran's throat was dry, but his eyes were very moist. He echoed in a low voice, "Indeed, very outrageous."

"That Qi Liangji was clearly a married woman. Her husband had just passed away and she had become the head of the Jiangdong Hall. Who would've thought that she would actually act in such a manner when she turned around?" Chu Wanning was extremely disdainful, as he simply said, "Ridiculous."

"Yes." Even though he knew it was not the right time to do so, he couldn't help but to crave for it. Mo Ran didn't even notice that his lips had gotten closer, almost at the back of Chu Wanning's neck. "It's ridiculous."

He indifferently swept the sky with his gaze. Nangong Liu and Qi Liangji's Spring Palace was still violently churning.

He vaguely recalled that Qi Liangji seemed to be even older than Nangong Liu. Her husband was Nangong Liu's sworn brother. According to seniority, Nangong Liu should be calling her sister-in-law.

He didn't know how these two seemingly innocent people managed to get together.

Just as he was thinking this, Nangong Liu's hoarse voice came from within the tribulation fire. He raised his eyes and saw that these two shameless people had changed into different positions to make love. Nangong Liu purposely seduced her and said, "If you still want, then call me big brother."

"?" Mo Ran was truly shocked.

Can you… Is that so?

But she was clearly so much older than him. How… how could she call him elder brother?

This cultivator had probably underestimated Nangong Liu's capabilities and also looked down on Qi Liangji's face. This woman must have gone crazy from all the work she had done, to the point she did not hesitate at all. She panted and moaned, "Big brother… Brother… Don't you dare torture me again… Ah…"

"…" Even Mo Ran, who was as thick as a city wall, couldn't help but blush.

At this moment, Chu Wanning's soft, long eyelashes slightly trembled on his palm, as if he knew the warmth and itch in his heart and wanted to use it to scratch the numbness in his bones.

However, those two eyelashes were too soft and light. They moved a little, but the itch did not dissipate. Instead, they became a little too light for him to stop. Mo Ran was stunned for a moment. He looked at the back of the man's neck, and his pale skin actually seemed to exude a faint pink glow in the darkness.

He blinked, and his heart pounded like a drum.

He did not dare to look again. Mo Ran lowered his eyelashes and his eyes were pitch black under them. They were like burnt ashes with a blazing temperature.

Under the darkness, there were layers of starfire, waiting for Chu Wanning to give him a gust of wind filled with love and desire. The starfire would burn out of the embers and the orange glow would set the prairie ablaze.

Mo Ran suddenly felt regret —

Why didn't he find out about Nangong Liu's perverted intentions in his previous life?

If he had seen this earlier, he would have forced Chu Wanning into a corner and let this man lie on top of him, gasping for breath and calling him 'Gege'.

Then, he recalled that in his entire life, Chu Wanning had actually called him brother before. Not only did he call him brother, he even called him "Shixiong".

However, at that time, he didn't know the real body of Xia Sini, and still thought that the youngest junior brother was the youngest junior brother. Now that he looked back, his heart was burning with passion.

He was bold and ambitious, and even though he knew it was impossible, he couldn't help but think about it.

Chu Wanning was lying on the bed with his forehead glowing with a few wisps of sweat on his hair, his phoenix eyes were opened slightly, leaving only a ray of gaze to look at him, there were grievances and stubbornness in his eyes, and then passion burned up, burned out the grievances and reservations, turned into a thin wet red at the corner of his eyes.

Chu Wanning's lips were half-lipped, he tried his best to bite him, but in the end, he opened his mouth again and called out to him, "Gege…"

Mo Ran: "…"

He didn't know when he let go of the other person, but he probably knew that if he continued to cover his eyes like this, he really wouldn't be able to hold back from doing something outrageous.

Love was originally an extremely difficult emotion to suppress, not to mention that Mo Ran had once tasted it before, he knew how it tasted like when one's soul was corroded.

Chu Wanning turned around to look at him, his cheeks were red, but his chin was slightly raised, his eyes were bright and clear, showing a little arrogance.

"What's the matter with you?"

Mo Ran glanced at his lips, then coughed lightly. He turned his head and said, "Nothing."

"Have you talked about that matter with the elders under your tutelage before?"

Nangong Liu lazily asked as he caressed Qi Liangji's hair.

Qi Liangji opened her soft eyes and asked, "What is it?"

"Look at you, even though you know what I'm doing, you still want to beat around the bush." Nangong Liu said, "What else could it be? Didn't you tell me that after you became the Sect Leader, you would start to incorporate Jiangdong Hall into the Rufeng Sect?"

"This one." Qi Liangji smiled and said, "Don't worry. I just succeeded the position not too long ago. The Sect Leader's ring hasn't even warmed up yet."

"You have to hurry. When our two sects become one, I will let you be the number one protector of the Rufeng Sect. When that happens, under one person, above tens of thousands of people…"

As Nangong Liu said this, he couldn't help but touch her waist.

However, Qi Liangji was unhappy. Although her face was flushed red, she raised her hand to stop him, "It was not easy to climb to the position of sect leader. You also didn't let me stay for long. You're not going to marry me properly and bring me home, so that I can become the wife of Rufeng Sect."

Nangong Liu said in embarrassment, "You also know my temper. If I want to continue, I definitely won't agree. Furthermore, with our current statuses, marriage is not a personal matter. If someone were to speak of it, who knows what kind of nasty words they would say."

"Awful?!" Qi Liangji's eyes were filled with anger as she raised her head and glared at him, "Are you afraid that I won't be scared of you? Don't you remember how my husband died? Do you think I'm only here to take over as the head of this Jiangdong Hall? Nangong Liu, you should know how I've treated you since you were young!"

"Alright, alright, alright. Calm down, calm down."

"How can I not be angry at you? Back then, in order to make your damned father consider you a son of a bitch, you married that little bitch Rong Yan! I… I have no hope and married my senior brother. Now that I have finally killed both of them, do you really only want me to be your protector after the two sects merge?"

"Liangji…"

"I refuse! Whoever wants to be the protector, you have to marry me! That son of yours, Nangong Si is unruly and untamed, he is the same as that slut Rong Yan, do you really plan to let him succeed the position of sect leader?" Qi Liangji said arbitrarily, "I'm not afraid of the long term. So what if we're a widow and a widower? What if we get married? To whom? Not only will I marry you, I will also give birth to eight more Young Masters. Nangong Liu, do you want me to marry and have our children or be with that slut's child?"

Ch. 171 Shizun, Rufeng Sect Is Dead

Nangong Liu was backed into the corner by her, so she could only coax her: “Alright, of course I love you. However, this matter needs to be considered carefully. We should do as we agreed earlier. You should first use the Sect Leader’s order.

“Let the Jiangdong Hall be shaded by the Rufeng Sect, and after the two sects merge, we’ll…”

“No way!” Qi Liangji said with reddened eyes, “Back then, I… I believed you, so what? You turned around and married Rong Yan… Not this time! You have to give me an answer. Are you going to marry me or not?”

“…”

Seeing that he was hesitating, she became even more furious and shouted, “Nangong Liu, how long are you going to wait? I can kill my husband for you and me — and you? You don’t even dare to nod your head?!”

Everyone was shocked when they saw this.

Xue Zhengyong was also extremely shocked. He asked Madam Wang in a low voice, “The former Sect Leader of the Jiangdong Hall was actually killed by her?”

This time, the Jiangdong Hall was in deep trouble. Although the former sect head had died, there were still many of his old subordinates in the sect. Not to mention his two brothers.

“You were the one who killed him?”

“You, how can you bear it! He may be ten years older than you, but he treats you very well, you — you serpent woman! Return my big brother’s life!”

and there’s a fight going on here,

However, the fire didn’t stop there. A pair of frightening fragmented scrolls spread out. Under the boundless light, those smelly and unsightly memories appeared one after another in front of the people. These things were not only related to the Rufeng Sect. It was also related to almost all the sects in the Upper Cultivation World, as well as the countless famous cultivators that had come to visit the Rufeng Sect.

After the Jiangdong Hall, there was the Wubei Temple, the Fire Phoenix Pavilion, the Bitan Manor… Even the usually elegant and elegant Taxue Palace of Kunlun was lit up with the shameful deeds of high level disciples and elders. Apart from Nangong Xu’s own memories, all the memories he had gathered over the years were now displayed naked in front of everyone.

There were even records of the collusion between Nangong Liu and the former head of the Wubei Temple, Tian Chan, in the past.

“Shizun, tomorrow is the Spiritual Mountain Competition, winning or losing is extremely important for me. Father originally thought I was stupid, so if I lost to brother’s sword during the event, then I’m afraid… it is no longer fated with the position of Sect Leader.”

“Benefactor Nangong, there is no need to panic. You have memorized all the scrolls that this old monk has given to you?”

“I remember.”

“Then tomorrow, you don’t have to worry about winning or losing. As long as you put all your strength into using the techniques on the scroll, your little brother will naturally not be a match for you.”

Nangong Liu said in a puzzled manner, “Junior is slow-witted. Shizun, please enlighten me.”

“That spell scroll is an original secret technique created by your younger brother, Nangong Xu, who has been practicing diligently and is determined to make a mark in the Spiritual Mountain Competition.”

“Ah!” Nangong Liu was extremely shocked, “Since it was created by Brother Xu, then I…… Then how can I use his magic to defeat him?”

Master Tian Chan gave a slight smile. “Nangong Xu is a proud and aloof person. After learning this spell, he was never willing to interact with others. He would hide in the cave and improve himself day and night. He said that this spell was created by him, who would believe him?”

“…”

“You are different, Benefactor Nangong. With me and the Fourth Palace Master of the Taxue Palace as guarantors, as long as we have seen you execute this technique before, he will be killed in one bite. This technique is something you have studied with all your heart, and even if your brother has a brilliant tongue, he will still not be able to escape from the crime of ‘stealing brother’s unique immortal technique’.”

Grandmaster Tian Chan calmly said.

“Once his reputation is dirty, it will be pointed out by thousands of people, and he will never be able to rise again. What’s the use of winning the competition?”

“So that’s how it is…” Nangong Liu suddenly opened his eyes wide and cupped his fists in thanks, “Thank you for your wise advice! After this junior succeeds in his position, he will not disappoint his Shizun’s covenant. After this matter is completed, the Rufeng Sect will form a good relationship with the Wubei Temple — a hundred years old!”

That scroll that covered the entire night tore apart every single person Xu Shuanglin hated, every single person who had offended him, and brought them to the eyes of the crowd. Whether it was the cultivators or the commoners near Rufeng Sect, they were all attracted by this flickering flame and saw all the ugly, stinky lice buried under the robes.

When they were were tearing the barrier of Ghost Realm, Xu Shuanglin said with a bright smile:

“I’m going to destroy all of your hearts.”

It was only at this moment that all the people finally understood what his sentence really meant.

With the name of Elder Shuanglin, Nangong Xu had hibernated the Rufeng Sect for so many years. His goal was not only to destroy the seventy-two cities, or even the hundred years of history.

What he wanted to destroy was all the people he hated.

All those who had betrayed him, all those who had slandered him, all those who, for public or private benefits, had forced him into a corner.

As for his elder brother, Nangong Liu, to have his head bitten off in this revenge scheme. Then one by one the Sect Leaders and Elders —

As long as they had done something that angered Xu Shuanglin, no matter who it was, no one would be able to escape this platform of fire.

In this night that was illuminated by the fire, Chu Wanning suddenly remembered a scene from Luo Xianxian's memory where a young man covered in blood laughed and said something.

From Linyi came a man, and at twenty years old his heart was already dead.

A talented youth with outstanding magic skills was never treated fairly. He was schemed against, murdered, and pushed aside by his own family. The spell that he had painstakingly created had been devoured, and those who had devoured his spell would end up pointing at him as a thief.

How ridiculous was this…

Heart dead at twenty…

On Jincheng Lake, in the midst of the peach blossoms, Xu Shuanglin's white piece had once laughed and said that it was a ghost that had crawled out of hell to take its life from a living person.

Looking around, all the sects and clans of the Upper Cultivation World were in a state of panic and chaos. The so-called 'tree falls and monkeys scatter' was not limited to the Rufeng Sect.

Xu Shuanglin had used the latter half of his life as dried wood to ignite this fire of vengeance.

He did it.

"Boom!"

Suddenly, there was an explosive sound. From the direction of the seventh city of the Rufeng Sect — Dark City, a beam of violet light pierced through the sky, causing everyone to be unable to open their eyes.

Ye Wangxi immediately frowned, “Not good!”

As she spoke and was about to ride her sword in the direction of the Dark City, Nangong Si grabbed her. That wild and untamed face of his had already looked extremely haggard and was on the verge of collapse in just a short night. However, he still gripped Ye Wangxi’s shoulder tightly and said hoarsely, “Don’t go over there.”

“But the evil spirits suppressed under the Golden Drum Tower are about to come out. The Rufeng Sect has imprisoned thousands of evil beings for hundreds of years. If they could break the seal and come to this world…” Ye Wangxi did not finish her sentence as she felt a chill run down her spine.

“What’s the use of you going?”

“I…”

“Ye Wangxi, you have done enough for the Rufeng Sect.” He raised his hand, and for a moment, it seemed as if he wanted to wipe off the dirt on Ye Wangxi’s face, but in the end, he only moved, not doing anything.

“Stop wasting your energy.” He said, “Golden Drum Tower requires the Sect Leader and the ten Elders to be able to stabilize themselves. If you go, you will only be sending yourself to your death.”

“I know that I am courting death, but even if I am courting death,” Ye Wangxi paused for a moment, her expression clearly showing that she was in great pain, “Even if I were courting death, I would also… I don’t want to stand by and watch without doing anything. If the Golden Drum Tower was broken, the group of demons would descend, and the Rufeng Sect would… It had to be the target of thousands of attacks… You…"

"Do you think that if the Golden Drum Tower is not broken, the Rufeng Sect will not be targeted by so many people?" The corner of his mouth was stained with dried blood, and his smile became increasingly bleak.

"Don't be silly, the Rufeng Sect is already at the end of their road. Because I really…" Nangong Si closed his eyes, his eyelashes trembling and his throat choking, "I really don't want anyone else to die for this sect… It's not worth it…"

Before he could finish his sentence, he heard another rumbling from the direction of the Dark City. When he turned around, he saw thousands of bright white streams of light flying in all directions from the Golden Drum Tower and disappearing into the night.

Ye Wangxi lost all color in her eyes, "The Golden Drum Tower… It's going to fall…"

"Bang!"

The earth trembled and the ground beneath his feet began to crack. Along with the great demon that had been suppressed for over a hundred years in the pagoda and returned to the world, it turned into a powerful blood-red light, and that red light looked like a giant fish of amazing size, and its tail was like a blooming red lotus. The giant fish let out a earth-shattering roar, and the sound waves shook all of the leaves thousands of miles away, causing it to tremble, and it suddenly shot towards the East Sea, breaking the pagoda into thousands of broken bricks and rubble. Those with imperial swords that were too close to the pagoda were fiercely overturned by the Great Demon's transformed wave and slapped into the burning fire, not even having time to scream before they were burnt into charred ash.

"What's that?"

"Gǔn"

The person next to him was upset, he held his sword tightly so as not to be thrown down by the sudden demon wind, and cursed: "Why do you run? Why do you want me to scram?"

"What the hell? I said it was a 'Gǔn'! One of the ancient vicious beasts! It was said that the first Sect Leader of the Rufeng Sect, Nangong Changying, had once subdued a beast in the East China Sea and imprisoned it in the Golden Drum Tower. I can't believe… I can't believe it's actually true!"

After the fierce beast appeared, even though its spiritual energy had not recovered, and it had been suppressed under the pagoda for a long time, it still had some lingering fear for the cultivators, so it did not stay for long before it fled towards the East Sea. However, the waves it created were not to be underestimated and burned. The calamity fire that was burning the Rufeng Sect was almost a few feet high by the wave of air, and the originally safe places were instantly scorched by the flames.

Xue Zhengyong had been in the battlefield for a long time, so he shouted immediately after seeing the situation: "Run! All of you, run!"

After he shouted, the steel fan flew off with Madam Wang in tow, and the rest of the cultivators started fleeing as well. However, there were also cultivators who were fighting with their lives on the line, such as Qi Liangji and a few of the elders in their sect. They did not manage to escape, nor did they attempt to escape, and the moment they were engulfed by the tribulation fire, a deep hatred flashed in their eyes…

And so, it was completely annihilated.

Nangong Si leaped onto Naobaijin and extended his hand to Ye Wangxi, “Come up quickly!” He then turned around to look at Chu Wanning, “Grandmaster — you too —”

“If you can’t carry it, you can go first.”

“But…”

Mo Ran made a prompt decision, and said to Nangong Si: “Quickly go! I will bring Shizun out with me on the sword!”

Seeing that the fire was getting closer and closer to them, Nangong Si cursed under his breath and hugged Ye Wangxi from behind before disappearing into the darkness together with her on his demon wolf.

Trees were falling, the orange forest was burning with a crackling sound, and the wind was filled with the strange sounds of citrus. Without delay, Mo Ran began to draw his sword, and together with Chu Wanning, they headed towards the place where the fire had not yet reached.

Behind him, the Rufeng sect’s heavenly palace, glorious for a hundred years, just like that the ten thousand hectares of terraces and corridors and the majestic pastures, all in this billowing fire, vanished overnight.

Ch. 172 Shizun Does Not Eat Children

Because the storm raised by the Gǔn contributed to the fire, this catastrophe burned almost half of Linyi. Originally, the cultivators who were just there to attend the gathering had been fleeing in all directions on their flying swords, but the flames were still pressing down on them from behind.

It chased them relentlessly, and countless cultivators who could not endure the spiritual energy lost their lives in the battle against the raging flames.

Along the way, they flew past the Upper Cultivation World's villages and towns close to the Rufeng Sect. Those people didn't know what had happened, so when they saw the flames approaching from the direction of the Gate of Wind, they started to stumble and run away.

But how could their flesh and legs escape the tribulation fire?

"Father!"

"Abba — Abba!"

Everywhere they passed, there were wails and cries. Xue Zhengyong and his men had expanded their weapons to their maximum extent. The weapons were filled with the civilians of the Upper Cultivation World.

Madam Wang kept comforting him. "Don't cry, don't cry. Sit inside a bit. Be careful, hold onto each other and don't fall down again…"

However, no matter how big the iron fan was, it would only be this big. There were so many people in the town that could not be saved. Xue

Zhengyong knelt in front of the fan and tried to pull another crying child, but he failed.

The iron fan could not bear it and began to shake violently. He had no choice but to let go. He watched helplessly as the teary face full of hope was thrown far away.

Even though he was a tough guy, he couldn't help but bawl out, "Why? Why? Does a man who has been wronged need so many innocent people to be buried for him?" Xue Zhengyong was choked with sobs, his tears rolling down, "Is this not chaotic enough? So many dead… Isn't that enough…"

Madam Wang's eyes were also red. She held the two rescued children tightly in her arms on either side of her, but after those two children's parents lifted them up into the iron fan, they were unable to make it up in time. In the end, they were engulfed by the tribulation fire.

Many of them had already been caught up by the flames, and others had already escaped in other directions from the very beginning. Chu Wanning and Mo Ran were not here, and her eyes were filled with tears as she silently prayed for the two of them to be safe.

Not far away, the still unconscious Xue Meng was being carried by Jiang Xi. The light of the fire illuminated his face with all his senses. Jiang Xi's gorgeous sword was not heavy, it buzzed beneath his feet.

Jiang Xi glared at Xue Meng in disgust. He had already had the thought of throwing this brat down for a burn several times, but when he saw Madam Wang's pleading eyes on the iron fan, his face still darkened. He pursed his lips and didn't let go.

Xue Zhengyong cried as he tried to pull a child who was younger than him and might be able to carry him. However, despite his efforts, he was unable to do anything about it.

When he let go of another hand that was already in his grasp, Xue Zhengyong was on the verge of collapse. He knelt there, curled up his body, and cursed his body for his own weakness… However, at this moment, a silver red light flashed. Jiang Xi waved his hand and a bright light flashed from his sleeve, bringing the child Xue Zhengyong could not carry any more, to his sword.

That beautiful and resplendent longsword, Xuehuang's buzzing sound became even louder.

Jiang Xi did not have a good temper. He kicked it and said sternly, "What are you yelling for? If you have the guts, stand still and wait for the fire to come and burn you."

As expected, Xuehuang stopped ringing. It silently flew forward, carrying Jiang Xi and the other two people. However, the slender sword hilt seemed to be very strenuous, as if it could break at any time.

Jiang Xi flew to the side of Xue Zhengyong, gave him a look of disgust and scolded, "What is there to cry about as a man? If it can be saved, then it's saved. If it can't be saved, then so be it."

"Senior Brother…" Madam Wang stammered.

"What? Did I say something wrong?" Jiang Xi sneered, although he was extremely handsome, the smile on his face was extremely vicious, making him seem especially unreasonable, "If you had not followed him back then, and stayed with Guyue'ye, you would not have lost all your strength now, to the point where you can't even use your own sword. If your place is vacated, your husband, the man who is so full of life, will be able to save one more person."

Madam Wang seemed to be stung. She abruptly lowered her face and slowly closed the curtain of her eyelashes, not saying another word.

In the opposite direction, far away from them, Mo Ran's sword had also expanded to its maximum size. Apart from Chu Wanning, the sword was also filled with ordinary citizens from the Upper Cultivation World.

Those people were trembling and crying as they stared blankly at their homes that had been swallowed up by the sea of fire, turning into flat land. The flames reflected the sparkling tears in their eyes. Closing their eyes, they began to wail.

Under such a solemn atmosphere, Mo Ran was silent and did not say a word. Unlike Xue Zhengyong, he didn't struggle any further. Knowing that it was impossible to burden more people, he stopped looking at the village and town below his feet.

"Up ahead is the sea. Shizun, where should we go?"

"Can you make it to the Flying Flower Island?"

Mo Ran nodded and said, "I can handle it, but I'm not familiar with the East Sea, so it will take a bit of effort to find it. Shizun, look after them, they are more clear-headed, their swords are too crowded, if they fall asleep, I'm afraid they will fall down."

Chu Wanning agreed, "Sure."

Mo Ran's imperial sword moved for more than two hours. When the sea level rose and the sun rose in the east, they broke through the clouds and saw a relatively small ring-shaped island on the clear blue sea surface.

He had finally arrived at the Flying Flower Island.

Although this island was under the command of the Rufeng Sect, it was in a desolate place with very few people. Most of them were fishermen who depended on the sea for a living, and there was only one large family. Across the raging sea, they all saw the great fire at the Rufeng Gate in the horizon. They all felt anxious, not knowing what had happened, so many residents looked around the courtyard, afraid that the sky might change and they wouldn't dare to fall asleep.

When dawn broke, the calamity did not affect them, but a long sword carried a group of people and they all landed on the wet beach. The person in the lead was a tall and handsome man. He looked like he had experienced a fierce battle with blood mottled on his face and stains on his clothes.

There were no cultivators on Flying Flower Island, only ordinary people. Thus, when they saw him, they were all somewhat afraid. They did not know whether he was good or evil, and why he had come.

"Aiya, why are their faces so dark…"

Someone whispered, sizing up the men, women, and children behind Mo Ran.

"It seems that he escaped from that great fire… Did you come from Linyi?"

A sturdy fisherman bravely approached and asked, “You guys… Are you people from the Rufeng Sect?”

“The Sisheng Peak.” Mo Ran handed the child in his arms over to Chu Wanning. The child was too young, so he couldn’t put him down. In order to prevent him from getting pushed down, Mo Ran had hugged him all the way when using Imperial Sword Technique. “Something happened to the Rufeng Sect, these… They are all residents of Linyi. It’s on fire, and the weight of our swords was limited. We really couldn’t save too many lives. I…”

He continued speaking without caring about his own business. When he raised his head and saw the fisherman’s blank look, he realized that he had spoken too quickly.

How could these people from the Flying Flower Island know about tribulation fire or Imperial Sword Technique?

Therefore, he pursed his lips and said gently, “I’m sorry. I’ll explain in detail to you later.” He turned around and looked at the listless and battered crowd behind him. “Can you get them something to eat and some water first?”

One of the children who had lost his parents was panic-stricken. He slowly rubbed his hand against the side of Mo Ran’s leg and helplessly grabbed the corner of his robe with his small hand.

Mo Ran lowered his head and lowered his eyes, stroking his hair, and said to the fisherman, “I’m really sorry, sorry to bother you.”

Most of the residents of Flying Flower Island were honest. Soon, someone brought them tea and snacks to eat. Mo Ran briefly explained the situation to the islanders, who could not shut their mouths for a long time, staring blankly at the endless fire on the horizon.

“Rufeng Sect… It’s all burnt up?” Some people could not believe it.

“Sect Leader Nangong passed away?”

Mo Ran replied, “It’s not an immortal’s death. It’s a result of consuming the Lingzhi Fruit. He was taken to another place.”

“What is the Lingzhi fruit?”

“That’s right…”

Chu Wanning stood to the side, watching as Mo Ran explained to the fishermen slowly, but he did not step forward.

He looked somewhat uncomfortable, and his face was naturally tainted with the cold of frost. If he were to negotiate with the villagers, the result would not be any better than Mo Ran.

In his arms, the sleeping child woke up. Seeing that the one hugging him was a cold stranger, he couldn’t help but be stunned for a moment before immediately crying out loud. He wasn’t as obedient as when he was in Mo Ran’s arms.

Chu Wanning took a glance at Mo Ran, seeing that he was still surrounded by the villagers and couldn’t get out, he was helpless and said to the child with a stiff face, “Don’t cry.”

The child shrieked and cried even louder than before, shouting, “Father, Mother… I want father, I want mother.”

“Don’t cry.” Chu Wanning coaxed, “You, don’t cry.”

“Wah — Mother……Mother…”

Chu Wanning had no choice but to hug him with one hand and touch his hair with the other. Unexpectedly, the child didn’t want him to touch him, as he leaned her head back, his red face was covered in tears and snot, “I want my mother, I want my father, I want to go home…”

He didn’t know what to say, so he couldn’t help but think about what he should say to comfort this little guy. However, the moment he fell into deep thought, his eyebrows unconsciously wrinkled, making him look cold and cryptic.

The child was crying uncontrollably. When he saw Chu Wanning’s expression, he choked and was so scared that he stopped talking. He bit his lips as tears rolled down his face like beads of string.

Chu Wanning suddenly thought of something. He untied the Qiankun bag with one hand, took out a piece of glutinous rice candy, peeled off the paper, and passed it to him.

“…” The child sobbed with tears in his eyes as he looked at Chu Wanning and then at the candy in his hand.

His mother had told him a bunch of stories since he was young about coaxing small children into obedience. Among them was no lack of vicious and terrifying cultivators who wanted to make the disobedient children lose consciousness and capture them to refine immortal pills.

The child silently held back his tears. Staring at him, he suddenly became extremely terrified.

Chu Wanning didn't know what he meant by that. He stared at the child blankly, the glutinous rice candy still in his hand.

Although his eyes were pretty, when he wasn't smiling, he had a proud attitude. Even if he was smiling, his eyes would give him a bit of wild aura, like the thorns of a rose, filled with provocation and pride.

However, not everyone could endure such arrogance. Thus, although Chu Wanning had a handsome face, he was naturally unpopular with other people.

Not to the children's liking.

"Eat." On the sword, he had seen Mo Ran use candy to comfort the little fellows. He did as he was told, but he did not understand why it was impossible.

The child pursed his lips, hesitated, trembled, and then slowly shook his head.

…… He didn't want to be made into immortal pills…

"You…"

He hadn't even finished speaking when that child endured to the limit. He began to wail in fear, crying to the point that his heart was torn and his lungs were shaking. Everyone in the surrounding area raised their eyebrows.

Chu Wanning did not react, he was still holding the piece of glutinous rice candy and said softly, "… It's pretty sweet."

What he wanted to say was that sugar was sweet, but when a child connected half of the “you” he said before, it became “you’re pretty sweet.” After pondering for a while, he felt that this cultivator was definitely going to use him to concoct pills.

Chu Wanning froze, “…”

Ch. 173 Shizun, Someone Wants to Kick Us Out

He felt like he was hugging a hot potato. He didn't know what to do. Seeing more and more people looking at him, his ears couldn't help but turn red from embarrassment. At that moment, a pair of hands reached out and took the child from him.

Chu Wanning breathed a sigh of relief and turned around, "Mo Ran?"

"Yes." Mo Ran placed the child in the crook of one arm while holding him in the other. His other hand was empty as he ruffled Chu Wanning's hair. His expression was calm and collected.

When he saw the miserable scene of Linyi burning, he felt depressed. But when he looked at Chu Wanning, he wanted to smirk to prevent his expression from looking too ugly.

His appearance when he wanted to laugh or not was not as handsome as other times, but somehow it made people feel very warm.

"You've already spoken with the people on the island?"

"Yes, it's settled."

"I'm afraid that it won't be four or five days before the fire dies down. Before that, we all have to stay on Flying Flower Island. There aren't many houses on this island, and we've brought so many people with us…"

"After asking the Village Chief, he said that we can still squeeze in."

There was nothing wrong for Mo Ran to negotiate this sort of question. He was more clear on how he should communicate with others, how he looked like and so on… Thinking back to the time when he helped to harvest the rice, the girls in the village looked at him, and they knew that he was a lot more pleasing than him.

Chu Wanning pondered in silence for a while, not knowing what to feel. He nodded and said, “Thank you for your hard work.”

“Just don’t work hard with me.” Mo Ran looked at the candy in his hand and understood. He turned his head and smiled as he coaxed the child in his arms. “And you? Why are you crying?”

“I want Mother… I want father…”

Seeing that he was still so young and his steps were still unsteady, Mo Ran felt sad that his parents had lost their lives and could never return. He rubbed his forehead against his face and comforted him in a low voice, “Father, Mother… There are some things that I have to wait a few days before I can come and accompany you. You have to be good, only when they see you will they be happy…”

After he hugged and coaxed her for a while, the child actually managed to calm down a lot. Although he was still sobbing, it was unlikely for him to cry out loud and wail again.

Mo Ran lowered his head to look at the child with tears in his eyes, while Chu Wanning stood quietly by the side, watching him with candy in his hand.

The man’s profile was very good-looking, his features were straight. If Mo Ran was placed in a case, his face would be like a willow leaf, his calligraphy strong, his calligraphy tall and straight, easily revealing his peerlessly handsome face.

His edges were very sharp, but his eyelashes and eyes were soft, like the spread of spring leaves.

Chu Wanning was lost in thought.

Thus, when Mo Ran stuck his head over and bit the candy on his finger, Chu Wanning abruptly retracted his hand. His eyes widened in shock as he asked, “What are you doing?”

With such a small amount of glutinous rice candy in his mouth, the man leaned his head over and quickly took it away. Naturally, his lips would touch the tips of his fingers, and his warm, moist tip of his tongue would accidentally lick his fingers, causing Chu Wanning to feel numb. That quick, tiny, intimate contact was enough to make his spine itch, just like a new bud breaking a seed.

Mo Ran smiled at him with candy in his mouth, then turned and winked at the boy.

He raised his head and rolled the candy into his mouth, his Adam’s apple rolling. Then he said to the child, “Look, it’s not some scary pill. It’s sugar.”

Chu Wanning: “…”

He had been in a trance and hadn’t been paying much attention to what the child and Mo Ran were saying.

Only then did his gaze fall back on the child. The child was timid, but still stared at Mo Ran for a while before whispering in surprise, “Ah, it’s really sugar…”

“Yeah.” Mo Ran said with a smile, “This big brother Chu Wanning is so good, why would he take you to refine pills?”

Chu Wanning was speechless again.

Due to the events of the previous night being too much and too terrifying, Mo Ran did not feel sleepy. After settling down, the men, women, and children that he had rescued all arrived at dawn. He walked to the edge of the beach on the Flying Flower Island alone, and the coastline in the morning would retreat to a faraway place, revealing a beach that could not be seen when the tide was rising.

When he was alone, many things would come to mind. They would become a layer of lingering haze in his eyes.

He took off his shoes and walked slowly along the wet coastline, his footprints leaving two twisted tracks on the wet sand behind him.

In fact, there were many things about Xu Shuanglin that he did not understand, such as why it was a cold day, but that guy did not like to wear shoes, and was always willing to walk around barefoot.

Mo Ran was a person who hid a lot of the past and was always treated badly by others.

Perhaps because of this, he could clearly understand that Xu Shuanglin did not care about anything, wanting to destroy the Rufeng Sect, the Jiangdong Hall, or even the entire state of mind of the Upper Cultivation World.

Being suppressed and excluded was not the most painful thing.

The thing that hurt the most was being betrayed by someone close to him, the thing that hurt the most was that he had clearly done nothing wrong, that he had clearly been hot-blooded and wanted to help him become a Grandmaster, yet at the most important “Spiritual Mountain Competition” in the world of cultivation, he was pointed out by thousands of people, saying that the unique spell he had created with all his effort was stolen from his elder brother…

He would never be able to recover from the ridicule.

Mo Ran knew that after this calamity passed, the cultivation world would definitely face a reshuffle. For those sects that had suffered from severe injuries, be it in terms of face or body, they would all think: Xu Shuanglin is truly a madman.

Perhaps only Mo Weiyu, who had once grind his teeth and killed people as easily as grinding blood, would be unable to stop himself from thinking about it while quietly walking along this long and quiet coastline.

Just what sort of person was Xu Shuanglin?

Had this madman, in his youth, practiced his swordsmanship arduously in the orange grove until nightfall, returned tired and satisfied, with a fresh, sweet orange in his sleeve, to feed his brother, who had always been lazy?

At that time, he didn't know that even though his brother had achieved nothing, he was able to rely on only his tongue to make it so that he would no longer have a place to stand in in the cultivation world.

Did this madman once bury his head in a magic scroll and meditate? Did he seriously dip the brush into the ink, write down a passage of slightly green thoughts, then become dissatisfied, bite the brush shaft, and once again sink into deep thought?

At that time, he also didn't know that no matter how hard he tried, the end result would be his reputation being sullied and he would never have any hope.

Mo Ran closed his eyes. The sea breeze blew against his face, and the sunlight fell on his eyelashes, coating them with a layer of gold.

He thought of the Three Lives Courtyard, drinking Mengpo's Water and forgetting about the Three Lives. Was Xu Shuanglin giving him this name just for whims?

Also, in his previous life, when Xu Shuanglin was hiding in the Rufeng Sect, he should have had the same goal as he did in his current life. However, that time, he died fighting for Ye Wangxi…

Ye Wangxi.

This name had also been given to her by Xu Shuanglin.

Forgot what?

Had he ever tried to forget the injustices and iniquity of the past, the hatred and glory of the past, the ugly faces?

There was also Xu Shuanglin's painstaking efforts to drag out the corpse from the Unbroken Hell, Luo Fenghua's corpse.

What did he want this corpse for?

In the illusion, Xu Shuanglin told Nangong Liu that only by obtaining the spirit core of the person who cast the curse would he be able to completely remove the curse from the ring. However, from the end of the story, Xu Shuanglin's true purpose was not to help Nangong Liu break the curse.

Spatial rift, Zhenlong chess, rebirth techniques…

And then there was the hand that had come out of the crack.

Mo Ran vaguely felt that something was very wrong. He furrowed his brows, deep in thought.

Suddenly, he opened his eyes.

He thought of one thing —

That year, at the edge of Jincheng Lake, when dragon Wangyue had died, he had once said, “That mysterious person practiced two secret arts with the Willow’s power at Jincheng Lake. One was the rebirth technique, and the other was the Zhenlong chess game.”

At that time, it did not mention the ‘Gate of Life and Death’.

In other words, to Xu Shuanglin, he only cared about the two magic spells, rebirth and Zhenlong. There was no need to mention Zhenlong, he only cared about manipulating the chess pieces for the sake of convenience.

What about rebirth?

Who did he want to be reborn?

Mo Ran thought about it and felt that there were two answers, one was Rong Yan and the other was Luo Fenghua.

Hearing the meaning of Xu Shuanglin’s words, the person that Rong Yan had once loved was actually him. Because of some unknown reason, she finally broke off with Xu Shuanglin and married his brother instead.

However, after some careful analysis, he felt that it wasn’t her after all.

If Xu Shuanglin really did love Rong Yan, to the point of thinking of a way to revive her, how could he have killed her only son in his previous life?

Most importantly, this fellow had long been hiding by Nangong Liu's side as 'Elder Shuanglin'. If he wanted to use the Rebirth Technique to revive Rong Yan, then why didn't he stop her from offering up a sacrifice at the Jincheng Lake?

It was not Rong Yan.

Mo Ran turned his head and looked at the sea dyed red by the rising sun. The fine, billowing waves continued to expand, and as the sun rose in the east, the tide was rising at a speed visible to the naked eye.

It was Luo Fenghua.

The person that Nangong Xu wanted to revive was Luo Fenghua.

The matter of the Rufeng Gate was not as simple as it seemed to be. It was just like the ebb and flow of the sea. The broken shells and the colorful and dangerous starfish were all covered by the surging waves at daybreak.

The sea water was rising quickly, and the small pieces of sand and rocks were being washed away by the waves, spreading to the beach where he was walking.

Suddenly, his feet felt a chill. Mo Ran lowered his head, the waves had already surged up and were slapping his feet.

"Whooosh."

He moved his toes and felt cold. He turned around and wanted to walk back to the beach to put on his shoes, but when he turned around, he saw Chu Wanning walking towards him out of the red clouds. He was holding onto his socks and shoes, which he had casually thrown in the sand.

“Why are you barefooted? It’s such a cold day.”

Mo Ran followed him to the top of the sandy slope. He sat down on the rocky shore, shook off the mud on his feet, and put on his shoes again. He suddenly felt a sense of relief. Even though he was destined to never get the love he wanted in his life with Chu Wanning, he was still the best Shizun in the world. He would care for him and take care of him.

When he sees him walking around barefoot, he worries that he will catch a cold.

“What do you think about the matter of the Rufeng Sect?”

“It’s not that simple.”

“I suppose so.” Chu Wanning’s eyebrows hadn’t relaxed since last night. Even with the short period of peace and serenity, there was still a tinge of melancholy between his brows. He watched Mo Ran put on his shoes and socks before turning his gaze back to the vast ocean.

The rising sun blazed with a resplendent golden-red, interweaving with the unextinguished flames in the distance. It was hard to distinguish them.

“Where Xu Shuanglin was pulled away by that Heavenly Rift is truly too hard to find. If he didn’t want others to find out and disappear, then perhaps no one would be able to catch him within eight to ten years.”

Mo Ran shook his head and said, “He can’t hold it in for eight to ten years. After he recovers his energy, he should be able to make some moves.”

“What do you mean?”

Mo Ran told Chu Wanning about his guess and said, “Luo Fenghua’s corpse is not his real body, but a prosthetic limb rebuilt in the Unbroken Purgatory. Once it leaves the ghost realm, it will be decayed very soon due to the lack of yin energy. So I guess at most a year, even if he doesn’t have all of his preparations, there will still be new movements.”

Chu Wanning did not make a sound.

He was always careful when he did things or thought about them. For something as uncertain as this, he would not make such a bold hypothesis as Mo Ran. However, there was no harm in listening to Mo Ran’s hypothesis.

“What about that hand?” Chu Wanning asked, “In the end, what were your guesses about the hand that took Nangong Xu away?”

“…” Mo Ran shook his head, “I know too little about the first forbidden technique. I can’t say, I don’t know.”

This was not true. Although Mo Ran did not want to lie to Chu Wanning anymore, there were some things that he could not say openly to him.

He didn’t dare say.

Truly, ever since he could remember, the number of peaceful days he had had were pitifully few. If he were to add up his two lifetimes, it was likely that he wouldn’t have lived for more than a year.

A person who had been wandering for decades suddenly made him sit down and gave him a pot of hot tea and a bonfire. How could he bear to get up and leave again? How could he bear to shatter this wonderful dream with his own hands.

Thus, he could only say that he didn't know.

However, his heart was restless and uneasy. He was almost certain that the owner of that hand was not that simple. Otherwise, why would Xu Shuanglin be able to gather the five spirits so quickly and slaughter them? If it weren't for the fact that he had been coaxed and bewitched by those who had come back to life, and according to the normal course of events, Xu Shuanglin probably wouldn't have thought of how to revive Luo Fenghua at this time…

What's more, back in the Jincheng Lake days, Xu Shuanglin's White Chess piece had told Chu Wanning, "If you think I'm the only one who knows these three forbidden techniques, then you won't be able to live much longer."

Mo Ran felt that Xu Shuanglin must have known that some people who should not have lived in this world had come to this world. But at the same time, he also felt that although Xu Shuanglin knew about Rebirthers, he didn't know that he had also been reborn.

Otherwise, why didn't he expose himself when the Rufeng Sect was fighting? That memory scroll of his, as long as he obtained some of Mo Ran's memories, then no matter how much better Chu Wanning treated him, he would not take his disciple. Then it would all be over. He would never have the chance to recover from this.

Why didn't Xu Shuanglin do this?

Two possibilities:

First, for some reason, he could not do so.

Secondly, he still didn't know his trump card.

However, no matter what the situation was, Mo Ran was at a disadvantage at the moment. He did not have many clues, and if the other party was careful and did not reveal any more clues, then he would probably have to stand in the light and wait for the blade to pierce his back.

Mo Ran pursed his lips, his thick eyelashes lightly trembling.

He couldn't care so much anymore. In his previous life, he had lived in hatred and had acted in self-interest. He had done all sorts of crazy things. In his entire life, regardless of the outcome, he wanted to do his best to live every day, to do his best to make up for those who owed him, and to do his best to protect his Shizun, Shi Mei, and Xue Meng, and protect the Sisheng Peak.

He tried his best to retain the warmth that he had once desired.

Just as he was lost in thought, a fisherman hurriedly ran over and shouted at Mo Ran and the rest, "This is bad! Two immortal lords, something has happened!"

Mo Ran was shocked. He propped himself up from the ground and immediately leaped up as he asked, "What's wrong?"

"The head of the island went out to sea a few days ago, and she just came back this morning. She, she heard what happened from the village head, and was very dissatisfied with what he had done. She's chased everyone out by now. The people you brought, they're all standing outside."

The fishermen were kind-hearted. As they spoke, tears began to form in their eyes.

“What a pity. In such a cold weather, you aren’t even willing to give me a piece of cloth or a blanket… The head of the household even said…”

Chu Wanning also stood up, his face was gloomy, “What else did she say?”

“She also said… Just now, these people from Linyi ate the rations of the Flying Flower Island and drank the water of the Flying Flower Island. They wanted to… If they didn’t pay up, he would… Just capture them and make them slaves. Stay on the island and command…”

Before he could finish his words, Chu Wanning had already become furious. His white robe fluttered as he quickly flew towards the heart of the island village.

Ch. 174 Shizun's Sachet

Although Flying Flower Island was poor, the head of the household was obviously rich and well off.

She was dressed in a bat-patterned gold satin gown, which looked like the finest chiffon from the Taxue Palace on Mount Kunlun. Her long black and white hair was tied very tightly together, and her hair was trimmed with emerald flowers.

Red on the lips. She wore a warm pearl chain around her neck, and two golden earrings, inlaid with rubies the size of pigeons' eggs, which were tugging at her earlobes.

She was over a hundred years old and youthfulness had long since left. She had a slightly bloated body and wrinkles all over her face. She would have been better off if she had purposely dressed up, but she clearly thought that the more extravagant her clothes were, the more extravagant her clothes would be.

The more beautiful you look, the more you sink into this glittering pile of emeralds, like an old turtle covered in red and green.

Old Turtle sat around half of the entire Flying Flower Island. When she spoke, not even the Village Chief dared to make a sound.

At this very moment, the sun rose and the old turtle, with red flowers and green leaves, came to the square. She sat in the red acid Bat Deer Master-Mentor chair that had been prepared for her for a long time, and looked around at the refugees that had come from Linyi.

“Why did you accept them?” She raised her heavy and greasy eyelids and gave the Village Head a shady look, “I didn’t even pay the silver taels, so what’s the point of giving them a room to stay in? Where’s the food? How much did you eat?”

“They didn’t eat much… They are all leftovers from the village and cannot be eaten.” muttered the village chief.

Old Turtle delicately snorted and said, “You still have to pay for that. This rice wheat, isn’t it all grown from my, Third Madam Sun’s, land? The harvest this year was not good, and I also opened up a warehouse to help out every household on the island with ten pounds of wheat flour and a pot of oil. It doesn’t matter if I give it to you guys to eat since we’re all on the same side, but it wouldn’t be too good for you to take out Third madam’s food to help the refugees in Linyi, right?”

“Third Young Madam is right.” The Village Head smiled apologetically, “But look at these little girls, these old men are so pitiful on such a cold day. You have a Buddha’s heart, why don’t we just forget about it?”

Old Turtle glared at him. “How can you let it go? Money, it’s all money.”

Village Head: “…”

“How much did each family give them to eat?” Old Turtle asked, “Did you guys manage to keep an account just now?”

The village head had no other choice but to say, “I’ve remembered it. I’ve figured it out.” As she spoke, she handed over a small booklet to Third Madam Sun. Third Madam Sun raised her right hand, and on her wrist, she wore nine bright and colorful bracelets, one of which was gold and the other was silver.

“Yes.” She lazily finished reading, took out a box of account books, counted with her fingers, and said, “You people are pigs, you really can eat. In such a short time, you actually ate twenty-six steamed buns on the island. You’ve also drank half a vat of fresh water, which I brought back from Linyi. Linyi sold me three gold for one vat, and I’ll sell it back to you four gold for one vat, two gold and ninety silver in total. Oh yeah, Sis Zhang.”

The woman who was called out trembled and quickly raised her head. “Ah, Third Madam.”

Third Madam Sun smiled and said, “Your family’s steamed buns are the most delicious. When it’s time for the noodles, even if there’s pork lard inside, you still have to settle the score.”

“This… Ten steamed buns are only the size of a pea, how can you count them in?”

“How is it not good? Ten steamed buns and a pea-sized lard of lard, after calculating, I’ll take one copper coin and it won’t be too much.”

“…”

“That would be two gold coins, ninety silver coins and one copper coin.” Third Madam Sun said, “Also, you all sleep in my room. Although the room isn’t mine, the floor is mine. You all slept for a total of one hour, so the fee for one hour is 70 coppers per person.”

“How many of them are there?”

“Answering Third Madame, a total of 49 people.”

“That’s not right. Didn’t we say fifty-one? What about the other two?”

Before she could finish his sentence, she suddenly heard a gloomy voice say:

“Here.”

Although Chu Wanning was not wearing a white robe, but a rather deep white robe, he still exuded the aura of frost and snow. His eyes were clear but cold and arrogant, like a sharp unsheathed knife.

Third Madam Sun was a normal person, but she wasn’t afraid of cultivators.

She had been working for most of her life, and although she was always critical, she did not do anything.

Therefore, she unhurriedly said, “So he is an cultivator. No wonder we don’t need to sleep. You saved all these people, didn’t you? It’s good that you’re here. Come quickly, give me the money.”

The village chief whispered, “Third Madam, these two are not from the Rufeng Sect, they are cultivators at Sisheng Peak, you don’t have to…”

“I don’t care which sect it is, I don’t know which money it is.”

Chu Wanning glanced at the refugees who were huddled up, shivering with cold. He raised his hand and a golden-red barrier was cast down to dispel the chill in their hearts. He then turned his head and asked, “How much do you want?”

“Two gold, ninety-three silver, and four hundred and thirty copper.”

Although Third Madam Sun was disgusting, they had nowhere else to go. Chu Wanning knew that if he offended her, it would implicate the group of people he brought along. Even though his complexion was pale, he still took out his purse and threw it at her.

“There’s about eighty gold inside.” He had spent most of his money on Xue Zhengyong, and currently, he did not have much left over. “We are going to live here for about seven days. You can count and see if you have enough.”

“Not enough.”

Third Madam Sun would never personally hand the money pouch to her subordinates and let them count on the side.

“Eighty gold would only be enough for you to stay for three days at most. Moreover, you don’t even have enough to calculate the cost of food.”

“You-!”

“If the Immortal isn’t convinced, I can settle this debt with you. A businessman knows how to calculate money, and I can tell you the reason for every single one.”

At this time, Mo Ran also rushed over. He did not have much money with him, so together with Chu Wanning, it was barely enough for fifty-two people to eat and sleep for four days.

Third Madam Sun retracted her gaze and smiled with her bright red lips, “I’ll keep you two here for four days. If you don’t have any money, I won’t care if the Tribulation Fire has died down or not. All of you have to leave immediately.”

In order to save money, Chu Wanning did not eat that night. He threw the flower into the river and tried to get in touch with Xue Zhengyong. Then, he returned to his room.

This room was even more simple and crude than the rooms in the village. Since there were not many empty rooms on the island, everyone needed to squeeze in. Chu Wanning was not used to living in the same room with strangers, so he could only sleep with Mo Ran.

At this moment, the lights in the room were on, but Mo Ran wasn't there. No one knew where he had gone to.

Chu Wanning took off his outer robe. Although it was a luxurious robe, the material it was made from was not any better than the white shirt he usually wore. There were ashes from the tribulation fire and blood stains on it. He poured a bucket of hot water and was about to start cleaning when the door opened.

Chu Wanning glanced at him, "Where did you go? To come back so late."

He brought back a bamboo lunch box. It was windy and cold outside, so he put the lunch box in his arms, lifted his eyes, and said with a red nose, "I went to Third Madam's house to ask for food."

Chu Wanning was stunned, "You went to beg for food?"

"Just kidding. I brought something to eat."

"What food?"

"Steamed buns." Mo Ran felt a little embarrassed, "There's also a bowl of fish soup and a bowl of Red Braised Meat, but unfortunately there's no dessert. That Third Madam Sun has been keeping an eye on me for too long. Everyone in the village is afraid of her, and no one dares to give me any more things, so I went to her house to find her and trade for it with the silver dagger I brought with me."

Chu Wanning frowned, “She’s too black-hearted. I know that silver dagger of yours. It’s even embedded with spirit stones, how could she exchange it for such a small thing?”

“Not just that. I haggled with her and changed the price to fifty-two servings. Everyone had them, and they watched as they were sent out by the kitchen.” Mo Ran smiled and said, “Therefore, Shizun, you don’t have to worry about others. Just obediently eat them all.”

Chu Wanning was really hungry. He sat at the table and drank several mouthfuls of the hot fish soup. Then, he picked up a steamed bun and started to eat the Red Braised Meat. Third Madam Sun was a stingy person. She did not give him much meat and most of it was very fatty. Chu Wanning did not like eating, but the taste of the steamed buns was not bad. He ate one and went to eat the second one.

Mo Ran glanced at the steaming bucket and asked, “Is Shizun going to wash the clothes?”

“Yes.”

“It’s just a robe, I’ll help you wash it, Shizun.”

“No need, I’ll do it by myself.”

Mo Ran said, “It’s fine. I was just about to go wash myself, that’s all.”

As he spoke, he went to the bed and picked up the few pieces of clothing that he had previously thrown away. He then carried the wooden bucket and walked out.

The moonlight was bright in the courtyard. Mo Ran raised his head and looked around, wondering how Xue Meng, his uncle, and the others were.

Where did Ye Wangxi and Nangong Si go now. Looking at the tribulation fire on the sea side again, it still roiled like a tide of blood, burning day and night until smoke shot into the sky.

Song Qiutong, and… That man.

The person whom he hated to the bones in his previous life, the person for whom he slaughtered the entire Rufeng Sect.

He was probably already buried in the sea of fire.

Mo Ran sighed and stopped thinking about it. He put down the bucket, added some cold water to the water tank, rolled up his sleeves and began to wash his clothes.

Chu Wanning was a very methodical and meticulous fellow. Be it making mechs or writing scrolls, he was always a mess when it came to washing clothes or cooking.

For example, before completely immersing himself in the water, Mo Ran would habitually check the Qiankun bag and the secret bag to prevent anything important from entering the water. However, Chu Wanning did not remember to do this.

“…”

Facing the pile of junk that he took out from Chu Wanning’s robe, Mo Ran fell into silence.

What was all this?

Haitang handkerchief.

Fortunately, it was normal.

All kinds of pills.

There was nothing wrong with it.

A handful of sugar.

Mo Ran was speechless. He looked carefully, and it seemed to be the cow's milk that he had bought for him in the village.

Haven't you finished yet?

Turning it again, Mo Ran was shocked.

…… Explosive Talisman?

Mo Ran's face turned green. He held up the wet symbol parchment that was half soaked in water, almost frightened.

How generous was Chu Wanning? Could it be placed on one's body without any restriction? Although the possibility of igniting the self-detonation was very low, it was still too dangerous. Was this a joke?

With a frown on his face, Mo Ran went through his clothes once again. He then found that the little dragon's Ascending Dragon Talisman had also been carelessly dropped by Chu Wanning. He had taken out the detonation Talisman, the freezing Talisman, and the Soul Suppressing Talisman.

If he did not even take a look, most of the paper talismans would be useless, and a large portion of it would be useless.

Mo Ran helplessly shook his head, thinking to himself, from now on, I must not let my Shizun wash clothes by himself.

While he was thinking, a small, white lotus root suddenly fell out of the secret pocket. Mo Ran didn't care. He thought it was some sort of magical talisman. He casually picked it up and glanced at it.

With just that one glance, he was stunned.

It was an old brocade sack embroidered with acacia flowers. The petals had lost their color, and were no longer as bright as when they first appeared.

He had some doubts, but also some confusion. He vaguely felt that this thing was very familiar. He must have seen it somewhere before, but it had been so long that he couldn't recall where.

Mo Ran stroked the small silk bag, his pitch-black eyebrows were tightly locked, and his eyes flickered with an uncertain light. One by one, the past flew past him, and he tried to find the source of the blossoming flower in the rapids of time.

A light, cool cloth, the color of fading years.

He held it in his hand and examined it, turning it over and over, but he could not recall it. He was afraid it might contain something dangerous like a detonator, so he opened it a crack and took a look.

"…"

It was a strand of hair.

No, if he looked more carefully, there were only two.

Tied together, wrapped around each other, and sewed together tightly. In the rushed past, they had always been entwined and accompanying each other. At first glance, they thought it was a bundle, but in reality, these two strands of ink had long been inseparable.

“Hair?”

Mo Ran was startled. A bright light flashed before his eyes.

He muttered, “The brocade sack… Joyous Union Sachet…”

Suddenly, he remembered something. The next thing that happened was like a flame exploding in his chest. His eyes instantly widened in shock.

Ghost Illusion.

He remembered.

The golden boy, the pretty girl, Butterfly Town, made a vow to form an alliance — he remembered.

From this day onwards, two lone souls accompanying one another, never separated whether in life or death, heaven or hell.

He… He remembered.

He remembered!

When he and Chu Wanning were getting married, the golden couple cut off two strands of their hair and placed them in the Joyous Union Pouch, placing them in Chu Wanning’s hands.

This was the brocade sack.

“How could that be?”

Mo Ran’s mind was buzzing as blood flowed. He was stunned in an instant.

“How is this possible…”

His hands trembled slightly as he clutched the bag, and his eyes flashed with surprise, horror, disbelief, bewilderment, ecstasy, and even sorrow.

Shizun… Chu Wanning…

He… Why did he… Why do you keep this?

Ch. 175 Shizun, Do You Like Me?

As Chu Wanning was eating his last bun, the door opened and Mo Ran walked in with a pile of food on the bed.

“Shizun, some of the charm papers in your outer robe that you haven’t taken out are scattered. I’ve put them all here for you.”

He went out again with his head down.

He was too embarrassed to take the silk sachet and ask Chu Wanning. He felt that no matter what the reply was, the atmosphere would be awkward. Moreover, Chu Wanning’s skin was thin and Mo Ran’s mouth was stupid. If he said anything wrong, it would make him unhappy.

Then what should he do.

Mo Ran pursed his lips, his black eyes shining. He looked distracted and confused.

He suddenly had an unimaginable thought.

Did he actually like him?

Mo Ran was shocked by his own audacious thoughts. He shook his head and murmured, “Impossible…”

They couldn’t see the forest for the trees.[159] That was more or less what they said.

If this brocade sack belonged to someone who didn’t care about Mo Ran, such as a female cultivator, once Mo Ran saw it, he would immediately know and be able to confirm the thoughts of the other party.

— If you don’t like it, who would hold a brocade bag with another person’ hair for so many years?

The matter had originally been so simple.

However, the moment he met Chu Wanning, Mo Ran flared up. People were always like this, the more concerned they were, the easier it was for them to think and become stupid, not even knowing where to put their hands and feet. The other side could look at them for a long time with a look, and the other side could silently dig out three feet from the silence and carefully dig out the hidden meaning behind the pause.

This way, no matter how simple the matter was, he would ponder over it and slowly swallow, savoring the taste of many twists and turns.

Was he mistaken?

Had he misunderstood?

Had Chu Wanning forgotten to throw it away?

This was a question that could be denied even by using his toes, yet he was still able to think about it worriedly for a long time. He was absent-mindedly washing the clothes in the bucket as he was lost in thought. The water was getting colder and colder, but he was getting hotter and hotter.

Mo Ran could not help raising his head and looking towards the house. In the old wooden window, which was wrapped in paper, there was a golden candle light. The candle light flickered, dim and bright, and even the tender sprout in the chest of Mo Ran trembled gently and fluttered.

If Chu Wanning really liked him…

He used to be that rough and thick skinned Immortal Taxian-Jun, but he had only thought half of this sentence before his face turned red.

Mo Ran felt a little hot and a little thirsty.

It was an insoluble thirst. Only the person in the room could quell the heat. Only the sweetness of that person's mouth could give him such great comfort and a moment of peace. Only that person, that man he had sworn to cherish, protect, and respect.

When he thought of "respect", he felt as if a cup of water had been poured over his chest. In the past, whenever he couldn't control himself and had a strong desire for Chu Wanning, he would always reprimand himself like this.

But tonight was different.

Tonight, that embroidered bag seemed as if it was giving him a burning feeling in his heart, adding a handful of dried wood soaked in pine oil to fuel his ambition.

Respect.

He kept saying to himself, "A cup of water is like a cup of water; it would always be extinguished in the past." But now, the thought of burning it was so overpowering that the cold water was instantly vaporized, leaving his eyes in a daze.

Mo Ran was shocked to find that the spell, "Respect", had finally, thoroughly, completely…

It failed.

Inside the room, Chu Wanning put down the last steamed bun. He wanted to wipe his fingers, so he walked over to the bed and took out a haitang handkerchief from the pile of junk.

He sighed, thinking that his memory was really bad. Before he washed the clothes, he did not know that he had taken everything out.

“Hmm?”

Before he could finish his thought, he suddenly saw a slender red rope under the cover of a pile of talisman paper.

Chu Wanning’s heart skipped a beat. He wanted to pull out the red rope to check it out, but his finger remained in the air. He did not dare to move forward. After a moment of hesitation, he withdrew his hand and reached into his shirt.

His expression suddenly changed.

He really didn’t have his Happy Flower Sachet with him!

Chu Wanning’s face turned extremely unsightly. He froze for a moment, then recalled something — he had always kept the bag from the Ghost mistress of ceremonies in it, but the gift robe from Xue Zhengyong had an hidden pocket which was slightly tilted and the robe was soft like silk. He was afraid that he would lose it if he wasn’t careful, so he put it away in the pocket of his coat.

If he were to carefully examine that pile of junk, he would feel as if he had been struck by lightning and would not be able to move an inch.

Tiny things like candies were placed at the very top, and below them were paper charms. Only the red string was trying to hide at the very bottom, while the person who hid it seemed to blush and waved his hand, saying, “I didn’t see it, I didn’t see anything.”

“…”

After a while, Chu Wanning held his breath, hoping that the thread would pull it out of the messy paper talisman.

… Indeed.

The red thread of the brocade sack had been moved, and it was completely different from the way he was used to it.

No matter how calm he was, his fair cheeks were quickly flushed, and his ears were so red that it seemed as if blood was about to drip out. He opened the pouch tied with the red thread. Inside were two strands of inky black hair that had been entangled with him for many years, just like how he had secretly wrapped his mind around it for many years. Just like that, his naked body fell into the warm yellow candlelight, twisting his fingers.

Mo Ran looked at his brocade sack!

After he finished reading, he buried the brocade sack at the bottom of the pile of miscellaneous items!

This knowledge caused a loud bang in Chu Wanning’s head. Blood surged in his head, and his heart was unable to calm down. His entire face was burning hot like a burning fire.

What should he do?

Had Mo Ran realized the things that he had hidden in his heart?

…It’s over.

The person that the Mo Ran likes is Shi Mingjing. If he knew that he had feelings for him, he would definitely frighten him. Would the soft and gentle relationship between the two of them collapse just like that?

He hoped Mo Ran didn’t know.

Betting on his reputation as a man of few desires over the years, he hoped that Mo Ran would find out nothing — that a long crush would one day be known by his loved ones, that it would be the best thing to do, that it would be a release. However, this might not be the case for Chu Wanning.

He was thirty-two years old, and he was used to being alone.

When he was in the prime of his life, Chu Wanning had come alone. He had never thought that he would have the chance to spend time with his beloved at the age of 30. Putting on an act of love was undoubtedly the beginning of a relationship, but it was also possible that it would end in failure.

Chu Wanning put the bag away and paced back and forth in the room. Finally, he stopped in front of the bronze mirror.

He lifted his eyelids and looked inside. The mirror had not been used for a long time and was covered with a thick layer of dust. It could only give a rough picture. He raised his hand and wiped the surface of the mirror, revealing an imperfect face in the dust.

There was a scratch on the bronze mirror, unbiased, which fell right into the corner of his eye. Chu Wanning blinked and looked at himself.

“So ugly.”

He turned to the person in the mirror and was suddenly very angry and frustrated.

“How can I… You look like this?”

He knew that Mo Ran liked young men who were gentle, good-looking, and slim.

As for him, he couldn’t accomplish any of them.

Although he did not have wrinkles, he could not hide the heaviness that came from the passage of time on a person. Chu Wanning was an old and mature person, and now that he did not have a bit of warmth, how could he have the face to talk about love with a young person. Not to mention this person was his own disciple

If this news were to spread out, not to mention him, even Sisheng Peak would be shamed, let alone Mo Ran.

Not to mention that after five years of sleep, Shi Mingjing looked even more beautiful and elegant than ever. When he wasn’t smiling, his eyes looked like they were full of peaches falling from the sky. He looked again at the person in the mirror…

In his eyes, there was only hostility and arrogance that didn’t please him.

When the two competed, it was clear who was the superior one. Only a fool would choose himself.

Chu Wanning looked at the yellow bronze mirror. He thought that if he could turn back ten years and make this ugly guy in the mirror fall in love with someone when he was just over twenty, perhaps he would just use his hot-bloodedness to boldly confess, even if he got beaten until his head bled, it wouldn't matter.

But he was not a young man.

He was no longer young, and all that was left was his sorry state, his vigilance, his harsh attitude, and that savage face that even a child would cry from if they saw it.

Mo Ran was at the peak of his splendor, and Shi Mei was a beauty capable of toppling empires.

And he was just an ugly guy who was no longer young. He didn't dare take anything and just wanted to hide.

He only wanted to be safe and steady like this. He didn't even dare to think about it. He wanted to allow him to fall in love with someone, to allow him to be righteous to that person in the name of his Shizun.

He felt that it was enough.

Quite satisfied.

At that moment, a creaking sound was heard from behind him. Chu Wanning did not turn around to look at the bronze mirror, he only saw Mo Ran carrying a wooden bucket into the house.

None of them spoke, the bronze mirror was still blurry. Chu Wanning could only see a tall figure standing at the door, but he could not see the expression on that figure's face, nor could he see the color flowing in his eyes.

Despite repeating this to himself a hundred times, Chu Wanning's heart was beating fast. He didn't want Mo Ran to see his embarrassment, so he took off his high ponytail, bit the ribbon between his lips and lowered his head, pretending to retie his hair in front of the mirror.

He felt that he was truly intelligent. Biting down on his hairband, he now had a reason not to greet the other party. Then —

Suddenly, a hand touched the back of his ear. Chu Wanning's body trembled. He suppressed it, but he could not help but tremble.

He was not used to physical contact, not to mention the fact that the person who touched his ear was Mo Ran. His rough and broad hands rubbed against the tender skin of his ear, and in a split-second, his waist and back were completely numb.

Chu Wanning's eyes were still downcast. He suspected that even if he raised his head now, even if the light was dim, even if the bronze mirror was dim, the person behind him could tell that his face was abnormally red.

He bit down on his hairband and tried to remain calm. "Are you done with your washing?"

"Yes."

The man's voice was low and hoarse.

Chu Wanning felt that he was so close. His body had the coolness of the cold night, but it could not cover up the man's vigorous and blazing aura. This aura made him dizzy, and his thoughts became blurry and slow, unable to turn back.

As Mo Ran brushed off the hair that had fallen, he said, “Shizun, just now, I…”

“…”

What did he want to say?

Chu Wanning bit his hair ribbon, lowered his eyes, and his heart stopped beating.

The question seemed to be too difficult to answer. Mo Ran paused, and finally changed the subject, “Forget it, it’s nothing. It’s so late, and you’re still tying up your hair?”

Chu Wanning didn’t answer, he only felt that the body behind him was too close.

So hot.

“Are you going out?”

“No, I’m just going out to wash the dishes,” Chu Wanning replied.

“I’ll help you.”

“I have hands and feet.”

Mo Ran, who was behind him, laughed awkwardly as if he was trying to find something to say. “It’s not bad to have hands and feet, but Shizun is also clumsy. I’m afraid he will break.”

Chu Wanning: “…”

Seeing that he didn’t say anything, Mo Ran thought that he was unhappy. He wiped away his smile and said seriously, “It’s cool outside. Remember to add some heat and take it out.”

Chu Wanning replied with a sound that was a bit like “En” and a bit like “Humph”. The sound was indistinct, but it was very pleasant to the ears and caused the tender bud on his chest to clench and brandish its claws even more. His Adam’s apple bobbed up and down, and his dark eyes fell on the pale neck that peeked out from under his clothes when Chu Wanning lowered his head.

He felt even more frustrated. He swallowed subconsciously, yet he tried his best to keep his voice as low as possible, so as not to let Chu Wanning hear him.

Mo Ran took a deep breath and said with a forced smile, “This mirror is really sticky.”

“It’s been too long since someone last used it.”

“Shizun, you can’t see clearly, right? Bring me a comb, I’ll comb your hair for you.”

Chu Wanning bit down on the snow-green ribbon, but before he could refuse, Mo Ran had already grasped the headband in his mouth. Since this was the case, he could only unclench his teeth and allow Mo Ran to tie his ponytail while he pretended to snort, “Do you know how to do it? I can do it myself.”

“Shizun, you forgot? In Peach Blossom Springs, it’s all because of me.”

Chu Wanning was suddenly speechless. Xia Sini was his disgraced past and he didn't want to bring it up again, so he closed his eyes and frowned, allowing Mo Ran to comb and tie it up.

However, his hot palm always brushed against his ear. He felt very uncomfortable. His scalp went numb, and his throat became slightly thirsty. Thus, his brows furrowed even more tightly.

"Why isn't it done yet?"

Mo Ran gave a low laugh, "You are always in such a hurry. Don't worry, it'll be soon."

His voice seemed to be closer than before, sticking to the back of his ear. Chu Wanning's hands, which were hanging between his sleeves, were tightly clenched.

He didn't know if it was just an illusion, but he always felt as if the breathing of Mo Ran was a bit heavy, the heavy feeling of a beast ready to pounce on him made him feel a kind of piercing pain. He even felt like there was a tiger and wolf coming from behind him, pressing him down in front of the bronze mirror, greedily crushing his throat, sucking the blood that was gurgling in his veins.

Sometimes, people's senses were accurate and surprising. It was just that Chu Wanning could feel it, but could not believe it because of his inferiority complex.

How could he have known that if he were to raise his head at this moment, he would only see a pair of eyes in the mirror that burned with darkness.

Mo Ran held the silky hair ribbon in his hand, his bright and clear body was helping Chu Wanning to tie his hair, while the other half of his spirit soul was fretting about something.

What was he doing?

A headband?

But this headband was clearly tied in the wrong place!

He felt that he should press Chu Wanning roughly against the old make-up counter, use his hair band to cover his eyes, use his other hand to grab his chin, and kiss him hungrily. The pressure was so thick that it sucked the sweetness from his mouth and sucked the soft tip of his tongue. He clearly should have been rubbing against Chu Wanning's ear and licking the mole behind his ear. He should have been panting heavily, sticking close to his ear and asking in a low voice…

"Chu Wanning, my good Shizun. Why did you hide that brocade sack?"

"Wanning… Wanning… Do you. Like me?"

His yearning heart felt like it was about to tear open. His blood was burning, and his eyes were hot and red.

Ch. 176 Shizun, Buy Me

Chu Wanning tied his ponytail and went out to wash the dishes. It was only three bowls but he didn't return for a long time.

Mo Ran sat on the bed. He was somewhat restless, his fingers subconsciously digging into the seams of the bed. From time to time, he would glance out of the window.

What to do he thought.

How should I sleep tonight?

This seemed simple, but it was actually a life-threatening question.

Mo Ran was not sure of Chu Wanning's intentions, but he was at war with the gods, fighting with his desires and intellect.

At this time, the warm curtain was lifted, and Chu Wanning returned to the house with a bowl in his hands, feeling the chill outside. He glanced at Mo Ran on the bed. The candle flame was crackling. His gaze seemed to be somewhat subtle, but at the next moment, his vision shifted.

Mo Ran no longer had the time to clearly see that he was sitting at the table with his back to him.

"Shizun, you're still not sleeping?"

As soon as the words left his mouth, he felt like he had misspoken. No matter how he listened to it, he felt like a man who couldn't be more thirsty and was eagerly inviting his lover to bed.

Chu Wanning didn't look back and just said lightly, "I still have some things to do. Sleep first if you're tired."

"I'm not sleepy either. Shizun, what are you planning to do? I'll help you."

"You won't be able to help, I want to make a few more Sound Condensing flowering blossoms tonight." As Chu Wanning spoke, he raised his hand and brought his fingertips together, forming a golden, tender haitang and placed it on the table.

This kind of flower was formed from Chu Wanning's spirit energy. It could store short words and use them to transmit messages. This was his special technique and no one else could do the same.

He pulled out a chair and sat down on the opposite side. His strong arm rested on the back of the chair, and his chin rested on his arm.

"Why is Shizun doing this?"

"I'll sell it."

"Hmm?"

Hearing the slight surprise in Mo Ran's voice, Chu Wanning opened his eyes and lightly glanced at him, "We don't have enough money to stay on Flying Flower Island for seven days. Didn't that Third Madam Sun want to do business? Then I'll do it with her, the sound condensing haitang flower will never disappear, the golden light is resplendent, look at her body covered in gold and silver jewelry, which one of them isn't glowing, I think she just likes shiny things. It's done. I'll sell it on the street tomorrow. I'll see if she wants it."

Mo Ran could not help but burst out laughing. "Shizun is… Selling flowers?"

Chu Wanning's facial expression changed slightly. He didn't want to put himself together with those brandy-selling girls in the alley, so he said stiffly, "Flowers made by magic, they can't be counted as flowers."

"Then I'll go with you to sell it tomorrow."

Chu Wanning did not utter a word. He lowered his head and quickly took another four or five flowers before saying in a low voice, "Up to you, as long as you don't feel ashamed."

"How would you embarrass me?" There was no fragrance, and the flowing light of the flower was very graceful and elegant. The golden light illuminated his handsome face, and with his pitch-black eyelashes, he smiled and said, "I'm afraid that Third Madam Sun is going to beg Shizun to sell them to her. How much money does Shizun intend to sell them for?"

"Even a hundred of them would not consume too much spiritual energy. How about selling them for three copper coins for one?"

Mo Ran: "…"

Chu Wanning looked at him again, frowned and asked hesitantly, "Too expensive?"

Mo Ran sighed, not saying too much or too little. He only said, "Shizun, don't ask for an offer tomorrow. I'll sell them."

"Why? I make the flowers and I set the price myself."

"Three coppers. Shizun, you are the Beidou Immortal, this is your Evening Haitang, something even the cultivation world can't ask for. You are selling it for three bronze coins?"

“No one asked me for it either. Other than looking good and being able to communicate, this thing has no other uses. I think this price is enough.”

Mo Ran was about to burst into laughter. “Then, can you sell all of them to me? I’ll give you the money right now.”

Chu Wanning stopped, a half condensed haitang lost its spirit energy support, a golden flower petal fell, he actually stretched out his palm, lightly said, “Deal.”

“…”

Mo Ran was speechless. He felt around for his purse and realized that both he and Chu Wanning had already used up all their money. He felt a little embarrassed.

When he looked up, he saw Chu Wanning staring at him with a smile that was not a smile. He felt even more embarrassed and muttered, “Shizun already knew I had no money, and…”

Chu Wanning found him to be funny, and said, “You boasted about it yourself, saying you wanted to buy it from me.”

“I…”

Halfway through his sentence, he silently swallowed his words.

He suddenly felt that Chu Wanning’s words were ambiguous.

Chu Wanning should have said, “Buy my flowers,” but he was too lazy to finish his sentence. He sounded like Mo Ran wanted to spend some silver to buy the man in front of him.

He did not look at Chu Wanning in the eyes, afraid that he would see through his wicked thoughts. However, after looking down at his hands for a while, he realized that the bowl that Chu Wanning had just washed himself in was now icy cold water, and his fingers were red from the cold.

Mo Ran did not have the time to think about it. Instead, he instinctively grabbed the five fingers that were stretched out on the table.

Chu Wanning was shocked. He was pretending to be calm and reached out his hand to ask for the money, but before the money could reach him, it fell into a pair of warm and thick palms. The palms were warm and just right.

“What are you doing?!”

“…”

Mo Ran did not have such dirty thoughts in his mind. He only wanted to warm Chu Wanning up and feel the pain in his heart.

However, he had never expected to encounter such a huge reaction. He was stunned for a moment.

The two of them looked at each other under the dim light of the candle flame. Suddenly, tears began to flow from his eyes as he let out an explosive sound, breaking the deathly silence.

Chu Wanning knew he was being overly sensitive, so he kept quiet. He pursed his lips, feeling a little awkward.

Seeing his silence, the tender seed in Mo Ran’s heart began to move outwards. It tried its best to stretch his small body, scratching his chest, making it itch even more.

“Shizun…”

Chu Wanning: “…”

“Are you…” He stopped mid-sentence. He did not know what was waiting for him in front of him. Logic finally forced him to stop. He did not continue to speak.

However, even though he did not finish his question, Chu Wanning still insisted, “No.”

Mo Ran was taken aback. “What do you mean by ‘no’?”

“Whatever you say, the answer is no.” Chu Wanning frowned and raised his sharp thorns, like a cat baring its teeth in defense of its territory, “Move your hands away.”

Mo Ran removed his hand and placed it on the back of the chair, looking very honest.

Chu Wanning continued to condense the flower, and finished condensing the flower petal that had fallen onto the flower. He was a little angry, and within his rage was more helplessness, and after a while, he said, “Shizun, actually, what I wanted to ask was, are you cold? I want to give you… Warmth in your hands.”

“I’m not cold.”

Liar, the hand I touched just now was clearly icy cold.

Feeling that it was really awkward for the two of them to be sitting like this, Chu Wanning said, “If there’s nothing else, just go to sleep. Tomorrow, I’ll take you to sell flowers.”

“…”

In the past, he would often say “I’ll take you to practice” or “I’ll take you to meditate” or “I’ll take you to read books.”

Take you to sell flowers or something.

Mo Ran wanted to restrain himself, but he did not do so. His black eyes held a smile, which reflected the person in the candle flame. He gave a faint “En” in his nose, but he could not bear to move.

“Go to sleep.”

Mo Ran glanced at the bed.

He decided that no matter what, he couldn’t sleep before Chu Wanning.

Since he wasn’t sure if he should sleep on the bed or on the floor, it all depended on Chu Wanning’s intentions. If he slept near the back and made room for him, he would sleep on the bed.

If Chu Wanning was lying in the middle, then… Ai, then he’d just be honest.

Mo Ran’s face turned red as he thought of something bad to do. “I won’t sleep for now.”

“What are you doing sitting there?” Chu Wanning frowned.

With a wave of his hand, Mo Ran brought his slender fingers together and formed a fiery red butterfly out of spirit energy in the air.

“…” Chu Wanning was at a loss for words.

“Selling money.” With a flick of his finger, that fiery red butterfly flew up into the air and landed on the flowering tree that Chu Wanning had placed on the side. It entered, flapping its fluorescent wings like pollination, and flew in and out of the heart of the flower, “This one is more expensive, I have a black heart, ten gold each.”

Chu Wanning watched as that eyesore butterfly flew back and forth before landing on his flowering blossom, licking its tender pink stamen.

Chu Wanning’s face turned black.

“Mo Weiyu!”

“… What’s wrong?”

He was so angry that he didn’t know what to do or say.

In the end, he suppressed it and said hoarsely without embarrassment, “Three copper coins for one, no more.”

Mo Ran laughed.

After laughing for a while, he took out another fiery red butterfly and handed it over to him. That butterfly gently landed on the flowering flower on Chu Wanning’s fingertip.

“If I sell it to someone else, it would be ten gold. I think this price is very suitable.”

“Then sell it to me!” Chu Wanning held his breath and said fiercely, “I’ll sell it for more, in short, it can’t be more expensive than my haitang.”

After thinking for a moment, he added, “But I don’t have any money on me. I’ll give it to you after I return to Sisheng Peak.”

Mo Ran smiled and took out the third butterfly. He blew lightly and the butterfly danced around Chu Wanning. Mo Ran laid on his wheat colored arm and said gently, “What are you talking about?”

“… Are you going to say that you don’t have credit?”

“No,” he said.

“No,” Chu Wanning raised his chin, his face still wet with anger and his expression haughty. He had already made up his mind. If Mo Ran really dared to refuse credit, then he would teach this arrogant man a lesson.

The man who didn’t know the height of the heavens and earth laughed even more brightly. His voice was deep and shallow as he said, “No, I want to say…”

What do you want to say?

Chu Wanning was waiting for him, and his power was dignified.

“Buy me.”

It was unknown if it was intentional or unintentional for the man to leave out the words ‘spiritual butterfly’, thus his speech became so vague and ambiguous. He rested his head on his arm and seriously looked at Chu Wanning, gently smiling, “I’ll sell it to you for no money.”

He hadn’t expected such an answer.

Chu Wanning was stunned, then his face turned red.

It was already very late in the night, so the Spirit Butterfly and Haitang already packed the room full of them. It was long enough for them to sell it. None of them got up to go to bed first.

There was no need to say anything more about Mo Ran's thoughts. He decided to wait and see how Chu Wanning slept before acting. Although Chu Wanning did not know what he was planning on doing, he was not stupid. He was not sure and wanted to know what would happen tonight.

He would sleep on the floor. Bed?

Although he felt that this man was getting more and more dangerous, if Mo Ran really did go and lay on the bed, he wouldn't be able to chase him away.

He could even sense the hidden hope in his heart, the hope of seeing Mo Ran rise wearily, say, "I'm sleepy," and lie down on the bed.

— Why isn't he asleep yet!

Chu Wanning and Mo Ran thought anxiously as they played with the flowers and butterflies.

Sleep, first lie down on the bed, then I'll…

"Shizun."

"Hmm?"

"Are you tired? It's too late. Why don't you rest first?"

"No need, I'm used to it."

Another two hours passed.

“Mo Ran.”

“Hmm?”

“Why are you still sitting?”

“I’ll make more butterflies. If Shizun is tired, then go to sleep.”

Chu Wanning did his best to suppress his desire to yawn. He gritted his teeth and said stubbornly, “I’m not sleepy yet.”

Mo Ran: “…”

After an unknown amount of time, the butterflies and haitang in the room were almost piled into an ocean. They intertwined with each other in a dazzling golden red.

Chu Wanning was too tired and fell asleep on the table.

At the tip of his finger was still a half unformed haitang flower. The petals trembled with his breathing as Mo Ran walked over and gently plucked the remaining half flower, placed it on the table, and then picked it up.

Ch. 177 Shizun Pretends to Sleep

Chu Wanning had not slept for two days. He slept soundly and the movements of Mo Ran were gentle. Thus, when he was carried to bed in the warm embrace of Mo Ran, he was still undisturbed.

Mo Ran placed him in the middle of the bed, resting his hand on the pillow and covering him with the blanket.

After doing all of this, he did not leave. Instead, he stared at that face with infatuation, from his pitch-black eyebrows to his thin lips, inch by inch.

Good.

How could his Shizun, his master, be so good-looking?

He was so beautiful that he could look at him twice. His heart went soft and his lower body turned stiff.

His scalp went numb, and his mind was strangling his neck. He knew it was wrong, but with Chu Wanning's face so close to his, the faint aura of a flame tore his clothes like countless soft claws, seduced him to get naked, and go to the warm bed with him.

Perhaps it was because the burning blood flowing in Mo Ran's vessels was like a surging tide, or perhaps it was because his heart was like a war drum that could not be stopped, or perhaps it was because his eyes were too hot, burning the people who slept soundly.

In short, Chu Wanning opened his eyes and woke up.

"…"

For a moment, no one made a sound, Mo Ran was just standing there stiffly. Chu Wanning's dazed state turned into shock, his phoenix-like eyes opened wide to meet the burning eyes of Mo Ran.

Chu Wanning was suddenly alerted, "What are you doing?"

The expression on the handsome young man's face was hard to see clearly. He slowly lowered his body, and was so shocked that Chu Wanning didn't dare to move.

"You…"

The closer they got.

His heart was thumping loudly.

"Sha!"

A light sound came from the bedside. Suddenly, the surrounding light dimmed, sinking into an even more ambiguous and hazy atmosphere.

Mo Ran bent over and pulled the curtain over the bed. He straightened his body and sat on the edge of the bed.

He lowered his head to look at the sleeping Chu Wanning and said in a low voice, "I saw that Shizun was asleep so I wanted to help you put down the curtains, but I didn't think that I would wake you up."

Chu Wanning did not say anything. He leaned against the pillow and turned his head to look at him.

The dark yellow curtain that had just been unhooked from the headboard fluttered behind Mo Ran. The candle flames outside became so dense and blurred, like a mist that had been condensed on the windows in winter. It was too dark for the young man's handsome face to be seen. Only his eyes were bright in the darkness, like falling stars.

Mo Ran suddenly called out to him, "Shizun."

"Hmm?"

"There's something I want to ask you."

"…"

Taking advantage of the darkness, his courage to be a disciple seemed to grow.

Chu Wanning's heart tightened as he thought to himself, "Is he going to ask about that silk sachet?"

His face was unperturbed, but his chest was surging.

Was there still time to pretend to be asleep?

Mo Ran asked, "Where should I sleep?"

"…" Chu Wanning was speechless.

He struggled and tangled most of the night and Mo Ran finally fell on the floor.

"The bed is too small." In fact, he regretted it right after he asked. With his healthy body and strong blood energy, it would be better if he didn't collapse and sleep with Chu Wanning. It wasn't like he didn't know how terrible a man's desires could be.

“I’ll sleep on the floor.”

“… Is there any extra bedding?”

“There’s a bed.”

“Will it be cold?”

“No, I’ll just lay down more straw.”

After saying that, Mo Ran went outside to get the straw, carried a pile back, and neatly laid them on the ground. Having been tormented by him just now, Chu Wanning was temporarily out of sleep. He leaned his body to support his head, and lifted the curtains with one hand. He silently watched as the man busied himself and quickly made a single bed for himself.

“…”

“Yes, Shizun. Good night.”

The man put on his clothes and pulled up the blanket for himself. His dark eyes looked gently and steadily at Chu Wanning on the bed.

Chu Wanning acknowledged, “Yes.”

Seeing Mo Ran’s “I’m very honest” look, Chu Wanning was relieved. He put on a “I’m very cold” look and laid down the bed curtains casually.

Then Mo Ran sat up again.

“What for?”

“Turn off the lights.”

The man got up and blew out the candle.

The room fell into silence. Lying under the bed was Shizun and disciple, each with their own thoughts, looking at the flowers and butterflies that faintly glowed in the endless night.

“Shizun.”

“What now? Are you still not sleeping?”

“I’ll sleep.” The voice of Mo Ran was very gentle, especially soft in the night. “It’s just that I suddenly want to tell you something.”

Chu Wanning pursed his lips. Although his heart wasn’t beating as hard as it did when he first made wild guesses, he still couldn’t help but feel his throat go dry.

“I want to say… There’s no need to be so reserved when Shizun sleeps. You always sleep in a corner.”

There was a smile in his voice, low but pleasant.

Chu Wanning: “… I’m used to it.”

“Why?”

“The room is always too messy. I fell over before and was cut by a file on the floor.”

Mo Ran listened silently for a long time.

Chu Wanning waited. When there was no response, he asked, “What’s wrong?”

“Nothing.” Chu Wanning turned his head to the side, and under the dim and gentle curtain, he could see that he had pulled the floor closer to him by the light of the butterflies and the haitang blossoms.

Mo Ran lay back down and said smilingly, “When I’m around, Shizun doesn’t have to worry. If you fall, you won’t get stabbed.”

He paused for a moment and then casually said, “I am here.”

“…”

After a while, Mo Ran heard the man on the bed give a little snort and said faintly, “The flesh on your arm is so hard that it’s not much better than a file.”

Mo Ran smiled. “There is something even harder that Shizun has yet to see.”

He was about to say something about the muscles in his chest, but before he could finish, he was suddenly aware of the thick stench of blood that permeated his words. He was stunned and said quickly:

“I didn’t mean that.”

After hearing the second sentence, the atmosphere between the two of them became even more hopeless and sunk into the depths of the abyss.

Of course, he knew that Mo Ran had an even harder and hotter blade, one that made people shudder even more than the cold hilt of his mechanical armour. Putting aside the cultivation experience book that he had seen before, he himself had unconsciously felt it through his clothes. It was a terrifying passion that made people shiver and feel numb all over.

Chu Wanning replied impatiently, “I’m asleep.”

“… Right.”

But how could he sleep?

The lava of love gnawed at the two of them, licking their chapped chests. It was so quiet in the room that he could hear the faint sounds of the other person’s breathing and the tossing and turning.

Mo Ran put his hands behind his head and opened his eyes, looking at the room full of fluttering fiery-red butterflies. A spirit butterfly fluttered down and stopped on the bed curtain, causing the curtain to be filled with a gentle light red color.

In the midst of this silence, Mo Ran suddenly thought of something.

Back then in Jincheng Lake, the person who had saved him from the Awakening Heart Pavilion’s nightmare had faintly whispered a sentence into his ear.

At that moment, his spiritual sense was fuzzy, so he was not sure if he was hallucinating. But now that he thought about it, he suddenly felt that perhaps he hadn’t misheard.

Maybe it’s true.

He heard Chu Wanning say, “I like you too.”

Mo Ran’s heartbeat grew faster and faster. Some of the details he had never noticed before were all sprouting at this moment, turning into fresh and tender petals, which were then nourished by his wolf ambitions, forming lush, large trees that reached the sky.

His head was buzzing, and his vision was blurry. The more he thought about it, the more he felt that something was amiss…

“I like you too.”

I like you, too.

If he had misheard his words, then why was it that when he woke up, he was unwilling to admit that he was the one who had saved him?

Unless he hadn’t misheard!

Unless Chu Wanning did say that…

Mo Ran sat up abruptly. He was so excited that he could barely contain himself as he said hoarsely, “Shizun!”

“…”

Even though the person behind the curtain had not made any sound, Mo Ran still asked, “Today, when I was washing clothes, I picked up something. It was…”

The curtain was quiet.

“Do you know what it is?” The moment the words left his mouth, he suddenly turned timid. He actually foolishly asked Chu Wanning this question.

The other party didn’t reply for a long time.

Mo Ran hesitated, his eyes moist and pitch black. “Shizun, are you still awake?”

“Did you hear me…”

On the bed, which was covered by a light curtain, Chu Wanning was completely still as if he had fallen asleep. Mo Ran waited for a long time, unwilling to give up. He stretched out his hand several times to open the curtain, but stopped.

“Shizun.”

He mumbled and lay down again.

His voice was very soft.

“You pay attention to me.”

Of course, Chu Wanning would not bother with him.

His entire being was a mess, and the clear mind that he had always been proud of was already filled with smoke and miasma. He lay on the bed, staring at the dark curtain, thinking slowly and stiffly: What the hell is Mo Ran trying to do?

He thought of many things and made all sorts of inconceivable guesses. Only he didn’t dare to guess the most obvious answer, nor did he dare to guess that Mo Ran also liked him.

It was like a hungry person who had eaten a crispy meat pie and, because it was not easy to come by, was especially treasured. He ate all the crust on the cake but was reluctant to eat the last bit.

Chu Wanning listened to the gentle yet anxious murmur of the person outside the curtain.

He quietly pulled the blanket up over his chin and nose, exposing only a pair of bright eyes.

Then he covered his eyes as well and hid himself in the quilt.

Of course he heard it, but he didn't know how to answer.

His heart was pounding and his palms were covered with sweat.

He felt like he had been forced into a dead end, so he wanted to sit up and angrily shout, "Yes! I was just hiding that brocade bag! I like you! Scram! Stop asking and sleep!"

He was tormented and apprehensive, and his heart was itching badly.

"Shizun?"

"…"

"Have you really fallen asleep…"

After a while, Chu Wanning heard Mo Ran sigh softly.

He covered his head with the cloth. In the darkness, he was filled with regret, fear, nervousness, and sweetness. He had mixed feelings, both sour and bitter, and he tried to calm himself down, but in the end, his cheeks were burning and he could not help but secretly kick the blanket.

Ch. 178 Shizun Selling Flowers

The next morning, Chu Wanning got out of bed with dark circles under his eyes. He hadn't slept well at all last night, which was why he looked so gloomy. His originally cold face was covered with a thin layer of ice and there was no heat.

He pushed the door open and saw Mo Ran washing clothes.

…Why do you do laundry so early in the morning?

Didn't you wash it last night?

Seeing him come out of the house, Mo Ran felt a bit embarrassed. His face was covered in foam and he turned to greet Chu Wanning, "Shizun."

"Yes."

"Third Madam Sun kept her promise and accepted the money. She brought food from house to house in the morning. I have placed it on the small stone table in the courtyard. Shizun, quickly go and eat it."

"What about you?"

"I've eaten. When Shizun finishes breakfast, we can go and sell butterflies and flowers together."

Third Madam Sun's food was very monotonous, but the quantity was not small. There were actually three steamed buns.

He sat in the small courtyard, slowly nibbling on his buns. The sun was rising and shining through the dead vines that were crawling around the grape arbor above his head, cutting the table into mottled shadows.

He turned around and glanced at Mo Ran's tall figure. An indistinct feeling of warmth surged in his heart.

He took another big bite of the steamed bun.

The appearance of the golden haitang and the red butterfly caused a huge ruckus in the lazy market all year round on Flying Flower Island. All the fishermen on the island came over to watch, even those who didn't intend to go to the market today.

"Flowers!"

"What's so strange about flowers? Have you never seen flowers before?"

"Golden Haitang! It was made with spiritual energy! It's been open all year! You can even send a sound transmission!"

"Wah! Where is it?"

A large wave of people rushed over.

"Butterflies!"

"What's so interesting about butterflies? They're like a bunch of butterflies caught in the spring."

"Red! Spiritual force, can drive away small evil! And it's very pretty, very obedient, and won't run around, will keep flying around you!"

"AHHHH! Really? Where is it?"

Another wave of people rushed over.

Third Madam Sun, who was reclining high in her mansion, had also received the news in her leisure time. She could not help but bring a few of her subordinates to the market. Before she could even reach the door, she saw the dense stream of golden-red lights from the crowd in the distance, causing people to continuously click their tongues in admiration.

Her heart felt like it was being clawed by ants. She ignored the surrounding villagers and walked over to take a look.

She saw one of the two immortal lords from yesterday smiling brilliantly as he led a group of celebrities to perform a magic trick to attract a lot of customers. The other person remained expressionless as he stood under the tree with his arms crossed coldly. He did not say a word.

“Selling butterflies, selling butterflies —” The handsome man turned around and smiled at another man with a pale face. “Shizun, why aren’t you shouting?”

Yelling?

Chu Wanning harrumphed coldly in his heart.

He did not know how to write the word “yelling”. Could it be that he had to shamelessly act like the vulgar Mo Weiyu, shouting, “Sell the flowers, sell the haitang blossoms” in front of everyone’s eyes?

Don’t even think about it.

“How much are the butterflies?” Everyone felt that this immortal item must be very expensive, so they hesitated for a long time. Finally, someone bold enough to ask for a price came up.

Mo Ran said, “Ten gold for one.”

Chu Wanning coughed from behind him.

Mo Ran said, "… Three copper coins for one."

"So cheap?" The surrounding people were all shocked and came to buy one after another. Mo Ran passed a butterfly to the left and a flower to the right. As he was busy, he suddenly caught a glimpse of a ragged little girl with her fingers in the distance, looking at the bustling scene with a longing expression.

Mo Ran smiled and did not say anything else. He suddenly closed his fingers and formed an extremely beautiful phoenix tail butterfly. With a gentle blow, the butterfly floated to her side across the sea of people and landed on her braid.

The girl was stunned. She hesitated for a few steps before she stopped and shook her head.

She had no money.

Not to mention three copper coins, there wasn't even one.

He waved at her, mouthed, "For you," then winked, smiled, and turned his head away again, continuing his work.

Third Madam Sun watched as the beautiful golden items were bought. A beautiful lady directly put the haitang flower into her black hair bun. Instantly, her head was covered in sparkling black hair. It was surprisingly radiant and gave off an indescribably noble aura. She couldn't help it.

"I want all of these butterflies and flowers."

Mo Ran raised his eyes, his smile still lingering on his face. “I was wondering who could be so generous. So it’s Third Madam.”

“How many are left? Count them all, I will take them all back to the manor.”

“That won’t do.” Mo Ran laughed, “There has to be a first come first serve. The others came first. They haven’t finished buying yet, so I can’t just give them to you first.”

Third Madam Sun looked at the crowd of villagers and immediately became anxious. She was afraid that if she sold it all, she said, “Then I’ll raise the price.”

“I can’t make a decision. I’m just an assistant. As for the price, you have to ask my Shizun.”

Third Madam Sun went under the tree and found the aloof and cold flower selling Taoist Chu Wanning.

“Immortal, why don’t you sell all those flowers and butterflies to me? We’re all businessmen, the price is negotiable.”

Chu Wanning coldly said, “Ten gold for one.”

Mo Ran, who was at the side, could not help but laugh out loud. He turned his head to look at Chu Wanning’s pair of black phoenix eyes. It was funny and soft, but he scratched his head in amusement.

Third Madam Sun was extremely rich. To her, this amount of money was not much. Very soon, she commanded her servants to bring away the Night Haitang and the Phoenix-Tail Butterfly.

Back at the mansion, she happily combed her hair into a bun and inserted over fifty bright golden flowers, making those butterflies dance around her. When the servants saw her head full of golden light, looking like a melted and burning candle from afar, they couldn't help but find it funny.

Third Madam Sun was not happy for long as someone came to report that the two immortal lords had started to sell other things in the market. She was shocked when she heard this. She rushed to the market with a cloud bun that was flickering with a bright light, escorted by a flurry of bees and butterflies.

"Selling butterflies – selling butterflies –"

Third Madam Sun squeezed her way over, placed her hands on her hips, and angrily said, "Wasn't it all bought by me just now? Why is it happening again?"

Mo Ran blinked his eyes. "It's new."

"Since you can make them new, why did you sell them to me for ten gold each just now?!"

Mo Ran laughed, "Think about it, when you wake up in the morning, go to a fried bun house that has a lot of customers lining up and you want to buy some fried food before them. So you pay more. Right?"

Third Madam Sun said angrily, "You, you evil merchant, you…"

Just as she was thinking about how to refute this person's lecherous reasoning, she suddenly saw the silent cultivator walk over. A light flashed on the tip of Chu Wanning's finger, and a twin haitang actually appeared.

Although Third Madam Sun was angry, she was also attracted to it and asked, “What is this? Why is it different from before?”

“This kind of flower also uses the Art of Rejuvenation, placing it on the bed before sleeping can maintain the radiance of the next day, and its effect will last for around 15 days.” Chu Wanning carelessly handed the flowers to Mo Ran and said, “Go sell them, one hundred gold coins for one flower.”

“Wait a minute,” Third Madam Sun was afraid that these two would say something else later. Although she was furious, she still said, “Don’t take it, I’ll take this one. How many more can you make? I want them all!”

Chu Wanning said, “I don’t want to repeat the same spell too many times, I only want to make three.”

“Then three hundred gold, I’ll give it to you.”

“Mo Ran, collect the money.” As Chu Wanning spoke, he lowered his head to condense the other two flowers and handed them to Third Madam Sun. Then, he began to condense the fourth flower.

Third Madam Sun was unhappy, “Didn’t you say that you can only make three flowers?”

“This one adds the Art of Wonder’s Note.” Chu Wanning said faintly, “When combined with your body, it can make a woman’s voice more pleasing to the ear.”

“…” Even though Third Madam Sun was greedy for money, she was even more greedy for time. She could only look on helplessly as the Sisheng Peak cultivator formed one wondrous haitang flower after another. She hated him so much that her teeth itched, but she could only say, “Okay, okay, okay, I’ll buy, I’ll buy.”

When they went back to close the door at night, the Shizun and disciple sat at the table and counted the money. When they found out that it was enough to feed and drink the entire group before the fire on the other side went out, Chu Wanning pushed half of his silver taels to Mo Ran and put it away before he said, “When we leave, return the rest to Third Madam Sun.”

Mo Ran was stunned. “Why?”

“Flying Flower Island is a long way from Linyi and its supplies are poor, so it is very inconvenient to eat and wear. However, look at the fishermen on the island, they should be able to get enough food, don’t you think that’s a little strange?”

“… Right.” As he said this, he carefully thought about it and indeed felt that it was the case.

Chu Wanning said, “Go and ask around. Today, when you were tidying up the stalls, I went to look for the Village Head and asked him some questions. Actually, this Third Madam Sun was originally a member of Linyi Rufeng Sect. Because her talent was not high, master did not control her much. Even after five years since she joined the sect, she still only knows how to display her sword arts.”

Mo Ran was surprised, “She is a member of the Rufeng Sect? Then has Shizun ever seen…”

“Nope. The Village Head said that when she was seventeen, she came to the Flying Flower Island with a cultivator from the Rufeng Sect to recruit a new disciple. Those famous cultivators relied on the fact that they were far away and that the island was filled with mortals. Even if they were bullied, they wouldn't be able to travel thousands of miles to Rufeng Sect to denounce them for their crimes, so in that period of time, they did evil deeds to the island's citizens, freeloading, robbing money, and even…"

"Even?"

"Even sexually assaulting young men and women."

"…"

"Third Madam Sun was furious and began to argue with her senior brothers and sisters. Her body was light and her personality was fierce. She offended her fellow sect members and in the end, was stabbed by one of them and pushed off the cliff."

Mo Ran muttered, "So that's how it is? No wonder when he heard what the Village Head advised her to say, she wasn't a person from the Rufeng Sect, he didn't expect… Sigh…"

"Yes. She was lucky. Her sword had missed her vital points. After falling into the sea, she had been spotted by the fishermen fishing for her. The fisherman originally had two daughters, but they both left early. After saving her, he accepted her as his adopted daughter, teaching her how to fish and hunt, teaching her how to do business. After her foster father passed away, she took over his mantle and gradually became the largest family on the Flying Flower Island."

Chu Wanning paused for a moment before speaking.

“You heard, she said that the harvest on Flying Flower Island was not good this year and that she was the one in charge of every household. Although Third Madam Sun’s business is good, she would only strip money off cultivators. She would never take too much from the islanders and would even subsidize poverty.”

Mo Ran did not say anything, but he thought of that little girl in the market who yearned for the haitang blossoms.

She was dressed shabbily and had a dirty face. It was obvious that she had lost her parents.

However, she was not skinny. Her cheeks were bulging and her eyes shone with a clear and cold light. If it wasn’t for someone helping her, wouldn’t such a young child have lost her looks and skin if she were to beg for food for a living?

“Third Madam Sun goes out to sea more than 20 times a year. Every time she goes back and forth, it takes her seven to eight days to go back and forth. Look at her mansion, it’s extremely luxurious, why must she come and go in the wind and waves when she’s over a hundred years old? Every year, she would painstakingly take the things on the island to Linyi to sell, then go to Linyi to gather the materials and bring them back to Flying Flower Island? She clearly doesn’t lack money.”

“… I understand.” When Mo Ran heard this, his heart was in pain. He immediately picked up the half of the money and prepared to leave. Chu Wanning called out to him.

“Where to?”

“I’ll return what I earned back to her.”

“Sit down.”

Chu Wanning replied flatly.

“Why are you so stupid?”

“Hmm?”

“Look at a person like Third Madam Sun. She has an unyielding personality and she wants to be strong. What she hated the most were cultivators… Say, if you go over and give her the money like this, won’t she beat you up and send you out of the mansion?”

“…”

Mo Ran thought about it and suddenly felt pain in his spine. He could not help but sigh and ask, “Then what should we do?”

“I told the Village Head that before we leave, I will give him the rest of the money so that he can find an opportunity to pass it to Third Madam Sun. At that time, when we are all gone, money will eventually make the Flying Flower Island a little better off. She won’t refuse it.”

Mo Ran lowered his eyes to ponder for a moment before nodding his head.

“Shizun is right, we should do as Shizun says.”

Chu Wanning sighed and said, “There are many things in this world that cannot be decided just by looking at the surface. Sometimes, even the layer below the surface may not be the truth. I often tell myself that I need to calm down, judge people, things, and be very careful, but sometimes I can’t help it.”

Mo Ran that he had said was extremely unpleasant.

He made decisions just from looking at the surface, judged people's right and wrong, judged the right and wrong, wasn't this what he had done to Chu Wanning before?

Apart from him, it was extremely difficult for most people in the mortal world to maintain a pair of clear eyes and a calm heart in the face of intense emotions. They had to think and see the truth hidden beneath the dust and sand.

What he did to to Chu Wanning, and what Nangong Si did to his own mother — fooled by their emotions, blinded by appearances, they finally made mistakes causing hut and pain which couldn't be undone.

Perhaps only someone like Chu Wanning, who seemed cold and detached, but was determined to give everyone a chance to change their minds and try their best not to speculate everything with the greatest malice. Thus, the more Mo Ran tried to understand him, the more he would discover that this irritable Immortal Elder Beidou actually possessed a heart that was not tainted by hostility.

What this person hid behind his cold and arrogant face was actually a kind and forgiving spirit soul.

Because of such a spirit soul, he felt even more pity for Chu Wanning, and a strong desire to protect grew in his heart. Perhaps it was because he had been drenched in blood from the mountains of corpses and the seas of blood that he was able to understand that in this world, there was nothing more precious than the heart of a naked child.

It was a flute in the smoke, a flower in the trenches.

Thus, standing in front of such a spirit, the Immortal Taxian-Jun who once caused trouble for the entire world silently thought —

If there was a day that Shizun needed it, then even if he was covered in wounds and dried blood and tears, even if he died without a complete corpse, even if he was burnt to ashes, even if he had to sacrifice his head and broken soul.

He wanted to protect this clean and pure Beidou Immortal.

“What are you thinking about?”

“Oh, nothing.” Mo Ran smiled. “I’m just thinking about some small matters.”

“A small matter?”

Mo Ran pursed his lips. He suddenly remembered that when he went to the market in the morning, Chu Wanning told him that he wanted to learn the Imperial Sword Technique. He said, “Shizun, come with me.”

Ch. 179 Wanning

The two of them arrived at the edge of a cliff on Flying Flower Island. Below them was a rough sea, the waves crashed into the rocks and turned into thousands of snowflakes. There was nothing around them except the boundless sea, the sky and the crescent moon.

Mo Ran called for his sword, then turned to ask Chu Wanning, “Why don’t you know how to use the Imperial Sword Technique?”

“It’s not that I don’t know how to.” Chu Wanning said, “I’m not very good at it.”

“Why aren’t you adept at it?”

Chu Wanning waved his sleeves, his expression was haughty but his ears were red, “I can only fly not far from the ground.”

Mo Ran was surprised, things like the Imperial Sword Technique required the same amount of spiritual energy to fly an inch or a hundred meters away from the ground.

There was no reason not to soar into the sky, so he said, “Shizun, give it a try. Let me see.”

“…” Chu Wanning did not summon his sword. Instead, he calmly said, “I don’t want to use my sword, but I feel that it is inappropriate to use it when it needs to be respected and stepped on.”

“?”

He did not know why he suddenly started explaining, but Mo Ran still nodded his head.

“Shizun is right. But… We can’t lie down on our swords or hang ourselves on our swords, right?”

Chu Wanning was at a loss for words. When he looked up, he saw the man looking at him with a smile, and he could not help but feel annoyed. “Normally, if there’s an emergency, I fly with the Ascending Dragon’s Barrier.”

Mo Ran was a little taken aback. “That dragon?”

“It can grow.” Chu Wanning said. He seemed to have recovered some of his face, but soon felt a bit embarrassed. “But after the great fire at the Rufeng Sect, it was completely useless. He fears fire.”

Mo Ran suddenly understood. “So Shizun wants to learn the Imperial Sword Technique in order to —”

“In case of an emergency.”

Mo Ran fell silent. The thick smoke that billowed out from Linyi’s city was like a sea of flames, engulfing countless lives. At that time, Chu Wanning stood on his own sword, watching as the mortals were swallowed up by the fire and burnt into ashes, leaving not even a single bone behind. The exalted deity, on the other hand, was unable to do anything and could not ride a sword to carry anyone, what mood did the current Chu Wanning have?

No wonder this person, who would rather ride a horse carriage than ride a sword, would suddenly ask his disciple for such a request.

“I understand. Shizun, don’t worry, I’ll definitely teach you well.”

Hearing him say so, Chu Wanning did not say anything. He lowered his eyes, thinking about something. In the end, he sighed and raised his hand, “Huaisha, summon him.”

A ray of golden light suddenly condensed into existence as Mo Ran once again saw the godly weapon that had only appeared during his life-and-death duel in his previous life within this serene sea and sky moonlight.

Chu Wanning’s Blade of Killing.

Huaisha.

It was a longsword that Mo Ran obviously knew. There was probably no other person in this world who was more suitable to be its Sword master than Chu Wanning. Its decorations were light, and its entire body was flowing gold. Because the golden light was too glaring, it even had a hint of paleness to it. The radiance flowed down from the sword in an unhurried manner. It was like burning fireworks in the night sky, yet also like falling white sand.

“This is Huaisha.” Chu Wanning looked at it and said, “You have never seen it, it is very vicious, so I don’t use it often.”

After a long while, he nodded and said in a low voice, “It is a good sword.”

The night wind blew gently, and Mo Ran stepped onto his sword. With a slight movement of his toes, the sword obediently rose up a few inches off the ground.

“Let Shizun give it a try too.” Mo Ran turned around and said to Chu Wanning.

Chu Wanning also stood on the sword. Huaisha steadily rose a few inches higher, bringing Chu Wanning around in a circle.

“Isn’t this great? Try getting up a little more.” As he spoke, he controlled his sword and flew to a height of about five feet. He smiled at Chu Wanning and said, “Come up here.”

“…”

Chu Wanning pursed his lips, silently raising Huaisha to the same level as him.

Mo Ran replied, “No problem. Shizun, don’t you know how to do it? Then we’ll…”

He suddenly stopped talking. He noticed that Chu Wanning’s face was pale and his face was tense. His eyelashes were fluttering like grass in the wind, as if he was trying his best to hold back something.

Mo Ran looked down and saw that he was not even five feet away from the ground.

Then he raised his head and looked at Chu Wanning in disbelief.

He suddenly had a ridiculous thought.

Shizun could not control the sword, could it be because… he was afraid of heights?

Mo Ran: “…”

This was extremely awkward, and he also felt that it was inconceivable. Chu Wanning was a man of great lightness skills. He could go up and down as he wished, and he could just touch the ground for several meters with his toes. How could such a person fear heights? However, when he observed the person standing on the sword, his expression was truly unsightly. His gaze wandered, and even though he tried his best to restrain himself, a thin layer of fear still appeared between his brows.

Mo Ran probed, “Shizun?”

Chu Wanning’s reaction was a bit intense. He suddenly raised his head, and the night wind ruffled his hair, but he did not raise his hand to sweep it away. His pair of phoenix eyes flashed with anger, and behind his messy forehead burst into flames, “Hmm?”

“Cough…Pfft.”

“What are you laughing for!”

“My throat is dry. Cough.”

Mo Ran did his best to hold back his laughter. He thought to himself, he’s not running anymore, so he’s really afraid of heights. No wonder he explained so much just now, he just wanted to save some face.

Since Shizun wanted to save face, as a disciple, he had to follow along with Shizun and step down the steps.

Mo Ran said, “The higher the level of the sword, the more difficult it is to practice. From the very beginning, I also could not go up more than five feet. You need to practice more.”

“You couldn’t go up there before?”

“Yes.”

The first time he rode the sword, Mo Weiyu, who was at the height of a thousand zhang, gently nodded.

“Maybe I don’t even have five feet, so I don’t dare to look at the ground. Three feet? In short, Xue Meng can easily kick me down.”

Chu Wanning felt slightly relieved.

He had never had the nerve to tell anyone about the fear of height, but now it seemed that there was nothing to lose face.

“Shizun, try your best not to look down.”

“Hmm?”

“Just look at me.” Mo Ran was suspended above him. He thought for a moment before lowering his body again, “Forget about how much you rose, just think of flying to the same position as me.”

Chu Wanning gritted his teeth and climbed even higher. The thin and smooth blade was stepped on. The originally warm night wind, to him, had also become as cold and wet as a snake, and it slithered into his clothes, crawling and hissing.

“Don’t look down, don’t look down. Come here and take my hand.”

Chu Wanning took his lessons seriously and focused, saying, “No need, I can do it myself.”

Mo Ran did not force him anymore. He knew Chu Wanning’s temperament. If this person wanted him to come, it would be better to let him be when it wasn’t a big deal.

A person who is used to being a towering tree is not accustomed to rely on other people.

Being by his side allowed him to be at ease and feel comfortable.

Although he really wants to turn Chu Wanning into soft spring water to wrap his fingers and rub it into his rough torso so that he can shatter in his arms and melt in his own blood. Like most men in the world, he always had an unrealistic and terrible possessive desire for someone he loved deeply.

This was natural instinct.

The male aggression made him long to lock Chu Wanning up, and spend endless days and nights entangled with him, swallowing all of his passion.

He longed for him to spend the rest of his life on a warm bed while embracing him, not to be seen by anyone but himself.

He longed to own him, for him to be under him for his entire life, forever wrapped around him.

The beast that thirsted for his body couldn't help but want to leave dark and purple marks all over that wouldn't fade. It wanted to make fierce love every night until his desires were sated.

However, love made Mo Ran's heart soft and compassionate.

Love made him want to respect Chu Wanning. He wanted to see him in high spirits, with light hooves and fast horses. He wanted to see him wielding his sword out in the world, snow falling on his sleeves.

He wanted to indulge him to grow arrogantly in the jungle to reach the heavens, to cast shade mercifully, connive his branches to flourish, but also so to allow him to break and get hurt in the wind and rain.

And so love shackled his instincts, tied the bridle around his beasts, lowered his eyes, held his breath, and became a man of good manners.

In this life, he would rather keep his true nature locked in and pull out the fangs.

He was born to possess because of love, he became selfish, and now he is reborn to be forgiving because of love, he became selfless.

As a result, he would not be like his previous life, trying to imprison Chu Wanning, trying to change him.

This belated and pure love made the former Emperor Taxian-Jun willing to submit, willing to spend his entire life as Chu Wanning's companion.

His sword climbed higher and higher until it reached a certain height. Even though Chu Wanning didn't look at the ground, his fingertips still trembled under his wide sleeves.

His scalp went numb.

Mo Ran could see his nervousness, so he said, "Don't be afraid, this is the same as the qinggong."

"It's not the same. Qinggong is dependent on himself, while the Imperial Sword Technique is…"

"Even swordplay relies on one's own ability."

"Sword kinesis relies on the sword!" Chu Wanning retorted angrily.

Mo Ran: "…"

He finally understood why his Shizun was so skilled, but was also afraid when he was riding the sword. Chu Wanning never relied on anything, he always relied on himself, so only when he relied on himself could he feel at ease.

This knowledge made Mo Ran's heart ache. He felt very pained.

He said, "It's okay, Shizun. You have to believe in Huaisha."

However, even with his casual calmness, the anxiousness and panic in Chu Wanning's eyes could not be hidden. Seeing the beads of sweat on his forehead and the instability in his feet, Mo Weiyu knew he could not continue like this. If Chu Wanning fell off his sword at this moment, the shadow would be even deeper.

He immediately said: "Let's go down."

The two landed on the ground, he rested for a moment and then asked, "How high did we fly?"

Mo Ran had the intention of reporting more and said, "Over fifty feet."

Chu Wanning was taken aback. His eyes widened, "That high?"

"Yeah. Shizun is so powerful. The next time we fly, five hundred feet will be a piece of cake."

"…"

Upon hearing the word 'five hundred', Chu Wanning's already pale face turned even uglier. He waved his hand but didn't say anything, staring at Huaisha in a daze.

Mo Ran thought about it and said, “How about this, Shizun, I’ll fly you for a while before getting used to it.”

“You don’t need to bring me, it’s not like you haven’t brought me before.”

“But before, Shizun didn’t really look at the ground when he was on the way.”

That made him right. Every time he rode someone else’s sword, he would try to look at that person’s back, or at some other point, and try to think that he was still firmly on the ground.

Mo Ran summoned his sword again, deliberately making it wider. He stepped on it first, then turned to Chu Wanning and said gently, “Come, come up.”

Chu Wanning gritted his teeth and leaped up, landing lightly on the hilt of his sword.

Mo Ran said, “Stand firm.” With that, he tapped the tip of his foot, took the order, and instantly soared into the sky. Chu Wanning closed his eyes out of habit at first, but when he heard the laughter, he was jolted awake and looked down.

It was good that he wasn’t looking. When he did, Chu Wanning’s hairs stood on end.

The Flying Flower Island had been left far behind by a huge beast, becoming more and more distant. The howling of the wind was next to his ears, and his clothes were soaked in the cold night air, he had no one to rely on other than this sword, so they flew towards the sea. At night, the blue-black seawater was like an ancient beast's huge black mouth, swallowing up all the living creatures.

His ice-cold eyelashes trembled. Chu Wanning subconsciously closed his eyes again, but he heard Mo Ran saying from behind, "Don't be afraid, it will be fine."

"I… I'm not afraid." Chu Wanning's face was as white as paper.

Mo Ran smiled. "Alright, then you won't be afraid. If you feel cold or bored, tell me and I'll take you back to the island."

Chu Wanning did not utter a word. He knew Mo Ran was giving him face.

After all, a cultivator who was freezing cold on his sword was much more imposing than a cultivator who was trembling on his sword.

Seeing that he was somewhat unable to bear it and stubbornly unwilling to speak, Mo Ran could not bear to do so. He said, "I will make the sword a bit larger."

He raised his hand and extended his sword by five or six times, which was enough for him to stand shoulder to shoulder with Chu Wanning.

"Shizun, in a few more days, Linyi's tribulation fire will be extinguished. We will return to Sisheng Peak, but what should we do with the people that we brought?" As he spoke, he tried to loosen the tension on the bowstring.

Chu Wanning was a man of his word, he could think, "Bring them to Shu."

"Hmm?"

“Let’s go to Shu first. After Linyi Calamity Fire, there will be scorched earth. No one can live there.”

Mo Ran said, “Alright.”

He looked at Chu Wanning’s pale face, and after a while, his heart ached. He asked, “Should we go back?”

“Wait a little longer.”

Mo Ran then expanded the circle of the sword a few times. He made Chu Wanning sit down, it would be much better to sit and watch than to stand. He opened the barrier, and Chu Wanning turned to ask, “What are you doing?”

“It’s just a cold barrier.” Mo Ran’s gaze was very gentle. “If it’s too high, it’ll be cold.”

Chu Wanning let this go.

The Spirit Formation was the same as his, and it was extremely similar. In fact, even the film formed from light was a haitang flower. However, his was gold, and Mo Ran’s was red.

With this translucent barrier, even though he knew it was useless to expel the cold, he suddenly felt that there was an additional layer of protection around him. Perhaps the sea he saw through the barrier was no longer frighteningly dark.

Mo Ran sat beside him and said, “Shizun, look over there.”

“What?”

“Did you see that?”

“…” Chu Wanning looked in the direction he was pointing at and frowned, “Other than the moon, there’s nothing else.”

“The moon.”

Chu Wanning was stunned, “What’s so good about it? It’s the same when you look at the ground.”

Mo Ran smiled. “This is the first time I’m sitting with Shizun to admire the moon.”

Chu Wanning did not reply. After a while, when Mo Ran thought that Chu Wanning would not say anything more, he suddenly said softly, “It’s not like we did not watch it together.”

“… What?”

Mo Ran was surprised and turned to look at him.

The moonlight shone down on Chu Wanning’s handsome face. His skin was like the white petals of a cold night, and under the two thick eyelashes, his eyes seemed to be reminiscing about something deeper than the sea.

“It’s been too long, you should have forgotten. Nothing,” Chu Wanning replied.

Mo Ran didn’t know what to say. He had lived longer than Chu Wanning, and much of his past was no longer clear. Even when Chu Wanning remembered his past, he didn’t think that he was still hiding it in his heart.

He looked at the side of Chu Wanning's face and felt guilty, but he could not help but feel a hint of sweetness. He couldn't help but think of that brocade sack and the questions he was going to ask yesterday. Chu Wanning had kept their hair tied, as well as many memories. Why…

Butterfly Town, Jincheng Lake……

During the Heavenly Rift, he had risked his life to save himself.

Why?

Previously, he didn't dare to speculate any further and thought that he was extremely bold and shameless.

However, in the past two days, every single discovery he made had been to fan the flames within his wolf ambitions.

— Why.

"Shizun."

"Hmm?"

The blood in his chest surged and surged. He was very thirsty, and his eyes were very bright as he stared at Chu Wanning. He suddenly had the urge to go over and kiss him on the cheek. He mustered the courage to ask him, Are you… Do you like me?

On the Imperial Sword, between heaven and earth, Mo Ran felt like he was immersed in an illusion.

It was as if the two of them no longer had any ties in this world, and no past love or hatred had occurred. Everything was as peaceful and pure as the moonlight that passed through a light cloud.

He felt as if the tender seedling in his chest had finally turned into a tree, its thick veins peeling away the dead soil, revealing the deep, fishy smell of the earth.

Chu Wanning saw that he was silent for a long time, he turned his head and asked, “What’s wrong?”

Mo Ran did not answer. His mind was clouded, and he longed to possess him, embrace him, and kiss him.

He involuntarily leaned over.

Then, he suddenly realized that even though Chu Wanning had recovered a bit after he had activated the enchantment, his face was still pale and his lips were pursed. He crossed his arms, his slender fingers subconsciously clutching the cold cloth.

When Chu Wanning was scared, what he grabbed was not others but himself.

Mo Ran was stunned for a moment.

Following that, the aggressive light in his eyes was extinguished and turned into a fine and fragmented light. The sparkling light was like that of a fish fire.

Very gentle.

He originally wanted to kiss his lips, but then he slightly pursed his lips and revealed a soft and bitter smile.

The hand that had been about to embrace him suddenly stopped, and a moment later touched the cold back of his hand.

“You…” Chu Wanning was taken aback. His pale face blushed, but he remained alert and whispered, “What are you doing?”

He tried to pull his hand away, but Mo Ran caught it and refused to let it go. Chu Wanning only felt his fingers, which had been frozen into ice, land on a big, warm hand. From his palm to his fingertip, they were all tightly wrapped and pressed together.

“Don’t rely on yourself. If I’m here, you can rely on me.”

If Chu Wanning had been calm and collected just now, he would have been able to sense the emotions behind his words, no matter how slow or hesitant he was.

Besides, there were those dark, death-looking eyes, gazing at him with solemn, gentle, and loving eyes. Chu Wanning’s heartbeat was like a torrential downpour as it pounded against his spirit soul bit by bit.

He no longer dared to look at Mo Ran’s eyes. He abruptly turned his face away and lowered his head.

Too hot.

How could a hundred feet in the air feel so hot?

He was usually aloof and calm, but now it was as if he had suddenly stepped into a territory that he did not know about. The armor on his body had been stripped off, and his sharp claws and fingers had been cut off. In the face of Mo Ran’s sudden blunt blow, Chu Wanning’s usual counterattack seemed to be ineffective.

The man pried open his clam with a fervent effort and looked straight into the white, quivering flesh. Both the shiny pearl and the sweet mussel meat were completely exposed to the man's eyes.

This proud and easygoing man threw down his armor and suddenly felt anxious and helpless.

What to do…

What should he say?

He…

He realized that his hand was still being held by Mo Ran, closely fitting.

He did not know what to do. He was anxious and nervous. His eyes were a little red. Subconsciously, he wanted to pull his fingers away.

However, the moment he moved, Mo Ran immediately grabbed him.

The man's palms were wet with sweat.

"Don't take it away."

"…"

His strength was so great, yet he was so stubborn. For some reason, Chu Wanning suddenly felt that his words seemed to be filled with sadness.

After staring at him for a long time, he said in a low, hoarse voice, "Chu Wanning…"

"… What did you call me?"

"… I was wrong."

Chu Wanning's body was now even more tense than before. His heartbeat was faster than when he first used the Imperial Sword Technique. He was not used to it, he was not used to it.

He tried his best to clear his path and make one last desperate struggle before he fell into the abyss again.

He lowered his eyes and said, "Well, if it's not impossible for you to know that you've said then you're not so help…"

Mo Ran's heart was very hot. Finally, without any hesitation, he blurted out, "Wanning."

…less.

Chu Wanning had yet to utter the last word.

When he heard this soft voice with a sigh, his mind went blank.

He couldn't say the last word again.

Helpless.

After hesitating outside the quagmire of love for so long, they finally couldn't help but step into it. They were trapped within the inescapable net and could feel the pain seeping into their bones.

Mo Ran's voice was low and hoarse. He stared at him and said, "Wanning, actually, these past few days I've been wanting to ask you a question."

"…"

Feeling his heart burning, Mo Ran held onto Chu Wanning's hand tightly, his fingers trembling, "No, I won't ask you."

Chu Wanning had just let out a breath of relief when he heard Mo Ran's next words.

"I'm not asking you anything. I just want to tell you."

Mo Ran was resolute and decisive, never to turn back.

In one breath, he had expended all his courage.

"I love you."

His heart was trembling violently.

"I love you, not the way a disciple loves his Shizun, but… I'm being bold, I… I love you."

Chu Wanning closed his eyes. His fingers trembled under the man's warm and humid skin, and gradually, it stopped moving.

How could that be?

How could this be…

He must have heard wrong, he was so ugly, so fierce, so incapable of speech, so uninteresting, he was nothing but a fool. Who would like him?

"I love you."

He was actually feeling bitter and frightened. His mind was almost completely blank, and he wanted to act like how he used to. He wanted to say "ridiculous", but after thinking about it for a long time, he couldn't find the words to express it.

After a long pause, Chu Wanning finally said hoarsely, "… I have a bad temper."

"You're very nice to me."

"I, I'm old."

"You look younger than me."

Chu Wanning was almost anxious, he said helplessly, "I'm so ugly…"

This time, it was Mo Ran's turn to be stunned. His eyes widened as he stared at the extremely handsome man in front of him. He did not understand why such a good-looking person would feel ashamed of his own appearance.

Seeing that he did not make a sound, his heart became even more flustered. He lowered his head and said, "I'm not good-looking."

"…"

"Not as beautiful as you."

As he was mumbling this, his cheek was suddenly touched by a warm hand. He heard Mo Ran sigh, which was even gentler than the moonlight tonight. "Would you like to see my eyes?"

"Your eyes…?"

Mo Ran's gaze was gentle, reflecting the figure of a man in white. He said, "Did you see that? He's the most beautiful person in the world."

Chu Wanning glared at him. Although his heart was in turmoil, there was not much of an expression on his ice-cold face.

Mo Ran gripped his palm, sweating profusely.

He said softly, “I love you.”

Chu Wanning felt as if he was pricked, fingers trembling. After a while, he lowered his head. “I love you” was like a sharp knife stabbing into his heart. His blood was boiling, and he was unable to control it. Chu Wanning’s eyes turned red. He had been waiting for too long and he did not know what his reaction would be. He was so anxious that he almost cried. He said, “It’s not good for me. I didn’t… I’ve never been liked.”

I’ve never been liked.

No one has ever felt happy, proud, and lucky for having me.

Thirty-two years.

No one liked me.

Hearing these words, Mo Ran looked at the man in front of him who had his head lowered, unwilling to even lift his face. Suddenly, he felt so much pain, so much pain that his heart cracked and his bones were crushed.

He was his treasure, but it had been covered in dust for nearly half his life.

He was in so much pain that he didn’t know what to say.

In the end, he just awkwardly held onto Chu Wanning’s hand and kept saying, “Yes, yes.”

Some people like you. I like you.

You are what someone wants, someone wants you very much, stop being so self conscious, stop feeling inferior, stop being so stupid, and treat your best self as worthless. Idiot.

Stupid Chu Wanning.

I love you.

After a long while, Mo Ran asked, “What about you?”

“… What?”

Mo Ran lowered his eyes, his eyelashes rustling. “I… I’m so stupid, so ignorant, so unreliable, I… And I’ve made a lot of unforgivable mistakes.”

He paused and whispered, “Will you like me?”

Chu Wanning had initially lifted his face up, but upon hearing his words, he suddenly met those gentle black eyes and became flustered. With strength that came from nowhere, he abruptly pulled his hand away and turned his face away.

He did not nod or shake his head.

There was no affirmation, nor was there any rejection.

However, he could clearly see that Chu Wanning’s ears had turned red, so much so that his neck was like a blooming flower.

“That pouch…”

“Don’t say it.” Chu Wanning suddenly said in a low voice, this time his whole face was red, “Don’t say it.”

Seeing Chu Wanning’s embarrassed and unwilling look, Mo Ran’s eyes glimmered with sadness and confusion as the moonlight lingered in them.

He sat down and once again reached out his hand to grab the tip of Chu Wanning's finger.

Chu Wanning was trembling. Even his fingers were trembling. He held onto his slender fingers and held them tightly, holding them in a way that he had never done before.

His ten fingers were intertwined tightly as his palms pressed together.

Chu Wanning's face was flushed red as he looked away.

This time, he didn't break away from him.

Thus, Mo Ran held Chu Wanning's hand, and it was only after some time that he realized the truth, and nervously confirmed it.

Chu Wanning… Likes him, too.

He finally understood.

Ch. 180 Shizun, Why?

For Chu Wanning, this was the first time that his palm and Mo Ran's fingers were interlocked.

He felt that it was enough, not too much. Fortunately, Mo Ran didn't make any more movements. Otherwise, he would have been able to jump down a hundred feet into the air and escape.

This was good.

For Mo Ran, this wasn't the first time he had pressed his palms together with Chu Wanning and locked his fingers together.

He felt that it was not enough, that it was too little, but fortunately, he did not do anything more. Otherwise, he would have wanted to hold hands and kiss him and then ask for more, want to know the taste of him.

This is bad.

Even so, Mo Ran could sense that Chu Wanning was on the run.

That day when they landed on the ground, Chu Wanning turned around and ran without a second word. After running two steps, he felt his steps had become more hurried and he immediately slowed down.

He had only walked two steps slowly when he heard that Mo Ran was following behind him. Feeling embarrassed and anxious, he quickly started to walk again.

"…"

Mo Ran watched him stride forward, his heart itching and aching, hot and soft.

Seeing Chu Wanning walking towards a big tree, Mo Ran immediately warned, “Be careful!”

“Bam!”

He still hit the tree.

He hurried over and asked, “Does it hurt? Let me see.”

Chu Wanning covered his forehead and did not say a word. After a while, he walked forward again.

Mo Ran wanted to follow, but he heard him say, “Don’t follow me.”

“I… I need to go back and rest.”

“First stand there and let the wind blow. After you’ve cooled down, come in.”

To cool down?

Mo Ran smiled. How could he cool down?

I held your hand, Wanning, my heart is warm.

However, he still obeyed and did not continue to follow. He stood under the cold moonlight and watched Chu Wanning walk away until he disappeared behind the wall. Then, he walked up to the tree Chu Wanning had accidentally hit. After a while, he rested his forehead against the tree trunk.

He closed his eyes.

Chu Wanning…

Likes him.

Flying flowers and flowing water, an island like spring.

The bright moon hung high in the sky as clear clouds covered the sun.

The tide was surging and the sky was brightening.

No matter how good the world was around him, it could not compare to the fact that Chu Wanning liked him.

Even though he was lacking in words and talent, at this moment, his heart was filled with a surge of emotions and thoughts. Love could turn a simple and straightforward piece of wood like Mo Ran into a poet. Chu Wanning likes him. Chu Wanning liked him!

He pressed his forehead against the bark, wanting to remain calm, wanting to endure, wanting to “cool down”, wanting to…

No, I can’t.

His closed eyes trembled slightly, his eyelashes were filled with tenderness and ecstasy. The corners of his mouth curled up, and the dimple on his cheek became deeper and deeper as the honey in his mouth overflowed.

Chu Wanning liked him.

Like him.

It was… It was the person he was infatuated with, the best person in the world, the person he wanted to hold in his arms for the rest of his life, Chu Wanning… It was Chu Wanning…

The exalted Taxian-Jun, a Mo-zongshi of the cultivation world, was standing in the middle of a desolate, white desert with leaves rustling in the wind. His eyes were closed and his head was lowered. His shoulders trembled as he laughed.

Because Chu Wanning liked him, the wind was sweet and the waves were sweet.

Chu Wanning liked him.

He lowered his eyes and laughed, but as he laughed, he began to cry.

He grinned like a madman, tears streaming down his face. It was sweet, but his heart ached.

Chu Wanning…

Liked him.

Ever since they left Butterfly Town, he had been secretly hiding their bagged hair.

Liked him.

He suddenly wanted to know, ever since then, Chu Wanning had been standing behind him, silently accompanying and waiting. Waiting for him to turn around, waiting for him to reach out his hand, waiting for him to turn around and see.

Chu Wanning, how long had he waited?

This life, the previous life.

Stacked together, twenty years?

Longer than twenty years.

He was Mo Weiyu that could see through dust and smoke. He knew that the most priceless object in the world was time.

With his power and influence, he had been nearly all powerful. Precious treasures, beauties, and flatteries had poured in endlessly. Only time, passing like rivers, could never be chased down and returned.

For a person to be willing to exchange 10,000 gold for you, that was lust.

A person who is willing to trade a promising future for you is love.

And a person is willing to use twenty years of age, the best years to exchange for you, to wait for you.

He did not ask for anything in return, nor did he ask for results.

That's stupid.

Really, really stupid.

Mo Ran's throat was astringent, bitterness overflowed his tongue, surging up into a tide, he thought —

Chu Wanning, you really… Too stupid.

Why is that so? How could this be?

How could I, Mo Ran… To make you do this.

You're the best man in the world, and what about me?

His hands were covered in blood, and his death was not to be regretted. Ten thousand people scolded him and he would never be reborn.

I bullied you, hated you, let you down, I killed you.

You have no idea what I've done.

You don't even know!

Mo Ran hugged the tree, his sobs falling into the howling sea breeze. What did he do.

Under Chu Wanning's gaze, he chased after another person.

Under Chu Wanning's dazed gaze, he waited for someone else to turn around.

In the dream space of Jincheng Lake, he said to Chu Wanning, "Shi Mei, I like you."

He used a knife to cut off Chu Wanning's heart!

But what about Chu Wanning?

He was as silent as a rock. The river did not move. The knife stabbed into his heart. He acted like nothing happened, taking care of him, forgiving him, accompanying him.

Until death.

…… Until death.

He laughed, he cried, he was the only one in the world, no one could see him, he was mad.

In his two lifetimes, he had never let Mo Ran know what he was thinking even to the point of death. The humblest thing this proud and resolute person had ever done in his entire life was to fall in love with another person.

He had done everything he could for that person, but he had already waited for a long time and clearly understood that there would never be a place for him in the eyes of the other party. Knowing that the other party would not like him, he chose not to disturb him, chose not to alarm him, and did not give any trouble to others.

He chose to leave behind his dignity.

In his previous life, to the point of death, he could only say one thing.

In his entire life, he had confessed to him. Chu Wanning was such a good person and such a proud person, yet he said, “I’m not good. I’ve never had anyone like me.”

Taxian-Jun… Mo Weiyu … What… What have you done.

What have you done!

Were you blind or was your mind muddled?

How can you not see through it? How can you let your Qing down?

Chu Wanning was lying on the bed, the curtain had already been drawn. He looked at the lights outside through the haze.

His face was very hot, and his heart was beating very fast. However, he was lost in his thoughts, and it flowed very slowly.

Compared to the person outside who was unable to experience the pure sweetness because of his evil past, Chu Wanning seemed so simple and clean.

He spread his fingers out in front of his eyes, and when he came to, he found that he had one hand on the back of his other hand, and that his palm and the back of his hand were folded, just as Mo Ran had been holding him.

"…"

Realizing what he was doing, Chu Wanning was stunned. He then became angry from embarrassment. He hated himself for being so preoccupied with that fellow's strength just now.

He had no future!

He released his hands and slapped his right hand with his left.

"Creak."

The door was suddenly pushed open, and Mo Ran was drawn in by the wind.

Chu Wanning turned around and pretended to be asleep. He heard the man enter the room and go to the bed. His tall figure covered the faint glow of the candle, and even through the curtain he could feel the light darken, and the shadow of Mo Ran cast itself over the bed, oppressing him and making him breathless.

“Shizun, you’ve fallen asleep?”

The voice of Mo Ran was very gentle. For some reason, it carried a hint of hoarseness, as if it was soaked in the bitter salt of the sea.

Chu Wanning did not answer.

Mo Ran stood in place for a while, then it began to rustle as if it was afraid of waking Chu Wanning up. It then obediently laid out the floor in the same place as yesterday and blew out the candle flame.

In an instant, the room was enveloped in darkness, even so much so that without the Spirit Butterflies and Haitang, the darkness was even deeper than last night. It made people’s senses tingle, they were oppressed, they were afraid of what would happen in the night, and also looked forward to what could happen in the night.

However, Mo Ran didn’t do anything. This person who had made a name for himself by going to a brothel had suddenly become so wooden, cautious, compassionate, and respectful.

He lay down, fully clothed.

Chu Wanning let out a sigh of relief, feeling a bit depressed at the same time. However, before he could feel ashamed for his melancholy, he heard Mo Ran rise from the ground again. Then, with a slight movement of the curtain, he lifted the curtain of his bed.

Chu Wanning’s heart leaped to his throat. He did not move at all. He was still curled up in sleep, trying his best to control his breathing, hoping that no one would notice anything amiss.

He did not know what Mo Ran wanted to do by suddenly getting up.

He had never had a cultivation partner, nor had he broken the Pure Ring. The only knowledge he had regarding sex came from those absurd dreams.

He was like a man who had never gone into the water before. He was more afraid of the surging waves than he wanted to be. He would rather find a small pool of water that reached his waist first. If he was suddenly asked to face the surging current head on, he was afraid that he would drown in the whirlpool.

As such, he was actually very afraid of more actions from Mo Ran.

However, he didn't know if it was because Mo Ran felt his slight tremble, or because he heard his disappointing heartbeat. Mo Ran stood there quietly for a while, then bent over…

He lowered his body a little, and Chu Wanning could almost feel his hot and vigorous aura. It was as if his hot chest was about to be pressed down.

However, after looking at him in this manner for a moment, he stroked a strand of hair on his temple behind his ear, and after a rustle of the bedding, he covered him with a warm blanket.

Chu Wanning felt a bit more at ease. He felt satisfied, but at the same time, dissatisfied. But from the looks of it, Mo Ran was still honest…

The word "man" was still in his mind, but the honest Mo Ran lowered his head again. Chu Wanning only had time to feel the warmth on his cheek before his head exploded with a roar, splashing thousands of snowflakes onto the rocks on the shore.

The smell of Mo Ran lingered around him, scorching him, tormenting him.

He kissed him on the cheek.

How many people can watch the sleeping face of their loved ones, just watch with arms folded, just cover them with a quilt, and say good night.

Mo Weiyu had exhausted all of his self-control and endurance. The chain was deeply embedded into the flesh of his desire, strangling everything else, but he had ultimately indulged in this gentle kiss.

His blood rumbled. Poor Yuheng of the Night Sky was a wise and powerful man. He was calm and collected throughout his whole life, valiant and graceful. However, under the hot and low breathing of Mo Weiyu, his face was burning and his palms were sweating.

His heart was beating so fast that it no longer seemed to belong to him. The world seemed boundless, as if nothing would remain, but also as if a hot fire had suddenly ignited in his stomach, and bright lights interweaved in front of his eyes. In the midst of his dizziness, he could only barely realize one thing:

Mo Ran was kissing him.

Although it was just a profile.

As for the other things, such as how long Mo Ran had been kissing, he didn't have the energy to think about them anymore. His fingers were tightly clenched under the bed, and sweat dripped down his body. His eyelids kept trembling and trembling…

Fortunately, the night was very dark, and he could not help but feel that his eyelashes had not been noticed by Mo Ran.

Fortunately, Chu Wanning's face was too hot, and he was in a daze, so he did not feel a warm tear rolling down his cheek from Mo Ran from his cheek to his neck.

Ch. 181 Shizun’s Memories

On the morning of the second day of confession, Chu Wanning woke up very early.

But he did not get up, for he peeped out through the curtain and saw that Mo Ran was still asleep, a simple bunk bed next to the edge of the bed.

He couldn’t see it clearly through the curtain, so he held back for a moment. He reached out his hand to pull open the curtain, but before he could touch the curtain, he switched it to a finger, using his fingertip and only lifting a tiny bit.

It seems that as long as it is so little, it doesn't seem like peeking.

The clear light spilled in from the window paper. A bright red light with a hint of gold was cut into long and narrow silhouettes, shining on Mo Ran’s handsome face.

It had been a long time since Chu Wanning had seen his sleeping visage. He quietly observed, attentively gazing at it for a very long time.

Long to the point that he couldn’t help but think of the year when Mo Ran was brought back to Sisheng Peak by Xue Zhengyong. Some shy youth, when happy, can burst out a fire of brilliant passion, having nothing but love to stick to him, saying whatever he wanted, and also wanting to take him as his Shizun.

He couldn’t chase him away.

Seeing him in front of Heaven-Piercing Tower, Chu Wanning insisted on not accepting a disciple because he thought that the phrase “he looks the most gentle, I like him the most" was ridiculous and unbelievable.

For this, he had avoided Mo Ran for fourteen days.

According to others, in order to find a way to become his disciple, Mo Ran had asked Xue Zhengyong's wife, Shi Mei, and even Xue Meng.

In the end, no one knew who gave him the bad idea to do as the snow in front of Cheng's door,[160] stand outside the Red Lotus Pavilion, and wait for him. In the morning when Chu Wanning went out, he greeted him and begged for him to be his Shizun. In the evening when Chu Wanning went back, he continued to pay his respects and beg for him to be his Shizun. Even a dripping drop of water could can manage to penetrate the stone.

Chu Wanning's reaction to this was, "Heh."

He ignored them and left.

He didn't like people chasing him so fiercely. As a person with few feelings, he was only willing to deal with emotions that were just as mild.

He didn't know if it was because of the environment he had been in since he was a child, but he could tell that Chu Wanning was acting cold. He would only pestered him for two days and never ask him to take him as his Shizun again.

However, as usual, he still came to the Red Lotus Pavilion and cleaned up the dead leaves in front of the courtyard door. When he saw Chu Wanning come out, he held onto a broom, scratched his head and smiled, "Elder Yuheng."

They did not wake up early in the morning, nor did they greet each other in the twilight.

Just that simple sentence, “Elder Yuheng”, and a smile.

Chu Wanning didn’t even look at him as he walked away. He didn’t even bother to look at the fallen leaves.

Ten days passed peacefully like this. One morning, about a dozen lotuses bloomed in the pavilion. The fragrant scent put Chu Wanning in a very good mood.

He pushed open the door and walked out onto the winding and clear mountain path. The teenager Mo Ran was currently walking with his head down, concentrating on climbing up the stairs and sweeping the leaves. A single leaf was stuck in the crevice of the rock, making it especially difficult to clean, so he bent over to pick it up and prepared to throw it into the grass and trees.

The moment he raised his head, he saw Chu Wanning standing in front of the mountain gate. He was stunned for a moment, but then he grinned and exposed his half-sleeved arms. He held up the dried up leaves that he hadn’t thrown away and waved to him.

“Elder Yuheng.”

The voice was clear and sweet with fresh fruits. It was clearly not loud, but it seemed to echo in the mountain ranges for a long time. A white cloud flowed, and sunlight poured down from the clouds, penetrating through the forest.

Chu Wanning stood in place for a while, his pupils were suddenly bathed in the dazzling morning light to turn amber. He slightly squinted his eyes, and suddenly felt that the dried up leaf in the boy’s hand was no longer as lifeless, becoming as dazzling as the smiling man.

He walked quietly down the stone steps.

Mo Ran was already used to his coldness so he didn't mind. As usual, he stood aside and waited for Chu Wanning to pass.

That day, Chu Wanning walked past him as usual.

Then, he suddenly turned his face slightly to the side and glanced at the youth. His voice was as clear as spring water and as calm as a lake.

"Thank you," he said.

Mo Ran was stunned for a moment before his eyes lit up. He hurriedly waved his hand and said, "No need, no need. This is what I should do."

Chu Wanning said, "… I don't intend to take you in as my disciple."

However, his tone and manner of speech were no longer as resolute as before.

After he finished speaking, he turned around and continued walking. At the end of the sentence, he seemed to find it unbearable. He turned around and glanced at Mo Ran.

However, when he saw that youth, he did not feel a bit stifled. Instead, he took a few steps with the help of a broom. His young face was filled with vigor and exuded endless light and heat.

…So this fellow didn't care about the latter half of the sentence. All he heard was 'thank you' and he became so happy?

A few more days passed, and one day it began to rain.

The rain was not too heavy. Chu Wanning was a person who was too lazy to take out an umbrella or to open a barrier. It would probably only take him an incense's time to get to the Platform of Sin and Virtue, so it would not matter if he got wet.

He pushed the door open.

Mo Ran was still there.

But today, he was not sweeping the floor, the broom was placed to the side by him, he was holding an oil-paper umbrella, squatting on the ground with his back facing Chu Wanning, engrossed in something, his shoulders slightly raised, he was short, squatting even smaller, the umbrella was big and dark brown, and it looked very funny, like a mushroom emerging from a spring rain.

Chu Wanning walked up behind him with a smile, coughed lightly and asked, "What are you doing?"

"Ah!" The youth was shocked and turned around to look at him.

The first sentence was "Elder Yuheng."

Before Chu Wanning could reply, he opened his eyes wide and said the second sentence, "How come you didn't use an umbrella?"

Without waiting for a reply, he stood up and tiptoed, trying his best to raise the oil-paper umbrella in his hands and said the third sentence, "This is for you."

However, he was still too short, standing a step lower than Chu Wanning. It took some effort for the umbrella to cover the top of Chu Wanning's head, but the force was not as strong as Chu Wanning's. The wind blew, causing the umbrella to tilt and water droplets to flow into Chu Wanning's neck.

"I'm sorry, I'm sorry!" Mo Ran hurriedly said before Chu Wanning could respond.

Chu Wanning: "…"

When Mo Ran said the first sentence, he could answer "Yes."

When Mo Ran said the second sentence, he could answer, "No need."

When Mo Ran said the third sentence, he could answer, "Keep it for yourself."

However, after Mo Ran said the fourth sentence and apologized again and again, Chu Wanning was a bit speechless. He lowered his eyes, unable to tell if his expression was dull or gloomy.

He raised his eyes and looked at Mo Ran. After thinking for a moment, he went back to the original sentence.

"What are you doing?"

"Saving the earthworms."

Chu Wanning thought he misheard, he frowned and asked, "What?"

Mo Ran smiled. His dimples were deep and very cute. He scratched his head in embarrassment and stuttered, "Saving, saving the earthworms."

Chu Wanning lowered his eyes and his sight fell on the hand with Mo Ran hanging on it. He held a tree branch in his hand, which was dripping water.

He must have picked it up from the ground. Looking further up, there was indeed a stupid earthworm lying in the pool, slowly wiggling about.

“When the rain stops, these earthworms that have escaped from the soil will become dry. That’s why I wanted to take them all back into the grass.”

Chu Wanning asked flatly, “Using branches?”

“… Right.”

Seeing the other’s cold face, Mo Ran was afraid of being looked down on by Elder Yuheng so he anxiously said, “It’s not that I’m afraid of using my hands, but when I was young, I was told that earthworms cannot be caught with their hands and will rot away…”

Chu Wanning shook his head, “I’m not talking about that.”

He lifted his finger and pointed it in the air. A thin golden branch emerged from the cracks of the green stone. It wrapped around the earthworm lying in the pool and carried it back to the nearby pile of grass. Mo Ran widened his eyes in shock. “What is this?”

“Tianwen.”

“What is Tianwen?”[161]

Chu Wanning glared at him and said, “It’s my weapon.”

Mo Ran became even more surprised, “The elder’s weapon… This… This way…”

“So small?” Chu Wanning spoke up for him.

Mo Ran: “Heh heh.”

Chu Wanning brushed his sleeves, his expression indifferent, “Of course there are times when it can be fierce.”

“Can I see it?”

“Better to never see it.”

Mo Ran didn’t understand the meaning behind Chu Wanning’s words. He turned around to look at the vines, who were probing into the cracks in the stone steps. All the earthworms in the rain soaked mud were all rolled up. He then carried the muddled earthworms back to the moist soil, a look of envy gradually appearing on his face.

Chu Wanning suddenly asked, “Do you want to learn?”

Mo Ran was stunned for a moment. Then, he suddenly opened his eyes wide. He was so surprised that he didn’t know what to say. In the end, he could only nod his head. His handsome face was flushed red.

“Tomorrow morning, after you finish your cultivation, go to the bamboo forest behind the Platform of Sin and Virtue. I will wait there for you.”

After he finished speaking, his white silk shoes stepped on the wet stone steps, holding onto his oil-paper umbrella as he walked down the mountain. After he finished speaking, his white silk shoes stepped on the wet stone steps, holding onto his oil-paper umbrella as he walked down the mountain.

He no longer cared about the wet ground and immediately knelt and kowtowed. His still young voice was filled with enthusiasm and joy.

“Yes, Shizun!”

“…” This time, Chu Wanning did not acknowledge nor stop him. He only stood where he was for a moment, then continued walking. Rain began to fall, drop by drop, onto the umbrella.

It was only when his back disappeared that Mo Ran stood up from the ground, and it was also only at this moment that he realized that a golden, translucent barrier had unknowingly opened above his head.

Chu Wanning remembered that Xue Zhengyong was relieved and surprised when he heard about his decision. He asked, “Yuheng, why are you so willing to take him in now?”

At that time, he was sitting on a high seat on the Platform of Sin and Virtue, holding onto the oil-paper umbrella given to him by Mo Ran. His slender knuckles rubbed against the umbrella handle, and he finally said lightly: “He rescues earthworms.”

“Ah!” Xue Zhengyong exclaimed. The leopard’s eyes were wide open like a cat’s.

“Rescues what?”

Chu Wanning did not say anything else. He just looked down at the green bamboo umbrella framework, and a hint of a smile gradually appeared in his eyes.

In the blink of an eye, so much time had passed.

The young man that he took in as his disciple was originally a pure and honest man, but went astray for a while. In the end, fortunately, the young man still became a proper immortal that didn’t disappoint him.

A white fingertip poked out of the curtain, and Chu Wanning peeped through the tiny crack in the curtain, staring intently at Mo Ran's sleeping face.

That youth was now a handsome and tall man. His facial features were even more distinct than before, and between his brows and eyes, there was a steady, mature aura.

However, just like before, when Mo Ran fell asleep, his forehead would always slightly furrow. This was how he acted when he was small. Two rows of eyelashes hung down very low, as if they were about to be pressed by heavy matters and could no longer be lifted.

Chu Wanning found it funny. This person was so young, where did all these worries come from?

Just as he was thinking of this, he suddenly saw Mo Ran's long eyelashes slightly twitch as he slowly opened his eyes.

"…"

Chu Wanning's fingers stiffened. He wanted to withdraw his hand and pretend to be asleep.

But Mo Ran was a very strange person. He did not have a young, bedridden attitude, and instead had some of the manners of an older person. In other words, he was clear-headed very quickly.

For some baffling reason, he seemed to have a keen intuition towards the subtle changes occurring around his sleeping environment — it was as if he was always in danger of being assassinated, moving step by step, as if he was treading on thin ice.

Before Chu Wanning could pull his finger back from the crack, Mo Ran's sight fell on the tip of his finger.

Chu Wanning: "…"

This concerned the reputation and dignity of Elder Yuheng. At this crucial moment, Chu Wanning had an idea. He turned his body over and stretched out his hand to the side of the bed.

From the looks of it, he wasn't trying to steal the curtain at all. Instead, the sleeping person had turned over and stretched out his arms and had inadvertently poked his hand out of the curtain tent.

How could Mo Ran have known that Chu Wanning would come up with such an idea. He didn't want to wake Chu Wanning up, so he stood up slowly.

However, he did not leave immediately. Instead, he grabbed Chu Wanning's exposed wrist and carefully put it back between the blankets. After doing all this, it was only after a while that Chu Wanning heard the door creak open.

Mo Ran left.

Chu Wanning opened his eyes slightly and looked at the hazy sky. He was lost in thought for a long time.

Perhaps it was because he had never wished for himself to be together with Mo Ran, nor had he even imagined it specifically, so even after a night had passed, he still felt that all of this was like a dream.

In his impression of them, Mo Ran was obviously secretly admiring Shi Mei. All these years, he had been standing alone behind them and had seen everything clearly.

Looking at Mo Ran laughing to Shi Mei, watching Mo Ran cooking the noodles for Shi Mei, watching Mo Ran secretly helping Shi Mei complete the assignment, smiling, thinking that no one knew.

Actually, Chu Wanning was clear on all of this.

For this reason, he had been envious, jealous, uncomfortable, and unwilling.

He also thought that he had been relieved.

In fact, how could he be so relaxed? Even though he knew it was impossible, he still held on to his neck and refused to look back. He braced himself and refused to leave.

All these years, Chu Wanning had asked himself whether this kind of futile wait was worth it, and whether this kind of stubborn, unrepentant vigil was cheap. However, after asking himself countless times, his answer had always come to nothing.

He was also a ruthless person who watched men and women with cold eyes. He could not understand why it hurt so much, why he forcefully hid a part of his feelings in his chest, and was full of wounds, unwilling to abandon them. He did not understand. Only with the burn of his heart was he able to understand —

This was probably the case for all the friendship and affection in the world.

They could be put down, but they would never be abandoned.

It was for this reason that Chu Wanning, who did not understand Mo Ran's true intentions towards Shi Mei, was somewhat confused and hesitant. He did not understand what caused Mo Ran to be willing to shift his gaze away from Shi Mingjing and focus it on his slightly embarrassed face.

Hmm… Because of gratitude?

Because of guilt?

You want to follow the ghost girl's example and repay his kindness with a demon, so you promised your body?

…… fuck, could it be that he was rejected by Shi Mei…

Chu Wanning was stunned, his mind was in a mess. All of a sudden, Chu Wanning got even angrier. He got up, and before anyone could see, he ruthlessly kicked the floorboard made by Mo Ran last night.

Ch. 182 Shizun's Little Candle Dragon

No matter how much he guessed, Chu Wanning didn't want to think too much into it in case he got himself into trouble.

However, he had some reservations regarding this sudden feeling. Thus, when the Heaven Smiting Flame was finally extinguished and the group of people prepared to leave on their flying swords, Chu Wanning did not plan to ride on Mo Ran's Sword anymore.

Of course, Elder Yuheng, who was barely able to fly twenty feet in the air, didn't intend to cross the vast ocean by stepping on Huaisha. Therefore, when everyone was standing on the rocky beach, one by one, Mo Ran pulled on their long swords.

Chu Wanning took out his Ascending Dragon Talisman.

Blood dripped from the tip of his finger onto the dragon's scale. The noisy little paper dragon suddenly came to life again. It soared into the air, somersaulted a few times, and then circled around its owner as it shouted loudly.

"Aiya, Chu Wanning, I haven't seen you in so many years, I really missed you. What did you ask me to do this time?"

"Take me to the other side."

"Tai! I am the first True Sovereign of Creation, the Dragon of Candles. How can I do the work of a mule or a donkey? I will not carry you, I will not carry you!"

Under the watchful eyes of everyone, this palm sized little paper dragon wagged its head, wagging its tail, creaking its tail. Although its body was weak, its voice was loud and clear. Some of the kids couldn't help but laugh when they heard its words.

Chu Wanning's face darkened. He raised his palm and a golden flame appeared. He said in a low voice, "Burn if you don't."

"…" The little dragon was so angry that he fell straight onto the beach, baring his fangs and brandishing his claws, blowing his beard and glaring at them, "How can you be like this, fierce, unreasonable, and shameless. No wonder you're alone every time I've seen you for so many years!"

Mo Ran turned his head as if he wanted to say something, but after thinking about it, since there were so many people around and Chu Wanning wanted to save face, he decided not to say it. He just smiled and shook his head.

Chu Wanning was angered, "You talk too much!"

As he said that, he swung the fire in his palm towards the small dragon on the ground, but Chu Wanning did not really want to burn it. The fireball was loud and powerful, but it grazed past the dragon's whiskers and landed on the reef.

"Where is This Venerable one's tail?! What about my whiskers! This Venerable One… This Venerable One's head! Are you still there? Is it still there?"

"If you keep nagging, then it's over." Chu Wanning gritted his teeth, his palms were once again covered with a golden glow, "Grow bigger."

“… Awoooooo…” The dragon was wailing for a long time. As it waved its claw in the air, tears that did not exist flew out. Suddenly, its green eyes caught a glimpse of Chu Wanning’s sharp eyes. It shivered, and then it let out a comical “burp!” The end.

It slowly got up from the ground. This time, it really looked like a dragon made of paper. Its body was boneless, and its whiskers were hanging down. It burped again and said with grievance, “Just this once, there won’t be a next time.”

“As you wish.”

Anyway, that’s what it said the last time it was mounted.

The paper dragon stretched out its four feet, as if stretching its limbs. Afterwards, it emitted a sharp cry from its throat, and a golden light suddenly spilled out from its young and thin body, spreading out to its surroundings. The golden light became stronger and stronger, and finally engulfed the paper dragon completely.

“Hou —!”

All of a sudden, the sharp and tiny sound of the paper dragon’s throat turned into a powerful and terrifying roar of anger. In an instant, the ball of golden light flashed with purple lightning and thunder.

Chu Wanning narrowed his eyes. His long ponytail and loose robes flapped in the wind. When the golden light was extinguished, everyone looked around and found that the little dragon had already disappeared. The beach was quiet, with nothing on it.

“Eh? It’s gone?”

Some bold kids were surprised, but before they could finish their words, they heard a loud roar from above their heads. The roar shook the heavens, causing the sea of anger to churn and the clouds to surge.

Suddenly, a mighty dragon rushed out from behind the thick clouds. Its eyes were wide open, its claws were strong, and just its dragon whiskers alone were as thick as a hundred-year-old tree. It rolled and circled in the clouds, like a tiger or a fierce wind, and suddenly it tilted its head upwards, and then it suddenly dove down from the ground —!

Astral winds rose in all directions!

“Ahhhhhhhhh!”

“Father!”

The child who had lost his parents was frightened, but still cried out for his father out of habit. Mo Ran hurriedly picked him up and comforted him softly.

Chu Wanning did not expect to scare a child like this. He was stunned for a moment before seeing the huge dragon rushing towards him. He immediately said, “Slow down.”

“Argh?”

The colossal dragon actually let out a dull groan when it heard this. It then landed on the rocky beach with a bang and slowly lowered its body.

The dragon was huge, so sitting on its body was not much different from sitting on land. It was no wonder that Chu Wanning was willing to ride a dragon while flying high in the sky instead of riding on a flying sword.

Mo Ran wanted to let Chu Wanning relax a little bit, so he held the child in his arms and said, “Do you want to sit with that brother here, on this Dragon of Candles Venerable One?”

However, the child was unwilling. He buried his face in Mo Ran’s shoulder and whispered, “I’ll tell you in hushed tones, I don’t like him…”

Mo Ran also said to him, “I’ll tell you in secret, I love him.”

“Huh?” The child froze for a moment, but then, innocent after all, whispered, “Really?”

“Shh, don’t tell anyone.”

The child immediately laughed, covered his mouth and nodded.

“What are you talking about? You’re still not leaving?” Chu Wanning did not plan to ride with the rest. He looked at them briefly, then he soared up on his dragon and disappeared into the clouds.

Due to the fact that they could not fly too fast with their swords, they finally arrived at the Wuchang Town in the evening. Chu Wanning landed before them and greeted the few rich families in the town.

The victims brought back from Linyi were all taken care of by the head of household. As for the child in Mo Ran’s arms, he reluctantly turned around and waved to him.

“Benefactor gege, see you in the future.”

“Yes, I’ll see you in the future.” Standing in the afterglow of the setting sun, he watched them go.

Chu Wanning was tired of this feeling of separation. He stood still for a while, then turned around and left. Mo Ran quickly followed him back to the sect.

The two of them silently walked to the front of the stone steps of the mountain gate. Step by step, they climbed up. The shadows of the trees swayed, and the twilight shone brilliantly. Mo Ran recalled the time when Chu Wanning crawled back to the top of the mountain with the heavily injured and unconscious him on his back when his spiritual power was running out. He could still see him standing beside him, so he couldn't help but have mixed feelings.

Amidst the bitterness and sweetness, he reached out his hand and gently held the tip of Chu Wanning's finger.

"…"

Even though he had already held his hand once, Chu Wanning still looked stiff, clumsy and uncomfortable. He tried to keep his face calm, to make himself look calm and at ease.

Unfortunately, the person he was facing was Mo Ran.

He was aware of his foundation, aware of his insides, aware of how sensitive the mole by his ear is, down to how cold his feet get.

None of them spoke first, but seeing that he did not take his finger away, Mo Ran wrapped his hand around his.

It was a long way, and he longed for it to be longer so that he could hold his hand for longer, longer time.

He wanted the path to be shorter. If it was shorter, then the suffering Chu Wanning had gone through when he carried him home would be less, just a little less.

Just like this, they arrived at the peak of the mountain, and the majestic mountain gates could already be clearly seen.

Suddenly, a tall figure wearing a white Silver Fox cloak appeared from the shadow of the tree. Before the two of them could see him clearly, they heard him call out.

“Shizun?!”

Chu Wanning was slightly surprised. He immediately pulled his hand out of Mo Ran Palm and hung it on his sleeve. Then, he stood still and raised his head.

When Shi Mei walked down the stairs, his face was as clear as a lotus under the setting sun. His face was bright and beautiful, and the brilliant rays of sunlight even overshadowed the red clouds in the sky.

He was really very handsome.

Shi Mei probably did not see the two of them holding hands just now. He was pleasantly surprised and laughed: “That’s great! You’re finally back!”

Mo Ran did not expect to meet him so suddenly. Feeling awkward, he asked, “Is Shi Mei going out?”

“Mm. I was about to go down the mountain and buy some things for the Sect Leader, but I didn’t expect to see Shizun and A-Ran first. A few days ago, the Sect Leader received a message from his Shizun’s haitang, but since he hasn’t seen anyone, he can’t be at ease…”

“I am fine with Mo Ran,” Chu said. “What about the others?”

“Nothing. Although the Young Lord was manipulated as the black chess piece, fortunately, he was not controlled for long and did not damage his heart. Elder Tanlang has been carefully treating him these past few days, and he was already able to get off the bed and walk around this morning.”

Chu Wanning sighed, “That’s good.”

Shi Mei smiled, glancing at Mo Ran, then gently lowered his eyes, bowing as he said, “Although I really want to chat for a little longer, if I don’t pick up the medicinal ingredients that Guyue’ye sent over now, I would let the person who delivers them wait for a long time. I need to go first. Shizun, I’ll see you tonight.”

“Mm, go ahead. We’ll talk about it later.”

Shi Mei walked down the road, his figure gradually faded. Chu Wanning turned his head, although he could feel that Mo Ran had not let go just now, and that he had pulled away first, he did not know why, but for some reason, he felt angry. His blade-like eyes fiercely gouged out Mo Ran, flicked his sleeves, and left.

Mo Ran: “…”

The two of them walked out of the Loyalty Hall and pushed the door open. However, they were stunned by the scene in front of them and were speechless.

Inside the main hall of the summit of the mountain of the dead, it was densely packed with gold and silver silk, precious corals, and magic tools and spirit stones. From the highest Venerable One at the end to the entrance, Chu Wanning could only push open half of the door and the other half was blocked by a pile of shiny refining crystals, unable to move at all. Other than these things, it was fine, but for some strange reason, there were actually more than thirty unsettled peerless beauties standing in the hall.

As for Xue Zhengyong, he was at a loss of whether to laugh or cry as he tried to reason with a disciple from the Fire Phoenix Pavilion who was wearing light red clothes.

“No, this is really no good. We can accept the rest, but these singers should still be brought back to return to the Pavilion Master.” We really don’t listen to dances here, nor do we like to watch them dance.

Mo Ran followed Chu Wanning into the room. The thirty girls who were standing by the door immediately assaulted him with a strong fragrance. He was already sensitive to the scent and could not hold it in. Immediately, he sneezed four or five times.

Xue Zhengyong turned his head and was immediately overjoyed when he saw the two of them.

“A-Ran, Yuheng! You’re finally back! Hurry, hurry up and help me dissuade this… Uh… This envoy.”

Chu Wanning raised his eyebrows, “What kind of envoy?”

Without waiting for Xue Zhengyong’s reply, the disciple’s face was full of smiles. He turned his head and said eagerly: “I am the head disciple of the Fire Phoenix Pavilion, under the orders of the pavilion master, and have specially come to ally with Sisheng Peak.”

Chu Wanning: "…"

The three of them worked together to persuade that man for a long time before they finally sent him away. Looking at the envoy's departing back, Xue Zhengyong sighed heavily and wiped the sweat off his forehead, "Do you know that a lot of people from the large and small sects have come these days to create alliances with Sisheng Peak? I haven't interacted much with them in these past few years. In the past, only three or five people from the Taxue Palace on Mount Kunlun have been willing to pay attention to us. But now, they all crowded over to present us with gifts and suddenly become so enthusiastic that I don't even know how to respond."

Chu Wanning frowned and asked, "What's the situation in the cultivation world these days?"

Xue Zhengyong sighed, "The river flows east for thirty years, and west for thirty years."

"What do you mean?"

"What a mess." Xue Zhengyong said, "That crazy Xu Shuanglin has so many grudges and grudges in his memory scroll. Even if he knows that it's all because of his heart of revenge, what can it change? It goes without saying that the Rufeng Sect was destroyed in just a short amount of time. Guyue'ye and the Taxue Palace have completely become enemies. Now that enemies have met, there is also the Wubei Temple…"

At this point, he suddenly remembered that master Huaizui was Chu Wanning's Shizun, and he could not help but shut his mouth.

However, Chu Wanning only said lightly, "The Wubei Temple is an empty space, and the previous host was involved in the struggle for the position of the next leader of the Rufeng Sect. With his sinister intentions, his reputation has naturally been ruined."

"Hmm…"

Hearing him talk about his own sect without any mercy, both Xue Zhengyong and Mo Ran looked at Chu Wanning in confusion.

Chu Wanning pursed his lips and did not say anything more. After a while, he asked again, "Where is Nangong Si?"

"I don't know, I haven't heard about him and Lord Ye… Miss Ye… since the Tribulation Fire went out."

Hearing this, Mo Ran could not help but mutter an "Ah" with a worried expression.

Could it be that even after two lifetimes, these two gentlemen were still unable to achieve a good end?

Seeing that his expression was strange and his gaze was obscure, Xue Zhengyong turned to look at him: "What's wrong with A-Ran?"

Mo Ran could not speak the truth, so he said, "I was just thinking that Xu Shuanglin's whereabouts have not been determined, and the two of them have a deep connection with him, so I'm worried that they might be implicated."

"Don't worry too much. All the sects have already sent people to thoroughly investigate the source of all the strange spells in the cultivation world." Xue Zhengyong said, "Unless Nangong Xu does not make any big movements, he will definitely be caught. Young Master Nangong and Miss Ye might be trapped in the forest for the time being, so it would be inconvenient for them to contact each other from the outside."

Mo Ran said, "Yes, I hope so."

They continued to ask about the variables that had occurred in the past few days. Although Xue Zhengyong received a message from Haitang and knew that they were spending their days on Flying Flower Island, but he was unsure of what to do next. Thus, he asked them about the current situation. Chu Wanning had a few answers, two answers, two answers. When it came to matters related to Mo Ran, he would pause for a moment and purposefully turn his back on them.

As for Xue Zhengyong, even if he was beaten to death, he would never be able to imagine what could happen between Chu Wanning and Mo Ran.

This was because the two of them looked like they didn't match each other at all.

Age, identity, personality.

Even the color of the skin, the taste of eating, the sleeping posture, all of these were the opposite.

Throughout all these years, Elder Yuheng had always been lofty and unsullied, while the Beidou Immortal had always represented coldness. Chu-zongshi did not have much love and desires, and what he treasured the most was his own face. Why would he be together with his disciple?

Nobody would dare to write these most outrageous words. If there was a storyteller who could talk like that, he would probably be spat on the skin of a melon and thrown under the beechwood table.

However, love grew just like that.

In the dim light, in the corner where no one cared to look, a hidden delicate flower bloomed. Although it was not in full bloom, its fragrance was already very charming.

Since he had returned to Sisheng Peak, that night, Chu Wanning went to Mengpo Hall to eat.

Pushing open the door of the Red Lotus Pavilion, he suddenly saw a person standing quietly on the long bluestone steps in the desolate mountain path.

Hearing the commotion, the man turned his head around. The light directly behind him was unrestrainedly painting a golden line on his handsome face.

Mo Ran smiled and said, “Shizun.”

Chu Wanning’s silky white shoes paused as his present suddenly overlapped with his memories. It was as if he was once again back at the Sisheng Peak of the first year of Mo Ran’s arrival. Every day, he would stand by his door and watch his leave, waiting for his return.

However, the youth was no longer there. The Elder Yuheng back then had already become the Shizun that he called out thousands of times.

In the respect, there were a few traces of extremely restrained eagerness, as well as a gentleness that was not so restrained.

“What are you doing here?”

“Waiting to eat with you.”

Chu Wanning's gaze fell on a box in his hand and he said, "I want to go to Mengpo Hall today. I haven't been there for a long time, so I don't want to stay in the pavilion for food."

He then smiled, "Shizun is mistaken. This food box is empty. I just went to deliver some food to Xue Meng. His appetite is not good. I borrowed a small stove and cooked him a bowl of noodles."

He did not expect that Mo Ran would actually serve food to Xue Meng. In his memory, the two of them had always been at odds. Even though they were cousins, it didn't even take an incense stick of time for them to fight each other to the death.

It was unknown when it happened, either because they had been asleep for five years and had missed out on too many things, or because Mo Ran and Xue Meng were gradually growing old. In short, when their Shizun had not realized it, the relationship between the two of them had already begun to melt away, gradually becoming more and more peaceful.

Even though it was far from the respect of brothers and sisters, at the very least, Xue Meng would remember to pinch the clay figurine. He would also remember to pinch an ugly Mo Ran, which would personally cook a bowl of noodles and bring it to Xue Meng's bedside when he was sick.

Chu Wanning sighed, "How is he? He was still asleep when I went to see him."

"He's already awake. He ate the noodles and wanted to go out for a walk. I finally persuaded him to go back and lie down. Chess is not like other games. Those who fall into the black spot, even if their control isn't deep, should at least rest for a while."

“Yes.”

Although Chu Wanning agreed, he still had some doubts.

…… This understatement was unintentional. However, he suddenly felt uncomfortable. It was as if Mo Ran was too clear on the pros and cons of Zhenlong chess pieces and was too indifferent.

“Shizun?”

Chu Wanning came back to his senses and asked with a smile, “What are you thinking about?”

“… Nothing.” After all, Mo Ran was a Grandmaster now. It wasn’t strange for him to have some knowledge of forbidden techniques.

He changed the subject and said, “Where are we going to eat? I don’t want to be out there.”

“I don’t want to eat outside either.” Mo Ran rubbed his nose and laughed softly. His voice was gentle as he said, “I just want to go with you. We can go anywhere.”

Chu Wanning would never admit that he was moved, but he couldn’t help but look into those warm, dark eyes for a moment.

Those eyes were warm and bright, reflecting the morning light and his own reflection.

Simple and clean.

He couldn’t think of any reason to refuse such a pair of eyes, so he ended up in the bustling cafeteria with Mo Ran.

Perhaps the thin layer of paper in the window had finally been broken. In the past, Mo Ran would not hesitate to serve him food, and when he saw the soup stains on the corner of Chu Wanning's mouth, he would wipe it off with a smile. But now, the two of them had become solemn. Under the gazes of everyone present, they were even bashful to the point that their gazes intertwined with each other.

As they finished their meal, Chu Wanning was about to put away the tray when Mo Ran called to him, "Shizun, please wait."

"What's wrong?"

Mo Ran stretched out his hand and was about to touch Chu Wanning's face, but he stopped in his tracks.

He pulled back his hand and pointed to the corner of his mouth. He smiled and said, "You have a grain of rice here."

"…"

Chu Wanning froze for a moment, then put down the tray, seemingly very calm as he wiped the rice with a handkerchief. He pursed his lips and asked in a low voice, "Anything else?"

Mo Ran smiled and said, "No, it's very clean."

Only then did Chu Wanning pick up his plate and walk away. He was both embarrassed and flustered, but he also felt a sense of loss that he was reluctant to admit.

Mo Ran used to lift his hand directly before, but this man's sudden obedience made him feel uncomfortable.

It was the same for the following days.

He used to be so free and easy to deal with, but now he was like a boy who had just started a relationship. He was treating Chu Wanning well with all his effort, but he didn't do anything overly radical. It was as if Mo Ran was afraid of scaring him, so he was very careful with every step he took. Sometimes, Chu Wanning could clearly see the scorching heat in his eyes, but that man's eyelashes would quietly fall down, and then, his broad palm would wrap around Chu Wanning's ten fingers.

When he raised his eyes again, the desire in them had already been completely concealed by gentleness.

But that gentleness was too gentle, sometimes Chu Wanning had an illusion of indeterminacy.

It was as if Mo Ran was treating a clay figurine that had been torn to shreds and then stuck back together bit by bit. It was as if it was afraid that if he made a huge move, he would crush it into powder.

Chu Wanning felt that this was a good idea. The cooking oil was boiling in the pot in his dream, but this kind of thing was fine in his dreams. If it happened, he would not be able to take it anymore.

However, no matter how much you restrain yourself, no matter how much you follow the steps of love, there will still be an end to it.

On this day, he finished his dinner and prepared to leave with a peach. The peach had barely taken two bites when his hand was caught. Chu Wanning was shocked. He raised his head and saw that it was Mo Ran. He shouted in a low voice:

“What are you do-?”

Ch. 183 Shizun, I Quit Spicy Food

When there was no one around them, Mo Ran pulled him and took him to the lane behind Mengpo Hall, which was very narrow. He went in and stood close to Mo Ran again, leaving no more room.

Chu Wanning held the peach and stared at him.

It was almost a continuous restraint, which eventually made the man of high blood a little agitated. His chest fluctuated slightly, and his black eyes stared brightly at Chu Wanning. Suddenly, he reached out and held him in his arms.

“My peach —!”

It was too late. The fruit was knocked off and rolled into the corner.

“Shizun.” The man’s hot breath lingered in his ears, so tormented, so hot, but his tone was still clear, hot, floating with a sense of tolerance, his voice burned with desire, but he still did not do more.

He just hugged him, hugged him in his arms, silently.

“I feel terrible.”

Chu Wanning suddenly opened his eyes: “Why? What’s wrong?”

Mo Ran was stunned at first, then laughed. He grabbed Chu Wanning’s hand to probe the temperature of his forehead, huddled it on his lips and kissed it down.

Chu Wanning frowned anxiously and said, “If you are sick, you should go to see Elder Tanlang.”

“That winter pickle is useless.” Mo Ran said helplessly, “Only the small cabbage can.”

Chu Wanning responded, and his face turned tense in an instant. He became embarrassed and angry. “Who are you saying is a cabbage?”

Mo Ran laughed: “I was wrong.”

After a pause, he gazed at Chu Wanning with his wet dark eyes.

“But Shizun, I missed you.”

Chu Wanning was embraced by him and watched with such eyes. His anger of being called “cabbage” had nowhere to vent, so it turned into a pink tint on his ears. After a while, he said, “… We just ate at the same table.”

“None of that counts.”

“…”

“Shizun, I just want to stay with you for a little longer. Every time you finish your meal, you walk away by yourself and walk into the crowd. I can’t touch you…”

There was a weak grievance in the man’s voice.

“Stay with me longer, don’t go back.”

Chu Wanning’s cheeks became more and more hot and flustered by his words. Besides, his breath was so fierce, so magnificent and so hot as he was held tightly by him. In the end, he could not say a word.

“Shizun, let me hold you for a little longer…” murmured Mo Ran.

It’s not easy for them to be alone at Sisheng Peak. Especially in this period, the number of visits by various factions has increased significantly. Xue Zhengyong often dragged Chu Wanning to make suggestions, so the time for them to be together was less.

It was hard to sit close to each other while eating, they always had to worry about the crowds around them. If they weren’t careful, they’d let their disciples see what’s different. So since they confessed, they’ve hardly had a chance to hold hands.

It was no wonder that Mo Ran couldn’t bear it any longer. He has been restrained for so long.

The twilight gradually arrived, and more and more people came out from Mengpo Hall. A group of female practitioners who were joking and giggling walked past the alley, and accidentally touched the fire-breed rat, which was raised by the Xuanji Elder. The mice screamed, causing everyone to laugh, and Chu Wanning was upset in such a hustle and bustle, so he pushed Mo Ran slightly.

“Go out.”

“Just a little longer…”

“It’s time to come out or someone will come.”

In the end, Chu Wanning was a person who was used to being pure. He didn’t give him a real color to look at. He was not confused, he would not be fascinated. Mo Ran sighed. As he wished, he released him from the embrace. Chu Wanning immediately walked out of the dark and narrow alley, then looked back at him.

“What are you still doing there?”

Mo Ran coughed, looking awkward. He said: “Shizun should go first, I will stay here for a while.”

Chu Wanning was rather puzzled, and was about to question him, but then he noticed that Mo Ran’s tanned handsome face seemed to be a little red. His black eyes were also a little twinkling, like the stars in the clear night sky.

Suddenly he realized what was happening. His eyes moved downwards unconsciously. When he saw a part of it, his ears were buzzing. It was as if he had been stung by a scorpion. His face was red and his ears were too: “You… You’re just…” Without finishing his words, he suddenly flipped his sleeves and left angrily, as if the smoke was still shining on his head.

For ten days or so, even if the tamed wolf was gentle, the blood in his bones was also accumulating and increasing. Every morning and evening, he stared at the elder Yuheng on the high platform. The desire in his eyes could not be suppressed, and it became more and more obvious day by day.

When you are infatuated with someone, you can’t hide love even if you try your best to hide it.

Sometimes Xue Meng would be frightened when he saw Mo Ran’s eyes. He looked at him, and then at Chu Wanning. The son of the Phoenix had a one-track mind, he did not think on the wrong road. So the more he looked, the more confused he was, the more he did not know what emotion was flashing in Mo Ran’s eyes.

Xue Meng felt uncomfortable subconsciously, but he could not tell where he was uncomfortable.

One morning, Xue Meng took advantage of the absence of people around him, so he lowered his voice and said “Hello, I want to ask you something.”

“What’s the matter?”

“Is Shizun ill?”

Mo Ran looked at him in surprise: “Why do you ask that? What’s wrong with Shizun? Why wouldn’t I know?”

“You don’t know?” Xue Meng touched his chin. “It’s strange how you’ve been looking at him lately, in a thoughtful way.”

“…” Listening to Xue Meng’s words, Mo Ran was able to understand. He coughed softly and looked down. “What do you want, to curse Shizun?”

“I didn’t curse him.” After a pause, he muttered, “What do you keep looking at him for?”

“You’re wrong.”

“I’m not blind.”

“You’re blind.”

“I’m blind? Then you are a dog!”

Two older men in their twenties were arguing naively. Chu Wanning heard something strange on the high platform and looked at them coldly. They suddenly shut up and recited their herbal dossiers with their heads down, but their elbows were still against each other in a dark struggle. Mo Ran pretended to struggle for a while, then suddenly relaxed, and without warning pulled his arm away.

Xue Meng exerted himself too hard and suddenly lost the hindrance of Mo Ran. He fell down on top of Mo Ran's body with a bang.

Mo Ran clapped his legs and laughed, "Ha-ha-ha."

Xue Meng was very angry, and did not care about the quiet atmosphere around him. He said in a loud voice, "You don't have a face! You shamed me!"

"Mo Weiyu, Xue Ziming." Seeing his disciples, Chu Wanning was a little angry. He raised his phoenix eyes, frowned with his sword eyebrows and said in a low voice, "Go out and quarrel. Don't disturb people who clean up here."

"Yes, Shizun." Mo Ran steadied himself at once.

Xue Meng also reluctantly shut up. But he was still a little angry. He felt that he had fallen a little bit. After thinking about it, he cut a small piece of paper and wrote some large words on it. He got up and threw them on Mo Ran's table.

"Clap."

Unexpectedly, the paper ball was thrown over, and a delicate white hand picked it up from the open pages. Shi Mei unfolded the crumpled paper in confusion and looked at the words written on it.

——

“You’re staring! Do you have any plans? Do you want to pass on your peculiar thoughts to Shizun?”

Next, he drew a dog and made a black cross on it.

Shi Mei: “……”

After the early morning students dispersed, Xue Zhengyong found Chu Wanning. He said that after several explorations in Linyi, he had determined that no one could live there for five years because of the fire calamity. Therefore, the refugees brought from the upper repair circle now need to be placed in the leading villages and towns at Sisheng Peak.

“The ones I brought back have already begun to be helped to settle down in Changchang Town, Fenghe Town and Baishui Village. And the ones that you and A-Ran brought back.” Xue Zhengyong said, “If there are so many people in Wuchang Town, it’s better to take half of them to Yuliang Village, where there is also a shortage of young people.”

Chu Wanning agreed: “It is indeed more appropriate to settle them in Yuliang Village.”

Xue Zhengyong nodded: “Yuliang is not far away. You go early, there are a lot of people to be settled. These firewood, rice, oil and salt cannot be figured out by Meng’er. I’ll also ask Shi Mei to go with you. He can help.”

Chu Wanning said: “… Okay.”

With the villagers of Yuliang Village, Chu Wanning and Mo Ran were old acquaintances. The village chief got the news of Xue Zhengyong two days ago, so he waited at the village gate early, waiting for the arrival of the immortals at Sisheng Peak. The Ling’er girl was also there. She hadn’t seen them for a long time. She had become more beautiful. When she saw Mo Ran she came excitedly to greet him.

Mo Ran was a little surprised, but still laughed: “The girl did not go to the Upper Cultivation World?”

“No, fortunately not. If I had gone to Linyi, I’m afraid I would have lost my life.” Ling’er clapped her full chest with a lingering fear. “I’d better stay in the Lower Cultivation world first. The days in the village are getting better and better. Once upon a time, we were looking forward to going to the Upper Cultivation world. This is the first time that we saw people from the Upper Cultivation world coming to us. No, No.”

“Yes.” Someone heard her words and echoed, “Everything is a mountain without turning around. Lord Xue is here. Maybe in ten or twenty years, people in the upper circle will run to us with their eyes on it.”

Shi Mei said gently “The Lower Cultivation world has been suffering for a hundred years, but the so-called river has the other side, the other side of the sea, it is not only our side that has been suffering, and now it is time to live a good life.”

As he spoke, he shared the herbal ointment Madam Wang had ordered him to bring to the crowd. Mo Ran also took a can of it and looked closely. He was surprised to find that there was a serpent-shaped emblem on the Guyue’ye. “Cold Scale Sacred Hand-made drugs?”

“Well, a few days ago, Sect Leader Jiang sent someone here.”

Chu Wanning listened and said, “Jiang Xi will send better things than the Huohuang Pavilion will send things. There are many ghosts and evil spirits in Shu, and the most lacking is the panacea. When you send these, the Lord will accept it with laughter."

"That's not true." Mo Ran muttered, "The dān medicine by Hua Binan, the Sacred Hand. They exaggerate a little. It doesn't really bring back the dead, alas…"

"Alas" and the second half of the sentence did not come out - alas, Jiang Xi is really rich ah.

In Xuanyuan Pavilion, Chu Wanning bought a few bottles of Tapir Fragrance Dew, asking for 2.5 million yuan. As a result, with a wave of Jiang Xi's hand, a whole carriage was delivered.

Mo Ran silently put the medicine pot back in his pocket, sighed to himself, and thought that Rufeng Sect was indeed finished, but the next outburst was obviously the Guyue'ye, which could not reach the Sisheng Peak. It would take a hundred years for the Lower Cultivation world to rise.

After a busy half day, in the evening, the old people in Linyi had their food and clothing allowances arranged, their houses were cleaned up, and the three, Master and apprentices, were ready to leave. However, the village chief insisted on leaving them to eat together. It was with great affection, they couldn't be impolite and leave. So they followed the village chief to the ancestral hall of Yuliang Village.

The ancestral temple in the village always holds some important red and white events such as New Year's Eve dinner and Lantern Festival opera. They are also in the ancestral temple or in the courtyard outside the ancestral temple. On this day, because many old people from the upper spiritual circles came to live in Yuliang Village from now on, the villagers prepared more than 30 tables, cooked sheep, slaughtered cattle, steamed rice and boiled noodles to entertain everyone.

The head of the village remembered that Chu Wanning would rather not eat spicy food. He specially arranged a light dish to invite elder Yuheng and some people in Linyi who were not used to spicy food to take their seats.

Those people were rescued by Mo Ran and Chu Wanning. When Feihua Island was in the process of recognizing the cold immortal, but when it came to recognizing that, sitting with him for dinner, everyone at a table was very nervous. Because of etiquette, they couldn't get up and change their positions. Because of the embarrassment of the meal, the other tables were talking, laughing and drinking. The tables had silent chopsticks, and nobody spoke.

Mo Ran was a good workmanship. He helped in the kitchen. When the last dish came up, he came out of the back of the kitchen. His face was covered with fine sweat, his eyes were bright, his nose was straight, and his face was sharp and handsome.

"Soup stuffed buns are coming —!" The old lady held a large tray with small steamers piled on it and her voice roaring loudly. "Every table has twelve, six fresh meat of shepherd's purse and six fresh meat of mushrooms. You should eat them while they are hot!"

Mo Ran laughed and helped the aunt pass the soup dumplings in the small cage next to the table.

"Thank you, Mo Weiyu!"

"Thank you, Mo Weiyu!"

More familiar with Mo Ran, the children cried out: “Thank you, brother Weiyu!”

Ling’er’s eyes were not able to move around him. Although she knew that he did not like her and would not like her in the future, she still couldn’t help wanting to look at him.——

Well, it didn’t matter if she looked at him anyway.

“Thank you, Mo Weiyu.” Send her to this table, her lips were pink, she said thank you softly.

Mo Ran smiled at her, which was not hiding, nor with any ambiguous brilliant smile. Instead, Ling’er, who had just wanted to steal his eyes, was somewhat embarrassed and bowed her head unexpectedly.

The last two tables had yet to be served. One was Chu Wanning and the other was Shi Mei. They had different tastes, so they did not sit together. Mo Ran was sent to Chu Wanning first. Chu Wanning frowned and said, “Don’t work any more, the food will get cold.”

When Shi Mei sent the table to him again, Shi Mei laughed and said, “A-Ran is a skillful hand in the end. Thank you very much.”

“Ha-ha, it’s good to help my aunt a little bit.” Mo Ran said, turning around and turning back, Shi Mei thought he was going to get the bowl, so he vacated some empty seats on the bench and said, “Sit here, I just need one more bowl for this table. You don’t need to take it.”

Mo Ran was stunned for a moment, then scratched his head and laughed, “I will sit at Shizun’s table.”

“… When did you stop eating spicy food? There’s no spicy food there.”

“I quit.” Mo Ran said.

Shi Mei was silent for a long time, his eyes were dark, but he suddenly laughed: “I’ve heard of quitting drinking water, quitting tobacco leaves, but I haven’t heard of anyone quitting pepper.”

“In fact, it’s not quitting. If you don’t eat it for too long, you don’t wish to eat it anymore.” Mo Ran waved to Shi Mei, and ran to the kitchen with a smile saying, “Take the bowl, you sit and eat, and don’t eat the soup anymore. It’s already cold.”

Ch. 184 Shizun, I've Made You Wait a Long Time….

He returned very quickly. In addition to a full bowl of rice, he also carried a box with him and sat down next to Chu Wanning.

Chu Wanning was a little surprised and hesitated, "You… Aren't you going to Shi Mei's table?"

Mo Ran was stunned. "Why would I want to go to that table?"

Hearing his words, Chu Wanning's heart was filled with joy. He lowered his eyes and coughed, "I thought the dishes over there were just for your taste."

Looking at his slightly red ears, Mo Ran suddenly realized that Chu Wanning was… jealous, wasn't he? His heart throbbed as he smiled. He whispered in his ear, "Wherever you are, it suits my taste."

This time, Chu Wanning's ears were completely red.

He had been leaning his knee against Mo Ran's knee, but now he felt even more sensitive and wanted to move it away. However, Mo Ran was unwilling to do so. He used the cover from the table to touch Chu Wanning's legs.

"You-!"

The voice drew the attention of the onlookers. "What's wrong, cultivator?"

Chu Wanning was aware of his slip of the tongue, so he pretended to be calm and said, "It's nothing."

Mo Ran could not hold back his laughter. He felt that Chu Wanning was really interesting.

In reality, he did not want to do anything lecherous. After all, he didn't want to lose five hundred to kill a thousand. He just did not want Chu Wanning to be that far away from him.

Therefore, he grabbed Chu Wanning's leg and childishly pulled him back, telling him to lean on himself.

Chu Wanning moved away again and he pulled back.

In the end, Chu Wanning couldn't take it anymore. He kicked him under the table, but finally stopped pushing away.

Mo Ran laughed.

"You must be sick," Chu Wanning said.

The two of them ate afterwards.

Mo Ran first glanced at Chu Wanning's bowl, sure enough, there were only a few simple vegetables and a piece of tofu, and that soup dumpling had long been snatched up by the other ignorant children at the table.

Mo Ran handed him the small bamboo food box.

"What is it?"

Mo Ran said softly, "Steamed dumpling, six crab yolks and six shrimps, I made them for you… Hush, hush, eat quickly, I knew you were at the table and you could never beat anyone in grabbing food."

"…"

The fact that he was the only one eating in the kitchen was too obvious. Chu Wanning felt embarrassed and did not want to move. However, when he saw Mo Ran black eyes looking at him earnestly and sincerely, and that there was even some flour powder on his cheeks, he was unable to say anything further.

What's more, that phrase, made especially for you, sounded very touching.

Chu Wanning did not say anything. After a while, he quietly opened the box and put up the bamboo lid. He started to eat the crab meat that was very fragrant and hot.

"Is it delicious?" The man looked at him wistfully, hoping for approval.

Chu Wanning bit his chopsticks and said, "Not bad, you try one too."

"I'm not eating anymore. It's all for you." Mo Ran smiled, his black eyes were bright and warm, "It's good that you like it, let's have a look at it after you've eaten some shrimp."

The man's heart was unperturbed. The flour on his cheeks matched his bright black eyes, making him look pitiful and adorable.

Although Chu Wanning was still at a loss as to why he would abandon Shi Mei and turn to him, at this moment, his gaze was too pure and firm. He could not look at anyone else, and it was enough to reassure anyone who was stared at like that.

After dinner, the village chief invited everyone to go outside the ancestral hall to watch the show. The stage was set by the river, and with a clang of copper cymbals, Hu Qin began to play, and the students on the stage, the denizens of the stage, the denizens of the temple, the raw horns, the flowery faces, and the ugly horns all appeared one by one, and the stage was brought to a lively place.

Chu Wanning didn't want to watch this kind of play. Firstly, it was because the mortal world's tricks were too clumsy and he could see through it with a single glance. Secondly, the people who were watching the play were busy and crowded around him.

He was not interested, nor did Shi Mei. The two of them were planning to leave, but Mo Ran did not say anything. He walked beside them and finally turned around to take a last look at the stage.

Shi Mei said gently, "Let's go. It's too late to go back. The Sect Leader should be worried."

"Yes."

Mo Ran did not say much as he followed with his head lowered. However, just as he walked a few steps, he heard Chu Wanning ask, "You want to see?"

"He's playing the part of Wang Kai and Shi Chong fighting for wealth. Interesting."

He did not say that he wanted to see it, nor did he say that he did not want to see it. However, Chu Wanning quietly listened to his words and said, "Then let's go back and watch it first."

Shi Mei was slightly startled: "Shizun, staying for dinner is already delaying the delivery of the mission. If you stay and watch the show…"

Chu Wanning said, "We'll just have to wait and see. Once we're done, we'll leave."

Shi Mei was very gentle as he smiled and said, “Alright, I’ll listen to Shizun.”

The three of them returned to the stage and squeezed into the bustling crowd. Many of the people who had left Linyi had not come to Chuanshu before, had not seen the play before. They were shocked by the flying sleeves and the dazzling transformation of their faces, but they were also shocked to the point of sighing. The short and short children could not see the stage.

“Wang Ci, that coral tree, my precious treasure —”

On the stage, ‘Wang Kai’ and ‘Shi Chong’ desperately clung on to the splendor of wealth and wealth, their faces and necks red, wanting to press their opponent down.

“Who can take the fifty li of road back with the purple silk cloth?”

“Good!” “Hahaha, let’s do it again!”

The eyes of the audience were all brimming with light. The children’s mouths were stuffed with pastries as they slapped their hands together with all their might along with the adults.

This was not a dignified scene, no one would stupidly sit and watch the show, coldly sipping a mouthful of jasmine tea, the servant pinching his back, the servant girl clapping his hands, and the cold air below the stage causing all the actors on the stage to lose interest.

These people were all simple and crude. They were in full swing, and they were all standing and applauding. They shouted loudly as they stood, and were extremely boorish and lively. Chu Wanning didn’t know how to respond even though he was standing in the middle of a wave with his chest pressed against his back. A boring person like him would probably rather sit in the Upper Cultivation World and listen to Wang Ba's crickets than watch Wang Kai's Shi Chong from the crowd.

There was another person who did not like the intensity of his emotions any more than he did.

Shi Mei stood there for a while, as if shaken by the sound of the suona cymbals, but he still stood there good-naturedly, until one of the men beside him, his blood boiling with excitement, jumped up and slapped his face, and accidentally bumped into another man who was holding a cup of tea. The hot tea spilled all over him.

"Aiya! Sorry! I'm sorry!"

"Immortal, I'm truly sorry. Look at my clumsy hands and feet."

Shi Mei hurriedly said: "It's okay, it's fine."

However, his clothes were dirty and wet. He sighed and said helplessly to Chu Wanning, "Shizun, why don't I go back and change my clothes. I'll explain the results of the mission to the Sect Leader."

"Alright, be careful on your way."

Shi Mei smiled and said goodbye to Mo Ran before leaving. Chu Wanning felt that his escaping technique was not bad, should he find someone to run into? This way, he wouldn't have to be overwhelmed by the crowd. Just as he was thinking this, he suddenly heard a burst of cheers and cheers from all around him. He looked up at the stage, and saw that the corner where he had played Wang Kai was filled with anger.

"Boom —"

The river rippled and rippled until it was orange.

“Wah! Alright!”

“Spit again! Again!”

“…” Chu Wanning could not understand what was so interesting about it… If he asked Xue Meng to come over, he could burn it a hundred times even without a fire packet.

While he was lost in interest, he suddenly caught a glimpse of Mo Ran’s smile. That tall man didn’t even need to raise his feet off the ground. He just stood there calmly, and no one could block his line of sight. His handsome face was lit up by the fire, his dimples were deep, and his eyes were soft but deep.

Sensing Chu Wanning’s gaze, he turned around and smiled even more brightly. His black eyes looked moist, but it seemed like there was nothing there. It was just an illusion.

“When I was young, I used to go to the theater to listen to this. Every time I couldn’t wait until the show was over, I would be chased away by the manager.” Mo Ran’s tone was casual and calm, “This is the first time I’ve heard it all… Does Shizun like it?”

“…”

Chu Wanning looked at him in the eyes and said in the end.

“Mm, not bad.”

A smile bloomed on his face as the night seemed to brighten up. A faint chant suddenly came from the stage, one curtain fell, the other rose again.

His beautiful eyebrows were like smoke, his indigo feathers were quivering, his majesty was filled with vigor, he was nothing but a lowly concubine.

“Oh, goodbye tyrant.” Mo Ran turned his head to look and smiled, “Let’s go. Wealth is finished. We are satisfied. Let’s go back.”

“Let’s wait a bit longer.”

“Hmm?”

“It can’t be considered as boring. It’s fine to just watch a few more times.”

Mo Ran slightly raised his eyebrows, seemingly pleasantly surprised. He then smiled, “Alright.”

Bie Ji, Jin Shan Temple, judgment of double nail, sitting in a building to kill.

One after the other, no one left. As the hours went by, the people became even more elated and spirited.

A few grandpas followed old woman Yan and chanted, “A good word is always warm, but a bad word hurts the cold of June —”

The applause even overshadowed the singing of the actors on the stage. Chu Wanning was being pushed and shoved by the village villagers who were drunk, but there was nowhere for his to retreat to. It was precisely when he was in a difficult situation that a pair of warm hands rested on his shoulders.

He turned his head and Mo Ran’s gaze. At some point, this man had appeared behind him. Smiling, he brought him over and told him to lean on himself so that he would not be disturbed by the people around him.

Suddenly, the sounds of laughter, the gongs and drums became distant. Chu Wanning's ears started to burn. He looked at Mo Ran for a while and finally turned his face away, unwilling to look at him again.

It was just that the temperature behind him was so hot and the smell was so scorching. His chest was pressed against his back, and his big, gnarled hands were clasped around his shoulders. As the skin drums became tighter, the flames started to erupt again. Everyone's eyes were attracted to the drums. They began to whimper and drink, slapping their hands together.

Chu Wanning wanted to follow along and clap his hands, pretending to be calm.

However, before he could even raise his hand, he was enveloped by Mo Ran from behind. Perhaps it was because no one noticed, or perhaps it was because they were being pushed closer and closer, or perhaps it was because in such a grand atmosphere, they especially wanted to be closer, hated to be separated so much that he wanted to embrace the person and merge with his flesh and bones.

Anyways, Mo Ran lowered his eyes and hugged him from behind, hugging the person in his embrace with his strong arms. Then, he turned his face to the side and kissed on the ear at the moment the fire lit up the night.

Suddenly, a flame flared up, illuminating the playful face and burning into the heart of the spectator.

"Thank you for accompanying me." He said, "I know you don't like it."

"… you're thinking too much. I like it."

Mo Ran laughed softly and stopped talking. He hugged him tighter and pressed his chin against his neck.

The fire flickered. Chu Wanning suddenly wanted to ask something, so he said, “Mo Ran, why are you…”

“Hahaha, good!”

His voice was weak and was instantly swallowed up by the clamor.

“What?”

“… Nothing.” Chu Wanning’s face was slightly red, and his anger was slowly spreading. He didn’t want to ask him that question a second time, it used up all of his energy, and now he felt embarrassed and annoyed and didn’t want to speak again.

Mo Ran was quiet for a while. In truth, he did not hear clearly the question, but he suddenly said, “The person I love has always been you.”

“…”

His heart began to race.

“It has always been you. I was too stupid. I couldn’t differentiate my own thoughts before.”

Thump, thump, thump, his heart was beating like a drum, the sound of the cymbals on the stage was almost drowned out by the sound coming from his chest.

“I’m sorry.”

“…”

“I made you wait a long time.”

Everything in front of his eyes was filled with fireworks, and his ears were buzzing. He could not hear anything clearly, and his head was spinning; he did not know if his feet were on the ground or in the clouds, but only the person behind him was real. The wind used to be colorless and had no trace, but now it had become a burning breath of Mo Ran’s lingering at the tip of his nose.

Chu Wanning didn’t want to hear too many explanations. What he wanted was just a simple affirmation from the person he loved. With his dizziness, he felt that everything was colorful. He was unable to think or move, so he was immersed in the fierce and surging oil colors until he finally lost his five senses.

Ch. 185 Shizun's Private Meeting

When his consciousness returned, he was just barely able to figure out what he was doing. Chu Wanning had a vague feeling that they had somehow gotten out of the crowd and into the nearest forest that they could find.

They were kissing passionately, each breathing hot and fast.

So thirsty.

They were both people who yearned for each other for a very long time. The way they kissed was radical and impatient, and they were even a little crazy. Their Adam's apples rolled in their throats as they swallowed, their lips and teeth clattered so fast that they even bled a little, but no one could feel it, no one could stop it.

Mo Ran pressed him against a tree. The rough wooden patterns stuck to his trembling back. There seemed to be strings playing in the distance, but that was not important. All sounds, regardless of distance or strength, were broken apart.

The only thing intact was each other's breathing.

Her lips and tongue were moist and rough as they grind against each other without any shame.

Shameless…

Chu Wanning was not willing to admit defeat, but he had never been a person of abstinence, and the other party's desire to suddenly take out the box was so fresh and terrifying that it was almost like a wild beast, wanting to tear his throat and eat his flesh.

He did not know why he became like this. After arriving at this step, he did not know whether he was right or wrong, and what would happen next.

It was as if the man who had been courteous, restrained, forbidding, and lonely, each step a hundred paces behind him, had been torn apart and destroyed at this moment.

He refused to show weakness. Even though his back was already numb and his spirit seemed to have run out of energy, he was still willing to take the initiative to not be a soft and fragile object in the palm of his hand.

Unfortunately, although he was full of ambition, his skills were extremely poor.

He bit the tip of his tongue so hard that it was covered in sweet and fishy blood. He was so close to the point where the more he breathed, the redder his face became and the more difficult it was to breathe.

In the end, even Mo Ran started laughing. He felt that the hardworking Chu Wanning who had no standards really attracted a lot of tender affection from others.

His heart that was once cold and hard had melted into sparkling spring water. A thousand li of lake water rippled with golden waves as they twirled around his fingers.

When they broke apart, there was fluid linking between their lips and tongue, lustful and sloppy. Their lips were wet and red, and their eyes were filled with lust and tenderness. Mo Ran’s voice was hoarse, and the moisture on their skin was dense. He lowered his head to look into Chu Wanning's eyes, his rough fingers brushing against his cheeks.

Chu Wanning also knew that his level was outrageous, but he refused to admit it. He squinted his eyes and asked in a threatening tone, "What are you laughing at?"

Mo Ran didn't answer, but the smile deepened in his eyes, seeing this it made him more annoyed.

"Don't I… Is that right?"

He hugged him again, this time face to face. The same tall and straight man's body was held together, not as close as a man and woman, but it was filled with even more heat, even heavier, sparks.

"How can you do wrong? Absolutely right." Mo Ran intimately rubbed against the top of his hair, and then rubbed his ears and temples. "Shizun is the best…"

"Then why are you still laughing!"

Mo Ran let out a low laugh. His chest was burning hot and hard, but his heart was getting softer and softer.

"My reaction wasn't just to laugh."

Chu Wanning had yet to understand the deep meaning behind his words. As the distance between Mo Ran's body and his upper body became deeper, he suddenly felt Mo Ran's intense and vigorous zeal, followed by the slight movement of his breath. The feeling was so stimulating, so intense, so vivid, that it made his scalp tingle, caused his heart to stop beating, caused him to shiver, and even though he was cold, his throat felt tight and dry.

This made Chu Wanning realize how aggressive, ferocious, and violent this seemingly gentle man was. He was so strong that even a drop of his blood could rip apart a person's internal organs.

His hair stood on end, and he was about to push him away, but before he could raise his hand, the full, Mo Ran's lips, moist and hot, kissed him again, clamped on his lips and licked them. The man was breathing heavily, and his ferocious body was sticking closely to the fabric of Chu Wanning's clothes. Chu Wanning was dazed by this terrifying eagerness. His tongue that was burning hot and thick had already invaded his mouth, greedily kissing him, rubbing against him. In the end, his mind went blank, his legs were soft and numb.

He was trembling slightly from the excitement, from the unfamiliar feeling of powerlessness, from the hard heat, from the burning passion.

Everything he did seemed stiff without any spiritual sense. The only thing he remembered was that when they parted ways in front of the Red Lotus Pavilion, they were panting and hugging each other in the dark. They had kissed each other for a long time, wishing that they could swallow their lovers, their desire and passion. How could it be not enough…Not enough.

Vaguely, he remembered Mo Ran whispering to him, asking for his permission to sleep in the Red Lotus Pavilion tonight. Chu Wanning probably used his last bit of clarity before gasping for air, forcing himself to regain some rationality and not agreeing.

He did not know why he did not agree. It could be because of his inexplicable self-esteem, or because he had been alone for too long and could not adapt, or it could be because he felt that it was all ridiculous, even if it was infinitely tempting, but he was caught off guard and too fast.

After struggling to break free from Mo Ran, Chu Wanning pushed open the door and entered the pavilion. For the first time in his life, he understood what it meant to not even dare to look back.

He knew that his strings had been stretched to the limit. If he were to turn around now, he was afraid he would fall short. His desires would have been broken, and he would no longer be able to push away the man in front of him.

They'll be burned to ashes, not even dregs.

When he went back to bathe and change his clothes, Chu Wanning discovered that his underwear was moist, the sweet and coquettish smell made his face flush red, and he was at a loss of what to do.

He stayed where he was for a long time, and he couldn't help but think, how could this be? How could it be like this?

He had never lost his composure like this in his life. He had never been so passive before.

Damn it, what should he do?

In the past, whenever Chu Wanning encountered a problem that was difficult to solve, his subconscious reaction would be to search for a solution in the books. As a result, ever since he was young, he had read a lot and his brain was filled with countless books.

This was the first time that he couldn't get an answer out of the sweaty, bull-filled file.

Therefore, he had been caught blind, and was completely at a loss as to what to do.

Luckily, Mo Ran seemed to understand him well. After being rejected once, he understood the confusion and anxiety in Chu Wanning's heart and stopped advancing.

But the intimacy between them no longer stopped at holding hands. They would passionately kiss in the alley behind Mengpo Hall, and after nightfall, they would go to some deserted forest. Mo Ran was a person who did not talk much, and sometimes he would even answer Chu Wanning's questions, but his eyes would speak, and there would be sweet words, sweet feelings, and thousands of sweet words in his eyes, but it was just that he was very stupid, not able to express, and not good at expressing himself.

There were many times when Mo Ran was more willing to do things directly than just keep his mouth shut.

Somehow, Chu Wanning felt that he could always sense what he was looking for. They had only just gotten together, but occasionally it felt like Mo Ran had been by his side for many years already.

As the days passed, the time they spent kissing and hugging grew longer and longer. However, the flames of desire were still burning in them. Almost every time they separated, they would only continue to kiss and hug each other.

After all, he had cultivated for many years, so his mental strength was still on par with others. However, Mo Ran was not the same type of mental cultivation method as Chu Wanning, not to mention that the young man's blood energy was strong and he had no way of getting up immediately after every reunion.

It was too obvious. If the clothes couldn't cover it, people would notice it.

He was enduring too much pain.

Today, after dinner, they hung around in a remote area near the back mountain for about an hour. But there was still an elder gathering at night, so after calculating the time, Chu Wanning decided that it was about time to leave and told Mo Ran that he had to go. However, after calculating the time, Mo Ran felt that there was still time, so he was unwilling to let him go.

The way he refused was rather crude. He didn't say it out loud, but directly kissed him again.

Mo Ran sat on one of the rocks in the abandoned garden. He hugged Chu Wanning and asked him to face him, while sitting on his lap. Normally, the person sitting below would be shorter than the person sitting on his lap, but Mo Ran was tall and straight, which meant he was on the same level as Chu Wanning and he did not have any disadvantages.

He kissed for a long time, wet and sodden. From his lips to his neck, between his teeth was the Adam's apple. Hearing the other party's low and heavy breathing, Mo Ran felt even worse. His heart felt like it was on fire.

Chu Wanning could not stand it either. He wanted to escape, he wanted to leave, but his waist was too soft and his legs were too weak to obey his commands. Mo Ran had been enjoying this hug very much. It was so close to him that it made his whole body tingle. Chu Wanning could even imagine what it would be like if he didn't have his clothes on.

Perhaps he was truly on the verge of a crisis. No matter how intense the kiss was, it was unable to release his desire. Instead, it only added oil to the fire and burned even hotter.

When Mo Ran released his wet red lips, his eyes were moist. He panted deeply, his Adam's apple rolling up and down in a sexy voice. He looked like he wanted to say something, but in the end, he just bit down fiercely.

If he really bit into it, Chu Wanning would feel pain, but it was very exciting. It was as if needles were stabbing into his body, causing his to tremble in pain.

He embraced the person in his arms and caressed that pitch-black hair. He felt that his Shizun was so good that it would make people want to take pity on him from the bottom of their hearts, and he also felt that his Shizun was so enticing that it made people want to bully him ruthlessly…

In the tranquil air, the original scent was getting stronger and stronger. Chu Wanning raised his head and closed his trembling eyes, it was very uncomfortable. Such a hug and kiss was very stimulating. He already felt uncomfortable, let alone the young man that was hugging him.

The eyes and tails of Mo Ran were red and slightly moist.

He opened his mouth and spoke in a low and hoarse voice. He seemed to be enduring something, but he also felt wronged. "Shizun…"

"…"

“Please, I can’t take it anymore…”

What do you want to do if you can’t take it? Chu Wanning thought of his shattered and fuzzy dreams, and a shiver ran down his spine. He did not make a sound, and his ears were so red that he could not bear it any longer. What was he supposed to do…

When Mo Ran once again covered his moist and swollen lips, Chu Wanning spoke softly, almost inaudibly, “Then… Not here.”

Not here, but there could be more, somewhere else.

Mo Ran looked up abruptly, almost pleasantly, and then kissed him hard, trying to get him to his feet like that.

Chu Wanning felt humiliated to the extreme and shouted in uncontrollable rage, “Let me down!”

Mo Ran put him down, but did not forget to kiss him. “Where does Shizun want to go?”

Before Chu Wanning could say anything, he heard a strange rustling sound coming from the nearby haystack. He was shocked, his mind cleared, and he pushed Mo Ran out of the way.

The two of them had just separated when they saw a person walking over from the shadows of the bamboo forest. In his hand was a faintly swaying wind lamp and his clothes fluttered in the wind.

That person was silent for a long time. Then, his voice rang out. Even though he was being repressed, his voice was still filled with astonishment and bewilderment.

“You all… Why are you here?”

Ch. 186 Shizun, Xue Meng Is So Gullible

The man was wild and handsome, his black and white eyes wide open, his face illuminated by the wind lamps.

Xue Meng.

Chu Wanning was speechless. He did not know how much Xue Meng saw or heard. After a few moments of silence, Mo Ran broke the silence.

“I have something to discuss with Shizun.”

Xue Meng slightly narrowed his eyes. He had just walked over when he faintly heard a low gasp in the forest. He thought it was a pair of ungrateful disciples secretly meeting in the important areas of the rear mountains.

Normally speaking, Xue Meng didn’t have the qualifications to care about this sort of thing. Besides the Wubei Temple and the Clearsky Hall, no one from the top ten sects was forbidden from talking about love and dual cultivation. Although there is a so-called “abstinence from lust” at Sisheng Peak.

But it only means “don’t go to the brothel” and “don’t go against the rules of nature”.

But who was Xue Meng?

He was Chu Wanning’s disciple, the head disciple.

For so many years, Xue Meng had been recounting the words spoken by Chu Wanning.

What he had done was like a benchmark for himself. Since Chu Wanning didn't like to see others privately giving and pulling at each other, then he wouldn't care about anything else. He would rather despise this pair of beloved and hate them for holding hands.

The back of the mountain was an important place where the boundary of the ghost realm was easy to break. Xue Meng was immediately displeased and came to find the source of trouble with the lanterns.

He never would have thought that under the flickering light of the lantern, these two people would be illuminated.

Xue Meng was stunned and stupefied. So he didn't even greet his as per the rules. Instead, he just blurted out, "Why are you here?"

The boundary of this place had not been broken, so there was no need to repair it.

No vanilla flowers, no scenery.

The place was remote and one couldn't come here by loitering around.

If he had asked Xue Meng in normal times, "There are two people, dark and silent. They don't walk the path of the Yang Pass, nor take a seat in the beautiful back garden. They must go to an extremely secluded place to talk. Young Master, what do you think?"

Xue Meng would definitely sneer and say, "What else can you say in that place? A word of love?"

If he were asked again, "The two of them are both men, and they have known each other for a long time. They are both unmarried, and their appearances and statuses are equal, what does Young Master think of their relationship?”

Xue Meng would definitely roll his eyes and say, “What else could it be? Long Yang’s fetishism[162] and cutsleeve’s behavior makes people feel nauseous.”

He then said to him, “Haha, what Young Lord said is incorrect. In fact, these two are a pair of Shizun and disciple. Young Master, please do not be arrogant —”

Xue Meng would probably clap the table in anger and say, “Preposterous! What is this? Which pair of beasts were they? I will immediately expel them from the sect, and expel them from Sisheng Peak!”

However, as long as he told him that this pair of Shizun and disciple, one was called Mo Ran and the other was called Chu Wanning, then Xue Meng would definitely, definitely, definitely be startled. His face flashed with all sorts of colors like a lantern, and he finally supported his forehead as he sat down, saying, “About that, the things before do not count. I think there must be a second possibility.”

— That was it.

Xue Meng definitely wouldn’t, and he really couldn’t, involve Chu Wanning in any sort of chaotic, irregular, and reckless business, so he immediately felt like he had misheard.

However, he still felt his mind was in a mess as he muttered to himself, “What words do you have to say here?”

Chu Wanning was about to open his mouth to explain, but Mo Ran, under the cover of his wide sleeves, lightly squeezed his hand, signaling him not to speak.

If Shizun tried to lie, even a three year old child would not be fooled. It would be better if he could do it himself.

Thus, Mo Ran said, “Before the evening, I found a osmanthus candy year cake here.”

Chu Wanning: “…”

Xue Meng was stupefied. “What thing?”

“A New Year’s cake made from osmanthus candy that has been cultivated to perfection. It’s only about ten inches tall, with a lotus leaf on its head and a tail with a blue lamp burning at the tip.”

“What monster is this? I’ve never seen it in a atlas.”

Mo Ran laughed, “I have also not seen it before, so I was thinking, maybe a few days ago the Demon Suppressing Pagoda of the Rufeng Sect was destroyed and some extinct demonic beasts were brought here for Shizun to see.”

Hearing him say this, Xue Meng immediately let out a breath of relief. For some reason, he felt extremely relieved in his heart. His face that had been tightly tightened from just a moment ago finally became lively once more. He carried a lantern and walked over. Looking around, he asked, “Have you found the Monster New Year’s Cake?”

“Nope.”

Xue Meng glared at him. “It’s not like I’m asking you. I’m asking Shizun.”

Chu Wanning said, “… We couldn’t find it.”

Mo Ran laughed, “I’m afraid that once he saw Shizun and was afraid that Shizun would eat it as a snack, he immediately went into hiding.”

Chu Wanning was stunned before reprimanding angrily, “Mo Ran! Are you thinking of going to the Compendium Pavilion to copy books again?”

After making such a ruckus, Xue Meng’s initial unease gradually disappeared. He sighed to himself, “Damn it, just now, I had a vague feeling that Shizun had some unclear connections with Mo Ran…” How ridiculous, how could this be?

His Shizun was the coldest bunch of holy water in the world, and no one was allowed to touch him, much less stain him.

At this moment, Mo Ran asked him, “After talking so much, at least talk about you. What are you doing here?”

Xue Meng mumbled, “I’m here to find Veggie Bun for my mother.”

Mo Ran raised his eyebrows. “Is that the new fat cat?”

“Yes.”

“Orange in color, with a ‘King’ pattern on the head, the one that only eats fish and not meat?”

“Yes, did you see it?” Xue Meng sighed, appearing very helpless. “It is so fat, but it can run very fast. I have gone to every place that I can find in the back mountain of the previous mountain, but there is no sign of it…” He suddenly thought of something and opened his eyes wide, exclaiming, “Ah! Do you think the New Year Cake will eat it?”

“…”

He turned into a light cough and said, “About this, I can see that the Sugar Year Cake is so small. Although it’s a monster, it’s useless. If Veggie Bun meets it, the thing that should be worrying is not the tangerine cat, but the Sugar Year Cake.”

Xue Meng touched his chin, thought about the size of Veggie Bun, and agreed, “Not bad… You’re right…”

“The back of the mountain is dangerous, so don’t go any further. I’ll help you find it.”

Xue Meng hurriedly waved his hand. “How could I dare to trouble you, Shizun?”

Chu Wanning said, “Since you have nothing to do, I’ll look for you for a while. After that, I’ll have to go to the Loyalty Hall to attend the Elders Guild. Let’s bring Mo Ran and search quickly.”

Mo Ran: “…”

He was really convinced that Chu Wanning felt like his body was a fire; burning when he wanted him to, extinguished when he wanted to. And now he was actually asked to stand up and look for a cat? He still hadn’t come down.

Xue Meng saw that he did not move and his expression was strange, so he asked, “What happened to you?”

Mo Ran said, “Nothing much. I’ve been feeling a bit uncomfortable since just now. You guys go ahead and look for it. I’ll be coming over very soon.”

Chu Wanning glanced at him, then suddenly realized that Mo Ran was wearing a different outfit from his. He was usually dressed in black and gold, which made him look very aggressive and suitable for combat, but his weakness was obvious. If he didn’t wear a cloak, his lower body would react very strongly.

“…” Chu Wanning did not say anything else. In the darkness, the face of a man with a cold face suddenly turned red, like the sunset shining on a clear surface of ice.

Ever since that day, Chu Wanning was unwilling to have a private meeting with Mo Ran no matter what.

It just so happened that during that period of time, they had gotten busy. The various sects felt that if Xu Shuanglin lived a single day more, they would not be able to sleep soundly. They turned to the “Tianyin Pavilion” — an organization independent of the ten great sects. It was an organization specialized in investigating difficult situations, but Xu Shuanglin was too ruthless and did not leave behind any clues.

At the end of the month, Li Wuxin could no longer hold it in and sent a Hero thread inviting the Sect Leaders of various sects and clans to the Spiritual Mountain to discuss the matter.

Chu Wanning and Xue Zhengyong naturally went as well.

The last time the heroes had gathered at the Spiritual Mountain was when Xue Meng, Nangong Si, and the others were in the sword competition. In the blink of an eye, the structure of the cultivation world underwent a drastic change, and the seats belonging to the Rufeng Sect were empty, while the Fire Phoenix Pavilion was also in a state of collapse. The newly appointed sect leader was a stuttering youth who shrank into the crown and refused to talk. The masters of the Wubei Temple exercised their words and deeds, and never said that they would preside over the scandal…

When Xue Zhengyong recalled the scene of the heroes arriving together with the harmonious and harmonious atmosphere, he actually felt that it had been a lifetime. He couldn't help but lament deeply.

Sitting up, Jiang Xi had been promoted to the position of the first Sect Leader and would be in charge of the investigation of Nangong Xu. This person was completely different from the first Sect Leader Nangong Liu. Nangong Liu was all smiles. Regardless of whether or not he had a high or low status, he was still very polite and did not love to offend people.

What about Jiang Xi?

The Sect Leaders had just announced the results of the singing and asked him to host it when he calmly sat down on the seat of honor that Nangong Liu had previously occupied.

Before Nangong Liu sat in this position, he had rejected him with all his might, but after three times, he had made enough of the humble and respectful act. After sitting in this position, he had even sincerely said words of praise for an hour.

Jiang Xi only had two words.

"Of course."

He actually said that this seat should be his.

Sect Leader Jiang was rich, truly rich, truly arrogant, truly bad temper, and truly thick skin.

Xue Zhengyong suddenly remembered something as he mumbled to Chu Wanning in a low voice, “He didn’t come to the Spiritual Mountain Competition. More than once.”

Chu Wanning was not familiar with these disputes, he frowned and asked, “What do you mean?”

“I mean, ever since Nangong Liu became the First Sect Leader and the Rufeng Sect was recognized as the number one sect, Jiang Xi never came to the Sect Leader Meeting…”

Chu Wanning looked at Jiang Xi for a while and said, “He is a proud and arrogant man. I can see that he does not wish to be beneath trash.”

Xue Zhengyong felt wronged, “I don’t want to be under trash either.”

Chu Wanning smiled faintly, “The Sect Leader is patient, he can’t be considered to be condescending.”

As they were talking, one of Guyue’ye’s attendants suddenly came, stopping beside their table, giving a salute, before taking out a brocade case.

Xue Zhengyong turned around and asked, “What’s wrong?”

The attendant shook his head, pointed to his ears, pointed to his mouth, and turned out to be a deaf and dumb servant who could neither speak nor hear.

Chu Wanning looked at him back and forth, and realized that this person was different from the other ordinary disciples of Guyue'ye, with a silver snake-shaped collar around his neck.

"Cold Scale Sacred Hand…?"

The mute servant noticed that Chu Wanning was looking at his collar, nodding, bowing again, raising the box above his head and handing it to him.

The box also had an exquisite snake-shaped emblem on it. Xue Zhengyong looked at it and said, "He should be under the Cold Scale Sacred Hand."

As he said that, he looked towards Guyue'ye's direction, and indeed saw the greatest Grandmaster of the medical sect, the Cold Scale Sacred Hand Hua Binan, wearing a straw hat and eyes, silently gazing in their direction.

Ch. 187 Shizun, You Are My Lantern. Shizun, You Are My Light

Seeing Chu Wanning turn his head, there seemed to be a trace of a smile in Hua Binan's eyes. He stretched out a white hand from under his broad green silk robe and gently waved towards the box in front of Chu Wanning.

Chu Wanning nodded and said to the mute, "Thank you."

When the mute servant saw that he had put away the box, he bowed again and returned to his master.

Xue Zhengyong asked in surprise, "Yuheng, you know the Cold Scale Sacred Hand?"

"I don't know him." Chu Wanning looked at the box in front of him, "Since you know me, you don't need to spend 2.5 million gold in Xuanyuan to buy his Tapir Fragrance dew."

"Then why did he give you this?"

"I don't know either." Chu Wanning said, "Open it and take a look."

The embroidered box was opened. Inside, it was actually neatly packed with five bottles of warm colored Tapir Fragrance dew as well as a letter.

Chu Wanning opened the letter and saw that the contents were quite simple. He said that he knew Chu-zongshi had spent a high price on dew in Xuanyuan Pavilion and felt that the Tapir Fragrance dew's price was not worth it. He had been wanting to offer another five bottles.

However, he had never been able to meet the Grandmaster by chance. Now that he had obtained such a good opportunity in the Spiritual Mountain, he could only hope for the immortal to accept it.

Xue Zhengyong immediately said, “I think he wants to befriend you.”

“…”

If he did not accept this gift, it would be disrespectful to the other party. Chu Wanning thanked Hua Binan from a distance and gave the embroidered box to Xue Zhengyong.

Xue Zhengyong said happily, “Give it to me?”

“… To Elder Tanlang.” Chu Wanning said, “I always felt that this Hua Binan was a little strange. Every year, Xuanyuan Pavilion would auction off so many expensive medicines for him, but every time, they would always be of high value. Could it be that he’s paying us back one by one?”

Xue Zhengyong muttered, “I don’t think it’s strange. After all, there are high prices. This is the first time I’ve heard of someone as high up as you being so ridiculous.”

Chu Wanning was slightly angered as he said, “But if there’s anything you need, it’s nothing out of the ordinary. In short, you should give all five bottles to Tanlang. I believe there’s no poison here, but it’s not a waste for Tanlang to learn how to concoct the Tapir Fragrance dew.”

“You don’t need it?”

“I…”

It was strange to think that the number of absurd and realistic dreams had decreased recently. Other than the few days he had spent outside the gates of the Rufeng sect and the occasional fragmented dream scene, the rest of the night was a good dream.

Drinking more of the Tapir Fragrance dew would be a waste of heaven's treasure. Chu Wanning felt that there was no need for him to keep such a good medicine.

He stayed at the Spiritual Mountain for two or three days. When he returned to Sisheng Peak, Mo Ran was no longer there.

Xue Meng said, "He went to exterminate the monsters."

A thin frown line appeared on Chu Wanning's forehead, "Another monster? It's the nineteenth this month."

"They all came from the Golden Drum Tower of the Rufeng Sect." Xue Meng sighed, "I captured a lot of things and locked them up in our Heaven-Piercing Tower, but Heaven-Piercing Tower is not as small as the Golden Drum Tower, and the spirit stone talismans inlaid there are not as powerful as the Rufeng Sect. If this goes on, I'm afraid the tower won't be able to withstand it first."

Xue Zhengyong said, "Next time, Li Wuxin will come again. Let him bring some to Bitan Manor and stay in his Holy Spirit Tower."

Xue Meng laughed. "That is a good idea."

Xue Zhengyong replied, "Guyue'ye can also get a bit of it. I heard that their Star Plucking Tower is even larger than the Golden Drum Tower of the Rufeng Sect…"

This time, Xue Meng was unwilling. Raising his pitch-black brows, he angrily said, "No!"

“What’s wrong?”

“I don’t like that Jiang Gou. He hates it. Even if Heaven-Piercing Tower explodes, I’m not willing to give him the demons my sect has captured!”

Chu Wanning shook his head. He didn’t want to hear any more of the father and son duo’s chatter, so he left first.

He returned to the pavilion and slept. As expected, it was a good night’s sleep, and there was no longer any old dreams that disturbed him. When he woke up, the sun had already set, and the sky was half filled with the color of blood.

At this time, Mengpo Hall didn’t have any food left, but he was a bit hungry. He tidied up his clothes and pushed open the door, preparing to take a walk around Wuchang Town and have some snacks.

As a result, he coincidentally saw Mo Ran walking on the bluestone staircase leading to the Red Lotus Pavilion.

Upon seeing him, Mo Ran smiled. “Shizun, I heard uncle say that you were sleeping and wanted to wake you up.”

“What’s the matter?”

“I’m fine. I just wanted to see you, to walk with you.”

Coincidentally, Chu Wanning felt a bit of joy from their coincidences. In his heart, he felt that even the tiniest bit of happiness was worth it.

“Where to?”

They asked at the same time.

Chu Wanning was taken aback, as was Mo Ran.

Then he said, “I’ll listen to you.”

They all said the same thing.

Chu Wanning’s ten fingers were tightly clenched in his sleeves. Sweat was seeping through the gaps of his fingers. His eyes were dark and hot, yet he watched Mo Ran calmly and steadily.

Mo Ran could not help but grin.

“Everywhere.”

Chu Wanning was actually very happy, but he was still used to being indifferent, even if his happiness was not light. It was very rich, like the crimson red of a haitang.

He said, “Let’s go to the town and have a bite to eat.”

He did not even ask how Mo Ran was doing, nor ask if exorcising demons went smoothly. They were now connected by fate and had a very tacit understanding, and when he stood outside the bamboo door and watched Mo Ran’s black clothes flutter about, the dark golden curling grass edge rippling in the night light, he understood that everything was fine, there was no need to say anything more.

Together they went to the town.

For the past few years, Wuchang Town had been getting better and better. It had expanded from the original three-way street into the current five-way street, which was almost a full circle bigger than the previous three-way street.

“When I first arrived at Sisheng Peak, the household doors used to be already closed before nightfall. Incense furnace ashes were scattered all over the courtyard. The Eight Trigrams Mirror was hung on the door, and the Soul Suppressing Bell was tied under the eaves.” Chu Wanning looked at the people walking past his and said, “Other than the name of the town which hasn’t changed, I almost can’t recognize anything anymore.”

Mo Ran laughed, “With Sisheng Peak, it will only be better in the future.”

The two of them walked along the green stone main street that had been rebuilt in the town. Along the way, there were people who blew candy, people who played hide and seek, people who sold food and barbecued food from stalls, people who ate from pot to pot. The streets were filled with a myriad of lights, lighting up the bustling night market.

Seeing the pot in the stall, Mo Ran remembered that he, Xue Meng, and Xia Sini had eaten here before. He smiled and pulled at Chu Wanning, “Shizun, eat this. This restaurant has your favorite drink soy milk.”

They sat in the squeaky little bamboo chair. The sky was very cold, but the head chef who cooked with the side dishes was extremely hot. He was bare-chested and wiping his sweat, walked over and asked, “Two immortals, what do I need?”

“The mandarin duck pot,” Chu Wanning replied.

Mo Ran said, “Mushroom Clear Soup Pot.”

“… Aren’t you going to eat spicy food?”

Mo Ran lowered his eyes and smiled, his voice gentle and slow. “I want to quit.”

Chu Wanning was stunned for a moment. He finally understood why Mo Ran suddenly stopped eating spicy food. It seemed like there was a fish swimming in the lake, bubbling in the pond.

“You don’t have to…”

Mo Ran said, “No, I just like it.”

“…”

“I like it, I want it.” He looked at Chu Wanning and smiled. The thick eyelashes fluttered and landed on his slightly red ears.

He did not finish the second part of his sentence.

If I want to be like you, when you eat hot pot, two pairs of chopsticks can be inserted into a lively pot, no longer red and white, clearly separated.

Mo Ran ordered some more dishes, but unfortunately, the stall didn’t have exquisite desserts. He ordered three cans of soy milk from the fat porcelain pot and sat in the back, waiting for the dishes to arrive.

There were people eating nearby, men, women, old and young, black hair, white frost, steam rising from the soup pot, flames rising from the wok, shouts and punches, laughter and selfish desires, all gathered together in this boiling and steaming hot smoke, a lake and a sea of gentleness from the fragrance of vegetables and wine.

The human world was so ordinary, and the mortal world was so lively.

Before Mo Ran turned fifteen, he was starving and couldn’t eat any of these good wines or dishes.

Even after becoming an Immortal Emperor, there was still no peace above the thousands of people.

It's all there now.

Suddenly, a flame rose in the air. It turned out to be a man holding a spoon in his hand. The fire came rolling up from the big pot in clusters, causing the bare-chested man's entire body to be covered in a layer of fine copper oil. Under the light of oil, salt, and vinegar, his strong arms and muscles shook, and a plate of fried meat was sent out of the pot in an instant.

It was the perfect time to heat it up and bring it to the table.

"Oil Burst Double Crisp!" The waiter shouted.

Taxian Jun in the previous life was unpleasant with all kinds of delicacies, but for some reason, he was actually made to laugh by this "oil burst double crisp". His slender fingers overlapped and rested on the smooth chin, deep dimples appearing. His eyelashes moved slightly, and the brilliance from all over the world gathered on the two curtains of ink at this moment, dyeing the darkness very brightly.

Chu Wanning asked, "What are you laughing about?"

"I don't know. I'm just very happy."

Chu Wanning stopped talking, but the charming smile of the handsome man in front of his had brightened his heart.

After eating, he raised his head to look at the sky. He felt that it was about to rain, but the people below did not seem to care and continued to methodically enjoy the brilliant night.

As they passed a lantern shop, Mo Ran suddenly stopped and stood watching.

Chu Wanning followed his gaze. It turned out that the old craftsman was carefully putting on a pagoda lantern. Another similar lantern had been prepared, and it was a river lamp.

“Uncle, please give me this pagoda lamp.”

He did not ask for the price, nor did he ask for Mo Ran’s liking.

Chu Wanning walked over and handed the golden leaf to the elderly man, who was bent over making the lamp. Then, he casually passed the lamp to his disciple who was standing behind him.

“Take it.”

Mo Ran was pleasantly surprised and at a loss. “For me?”

Chu Wanning didn’t say anything. He picked up the half-empty pot of wine from the meal and looked around. When his sight fell on the river bank, he started walking towards it.

Lights flashed on and off, and were once again resplendent. The lights were resplendent, winning over the majesty of the Buddha.

“Since young, I’ve always wanted to put it on, but I’ve never had the money to do so every year.”

“Yeah.” Chu Wanning looked at him blandly, “You are the poorest.”

Mo Ran smiled.

He was lazy, so he leisurely leaned against the bridge with his arms crossed. The white-robed Taoist leaned against the dark black pillar of the bridge, holding a jug of wine with bright red tassels in it, he raised his head and took a sip, then turned his face a little, the red light of the lanterns on the corner of his nose shone on his exquisite porcelain face. His expression was indifferent, but it was hard to conceal the temperature of his gaze.

Idiot, what's so fun about that?

However, his eyes were still unblinking as he watched Mo Ran walk to the river bank. He chatted with the pagoda lamp for a long time, and at last, he gently placed it on the surface of the river. A streak of golden red reflected in the sparkling water, Mo Ran paddled the surface of the water twice, sending the pagoda away.

That day, Mo Ran stood next to the dark river for a long time.

It was not a holiday. No one else on the river had a light on.

Only the small pagoda lantern emitted a weak but stubborn glow. It wandered around in the endless cold night, turned into a small spark, and finally was swallowed up by the darkness, disappearing without a trace.

Mo Ran stood there silently, no one knew what he was thinking.

He saw the end.

On the surface of the river, there was no more light.

It's raining, it's raining.

The rain beat down on duckweed and knocked on the powder wall.

The peddlers fought to cover the pots, pans, and utensils they used to make their living with brown tarpaulins. They pushed their carts in a hurry to escape the heavy rain.

Chu Wanning froze for a moment. Although it was not far from being stung, it was still early in the winter and the rain was getting heavier.

He stood under the bridge, wet from the rain and the wind, his clothes only a little wet, but Mo Ran was hurrying up from the bottom of the beach, his clothes wet, his face wet, his eyes wet and dark.

He looked at him with a bit of gentleness but also a bit of embarrassment as he smiled.

“Start the spell and dry yourself.”

“Yes.”

The heavy rain did not hinder the cultivators from traveling, especially for masters like Mo Ran and Chu Wanning. They would be able to return to Sisheng Peak with a small enchantment.

However, none of them opened the barrier. Instead, they stood side by side under the pillar, waiting for the rain to stop.

After waiting for a long time, the rain did not show any signs of weakening. The world was filled with mist and the surging tides. The bustling night market instantly dissipated like a watercolor washed away by the cold rain and a painting soaked in ink.

Mo Ran said, “This rain doesn’t seem to be stopping.”

Chu Wanning said flatly, “It’s raining so hard, I must be sick.”

Mo Ran laughed out loud. After laughing for a while, he turned his head to Chu Wanning and said, “What do we do now? We can’t go back.”

“…”

Chu Wanning knew he should answer him, “Are you not a cultivator? Don’t you know how to open a barrier? Why can’t I go back?”

But he was silent for a while, and for some reason did not say anything, but he also did not respond. He only raised his head like this and looked at the vast night rain.

The palm of his hand was slightly hot, and his fingers were curled up in a ball of sweat.

Just as he was thinking about how to reply, his hand was gripped by Mo Ran. His slight tremble, heat, and sweat all fell onto Mo Ran’s hand without any cover.

Mo Ran looked at him for a while, his Adam’s apple bobbing in his throat. “Shizun, I, I want to follow you…”

The words were on the tip of his tongue, but he couldn’t say it. However, his heart was palpitating with numbness and he couldn’t swallow it down.

At the end, his dark eyes were wet and hot. He said a few words with an intense and reserved tone, which was obscure yet seductive. He said in a low voice, “I mean… It’s raining too hard, don’t go back to the sect tonight. It’s such a long way, you’ll catch a cold.”

Chu Wanning did not manage to react. He was stunned for a moment before he said, “I’m not cold.”

“Are you hot?”

“I’m not hot either…”

Mo Ran’s breathing was hot and his chest was heaving. Without waiting for a reply, he held his hand against his chest and whispered, “I’m hot.”

Rain beats duckweed.

But Chu Wanning could see the fire in his eyes. He could see the melting stream and the midsummer.

The young man was almost pitifully fretful and cute.

His voice was somewhat hoarse. “Let’s go to the nearest inn, okay? Now.”

Ch. 188 Shizun, I Really Love You

>>sexual content

Chu Wanning's heart suddenly tightened.

Why was there such a heavy rain? What was so cold and hot? They could have gone back, but he used this kind of lame excuse to bring him to the inn.

No matter how silly he was, Chu Wanning understood the meaning behind his words.

Mo Ran was reading his pulse and reading his mind.

If he shook his head, Mo Ran would not force him. However, if he agreed to it, then Mo Ran would agree to it…

What with him?

Chu Wanning did not know, and even if he did, he did not want to think about it.

He only felt that his face was burning, the heat of the pouring rain.

He was so nervous that he didn't know what to say, so he held the flask by its narrow neck and tried to take another sip, but it was nearly empty.

The last trace of the slightly cold and thick pear blossom went down his throat. He lowered his head, and the bright red tassel made his fingers even more slender and white.

He did not say anything and the atmosphere became awkward.

Mo Ran was a person who did not like to drink alcohol. At this time, watching him raise his head and drink, he suddenly asked him: “Anything left?”

“There’s nothing left.”

“… You’re so impatient, you drink so fast.” As he spoke, he lowered his head and gently kissed his lips. “Then, I can only have a taste.”

The taste of white pear flowers is mellow, with a faint fragrance of osmanthus flowers.

However, when he was thirty years old, Chu Wanning passed away. After a whole night of drinking on the roof, he could not taste anything. It was bitter.

After that, and after his rebirth, Mo Ran didn’t want to touch wine anymore.

Too bitter.

He kissed Chu Wanning’s cool lips. He pecked it lightly at first, but then he opened it and kissed it again carefully.

The rumbling of rain filled the air.

There was no one in the courtyard, the rain had become a natural curtain, and at some point they had embraced each other, kissing and tangling, their lips and tongues rubbing wet, the sound of the intense kiss drowned out by the pounding of the rain on the beams, Chu Wanning could not hear any more, the sound of the rain was deafening, like the roar of drums.

Unlike the raindrops that were splashed by the ice, Mo Ran's breathing was very hot. His kiss moved from his lips all the way to his nose, eyes, forehead, and then to his temples. The rough and moist tongue reached out to lick his ear. Chu Wanning couldn't stand the stimulation on his ears, his body was tight, hands clenched into fists, but he was unwilling to make any sound.

He rubbed the back of his neck, caught his ears and rubbed against the tiny mole mark behind his ear…

Chu Wanning trembled in his arms.

Mo Ran hugged him even tighter, wanting to crush his entire body. He wanted to crush him into his own flesh and blood.

His voice was low and hoarse, as he whispered in Chu Wanning's ear, "Shizun…"

The young man's suppressed eagerness was finally overflowing. The boiling water was boiling and bubbling, the water was about to burn out, the wood was growing hotter and hotter, and it was tormenting him.

It tormented them.

"Come with me…"

Perhaps he was possessed by a ghost, but he held his hand tightly by Mo Ran, and ran eagerly in the rain. It was so absurd.

None of them opened a barrier, nor did they buy any umbrellas. They seemed to have lost their magic power, like the most ordinary of mortals, allowing the wind and rain to blow on them. They hurriedly followed the swaying red lanterns in the rain and ran into an inn.

The waiter was yawning, thinking that with the rain coming down so late, there would no longer be any travelers staying the night. Thus, he was shocked to see the two of them barging in wet.

Mo Ran tightly held onto Chu Wanning's wrist. His palms were so hot, it seemed as if the water was going to be evaporated.

He wiped the water droplets that dripped down his handsome face and said somewhat impatiently, "We need a room."

"Ah, good, good. Here are the keys to the two best rooms, a total of…"

"What?" Hearing that, Mo Ran had become even more anxious, his throat moved. His slender fingers curled up as he knocked on the table, "No, we only want one."

The waiter was stunned. He looked at Mo Ran and then looked at Chu Wanning.

Chu Wanning abruptly turned his face away, his face was burning fiercely. Without batting an eyelid, he removed his hand from Mo Ran's palm and said, "Two."

The second brother hesitated for a moment and said with understanding, "If you don't have enough money, one is fine too."

"Two." Chu Wanning was resolute and decisive, his gaze sharp as a bayonet. He had no idea where he had gotten in the way of the white-robed Immortal. He quickly handed over the two keys and accepted the silver taels for the price.

Chu Wanning tried his best to look as calm as he usually did, but unfortunately, his body was still dripping wet, and there were even beads of rain dripping down his pitch-black eyebrows. When they fell into his eyes, he blinked and his eyelashes became moist.

“I’ll go to sleep first. Buy some ginger tea towels and come back later.”

Chu Wanning was serious and solemn. He even took the key from Mo Ran’s hand and went upstairs alone.

He looked innocent.

Mo Ran didn’t say anything else, he just felt funny. He knew that Chu Wanning was very thin-skinned, no matter what, he had to show his to others.

Chu Wanning entered a single room with a narrow bed.

He glanced at the bed and felt his throat dry up. His face was so hot that he did not dare to look at it again. He stood in the middle of the bedroom without even lighting a candle. He did not know what to do.

His mind was still in a daze. He felt that it was all so ridiculous, so sudden, and so caught off guard.

How could this be…

Why did I stand here, how did I come here in the rain to mess around, how did I…

Before he could finish his thought, the door behind him opened and Mo Ran walked in.

Chu Wanning’s body tensed up, his fingers forming a fist under his wide sleeves. He tried his best to do it, but he could not do it.

It was the first time in his life that he had been so dazed and helpless as to place the lead of the kite in the hands of someone else.

It was unknown whether it was rain or sweat, but his palms were very moist.

With a ‘ka da’ sound, the bolt on the door fell down. It was clearly audible, and made one’s hair stand on end. It was like a blade that was placed on the neck of an executioner, releasing a fishy smell. Its sharp teeth were like those of a tiger, leopard or wolf, ready to bite its prey. The smell of blood.

Chu Wanning suddenly felt the urge to flee before the battle.

Fortunately, his face did not show it.

Mo Ran opened his mouth to speak. His voice was still considered gentle and he was not overly aggressive. He restrained himself and asked somewhat hoarsely, “Why don’t you light a candle?”

“… I forgot.”

Mo Ran placed the wooden tray on the table and passed a small bowl of hot bamboo hat to Chu Wanning, “Jiang tea, you want it, drink it while it’s hot.”

He went to the window and lit the candlestick by the west window.

It was windy and slanting outside, and the room was dark, but the grapevine windows were open, and the lights of the other houses were dimly lit and dimly lit.

Mo Ran stood in front of the open window, beside the slender bronze candlestick of the crane bird. The white curtain of rain framed his tall figure, and the silhouette of the shadow stood tall and straight, elegant and distinct, its slender eyelashes as distinct as two black butterflies as it fiddled with the flint of a flint knife.

If he were to light a fire, it would originally not be that troublesome, but he was actually willing to be the most ordinary person, to use the most ordinary method, to firmly and quietly light that wisp of light, to make his heart light up, to make the wax torches soft for tears.

The firestone was lit up, and just as he was about to move to the lampshade, Chu Wanning suddenly said.

“Don’t light the lamp.”

Mo Ran’s hand hung in the air, but he had yet to reach it. He turned his head to look at him and asked, “What is it?”

Chu Wanning did not know what to say, so he repeated stiffly, “Do not light the lamp.”

For a moment, Mo Ran felt somewhat sleepy. Then, as he looked at the person standing stiffly in the darkness, he slowly came to a realization.

Even if it was Yuheng in the middle of the night, there would still be times when he would be afraid. There would be times when he would feel fear. There would also be domains that he would not know about.

In his previous life, those people that he had slept with before, be it men or women, were all willing to show more of their faces to the Emperor Taxian-Jun. No one had ever brought up the request to extinguish the lights; they would rather have the red candle shine brightly through the night, to use all sorts of skills to please, to be infinitely flirtatious, and to have half an inch of love for the Emperor.

Mo Ran did not miss it.

Whether it was Rong Jiu at the beginning, or Song Qiutong later, he had doted on both of them because he stubbornly felt that they were like Shi Mei, thus keeping them by his side was almost like a playful infatuation.

But in bed he never liked to see their faces.

He just let them turn their backs on him, didn't kiss them, and didn't like to touch. His mind was even clear in the dull and repetitive motions.

He would even suddenly feel that it was very boring.

Really boring.

He couldn’t remember the charming, greedy, flushed, high-spirited faces under the candlelight.

Now that he thought about it, those pleasures had nothing to do with ‘happiness’ or ‘love’. Instead, it was as if he had sunk into a quagmire and fallen into it, making himself even dirtier, deeper, and more self-destructive, wishing that his bones could be dyed black.

At its darkest point, it would no longer desire light or hope for salvation. It would no longer dare to try and hold the final ball of fire in the world.

Great.

But why hadn’t he given up yet?

No matter how he told himself not to linger, not to linger, to tell himself that life was hopeless, that the world was as dark as it could be, and that he would still stretch out his trembling claws and strangle Chu Wanning's neck in the midst of torment and struggle, and press his down onto the cold golden stone bricks, on the blue stone platform in the desolate courtyard, between the messy bedding on the pillow, in the snow, in the hot springs, even in the high seats of the imperial court, in the temple's ancestral hall, in the most solemn and respectful places.

Taint him.

Looking at his face, kissing his neck, his cheeks, his lips, calling his name.

Tear him.

Actually, at that time, Chu Wanning wanted the darkness to go out as well.

He didn't want any light at all.

However, at that time, Chu Wanning did not want to say anything. He did not want to bring up any requests.

Thinking about it, he had been under house arrest for eight whole years. Chu Wanning had only begged him for two things at the beginning and the end.

The first was to beg him to let Xue Meng go when he stepped into the Wushan Palace.

The second was to ask him to forgive himself before he passed away.

If not for his disappointment and coldness, how could he have ended up like this?

Mo Ran put down the fire knife and the fire stone. He did not speak for a long time.

It was so long that Chu Wanning finally relaxed his tensed body and asked softly, “What’s wrong?”

Mo Ran said. “Nothing.”

His voice was gentle, moist, and salty.

He walked over and hugged the man who was still standing in the darkness. Both of them were still wet from the rain, so Mo Ran hugged him and said, “Wanning.”

“…”

For a moment he was tempted to tell him the past, but his throat was choked and he could not speak.

Really, really couldn’t speak.

It was not easy to get this kind of warmth. It was too difficult for him and it was also too difficult for Chu Wanning. Even though he was extremely guilty, he couldn’t say it out loud. He didn’t want to say it out loud.

He didn’t want to wake up.

I just want to have a good dream.

Until dawn.

There was no light, no fire, and in the darkness, Mo Ran embraced him and kissed him.

It was very quiet in the room. The rain could not disturb the silence. They could hear each other's breathing, their heartbeats, the touch of their lips, and the faint sound of wetness as they changed their angles.

Chu Wanning tried his best to keep his breathing the same as usual, but it was to no avail. Under the caress of Mo Ran's kiss, the rise and fall of his chest gradually became more rapid. He was a tall, well-proportioned man, but Mo Ran could easily trap him, cover him, and he was as tall as a mountain. The man held him in his hot arms and kissed him lightly at first, then asked for more.

He forced open Chu Wanning's lips, and his hot, wet, coarse tongue stuck out into the fire, rubbing against it like a thirsty person drinking sweet dew. He was like a person who was burning with fire and trying to put out the fire, but to him, Chu Wanning's breath was not cool water, it was soft oil, pouring into the fire, burning endlessly, like a beacon of smoke.

They didn't know who took off the other party's clothes first, their breathing in the dark was mixed with throat gathering, low swallowing voice, perhaps because of hasty waist closure clothes, action intense pain, or perhaps long drought and sweet throb, occasionally there are irresistible small whispers in the room, but more is the male's desire to come to the excitement of heavy breathing.

The fabric of the obscene clothes were torn apart, Chu Wanning had not yet adapted to the slight coolness, so he felt Mo Ran going down, kissing his neck, then his clavicle, and then his lips sucked his chest, humid and hot…

Chu Wanning gave a low gasp, back arching, shame and excitement.

He blushed, but fortunately the surroundings were dark. He wanted to lose sight of the heat on his face, but he whispered, “Window…”

“What?”

Mo Ran looked up vaguely, with wet eyes hanging over Chu Wanning.

He had wanted to hear what Chu Wanning tried to say, but at one glance, his scalp was numb and blood gushed in his brain. He could not contain his fierce passion. He kissed him, rubbed him, and kissed him for a long time. Then he gasped for breath, released Chu Wanning’s lips slightly. He gave up again and pecked his lips again and muttered, “What?”

“… Window…” Chu’s heart beat so fast that he didn’t know how to breathe in the long kiss, so his head was dizzy. “You haven’t closed the window yet.”

Mo Ran walked over the window and closed it.

The last bit of shimmering light was also separated from the outside. In the bedroom, there was darkness. The desire for fire is arbitrary cage, Mo Ran only felt that his whole body was hot.

They bumped and rolled into the bed, which was in disrepair and made a heavy creak. Mo Ran did not give Chu Wanning the opportunity to respond, his body pressing Chu Wanning’s, his hands made quick work of removing the rest of his white robes.

He felt Chu Wanning trembling under him, just as he had done when they had sex for the first time in their previous lives. Even if he wasn’t restrained like back then, Chu Wanning was still trembling, shuddering slightly, and he couldn’t control it.

Mo Ran felt pity and heartache. He held Chu Wanning's face, kissed him, his eyes, his lips, his chin.

He muttered hoarsely in his ear, "Don't be afraid…"

"I'm not… I'm not afraid…"

Mo Ran took hold of his weak trembling hands, clasped with his ten fingers, and his burning and vigorous breath sprayed on Chu Wanning's earlobes. He soothed him: "Give it to me… Good… It's all right…"

Chu Wanning wanted to say a word, a few words or two or three words, but he could not say anything. His brain was almost numb.

He could only feel Mo Ran's tall and thick body pressing on him, the hands rubbing his waist and back, he could not stand the stimulation, slightly bowed up, but he unintentionally clung to Mo Ran's chest. Mo Ran's clothes had been removed long ago, showing a strong naked upper body, amazing heat and strength, causing his whole body to melt and soften.

The slightly wet and sweaty bodies are entangled together, every inch of skin rubbing each other, burning heat. The loud gasps in the room were more and more heavy with desire and thirst.

No matter how close you are or how hard you suck, you're still thirsty, and you can't stop your thirst if you don't have enough to feed.

Somehow, in Chu Wanning's brain, there were some dim and shattered scenes, stirring bodies, feeble legs, bright red curtains and mattresses.

It was his dream that suddenly became clear in his mind.

In the dream, Mo Ran held him fiercely, pulled him in, held his waist, hit his crotch fiercely, inserting himself extremely deep and savagely. He don't know whether it's because of the dream or the surroundings. Mo Ran in the dream, though handsome, appeared to have fierce, beastly eyes.

Chu Wanning did not doubt that he didn't know anything about it, but he thought that it was human nature. When desire came, he should have dreamed of such a real scene.

But Mo Ran didn't know, he just felt that Chu Wanning didn't know anything, he didn't have experience with either men or women, and he didn't know how was the love between men. He was afraid to frighten him and hurt him for the first time. So he caressed Chu Wanning and did enough foreplay. He didn't want to let Chu Wanning suffer so much in this life.

Touching, dawdling and tangling with each other, the desire was getting heavier and heavier. Where Chu Wanning had experienced such stimulation, he couldn't bear it gradually. He still clung to Mo Ran's hand in one hand and holds the mattress in the other. He wanted to go down to touch and relieve himself, but his face was red and he didn't want to do such embarrassing things in front of his loved one.

But his lower body was so swollen and hot that it was held up by sweater pants as a spectacular hard object.

Chu Wanning only felt that his face had been swept away and that he was in great pain.

He wanted, wanted, wanted to vent, wanted to make himself feel good, but he was unwilling, stubborn, cruel, his phoenix eyes became gradually foggy, gradually confused…

He didn’t know. Gradually, he didn’t know anything.

In his heart, he seemed to know what to do, how to make a man feel good. He had desire and love in his chest. He loved the man on top of his body very much. He wanted to go to the sea with him and sink into the abyss with him.

In front of him, there are scenes flashing, shaking and strange.

Strange… How can it be at Sisheng Peak? In Loyalty Hall…

He had a fleeting thought in his mind and was instantly drowned out.

He saw Mo Ran sitting on the grand seat of Loyalty Hall, which was supposed to be the solemn place for welcoming guests. Mo Ran sat there, but he himself was on Mo Ran himself and was held face to face by him. He was naked and ashamed. Mo Ran was almost completely well dressed, except for some of his obscene trousers, which had been covered by his drooping legs.

Mo Ran kissed him and touched him up. His eyes were fixed on his face without blinking.

He asked him, “How does it feel?”

He seemed to see himself shaking his head in pain.

Mo Ran’s finger reached into his mouth and pried it open as if to pry his moan.

“Just scream, scream out.”

He refused. There was only a small whimper in his throat.

Mo Ran no longer pushed, he buried in his body, holding his waist, leading him, slowly sliding down, holding his buttocks, crushing his hair out of the way, hoarsely and fiercely he said: “Shout ah.”

“No…”

He grabbed his waist and buttocks and allowed him to fall slowly and deeply on his crotch. Watching Chu Wanning with wet eyes, seeing him endure, tremble, but still silent, he began to grasp the narrow waist and grope him slightly from bottom to top, because the range is small, so the insertion is fast and compact. Chu Wanning only felt that he was going to be driven mad by the terrible friction. His whole person seemed to be penetrated again and again: “No… Don’t…”

“Where else do you want it?” The man on the seat sneered. He didn’t move any more, but his hot and erect penis was already deep inside, beating along with his heartbeat. “What’s more, aren’t you feeling good? You see, you’re hard.”

These words and influences are blurred, fragmented and muddy, like the illusion of oneself caused by excessive stimulation.

Chu Wanning laid blankly on the bed of the inn, trembling, his lower body hard, painfully so.

What’s wrong? How to do…

The picture became more and more blurred, but it was dim to see that Mo Ran was sitting on the pedestal suddenly plunged in fiercely from top to bottom, pulling out and thrusting in.

Too much stimulation…

At last he could not help but collapse, leaning over the man and groaning, “Ah… Ah…”

The man was panting, intruding and manipulating him.

“You can’t be heard if you don’t shout.”

“Look at you being pitiful. You are not afraid of being heard.”

“Damn… Do you want me to fuck you?”

It was getting more and more blurry…

Until he couldn’t see it.

It was an illusion. It was an illusion. If it was fake, then it was fake.

It was the superposition of the dream, a nightmare that would not disperse.

However, the feeling of being forcefully occupied by something that defied the heavens was extremely clear.

It should be… Is that what he should be doing?

Chu Wanning’s eyes were half closed as he said in a low voice, “Come in…”

Mo Ran was shocked!

Chu Wanning knew what to do?

How could he know?

How could this person, who hadn't even seen any erotic pictures before, a clean piece of white paper know about it?

"Yes… Is it supposed to be… this way?"

His face was so red that it seemed as if blood would drip out at any moment. He mumbled like this to the man on top of him.

"Where are you from?! Where did you learn that?"

"…"

Of course, it would be embarrassing for Chu Wanning to say that he had dreamed it. It was like he was in a bad mood and didn't know his shame at all. He mumbled, "I saw it in the Compendium Pavilion…"

He quickly added, "Someone put the wrong book."

Naturally, Mo Ran didn't suspect him. He felt slightly relieved, but he was also slightly moved.

He kissed the corner of Chu Wanning's lips and the tip of his nose, then said, "Too early."

"…!"

Urgent.

Who was it that was called impatient?!

His blood and Qi immediately surged. He was both angry and humiliated. But Mo Ran leaned over and hugged him, his chest touching his.

He stroked Chu Wanning's hair and said gently, "It will hurt."

“… Then no.” Chu Wanning wanted to save face.

Mo Ran chuckled softly. His deep and slightly hoarse voice was very rich and pleasant to listen to.

He said, “Don’t worry about me, tonight…” His voice gradually grew softer.

Chu Wanning blinked his eyes.

What about tonight?

But he saw Mo Ran’s strong arms propping up, staring at him from above, then slowly sitting up and moving down.

This was something he had never dreamed of. What was he going to do?

“Tonight, I just want to make you feel good.”

He said, leaning down, and when Chu Wanning did not respond, he untied his underwear and saw Chu Wanning’s erection. His eyes were deep and hot, and then he opened his mouth…

“Ah-!”

He felt a spinal tremor and Chu Wanning gasped heavily. What is this feeling?

Why… How can it be like this? How dirty this is…

But it was so refreshing to be wrapped in the warm mouth of his beloved one and sucked. His teeth were carefully folded. He was sucked by Mo Ran. He heard him breathe and gasp, raised their eyes, looked at him gently and even indulgently.

Taxian-Jun never did such a thing, ever, never thought that he would do such a thing.

But now he is willing, obsessed and even happy to do so.

“You don’t want to… How can you… Quick, quick spit out.” Chu Wanning’s face turned red to the extreme. He bit his lips and shook his head. His eyes were like bayonets in the past. At this moment, there was only spring feeling and panic.

So cute.

Mo Ran deeply sucked, deepthroating him, stimulated Chu Wanning, who was unable to support himself, lying on the bed, hardly breathing, eyes scattered, gradually losing focus.

He sucked, went back and forth several times, withdrew, his lips hung with a silk of lust, his eyes moist, and asked, “Baby, does it feel good?”

Chu Wanning felt that there were fireworks flowing in his brain, and the whole people were drowsy, but he still whimpered Mo Ran’s name. He felt ashamed and sweet, sweet and extremely ashamed, and his bones were sour and soft. How can he…

He is his Shizun. He is so old. He is the Yuheng immortal. He is… “Ah…”

The mute voice resounded in the quiet dark bedroom.

Mo Ran licked his plump and round stem, the tip of his tongue was clever and rough, rubbed through the place where Chu Wanning seldom touched himself. Chu Wanning’s was so stimulated he began to shed tears, with the same precaution, rejection and resistance of his previous life. Although he restrained himself, he was still willing to do it with Mo Ran, and he could not resist it. Therefore, his throat knotted and rolled, and there was a rusty breath leaking out.

He unconsciously closed his vapor-covered eyes, sucked him in again, and imitated the rhythm of the pull back and forth to please him. Chu Wanning could only put out his hand impatiently, with five slender fingers submerged in the black top of Mo Ran's hair, unable to push back.

"Don't… Don't do that… It's dirty… Ah…"

But Mo Ran only raised his wet eyelashes, looked at him with his lustful black eyes and said, "I love you, I would like to treat you like this, want you to feel good… How could it be dirty?" He gently kissed the head, which has visible veins, and gently said, "Everywhere I touch, it's the best."

He said before he buried his head and continued to lick, sucking. Chu Wanning was so pure and extremely lacking in experience and thus he couldn't withstand the stimulation under such an attack for the first time. He soon released, when the passion seemed to be uncontrollably pumped through, against Mo Ran's throat.

Mo Ran… Shouldn't it be very disgusting?

There is a vast space between heaven and earth, everything is scattered, only when ejaculation is good, he never thought, never had a strong pleasure.

Even in this overwhelming pleasure, he still vaguely realized what he had done in the end. He wanted to get up and wipe Mo Ran's lips, wanted to caress him, kiss him and thank him.

But his waist felt soft and the legs and feet were weak.

He could not get up.

When eyelashes trembled and looked past, Mo Ran swallowed up the turbid liquid he had sprayed. This left Chu Wanning's mind blank. A muscle behind his head and neck was tingling and twitching.

Finally, Mo Ran covered his body and caressed his face. The man's eyes were somewhat red, with a bit of the aura of a wild beast, but they were still blazing as he gently stared at him.

"I love you."

Really, really, really love you.

It was the ambition of a wolf. It was also the ambition of a prodigal son who would turn around and bear the guilt and sin. However, even so, he was unwilling to give up. It was something that was selfish, despairing, passionate, and desired.

Love you.

Ch. 189 Shizun, You're So Nice

>>sexual content

The room was very quiet. The sounds of heartbeats and gasps were very distinct. The slightly fishy smell that permeated the air was actually very sweet.

Lying on the bed, Mo Ran changed his posture and hugged him from behind. He gently pecked at his eyelids, his neck.

Their bodies were covered in sweat, and the temperature of their bodies was shockingly hot. They were stuck close together, wet and entangled. Chu Wanning's mind was still dizzy. He didn't even dare to think about what they had done just now. Everything was so ridiculous.

However, the heart was warm and fiery.

Warm water was churning under his chest, trying to break out of the earth.

Suddenly, he heard the person in his embrace whisper, "What about you?"

Mo Ran was stunned. "What?"

Chu Wanning coughed lightly, "You…"

He did not continue speaking. He turned around in the dark, and his bright eyes slowly looked into the eyes of Mo Ran. Even though he was in a daze, Mo Ran still felt like he saw Chu Wanning blushing.

"You still…" Chu Wanning hesitated for a while, but he could not say anything. Finally, he lowered his gaze and said, "Let me help you."

Mo Ran suddenly understood and felt sad and sweet. He embraced him and said, “Why are you so stupid? It doesn’t matter, we’ll talk about it later.”

“… I’m not stupid.” He was unwilling to be called stupid, “Aren’t you the silly one? You… Isn’t it uncomfortable?”

“Cough, I’ll wait for you to fall asleep, then go take a shower…”

However, Chu Wanning insisted, “I will help you.”

“There’s no need!” Mo Ran hurriedly stopped him.

“…” Chu Wanning didn’t say anything else, he felt embarrassed by his clumsiness in bed. He probably wouldn’t let Mo Ran feel comfortable, so he said something about taking a shower, but it was just to save his face. The meaning of his words was probably that his technique was better than his own.

As he pondered, his face gradually turned cold. Finally, he said, “If you don’t want it, then forget it.”

Mo Ran was slightly startled. Because of his emotions, Chu Wanning’s voice was not as impeccable as usual. It was not as happy, angry, and sorrowful as usual. The feeling of indignation was so strong that it could be clearly seen.

Why was this person so stupid?

How could he not want to? to wish that this night would never end, that this rainstorm would never stop, wishing to be drunk and dreaming with Chu Wanning in this inn. He wished to turn the person in his arms inside and out into the so that he have him to his heart's content, merge with his body, and integrate with his spirit.

He even wanted to see Chu Wanning choking on his tears because of his bullying. He wanted to see his aura and his mark in Chu Wanning's body.

But it will be hard.

In his previous life, he had done it with Chu Wanning. He knew how long he had had a fever after that incident, and he would never forget that pale face with chapped lips.

He just wanted to take his time. It didn't matter if he endured the hardships. He wanted Chu Wanning to be comfortable for the first time. From then on, he would enjoy the thrill, taste and indulge in the depravity of his life.

However, Chu Wanning clearly misunderstood something.

Mo Ran kissed his forehead and said softly, "Why don't I want it anymore? What are you thinking about?"

"…"

"Why don't you take a look at what I'm like now?" The man's heavy breath was by his ears and his voice was moist, "What have you done to me? You actually think that I don't want you… Idiot."

Chu Wanning flew into a rage, "If you call me idiot one more time, I will cut off your head! You — uh…"

However, Mo Ran caught his hand and carried his somewhere. Chu Wanning was shocked to the point where he couldn't say any more threatening words. He felt as if steam was rising from his head.

“It’s all because of you.”

In the night, he kissed his eyelids again, then lowered his lips, sucking, licking, and rubbing his lips in fascination and intoxication.

After kissing for a while, the two of them couldn’t restrain themselves. The lust in the room became more and more intense. Their lips were attracted to each other, the legs and feet could not be entangled underneath, and they couldn’t help but rub against each other, and their desire was naked. In the midst of their passion, Mo Ran heard Chu Wanning mumbling something, and he was a bit unwilling, but also a bit embarrassed, and he still said in a stubborn voice, “I want to as well… I’ll make you feel good…”

The last words were almost trembling. Shame washed over him.

Mo Ran’s heart was about to melt, and the desire was even more swollen to the point of cruelty. Chu Wanning’s hand was still holding his cock, so that the fierce sword stretches all the way from the palm to the back. He can clearly feel the ferocious state of the blade depicted on the Xiuzhen Ranking List when it is vigorous and hot, it is rough, it is hard, it is boiling, barely separated by clothes. The top is very fierce, and he feels that he could never contain it.

Sex with this man is life-threatening.

At this time, Chu Wanning eventually realized that the “pain” mentioned by Mo Ran was not a plain and unreasonable worry. Where would it hurt, it was clear that it would be torn apart, cut apart, flesh and blood, and strangle.

But thinking of how Mo Ran treated him, Chu Wanning did not know where the courage came from, or perhaps he was originally a ruthless person who was willing to bow down and try.

Mo Ran panicked, it was not easy to maintain reason. If Chu Wanning really wanted to take him in, he feared that all his remaining warmth would be burnt to ashes.

A man who is totally controlled by lust is a beast. He has no reason and no sense. He only wants to pleasure and to possess madly, he knows.

He pressed Chu Wanning back and hoarsely said, “Don’t do that, Wanning, you… You…”

“Never mind, I’ll just learn from what you did.”

“No.” Mo Ran’s voice was like boiling water. His throat was swollen and astringent. “I can’t hold back.”

Chu Wanning did not understand what he meant. He was shocked. “What is it?”

Mo Ran cursed, and could not bear it any more. Chu Wanning’s peaceful breath, voice, body, taking him inch by inch, losing the shackles on his own, burning him.

He lowered his breath for a moment, suddenly got up, put Chu Wanning on the bed instead, and before Chu Wanning could respond, he felt himself pressed into the mattress in an irrevocable fierce way, and Mo Ran down his strong body, wrapped him in the back.

Almost at that moment, he felt the horrible size of the giant crashing into his buttocks across Mo Ran’s thin clothing.

Suddenly, Chu Wanning shouted out in a low voice “ah”. The voice was prosaic and soft, which he had never thought of. Chu Wanning’s face turned red instantly, his fingers clutched the bedding tightly, his lips clenched tightly, and he did not want to pant or shout any more.

What can’t he hold back?

He had a vague understanding of the sentence now. He heard Mo Ran rubbing against his clothes behind him, and then he said a hoarse and abundant sentence: “I can’t help wanting to get in, wanting to do you, why don’t you understand…”

The hot breath sprayed on the back of his ear. The man’s strong arms were propped up on the bed, one was pinching his waist tightly, his lower body moved forward incessantly, and his throat gave out a heavy, low gasp. So after scratching his boots for a while, Mo Ran suddenly patted his buttocks and said, “Keep your legs together.”

Chu Wanning did what he said at a loss, but did not see his movements. He was about to turn around. Suddenly, between his hips and legs, he squeezed in a very hot, very hard, thick and big weapon, which stimulated him to gasp in his throat, his eyes were open, and his scalp was numb.

Mo Ran took away his underwear, and then the huge unshielded head was angry and cardiac. The head was deep bloodshot and dark. The round head of the penis secreted a shy and glittering liquid, which was inserted between Chu Wanning’s legs. The heat was wrapped in the inside of his warm and tender thighs. He uttered a sigh of pleasure, held Chu Wanning’s waist, imitated the action of genuine sexual intercourse, and pulled it in and out.

“Ah…”

How did Chu Wanning not think that it could be like this? The thick head rubbed against him, rubbed out the liquid, stirred up fiercely and vividly, rubbed between his hips and legs, his waist was soft, his spine was crisp, his eyes were covered with a layer of water mist, and he felt very confused and could not feel anything except the strong stimulation of rubbing done by his beloved. He gasped low, silently, and his cheeks were slightly pink. Side, resting in the pillow and mattress, hair scattered…

Mo Ran’s penis was rubbed into the hole several times. He kept pounded into it, thrusting completely into his Shizun, into the man beneath him. Chu Wanning was pounded repeatedly. He was urged by the terrible feeling and stimulation of the thrust, and his vented desire would rise in this increasingly urgent agitation.

The man’s crotch hit his hip, fierce and hot, crazy and hungry.

There was slapping noises in the room, the smokey hair of his abdomen and crotch rubbed against his skin and it became more and more frantic.

“Shizun, clamp up… Ah…”

The man’s appeal is so low and full of passion that he can’t help but follow his words.

“T… That’s it… More tightly… Fuck…”

The desire was getting higher, and the mind was gradually growing dim. The beast and animal desire gradually engulfed the man who had been leading the sexual intercourse. Mo Ran snuggled against his neck slightly, swallowing, Adam’s apple rolling in a sexy way.

“Shizun… Baby… It’s so hot inside you… Ah… Um…”

It refers to between the thighs, but it sounds so erotic, those deep and devoted thrusts, the dirty and rude language. But it didn’t feel dirty. Chu Wanning rather felt that he was probably mad. Listening to his breathing, he would feel more and more hot and uncontrolled. He asked softly, “Are you feeling good?”

“Good…” Mo Ran slightly opened his closed eyes, which were moist, bright and confused.

He bent over, wrapped him in his broad shoulders, held him in his arms and laid him on the bed. His upper body was close to the other’s, so as to withstand the lingering and violent impact of his lower body, which made him more and more damp and crazy.

He went to look for Chu Wanning’s lips. He took Chu Wanning’s chin with one hand and kissed him hungrily and thirstily. Their tongues tangled with each other, which was sticky and moist.

His dick was stirred between the thighs, pushing forward, crotching, shaking the bed, trying to go deeper, his toes on the mattress white because of the hard twisting, Chu Wanning was in such a state, even gave place to a real illusion of being penetrated.

He kissed Mo Ran fiercely with his head up. In the dark, shameless and abandoned, full of instinctual desire and love. The gesture was erotic and attractive, irrational.

Because of the intense kiss, his heart beating fast, the hard breathing, Chu Wanning was dizzy, as if he was about to see a broken scene again.——

He didn’t know where, but it was also in a bed. That bed was wide, covered with bright red bed sheets.

Intertwined legs and feet, wheezing appeals, hot sweat, and desires.

The same gesture, thrusting into him from behind, holding his face and kissing him. But he had been stretched out inside, an inflated and fierce penis thrusting in and out of his body fiercely, he did not know how long it had been inserted, as if with lube, not so painful. It was very hot and wet, and a rip in it was stimulated, and it stood there shaking vigorously.

“Ah… Ah…”

He heard someone screaming, gasping, groaning, with a soft, muddled voice.

Who was it?

Himself?

Mo Ran had been playing with him, endlessly, increasingly fierce, his body full of desire to death, as if to be penetrated, but somehow feeling refreshed, addicted, as if it had been taught to him, Mo Ran’s thrusting made his legs weak, but vaguely, boiling and moving backwards, rubbing, to be penetrated deeper.

It’s so sad that there seems to be an insatiable need in the body, which can only be solved by sex.

It’s like the strongest love drug in the world, destroying the most resolute person.

He’s falling, catering, humming.

Who is…

What a strange sight… What a strange dream… Phantom… Reality… What is it?

“Chu Wanning, I’m fucking you. Are you feeling good?”

“Look at how humble you are.”

“Relax, why do you suck me in so tightly…”

“I’ll come inside you, I’ll come inside you… Ah…”

It’s messy, inaudible, inaccurate, but it seems like this.

What’s the matter?

Mo Ran’s voice. Similar, but not quite the same.

Mo Ran has never spoken in such a distorted voice, never…

I can’t hear you clearly… It should be false…

It’s a mess.

A confusing mess.

The back of the bed was hit more and more brutally and wildly by Mo Ran. His toes were against the mattress, and the pillow on the bed was completely moved. They gasped, stirred, and puffed fiercely and lingered for a long time, finally holding him tightly. They were like sexual beasts, eager for intense kisses on top, and eager for a wet, clingy and urgent sex below.

“Wanning… Shizun…”

He was panting, calling, and lusting for him.

“Baobei…”

Mo Ran held Chu Wanning’s waist tightly, groping and rubbing, full buttocks fiercely stirring and his throat dry. He had reached the critical point, and his eyes were almost fierce. After the most crazy pull-in, which almost crushed Chu Wanning, he grabbed a man in his arms and kissed and gnawed at his earlobe and neck.

His rushing chest was attached to his hot and humid back, and Mo Ran’s reason was almost destroyed. His other hand, holding the hard and angry sex organ, which could not bear the stimulation, reaching Chu Wanning’s climax.

Seeing how fierce and wild he was, Chu Wanning really panicked. His spine was numb. He struggled: “You can’t say you want to come in, you wait a minute.”

Mo Ran gasped and kissed his neck, swallowed his own saliva, and then turned to his cheek, which had been affectionate to Wanning.

“Don’t be afraid, I won’t go in, but… I want to come here.”

Mo Ran could hardly restrain himself. The round head of his cock was at the slightly contracted opening. He cursed and stopped talking. He only rubbed fiercely and eagerly between Chu Wanning’s stocks to accumulate the pleasure of climax. At last, he moved himself, pressed the tip tightly against Chu Wanning’s entrance, growled as he shoot a stream of semen into the opening of the hole. Flowing to the inside of the thigh, rubbed onto the mattress, chaotic, fishy.

Chu Wanning's whole body was trembling and convulsing.

Mo Ran involuntarily put his hand in front of him, grasped Chu Wanning's dick, and touched him warmly and enthusiastically.

Chu Wanning was almost overwhelmed by shame. His cheeks burned and his voice whispered, "No… Stop touching… I've just…"

In the burning eyes of Mo Ran, he muttered obsessively, "Well, I know you've come."

Chu Wanning felt severely humiliated and humid, but he said, with wet eyes, fiercely: "You… Don't say that word."

"Which one?"

"…"

"Oh," Mo Ran's black eyebrow raised sensibly, and then he smiled heavily, "Alright."

He kissed him, but his movements were not rude: "But Shizun, I want to see your climax again."

"Hmm…"

This young man's work was really too good. Chu Wanning is completely helpless, and soon was stimulated to come for the second time. Where can he stand such pressure, such indulgence? Besides, his brain seemed to be dizzy, there were always some blurred shadows in front of his eyes, dim voices in his ears, he felt very sleepy, very tired…

"Wanning."

He heard Mo Ran calling to him from behind him, so soft, so entangled, so loving.

After the two of them had vented their desires, they calmed their breathing and panted. Mo Ran caressed him, kissed him, and thanked him. He encircled him in his arms, protecting him like a treasure.

Chu Wanning was unconscious, sweat trickling down his back. He leaned against Mo Ran on his chest, feeling dizzy for a while. Finally, he closed his eyes and fell asleep.

The next morning, Chu Wanning woke up. The daylight was shining through a crack in the window, and he heard the sound of rain hitting on Dewar. The rain was heavy, and it did not stop.

His head ached, and the fragments of the night before were like fish scales rolling in the sink, mottled and sticky, floating.

He wanted to recall the memories, but the scales only sunk deeper and deeper until they eventually disappeared into the darkness.

Then, he recalled what he did with Mo Ran last night. His entire body suddenly stiffened, and his face quickly flushed red. He tried to get up, but Mo Ran's strong arms still clung to him from behind, his chest still rising and falling evenly against his back.

Mo Ran had not woken up yet.

He waited like this for who knows how long. The hour was not very clear in this dark bedroom, but it should have been very long.

It was so long that his arms were numb.

The pounding of his heart slowed down.

It was so long that it was no longer awkward.

Chu Wanning finally turned around and faced Mo Ran's sleeping face.

He was extremely handsome. Regardless of whether it was his facial features, the bridge of his nose, or his lips, they were all the best in the world.

He was frowning slightly, as if there was something on his mind that couldn't be removed. It felt heavy.

Chu Wanning stared silently at his face for a long time.

After a long time, he finally could not hold it in anymore, and gently, for the first time, took the initiative to kiss Mo Ran's face.

Then he gently removed his arms arms, sat down on the edge of the bed, put on his underpants, and went to get his white undershirt. There were countless creases on his clothes. Chu Wanning tried to smooth them out, but it was to no avail.

He could only put them on like this, hoping that no one at Sisheng Peak would notice anything unusual. As he thought this, he began to fold up his clothes.

Suddenly, someone hugged him from behind.

Chu Wanning was shocked, although it was just a slight pause in his movements.

At some point, Mo Ran had already woken up. He stood up, hugged him, and kissed his ears.

“Shizun…”

For the first time in his life, since he met Chu Wanning he didn’t know what to say and he couldn’t look him directly in the eyes. Mo Ran’s feelings also gave birth to some newlywed-like embarrassment and after a long time he said softly…

“Morning…”

“Early what? Too late.” Chu Wanning didn’t even turn around as he continued to dress himself.

Mo Ran smiled, and with a light nasal tone, he reached out his hand to help arrange the pendant hanging around Chu Wanning’s neck.

“You have to keep it close to your body to ward off the cold. Otherwise, it won’t be effective.”

Chu Wanning seemed to have thought of something and turned to look at him.

Last night, when they were making love, he had felt something tied around his neck, but at that time, he had been dazzled and had not taken a second look. At this time, he realized that it was actually a Dragon Blood Crystal Pendant.

“You…” Chu Wanning was stunned, “When you were in the Rufeng Sect, didn’t you say that there was only one pendant? Why…”

He shut up.

Because he saw Mo Ran smiling at him, his eyes were soft.

He suddenly understood Mo Ran's selfishness. Suddenly, he felt a little hot and dry. He turned his face away and remained silent. He was completely immersed in arranging his clothes.

"Let's head back earlier." In the end, not even daring to look at Mo Ran, he could only say, "If I'm late, someone might see something."

Mo Ran tamed him, "I'll listen to Shizun."

However, after a short period of silence, his ambition remained unshakable and his blood was boiling. Pulling over Chu Wanning, who was getting ready to stand up after putting on his boots, he leaned over and kissed him on his lips.

"Don't be angry, you'll have to endure it once you get back. I want to keep my thoughts to myself." Mo Ran smiled and tapped Chu Wanning's lips with his fingertips. "Shizun, you're so nice."

It was good to hear that. Chu Wanning was still in a trance when they reached the gate.

He felt that what was good was not himself, but Mo Ran.

This young man was handsome, gentle, and focused on loving him. Sometimes, it would even seem unreal to Chu Wanning that this man was too perfect. How could he belong to such a dull person like him?

He belonged to the kind of person who wouldn't even say a proper word of love.

But when Mo Ran stared at him, his expression was very serious, not the least bit fake. When Mo Ran kissed him, his emotions were stirred up, his breathing seemed to be controlled by Chu Wanning, everything was handed over to him.

Even though his actions last night were clumsy, his speech was boring, and he was sometimes absent-minded…

But Mo Ran did not feel disheartened. When he woke up in the morning, he was willing to kiss his lips and say, It's good of you.

"…"

"Shizun."

"Hmm?"

Suddenly, he recovered his wits and saw that under the red flower blossom enchantment, Mo Ran was waving at him with a smile: "Where are you going? This way ah, over there is the Red Lotus Pavilion. Let's go to Mengpo Hall to eat first, then you can go back."

Inside Mengpo Hall, Mo Ran was still sitting in front of him. However, people were coming and going around him, making a lot of noise. They were not as calm as before, and their heads were lowered as they ate the food in the bowl.

The group of disciples who liked to bet with Chu Wanning could not help but start whispering to each other.

"Why isn't Elder Yuheng talking to Senior Brother Mo today?"

"Not only did he not speak, he didn't even look at him."

“How strange, Senior Brother Mo isn’t giving food to Elder Yuheng anymore, isn’t he usually rather obsequious… What happened to them? Did they quarrel?”

“… Will you still be sitting at the same table as your Shizun after the fight?”

“Haha, that’s true.”

As they were whispering to each other, they suddenly saw Chu Wanning stand up, carry a bowl of porridge, and pass by them with his white clothes fluttering in the wind. The group of busybodies stopped talking and obediently nibbled on their steamed buns.

After Chu Wanning returned to his seat, they started to discuss among themselves.

“Do any of you think that Elder Yuheng is acting a little strange today?”

Immediately, someone nodded: “Yes! That means it’s not weird, but it looks like clothes?”

Five or six pairs of eyes peeked around for a while. Suddenly, a young disciple clicked his tongue and said, “It seems to be a little too wrinkled. It’s not as meticulous as usual.”

When he said this, everyone realized that it was true. However, no one thought about it. After muttering to themselves for a long time, everyone felt that Elder Yuheng should have gone to the back of the mountain last night to fill in some small gaps in the forbidden area.

Looking up at him, these disciples would at most find him interesting, but no one had ever treated him as someone with flesh and blood, or as if he was someone with desires. So, even if what Mo Ran and Chu Wanning did was not without a trace, even if there were a lot of clues, they did not pay attention to it.

When a person was carried onto the altar by the crowd, he had no choice but to remain silent, to remain motionless, to break off emotion and desire, and to remain cold. Otherwise, it would be a mistake to miss a single step.

Later, when the relationship between Mo Ran and Chu Wanning was announced to the world, many people felt that their gods had collapsed. They felt disgusted and angry, and they found it unacceptable.

But they had all forgotten that it was a cruel and difficult thing to force a man to bow to them from a height, to force him to walk with every step according to their expectations, to make him live from head to toe for the sake of their pleas and not allow him to have the slightest bit of selfish desire.

Ch. 190 Shizun Again in Seclusion

After that day, Chu Wanning and Mo Ran did not have the chance to meet in private.

The rain continued to pour down in a demonic manner. A large number of dead fish and shrimp appeared in the billowing river outside White Emperor City. There were also a lot of vicious aquatic beasts.

Due to the powerful spiritual energy of both Chu Wanning and Mo Ran, they were not scheduled to waste any strength at this time. One of them went to the Three Gorges Port while the other went to Yizhou.

In the hundreds of years of history of the Rufeng Sect, countless demon beasts were being held in the Golden Drum Tower.

In addition to Shu, the peaceful areas of Yangzhou, Laizhou, and Xuzhou, which originally belonged to the Upper Cultivation World, also produced many disasters by demon beasts, eating people and killing civilians. For a time, they distributed a lot of manpower and energy of the various sects to it. So the investigation of the whereabouts of Xu Shuanglin was even slower.

It only took him four days to quickly settle Yizhou down and return to Sisheng Peak. When he heard that Chu Wanning had come back, he was overjoyed and wanted to go to the Red Lotus Pavilion to find him, not caring about rest.

In the end, the water pavilion's door was shut tight. After asking again, Xue Zhengyong asked in a curious tone, "Seclusion? Didn't Yuheng tell you?"

“Going into seclusion again?” Mo Ran was shocked. “Is Shizun injured?”

“What kind of injury? Isn’t it due to the mental cultivation method? Every seven years, he has to retreat. The last time he trained in seclusion, you went to take care of him, so how did you forget?”

As Xue Zhengyong said this, Mo Ran suddenly remembered something. He had just taken Chu Wanning as his Shizun, and it had only been half a year since then, and Chu Wanning had already mentioned that he had advanced in his cultivation. Although he was fine, he had to train in seclusion once every seven years.

In ten days, Chu-zongshi’s cultivation base had declined, almost as if he were a mortal. He needed to meditate and cultivate in order for his body to recover. During this period of time, he only had one hour a day to recover his soul consciousness, drink some water, and eat a little food but not to be disturbed or injured by others. Therefore, Chu Wanning would place the strongest barrier around the Red Lotus Water Pavilion in advance. Only four people, Xue Zhengyong, Xue Meng, Shi Mei, and Mo Ran, were allowed to enter in case of a disaster.

Last time, not long ago, when he was in closed-door cultivation, he had a conflict with Chu Wanning over the matter of “picking flowers”.

Thinking back to that time, Mo Ran felt uneasy. He immediately said, “I’ll go and see him.”

“You don’t need to go. Before he entered, he said that he would do the same thing as last time. He would ask Xue Meng to guard the first three days, Shi Mei for the three days, and the last four days you accompany him.”

“I just wanted to take a look at him…”

“What’s there to see?” Xue Zhengyong laughed, “Last time you crossed this hurdle, wasn’t it also because of Meng’er? What else do you have to worry about? Moreover, you have already passed. Once Meng’er sees you, he will have to speak to you. It would not be good if you were to argue with Yuheng.”

That night, he did not fall asleep. When he thought of Xue Meng in the Red Lotus Pavilion alone with Chu Wanning, he felt a sour feeling in his heart.

Of course, he knew that Xue Meng was pure and did not have any interest in men, but he just felt uncomfortable. After tossing and turning for half a night, he finally managed to sleep for one or two hours at dawn.

After waking up, Mo Ran felt that it was no good.

He still couldn’t help himself. He wanted to see Chu Wanning, even if it meant taking a look at him from afar.

Although the door of the pavilion was closed and there were enchantments everywhere, Mo Ran was Chu Wanning’s disciple. The enchantment did not obstruct him, and as for the wooden door made of green jade bamboo, it was just a decoration. Every time Chu Wanning cultivated in seclusion, he would get used to staying in a bamboo pavilion in the depths of the lotus pond. This time, it should be the same.

Indeed, from far away, he could see the elegant bamboo pavilion’s veil fluttering in the lotus leaves on the Smoke Pond. Chu Wanning sat quietly on the ground, his white clothes covering the ground.

Xue Meng stood next to him. He seemed to think that the sun was shining outside. Thus, he tied up a snowy veil so that his Shizun would be able to bask in the warmth of the sun. The winter sunlight flowed into the pavilion, illuminating Chu Wanning's slightly pale face. He seemed to have felt the warmth during his meditation, and his face gradually turned a bit pale.

After a while, due to the circulation of the qi in his body, sweat started dripping from his forehead. Xue Meng used a snow-white towel to wipe it off for him. After wiping it off, he couldn't help but raise his head and look left and right, muttering, "How strange, why do I feel like someone is staring at me…"

Mo Ran was not staring, but staring.

His expression looked calm, but in reality, his heart was in turmoil.

He felt that Xue Meng had taken too long to wipe Chu Wanning's forehead with a handkerchief. He got closer and his eyes became ambiguous. In short, Xue Meng was being thrown all sorts of crimes at him. He just felt annoyed and frustrated.

He felt that he could not take it anymore. He was unwilling to stay here and suffer any longer, so he decided to leave.

However, he was unable to control himself and the sound of his feet became louder. Xue Meng immediately threw out a Plum Blossom Darts that were brimming with spirit energy and shouted, "Who is it?!"

The Plum Blossom Darts were a small matter. He caught them with his bare hands, but when he heard his voice, Mo Weiyu almost jumped out of the bamboo forest and into the pavilion.

Xue Meng's eyes widened as he said in astonishment, "How did you…"

"Lighter." Mo Ran immediately covered his mouth and said in a low voice, "Why are you shouting so loudly?"

"Uuuuuuuu — uuuu!" Xue Meng struggled for a long time before he suddenly pulled himself out of Mo Ran's hands. His face was flushed red as he angrily stroked his messy hair and said, "You're still talking about me? What are you looking at from under the bushes like a thief?"

"… I'm just afraid you're going to be as noisy as you are now."

"I said Shizun can't hear me!" Xue Meng said angrily, "Oh, the Curse of Soundlessness, didn't you see that Shizun had already cast the Curse of Soundlessness on himself? Unless you break his curse, he won't be able to hear what you're saying even if you shout in his ear…"

He grumbled, but Mo Ran was stunned for a moment. "Curse of Soundlessness? Then why did Uncle say he was afraid that I would come over and disturb you?"

"My dad must have felt that you just came back from Yizhou and was too tired. He wants you to rest first. You also believe his words. I don't know if you should think about it, but Shizun, when did he not first go into seclusion and cast that incantation on himself, making it easier for us to be more comfortable by his side. You didn't even use your brain. You truly are extremely stupid."

Mo Ran: "…"

Seeing that Mo Ran was about to sit down in the pavilion, Xue Meng hurriedly pulled him back. "Hey, what are you doing?"

Mo Ran said, “Since that’s the case, I’ll keep watch as well.”

Xue Meng said, “Who asked you to keep it? I was the one who guarded him for the first three days, and now you have to behave with master again. Let’s go, go. Don’t snatch my job.”

“Can you take care of him alone?”

“Why can’t I take care of him? It’s not like this is the first time I’m taking care of Shizun in closed door cultivation.”

Seeing Xue Meng’s anger, Mo Ran did not know what to say. After hesitating for a while, just as he was about to leave, he suddenly saw a tea set on the table. It had a wide leaf, dark color, and a light fragrance. Seeing this he asked: “Is this Cold Fragrant Snow tea from Kunlun?”

“Eh? How do you know?”

“…” How could he not know that this tea was Xue Meng’s favorite drink? Xue Meng was always willing to offer his most beloved things to his Shizun, but he did not think over whether these things suited Chu Wanning or not.

“Cold Fragrant Snow tea is cold, and Shizun already has a cold constitution. If you give him more tea like this, will he feel comfortable?”

Xue Meng stared blankly for a moment. His face was a little red as he explained in embarrassment, “I didn’t think too much either. I only know that the Cold Fragrant Snow is good tea, I…”

“Go exchange for some fragrant rose tea, add two spoonfuls of honey, and when he wakes up, boil some water for him to drink. I’ll make some snacks and bring them to you later.”

Thinking that he would be able to save some face, Xue Meng hurriedly said, “He can’t eat snacks. He has to fast for the next ten days.”[163]

“I know, but uncle said he can eat a little.” As Mo Ran spoke, he waved his hand and walked out of the bamboo pavilion, heading out of the pavilion. “See you later.”

Xue Meng watched his back. He was lost in thought for a while.

When Mo Ran had gone far away, he lowered his head and could not help but look at the side of his Shizun’s neck — the faint bruise that he had inadvertently caught sight of yesterday.

Under the sunlight, it was even clearer. It didn’t look like the bite marks of a mosquito, nor was it a wound. Xue Meng was no longer a 14 or 15 year old person. Although he had not experienced some things, it did not mean that he was completely ignorant. The little mark on Chu Wanning’s neck made him very restless.

He thought of all the details, especially what he had heard that day in the back mountains.

He kept telling himself that it was the wind, the wind.

However, the vague fog in his heart seemed to have shrouded him again. Under the dense fog, there seemed to be something strange that was gradually revealing its original appearance.

Under the warm sun, for some reason, Xue Meng suddenly felt very uncomfortable. He couldn’t help but shiver and frown.

Because of this restlessness, on the sixth day of Chu Wanning’s closed door cultivation, Xue Meng made a decision.

He planned to secretly follow Mo Ran to take a look.

This was the last day of service for Chu Wanning. It was supposed to be midnight, but Mo Ran had dinner at Mengpo Hall early on that day. He picked up a box of snacks and headed straight for the Red Lotus Pavilion. Xue Meng did not expect him to actually plan to change Shi Mei at this hour and stop eating the rest of the food as well. He bent his waist and chased after him, following outside the Red Lotus Pavilion and walking through the main door. He rested for a moment, then followed Mo Ran's example and jumped over the wall and entered the house.

At this time, before the sun set, the crescent moon had already appeared. The sky had been stripped of its colorful makeup, and only the tinge of red could be seen in the end. The magnificent sunset had already faded away, and the stars were like water, swallowed up by the dark night.

Mo Ran carried his food box and saw Shi Mei walking into the bamboo pavilion with his back towards him. He did not seem to have heard Mo Ran's approach and stopped right in front of Chu Wanning.

Mo Ran smiled and was about to greet him when he saw a cold ray of light flash across Shi Mei's hand. He pointed it at Chu Wanning, who was sitting in the middle of his meditation.

"Shi Mei!"

His back felt cold and his hair stood on end.

In his two lifetimes, he had experienced too many life and death situations, to the point that even the slightest movement could cause him to become a common person. As the saying goes, once bitten by a snake, this Red

Lotus Pavilion held the corpse of Chu Wanning for two whole years, until the day he died.

In truth, he didn't really like it here. Stepping into the pavilion, he could always think of the last few years of his previous life when Chu Wanning was lying in the middle of a lotus flower with his eyes closed forever, lifeless.

Therefore, he subconsciously felt that the Red Lotus Pavilion was a calamity with a bottomless throat that would devour the final fire in this world.

Shi Mei turned his head and looked down. The silver light was hidden in his sleeves: "Mo Ran?… Why are you here?"

"I —"

Mo Ran's heart was beating wildly. He could not catch a breath. Ignoring everything, he frowned and said, "In your hands…"

"My hand?"

Shi Mei paused for a moment, and then raised his hand again. In his hand was a comb made of pure silver, with spirit stone slags embedded into the back of the comb.

Mo Ran was at a loss for words. After a long while, he said, "You… are you combing Shizun's hair?"

"… Hmm, what's wrong?" Shi Mei looked him up and down, then slightly frowned, "Such an ugly expression, could something have happened outside?"

“No, I’m just…”

Halfway through his sentence, he could not continue on, but his face turned from pale to slightly red. Fortunately, the darkness of the night made it difficult for people to see him clearly. After pausing for a moment, Mo Ran tilted his face and lightly coughed. “Nothing.”

Shi Mei continued to look at him in silence. Then, he seemed to have understood something. His expression turned slightly blank as he hesitantly said: “Don’t tell me that you think…”

Mo Ran hurriedly replied, “I don’t think anything.”

After all, Shi Mei was also someone who treated him extremely well, someone he treated like family. Mo Ran was also shocked by his misunderstanding of Shi Mei and felt that he had let him down, so he blurted out the words “I didn’t”.

Shi Mei didn’t say anything. After a long while, he said: “A-Ran.”

“Hmm?”

“I haven’t even said the last part.” Shi Mei sighed, “Why are you so anxious to deny it?”

With these words, it was no doubt clear that Shi Mei understood that in that instant, Mo Ran had mistakenly recognized the silver brush in his hand as a ferocious blade.

Even though this fear came from the death of Chu Wanning in his two lifetimes, no matter who it was that stood with their back facing Mo Ran, whether it was Xue Meng or Xue Zhengyong, they would all probably tremble for a moment. However, facing Shi Mei, Mo Ran calmed down, and his heart was still in pain.

He lowered his eyes and said, "… I'm sorry."

In his memory, Shi Mei was always gentle and kind when encountering people, rarely was there a moment when he was cold or blaming others. But that night, by the Lotus Pond, he looked at Mo Ran and didn't say anything for a long time.

The wind was blowing, the lotus leaves in the pond tumbled, and the red lotus flowers danced lightly.

Shi Mei said: "It's one thing if people are not as good as the old one, but A-Ran, we've known each other for almost ten years. In your heart, how could I be so weak?"

His voice was soft and calm, without much anger or grievance. Mo Ran looked at his eyes. The two pools of cold spring water seemed to have seen through everything, but he did not care about anything and did not want to say anything more.

Shi Mei handed the silver comb to Mo Ran and said, "Before Shizun closes his eyes to meditate, ask me to help him tie his braids. Since you've come, I'll give it to you."

"Shi Mei…"

However, the tall and extremely beautiful man had already walked past him by mistake. His footsteps were gentle, but he did not turn back as he left the bleak Red Lotus Pavilion on his own.

Ch. 191 Shizun, Xue Meng and I…

The most important person to Mo Ran in this world, other than Chu Wanning, was Shi Mei.

Once, Mo Ran thought that it was love that he felt for Shi Mei, but later on, he realized that he was not. However, his feelings for him, who treated him well and cherished him, had never changed.

Even though he would gradually feel that Shi Mei had become a stranger, and that this tall and charming man seemed like another person. Even though the original bowl of wontons was only sent by Shi Mei on behalf of Chu Wanning,

But no matter what, Shi Mingjing was the same Shi Mingjing from before.

It was his companion, smiling and reaching out to him in the darkness and the darkness.

When he was lonely and unwilling, he was the senior brother who accompanied him and was willing to comfort him.

In this world, Shi Mei was an orphan, he no longer had family members, and Xue Meng was very proud and arrogant. Although he was on good terms with Shi Mei, in all these years, Shi Mei had never called Xue Meng by his name. Instead, he respectfully called him Young Master.

The only person who Shi Mei could truly call “friend” was most likely himself.

As a result, he had also hurt his heart.

Xue Meng was hiding in the bamboo forest. He crossed his arms and observed for a long time. He saw Mo Ran standing there motionlessly, playing with his silver brush as if he had something on his mind.

After waiting for less than an hour and seeing no signs of movement, Xue Meng started to feel like an idiot.

What was he thinking? Why did he feel that Shizun had something to do with Mo Ran? Is his brain damaged… The more he stood, the more embarrassed he became, the more he felt that he was even more baffled. At the end of the fight, Xue Meng turned around and was about to leave, but he was indeed from the same sect.

He relaxed for a moment and was unable to control his footsteps.

Mo Ran stood up and asked in a low voice through the curtain, “Who is it?”

“…”

Under the moonlight, Xue Meng walked out unwillingly, neither embarrassed nor flustered. His eyes avoided the gaze as he gave a light cough.

Mo Ran was stunned for a moment. “What are you doing here?”

“Only the state officials are allowed to set fire, and people are forbidden to light lamps?”[164] Xue Meng did not dare to look at Mo Ran’s eyes. His gaze was fleeting, and although he sounded reasonable and calm, his face was red. “I also just wanted to come and see Shizun.”

With a thought from Mo Ran, he vaguely understood the possibility of Xue Meng following him. He could not help but freeze, but he quickly adjusted his expression and regained his composure before Xue Meng realized it.

“Since you’ve come, let’s sit for a while.”

Xue Meng did not refuse and followed him into the bamboo pavilion.

“Would you like some tea or wine?”

“Tea. Drinking makes you drunk.”

There was wine and tea on the table, and a small stove by Mo Ran. Flames lit up in the darkness, illuminating his distinctive features. He boiled the Eight Treasures Tea on top of the stove, and the two brothers sat on a bamboo bench, leaning against a pillar, waiting for the tea to boil.

Xue Meng asked him, “Why are you so early? Originally, it should have been worth another half a night.”

“I have nothing to do, so I’m here.” Mo Ran smiled, “Aren’t you the same?”

Xue Meng thought about it, it seemed to be true.

After all, after the battle of the Heavenly Rift World, Mo Ran had gradually changed. Now that so many years had passed, he was vastly different from that arrogant youth from back then. The disciple that Chu Wanning had saved with his life had finally grown into a righteous man.

Lowering his eyelashes, Xue Meng pondered for a moment before suddenly smiling.

Mo Ran asked, “Why?”

“No, I remember the last time he went into seclusion. At that time, you still weren’t convinced by Shizun. After ten full days, you came to see him, then said that you weren’t capable enough and that you probably wouldn’t be able to serve him and that you ran over to Daddy's to organize the books. At that time, you were still sulking in your heart. I never thought that after seven years, you would become like this."

Mo Ran was quiet for a while, then said, "People change."

Xue Meng asked, "I want to give you another chance. I want you to return to seven years ago. Do you still want to run away?"

"What do you think?"

Xue Meng seriously pondered this question, then said, "I'm afraid I'll need to spend ten days and ten nights by Shizun's side."

Mo Ran lowered his eyes and laughed.

"Hmph, why are you laughing?" Xue Meng changed his position and put one foot on the bamboo pavilion's bench. His elbow was resting comfortably, his head and neck slightly tilted back, his gaze moving to his eyes and tail, and he looked at his own cousin. "Our feelings for Shizun are the same now.

Mo Ran lowered his eyes. "Yes."

Xue Meng narrowed his eyes, then looked towards him at the corner of the pavilion and said, "Very good. Back then, when Shizun died, I resented him for exchanging his life for yours. But today, it would seem that you are not completely heartless."

Mo Ran did not know what to say, so he replied with an "En."

The bell tinkled in the wind.

After a few moments of silence, Xue Meng couldn’t help but turn his head. With a burning gaze and a slight crease between his eyebrows, he suddenly asked, “Cough, actually, there’s something I want to ask you.”

“Go ahead.”

“Tell me the truth, that day at the back of the mountain, you guys……”

Mo Ran actually knew that Xue Meng had always wanted to ask this question.

After all these twists and turns, he still couldn't escape the question. He waited for him to continue.

However, Xue Meng stammered for a long time, his face was pale and red, red and white. In the end, he was still unable to say those words. “Are you looking for a osmanthus cake?”

The water was boiling, and the wisps of steam that had gathered in the cold night were fading away.

Their gazes met. Xue Meng’s eyes were filled with anxiety, flickering with flames. Mo Ran’s eyes were devoid of any emotions, and so deep that one could not see the bottom of it.

“We can drink tea now.”

Xue Meng suddenly grabbed his arm and stared at him. “Are you guys really looking for the osmanthus candy New Year cake?!”

“…”

Mo Ran paused for a moment, then he opened his hand and went to the table to pick up the black cast iron pot. Each person had a cup, filling it to the brim.

Only then did he raise his eyes and say, “If we weren’t looking for the osmanthus candy, what else could we be doing?”

“You…”

“Shizun wouldn’t lie to you so easily. If you don’t believe me, you have to trust him.”

Xue Meng was like a small snake that had been pinched around seven inches. His hand that was placed on his knee was slightly spasming as he suddenly lowered his head and said, “I don’t doubt him.”

“Drink your tea, then.” Mo Ran sighed, “What are you thinking about all day long? It’s all useless.” He lowered his head and blew on the steaming hot air. In the dense mist, his face appeared so handsome, yet it was also somewhat blurry. It was like a reflection of the moon in a mirror, making it difficult to see clearly.

The Eight Treasures Tea was warm. Xue Meng slowly drank a few mouthfuls as he felt the gurgling heat from it caused his frantic heart to gradually calm down. He finished the tea, but the warmth still lingered in the cup.

Xue Meng lowered his head. He suddenly stared blankly, as if he was talking to Mo Ran, and also as if he was talking to himself. “I really care about him too much, that’s why I think so much. Even a little bit of trouble…”

“I know.” He said, “Me too.”

Xue Meng turned his face to the side, looking at him.

Mo Ran leaned against the pavilion pillar. Before he finished his tea, he took another sip and then said, “Just now, because of this, I misunderstood Shi Mei. You are at least better than me, so you don’t have to be so impulsive.”

“No wonder he left after just a few words. What did you misunderstand about him?”

“… It’s fine if you don’t want to say it.” Mo Ran smiled bitterly, “I can even think more nonsense than you.”

Xue Meng wrinkled his nose, “He is a pitiful person. During the famine, people would easily become food for others. If not for father saving him, he would have become the meat of a hungry people. Shi Mei has always been good to you, don’t bully him.”

Mo Ran replied, “Yes, I know. It was just a moment of rush earlier, but it won’t happen again.”

The two of them stood guard in the pavilion, talking to each other in a nonchalant manner.

This feeling was very strange. Under the moonlight, Xue Meng’s handsome and somewhat arrogant face belonged to a person who had left a hole in his chest in his previous life. Every time he saw him afterward, it was accompanied by tears and blood.

Who would have thought that they would still be able to speak in such a calm manner? Under the moon in the lotus pond, brewing tea and cooking wine.

Yes, wine.

After the tea was finished, Xue Meng had no intention of leaving.

After Mo Ran heated up another pot of wine and drank a few cups. As long as he wasn't drunk, it would be harmless.

However, he seemed to overestimate Xue Meng's alcohol tolerance.

Amongst the four of them, the one who didn't fall out of the thousand cups was Chu Wanning. While his own tolerance for alcohol was quite good, Shi Mei's alcohol tolerance was very poor. However, the most hopeless one was Xue Meng.

Two small glasses of pear blossom white, this person is a bit dizzy, speech also big tongue.

Mo Ran was worried that he would cause trouble so he quickly kept the wine and did not give it to him to drink.

Although Xue Meng's consciousness was muddled, he still hadn't lost it completely. He still understood clearly, his face was bright red as he smiled and said, "It's good to keep it, I… I can't drink anymore."

"Yes." Mo Ran said, "Quickly go back and rest. Can you walk by yourself? You can't leave. I'll send a mental message for uncle to come over."

"Oh, no need for him to come over. No need for him to come over." Xue Meng smilingly waved his hand. "I can walk back myself, and I even recognize the way."

He stretched out a finger and placed it in front of him. "What is this?"

“One.”

He then pointed at Chu Wanning, “Who is this?”

Xue Meng laughed. “Big brother Immortal.”

“… Speak properly.”

“Haha, Shizun, I recognize you.” Holding the pillar, Xue Meng laughed.

He scolded Xue Meng on how this guy’s alcohol tolerance was getting worse every year, but he was still worried. He pointed to himself and asked, “Then what about me? Look at me, don’t joke with me. Who am I?”

Xue Meng was stunned for a moment.

Time seemed to overlap with the past. On the New Year’s Eve in Mengpo Hall, Xue Meng was also drunk. He recognized the face of Shi Mei, said that Chu Wanning was the Immortal Brother. He then looked at Mo Ran and laughed, saying that he was a dog.

Mo Ran calmly looked at him, prepared that if he were to speak another word, he would secretly press Xue Meng down and beat him up. Then, he would call Xue Zhengyong to come over and take the little drunkard back.

But Xue Meng stared at him blankly for a while. He did not know what strange expression he had on his face, but in the end, his lips opened and he slightly pouted, as if he was going to utter the word ‘dog’.

Mo Ran was going to cover his mouth.

“Brother……”

But his hand froze. Xue Meng's hazy eyes stared at him. Slowly, quietly, he called out, "Brother."

Mo Ran froze for a moment. It was as if he had been stung by a bee sting. The sting turned into pain, which was numbed by the poison. His throat was blocked, and he could not say a single word. He could only stare blankly at Xue Meng's face, his young, arrogant, high-spirited facial features.

Mo Ran's face was used to seeing hatred, anger, and contempt.

However, he had never seen his current expression.

Xue Meng rubbed the Longcheng saber hanging on his waist. This saber was made from Mo Ran, who had cut down the great demoness with great difficulty and seized the top grade spirit stones, sending them over for him to embed.

Without this saber, he might not have been able to take first place in the Spiritual Mountain Competition. Without this saber, he might have been reduced to a nameless cultivator, bearing the injury of Zhong Yong.[165]

When he was awake, for reasons like this, and out of pride and face, he had never properly expressed his thanks to Mo Ran, but he was in pain — every day he would wipe the Longcheng with mixed emotions.

Especially after he came back from Rufeng Sect, when he got to know that Mo Ran rescued him from Xu Shuanglin, Xue Meng was even more tormented. After he woke up, and heard that Mo Ran and Chu Wanning were still missing, he broke down in tears. Everyone thought that he was just crying because of his Shizun, and only Xue Meng himself knew that that night, he hugged the saber Longcheng's as he lay on his sickbed, looking into the darkness, and said hoarsely:

"Brother, I'm sorry."

Where are you. You and Shizun… Are you all right…

Mo Ran could not speak, nor could he move his feet. It was as if his entire body was frozen, and he just stood there motionlessly.

Yesterday, all sorts of emotions flashed across his eyes.

He thought back to the Sisheng Peak in his previous life. Xue Meng climbed up the mountain by himself and stood in the desolate Wushan Palace. His eyes were red as he asked for Chu Wanning's whereabouts.

Xue Meng said, "Mo Ran, turn around and look…"

He thought of how Xue Meng and Mei Hanxue had ambushed and assassinated him after he became the Emperor, and how Mei Hanxue had blocked his path in the clear sky.

Xue Meng said, "Mo Weiyu, no one can save you. This world will not tolerate you!"

He thought of hatred after hatred, angry, hot, dancing dragons and serpents.

He thought of the day that Chu Wanning died in his life, Xue Meng suddenly leapt up and roared as he pressed him against the wall. His carotid artery suddenly burst out, and he howled like a trapped beast, "How can you say that he didn't save you… How can you say that he didn't save you!"

Suddenly, a thought flashed in his mind, and a faint light seemed to light up in front of his eyes.

Perhaps it was because Mo Ran had stood so stiffly for so long that he reminded him of the earliest, earliest, most vague memory.

He seemed to have seen two youths, one of them was extremely thin, looking anxious and terrified. Like a abandoned dog that was used to being whipped, he squatted uneasily at the small table in the disciple's room, squatted on a stool, and clenched his hands tightly in his lap.

There was also a young man with a face as white as snow and a face pretty and adorable, like a young pheasant whose wings were bright and proud. He stood there with a beautiful scimitar at his waist, stepping on the chair with one foot, looking at him with his round, pitch-black eyes unblinkingly.

"My mother told me to come and see you." The youth, Xue Meng, snorted. "I heard you're my cousin?… It's a shame."

Mo Ran did not say a word and lowered his head. He was not used to being stared intently at like that.

Xue Meng asked, "Hey, what's your name? Mo… That Mo… What? Tell me, I don't remember."

"…"

"I'm asking you a question, why aren't you saying anything?"

"…"

"Are you a mute?!"

After the third time, the young man, Xue Meng, was so angry that he started laughing. “I already said you’re my cousin, but you’re so submissive and so small. How could I have such a shameful brother when the wind blows? What a joke.”

Mo Ran lowered his head, increasingly unwilling to pay any attention to him.

Just like that, there was silence. Suddenly, a flash of red appeared in front of his eyes. The person who passed it to him was too rough, almost piercing the tip of his nose.

“For you.” Xue Meng said.

“I can’t eat anyway.”

He brought a box of pastries and casually threw it on the table. His attitude was one of charity, but as Mo Ran stared at it, he only felt that he was very generous. Before this, no one had ever been willing to give him so many things.

“I… This… is mine?”

“What?” Xue Meng frowned. “What do you mean ‘this is mine’? What do you want to say?”

“Can I eat all these?”

“Huh?”

“Actually, one is more than enough… If you can’t eat it, then I’ll…”

“Are you sick? Are you a dog? Eating the leftovers of others?” Xue Meng’s eyes widened in disbelief as he said, “Of course it’s all yours! This whole bunch, this whole box, they’re all yours!”

The lacquered wooden dim sum box was beautifully crafted, and on it was a golden powder drawing of the Immortal Crane Xiangyun. It was an imposing style that Mo Ran had never seen before.

He did not dare to reach out his hand, but kept staring at the box with his black eyes, which gave Xue Meng goosebumps. He lifted his hand to open the box of snacks, and the rich fragrance of milk, fruit, fruit, and bean, as well as the mixed aroma of the sand and mud filled the box. There were nine of them in total, some were golden and crisp, some were pink and tender, others weak, and fragile.

The youth, Xue Meng, didn’t even look at it. He pushed the entire box of dim sum towards him and impatiently said, “Eat it. If it’s not enough, I still have more. There’s no way to finish it. I’ll just give it to you.”

This Young Master’s attitude was rude and his tone was rude. His black and white round eyes were still rolling up, as if he was looking down on people with his nose in the sky.

But the fruit was sweet and soft.

After two lifetimes of bitterness, blood, and that distant sweet taste, it seemed to have returned to his tongue just like that. Mo Ran looked at Xue Meng’s drunk face under the moonlight. Xue Meng narrowed his eyes and stared at him. After a while, Xue Meng smiled. He seemed to be drunk, but it was unknown what he was laughing about.

He let go of the pillar in his arms as if he wanted to go over and pat Mo Ran's shoulder, but his steps were unsteady. He staggered and fell into Mo Ran's arms.

"Ugh…Brother…"

He lightly patted Xue Meng's back. The night wind blew, causing his hair to cover half his handsome face, and no one knew what kind of expression Mo Ran had. After a long time, Xue Meng, who was too weak in alcohol, fell asleep in his arms.

"Xue Meng, I'm sorry, I'm not worthy to be your brother…"

Ch. 192 Shizun Gave Me My Life

On the day that Chu Wanning finished his closed door cultivation, an unexpected guest arrived at his peak.

Knock, knock, knock.

Early in the morning, the door to the Red Lotus Pavilion was being knocked on anxiously.

Mo Ran was in the midst of attending to Chu Wanning when he heard the knock on the door. He was still in a daze from the ten days of meditation and had just finished his training when he heard a knock on the door. He said coldly, “Come in.”

Mo Ran: “Pfft.”

“… What are you laughing at?”

“Shizun set up a barrier at the door. Other than me and Xue Meng, who else can enter?”

Only then did Chu Wanning remember. He lifted his hand to remove the barrier. A messenger disciple hurriedly came in from outside. He reeked of alcohol and acted like a fly without a head, “Elder Yuheng, this isn’t good. A great demon has come to our Loyalty Hall!”

The two of them looked at each other and immediately rushed to the Loyalty Hall.

From far away, Mo Ran saw a huge gourd swirling around the entire plaza. A group of elders and disciples were watching from the side, not knowing whether to laugh or cry.

Mo Ran: “… Diremonster?”

Fat Gourd: “Gulp, gulp, gulp.”

Seeing that Chu Wanning and Mo Ran had arrived, Xue Zhengyong’s eyes lit up and slapped his thighs, “Ah! Yuheng! He woke up at the right time! There’s hope, there’s hope!”

Chu Wanning was still in a daze, but his days were cold. Even though he was still in a daze, his face was still unfathomable. “Hmm?”

“Another monster that escaped from the Golden Drum Tower.” Xue Zhengyong’s face was bitter, angry, and amused at the same time. “Stay here and don’t go — wine lustful gourd!”

Chu Wanning raised his head to look at the huge gourd on the ground. The two were about the height of a person and they emitted a mother-of-pearl luster. Peach red smoke was drifting from the mouth of the gourd and wine was spewing out from the mouth of the gourd.

“This demon doesn’t hurt people,” Chu Wanning replied.

“But it’s filled with wine!”

His words were true. The wine gourd was chasing a group of young disciples as they ran. As long as one of them caught up to them, a hole would be opened in their mouths and they would start spewing alcohol into their mouths.

Chu Wanning: “…”

“I heard that it only accepts good alcohol.” Xue Zhengyong said eagerly, “Yuheng, look…”

Chu Wanning felt a headache coming on as he ran down the stage, summoning Tianwen and placing it right in front of the wine gourd.

“Don’t run. I’ll drink with you.”

The fat gourd was overjoyed as it shook back and forth. Their opening immediately expanded and a mouthful of wine shot out like an arrow towards Chu Wanning’s face. Unexpectedly, Chu Wanning dodged it and calmly avoided the wine, only to see a golden light shine, and the fat gourd was tightly restrained by Tianwen.

“In other words, do you have a cup?”

“Gulp!” A small gourd ladle was spat out from the opening of the fat gourd, it was filled with wine, “Po!”

Under the watchful eyes of the crowd, Chu Wanning sat on the ground and started drinking with the wine gourd.

“Gulp, boom, boom!”

“Not bad, one more.”

“Bo!”

“Did Pear Blossom Bai do it?”

“Pop, pop, pop!”

Xue Zhengyong asked in astonishment, “Yuheng, you seem to understand what it’s saying?”

“Yes. This kind of monster can always be understood a little bit.”

The wine gourd: “Pop pop pop!”

Mo Ran laughed, “Shizun, what did he say this time?”

“He’s talking to me, saying that he hasn’t been exposed to the sun for a long time.”

The wine gourd was very happy. For some reason, it seemed to have understood Chu Wanning’s words as well. It then intimately went over and poured him a big jug of wine.

“This time, it’s Pear Blossom Bai?”

“Bo!”

“I don’t like Nu Er Hong.”

“Pop…” The wine gourd immediately poured out the wine and changed to another one.

Everyone was shocked speechless.

Seeing the man and the demon drinking from the morning till noon, the man and the demon were overjoyed. Everyone was flabbergasted as more and more people gathered at the Loyalty Hall’s entrance.

Xue Meng and Shi Mei also came.

Seeing Shi Mei, Mo Ran recalled the misunderstanding and felt guilty. He wanted to apologize to him, but the moment he caught sight of him, he turned and left.

Seeing the way out, Xue Meng prodded Mo Ran with his elbow. “He seems to still be angry at you for misunderstanding him last time.”

“Then what should we do?”

“Let’s chat with him. You guys do it like this, even if I’m stuck in the middle, I still won’t be able to be a person inside or out. Hurry up. Anyway, this place has nothing to do with you.”

Mo Ran glanced at Chu Wanning, who was drinking with a wine gourd, and felt that nothing bad would happen soon. He said to Xue Meng, “Then I’ll go find him first. Stay here and keep an eye on Shizun. If anything happens, let me know immediately.”

Catching up to Shi Mei did not take much time. Mo Ran called out to him from in front of the sword dance plateau: “Shi Mei!”

“…”

“Shi Mei!”

Shi Mei stopped and turned around. He looked at him quietly and asked, “Is there anything I can help you with?”

“No…” Mo Ran waved his hand and frowned. “I came here to tell you that I was in the wrong with the previous matter.”

“What did you say?”

Mo Ran was stunned and his eyes widened. “What?”

Shi Mei’s expression was still light and gentle, and the wind was blowing. He stroked his hair, “It’s the Red Lotus Pavilion. You misunderstood me.

What would I do to Shizun? When we were eating together in the village, none of you would sit at the same table as me. Or perhaps it was earlier, when Shizun woke up, I went to bring you guys some wine, but you didn't say anything to me from start to finish. Which one?"

It was completely unexpected that he would actually bring up the matter from before. Mo Ran was at a loss for a moment, and only after a long time did he say, "You… Are you angry with me so early?"

Shi Mei shook his head: "Being angry is not necessarily true, but it doesn't matter."

"…"

"A-Ran, ever since I respected you, you have been deliberately distancing yourself from me."

Mo Ran fell silent. He was indeed deliberately distancing himself from Shi Mei. The two of them had been so close in the past that even Chu Wanning could see them clearly.

It was just that because they always felt that something was missing, when they were young, the layer of window paper between them did not break. Later, when Mo Ran realized his intentions, he did not know how to deal with the relationship between him and Shi Mei.

He had thought of saying this to Shi Mei, but felt that it wasn't appropriate.

He had never confessed to Shi Mei, so he didn't know what kind of feelings he had towards him. It would be too sudden and presumptuous for him to run over and say that he wanted to cut off their relationship.

Thus, the last thing he thought of was to slowly fade away.

Shi Mei quietly stared at him. After a while, he said, “When you first came to the Sisheng Peak, I told you that I had no parents and no friends. From then on, we were family.”

“… Right.”

“Then why did you change?”

Mo Ran felt very sad. He suddenly felt a little lost in his heart as well, not knowing why he had to be so estranged from Shi Mei.

Ever since he came back from the ghost realm, did he exchange more than a hundred sentences with Shi Mei?

The two who used to be inseparable were now walking further and further away. Mo Ran could not help but hesitate if he had done too much.

He said, “I’m sorry.”

“… There’s nothing to be sorry about.” Shi Mei looked away, “Forget it, that’s all.”

“Don’t be angry. You’re angry, I. You’ve always been good to me.”

Shi Mei finally smiled faintly: “I treat you very well, then what about compared to Shizun?”

Mo Ran said, “That’s different.”

“I remember that you told me before that I treated you well because it gave you a lot of warmth,” he said. “Then what about Shizun?”

Mo Ran said, “He gave me his life.”

For a long time, Shi Mei didn't answer. Finally, he sighed: "I can't compare."

Seeing this, Mo Ran's heart felt even worse. "There's nothing to compare to. People are different. You —"

Without waiting for him to finish speaking, Shi Mei turned his face to the side and slapped Mo Ran's chest against the wind, "Alright, you don't need to say anymore. I know what you mean. Actually, I am not a person who would care too much about others' opinions. However, I am truly sad that you misunderstood me like this before."

"Hmm…"

"I think it's already over. No one can think about it anymore."

Mo Ran's black eyes were warm as he nodded after a while. He said almost gratefully, "Alright."

Shi Mei was tall and slender. Leaning against the jade fence of the Sword Discourse Arena, he looked down at the rustling leaves. After a while —

"Go back."

"What did you want to say that year?"

At the same time, Mo Ran was stunned. "Which year?"

Shi Mei said: "The year of the Heavenly Rift."

Only then did Mo Ran remember the scene from the Heavenly Rift, where he was frozen in place for a moment with his unspoken confession.

Shi Mei said, "Back then, you didn't finish your sentence with me. I don't know what you want to say, but can I ask you now?"

Mo Ran was about to reply when he suddenly heard a loud sound from the Loyalty Hall behind him.

Both his and Shi Mei's expressions changed as they replied, "It's Shizun's side!"

Shi Mei did not have the time to chat and said, "Quickly go back and have a look."

The two of them turned around and rushed back to the main hall. When they arrived at the entrance of the Loyalty Hall, they discovered that there was actually a second fat gourd on the large plaza.

Mo Ran exclaimed, "What is this?!"

Xue Zhengyong covered his face and said, "Wine Lust Gourd."

"How many are there?!"

"Two, one wine, one color. They are twins." Xue Zhengyong's head was about to explode. "The one fighting with Yuheng is only the little brother. This is the big brother."

Mo Ran's heart twitched. It was only after a while did he come to his senses. "Wine gourds like to compete with others. That colored gourd…" He turned around, blue in the face, and looked at the fat, twirling peach gourd.

Xue Zhengyong said awkwardly, "The perverted gourd can do the most alluring things in the world. It only obeys the orders of the purest of people."

Mo Ran turned his head and said, "Xue Meng!"

Shi Mei exclaimed, and said: “Why isn’t Xue Meng here? Where did he go?”

Xue Zhengyong pointed at the colored gourd. “He has already gone through the trial in the bottle gourd, he said that he will help to share his worries.”

Mo Ran let out a sigh of relief. “Then it’s alright. If even Xue Meng was not pure, then there would be no pure people in this world.”

Right after he said those words, ‘peng’, an explosive sound was heard.

Xue Meng was blown out of the gourd and landed heavily in the middle of the crowd. The commotion was so loud that everyone turned to look at him. Even Chu Wanning, who was drinking with the wine gourd, turned his head around.

Shi Mei was stunned, “What’s wrong?”

Another person exclaimed in astonishment, “Could it be that even Young Master…”

“Cough, cough, cough.” Xue Meng’s face swelled red as he stood up shakily from the ground. His eyes were filled with anger and shame as he roared at the perverted gourd, “You — you demon! You, you, you, are you shameless!”

Mo Ran looked around and saw that Xue Meng had at some point changed to a golden-red robe. He felt that it was both funny and curious. “What’s going on?”

Xue Zhengyong only held his forehead, unable to say a word.

“I have heard of this before. The Lust is not lustful, but infatuated; it wants to find the cleanest, most infatuated person in the world and no one in its heart to marry it. It is said that those who are sucked into the gourd will find themselves in a new room.”

“… And then?”

“After that, the primordial spirit of the perverted gourd will turn into the appearance of a bride and groom. However, regardless of whether the bride and groom are married or not, their faces are covered. They have to wait for the other party to personally uncover them.”

Mo Ran said, “Is that the perverted gourd itself you uncover?”

“Of course not, the things that you uncover will vary depending on the person. If you have someone you love, you will see the appearance of the person you love. If you don’t have someone you love, but you are lustful, it is said that what you see will be…” Shi Mei coughed lightly, a bit embarrassed, “An unblemished beauty. Only the purest of people will be able to see the original appearance of the colored gourd.”

Mo Ran turned his head in disbelief to look at the fuming Xue Meng on the spot. “What did that Xue Meng see?”

He truly did not believe that Xue Meng had a lover, but he also did not believe that Xue Meng could see some naked beauty or beauty in his eyes.

However, Xue Meng was actually thrown out by the colorful gourd. Moreover, seeing the colorful gourd rolling around on the spot, it was obvious that he was extremely happy. He even looked at Xue Meng and laughed.

Shi Mei could not bear to see this, so he tried to smooth things over for Xue Meng. He said, “It might be a mistake on the part of a pervert…”

Before he could finish, Xue Meng unsheathed his sword and pointed at the perverted gourd as he roared, “You actually changed into my own fucking illusion to confuse me! You even made me dress like a woman in the illusion! You, your dog’s broken gourd! How dare you humiliate me!”

“…” The disciples at Sisheng Peak, including Mo Ran, were all silent for a moment. They wanted to endure it, but they couldn’t. All of them started laughing out loud.

The most narcissistic was Xue Ziming, the peacock spreading the tail of the water fairy, and the newlyweds made out of perverted gourds. When Xue Meng lifted his head, what he saw was actually his own heavily made-up face.

“That’s reasonable.” Mo Ran tried his best to restrain himself from laughing too exaggeratedly. He nodded his head and said, “Xue Meng should be very pretty when he’s a girl.”

Before he could finish laughing, Xue Zhengyong heard a headache coming on as he shouted, “Yuheng, why don’t you treat this perverted gourd after we settle it?”

Ch. 193 Shizun, Did You Marry Me?

There were three people at the Sisheng Peak who were the most aloof and innocent.

Xue Meng.

Elder Tanlang.

Chu Wanning.

Xue Meng had already been thrown out by the perverted gourd. Elder Tanlang was not a virgin; he had once married a wife. However, that girl's body was weak and died soon after.

It was said that Elder Tanlang was studying medicine because he didn't want to see people leave because of illness.

Thus, the only one left was Chu Wanning.

"Elder Yuheng will surely be able to take care of it."

"Yeah, even the Young Master can't do that. We can only rely on the Young Master's Shizun."

Mo Ran was listening full of anger, but there was nothing he could do. He could only stand there.

With nothing to do, Mo Ran was in a hurry to seek medical treatment. He said to Xue Zhengyong, "How about I try it?"

Xue Zhengyong looked him up and down and spoke in a rather euphemistic tone, "Yang-er, the first requirement is that there has never been a history of love.”

Mo Ran: “…”

On the other side, the wine gourd was completely disoriented by Chu Wanning. Finally, it fell to the ground with a plop. The green smoke dissipated and became a small jade gourd lying quietly on the ground. Xue Zhengyong walked forward and put the wine gourd into his Qiankun bag and said happily, “Haha.

“As expected of Yuheng. Come, colored gourd.”

Chu Wanning’s expression remained the same, but his eyelashes fluttered, and he refused to look directly into Xue Zhengyong’s eyes, “No.”

Xue Zhengyong was stunned, not to mention him, even the surrounding disciples and elders were stunned.

“Wh-why?”

“… I drank too much. I’m tired.”

Xue Zhengyong was not an idiot. He did not want to get drunk with Chu Wanning, so he was not lying.

He stared at the man in white, staring at Chu Wanning impatiently. He flicked his sleeves and turned around. Xue Zhengyong suddenly realized something. He was stunned for a moment and blurted out, “Yuheng, don’t tell me you can’t —”

Chu Wanning’s ears suddenly turned red. He looked back angrily, his eyes flashing like lightning. “What nonsense are you spouting?”

Before he could even finish his sentence, he felt like he couldn't take it anymore. He thought to himself, "How is this possible? Who is Chu Wanning?"

Xue Zhengyong slapped his leg in anxiousness. "Then you, then you give it a try. Otherwise, if this gourd keeps wandering here, although it won't hurt anyone, it'll be troublesome to death. Furthermore, this wine gourd's skin is so tough that even if you spend three to five years, you probably won't be able to cut off a single layer of its skin."

"…" Chu Wanning's gaze swept across the crowd. All the disciples were looking at him eagerly. Only Mo Ran felt ashamed and could not hide the burning sensation in his heart.

Chu Wanning cursed in his heart. However, he was currently stuck in a dilemma. If he were to just leave like this, then he was afraid that he would have more complaints in the future. After thinking for a moment, he said, "Then I'll try."

The colorful gourd quickly sucked Chu Wanning into its stomach, then it began to spin on the spot. None of the disciples were suspicious of Chu Wanning's strength. They were confident that he would be able to tame the perverted calabash even if Chu Wanning were to enter. Only Mo Ran knew what he was capable of.

In this world, the most innocent immortal elder had already, on that rainy night not too long ago in the dark inn of Wuchang Town, been lying on the bed with his lips touching his skin.

He had dirtied it with his own hands.

Chu Wanning opened his eyes.

This gourd had its own world. It was like a dream.

It was just as the legends said. The bright gourd was lit up by red candles, and the wedding veil hung low in the air. Go forward, but see a big bed of red acid branches thick quilt, sprinkle peanut red jujube, felt the curtains are all ready.

An old woman with long green hair and a smile, looking like a gourd, stood at the door of the greenhouse. She had a wide grin on her face, and even her teeth were emerald green.

Chu Wanning knew that it was impossible for him to tame the gourd, so he didn't bother to say anything else. He walked up to the old woman and said, "Grandma, just send me out. Don't make me turn my head."

The old woman said pleasantly, "Hmm, hum, hum."

"…"

He did not expect that this old woman did not know human speech and was not as sharp as the wine gourd. He did not understand what Chu Wanning meant by that. Chu Wanning had no other choice but to sigh and grit his teeth as he walked towards the bed.

On the bed sat a man, with a dark dragon pattern embroidered on his robes and phoenix feathers embroidered on his lower body. His feet were bare and his head was covered, making it difficult to see his face.

The old lady walked over unhurriedly. Smoke rose from his hand, and a jade ruyi appeared. He handed it over to Chu Wanning and gestured for him to come over.

Although Chu Wanning could not accept the fact that Mo Ran was wearing a bridal dress, thinking about it made him feel slightly disgusted. However, thinking about how he had once played the role of the bridegroom in Butterfly Town, he also felt that Mo Ran was making a fool of himself.

"…"

Yes, that's right. Being disgusted was one thing, if he didn't want to see it, it was useless.

Chu Wanning stood for a moment with an ashen face, took a deep breath and walked forward.

The old woman urged, "Hmm, hum, hum."

"Understood, don't be anxious."

The red silk fell to the ground as the ruyi appeared.

Chu Wanning opened his eyes wide, "You are…"

A man wearing a crown on his head opened his eyes in between the candles. Light flowed across his pale and handsome face, and his black eyes were filled with mockery. He raised his chin slightly and smiled at Chu Wanning.

Chu Wanning was stunned.

This person was indeed Mo Ran, but his face was a bit sickly and fair, and his eyes looked very sickly. He had a very strange expression on his face.

"Hmm, it seems that in Wanning's heart, he still can't forget this Venerable One." Seeing him in a daze, the man stretched out his hand and grabbed Chu Wanning's wrist. His fingers were cold as he stared into Chu Wanning's eyes, ruthless and fierce like a vulture.

Mo Ran grinned. He smiled, but it was not a warm smile. Instead, it was a smile filled with dense white teeth.

"I am very pleased."

… What nonsense!

Chu Wanning was both angry and amused. He thought to himself that this lecherous gourd must have gone silly in the Golden Drum Tower. Anyone who came out of it would be baffled.

"Let go."

Mo Ran did not let go.

Chu Wanning turned around and said to the green-haired old lady, "Tell him to let go."

Before he finished his sentence, "bride" Mo Ran stood up abruptly. Chu Wanning only had enough time to see the crown on his head swaying before his waist tightened and his world spun. When he regained his senses, he was already pushed onto the gold-red bed.

"It seems that you really enjoyed the taste I gave you?" The man's breath was hot on the side of his neck. "So much so that you can't forget me…"

Chu Wanning frowned as he tried to avoid the topic. He cursed in his heart for being too ridiculous.

Mo Ran had always been gentle, polite, and well-behaved to him. How could he possibly speak to him like this? He was embarrassed and amused at the same time. Annoyed and helpless, he kept hiding like this for a while until the pillow area became a mess.

Suddenly, in the time it took for a spark to fly off of a piece of flint, Chu Wanning narrowed his eyes as he looked at the golden red cloth. He suddenly thought of something.

A dream.

He was stunned for a moment.

Then, his face suddenly turned red.

This… this was a dream that he had.

This was how Mo Ran acted in his dreams. He spoke harsh and stimulating words, and his actions were very unrestrained.

So, this was not an illusion randomly born from a perverted gourd, but his own shameful thoughts deep within his heart? This thought was too shameful, causing Chu Wanning to be embarrassed for a moment he was so embarrassed that even the tips of his ears were burning.

“Darling…”

Suddenly, a wave of heat and wetness came over Chu Wanning. As his mind drifted away, Mo Ran kissed his ear. Greedy and sinister, he stuck his tongue into his eardrum.

“Ahh…”

Chu Wanning was caught off guard by this sudden burst of excitement, his voice was hoarse and moist, filled with moisture.

Since the voice had already been spoken, it was even more humiliating.

However, for some reason, the scene before his eyes was too real. It was as if he had kissed and pestered his like this a long time ago. Chu Wanning was trapped on the bed by him as Mo Ran kept kissing his neck, cheeks, ears, and his movements were extremely rough and quick.

He was anxious and angry, and even his eyes were red. He wanted to struggle, but he could not do so, until this “Mo Ran’s” lips was about to land on his own.

“Bam!”

Suddenly, ‘Mo Ran’ seemed to have sensed something. He was stunned for a moment as he stared at Chu Wanning in disbelief.

Taking advantage of the opening, Chu Wanning pushed him away. The golden light in his hands glowed and Tianwen was lit up. He then chopped down at the “Mo Ran” in the illusion.

Upon seeing the Heaven Seeking Light, “Mo Ran” became even more astonished and blurted out, “You actually… You are actually…”

The willow vine descended, and flowers of fire splashed everywhere.

“Mo Ran” was in pain, but he did not resist. Instead, he widened his eyes in astonishment. After a few moments, a thin cloud of smoke rose.

The old woman with the green hair disappeared, as did Mo Ran.

Inside the warm room, there was an unfamiliar young man with green hair and sharp ears. He looked extremely handsome.

Chu Wanning was still fuming, he got up from the bed and grabbed his open shirt, glaring at the man with his maddened phoenix eyes. His voice was low and dangerous, like a tiger or leopard that had been angered.

He gritted his teeth and said, “Evil creature.”

This young man was the primordial spirit of the “perverted gourd”. It stared at Chu Wanning, its face was pale, shocked and fearful, “It’s you…”

Chu Wanning was angry, he turned his head and stared at him: “What do you mean?”

The colored gourd was already trembling in fear. With a ‘putong’ sound, it knelt on the ground and kowtowed. “I don’t know who this junior is…” It was as if he was afraid to even say Chu Wanning’s name. He trembled and kowtowed again, “Please forgive me, Sir Immortal. Please forgive me.”

“…”

Back in time, Chu Wanning beheaded and exterminated demons, taming demons and ghosts. “Tianwen” was a well-known existence among those demons and devils, even small demons wouldn’t dare to move when they saw him.

However, he didn’t expect that this perverted gourd was of the same moral character.

Chu Wanning kept his Tianwen. With a gloomy face, he got up and stared at the young man who was kowtowing. After a moment of silence, he said, “Take me out.”

“Yes, yes!”

He immediately chanted an incantation and a “peng” sound rang out. Smoke rose up from the ground, and Chu Wanning was completely blinded by the fog. When the fog dissipated and he could see clearly, he had already returned to the plaza in front of the Loyalty Hall.

A few people immediately surrounded him.

“Shizun, are you alright?”

“Yuheng, you did too well!”

“Shizun, Shizun, are you hurt?”

The smoke had the smell of rotting gourds, Chu Wanning felt dizzy from the smoke. It took him a while to notice that the colored gourd had also disappeared. On the stone floor in front of him lay a small, peach-colored bottle gourd.

Chu Wanning thought about the illusion and felt ashamed. He didn’t want to say anything more and just said, “Take these two gourds and let them stay in the Demon Suppressing Pagoda.”

Xue Zhengyong said, “Okay… Hmm…”

However, his gaze was fixated on Chu Wanning, going back and forth with some hesitation.

Chu Wanning was scared out of his wits by his stare, “What’s wrong?”

“… Nothing.”

However, Xue Zhengyong's expression was definitely not saying "nothing." Chu Wanning suddenly realized that other than him, the rest of the people around him were also sneaking glances at him, full of curiosity and amusement. Chu Wanning turned around, and even Mo Ran looked at him awkwardly, his face red.

"Why…"

This time, before he could ask, Chu Wanning already knew the reason.

He looked down and saw his clothes.

It was unknown when he had first entered the belly of the colored gourd, but the clothes he wore had been replaced by a golden robe similar to the one Xue Meng wore.

Chu Wanning: "…"

The matter of Elder Yuheng accepting the matter of defeating the demon quickly became a topic that the people at Sisheng Peak discussed with great interest.

"I wonder who exactly Elder Yuheng is married to in the belly of the gourd."

Some people did not mind that their lives were short. They said in high spirits, "They must definitely be a beauty like a fairy."

Some felt that they had a long life ahead of them, so they winked and said, "Maybe he's a god-like man?"

One treasured his life very much, so he said seriously, "When the Elder lifted the cover, what he saw should be the bottle gourd itself. If he saw something else, the bottle gourd would not be happy and he would not be able to subdue this demon."

Everyone despised this coward who treasured his life and felt that he was uninteresting, so they shook their heads and scattered.

However, at the Sisheng Peak, there was still the bravest warrior who was unafraid of death…

On this day, the weather was dark and the morning cultivation was suspended. Mo Ran brought snacks early in the morning, and when no one was looking, he sneaked over to the Red Lotus Pavilion to eat with Chu Wanning.

After the two of them had their meal, this "Heavenly Immortal beauties" and "Heavenly God beauties", who everyone was talking about, pulled on Chu Wanning's hand and asked, "Shizun, did you marry me in the lustful gourd?"

Ch. 194 Shizun, Am I Not the Little Sister You Love?

Chu Wanning ate until he was full and then angrily said, “Marry what? You’re a man, you don’t even have to be ashamed to say such words…”

“Then, since it’s not you marrying me, then is it me marrying you?”

Chu Wanning got even angrier. Not only was he angry, he was also ashamed.

He could not tell Mo Ran even if he was beaten to death. The appearance of the colored gourd was exactly the same as the one he had dreamt of in his dreams, Mo Ran with somewhat pale skin.

Nor would he tell Mo Ran how they had been entangled in each other in that dream, making love so fiercely and sweetly.

One of the most important things in this world was the face of Elder Yuheng.

Thus, Chu Wanning brushed his sleeves and said, “If you continue babbling such nonsense, leave now. I won’t allow you to stay here any longer.”

He pursed his lips as if he felt wronged, but at least he was obedient. He looked at Chu Wanning with his shiny black eyes and rubbed his cheeks with the tip of his nose, saying gently, “Oh, then I won’t ask anything.”

“Dear Shizun, don’t chase me away.”

“Shizun is enough, don’t add to it.” Chu Wanning felt his heart go soft upon hearing his words. Even though he could not resist, he pushed him against his head and said with a straight face, “Don’t scream.”

“But if I only call you Shizun, then it’s not intimate at all.”

“Is it?”

“Look, I’ll call you Shizun in public, but if I call you Shizun in private, it’ll be tedious and passionless, right?”

Chu Wanning was not fooled, “No, that’s not right.”

“…” If one move was not enough, then another would be done. Mo Ran pulled Chu Wanning and kept calling out, “Shizun, Shizun, Shizun.” Every form of summoning was sweet and greasy, giving Chu Wanning goosebumps. In the end, Chu Wanning could not take it anymore and threw a book beside him onto Mo Ran’s face.

“Shut up.”

The book was very thick, but it was very light when it came down. It didn’t hurt.

Mo Ran laughed as he took down the book, revealing his handsome and peerless face at the back, “I’m afraid that if I keep calling you Shizun like this, you might accidentally call me Shizun. So, let’s think of a way to address you.”

Chu Wanning frowned, “Since you’ve called me by another name, can’t you get used to it by running over to someone else to call that?”

Mo Ran sighed. “Why don’t you bite the hook?”

“…” Being stung by this description made Chu Wanning even more displeased. He lowered his head to tidy up his books, ignoring his disciple who was lying on the table blowing on his hair.

After living in peace for a while, Mo Ran said in disappointment, “I want to get some good stuff from Shizun.”

“Hmm?”

“Shi Mei and Xue Meng call you Shizun. I also call you Shizun, but there’s no difference at all. I, I actually don’t want much, I just want to ask for something different… something only I can call you.”

Chu Wanning stopped what he was doing and straightened up to look at him.

“I won’t do it often.” Mo Ran’s dense and long eyelashes droop, casting fragmented shadows on the tip of his nose. “Occasionally… Is that also not possible?”

“…”

“You really can’t.” Mo Ran looked even more disappointed, “If you don’t want to, then don’t.”

In the end, Chu Wanning gave way.

He had probably grown ten years older than he was, but he would still be unable to resist the young man’s coaxing and pleading.

He looked at the handsome man who was smiling brilliantly after he nodded to himself. Suddenly, he felt like he had been cheated.

He always seemed to be ferocious, bared his fangs and brandished his claws. But in the end, he was always the one who compromised and was always obedient to Mo Ran.

This fish had wandered around for so long that it finally bit the hook called Mo Ran in a fit of dizziness.

“What should I call you?” he asked.

Chu Wanning looked dispirited, “It’s up to you.”

“How could I be careless? This is a very important matter.”

Mo Ran thought hard for a long time, but his brain was still lacking. He even had some vulgarity, so he could only ask, “Darling?”

Chu Wanning immediately thought of that dream, unable to bear it any longer, “Don’t.”

“Chuchu?”

Chu Wanning felt disgusted and asked with a dark face, “… Do you need me to call you A-Ran?”

“Hahaha, it really isn’t that good.” Mo Ran scratched his head and laughed for a while before he frowned and thought again. However, his thoughts were still a bit too strong, so it was still very bad. “Darling Chuchu?”

After saying so, he could no longer take it anymore. Holding his forehead, he felt some despair.

Seeing him like this, Chu Wanning could not help but laugh, “It’s better not to think too much. What’s the point of thinking so hard? On the contrary, it’s quite awkward.”

Mo Ran felt that what he said was reasonable, but he was not willing to accept it. In the end, he smiled and said, “In the future, I will definitely think about it and think of the most suitable nickname to give to you."

Pausing for a moment, he pulled Chu Wanning over, who was standing by the side, and let him sit on his lap. He stared at him for a while.

Chu Wanning felt uneasy, "What is it…"

Mo Ran sighed and muttered, "No matter how many times I see you, I won't be able to hold it in."

"What a mess… Ugh…"

Before he could finish his words, his lips were already covered. Mo Ran had warm and slightly moist lips, and it was sweet and fragrant. He hugged the person on his leg, and the two of them kissed tightly in the chair. It was raining outside, and the sound of the rain masked the sticky, shy sound of lips and tongue.

When they split up, Chu Wanning slowly opened his moist eyes. He wanted to see Mo Ran, but he didn't dare to.

Mo Ran smiled. Knowing that he was thin faced, he couldn't help but pull him into his arms and caress him, his heart thumping.

"Actually, I can call you anything."

"Hmm?"

"Nothing." In the end, he only said, "Shizun is the best."

Chu Wanning leaned on his shoulder. This kind of feeling was very sweet, but it also made him at a loss of what to do.

Sitting on his legs, he could clearly feel the hard, hot thing, and he felt his head start to burn.

After a while, he said softly, “Why are you…”

“Cough, I’m fine.”

“… Let me help you…” After saying that, Chu Wanning’s face was burning.

Mo Ran hurriedly said, “There’s no need. Shizun still needs to go to the Elders meeting in a little while.”

Chu Wanning looked at the dripping liquid, “There is still about ten minutes left, it should be…”

Mo Ran said embarrassedly, “It’s not enough.”

“Hmm?”

“… I can’t get it out.”

Chu Wanning was stunned for a moment before reacting, his face turning even redder.

He quickly got up from Mo Ran’s body and took a step back.

After he had finished retreating, he felt somewhat vexed. He seemed to think that his behavior was one of cowardice, so he took another step forward.

Mo Ran found this funny. He sat on the chair and did not try to hide it. Even though his clothes were covering it, the place of his desire was still ferocious. It could take a person’s life.

“I won’t tease you anymore.” At last, Mo Ran grabbed his wrist. He wanted to pull him over and kiss his lips, but the taste of Chu Wanning was too seductive. He was afraid that he would be indulged if he touched him, so he just held his hand.

He brought his hand to his lips and looked at Chu Wanning. Then, he lowered the curtain and kissed him. Very pious.

Finally, he licked the back of Chu Wanning’s hand.

“Shizun, you’re so sweet.”

It had rained for half a month. Finally, the day was clear and the sun was shining.

Mo Ran walked between the bamboo forests while stepping on the shallow and deep pool of water. He had resumed his morning cultivation today, but Chu Wanning did not come. People said that he had gone to the back of the mountain to teach Xuanji’s foolish disciples how to throw Plum Blossom Darts.

“Relax your hand, the Plum Blossom Darts is stuck between your index and ring fingers. The spiritual energy is emitted from the tip of your finger, causing it to scatter at the tip. Wait for the edge to emit a golden light before throwing it at the target.”

“Rustle…”

Just from the sound alone, Mo Ran knew that his disciples had failed once again. Each and every one of them began to lament.

“Oh my god, it’s really difficult.”

“Elder, can you demonstrate it to us again?”

“When the golden light is released, the Plum Blossom darts will feel slightly warm. Feel it carefully and don’t use your eyes to look.”

“You can aim even when you don’t see it?”

Before Chu Wanning could reply, a laughing voice came from behind him, “Of course we can aim.”

Chu Wanning turned around, “Why are you here?”

The group of new disciples said, “Senior Brother Mo.”

Among them was an extremely cute and adorable female disciple. Upon seeing Mo Ran’s face, her face immediately turned red as she hurriedly cupped her hands together.

Mo Ran did not pay any more attention to Xun Ji’s apprentice. Instead, he walked up to Chu Wanning and said, “Shizun, why don’t you cover your eyes and throw it at them?”

“… Alright.”

With permission, Mo Ran took off the snow-green headband on his head. It was as wide as three fingers and wrapped around Chu Wanning’s eyes. The headband was tightly tied, but it didn’t tighten.

“Plum Blossom Darts.”

A disciple of Elder Xuanji stepped forward and handed his Plum Blossom Darts to Chu Wanning.

Chu Wanning said, “Three.”

“Huh?” Although the disciple was puzzled, he still took out two more from his hidden weapon bag and handed them over to him. Chu Wanning’s slender white fingers stroked the cold metal texture of the Plum Blossom Darts. He pursed his lips and didn’t say a word. He didn’t stay any longer. He could only see the dart fly out from between his fingers in a split-second.

“Clang! Clang! Clang!”

A buzzing sound rang out.

“Oh, it hit! Red in the bull’s eye! But there’s only one.”

Chu Wanning did not utter a word. Mo Ran said flatly, “There are two more on the target behind you.”

When the new disciples heard this, they didn’t believe it and turned their heads to look. However, when they looked, they were filled with fear. The two remaining darts, one on the left and one on the right, were embedded in a target in the complete opposite direction, right in the center of the heart.

In the bamboo forest, the morning sun was flowing. The Xuanji disciples were shocked speechless. Chu Wanning lifted his hand to pick up the blue ribbon covering his eyes. His phoenix-like eyes slightly raised, and his eyelashes fluttered.

He handed the hairband back to Mo Ran and said, “The first sound just now was the sound of the three plum blossom darts colliding in the air.

All the disciples looked at each other, when suddenly, a young one with a face full of longing shouted: “Elder, this, this, how should we train? Is there a trick to it?”

Chu Wanning said, “Mo Ran, show them your hand.”

The younger disciples surrounded him in an attempt to see what kind of tricks he was holding, but after looking for a long time, they could not find anything. On the other hand, the female cultivator was looking, her heart was beating wildly, and her eyes were filled with emotions.

She and her sisters had just entered the school, so they were still restless. They would often go down the mountain to buy some random books, and they had secretly read the book that Chu Wanning had read before. When the girls saw the rankings, they were shy and surprised, laughing and laughing at each other, but they had also discussed the matter in whispers in the disciple’s room.

“I heard that the longer a man’s finger, the more majestic that place becomes.” A bold senior sister said, “If there is a chance next time, I will go to Mengpo Hall for dinner and then squeeze behind Brother Mo to take a look. I would like to see how big his hand is.”

Later on, the senior sister really did squeeze in. In order to line up behind Mo Ran, she hurriedly ran. She even accidentally overturned the bowl of soup and poured half of the hot soup on him.

The girl’s small mouth slightly opened, sluggish and embarrassed. She didn’t know what to do, but she saw a long, well-proportioned hand carry away the bowl in his bowl that was still bubbling with hot soup, put it back on the counter, and then replace it with a new bowl.

“Don’t knock it over again, it’s not good to waste it.”

Hearing his low and magnetic voice, that Senior Sister did not even dare to raise her head. His face immediately flushed red, and her head began to emit steam like soup from a bowl.

From beginning to end, she only dared to secretly glance at Mo Ran, at his waist, his powerful figure, at his clothes, his broad chest, of course, he would most often glance at those two hands…

“Exquisite.”

After he came back, there were all sorts of unspeakable praises. In the end, only these two words could describe him.

At that time, all of the Junior Sisters in the room had stopped talking. They pursed their lips and felt their hearts warm up, filled with reverie and romantic fantasies.

Suddenly, a cold voice interrupted his memory —

“What do you see?”

One of the disciples said, “Elder, please forgive us. This disciple is too stupid to tell.”

“Senior brother Mo’s hands seem to be particularly strong?”

Everyone was talking at once, it was her turn. His face was red as she nervously said, “his fingers are very long.”

“?”

Mo Ran was stunned for a moment. He did not know what they were looking at, so he retracted his hand and scratched his head. Then, he turned his head to look at Chu Wanning.

Although Chu Wanning did not know what the finger length represented, he was not a slow person. He glanced at the shy appearance of the female disciple and knew that it must not be a good thing. His face darkened as he said coldly, “What are you looking at?”

Seeing that there was a hint of anger between his brows, the disciples jumped in fright and couldn’t help but lower their heads.

Mo Ran felt the tense atmosphere, he did not want Chu Wanning to be called unreasonable again, so he smiled and said, “It’s just a callus.”

After he finished this sentence, he looked at Chu Wanning and said:

“The fingertip is broken, the cocoon is formed, and if it is broken again and again a hundred times, it will be able to accurately control the spirit energy. There are no shortcuts.”

After practicing with them until noon, most of the disciples were able to grasp the gist of the technique, so Chu Wanning did not stay any longer. For other people’s disciples, it didn’t matter if they were given some pointers or not, but if they were taught too carefully, it might actually make Elder Xun Ji feel comfortable. Chu Wanning was no longer 15 or 16 years old, he had just emerged from the mountains. He finally understood a little about the ways of the world.

He and Mo Ran walked out of the bamboo forest and arrived at the Naihe Bridge.

They walked very close, side by side, the sleeves hanging down, the backs of their hands always grind against each other, so that each other’s hearts were soft and numb, like the sprouting of spring.

No one was around, Mo Ran finally reached out and grabbed Chu Wanning's finger. Although it was released very quickly, both of their ears were slightly red and their throats were hot from thirst.

Speaking of which, since the last time the two of them had been intimate, the chances of the two of them being alone was pitifully small.

Occasionally, he would pester him after closing the door of the Red Lotus Pavilion, worrying about whether Xue Zhengyong would suddenly pay him a visit.

Actually, up till now, it was just a short time of touching his fingers, but it already caused a fire to burn in Mo Ran's chest. He softly said, "Shizun, tonight, can we go……"

Before he could finish his words, a person suddenly ran over from the front. Mo Ran immediately stood up straight and pursed his lips, standing to the side without saying anything. The man did not notice anything amiss as he walked over and bowed, "Elder Yuheng, there's an urgent matter. The Sect Leader would like to invite you to the Loyalty Hall as soon as possible."

Chu Wanning asked, "What's wrong?"

"A guest came, bringing important news related to Xu Shuanglin. Sect Leader Xue couldn't make up his mind by himself, so he called all the elders over early in the morning to discuss with them. All that's left is for you."

After Chu Wanning heard the two words 'Xu Shuanglin', he immediately ran towards the Loyalty Hall without caring about warmth.

Mo Ran followed closely, saying, “Wait for me. I’ve fought with Xu Shuanglin, so maybe I can help.”

The two of them swiftly used their lightness skills and arrived in front of the Loyalty Hall in a few moments.

Pushing the door open and entering the hall, the entire hall was silent. Apart from Xue Zhengyong and the elders, two other men covered in blood were standing in the hall.

Mo Ran’s gaze fell on the sword case on the back of one of the men and found it somewhat familiar. After a moment, he suddenly opened his eyes wide as his expression changed, “Ye Wangxi?”

Ch. 195 Shizun Is Best

Hearing someone call her, Ye Wangxi turned around. Although her expression was haggard, her spirit was not as bad as Mo Ran had imagined.

Seeing Mo Ran, Ye Wangxi lowered her eyes and bowed to him as a man would. She could not change this habit and said, “Young Master Mo.”

Mo Ran looked at her, then at the man beside her.

He could not help but ask, “You guys… Where did this come from? Why is your body covered in blood…”

Ye Wangxi said, “We started off from Linyi and encountered many evil spirits along the way. It’s hard to avoid being disheveled. My apologies.”

Mo Ran was about to ask again, but Xue Zhengyong said, “You’re here? Sure, come in and talk.”

Once Chu Wanning entered the room, he stopped looking at Mo Ran and sat in his seat. He tidied up his clothes and looked at Nangong Si.

Although he and Nangong Si did not have the title of Shizun and disciple, they did have the grace to be enlightened. He looked at Nangong Si for a moment and could not help but feel sad in his heart, but he merely said a simple sentence, “… Are you all okay?”

This was the first time someone had seen them and asked them if they were doing well since the death of the Rufeng Sect.

He closed his eyes for a long time before suppressing the urge to cry in front of Chu Wanning. He said hoarsely, “No, it’s fine, it’s alright.”

Chu Wanning sighed softly and lowered his eyes, not saying another word.

He did not believe Nangong Si's words. Linyi Road was far away, how could the two young men not suffer?

Xue Zhengyong's heart ached and he helped to explain, "Yuheng, you did not come. It's like this. Young Master Nangong and Miss Ye found some clues and came to inform us."

"I heard that it's related to Xu Shuanglin?"

"Yes."

"Sit down and let's talk."

Mo Ran went to bring a chair over, but both Nangong Si and Ye Wangxi felt that their bodies were dirty and smelly, and they were unwilling to sit down. Chu Wanning didn't force them. He paused for a while before asking, "When we parted ways that day, where did you go?"

"Ye Wangxi and I are forced to stay in Mount Wei which is separated by a river because of the calamity fire." After pausing for a moment, he continued, "The terrain of the Wei Mountain is desolate and inaccessible. Ye Wangxi was also injured, so after the fire was extinguished, we rested for a while before we returned… We have returned to the Rufeng Sect."

Now, he heard Nangong Si mention the sect that he had joined when he first entered the world, it was already very different. Chu Wanning couldn't explain how he felt. After a while, he sighed, "There should be nothing growing there anymore."

"Grandmaster is right. It's true that not even an inch of grass has grown. However, something has crawled out from the rubble."

Chu Wanning raised his eyes and asked, “What?”

“These bugs.”

He opened a bloodstained sack in front of him, half open and half concealed. The bag was filled with buzzing worms, black spots on their green shells, five spots on three, two, and a faint smell of blood coming from their tails. Most of these bugs were still inside the bag, seemingly afraid of the light. However, a few of them had already flown out and stopped on the walls of the Loyalty Hall.

Mo Ran recognized this worm, the Soul Devourer.

This kind of insect only lived in the blood pools near Linyi Rufeng Gate. It was a type of insect that could not live or die, and relied on eating human flesh and soul to survive.

Almost all the elders felt that this insect was extremely disgusting. Lucun even directly covered his mouth and nose with a handkerchief. He could not stand this stench.

“We found these Soul Devouring Insects in the ruins. I thought some of the insects in the nearby blood pool were attracted and flew here, but then I realized it wasn’t.”

“What do you mean?”

“There are too many bugs. Ye Wangxi and I have been through the 72 cities of the Rufeng Sect. In the cracks in the bricks, in the mud, and in the ashes, there are countless of these Soul Devouring Insects. We thought something was wrong, but when we looked carefully, we found not only adults, but larvae as well. Grandmaster should understand what I mean.”

Chu Wanning did not know much about Soul Devouring Insects. At first, he was a little confused, but after some thought, he understood.

The blood pool was next to Mount Wei, separated from Linyi by a large river. The Soul Devouring Insect's wings were weak, and the adults could smell the scent of the dead, so it made sense. But what about the larvae?

How could the larva be able to cross the river on its own legs, cross the mountains, or land itself on the scorched earth of the Door of Doom?

Chu Wanning frowned, "Someone placed it here in advance?"

"Well, I think so."

When Elder Tanlang heard this, he suddenly realized, "This Soul Devouring Insect can store spirit energy. After the disaster, vengeful spirits could be found all over the place, and there are a lot of cultivators around. When the insects eat the spirit souls of cultivators, they become seeds that can store spirit energy of different attributes. With these tens of thousands of seeds, even if you do not need to use your own magic, you can still drive the majority of the formations."

Then who would be the one to release the bugs? Who could foresee this catastrophe? Who needs external spiritual energy?

No one answered, but the answer was obvious.

Only the instigator, Xu Shuanglin, or should be called his original name, Nangong Xu.

Xue Zhengyong said, "So in this period of time, he relied on magic to find Xu Shuanglin. In the end, he didn't use his own strength at all, but the insect's?"

Nangong Si replied, “Yes, that is indeed the case.”

Xue Zhengyong muttered, “Hmm… Detection techniques had only ever detected humans, and were indeed unable to detect the traces of beast-like monsters. If Xu Shuanglin had used this method, it would truly be able to hide for a very long time.”

He then asked Tanlang, “Can we rely on tracking bugs to find Xu Shuanglin’s whereabouts?”

Tanlang said, “Impossible, the Soul Devouring Insects can clear the netherworld. After they’ve eaten enough soul fragments, they’ll all go underground. There’s no way to find their whereabouts.”

Hearing this, Xue Zhengyong suddenly thought of something and said, “Since we are going to the Netherworld, why not ask master Huaizui about it? He should be able to know about the matters of the ghost realm.”

However, Chu Wanning immediately said, “No need to ask him.”

“Why?”

“It’s useless to look for him. He doesn’t want to interfere in the affairs of the mortal world, so he won’t say anything.”

Chu Wanning was once a direct disciple of him. Now that he said those words so decisively, even though everyone was puzzled, they could not say anything more. The entire hall fell silent once again.

After a long while, Xue Zhengyong murmured, “Then what should we do? Since Xu Shuanglin can use the spirit energy of the Soul Devouring Insect to hide from us, no matter how we investigate, it’s useless.

Chu Wanning suggested, “How about we change the way we search?”

“What do you mean?”

“Sect Leader, when Xu Shuanglin left, he took three items with him. Do you remember which three items he took?”

Xue Zhengyong began to count: “Luo Fenghua’s spirit core, Nangong…” He looked at Nangong Si and sighed in his heart. Then, he lowered his voice and said, “Sect Leader Nangong and a godly weapon.”

Chu Wanning said, “Good, he always has his own reasons for doing things. Even when he’s in a hurry to escape, he still insists on taking these three things with him. He definitely won’t be bored just because of this. Then according to the Sect Leader, why would Xu Shuanglin take his older brother away?”

“Um… Revenge?”

“Then why did he take away the godly weapon?”

Xue Zhengyong thought for a moment, “Relying on five types of pure spirit energy to tear open the ghost realm.”

“The reason why the ghost realm is being torn apart is to obtain Luo Fenghua’s spirit core. There is no need for him to tear it apart a second time.”

“Then why?”

“I think there’s one possibility,” Chu Wanning said. “He’s doing it for the Rebirth Technique.”

Xue Zhengyong was startled, “But the Rebirth Technique… Master Huaizui didn’t even need five types of pure spiritual energy to display it.”

Chu Wanning shook his head, “Huaizui said that the method of rebirth isn’t the same in the world, so Sect Leader doesn’t need to use his technique as a reference.”

When Tanlang heard this, he sneered, “Elder Yuheng has no proof, so how could he have the audacity to speculate. Is Xu Shuanglin doing all this for the sake of cultivating the Forbidden Technique for Rebirth?”

Chu Wanning replied, “With the last thing he took away, it was Luo Fenghua’s spiritual core.”

In the main hall, Chu Wanning’s voice was steady and steady.

“Many years ago, I once interrogated a dead girl in Butterfly Town. When that girl was young, she met a madman covered in blood who stuffed her with an orange. He said that her eyes looked very much like an old friend of his, and that madman even said one last sentence — Linyi has a man whose heart was already dead at twenty.”

Twenty years old, that was the age where Nangong Xu had been framed and criticized by the crowd for never being able to stand up again.

That year at the Spiritual Mountain Competition, he had been high-spirited and proud, and felt that as long as he relied on his own talent and lifelong efforts, he would be fair and have everything that he deserved.

However, after exhausting all his efforts, all he received was a lifetime of infamy.

The sharp blade in his hand and the ambition in his heart. He couldn't defeat his brother, who was always flattering him.

He hated it.

Everyone hated him to the depths of their hearts, so there was no place for them to declare their grievances. They all laughed at him, denounced him, and despised him.

In the end, the living became the dead, and the dead became the ghouls.

The evil ghost crawled out from the blood of the broken mountain and wanted to get back the justice it deserved from all the righteous men and women in this world.

"There's no need to mention this madman. If he's Xu Shuanglin, then who's his old friend? Who do you think his eyes look like?"

"They all look alike, but their surnames are Luo…" Xue Zhengyong said in shock, "Could it be Luo Fenghua?"

Chu Wanning said, "I think it should be Luo Fenghua. At the bottom of Jincheng Lake, Xu Shuanglin had tried two techniques, Zhenlong Chess and Rebirth. Zhenlong Chess was to control others, but who was it for when he was reborn? He has only brought two corpses with him in total, Luo Fenghua's and the head of Nangong,and Rebirth is unlikely for the head of Nangong."

Xue Zhengyong muttered: "But why did he revive Luo Fenghua? Wasn't Luo Fenghua the one who framed him before?"

"It's hard to predict what will happen, so you can't speak carelessly." Chu Wanning said, "But he took away Luo Fenghua's corpse. Other than reviving it, I can't think of any other use for him."

Everyone was silent. After some careful consideration, they all felt that Chu Wanning's analysis was not bad, but he had no proof. In the end, these were only their deductions. The answer to this question could probably only be answered by Xu Shuanglin who was currently hiding somewhere.

After the meeting ended, Mo Ran pondered for a long time. That night, he went to the Warm Pavilion to find Xue Zhengyong.

Xue Zhengyong was reading some ancient books and reading some information related to the "Soul Devouring Insects", hoping to obtain some clues regarding Xu Shuanglin's whereabouts.

"Uncle."

"A-Ran? Why aren't you going to bed at this time of the night?"

"I can't sleep, there's something I want to ask uncle."

Xue raised his chin and gestured for him to take a seat. Mo Ran did not beat around the bush and went straight to the point: "Does Uncle know that Luo Fenghua… In other words, the Shizun of Xu Shuanglin, just what sort of person was he?"

"Luo Fenghua." Xue Zhengyong frowned and thought hard for a while before he shook his head, "I haven't interacted much with him, so I can't tell you the specifics. It's probably… Righteous, resolute, impartial, and taciturn, but he actually has a very good temperament and does things with courage. When he was the leader of the Rufeng Sect, he even sent his disciple to cultivate and exterminate demons."

Mo Ran continued, “So in short, other than trying to take over the position of Sect Shizun of the Nangong Family, he didn’t criticize anyone else, right?”

Xue Zhengyong sighed. “That’s right. He’s more than just not criticizing. He’s a good person. I don’t understand why someone like him would curse his disciple so harshly.”

Mo Ran pondered for a moment and suddenly said, “Uncle, did you feel that your description of Luo Fenghua just now was a bit like a person?”

Xue Zhengyong was stunned, “You mean Yuheng? Come on, how could Yuheng’s temper be good?”

“No, it’s someone else.”

“Who is it?”

Mo Ran said, “Ye Wangxi.”

“Ahh…” Slowly, Xue Zhengyong’s tiger-like eyes widened, and three words came out between his lips, “Ye Wangxi…”

This person was benevolent and resolute, tenacious and unyielding. He was indeed very similar to the person in his memory, Luo Fenghua, who had only been Sect Leader for around a year.

“You think so?”

“… Yes.” Xue Zhengyong was gradually surprised, because Ye Wangxi and Luo Fenghua were of different genders and ages, and they were also of different positions in the Rufeng Sect, he had never placed them together before. Now that he was reminded by Mo Ran, he was shocked to realize that the two of them were of the same kind, carved out of the same mold.

The more Xue Zhengyong thought about it, the more surprised he was. Memories that had been sealed for a long time surfaced one by one, he could even vaguely remember that when Luo Fenghua was still a guest of Rufeng Clan, the clothes he wore were extremely similar to the ones Ye Wangxi was used to.

There was also the way the two of them talked and their tone of voice.

Even the way he pulled the bow…

When he was young, he had seen Luo Fenghua draw his bow, it was to celebrate Nangong Liu Shengchen's victory. At that time, Rufeng Sect also invited the Xue brothers, and Xue Zhengyong remembered that in the midst of the flying snow, Luo Fenghua only had three fingers holding his bowstring tightly, his pinky finger was stretched taut, and an arrow shot out through the air, slicing through the white cotton, causing a Snow Demon Rabbit a hundred steps away to fall to the ground.

The surrounding people were all praising his amazing archery skills. Luo Fenghua only smiled gently and casually retracted his bow and arrow, placing it on his left arm. His fingertips subconsciously caressed the bowstring.

It was a set of movements as natural as the clouds and flowing water, carefree and unrestrained. The final conclusion was also different from the others' awe-inspiring might and mighty voice.

Xue Zhengyong watched from the side and was shocked. He then remembered it in his heart.

At this moment, he suddenly recalled that during the Heavenly Rift War, Ye Wangxi and Nangong Si had used arrows together, but Xue Zhengyong did not have much of an impression of them. On the other hand, Ye Wangxi, who had used up all of his arrows, would habitually place his arrows on his left arm, pull back his hands, and subconsciously stroke his fingers on the bowstring.

At that time, he couldn't help but take a few more glances. He felt that the gentle and smooth, relaxed and composed posture was very similar to someone's.

He slapped his forehead and said, "Aiya, really. It was real! It's practically the same!"

Mo Ran raised his eyebrows and asked, "What do you mean by 'exactly the same'?"

"Luo Fenghua looks exactly like Ye Wangxi when he shot an arrow, exactly the same, exactly the same!"

Looking at Xue Zhengyong's shocked expression, Mo Ran couldn't help but laugh, but he said, "Uncle's words are wrong."

"Ah? What's wrong?"

Mo Ran said, "Causality is wrong."

"Causality?"

"Mmm, it's not that Luo Fenghua is like Ye Wangxi." Mo Ran sighed, "It's Ye Wangxi, she's very similar to Luo Fenghua."

When he said this, his eyes shone brightly. He felt that he could finally confirm that Xu Shuanglin's rebirth technique was to revive Luo Fenghua.

Although he did not know how many secrets were hidden within the past events of the Rufeng Sect, but he had experienced two lifetimes. In his previous life, Xu Shuanglin could have died for Ye Wangxi.

He did not believe that Xu Shuanglin was simply unwilling to act because Ye Wangxi was his adopted daughter.

Xu Shuanglin looked very free and at ease, saying, "Linyi has a man, twenty hearts are already dead. He gave his place of residence the name 'Three Lives Courtyard.' He seemed to want to forget everything that had happened in the past, and even gave his adopted daughter a name."

Forgotten.

Forget your old self, old friends, forget past hatred, kindness.

But Xu Shuanglin had unconsciously nurtured Ye Wangxi into that unforgettable reflection, this orphan abandoned by others, into the appearance of another person.

This person who fervently wished for him to forget all the memories of the past, might still be living in the mud of his memories from beginning to end.

At this point, Mo Ran already had a faint guess in his heart. It was probably because he himself had also once gone mad in the darkness, but he felt that his prediction of Xu Shuanglin's behavior was a bit more accurate than the others. However, it was not convenient for him to share his thoughts with others, so he could only first assess the situation and wait to see what would happen.

The next day, Xue Zhengyong, who had gone through all the ancient books to no avail, called over the group of people and said, “The poisonous insects and strange beasts are Guyue’ye’s strong points. We found the Soul Devouring Insect at the old location of the Rufeng Sect. Why don’t we inform Jiang Xi first?”

Xun Ji agreed. “The world’s number one medicine master, the Cold Scale Sacred Hand, is under Jiang Xi. He should be able to find a way to investigate it.”

However, Chu Wanning frowned and asked Ye Wangxi, “Miss Ye, ever since you were young, have you seen your foster father raise any poisonous insects or beasts?”

“Never.”

“What about medicine and beast taming? Have you ever gone hunting?”

“He… He has only raised one parrot, and the rest are monsters and monsters. Even an ordinary puppy doesn’t have the mood to take them in, and his medical skills are even weaker.”

After Chu Wanning heard this, he turned to Xue Zhengyong, “Don’t tell Guyue’ye about the Soul Devouring Insect.”

“Why?”

“Since Xu Shuanglin is not good at medicine, nor is he good at beast taming, it is not necessarily him who is being fed the Gu, but most likely the hand that stuck out from the final crack.”

“You suspect Guyue’ye…”

“You mustn’t jump to conclusions. But caution is always right.”

Ch. 196 Shizun, Do You Want to Take a Bath?

In this way, he couldn't rely on Guyue'ye. After the meeting was over, Xue asked Tanlang to go with him to the flower room to find Madam Wang and discuss how to follow them. This was the so-called specialized in martial arts. At this point, Chu Wanning could not help much and could finally take a break.

In the evening, he stood by the pontoon bridge watching the fish. When the door was knocked, Chu Wanning said, "Come in."

The moonlight illuminated the youth's face. The one who came was Nangong.

"Grandmaster, you called me?"

Chu Wanning said, "I heard that you and Ye Wangxi will be leaving the Sisheng Peak the day after tomorrow. Where are you planning to go?"

Nangong Si lowered his eyelashes. "We plan to go to Mount Jiao."

Mount Jiao was a stronghold of the Rufeng Sect outside of Linyi. To the Rufeng Sect, it was an extremely important place. According to legend, the first generation leader of the Rufeng Sect, once established a contract with a flood dragon. After the death of the flood dragon, he transformed into a mountain of bones.

From then on, all the heroes of the Rufeng Sect were buried here. This mountain range protected the heroic souls of the Rufeng Sect. If there were intruders or presumptuous people, they would all be killed within the mountain.

Not a complete corpse. Every year during the Qingming winter solstice, the Sect Leader of the Rufeng Sect would also go there to offer sacrifices. Therefore, it was said that Mount Jiao was the ancestral hall of the Rufeng Sect.

“My father…” Nangong Si’s eyes dimmed for a moment, then he said, “My father told me that the temple contains the savings left by the previous heads, in case there is a need for future generations. I think it’s time to get them out.”

He did not have any reservations and precautions towards Chu Wanning, so he naturally told him the location of the treasure. Unlike Xue Meng and the others, he was not that close to Chu Wanning. However, they were inextricably linked. It was just a coincidence that he did not become Chu Wanning’s disciple in the end.

Sometimes, Nangong Si would think that if his mother had not died, if Jincheng Lake had not used his wife to exchange weapons, would he have now called Chu Wanning his “Shizun”?

Chu Wanning said, “Mount Jiao is a long distance, and I heard that it is a sign of respect. We must fast for ten days before we can enter the mountain successfully, or else we will be rejected by the dragon spirit. Since we have to go, we might as well finish the fast on the Sisheng Peak and then move out.”

Nangong Si shook his head, “At present, everyone in the Upper Cultivation World bears a grudge against me and Ye Wangxi, and they all wish that we could get rid of them as soon as possible. We will only implicate Sect Leader Xue if people find out that we have been here for too long.

“What nonsense are you talking about?”

“…”

“Ten days is too dangerous. What if the Chou family finds us outside?” Chu Wanning said, “Besides, Sect Leader Xue is a kind-hearted person, I won’t let the two of you leave just like that. Listen to me, don’t go yet.”

After days of fatigue, when he heard Chu Wanning say this, he could not help but feel a bitter pain in his heart, as if tears were about to fall.

He lowered his head abruptly and said, “I dare not forget the great kindness that Grandmaster has shown me.”

“I’ve only lived here for a few days, what favor are you talking about? Also, there’s another reason why I called you over.”

“Grandmaster, please speak.”

“Previously, I heard Xu Shuanglin say that the spiritual core in your body is tyrannical, making it easy for you to go berserk. You can take a look at Madam Wang for this condition.”

Nangong Si was stunned for a moment, and then he laughed bitterly, “The disease of the Nangong Family has been a problem for generations. Before, father invited Guyue’ye’s Cold Scale Sacred Hand to show me, saying that there is no way to suppress it and that I can only let it develop. Even the number one Saint doesn’t think much of it, so how could Madam Wang have such a good method?”

“The Cold Scale Sacred Hand might not be a bad doctor, maybe it’s because he doesn’t want to be a doctor. There are too many sect grudges and benefits, so it’s normal for him to hold back. As for Madam Wang… she has a deep understanding of suppressing the explosive Spiritual Cores, and might be able to help you."

"Why would she want to study this?"

"… It was just a coincidence. Don't ask too many questions, go ahead."

After repeatedly thanking him, Nangong Si left the Red Lotus Pavilion. Chu Wanning looked in the direction he left and couldn't help but sigh.

He thought, Nangong Si was originally such a high-spirited person, arrogant, proud, when in a good mood, he also liked to smile, when he smiled, his eyes would shine, like the light of the morning sun.

He didn't know when he would be able to see it again.

Just as he was about to return to his room, there was a knock on the water pavilion's door. Chu Wanning thought that there was something wrong with Nangong Si and returned. He then said, "Come in."

The door opened, but the person outside was not Nangong Si. Instead, he was Mo Ran, who was holding onto a wooden basin. He was a little hesitant, as if not wanting to make himself seem too reckless, he lightly coughed and said, "Shizun."

Chu Wanning was a little surprised, "Is there something you need?"

"Nothing, I just came to ask you if you want to take a bath together."

Chu Wanning almost choked on his words. With wide eyes, he coughed lightly and asked, "Where are we going?"

Mo Ran hesitated for a moment before saying, "The Miaoyin Springs."

“…”

The Miaoyin Springs was full of twists and turns. It was hard to tell one’s fingers from the other. No matter what one did, it would be hard to find in a secluded place.

Chu Wanning didn’t expect Mo Ran to invite him to take a bath there. He felt a little scared and thought to himself, “This guy is really shameless.”

Shameless, Mo Ran said, “Xue Meng just came back from a bath and said that there weren’t many people in the Miaoyin Springs…” As he spoke, his face turned a bit red. He felt that his words were too naked, so he said, “It’s too cold. I think that if Shizun washes in the pavilion, he might catch a cold…”

Of course he would not catch a cold. If Chu Wanning was willing, he could open a barrier to warm up the surroundings.

He knew it, but he still invited Chu Wanning to bathe in the Miaoyin Springs. This was clearly a sign of his sincerity, yet he dared to say that he was afraid of Chu Wanning’s cold and was too shameless.

The shameless Mo Ran stared at him with his pitch-black eyes. “Shizun, are you going?”

“…”

Chu Wanning was clear that if he nodded, it would mean telling Mo Ran that he knew of his wolfish ambitions, but he was willing to join him.

Upon entering…

As he thought of this, he suddenly thought of that night in the inn. Mo Ran did not hesitate to kneel down, giving him a sense of impending doom that he had never experienced before.

Those eyes were warm and gentle, the water vapor of love was hazy, and when he looked at himself, his heart was soft and scattered.

“Stay with me.”

“… Are you five years old?”

The man with ill intentions smiled and said gently, “Well, it’s getting dark, and I’m afraid of ghosts. If Brother Ning had brought him, he would have dared to walk at night.”

Pui, how shameless.

However, Chu Wanning still went.

Most of the disciples at the summit of the Sisheng Peak had bathed after the late stage of cultivation. At this time, there weren’t many people at the Miaoyin Springs.

Mo Ran lifted the soft curtain and stepped onto the rainbow-stone road with his bare feet. In the midst of the steam, he turned his head to smile at Chu Wanning, pointed at the distance and walked over first.

Chu Wanning sneered in his heart, Weren’t you afraid of ghosts? Why are you walking faster than me?

Most of the disciples loved to take baths in these two ponds, but there were also some nameless ponds, which were very common in those places, and no one would want to take a bath there, except for when the baths were crowded and there was nowhere else to go.

From the corner of his eyes, he caught a glimpse of a few blurry shadows in the middle of the hot spring. However, he could not see their facial features, and could only hear the voices of the disciples, some of which were just idle chatter.

Up ahead, close to the Plum Pond, the fog thickened, making it almost impossible to see.

Suddenly, a large hand reached out and wrapped around him from behind. Chu Wanning's back was pressed against his hot and sturdy chest. Perhaps it was because he was too close and wore very few clothes, but he could clearly feel Mo Ran's desire.

Chu Wanning was shocked, "What are you doing? Don't mess around."

Mo Ran smiled and whispered, "Brother Wanning, don't go any further. There's a ghost up ahead."

"…"

Chu Wanning hesitated between "Ghost your head" and "Brother your head" before reprimanding in a low voice, "Let go!"

Mo Ran did not release them, but instead gently smiled and said, "Letting go is so difficult, I can't do it."

"Are you sick?"

"Yes, I'm really sick. If you don't believe me, look at me."

Chu Wanning was resolute and decisive, even though his ears were already red, “I don’t want to watch.”

Mo Ran laughed, his voice somewhat hoarse. “That’s fine too, we’ll do as you say.”

However, the man’s words were so pleasant to hear that his hands were a completely different story. His rough fingers grazed Chu Wanning’s throat and slowly slid up, grabbing his chin.

“Don’t… Nonsense!”

Although the vision in the fog was gone, the other senses were clearer than usual. Chu Wanning felt Mo Ran’s face and his hot breath on his neck. It made him tremble involuntarily.

“Why are you trembling? Is it because you’re afraid of ghosts?”

“Don’t shout!”

Mo Ran gently smiled and hugged him from behind. He kissed the side of his neck and respectfully said, “I’ll listen to you, stop shouting. Then… Shizun, let this disciple help you bathe and change your clothes, okay?”

“…”

It seemed even worse.

Chu Wanning could not take it anymore. The steam from the hot spring had burned his body and mind. He felt embarrassed and humiliated. His eyes reddened as he said, “I’m not going to take a bath, I’m leaving.”

Mo Ran knew that he was thin faced, but he also felt that this person's appearance of retreating before the battle was both cute and funny. He asked, "Shizun is now like this, do you want to leave? What if we get run into by someone?"

Chu Wanning's face was dark, "If you run into someone, you run into someone. It's better to be bitten by a dog than fooling around with you."

"Bite by a dog?"

"… What's wrong?"

Mo Ran smiled. Because of his burning desire, his eyes were dim and he was not as gentle as usual. He revealed a mouthful of white teeth, leaned over and pressed his body against the back of Chu Wanning's ear.

Chu Wanning thought he was going to say something vulgar, but just as he was about to get angry, he heard the man whisper in his ear, "…Woof."

"… What are you doing?"

"Doesn't it sound like it? I used to have a pup with blue eyes and three flames, that's what it said."

Chu Wanning was speechless, "Never heard of it. And why did you imitate a dog?"

"What do you think?"

"…" Chu Wanning did not know how to react.

As Mo Ran kissed the back of his ear and buried his head into his neck to lick it, he said in a low voice, "You've already cried for it. Shizun said it himself. He would rather be bitten by a dog."

Chu Wanning froze for a moment as his blood boiled.

That person had to add, "Can I bite you now, Shizun?"

Before he could answer, a heavy, urgent kiss fell on him.

Intense entanglement, grinding at the ears and temples. Mo Ran wanted to taste the medicine first, but he didn't expect it to be a poison used to quench his thirst. Chu Wanning was his poison that could destroy his rationality and stir his desire to set the prairie ablaze.

It was as if he wanted to stop, and he wanted to stop.

Unable to stop himself, he began to breathe heavily.

When they parted, Chu Wanning's eyes lost focus, but he did not forget his business, "I'm here to take a bath, first…"

"En!" Mo Ran replied. It sounded a bit like an "en" but also a bit like a "hmph", a very sexy and hoarse voice. At such a close distance, it sounded like Chu Wanning was trying his best to resist, but he knew that his spine was being struck by lightning and his eyes were burning.

His wrist landed on the palm of Mo Ran, and the man led him into the hot water. The sound of the waterfall hid their hurried breathing.

Chu Wanning could not take it anymore. When Mo Ran hugged him and was about to kiss him again, he stopped him with difficulty and asked in a low voice, "Is there really no one here?"

“No, I’ve seen it all. Shizun, do you think I’m really sick?” Mo Ran’s voice was low and boiling as he answered. It was even hotter than the spring water around his legs and even hotter than the temperature of the stomach. “Why is it so hot… This… Hard.”

“…”

Chu Wanning’s face immediately flushed red. This was too shameful. He wanted to withdraw, but the strength of Mo Ran’s hold of his hand was too great, causing his palm to hurt, as if it was about to shatter within the palm of his hand.

The young man’s breathing was quick, hot, and almost lovable, and the smoke was thick around him, making it impossible to see anything, except for his handsome face, which was very near at hand, and his dark eyes were moist with love and burning with it.

Mo Ran’s Adam’s apple bobbed, he stared at Chu Wanning’s face and whispered, “Shizun, help me…”

Once again, he covered his slightly opened lips.

Passion is the flame that burns the oil, and the water cannot extinguish it, the heat wave is churning, and ten thousand pieces of wood become ashes under it.

Meeting half-way in a kiss, their lips and tongues are intertwined, the tongue goes in to absorb each other’s breath, but like scratching between boots, it just feels insufficient and wants more wind.

Mo Ran brings Chu Wanning to the deep of the hot spring. The spring water doesn’t pass the waist. He puts Chu Wanning on the slippery rock wall and kisses him passionately, eagerly and obsessively. He tears Chu Wanning's last thin bathrobe without taking it off completely.

The torrential water splashed on the rocks, and the rain curtain was filamentary. The sound of the waterfall was in their ears, and they could not hear anything.

Chu Wanning was kissed by him in front of the stone wall, his robes were wide open, and dropped to the elbow, which was used to tie his arms.

"You… Don't you…"

But the shame and stimulation of being bound made him more sensitive. He gasped under the comfort of Mo Ran. Suddenly, the pale red on his chest was licked by his disciple's rough tongue. He frowned at him. His solemn face gradually became confused because of lust, and his struggle between indulgence and reason was maddening.

"Gentle, gentler…"

Hoarse throat, Chu Wanning raised his head, and couldn't help but gasp roughly.

The mist escaped and covered everything.

Chu Wanning was turned over and felt thick legs pressed against his and his face was pressed against the cool stone wall. The heat was more and more striking. His eyelids were closed. How could he have imagined that one day he would go to this point with his disciple, that somebody would come to do such erotic things in the Miaoyin Springs with him.

Shame, vacancy, longing, excitement, which made his eyes scatter.

Suddenly there was a thick, long, hot, lively, angry thing between his legs, rubbing between his hips, he was surprised for a moment and he could not help but gasp out: “Ah…”

The man behind him gave a groan, and then seemed to be stimulated by his heavy breathing. He put his big hands around his waist and thrust hard against him underwater.

Although he didn’t go in, he just thrust between his legs, Mo Ran was very passionate. The person under him was Chu Wanning, the strongest aphrodisiac for him.

He leaned over him, and from the surface of the water it seemed that he only stirred up the spray, but under the hot spring his cock was thick and long, rubbing hard against the inner wall of Chu Wanning’s thighs, rubbing into him several times. He was so dizzy that he almost wanted to lift Chu Wanning’s thighs, push himself in and fuck him in regardless of how many times he had gone in and out of him in his previous life. He craved to hug and suck him, hold Chu Wanning’s legs around his waist, groan and come inside him.

“Wanning…”

His throat was moist and dumb, full of sparks.

Mo Ran’s eyes were dark, and the sound of the water was like the rhythm of the intercourse of previous generations. The warmth of the hot spring combined with the touch between Chu Wanning’s legs, which made him realize that he would soon lose his mind.

He gasped, and before he had done something more crazy, he turned Chu Wanning around, with his chest close to his chest, the waterfall confused their eyes, the hot water splashed on their confused faces, Mo Ran fiercely kissed him. He was a little anxious, and he kissed him on the chin, but soon hungrily and thirstily squeezed his lips, which was almost done in a violent way.

His other hand reached down and grasped Chu Wanning's cock, which had also risen to a painful degree, against his own.

Chu Wanning did not expect him to do so. The stimulation of direct rubbing each other and the desire made him close his eyes and hum softly with his neck up: "Mo… Mo Ran…"

He only had time to call his name vaguely before the other's voice was sealed between his lips and teeth with Mo Ran, who rubbed his cock and Chu Wanning's together. Rubbing and stimulating, he hugged his Shizun tightly and felt his slight tremor in his arms. His tremor made him feel love, admiration, madness and obsession.

At the end of the kiss, their lips and teeth were wet and sticky. Chu Wanning opened his eyes subconsciously and looked down where their desires were pleasured together.

At one glance, his scalp went suddenly numb.

For the first time, he saw Mo Ran's cock so clearly that it was really a flesh-and-blood blade. It was rough and full and aggressive. At this time, because of the pleasure, the thing was angry and heavy, and the muscles were clear. The tip was wet and sticky, secreting body fluid and rubbing smoothly against Chu Wanning's abdomen in rhythm.

Chu Wanning closed his eyes suddenly. His whole body was trembling and his mind was in chaos.

How can it be so big? How will we get it inside? I'm afraid I can't even hold it in my mouth. I'll gag. How can it be like this?

He was so ashamed that his eyes burned like fire.

If such a thing comes inside him, will he die?

So those dreams that he had were all unrealistic illusions. Chu Wanning's cheeks were burning red. Otherwise, how is it possible?

How could I possibly kneel on my knees to withstand such fierce intrusion, how could I have accepted such a penis, gasping and groaning shamelessly, like an estrous beast begging for more and more violent interaction?

How can you feel pleasure by being thrusted and ejaculated into?

How is it possible?

The more he thought about it, the more incredible it was, the more humiliating it was and the more aggrieved it was. He even felt a sense of self-contempt, but fortunately Mo Ran did not give him more time to think about it.

Mo Ran's big hand held himself, and also held Chu Wanning, knowing how to touch them.

Desire gradually folded high, the veins of their necks were protruding and shaking because of the pleasure. Chu Wanning rather could not stand it, almost leaking out his voice.

"Don't shout. It's foggy here. You can't see people, but you can hear them." Said Mo Ran bringing another hand to cover Chu Wanning's mouth and nose.

In such a tight and warm fog, Chu Wanning almost produced a kind of suffocating and terrible boiling. His hands were still tied back by his clothes, and his voice was covered. The feeling of being bound by and covered was so painful and exciting.

“Mmm…”

The bullying is too miserable, and the eye tail drips through the tears involuntarily.

Like a dying crane, he leans back slightly, reveals his fragile neck and shakes his head. No, really no. Instead of letting go, Mo Ran went over and gnawed at his throat. Then he raised his eyes quietly and looked at Chu Wanning’s painful and enduring appearance, and at his frowning, almost dying appearance.

“Shizun…”

He muttered and could not help it any longer. He took off his hand covering Chu Wanning and kissed him violently.

The sound of the water was stirring and the waterfall was turbulent.

Chu Wanning was kissed by Mo Ran and could no longer breathe. His lips were slightly swollen, panting, and his eyes were not focused.

Mo Ran embraced him and buried him in his neck. The desire and breathing in the secret place of the hot spring lasted for a long time. By the time they were finally going to climax, both of them were soaked, sweaty and hot, like necked beasts, entangling madly for each other. They only hated that they could not hold each other more tightly, and could not be completely rubbed into each other’s flesh and blood.

“No… I really don’t want to…” Chu Wanning was almost struggling, and the thrill of desire made him shudder. “Don’t do it anymore, I won’t do it…”

Hearing Chu Wanning’s murmur in a low voice, his eyes grew darker and darker. He kissed him on the cheek and gasped, “Baobei, wait a minute, join me…”

The speed of the hand grew faster, and the crotch even unconsciously began to thrust as well. Gradually, the two men had no other thoughts, only desire and love in their eyes.

“Ah… Ah…”

Release time was too pleasurable, perhaps because there was the stimulation of hiding in the Miaoyin Springs, it becomes more and more intense, distracted, Chu Wanning did not endure for long, ejaculating, he hoarsely gasped out, and even forgot to suppress the voice.

Both men were sighing, rough and affectionate, dirty and pure, with only the face of each other at orgasm and the face of the other… Kiss again, lingering, moist, lingering.

“You let out a lot…” Mo Ran murmurs, and the voice is muddy.

His hands were full of their love liquid, his eyes darkened, he leaned over, gently wiped it on Chu Wanning’s abdomen, along the compact and symmetrical abdominal muscles, all the way up, wiped it on his chest.

Chu Wanning was trembling in Mo Ran’s embrace. This kind of trembling caused by pleasure and excitement was not something he could control. Mo Ran hugged him, caressed him, and whispered into his ear, “Did it feel good?”

“…”

“Next time… If you are ready…” With his sweaty skin pressed against his, Mo Ran kissed him, “Then we’ll be serious, alright?”

Although he was prepared for it, hearing the words coming out of his mouth along with the terrible anger he witnessed just now caused his back to feel numb and his entire body tensed up.

Mo Ran, sensing his tiny muscles, kissed him more tenderly.

“I won’t let you feel any pain. I will make you feel good…”

Their passion had not yet subsided, and they were rubbing their temples in the depths of the waterfall.

Mo Ran’s voice was filled with love and lust as he said in a low voice, “You’ll like it, really… At the beginning, it might hurt a little, but I will still be able to control it…”

Chu Wanning felt ashamed. He wanted to run away, but his legs were numb.

“Don’t say anymore…”

It was probably because he knew that he was not really disgusted by him, but because of his rare disobedience, he did not listen to him. His moist lips were still pressed against his ears, as if he was trying his best to seduce him, “I will do it well… Shizun, if you’re afraid of pain, just use some medicine, I’ll go buy… Believe me, once you get used to it, you’ll feel very good.”

I’ve seen how you were screwed to the point of losing your soul in your previous life.

But at that time, it was all because of hatred and punishment.

In this life, I just want you to hug me, become one with your spirit body, and never be separated from me again. I want you to like me, I want you to feel good, and I want you to never forget me.

He kissed him, his eyes like wet wood on fire. These words were said with both gentleness, shame and sincerity, coquettishly and ferociously.

The first part was respectful, while the second part was unsatisfactory.

“My Shizun, next time, can you let me in?”

Ch. 197 Shizun Is Not a Vixen

Because of Mo Ran's words, Chu Wanning felt extremely ashamed. After exiting the Miaoyin Springs, he did not want to bother with Mo Ran anymore, so he left without looking back.

I want face, I want skin. I am even so angry that I don't even have the face to say such shameful words… Did Mo Ran really think that he would nod in agreement?

It was enough for him to do such a thing, there was no need to ask him!

On the second day, when the Elder who taught History was sick, Xue Zhengyong sent Chu Wanning to monitor the students' recitation. History was a big lesson with many disciples, and he couldn't manage it alone, so he asked Mo Ran and the others to help him with his inspection and answer questions.

Of the four masters, Shi Mei and Mo Ran were the busiest. The reason was very simple. Shi Mei was gentle and beautiful, and Mo Ran was kind and heroic. All of these things were very popular with the junior brothers and sisters, especially Shi Mei, whose narrow legs and picturesque eyes made him lose the immaturity of his youth.

He was a completely elegant and beautiful man. He had a good temperament and his voice was pleasant to listen to. Regardless of gender, it was very easy to have a good impression of him.

As for Mo Ran, he was trapped within the group of female disciples and couldn't come out.

“Mo-shixiong, I don’t understand this, can you take a look for me?”

“Mo-shixiong, I can’t really understand the difference between these two incantations. Can shixiong teach me?”

“Mo-shixiong…”

After Mo Ran explained to the ninth shimei why the “Ten Thousand Waves Reversal” had to look exactly like the original one to work, Chu Wanning finally lost his patience. He frowned and coldly looked at Mo Ran from several rows of disciples.

Mo Ran had been ignored by him since yesterday. In fact, he felt somewhat wronged.

He was used to being rough in his past life, and he treasured him even more in this life. Thus, every step he took, he wanted to see if Chu Wanning was happy or not. He didn’t know what he had done wrong. Was he not supposed to ask that question?

He shouldn’t have asked, “My good Shizun, can I go in next time?” Instead, he should ask, “My darling, can I go in next time?”

Having suffered a day’s worth of cold treatment, he suddenly felt Chu Wanning’s gaze. Even though it was glaring at him fiercely, Mo Ran was still like a cabbage that had been watered with water. He immediately perked up and gave him a big smile.

“…”

This person didn’t know where all those girls had come from, nor did he understand why they had so many questions.

Do they not understand? If he really didn't understand, then why did he not ask Chu Wanning about the creation of the Wave Reversal Spell and instead go around the corner to call them "Mo-shixiong"?

Chu Wanning was displeased, but he did not say anything. He only looked coldly and silently at Mo Ran.

As he watched, Mo Ran felt that something was amiss. At this moment, the tenth shimei waved at him eagerly. "Mo-shige ~"

"I'm sorry, I have something to do." Mo Ran smiled and pointed at Xue Meng. "Ask your Xue-shixiong."

As he finished speaking, he walked towards Chu Wanning, leaving the little shimei with a disappointed expression. He bit his pen and sighed deeply.

"Shizun, what's wrong? You don't seem very happy?"

Chu Wanning pursed his lips but didn't say anything directly. After a moment of silence, he said, "I'm a bit tired, let Xue Meng patrol the area. Help me watch over this area."

Mo Ran did not suspect him, nodded his head, and followed Chu Wanning as if he was doing his duty. Strangely, as he walked beside Chu Wanning, he suddenly felt that there were fewer people asking questions. Could it be that this group of disciples was smarter than the rest?

He could not hear the annoying "Mo-shixiong" or the even more annoying "Mo-shige". Chu Wanning finally felt better, but his face remained expressionless as he paced around the crowd of elementary disciples who were reciting scriptures. As he walked, he suddenly heard a conversation between two junior disciples.

“Shixiong, shixiong, let me tell you, there is a fox spirit in the Miaoyin Springs.”

“Ah? What do you mean?”

“Yesterday, after I finished bathing at Plum Blossom House and was about to go back, I heard a faint sound of something in the distance… Uh… There was such a commotion…”

The shixiong seemed very surprised. After opening his mouth for a while, he hesitantly said, “Could it be that some fellow sect member is acting so boldly?”

“Who has the guts to do so? It’s impossible. If Elder Yuheng or Elder Tanlang were to see it, they would have broken their legs! It’s definitely impossible for him to be a disciple of the sect!”

“That’s true.”

“It must be the fox spirit gathering to replenish his yin energy. Tonight, I’ll call some of my fellow brothers to take a look and see if we can capture that little fox. That would count as a meritorious deed, it wouldn’t be good to let his seduce our fellow sect members, right?”

“That’s true, but have you seen who the fellow sect member he seduced yesterday was?”

“… The Miaoyin Springs is so foggy, I don’t want to go even if I have to walk in front of their eyes. I’m still a kid, what if that fox spirit catches my eyes, what will I do?” The little disciple muttered to one another. Suddenly, he noticed that his senior brother’s expression was strange. He reached out his hand and scratched it, “What’s wrong?” His expression suddenly changed.

“…”

The little disciple finally felt the chill behind his back. He faintly turned his head and saw Elder Yuheng standing behind him with an unfathomable expression and an extremely cold aura. He was so frightened that he cried out, “Elder, please forgive me!”

“To recite a scripture is like reciting a scripture, what is so clever about it? Also, dual cultivation.” Chu Wanning’s face was gloomy, “You’re thinking quite well. If you continue to blabber nonsense, you’ll be punished.” With that, he flicked his sleeves and left.

Mo Ran also heard the conversation. He wanted to laugh, but he didn’t dare to. His eyes were chasing after Chu Wanning’s back. He thought to himself, “How could this serious person love me so much?” Why would he be willing to be with him…

He felt warm and bitter in his chest, mixed with sweet and sour. After the lesson was over, he couldn’t help but hug and kiss Chu Wanning, who was busy cleaning up the ancestral scripts, lovingly in his arms.

Chu Wanning was furious, he hit him on the head with the bamboo slip, knocking on his head as he said, “It’s all your good idea, Miaoyin Springs… This is great, what did I become?”

He rubbed the tip of his nose against his ear and asked with a gentle and soft voice, “What has Shizun become?”

Chu Wanning did not expect him to be so shameless and could only stare with wide open eyes, “You…!”

Dimples about to drip into honey, Mo Ran kissed him again and laughed, “Those shidis are really bullshitty, fox spirit? Harvesting… What… Haha, Yang Recovery to complement your Yin?”

“Say it again, I’ll kill you.” Chu Wanning almost stuffed the bamboo block into his mouth.

Mo Ran smiled, “Ugh… Then could he choose the method of death? It’s also a good thing that to be killed by the Miaoyin Springs’s fox spirit Zaiyang…”

“Mo Weiyu!”

From then on, Chu Wanning refused to take a bath at the Miaoyin Springs with Mo Ran anymore.

A few days later, Madam Wang called Mo Ran to the table and asked him a question.

“A-Ran, when you were wandering around a few years ago, did you see a strange girl in the Snow Valley?”

“What girl? What’s so strange about that?”

“She should be very white. There isn’t much blood on her face. She likes wearing red and always carries a basket in her arms. She would chat with passersby in the Snow Valley…”

Mo Ran laughed, “Oh, aunt is talking about Xue Qianjin, right?”

Madam Wang was surprised at first, but was soon overjoyed. “You know of Xue Qianjin? I thought that you had never read about such a monster before, and specifically wanted to describe it to you… I didn’t expect that…”

“Shizun’s bets were on, I just happened to see it. Aunt asked me what does Xue Qianjin do?”

“It’s like this. Young Master Nangong came by a few days ago and I checked his pulse. I feel that the Scorching Sun Aura in his body is not uncontrollable, it’s just that the materials required are extremely rare. The hardest thing to find is the Ice Shilling Fish in Xue Qianjin’s basket. However, that Xue Qianjin is extremely difficult to meet. Twenty years ago, someone had met her in the Snow Valley, and if you were to look back on her now, you must know that it was recorded in the Taxue Palace on Mount Kunlun a hundred years ago. Therefore, I wanted to ask you if you are lucky.”

Hearing this, Mo Ran was both happy and worried. He was happy because if Nangong Si could be cured, he would be an ordinary person. Ye Wangxi was deeply in love with him and might eventually become a good family member.

With a mixture of joy and sorrow, he said to Madam Wang, “After Xu Shuanglin’s matter is settled, I will personally go to the Snow Valley and search from the foot of the mountain to the perilous peak. Perhaps I can find some clues.”

After Mo Ran finished speaking, because he was happy, he immediately went to inform Nangong Si. Madam Wang said from behind: “Aiya, A-Ran, don’t leave so quickly. I’ve already told Young Master Nangong, you don’t need to…”

However, Mo Ran did not hear anything and was already far away.

He looked around and found that Nangong Si was at the end of the Bridge of Helplessness. As he was about to go over, he saw a person walking over from the other side of the bridge. Mo Ran looked over and realized it was Ye Wangxi. His heart skipped a beat and he stopped calling for Nangong Si. Instead, he stood far away and looked at them.

The mental cultivation method she practiced, as well as the guidance she received, had already made her unrecognizable from men. In fact, all these years, if not for the fact that she still had a crush on Nangong Si, she would have already forgotten that she was a woman.

When she saw him coming, he gave a light cough and looked out at the river again.

“Young Master called me?”

“… Ah…” He crossed his fingers and rested them on the stone lion on the Bridge of Helplessness. After a long time, he finally answered, “Yes.”

“What’s the matter?”

“No, no.” He did not dare to look at Ye Wangxi at all, his fingers caressing the stone lion’s curled hair, “That’s right. There’s something I want to give you.”

Ye Wangxi was confused, “What?”

Nangong Si lowered his head and slowly untied a piece of cloth from his waist. On the other side, which Ye Wangxi couldn't see, he clumsily untied it for a long time before he finally did. He passed it over to Ye Wangxi and coughed softly, "Thank you for all these years… Forget it, I don't know what to say. I don't have any valuables to wear right now, so I'll just give you this. After following me for so many years, it's not the best jade, but…"

He did not continue speaking. His eyes were lowered and his face was a little red.

He didn't dare to look at Ye Wangxi for a long time, after a while, seeing that Ye Wangxi had no reaction, he suddenly felt very upset, very rude and also very embarrassed. After hesitating for a while, he took back the phoenix totem jade pendant from Ye Wangxi's hands, and muttered: "I, I know this is not good, if you don't like it, then… Just give it back to me. It's okay, I, I won't mind… After the revival of the Rufeng Sect, I will find you the best one, I…"

Ye Wangxi was stunned for a long time before she smiled. There was a trace of a woman's gentleness in her eyes, which made her look as if she had never had a rouge in her life before.

She held the jade pendant in her hands. The wind was blowing, the bamboo leaves were rustling. Ye Wangxi said, "This one is enough. Thank you, Young Master."

Nangong's face turned even redder, and he said woodenly: "You, as long as you like it… I also… Sigh… I don't know what to say."

Mo Ran: "…"

In the bamboo forest, he almost wanted to hold on to the head and smash it against the stone lion.

Does this man know how to do nothing but raise little wolfdogs? “I don’t know what to say.”

“Madam Wang told me that I can suppress the violent spirit core in my body. Perhaps I don’t need to dual cultivate in order to do so.”

Ye Wangxi was stunned for a moment, but soon realized that he had misunderstood her words. She hummed softly and lowered her eyelashes, not saying another word.

If he didn’t need to dual cultivate, then he would have no reason to be shameless and stay by the side of anyone. She also had his dignity, and didn’t want to beg for him to love and pity her. Nangong Si used this jade pendant to make a decision, he could also save some thoughts for himself in the future.

“You understand. Hmm… Do you understand what I mean?”

“… Right.”

Nangong Si was overjoyed upon hearing that, but he still foolishly replied, “Then, then if you are willing… Actually… You can call me in the future, just like you did when you were a kid, I… I… I think that’s good. Oh, I’m sorry. I really don’t know what to say. Sigh…”

He sighed twice, until he couldn’t take it anymore. He covered his eyes and sighed, “Heavens, what am I saying?”

Now it was Ye Wangxi’s turn to be at a loss. She raised her head and suddenly seemed to understand something. She opened her eyes slightly, and a thin layer of blood appeared on her face.

The bamboo leaves on the Bridge of Helplessness swirled in the wind as her clothes fluttered in the wind. Her jade pendant was warm and smooth. Her bright red tassels were fluttering between her fingers.

After a while, Ye Wangxi hesitated and asked in a soft voice, “What?”

In an instant, perhaps it was an illusion, but Nangong Si felt that her voice, which had been distorted by the spell to the point where it could no longer be recovered, had become a little soft, a little soft, in the vague wind.

He suddenly raised his head and looked at Ye Wangxi’s face. The morning clouds were like brocade, reflecting her expression, and she smiled, still with his familiar handsome, upright appearance, but her slightly narrowed eyes were flashing. She did not hold back as tears rolled down her face.

Nangong Si looked at her, at the face, and the vague image of a young child came back to him.

It was a little girl, young and immature. Her cheeks were flushed and her eyelashes were very long. She had a very soft and sweet appearance.

At that time, Ye Wangxi had not yet been sent to the Dark City by Nangong Liu to cultivate his mental cultivation method. She had just been picked up by Xu Shuanglin and had to learn some basic magic techniques from Nangong Si.

That day, in order to train them, Nangong Liu had them test their strength in the simplest illusions of the Rufeng Sect. That illusion was not difficult, but it was somewhat terrifying.

At first, Nangong Si did not intend to deal with Ye Wangxi, he only cared about himself. But then, he realized that Ye Wangxi was not following him. She was just a little girl curled up in the temple of the illusion, not daring to move at all.

He looked back at his and snorted. Just as he was about to leave, he saw a Hanged Ghost floating behind her. It stuck out its bright red tongue and was about to wrap it around her throat—

“AHHH!”

By the time the little girl realized it, it was already too late. She could only scream in fear, but there was nothing she could do. She hugged her sword and turned her head away.

But nothing happened.

When she opened his eyes timidly, she found that Nangong Si was standing in front of her. The Hanged Ghost had already been repelled by his sword, sticking to the Thunder Sigil spirit, and in the time it took for lightning to bloom, he turned his head to look at her, wanting to scold her a little. But the girl’s expression was so pitiful, like a frightened cat.

Nangong Si was stunned, he said after a long while, “You, why are you so useless, you are even afraid of ghosts…”

“That’s a ghost!” Ye Wangxi cried out, “If I’m not even afraid of ghosts anymore, then what am I afraid of?”

Nangong Si, “… Why are all of you girls so useless?”

“Then I also want to be of use!” The beautiful little girl cried, she was so wronged that her nose was running, “Who’s willing to drag you down, I want to help too. But you left so quickly, you didn't even wait for me… I… I'm just scared of ghosts…"

"Err…"

After that, Nangong Si had no choice but to kneel down beside her. He could not coax her, and could only blankly watch her cry. Ye Wangxi, who had never experienced the dark city's tempering, was like an ordinary girl, her tears flowing down his face.

She cried and choked back her sobs, "What are you looking at?"

"… I want to see when you're done crying."

"…"

"After you're done crying, let's go together. Who told you to be so weak?" He raised his hand and tapped the little girl's fair forehead, "Follow me, I will protect you."

When he thought back to the past, he realized that during that illusion it was actually the only time he had seen a girl like Ye Wangxi cry because she was afraid.

Later, she became cold, stony, and suppressed all emotions under her pale face.

Suppressing her emotions, not to mention Nangong Si, he had even forgotten what kind of person she was. She only remembered to follow behind the back of the Young Master of the Rufeng Sect, from the child to the youth to when he became a Young Master.

She didn’t shed tears or drag him down. She followed him silently for twenty years.

Ch. 198 Shizun's Trip to Mount Huang

After ten days of fasting, Nangong Si and Ye Wangxi were able to set off for Mount Jiao. "Naobaijin had been wounded, and his vitality was greatly damaged, so for the time being he could not take his master on a long journey."

This huge demonic wolf transformed itself into the appearance of a young cub. The palm-sized wolf stuck its fluffy head out from Nangong Si's quiver.

Mo Ran escorted the two to the entrance of the mountain and caressed the mane of the fine horse beside him. He laughed, "The Mount Jiao Road is far, and the Imperial Sword Technique is exhausting energy. The two of them grew up eating spiritual herbs and traveled thousands of miles in a day. Although they are not as powerful as Naobaijin, it is still passable."

Nangong Si thanked Mo Ran, and with Ye Wangxi, mounted their horses. They bowed their heads and clasped their fists, "Thank you, Mo-xiong. There is no need to send us off. We shall meet again in the future."

"Yes, be careful along the way."

He stood at the entrance of the mountain and watched as Nangong Si and Ye Wangxi's silhouettes gradually disappeared into the distance. Just as he was about to leave, he suddenly heard a crisp sound from the forest to his left.

"Meow…"

"Cat?" Mo Ran narrowed his eyes and muttered.

On the other side, Ye Wangxi and Nangong Si were walking side by side down the mountain gate. There was still a deserted path from the Sisheng Peak to the town of Wuchang. Sunlight scattered down from the lush foliage and the hooves of the horses stepped, turning the shattered light into dust.

Nangong Si looked at Ye Wangxi, and was about to say something, when a head popped out of the quiver, revealing Naobaijin front claws. “Awooooooooo!” Shocked, Nangong Si quickly reined in his bridle and said, “Be careful!”

The two of them had practiced together since childhood and had a tacit understanding of each other. The two of them flew up from the left side of Nangong Si and Ye Wangxi’s sword, and after a series of clanging sounds, the poisoned Pear Blossom Needles fell off one after the other. Following that, Ye Wangxi raised her hand and threw out a talisman, and the barrier flew out and trapped the two of them.

“Who is it?!”

The sunlight was dim, but it was not obscured by the clouds. Instead, a person was standing on top of a thin branch. He was wearing a wide robe and his hair was fluttering in the wind. He stood against the sunlight with a hateful expression on his face.

The cousin of the former Sect Leader of Jiangdong Hall, Huang Xiaoyue.

He stood on the branch and watched coldly at Ye Wangxi’s face. Soon after, the dense forest was filled with rustling sounds, and more than a hundred Jiangdong Hall disciples walked out from the forest, each of them with bright red frontal rings on their heads. They were all elite disciples of the Jiangdong Hall.

Huang Xiaoyue twirled his beard and said, “You two, are you two comfortable at Sisheng Peak? It took me ten days and ten nights to come out of hiding.”

Nangong Si was furious, “Huang Xiaoyue, why is it you again?!”

“What happened to me?” Huang Xiaoyue replied coldly, “You are well aware of the feud between the Jiangdong Hall and the Rufeng Sect.”

Nangong gritted his teeth and said, “From Linyi to Shizhong, you have to repel four attacks from your disciples, and you still want to chase after them? What grudge? Are you guys done yet? Xu Shuanglin knows his place. Your sister-in-law has killed your brother, and has come time and time again to argue with us about it. Just where is your face?”

“Face? In this old man’s opinion, the little gongzi is the one who truly does not care about face.” Huang Xiaoyue said gloomily, “It was obviously your Rufeng Sect that had greatly damaged the vitality of our Jiangdong Hall. Do you dare to deny it?”

Ye Wangxi said, “Even if you want to seek revenge for the Rufeng Sect, you should do it in a fair and honorable manner. What kind of actions are these?”

“Shut up. It’s for a man to speak, it’s not up to a girl like you to speak.” Huang Xiaoyue waved his sleeves, “Don’t think that because that bastard would treat you as a man and raise you you’re really a man.” He said, “Little girl, you will always be a silly little girl. A woman like you should be cooking in the kitchen. You are just a girl, what qualifications do you have to come out and act arrogantly in front of me?"

Nangong Si retorted in anger, "Huang Xiaoyue, you have to be reasonable!"

"Very well. Then this old man will talk reason and settle the total debt." Huang Xiaoyue then said, "Your father shamelessly made an affair with a married woman, inciting that wicked woman to kill my own younger brother and seize power and usurp the throne. As for the one next to you…"

"She is the daughter of a beast. Her foster father has spread the private affairs of our Jiangdong Hall to the rest of the world, harming our great and noble name. Today, this old man has personally led an outstanding individual from his sect to stop a lowly person, all in order to repay the Jiangdong Hall and to give justice to the entire world!"

He waved his hand and descended, and those hundred disciples, who were like tigers eyeing their prey, immediately rushed forward to attack them. But just as they were about to scuttle out of the forest, Mo Ran suddenly descended from the sky.

"Brother Mo?"

The person who came was none other than Mo Ran. He held a willow vine in his hand as he stood on top of a tree opposite to Huang Xiaoyue, staring coldly at him.

Huang Xiaoyue didn't expect that Mo Ran would appear. His expression immediately turned ugly, and after a long while, he asked, "How come Mo-zongshi is interested in watching the show?"

“Then we should ask the disciple of the Grandmaster how he decided not to do it, but to hide in the forest and learn to meow like a cat.”

Huang Xiaoyue’s expression was gloomy, his face and surname were almost identical. He calmly asked, “Grandmaster, what do you mean by that?”

“This question should be asked to Senior Huang,” Mo Ran said. “In my Sisheng Peak, attacking Sisheng Peak’s guests, Senior Huang, do you think that my sect is too clean and tidy, and would like to sprinkle some blood on the ground?”

“Since you are already out of the sect, it is not up to you to take care of it. I will avenge my deceased brother, and there is no need for Mo-zongshi to say anything!”

Mo Ran said, “Senior Huang is right. Personal grudges. After leaving the sect, it is indeed not a matter of life or death.”

Huang Xiaoyue coldly snorted, “Then why aren’t you giving way to the Grandmaster?”

Mo Ran did not move. The bloody light from Jiangui became even brighter. The willow leaf on it almost turned into a string of red beads of blood. He said, “But what if I want to manage it myself?”

“You-!”

Huang Xiaoyue was aware of Mo Ran’s strength, but he was unwilling to give up his revenge. He could only threaten him in anger, “Mo-zongshi, are you trying to make an enemy out of my Jiangdong Hall?”

“I didn’t mean it that way. I just wanted to send a noble guest to leave Sichuan safely. As for whether it was the Jiangdong Hall or Jiang Xi Hall, they would all be the same."

Huang Xiaoyue narrowed his eyes, the hatred in his eyes could almost turn into a visible flame, burning Mo Ran and the juniper he was standing on into ashes.

"You insist on protecting these two remnants of the Rufeng Sect?"

"What did the remaining scoundrel say?" Mo Ran asked coldly, "I would like to consult senior. Jiangdong Hall regrets that Miss Ye and Young Master Nangong have participated in this."

"…"

"Did he plot a change in Jiangdong Hall? Or did he reveal the scandal of Jiangdong Hall?" Mo Ran looked at Huang Xiaoyue and asked, "Did you kill the previous Sect Leader, or did you deliberately take part in the murder of your disciple?"

"But so what?!" Huang Xiaoyue said furiously, "The son shall pay the debts of his father! It's perfectly justified!"

"What a righteous and natural thing to do." Mo Ran said indifferently, "That's enough, I don't think there's a need to argue with Senior Huang. Let's spar and let the weapons decide."

Huang Xiaoyue was angered to the extreme as he shouted, "Mo Ran! You're so unreasonable!"

"Interesting, who's the unreasonable one?" At this moment, another voice came from the mountain path with a wild tone. Xue Meng held Longcheng in his hand as he slowly walked out from the forest. The hilt of his saber was cold and sharp. With the shine of the sun, it was almost impossible to open one's eyes.

"You started a massacre in front of my house and shouted loudly. Why is Jiangdong Hall at Sisheng Peak? Is he courting death?"

If it was just one person, Huang Xiaoyue might not be able to defeat him, but with his numbers, he might be able to get away from him and take the opportunity to behead his enemy. However, with Phoenix Xue Meng striding forward, who knew about the fierceness of Longcheng in his hands?

At this moment, both brothers had appeared in front of the mountain gate. No matter how hard Huang Xiaoyue tried, it was impossible for him to find an opportunity to protect Nangong Si and Ye Wangxi's lives.

Seeing that Xue Meng had come, Mo Ran's expression became serious. He said to Xue Meng, "Go back."

"Let me help you —"

"This matter has nothing to do with the Sisheng Peak. It is my selfishness that is helping me, so don't interfere." Mo Ran frowned, thinking to himself, 'Is this little brother stupid?' Although Jiangdong Hall was no longer powerful, he was still a skinny camel that was bigger than a horse. He was still a part of the nine great sects, and the old hall Shizun's niece was a dao companion with the head senior apprentice brother of the Fire Phoenix Pavilion. If Xue Meng were to come out to help them, it would mean that he would be using the name of the Sisheng Peak to suddenly lose all decorum with the two great cultivation sects.

It must not be done.

Mo Ran said, “Quickly go back.”

On the contrary, he was annoyed that Mo Ran did not need his help. While they were in a stalemate, he suddenly saw the dust flying in the distance, and the snow-white horse arrived in a flash. The person on the horse was dressed in snow-white clothes, and had an extremely beautiful appearance; carrying a lute on his back, was the Immortal Lady of the Taxue Palace in Mount Kunlun.

“Urgent news! Emergency report —!” The immortal lady frowned, she whipped her horse and shouted loudly.

However, when she turned a corner and saw such a tense scene at the foot of the mountain, she suddenly reined in the reins. She was stunned for a moment and sat astride the horse, blinking blankly.

“Urgent — er… This is… What are you doing?”

Due to the sudden arrival of the herald from the Taxue Palace on Mount Kunlun, the fight between Mo Ran and Huang Xiaoyue did not succeed. Instead, Huang Xiaoyue was invited by Xue Zhengyong to the Sisheng Peak.

The Immortal Lady of the Taxue Palace stood in the Loyalty Hall. Her red lips parted, and she bowed. Then she said:

“Urgent report, Xu Shuanglin is missing.”

After saying so, Ye Wangxi’s face turned pale.

The immortal lady said, “I sent over ten thousand Jade Butterflies to track down Xu Shuanglin, and I’ve finally returned two this morning. Since we found out that there was a strange magic curse around Mount Huang, the palace master guessed that Xu Shuanglin should be hiding here, and specifically ordered us to rush to the various big sects and report it to them as a backup plan."

Xue Zhengyong was surprised and happy at the same time. "We found it just like that?"

The immortal lady replied, "I can't be sure, but Jade Butterfly reported that the bloody aura around Mount Huang has been lingering around for the entire day. It has already become a phenomenon, so it should not be too far from the mark."

Xue Zhengyong stood up and said, "Good!". Now that he had a clue, he didn't want to delay any longer. "What does your palace master mean?"

"The palace master and Sect Leader share similar views. He also feels that the matter should not be delayed and should quickly head there and investigate."

"Great!" Xue Zhengyong then turned to Huang Xiaoyue and said, "Leader Huang, why don't we go together? If we are able to successfully capture the culprit, Xu Shuanglin, then we can take revenge for the murder of our younger brother."

Huang Xiaoyue's heart skipped a beat. He knew very well that his chances of defeating Xu Shuanglin were close to zero. Furthermore, his so-called revenge was just a pretense.

Actually, how much could his brother's death have to do with these two juniors?

While he was shouting the slogan of revenge for his disciple, he had other shrewd plans in mind. One must know that due to the calamity that had befallen Jiangdong Hall, their strength had declined and he had long heard of the rich and precious treasures that were hidden in the Rufeng Sect. He was planning to capture both Ye Wangxi and Nangong Si in one fell swoop and force them to throw up their ancestors for their own use.

After weighing the pros and cons for a while, he forced out a brown and shriveled up smile and said: “Whether the one on the Mount Huang is Xu Shuanglin or not, we still don’t know. Not to mention that the conflict between the Jiangdong Hall and the Rufeng Sect has already been settled, this is not my personal grudge, it’s a matter that concerns my sect’s reputation, so we need to settle this properly.”

“You’re right.” Xue Zhengyong said, “Then we should first find Xu Shuanglin and settle our personal grudges, and then find Rufeng Sect to settle our grudges?”

“What Sect Leader Xue said is interesting. The Rufeng Sect is now a pile of scorched earth. Where do you want me to settle the score with you?”

“I’m not sure about that. You have to ask this Huang-daochang yourself.” Xue Zhengyong said with a smile, “Why is there only rubble left of the Rufeng Sect and the daochang is still in a hurry to exterminate these two.”

“You-!” Huang Xiaoyue shook his sleeves and said, “This is my personal matter.”

Xue Meng smiled merrily. “Just now, you said it’s the face of the sect, and it’s a big matter. Now, it’s a private matter. Jiangdong Hall is one of the nine great sects in the cultivation world. How can you act so casually?”

Huang Xiaoyue knew that he was in the wrong, but he didn’t know how to reply, so he simply didn’t speak. He gave Xue Zhengyong a fierce glare, then waved his sleeve and led a group of Jiangdong Clan disciples out of the main entrance of the mountain of the dead in full fury. They took the lead and headed towards the Mount Huang to ride on the sword.

Extremely apologetic, Ye Wangxi said to Xue Zhengyong, “Sect Leader Xue, I am truly sorry. We —”

“Birds are caught on the net, hunters will not kill them.” Watching the people of Jiangdong Hall leave, the smile on Xue Zhengyong’s face slowly disappeared. His gaze turned cold as he said, “It’s Jiangdong Hall that has gone too far.”

He looked at the light of day outside of the great hall, and his brows were pressed down very low. A faint crease appeared in the middle, and after a long while, he sighed: “Let’s go to Mount Huang.”

Mount Huang was a long way off, so everyone chose to ride their flying swords. When they arrived at Mount Huang, a large group of cultivators had already gathered at the foot of the mountain. The remaining nine sects had all arrived at the foot of Mount Huang, and the rest of the nine cultivation worlds had all arrived.

Chu Wanning was the first one to get off the Imperial Sword Technique. His steps were a bit unsteady and his face was very pale. Fortunately, his face was very pale and the people around him could not see anything strange. He walked over and gently rubbed the back of his hand while no one was looking.

“Shizun, you flew exceptionally well.”

“Hmm?”

Mo Ran smiled and said, “It’s true.”

Chu Wanning coughed lightly and looked away.

The other eight Sect Leaders had already arrived and were standing at the very front of the mountain. In front of a barrier that reached into the sky, Xue Zhengyong immediately rushed over to help and poured his spirit energy into it.

The people that were at the Sisheng Peak arrived one after another, and after a while, Xue Meng also arrived. He landed steadily beside the two of them, looked at the scene in front of him, and immediately said with a frown, “What is he doing? Why don’t you go up the mountain?”

Seeing him come, Mo Ran explained, “It’s not that I’m not going, but I can’t go up.”

Xue Meng was rather confused. “Why?”

Chu Wanning replied: “Mount Huang is one of the four great evil mountains in the cultivation world, this mountain is very strange, and it is not so easy to enter.

Xue Meng was a little shocked, “I only know of the Four Great Sacred Mountains. Which four?”

Chu Wanning said, “Mount Jiao, Mount Jia —”

Xue Meng was stunned. “A fake mountain?”

“… Black Tortoise Armor.”

“Oh, oh.” Xue Meng’s face turned red. “Yes.”

“Fearsome Mountain, and this mountain in front of us, Mount Huang.”

Chu Wanning paused for a moment, then continued, “This is the bloody past of the cultivation world, now it’s rarely mentioned. Only by reading more books would you be able to read the records of the four great evil mountains.”

“Then why would there be something like an evil mountain?”

Chu Wanning didn’t answer directly, instead, he asked Xue Meng, “Do you still remember the time when the first sect leader of the Rufeng Sect subdued the flood dragon?”

“I remember.” Xue Meng said, “The evil dragon was in the East China Sea. It was he who defeated the evil dragon, sealed it in the Golden Drum Tower, and then signed a blood contract with the dragon so that it could be used by him. The dragon’s tendons became the mantle, the dragon’s blood became the river, the dragon’s bones became the mountain rocks, and the dragon’s armor became the trees. This mountain, for generations, has guarded the tombs of the disciples of the Rufeng Sect, hence it is known as the Hero’s Tomb, also known as Mount Jiao.”

Chu Wanning nodded, “That’s right, that’s why Mount Jiao is the transformation of the Azure Dragon Evil Spirit. You all know that the four constellations of the auspicious beasts are the Azure Dragon Vermilion Bird and the White Tiger, the Xuanwu, respectively.”

Xue Meng slowly came to a realization. “So, the remaining few tablets are the same as the Mount Jiao. They were transformed from the spirit of the evil beast?”

“Yes.”

Xue Meng said: “Then Mount Huang is… Is it a Vermilion Bird?”

He jerked his head up to look at the colossal mountain range shrouded in haze and found that the center of the mountain was towering and flattened twice, like a phoenix groaning at the nape of its neck.

Chu Wanning said, “That’s right. In addition, each of the four great evil mountains had their own evil arts. For example, Mount Jiao only allowed the descendants of the Rufeng Sect to lead people in. Those who trespassed would be dragged into the earth by the dragon tendons, buried alive. This Mount Huang, is also the same.”

“But it’s so strange.” Xue Meng turned his head to look at the Sect Leaders who were casting their spells. His father also went over to help, “Mount Jiao is the mountain belonging to the Rufeng Sect. Everyone knows about this. We just need to bring the descendants of the sects who subdued the Vermilion Bird Evil Spirit back here.”

Mo Ran, who had been silent all this while, finally spoke up, “That person died by accident not long ago. If she’s still alive, he can do it.”

Xue Meng was stunned for a moment. “You know who it is?”

“Got it. It’s a woman, we all know her.”

Ch. 199 Shizun's First Disciple

"Ah, who is it? Was he the only one capable of commanding Mount Huang? What about the other descendants of the Vermilion Bird Evil Spirit?"

Mo Ran did not directly answer him. Instead, he said, "A thousand years ago, the person who subdued the Vermilion Bird's Evil Spirit was called Song Qiao, courtesy name Xingyi."

Xue Meng turned pale with fright and blurted out, "The lord of Huabi, Song Xingyi?!"

"Yes."

"H-he's the last Butterfly-Boned Beauty Feast in the history of cultivation to become a Grandmaster!"

Mo Ran's face was expressionless as he said: "That's right, so the last person who could open the gates to Mount Huang has already died in the sea of fire of the Rufeng Sect. It's Song Qiutong."

Xue Meng's mouth could not help but open widely, and just as he was about to say something, a commotion suddenly occurred in the distance. At the foot of the Mount Huang, a large group of green-clothed cultivators from Bitan Manor were suddenly surrounded by the barrier.

"Lord Li!"

"My lord!"

Chu Wanning's complexion slightly changed. With sunken brows, he walked towards them. He pushed his way through the crowd and saw Li Wuxin being supported by a disciple. His face was as white as paper and he spat out blood.

The stinky blood was stuck to his white beard, his lips were green and white, his eyes were rolled up, and he was already subconsciously speaking with a trembling voice, "It's first… It was… It's first place…"

Due to Li Wuxin pulling back, the remaining Sect Leaders were affected by the backlash from the enchantment. Huang Xiaoyue was the temporary Palace Head of the Jiangdong Hall, and his spiritual energy was lower than the other Sect Leaders. At this point, he could not bear it any longer, and even turning his head was difficult.

On the other hand, Jiang Xi's face was rather pale. However, he was still capable of looking in Li Wuxin's direction. He opened his mouth and said, "He fell victim to the Phoenix Nightmare."

The Phoenix Curse was attached to the Phoenix's seal in Mount Huang. If someone wanted to tear open the crack and attempt to climb the mountain, they would be easily engulfed by this nightmare.

This was similar to the illusion of Jincheng Lake, but the Phoenix Nightmare was hard to dispel and the one who was tricked would often never wake up again.

Seeing that, the group of Bitan Manor disciples knelt down on the ground, and some of them even started to wail: "Palace Master! "Please wake up, Palace Master."

Li Wuxin laughed in his dreams for a while, then mumbled his words, and then suddenly broke free from the embrace of his disciple Zhen Congming, who was lying on the ground, and started dancing with joy, and laughed out loud: “First place! First place! First place!”

Among the disciples surrounding them, someone whispered, “What is first place?”

Li Wuxin would never answer them. He was immersed in the joy of the nightmare. His mouth was wide open, revealing two rows of teeth that were thick with blood and saliva. He laughed extremely happily.

“No-you can’t do this! You can’t do this! He said that he would return the secret sword art manual from the Bitan Manor to me! How can you go back on your word!”

A moment later it was a mournful face.

This was truly frightening. Li Wuxin was an old cultivator who cared about his reputation and was also the master of a village. He had never had such a face in front of others…

He didn’t look like a Sect Leader or a cultivator.

Not even a man.

As if he was doing his best to hide his dignity in the wrinkles that covered his face, he begged, “Eight billion gold is truly too much. That secret sword art scroll was originally from Bitan Manor, and was given to my Shizun. Sect Leader… Please, a little less…”

The crowd around them looked at each other in dismay.

8 billion gold?

Sword manual?

Afterwards, someone suddenly recalled that because of the former Sect Leader's fiery temper, he had righteously and straightforwardly provoked the attention of many sects in the cultivation world. After that incident, the entire villa and river fell, and he was unable to allocate even the leftover funds to subsidize disciples for three years. Then, for some reason, he suddenly became rich again, but strangely, ever since that generation, the Broken Water Sword Technique, which originally shook the entire Nine Regions, had fallen into desolation, and the disciples were unable to use its essence.

For this reason, there were people in the martial arts world who ridiculed Li Wuxin, saying that it was all because of his bad teaching that caused the former Sword Saint's Manor, the Bitan Manor, to be reduced to the end of the world of cultivation.

But at this moment, everyone realized with a start that things might not be as simple as they thought before — could it be that the calamity at the Bitan Manor had been brought back to the continent by selling the sword manual?

Some of the profiteers immediately thought of Guyue'ye and stealthily swept their eyes over Jiang Xi's face.

"Could it be Guyue'ye…"

"It might be Sect Leader Jiang's Martial Ancestor…"

Li Wuxin was still struggling painfully on the ground. He rolled on the ground, but Zhen Ming couldn't even hold him. He could only cry and yell at times, and at times, he could only get up and kowtow in every direction with blood and snot flowing down.

"Give it back to me. I've raised it for most of my life. The total is 5.1 billion gold." Li Wuxin wailed, "Only five billion and one hundred million gold… What you want, I've really done my best. I really don't have that much money, I can't just kill, rob, and do all sorts of bad things to get the money right?! The sect was getting more and more rich, but the Bitan Manor really didn't have that much money… I beg of you…"

Upon hearing the words "every day, every member of the noble sects will enter the sect with ten thousand gold coins", those who hadn't been sizing up Jiang Xi started to scan his direction. Jiang Xi's Xuanyuan Pavilion was the largest black market in the world of cultivation. If it wasn't for him, who else could it be?

The young disciples of the Bitan Manor were furious. Their eyes were already bloodshot as they shouted at Jiang Xi, "Sect Leader Jiang! So the three most important volumes of our Bitan Manor's Broken Water Sword Art are actually from you, Guyue'ye?! You want to ask for eight billion gold, you… How can you be so shameless!"

Before Jiang Xi could say anything, a person on the left said hoarsely, "The truth is unknown. How dare you accuse Sect Leader Jiang?"

The person who spoke was Huang Xiaoyue, who was on the verge of losing his breath.

The hands of this old fogey, who was holding on to the barrier, were already trembling. He still wanted to speak up for Jiang Xi to show his loyalty? What in the world was he planning? It was as clear as day.

The disciple from the Bitan Manor was extremely angry. He rushed forward to curse Huang Xiaoyue, but he was firmly stopped by his fellow sect members. He advised, “Zhen Fu, don’t provoke them.”

Hearing this name, Mo Ran was stunned.

In the past, he might have thought that this name was the same as being really smart, making people laugh their teeth off. However, now that he looked at the old man kowtowing and kneeling in the mud, he suddenly felt very bitter.

He couldn’t laugh at all.

“Five billion won’t do… Then… Then five billion and five hundred million?” Li Wuxin was crying. He kept wiping tears off his face with his sleeves, “Five and a half billion. I will help Yizhou’s Chang Shi’s business and sell some magic artifact and spirit stones. I can still get five and a half billion… Sect Leader, do a good deed and be merciful… Just return the sword manual to me.”

He bent over and kowtowed. In the end, even his forehead was broken and blood was flowing out.

“The Broken Water Sword Art, it’s the spirit of the Bitan Manor…” He cried, “Before I turned into my original form, my only wish was for me to redeem the sword manual. I will do my best for the rest of my life… All his life, he had gone from black hair to white hair, and the person he was begging for had also gone from your father to you… I’ve even begged Luo Fenghua…”

“AHHHHHHH!”

Everyone paled.

Luo Fenghua?!

Li Wuxin had begged Luo Fenghua before?!

Not Guyue’ye… It was… It was…

They all looked back and saw that no one was moving. However, they immediately made a path for themselves. Almost all the people from the various sects were turning their heads to look at Nangong Si and Ye Wangxi in the corner.

“It’s the Rufeng Sect!”

This time there was no need to whisper. Someone shouted.

“Shameless!”

“Just how did the sword arts of the Rufeng Sect suddenly improve by so much in these past few decades? There’s even the legacy of a Sword Saint! Beast!”

“Back in the day, the Spiritual Mountain Competition gave Nangong Si a third! Stolen sword techniques are nothing at all!”

“How disgusting!”

Of course, he did not know that the evil scandals of the Rufeng Sect, which were caused by his father and ancestors, should have landed on the 72 cities of the Rufeng Sect. Now, he was going to have to deal with them all by himself.

He did not run, nor did he utter a word. His face was ashen as he stood there silently.

Ye Wangxi wanted to shake her hand, but the man calmly withdrew his hand and stood in front of her.

“He actually has the guts to…”

“His father is already such a beast, what do you think a son is?”

The people from the Bitan Manor were the most angry, and shouted at them: “Get lost! Why aren’t you guys getting lost?!”

“The Rufeng Sect is no longer one of the top ten sects! What are you standing here for! Scram!”

“Bastards! Shameless!”

The surrounding crowd was filled with the passionate and passionate chants of Peng Bai. They were cursing and yelling, and their faces were filled with clear hatred.

Suddenly, someone rushed over with his green robe rolled around. It was a disciple of the Bitan Manor. That person grabbed Nangong Si’s lapel. Ye Wangxi immediately said, “A-Ming!”

In the blink of an eye, Nangong Si was pushed away by the disciple and his fists rained down on his face, his chest, abdomen, fist, without using any spirit energy, were all punches dull, ferocious, and berserk.

At this time, another cold voice suddenly said in a stern voice, “Stop.”

Before he managed to recover from the blow, it landed on Nangong Si's handsome face. He coughed out a mouthful of blood, his hair was disheveled, and he lay on the ground covered in mud.

The angry disciple wanted to wave his fist, but his arm was grabbed.

He looked back angrily and howled: "Bastard! "I don't want you —"

He did not speak.

That was because the person standing in front of him was the Unrivaled Grandmaster, Chu Wanning.

"Stop."

Chu Wanning's eyes were like cold spring water as he looked down at him. His expression was indescribable, as if there were many emotions on his face, but also as if there was nothing.

He just tightly held onto the young man's arm, pursed his lips, and half-jokingly said, "Stop hitting."

Nangong coughed out another mouthful of blood on the ground, Ye Wangxi hurriedly went over to help him, but was stopped by him, "Don't worry about me, I am responsible for the Rufeng Sect, I should take it on behalf of my father."

The young man got even angrier, struggling to get rid of Chu Wanning's hand and wanting to fight him again.

Chu Wanning's sword-like eyebrows creased, "Stop!"

“Don’t worry about it! You are the person who is at the pinnacle of death, so this matter is none of your business!” The young man was also mad, yelling at Chu Wanning, “What right do they have to treat my master like that? Why?! What right did he have to do this to the Bitan Manor?! How many years had Bitan Manor been acting like a horse for Rufeng Sect? Why… Why should I!”

He cried.

Behind him was Li Wuxin’s groans and pleas.

Li Wuxin was still begging Nangong Liu who did not even exist in his consciousness: “Luo Fenghua said he was willing to exchange the sword manual for me… However, he was nowhere to be found… You promised me. Sect Leader… You promised me…”

“I’m now seventy-nine. I won’t have many years to live. My cultivation base isn’t high enough in this life. I might not be able to dismember my corpse and become an Immortal, nor will I be able to see my master… But the only thing he told me, I couldn’t do it.” Every word that came out of Li Wuxin’s mouth was like a lump of blood that had been gouged out of his throat. He was also wailing, “I can’t do it, Sect Leader… Give it back to me… To take the things of the Bitan Manor… Give it back to me…”

“I beg of you…”

The disciples of the Bitan Manor were trembling, as were Chu Wanning’s hands.

The youth’s eyes were filled with tears, hatred, and confusion.

However, he was unable to break free. In the end, he spat on Chu Wanning's face and said, "What Grandmaster, they are all beasts."

"Shizun!"

"Mo Ran, stand still and don't move. Don't come over."

Chu Wanning let go of the young man's hand. Once the young man was free, he immediately went to beat up the injured Nangong Si, but unexpectedly, a golden light descended and the Haitang Spirit Formation was opened, protecting both Nangong Si and Ye Wangxi.

Chu Wanning, who was half kneeling on the ground, slowly stood up and gazed at the blurry and lively faces.

At one end of the crowd was him, and at the other end was Li Wuxin, who was covered in blood and tears.

Li Wuxin's aged voice rang out. It was Dong Ri's branches that pierced the heavens, "Five billion and five hundred million isn't enough…"

In his dream, this old man was still trying to bargain with Nangong Liu.

He died humbly.

Very humble.

It was so humble that even an old face turned into mud.

"Five billion and eight hundred million?"

His voice was trembling.

Chu Wanning closed his eyes.

His hands were also curled and quivering under his wide sleeves.

But he still said word by word: “Nangong Si the son of an old friend, Rong Yan, Madam Rong.”

In front of the huge Mount Huang, over a thousand people were quietly listening to Li Wuxin’s wails and Chu Wanning’s cold and harsh voice.

First, Li Wuxin said, “Five billion and eight hundred million, that should be enough, right? Those are only three sword manuals…”

On the other side, Chu Wanning said, “When I left the mountain, I didn’t bring any silver taels, so I didn’t know how to ask for them. It is the grace of Madam Rong to have a meal, and to have me stay in the Rufeng Sect for the time being.”

He paused, and Li Wuxin’s tearful voice was the only sound he could hear.

“Madam Rong had asked me to accept his son, Nangong Si, as my disciple. I didn’t agree because I felt too young. But that year…”

Chu Wanning turned his head and looked at the fallen Nangong Si. He finally unveiled the truth that Nangong Si did not remember, word for word.

“That year, Madam Rong brought his young son and kowtowed to me three times in front of the temple. She said that Nangong Si had completed his Shizun’s gift, and if I am willing to stay in the Rufeng Sect for a long time from now on, he will treat me with respect.”

Chu Wanning raised his eyes.

“Nangong Si is my disciple.”

Hearing this, Xue Meng's face instantly turned ashen!

Mo Ran and Shi Mei did not look too good either, but they did not say a word as they looked at Chu Wanning.

"If it is correct to say that a father owes a son his debt, then a Shizun for a day, a father for a lifetime. Since I have already received three kowtows from Nangong, he can call me Shizun." He said, "His Shizun is still here. Thus, it didn't matter if you were seeking revenge or insulting him… I am here, and will not resist at all."

"Shizun!"

"Shizun!"

Mo Ran, Xue Meng and Shi Mei knelt down together. Nangong Si also struggled to get up from the ground, the blood in his mouth had yet to stop as he mumbled, "No… I won't bow down… I've never kowtowed. I don't have a Shizun. No Shizun…"

However, at this time, Li Wuxin suddenly let out a long howl. He raised his head towards the sky, his hair blowing like snow and eyes wide open. Blood unceasingly flowed out from his eyes.

He was howling, crying, choking.

"5.9 billion, that should be fine, right? Sect Leader Nangong… 5.9 billion… If you have more, take pity on me, this old man, and leave me some money for the coffin…… Okay, okay?"

He was in a position where he could kill himself by pulling at his neck. In the end, he hissed and his veins bulged.

“Alright!”

Three consecutive times, all of a sudden, Li Wuxin spat out another mouthful of blood.

Immediately after, he plopped to the ground.

The Sect Leader of the most inferior sect in the world of cultivation. This old man, who had been trying to curry favor with every possible sect while he was still alive, was like an ugly horned old man who was wandering everywhere. This was a huge joke that he had spent most of his life and still could not accomplish anything. Even three sword manuals could not redeem him.

A trash, mediocre.

Thus, he opened his eyes and fell into the ash covered dust.

Dead.

The wind was blowing. All the living beings had different expressions on their faces, and no one said a word.

However, Mo Ran suddenly remembered that Mount Jiao had a treasure trove that was enough to revive the sect. This was something even the Jiangdong Hall knew.

The Bitan Manor and the Rufeng Sect were so close, so how could they not understand what this signified?

After Nangong Liu’s death, many large sects and small sects were chasing after him, wanting to capture him alive. They said it was for revenge, but in their hearts, it was all because of that mountain of gold and silver.

However, the Bitan Manor did not.

The Bitan Manor was clumsy as they thought of a stupid way to get on good terms with the Sisheng Peak, as well as with Guyue'ye. They hoped that in the future, they would be able to look after each other and support each other.

Li Wuxin did not even think about the golden and silver treasure of the Rufeng Sect.

He was clearly the one who had been bullied and humiliated by the Rufeng Sect for the rest of his life.

Perhaps, it was because he had been bullied for too long and had been squeezed out for too long, this old man would finally understand in his heart that while wealth could be taken away, it could not be taken away as injustice.

Mo Ran gazed into the distance at Li Wuxin's dirty and dirty old face, dirty to the point that it was somewhat laughable.

He suddenly understood why the Rufeng Sect was in such a state of shock that day. Everyone was fleeing in panic, trying to escape. This old man wanted to escape, but he cowered and did not.

He clearly didn't have much ability, but he had forced himself to stay in the sea of fire.

One Imperial Sword had saved dozens of lives that had nothing to do with him.

It was said that the Bitan Manor's Martial Ancestor had the Broken Water Sword Technique. It could break water, break the heavens, and was known as the Sword Saint.

Li Wuxin lacked three books. If he couldn’t learn this amazing sword art, he wouldn’t be able to become a Sword Saint.

The only thing he could do, in the end, was to use a growing Imperial Sword and send out the people he did not know, or even the disciples of the Rufeng Sect, out of the sea of fire and one by one back to the human world.

Ch. 200 Shizun, Mount Huang Opened

The Bitan Manor's disciples would never have thought that their Palace Master's life would be taken before the battle of Mount Huang had even begun.

Although Li Wuxin was already old and gradually showed signs of old age with every movement, if he wasn't caught in this demonic enchantment's nightmare and his meridians overturned, he shouldn't have died so suddenly.

After a few moments of silence, the people from the Bitan Manor all knelt down.

The mournful wails shook the skies, causing everyone to be shocked. The disciple that was supposed to settle his debt with Nangong Si no longer cared and crawled over to the Old Palace Master's side, crying as he wiped his tears away with his sleeve.

Suddenly, the gigantic enchantment barrier in front of Mount Huang let out an ear-piercing buzzing sound. Jiang Xi's expression changed as he said in a stern voice, "Someone fill in Li Wuxin's spot. Otherwise, we will all die here today!"

Xue Zhengyong turned his head and shouted: "Yuheng! Come on, give me a hand!"

Naturally, Chu Wanning did not need to be said twice. His specialty was in world enchantment techniques, and his cry was a curse left behind by the phoenix evil spirit that was able to touch this layer of curse.

This meant that the elders were not far from tearing apart the barrier. If they could do it, then they would succeed, but if they couldn't, then the backlash from the curse would be able to move mountains and fill the sea.

He immediately flew over. With a sharp gaze like a bayonet, he waved his sleeve and raised it, striking the empty space left behind by Li Wuxin.

Upon touching it, Chu Wanning was startled and immediately looked at Huang Xiaoyue, who was standing beside him.

"…"

He saw that Huang Xiaoyue was sweating profusely; his entire body was trembling and his face was flushed red. He seemed to be using all of his strength to operate his technique — the other Sect Leaders also seemed to think the same way.

However, Huang Xiaoyue could deceive others, but he could not deceive the cultivator Chu Wanning.

When Chu Wanning took Li Wuxin's burden, he immediately felt that the counterattack power of this position was extremely ferocious. In other words, Li Wuxin had just taken on the evil aura from the two Sect Leaders' bodies. This kind of situation rarely happened with a formation that everyone worked together. There was only one possibility for this to happen, and that was that the person beside him had not used any of his strength at all.

Huang Xiaoyue was actually just putting on an act!

Chu Wanning was furious, his black eyebrows were creased as he said sternly, "You… How dare you play with me!"

“Wha, what…” Huang Xiaoyue was breathing heavily, and his voice was like the sound of a mosquito. His entire body seemed to be on the verge of collapse. The few nearby Sect Leaders also heard the commotion and looked over to see what was going on.

“What is Grandmaster saying… What child’s play…”

“You should know what kind of joke it is yourself! Hurry up and fuck off!”

Xue Zhengyong could not contain his anger and shouted, “Yuheng, what are you doing to Taoist Huang? You see, he’s almost unable to speak. If anything is amiss, let’s open the barrier first!”

Huang Xiaoyue’s gaze drifted over, only to be shocked by the frosty gaze that was like an unsheathed blade, causing his heart to grow cold by more than half.

He simply didn’t have the strength to open the phoenix enchantment. The reason he rushed up to help was to gain face. Afterwards, he could let the cultivation world know that Jiangdong Hall’s strength was still there and he, Huang Xiaoyue, had some skills.

However, Li Wuxin was such a pussy, yet he could not handle the evil qi of two people, and was instead hit by the phoenix enchantment and died beside him. It was one thing if he died, but the person who took over his position was Chu Wanning.

This Chu-zongshi, who deserved to be chopped into pieces!

Huang Xiaoyue’s greasy face was covered in sweat. These beads of sweat were no longer forcefully forced out, but instead, he was breaking out in a cold sweat. He was unceasingly breaking out in a cold sweat.

He was thinking, what should he do?

At this critical moment, Huang Xiaoyue was on the verge of going berserk. He bit his tongue, causing hot blood to flow out. He allowed the saliva and blood to seep onto the corner of his lips.

“Grandmaster… He has truly misunderstood this old man… After Palace Master Li withdrew, this old man was really… Never again… Never again…”

He began to cough violently, splattering his blood everywhere.

“This old man can’t take it anymore…”

How would Chu Wanning fall for it?

Li Wuxin and Huang Xiaoyue; who was the weaker of these two? There was no need to mention how strong they were. If both of them had used their full strength, how could Li Wuxin have been the first to fall?

He waved his sleeves in anger and swung Tianwen with a single hand. He actually flipped Huang Xiaoyue over ten feet away.

“Scram!”

“Ouch!”

The disciples of the Jiangdong Hall were all shocked, rushing up and surrounding their respected elders.

There were also many people who glared at Chu Wanning. “Chu-zongshi, why are you so unreasonable?”

“Taoist Huang has already done his best, why would he just shake the whip and throw the tantrum!”

“Bullying others just because you have the ability?!”

Chu Wanning turned a deaf ear to these angry shouts and words. His heart was filled with rage, his eyes were sharp and cold, perhaps because the red light of the enchantment was reflected in his eyes, causing his pupils to be a little red.

“Scram for me.”

His voice was not loud, but it was extremely gloomy.

Anyone who knew anything about Chu Wanning knew that there was room for discussion even if he scolded him. However, if he became like this, it would be cold and oppressive. Then no one could stop him.

Who would stop him? If Tianwen was enraged, it was likely that he would be able to take that person’s life.

Xue Zhengyong muttered, “Yuheng… What’s going on…”

“Huang Xiaoyue, are you really going to use half an inch of strength to open the phoenix barrier?” Chu Wanning’s hand that was covering the barrier was so angry that his veins were popping out, “When Li Wuxin was unable to bear it, did you really share the burden for him?”

“What are you talking about!”

The female disciples of the Jiangdong Hall screamed out.

“Our Taoist Huang has already vomited blood, and you still say he hasn’t tried his best? Do you only feel satisfied when we see him die like Palace Master Li?”

Chu Wanning's black brows were raised. He was about to speak again when suddenly, the barrier around him began to tremble violently. The palms of all the Sect Leaders were wrapped in a blood-red glow.

Jiang Xi immediately said, "Concentrate! The last level! It's about to be torn apart!"

"…"

Chu Wanning was in no mood to argue with those madmen. He looked back in concentration, placed his hands on top of the barrier, and inserted his spiritual power into the crack, full of raging flames.

There was a loud bang.

The earth trembled.

A huge crack appeared on the Mount Huang barrier, it was at least eight feet tall, enough for five people to walk side by side.

Xue Zhengyong said happily, "It's opened! The enchantment has been opened!"

He was very close to the opening, and when he looked out, he could feel a black and red miasma blowing against his face. He could not help but cry out, "Why is it so smelly?!"

The other cultivators no longer cared about the Bitan Manor and the Jiangdong Hall, and rushed over to take a look.

The Head of the Wubei Temple was extremely sensitive in this way. With a turn of its pearl in its hand, it said in a deep voice: "It is a place where corpses are collected. The corpses and grievances on this Mount Huang are perhaps even more numerous than what we imagined."

Jiang Xi said with a gloomy face, "Looks like that street rat, Xu Shuanglin, is indeed hiding in this crappy mountain." As he spoke, he turned his head back and said, "Everyone listen. The ones who were injured before, terrified, useless, and acted all pretentious."

When he spoke of putting on an act, his cold and deep eyes glanced at Huang Xiaoyue who was lying on the ground, and he gave an almost imperceptible sneer.

"All these people, stay at the foot of the mountain. The rest, follow me up the mountain."

When Xue Meng saw that Chu Wanning had entered the crevice, he was anxious to follow him, but Mo Ran was not by his side. He looked around and saw that there was a commotion where Nangong Si was standing. It turned out that after the sorrow of the Bitan Manor's disciples, the hatred between them grew even stronger. Even Nangong Si had to settle the score with them. Even though Chu Wanning had set up a barrier over there, but even so, he was still surrounded by a group of twisted and hideous faces. Every one of his bright red tongues was cursing and cursing at the same time.

Xue Meng said anxiously, "Mo Ran, what are you doing there? Everyone is going up the mountain.

"Go first and take care of Shizun and Shi Mei. If you can't handle it, report it to me immediately."

Xue Meng had no choice but to leave.

At this time, the only people left at the foot of the mountain were the Bitan Manor and the people of Jiangdong Hall. Mo Ran retracted his gaze from Xue Meng's back and said, "I know how everyone is feeling, but the matter regarding the sword manual was not done by Young Master Nangong. If everyone wishes to settle the score, at least wait until you catch Xu Shuanglin."

"These are two different things. Whether it's Xu Shuanglin or Nangong Si, none of them will escape!"

"That's right! Both of them will have to pay the price!"

His eyes were red as he glared at Mo Ran. "Mo-zongshi, now that you're a Grandmaster, your Shizun is a Grandmaster too. Is this how you two Grandmasters cover for your crimes and malpractice for personal gain?"

Mo Ran said, "I just want you all to be fair. If you really want to clarify this matter, then after this matter is settled, we should follow the rules of the cultivation world and send Xu Shuanglin and the rest to the Tianyin Pavilion for questioning. Now why rush to break up a corpse who is not going to fight back?

Zhen Congming: "…"

Someone shouted, "What ten great sects? Nine! How can the Rufeng Sect be considered a sect?"

Zhen Congming suddenly said, "It's eight." There were bloodstains on his face. He wiped them off for master and then shed a few more tears. Those bloodstains made him look very sad and vacant, "They are eight sects… The Bitan Manor is ownerless now."

“Shixiong…”

He ignored the wails of his shidis and slowly turned his head to look at Mo Ran. “After the battle of the Heavenly Rift, master once said that the Sisheng Peak can be considered a fair sect. Now it seems like he might have misjudged you two.”

Mo Ran: “…”

Zhen Congming asked, “Mo-zongshi, do you really have to protect these two animals from the Rufeng Sect today?”

Before Mo Ran could reply, Nangong Si said hoarsely, “Mo Ran, go away.”

Ye Wangxi half knelt beside him and helped him up. She did not cry, nor was she at a loss. However, her voice was hoarse as he said, “Young Master Mo, let’s head up the mountain. This has nothing to do with you.”

Mo Ran said as he looked at Nangong Si, “You acknowledged my Shizun, could it be that you have done so for nothing? Since he is a member of my sect, how can you possibly have nothing to do with me?”

Nangong was at a loss for words. “You…”

Mo Ran turned his head and looked at Zhen Congming’s face again. At this time, the people from Bitan Manor were no longer in front of him, and the Jiangdong disciples also surrounded him like tigers eyeing their prey.

Under the support of the two female disciples, Huang Xiaoyue pretended to stagger closer. Panting, he rolled his eyes and stared at Mo Ran. Then, he waved away the two disciples on his left and right. His withered, wood-like fingers ferociously tapped and said, “This old man has suffered a lot of justice from the Upper Cultivation World since he was young. How can you just sit by idly and watch?”

Mo Ran said coldly, “Taoist Huang is indeed a role model for the Upper Cultivation World. Just a moment ago, he was still struggling with his last breath, but before the time it took for an incense stick to burn had arrived, he was already able to jump up and start acting on behalf of the heavens. I really admire you.”

“You — cough cough cough!” Huang Xiaoyue seemed to be extremely angry as he clutched his chest, coughing until the sky went dark. The act was done extremely well, but Mo Ran did not even bother to look at him directly.

Qing Yi from the Bitan Manor and Jiangdong’s purple robe were surrounding the three of them. They were closing in on Qing Yi, but no one dared to make a move first.

Everyone knew that once this move landed, it would be difficult to retrieve.

Zhen Congming said in a low voice, “Mo-zongshi, let me ask you one last time. Are you sure you don’t want to go away?”

“AHHHH!”

Before Mo Ran could reply, a shrill voice suddenly rang out from the front. It was unknown which female cultivator had emitted it, but immediately after, a pile of blurry black-grey mudstones surged out from the crack in Mount Huang’s barrier.

Huang Xiaoyue said in shock, “What is it? The mountain is collapsing?”

Mo Ran narrowed his eyes.

Not a landslide.

Everyone quickly saw it clearly and sucked in a breath of cold air.

What came out of the crack were wave after wave of charred zombies! These zombies had their arms stuck to each other, their skin and flesh stuck to each other, and there was still thick water seeping out of their skin, barely allowing them to see their faces.

“Wahhhhh!” Immediately, someone couldn’t take it anymore and began to vomit on the ground.

“This is too fucking disgusting…”

“Could it be that all the mountains are made out of this kind of stuff?”

“How many corpses…”

At this time, a heavy, muffled sound came from the sky. The barrier that the few elders had torn apart earlier actually began to move again. It slowly closed up as if it was about to close down.

This barrier could actually heal itself! Not long after the tear, it would close again to prevent more people from entering!

Mo Ran said anxiously, “Let’s go up the mountain first. We’ll talk about the grudge later. Xu Shuanglin is right there on the mountain. Could it be that the culprit will be left to die just like that?”

The men from the Bitan Manor hesitated, but Huang Xiaoyue sneered and said, “Almost all the experts in the world are at that mountain, there is no need to worry about not catching Xu Shuanglin. However, these two kids from the Rufeng Sect ran as fast as mud loaches without holding back. If we put them in the wrong places, we won't have another chance in the future."

"… Huang Xiaoyue." Mo Ran was enraged to the extreme as a red light flashed in his hand. "Are you done yet?!"

The hundred over people in front saw him summoning his godly weapon, all of them unsheathed their blades, holding their weapons, they stared at him warily.

Mo Ran knew that he wouldn't be able to escape a fierce battle this time. He would have nothing to do, but according to these people, they would probably consider his battle today to be the pinnacle of life and death…

However, at this moment, he suddenly heard a cold voice coming from behind him.

"Everyone, please head up the mountain. Nangong Si will wait here. He will definitely not escape."

Huang Xiaoyue said, "Kid, you speak so easily. Why should I believe you? Can it be that he really can turn the situation around and leave just like that?"

Nangong Si looked at him coldly and stood up from the ground. Then, he suddenly lifted his hand and pushed Ye Wangxi out of the boundary set up by Chu Wanning.

"A-Si!"

Only the people inside could go out of this barrier, but the people outside could not.

Standing alone inside, Nangong Si slowly drew his sword. The snow-white sword light, inch by inch, illuminated his face.

The chin, the lips, the tip of the nose.

Eyes.

Ye Wangxi had already understood what he was going to do. She slammed the hammer on the barrier and shouted, “Don’t mess around!”

“When our ancestors founded the sect, they once said: Greed and rape and murder are things that I, a gentleman, should never do.” Nangong said, “My father is not a kind person, which is against this rule. But I have been a proud man for twenty-six years, and I have never done anything rash. I have nothing to be ashamed of.”

With a “weng” sound, the sword in his hands came out of its case like flowing water.

“No!”

Mo Ran knew what he was going to do. He tried to unravel the barrier but it was so firm that it could not be removed in a short period of time.

He muttered, “Nangong…”

However, Nangong Si did not even glance at Ye Wangxi, nor did he bother with Mo Ran. He said, “Since the other lords are not willing to believe me today, I have no other choice. Fortunately, I have learned the art of imprisonment. Now that I am here, I hope that everyone will stop implicating the innocent. I, Nangong, will draw the Earth as a prison and await your return.”

“Nangong!”

Before he could finish his sentence, his blood was gushing wildly.

Nangong Si’s sword was instantly stabbed into the ground, leaving not even half a fragment.

At the same time, Nangong Si’s left hand was also nailed to the ground.

He actually nailed his hand fiercely to the ground, like a snake nailing seven inches. Lightning and thunder rose up from the sword, and the Forbidden Spell flew in all directions.

Ye Wangxi knelt down in front of the barrier.

The sword’s hilt dripped blood, staining the ground red.

No one could see Ye Wangxi’s expression. She hung her head low, with only her hands tightly gripping the barrier as her knuckles turned pale and convulsed.

This was the Binding Incantation to nail evil beasts, evil spirits, and livestock. Almost everyone knew how to use an expert in the Upper Cultivation World.

Nangong Si had used this incantation to nail himself.

His lips were trembling from the pain, but he did not cry. After a long while, he raised his head, and his eyes were bloodshot.

He said, “Let’s go.”

“…” It was rare for Mo Ran to be so shocked that he couldn’t speak.

In his previous life, Ye Wangxi was the only one who had managed to do so.

And in this life, he had met the person Ye Wangxi loved.

He was confused as to why exactly did Ye Wangxi like Nangong Si. A Young Master who only liked looks and pretty girls and had no brains, how could he possibly be worthy of Ye Wangxi's friendship?

But at this moment, he saw another Ye Wangxi.

Kneeling, messy, and bleeding profusely, but ruthless to the bone.

Nangong Si.

"Let's go!" Nangong Si roared, "What else is there to worry about?! Do you want me to nail my legs to the ground? Let's go!"

Zhen Congming was the first to turn around.

He returned to Li Wuxin's corpse, tidied up the Sect Leader's corpse, picked it up, and walked back.

"Shixiong!"

"Senior Brother, won't you stay?"

"Senior? Are we just going to leave? Don't tell me we have to let them go just like this…"

Zhen Congming said, "Why are you staying? Who knows how long the fight on the mountain will last, for the Sect Leader to be lying on the ground like this without a proper coffin, is he waiting?!"

The disciples of the Bitan Manor looked at each other, lowered their heads, and didn't say anything else.

Zhen Congming walked to Mo Ran's side and said, "Master Mo, remember what you said. After this battle, we shall meet with you from the Tianyin Pavilion."

"Not bad. In this world, there is still the Tianyin Pavilion that can uphold justice." There was a man with bloodshot eyes, he was the disciple who had spat on the ground and insulted Chu Wanning earlier. He followed behind his senior brother, resentful, "The Pavilion Master will definitely act impartially, so our master can rest in peace."

"Mo Ran, Nangong Si… You evil people, just you wait! You will all have retribution. Just wait for your death!"

Ch. 201 Shizun, How Can I Humiliate You?

With the departure of the Bitan Manor, even if Huang Xiaoyue wanted to stay, he had no reason to.

He could only go up the mountain.

Mo Ran hoped to end the battle quickly, so he immediately rushed into the Mount Huang barrier, and the people of Jiangdong Hall followed. Once they entered the enchantment, Mo Ran was fine, but the people from the Jiangdong Hall all screamed out —

Dead.

Dead everywhere.

The ground was littered with dead bodies, lying on the ground and hanging from the treetops. It moved, crawled, twisted, and approached every living person at an extremely slow speed.

Mount Huang had become a mountain of corpses!

Seeing this, Huang Xiaoyue took out a horsetail whisk and struck forward. In the blink of an eye, four to five corpses were beheaded. Before Mo Ran could react, he realized why this old man had suddenly become so brave…

He let out an “ah” scream and fell to the ground in an extremely exaggerated posture. His eyes rolled back as he coughed out blood and foam.

Mo Ran: “…”

The disciples of Jiangdong Hall rushed up: “Senior Huang —”

“Elder…”

“It doesn’t matter. Although this old man is heavily injured, I can at least contribute with some strength.” Huang Xiaoyue struggled to get up, but after crawling twice, his knees gave out and he fell back to the ground, gasping heavily.

Those disciples then anxiously said, “master, you should go outside to rest. There are too many evil spirits here, I’m afraid they will damage your heart.”

“Yeah, yeah.”

The blood was still mixed with thick saliva, giving off an indescribably disgusting feeling. After repeating this three times, Huang Xiaoyue led the disciples of Jiangdong Hall and showed an appearance of extreme regret. Everyone was like a crucian carp that had crossed the river as they rushed out of Mount Huang’s enchantment.

The enchantment blocked their way, but it did not stop them from escaping. Soon, there were only a few people left in the Jiangdong Hall. At this time, a young man suddenly descended from the mountainside ahead. The young man had light golden hair, dark blue eyes, and a cold expression.

When he and Mo Ran saw each other, they were slightly startled.

Mo Ran was the first to react. “Brother Mei?”

Mei Hanxue nodded. He was cold and didn’t like to talk.

Mo Ran anxiously asked, “Did you see my Shizun and the others?”

“Up ahead.” As he said this, a dead body staggered up from behind Mei Hanxue. Mo Ran was just about to remind him when he saw the sword light turn cold, and Mei Hanxue had already summoned his sword. Without even turning his head around, he stabbed a heart-piercing hole into the dead body’s chest.

Mei Hanxue’s expression was cold as he wiped the blood off his sword. He said, “You go up and keep going forward. The first mountain road is to the left, and there are too many corpses. The road is being cleared and everyone is there.”

Mo Ran thanked him and was about to catch up. However, Mei Hanxue stopped him.

“Wait.”

“Is Brother Mei busy?”

“Yes. Mistress and Madam Rong were old friends, so he couldn’t stop worrying. He told me to return and take a look at those two from the Rufeng Sect. How are they, are they still outside?”

Hearing that, Mo Ran’s heart was relieved, and he said, “They are still waiting outside. Nangong Si had placed a Binding Curse on himself. However, Huang Xiaoyue has gone out. I’m afraid that he might do something that would cause trouble for them.”

Mei Hanxue pursed his lips and said no more. With a tap of his foot, he disappeared at the edge of the boundary.

Mo Ran didn’t waste any more time and immediately headed towards the main force.

At first, he thought that with so many corpses, he should have seen the remains of some of his own people on the way, but there were none. There were chopped corpses everywhere, rotting flesh, disgusting and disgusting, but not mixed with any of the remains of other cultivators.

Is it because the Sect Leaders have brought elites?

He did not have the leisure to think about it further. He immediately threw himself into the battle of cleaning up the foot of the mountain. Just now, he had been walking along the path that everyone had taken to kill those zombies, but now that he was on the move, he felt that something was even weirder.

It was too simple.

He felt that he wasn't fighting against the vengeful spirit at all. He felt as if he was slaughtering an ordinary person with no strength left in his hands.

This situation caused him to feel uneasy, and he vaguely had a terrifying guess…

"Heeheeheeheehee ~ ~"

Suddenly, a zombie hung from the tree in front of him. Its hair was disheveled and it stretched out its hand to pinch Mo Ran's neck. Mo Ran jerked back, and the zombie immediately turned its head. Its nostrils flared as a hand grabbed his shoulder, trying to bring the vicious and rotten face closer.

Mo Ran was disgusted, but he took this opportunity to observe it first. He raised his foot and kicked it into the crowd of corpses, knocking over several rotten corpses.

“Mo Ran!”

At this time, Xue Meng also called over. He had his back to Xue Meng as he gasped for breath, his cheeks were splashed with black blood, and his eyes were like lightning. He said in a deep voice, “What’s going on, are these corpses just playing around? Playing at sea? Why is it so weak!”

The look in Mo Ran’s eyes was cold and filled with chilliness. In his previous life, the Immortal Taxian-Jun was proficient in demonic techniques, so he already had a faint guess. However, at the moment, he didn’t have enough clues, so he wasn’t sure.

Mo Ran gritted his teeth and said, “These are not the corpse of a cultivator. He’s an ordinary person.”

“What?!” Xue Meng was shocked, he turned his head and asked, “People are already rotten to the point of black ash, how can you tell if they are cultivators or not? I don’t even know if they’re men or women!”

Mo Ran did not answer directly, instead he said, “If I fought with you, and I did not dodge in time, you would grab me by the shoulder, what would happen to you?”

“… How could you expose your shoulder to me? This is a taboo in fighting techniques, even an eleven or twelve year old disciple would not make such a mistake.”

“Why is it taboo?”

“The spirit core is close! Grabbing onto your shoulder is equivalent to grabbing onto half of your spirit core. If your other hand were to pierce into your chest, it will immediately decide your life and death!”

Mo Ran said, “Alright, just now, a corpse caught me like that —”

Xue Meng said in surprise, “Why are you so careless? You want to die?!”

Mo Ran interrupted him. “It didn’t move.”

“Huh?”

“At such a close distance, it didn’t even think about using its other hand to attack my spirit core. For cultivators, protecting their spirit cores and attacking other people’s spirit cores at close range was already a habit that went deep into the bone marrow. Like you said, even young cultivators around the age of 11 or 12 would do such a thing. Even after death, when one turns into a zombie, the habits of fighting would not change. However, this corpse did not do so.”

Mo Ran paused for a moment and said in a deep voice.

“Why not? Two possibilities. I can’t do it, but I didn’t expect it.”

Xue Meng, “…”

Mo Ran said, “Your hands and feet are healthy. This is a rare opportunity, so it’s impossible for you to not be able to do so. As such, he could only choose not to think about it. When these corpses were alive, most of them were probably just ordinary people. Even if they died, they wouldn’t be a match for these elites, so up until now, there hasn’t been a single injured person.”

Xue Meng said in surprise, “How can this be? What was Xu Shuanglin doing on Mount Huang while there were so many ordinary people? He has this mental strength, why wouldn’t he be in control of the cultivators?”

Mo Ran replied, “It’s the same as before. There are two possibilities. He can’t do it, he knows it.”

“How could he not have thought of this!”

“Therefore, there is only one way left. He can’t do it.” Mo Ran’s gaze was heavy. The damned starfire splashed into his eyes, like boiling molten iron falling into the vast ocean of darkness. “Xu Shuanglin’s spiritual energy is not enough to control so many cultivators with his Zhenlong chess pieces.”

“Then even if he controls these soft-footed prawns, it’s still useless?” Xue Meng kicked back another pile of zombies. He didn’t know whether to laugh or cry. “What can you block?”

Mo Ran did not say anything more. The guess in his mind became clearer and clearer.

He looked at the zombies that were fighting with the crowd, and soon, he discovered something very strange. The corpses that had their limbs cut off and their heads cut off, upon falling to the ground, would immediately have tiny vines extending out and pierce into their chests. With a “pu” sound, their chests, along with their hearts, would suddenly sink into the ground, disappearing without a trace.

This was something that was easy to find, but with the chaos surrounding them, everyone was unable to react. The vine was small and thin, and if they did not quietly stand at the side and observe, they would not be able to see it.

“Mo Ran?”

Xue Meng was still calling out to him, but Mo Ran was completely unable to hear his voice.

Suddenly, he leaped up, grabbed a zombie by its neck, pulled out his hidden weapon and dagger, and stabbed towards the heart of the zombie.

Black blood splattered all over his face in an instant!

Xue Meng suddenly opened his mouth and took two steps back. He was actually speechless.

He felt that Mo Ran must have gone crazy…

Mo Ran tilted his face to the side and quickly used all his strength to pull out the black-gray heart of the zombie, revealing a black chess piece.

The corpses of Mount Huang were clearly under the control of Zhenlong Chess, which was why they acted as accomplices. Mo Ran was not looking for this chess piece — he was rummaging through the blood, enduring the strong stench.

Xue Meng could no longer bear it and bent his body as he vomited.

“You! Are you sick?. This was too disgusting… Ugh…”

Mo Ran ignored him, his fingers fiddling with the clot of blood. Soon, he found the item he was looking for.

On the back of the chess piece, there was a little bug lying down on the ground. It was completely red — Soul Devouring Insect.

At the same time, dozens of thin and soft vines sprouted up from the ground and headed straight for Mo Ran’s bloodied hands! He quickly dodged, but the vines got faster and faster, vowing to wrap the chess piece along with the small insects into the core of the earth.

At this moment, Mo Ran completely understood Xu Shuanglin's intentions and actions.

All the hair on his body stood on end as his blood became thoroughly cold.

In this world, other than Immortal Taxian-Jun from his previous life, no one else could think of such an evil technique!

Just like the Ten Thousand Waves Reversal was created by Chu Wanning, everything in front of him, this chess piece, this Soul Devouring Insect, these corpses, all these arrangements, they all pointed to a spell formation.

The Shared-Heart Formation.

This was a formation that he had personally created in his previous life!

If it had been a guess in the past, then the reappearance of this formation would have given him a huge blow to his head. Its reappearance would have undoubtedly righted two things:

Firstly, there must be someone else in this world besides himself who has been reborn.

Secondly, the person who had reincarnated must have been familiar with the ways of the emperor Taxian-Jun in his previous life.

Mo Ran's hand trembled slightly, and black blood constantly dripped from the gaps between his fingers. The black chess piece and the scarlet red bug were tightly clenched in his palm.

While he dodged the flying vines, his mind was already in chaos.

In the midst of the chaos and horror, he suddenly recalled the shattered memories of his previous life…

At that time, he was only nineteen.

At that time, the Ghost World Heavenly Rift had just been filled and Shi Mei had just recently passed away. As for Shi Mei, he had secretly cultivated his Zhenlong chess skills for nearly half a year without any results, repeatedly failing.

Until that day.

The nineteen year old Mo Weiyu sat cross-legged and slowly opened his eyes.

He spread out his hands and saw two pitch-black pieces lying on his pale-white palm — this was the first time in his life that he had tempered a Zhenlong chess piece.

Before this, he had tried thousands of different methods, but all of them ended in failure. He could not understand the unfathomable words written on the Forbidden Spell, but he could not ask Chu Wanning. In fact, he was no longer willing to talk to Chu Wanning during that period of time. His death was a gap that could never be bridged.

This Shizun and disciple pair had long existed in name.

In his final months of revealing his demonic face, he would occasionally run into a man in white clothes walking over from the other side of the road. However, every time they met, he would pretend that he didn’t see them, and silently walked away.

In fact, he had brushed past him several times on the Bridge of Helplessness. Out of the corner of his eye, he noticed that Chu Wanning seemed to want to say something to him. It was a pity that Chu Wanning's dignity did not allow him to take the initiative to call his disciple. And Mo Ran would not give him any more time to hesitate. He just left like that, never to turn back.

Finally, it was the wrong shoulder.

With no one helping him, Mo Ran spent a long time in order to barely understand the meaning behind the incomplete Forbidden Technique scroll. He also knew the most important point of the Chess game:

All the chess pieces, whether it was Hei Zi or the even more powerful Bai Zi, who could empathize with the caster, were formed from the caster's spiritual energy.

The amount of spiritual energy consumed to form a chess piece was astonishing. Refining one black piece would allow one to execute over a hundred major moves. Refining one white piece would be enough to drain the spiritual energy of a grandmaster like Chu Wanning in an instant.

This was to say, if a person was extremely clever and had a thorough understanding of the chess game, then it would be of no use. If one's spirit energy was insufficient, they could only talk about military matters on paper. Although Mo Ran was talented and had abundant spiritual energy, he was still a youth who had not yet reached the age of twenty. Therefore, he had expended all of his mental and physical efforts and after a few failures, he was only able to condense two black dots.

It was lying on his palm.

Mo Ran stared at the two black men, his eyes flashing with a peculiar luster. In the darkroom, there was only a candlestick that was about to burn out shining on his face.

He did it.

At that time, he didn't care about the number of pawns at all. He was only overjoyed because he had successfully formed Zhenlong Chess. He did it!

He was clearly such a handsome person, but he suddenly had the ferocious appearance of a wild beast.

As he walked out of the cultivation room, he felt dizzy. Half of it was because he was having fun, and the other half was because the two chess pieces had used up all of his spiritual energy. He was completely exhausted.

His face turned red, then white, and a blurry scene appeared in front of his eyes. In the distance, he saw two disciples at Sisheng Peak approaching. The only thing he could do was to quickly hide the two black objects in his Qiankun bag. His legs went soft, and he fell onto the ground, fainting.

In this half asleep half awake state, he knew that he had already been brought back to his disciple's room and laid down on a bed that was not very spacious. He slightly opened his eyes. There was a person sitting beside the bed.

He had a fever, and his head ached. He could not see the man's face clearly, but he could vaguely feel the concern, concentration, gentleness, and even self-reproach in those eyes as they looked at him.

"Shi…"

His lips moved and his voice was so hoarse that he could not complete his sentence. Tears began to flow from his eyes.

The white figure paused for a moment, and then Mo Ran felt a warm hand on his face, wiping away the tears on his cheeks. The person sighed softly and said, “Why are you crying?”

“…”

Shi Mei, did you come back?

Could you not leave… Don’t die… Don’t leave me alone.

Ever since my mother left, there was no other person in this world who would treat me gently like you did. Treat me well, no one else who would not despise me and who would be willing to accompany me…

Shi Mei, don’t go…

He couldn’t stop the scalding hot tears. He also felt that he was very unpromising, but he kept on crying. In his dreams, he kept on crying.

That person sat beside his bed, accompanying him. Afterwards, that person held his hand without saying a word. That person was so clumsy, not leaving the ground even for a moment as he accompanied him.

Mo Ran recalled the two Zhenlong chess pieces in his Qiankun bag. He also knew that they were the source of evil, the seeds of demons.

However, it was also a bargaining chip between him and the heavens and the earth that he couldn’t ask for.

In fact, what he needed to refine a chess piece for wasn't spiritual energy, but rather, his originally fairly clean soul.

Mo Ran muttered. Under his moist eyelashes, his eyes were hazy as he looked at the mirages of Shi Mei. He said, "I'm sorry. If you're still here, I'll…"

I don't want to go down this road either.

However, he no longer had the strength to continue the latter half of the sentence as he fell into a deep sleep once more. When he woke up again, the man in white had already left. Mo Ran felt that it was a dream he had had while he was unconscious. However, he remembered that a pot of incense was burning inside the house. It was given to him by Xue Zhengyong to calm his mind. The incense was very fragrant, but he did not like the smell of it.

The smell was gone.

A very long incense stick wasn't burnt out, and it had been extinguished by someone.

Who had come?

He sat up and stared blankly at the censer. He had thought about it for a long time, but he had not been able to think it through. In the end, he simply did not want to continue. He saw his clothes and accessories, as well as his Divine Martial and Mystical Knife, all neatly placed on the table, along with his Qiankun bag.

When he came back to his senses, he quickly went to his own Qiankun bag with his bare feet.

When he opened it, it was still the same three knots he had purposely used before he fainted. No one moved.

Mo Ran breathed a sigh of relief and rummaged through the bag. He saw the two pieces of Zhenlong Chess that were as black as night, lying dormant in the corner like two malicious ghost eyes. To swallow him up.

He stared blankly at the two pieces for a while.

This was probably fate – if Chu Wanning had flipped through the Qiankun bag next to Mo Ran, everything would have changed.

However, Chu Wanning would not randomly flip through other people's belongings. Even if it was in his open pockets, he would not take a second look.

Mo Ran took out the chess piece. His Adam's apple bobbed and his heart thumped like a drum.

What should he do now? How should he use these two chess pieces…

This was the first time he had been able to condense such a sharp weapon. He couldn't wait to try it out — but who was he looking for? The thought that suddenly popped up in his mind like a spark, was instead an extremely crazy one.

Chu Wanning.

He wanted to strike the chess piece into Chu Wanning's body.

After entering, would that callous, hypocritical man obey his orders from then on? Would he never stand if he was told to kneel?

Would he be able to make Chu Wanning kneel down in front of him and apologize? Would he be able to make his scream that his Shizun was a Shizun that would sting and bite him?

The extreme excitement caused the light in Mo Ran pupils to twist and distort.

Yes, torture him…

How could this respected cultivator feel the most pain? The most shameful?

Humiliate him…

Mo Ran tightly held the two chess pieces, his mouth was dry, and his mouth was getting hotter and hotter.

He was overcome by a sense of excitement and anxiety, and he licked his chapped lips. He couldn't wait to see Chu Wanning lower his pale neck and reach his hand out to feel the trembling, and then…

Break his neck? Crush his bones?

Mo Ran felt unhappy.

He felt empty and unsatisfied for no reason.

To let Chu Wanning die was too boring. Even in his imagination, he didn't like it. He wanted to see him cry, wanted to see him prostrate, wanted to see him suffer a fate worse than death, filled with shame and anger.

He always felt that there was a better way to vent his anger.

He put a chess piece to his lips, felt the coldness of the chess piece against his lips, and muttered in a low voice, “You can’t stop me, Chu Wanning. There will be a day like this soon. I will make you…”

…make you what?

At that time, he had not thought it through. He did not know that a large part of his surging desire was to conquer his lust for Chu Wanning.

But he had that terrible male instinct.

He wanted to bury the first condensed demon seed into Chu Wanning’s body.

He wanted to dirty him.

He got up, pushed the door open and walked out —

Ch. 202 Shizun's First Encounter With a Demon

However, after wandering around the Red Lotus Pavilion a few times, Mo Ran was still calm and did not do such a crazy thing.

It was too dangerous.

This was his first time refining a Zhenlong chess piece, and he had never tried its effects before. He had recklessly attacked the First grandmaster. He probably thought that his life was too long.

Thus, after hesitating for a long time, Mo Ran finally controlled his impulsiveness and left the Red Lotus Pavilion. After some deliberation, he finally chose to beat the two black Zhenlong Chess pieces onto the bodies of the two juniors at Sisheng Peak — he needed to experiment a little longer.

Choosing a disciple with an unstable foundation was the safest choice.

It was a slightly cold night, and darkness shrouded the peak of the mountain. Mo Ran's hand moved extremely quickly, and when he saw the two young men who were still wasting away at the riverside competition, he was so nervous that even his hands were trembling, and his pupils had shrunk to a tiny size. The moonlight shone on his pale face, and he pursed his lips. His fingertips moved slightly as he strolled out.

That was the first time he used such an unforgivable forbidden technique. He was excited and nervous.

"Whee—"

The two of them suddenly knelt on the ground. Mo Ran was like a frightened bird, as if he was a murderer who had just killed someone, and even the slightest movement could take his life. He immediately hid himself in a nearby bush, and his heart seemed to jump out of his throat.

Bang bang bang.

After a long period of rest, he finally managed to calm his beating heart when he saw the two of them kneeling on the ground, stiff and motionless.

His undershirt was soaked through with cold sweat and his scalp was numb.

He went out.

He stood under the moonlight again, next to the riverbank's gravel.

He was calmer now than he had been before, though he still didn't dare breathe, careful as a slithering snake in the night.

Mo Ran lowered his head and looked at the two juniors.

The two people who were playing earlier had completely lost all color on their faces. They were as calm as still water as they knelt on the ground without moving. Mo Ran stared at them. They did not even raise their heads and just knelt like that.

"…"

Mo Ran tried to move his fingertips and activate the spell.

The two junior brothers kowtowed and got up. They raised their eyes and Mo Ran saw his own reflection in those two pairs of dark eyes.

The reflection was not very clear, but for some reason, Mo Ran felt that he had seen it clearly.

He saw a ghost with a pale face and red eyes facing the full moon.

When Mo Ran heard his own voice, he trembled and asked with a hoarse voice, “Speak your name.”

What answered him were two calm and serene voices. “My name is out of my control.”

Mo Ran’s heart was beating rapidly. His blood was flowing freely in his body. His Adam’s apple bobbed up and down as he continued asking in a low voice, “Where are you?”

“My location is out of my control.”

“What day is it?”

“The days are out of my control.”

For the low-level black pieces successfully controlled by Zhenlong Chess, there will be three aspects out of control: the name is out of control, the where is out of control, and the when is out of control.

— It is all up to the Master.

This was exactly the same as what was recorded in the ancient book.

It was strange to say that when he faced the two pieces he had made himself, the most he felt was not ecstasy, but fear.

What was he afraid of? He did not know, but his heart was in turmoil.

He knew that he was standing on the edge of a cliff — no, he had fallen off it, and there was darkness below him, and the endless abyss. He could not see the bottom, could not see where death was, where the end was, where there was fire, where the end was.

He felt as if there was a spirit within his body that was screaming and screaming in pain. However, it was quickly shattered, turning into powder and turning into fragments.

Trembling, he reached out and touched the cheek of one of the pieces.

He swallowed, but there was no saliva in his mouth. His lips were chapped, and his handsome face was twisted. He stared at his junior brother and asked the last question. “What do you want?”

“All that you demand, for the king, the pawn does not hesitate to sacrifice his life.”

“…”

Mo Ran stopped.

Everything around him suddenly became very quiet, cold and still, like ice.

He made two chess pieces, and with two chess pieces, the two juniors whom he didn’t even know their names, became his puppets. If he wanted them to go east, they wouldn’t go west. If he wanted them to kill each other, they wouldn’t let each other go.

He was their master.

Zhenlong Chess is the worst controllable dead object, the strongest controllable living person.

Mo Ran's Spiritual Energy was a natural domineering and fierce energy, moreover, it was a natural talent. When he made his first move, the chess piece he made was actually able to control two living cultivators, even though they were young and had just entered the sect.

After his initial fear, Mo Ran suddenly felt extremely excited. In front of his eyes, there seemed to be a large picture scroll slowly unfolding. It was filled with all sorts of colors and colors, and everything in it was in his palm. Everything was his.

He could hold anything he loved tightly.

Anything he hated could be crushed into fine powder.

Mo Ran was extremely excited. His heart was still beating very quickly, perhaps even faster. However, it was not because of his fear, but because of his excitement. It was a Zhenlong chess game! Three forbidden arts!

Stealthily, he had failed tens of thousands of times, but he had finally…… He finally succeeded… He did an excellent job.

The world would be his!

With these black marks, he could do many things that he could never have done in the past. He could make people from Mobei to Jiangnan his henchmen!

The scene before him was colorful and dazzling to the extreme.

As if he could do anything, anything, he…

"Mo Ran."

Suddenly, a familiar deep voice interrupted him.

Like a basin of cold water, the red towers seemed to collapse in an instant. It was as if he fell from the clouds onto the cold and hard ground, falling back into the repressed reality.

Mo Ran slowly turned his head. His eyes were scarlet and ferocious. Facing the moonlight, he saw a man in cold white clothes standing on the gravel.

"…"

He had never wanted to see Chu Wanning before, not even more than at this moment.

"What are you doing here?"

Mo Ran's hand clenched into a fist. He pursed his lips but didn't immediately reply.

Behind him were two other pieces that were not perfect. If Chu Wanning were to look closely, he would have felt that something was amiss and everything would have been exposed.

With Chu Wanning's personality, he would have pulled his tendons, broken his legs, destroyed his spirit core, and burned down the ancient scrolls that he had copied from the forbidden area of the Compendium Pavilion.

Seeing that he did not make a sound, Chu Wanning slightly frowned, stepped on the sand with his white silk shoes and took a step forward.

But it was also true that he had only taken that step. Then he stopped and looked at the two disciples standing strangely behind Mo Ran.

He could no longer care about anything else. Mo Ran gently crooked his pinky, but he used almost all of his willpower to shout out orders in his heart. Finally, the two disciples moved as he wished.

A disciple laughed and said: “This throw is too close. That throw just now, I will definitely throw it far more than you.”

“Keep bragging, anyway you… Ah, Elder Yuheng!”

They moved as usual, playing around like before. When they saw Chu Wanning, they were stunned for a moment. The two of them bowed to him, and he glanced at them a few times. He felt that something was wrong, but he wasn’t sure.

“Greetings Elder.”

“Elder Yuheng, hello.”

The two disciples restrained their smile and greeted Chu Wanning obediently. They were planning to leave the place tactfully.

Chu Wanning frowned, not relaxing his brows. His gaze was still watching the two chess pieces walking from the riverbank, approaching him, passing by each other, heading towards the bamboo forest… He stared at the two men for a long time before turning his head back to look at Mo Ran. Mo Ran let out a sigh of relief, but before he could catch his breath, Chu Wanning suddenly said,

“Halt.”

“…” Mo Ran’s expression changed slightly. His nails had left a red mark on his palm, but he did not say a word. He quietly observed Chu Wanning’s expression, observing his every move.

Chu Wanning said to the two frozen men, “Come back.”

Mo Ran had no choice but to orders the two chess pieces. He slowly walked back from the end of the bamboo forest and stood in front of Chu Wanning.

The light cloud moved and the full moon appeared.

Under the bright moonlight, Chu Wanning watched the two disciples’ faces attentively. Suddenly, he raised his hand and placed his fingertips on the side of one of the disciples’ neck.

Mo Ran stared at Chu Wanning’s expression, his heart was beating wildly.

He knew that Chu Wanning must have sensed something was wrong, which was why he suddenly extended his hand to check the pulse. One had to know that those who had just learned Zhenlong chess could only control corpses, not living people. Although the two were made directly from living people, Mo Ran wasn’t sure if he had truly done it perfectly. He wasn’t sure if he had instantly killed them when he put the black seed in their hearts.

“…”

After an unknown period of time, Chu Wanning finally dropped his hand. He waved his sleeve and said, “Let’s go.”

Mo Ran felt that the knife hanging around his neck had been removed — Chu Wanning did not notice. The heavens had their eyes on him, allowing him to secretly live under Chu Wanning’s nose.

After the two disciples left, Chu Wanning looked at him and said, “It’s already so late, why are you here?”

Mo Ran said, “Passing by.” His tone was firm, and he did not suddenly become nice to Chu Wanning just because he had something on his mind. Perhaps it was due to his cold and disobedient attitude that Chu Wanning, who should have suspected something, pursed his lips and was speechless for a moment.

He did not want to stay with Chu Wanning any longer, so he looked away and walked forward. But just as he was about to make a mistake, Chu Wanning suddenly said something that made him tense up.

“Someone has recently snuck into the forbidden area of the Compendium Pavilion.”

“…” Mo Ran did not look back, but his pupils were slightly distorted.

“You should know that the ten great sects are in charge of a few incomplete forbidden arts manuals.”

Mo Ran stopped and said, “I know.”

“The most important remnant of one of the scrolls had traces of it being flipped through by someone.”

Mo Ran sneered, “What does that have to do with me?”

He was holding on. He knew that as long as Tianwen was revealed and interrogated him, then all his sinful actions and budding inner demons would be exposed under Chu Wanning’s nose.

His big dreams and ambitions had all come to an end.

Chu Wanning was silent for a moment, “Mo Ran, how long are you going to be stubborn?”

His voice was filled with resentment.

“…” Mo Ran did not answer, but he could almost predict what would happen next.

He anticipated the flash of the Tianwen golden light.

He had expected that Chu Wanning would act like a righteous man and ask him why he was doing such a thing. In Chu Wanning’s eyes, he would always be like that.

“Do you know how dangerous it is?”

There was no saving him.

He still dryly thought through those four words.

He then turned his head, seemingly at a loss. He looked at Chu Wanning’s face under the moonlight.

His face was pale, and there was a faint sense of unease under his sword-like brows. A pair of clear eyes looked at him, but they didn’t see through anything. They didn’t see through anything.

“If someone really practices this forbidden art, it will kill people. You didn’t sleep at night, yet you came to this kind of desolate place. Do you want to die for nothing?”

“…”

Chu Wanning’s voice was low, as if he was biting on the edge of his words, “With so many people dying in the Heavenly Rift Battle, don’t tell me that it hasn’t taught you to cherish your life? Since you already know about the matter of the incomplete scrolls being stolen, how can you still be so carefree!”

Mo Ran remained silent, staring at the other party with his dark brown eyes.

His forehead was covered in a thin layer of sweat. At this time, he slowly calmed down.

His body relaxed bit by bit, as an unknown strange feeling permeated his heart. In the end, Mo Ran revealed a smile. “Shizun…”

Chu Wanning’s phoenix eyes glittered slightly.

Ever since his Shi Mei died, Mo Ran had never smiled at him, and rarely called him Shizun.

Mo Ran smiled and asked, “Are you concerned about me?”

“…”

The smile widened.

It was bright like a bayonet. The white knife went in and the red knife came out and went into his chest with a plop. There were beads of blood on the blade. Like a demon, he slowly opened his mouth, revealing a mouthful of white teeth that looked like the poisonous claws of a scorpion.

“The battle between the Heaven and the Earth…” He chuckled, “Shizun being able to bring up the battle of the heavens is the best we can do. In that battle, it wasn’t important what I learned; the key is, Shizun learned how to be merciful.”

Looking at the flickering light in Chu Wanning's eyes, he was tense and did his best to avoid it. However, there was nowhere for him to retreat to.

The smile on Mo Ran's face became increasingly exaggerated, reckless and cruel.

He invaded him and bit him. He chewed on Chu Wanning's throat and suddenly felt very satisfied. He started laughing out loud, "Hahaha, very good, very good, it was really a good deal! A disciple of unknown origin, in exchange for Chu-zongshi's conscience, Chu-zongshi will finally remember the life and death of the people around him. Shizun, today I finally feel that Shi Mei's death was good."

Even someone as calm and solemn as Chu Wanning started to tremble under his mad, eagle-like laughter.

"Mo Ran…"

"It's good that Shi Mei died, it's worth it to die, but it's also worth it to die in the name of righteousness!"

"Mo Ran, you…"

Don't laugh.

Don't say it again.

But he couldn't say it, Chu Wanning couldn't say it. He couldn't beg, beg, or arrogantly reprimand his disciple who was close to insanity, saying, You're wrong, it's not that I don't want to save him, it's that I really don't have the strength to do it.

I have also suffered the same injury as him, so if I were to spend another inch of spirit energy, I would also become a corpse in the grave, a person in the afterlife.

He couldn't say it out loud.

Perhaps he felt that this confession was too weak.

Or perhaps he thought that in Mo Ran's heart, even if his Shizun died, it wouldn't be worth mentioning. It wouldn't be comparable to Shi Mingjing, who treated him the gentlest.

Thus, in the end, Chu Wanning could only suppress the trembling in his voice and say slowly, word by word, "Mo Weiyu, how long are you going to stay crazy?"

"…"

"Go back."

Angry flames boiled sorrow, the throat is full of salt and bitterness.

"Shi Mingjing didn't die in exchange for a lunatic like you."

"Shizun, you're wrong." Mo Ran smiled and said, "How could I be the one to be replaced for Shi Mei's death?"

He was like a snake and a scorpion, like a bee or an ant.

"He's dead, and the person who returned was obviously you, Shizun."

Bees pierced into flesh.

Looking at Chu Wanning's pale face, he felt a pang of joy. He did not want to risk his life to provoke and mock him. He did it himself to make Chu Wanning suffer a fate worse than death.

Great.

They go to hell together.

"I want to go back too." Mo Ran smiled leisurely, his dimples were deep, and he brewed some poison wine, "I also don't want to wander around in the middle of the night. But across the room from mine is his house."

Mo Ran did not say who it was and instead used the word "he".

The intimacy between the two made it even more difficult for Chu Wanning.

"The lights in his house will never come on again."

Chu Wanning closed his eyes.

After a long time, his expression gradually calmed down. "I want to beg for a bowl of food, but I can't."

For a moment, Chu Wanning's eyelashes trembled, his lips moved as if he wanted to say something.

However, Mo Ran did not give him the chance to say it. He did not give him the courage to say it. Mo Ran was not without ridicule: "Shizun, copying this kind of thing, the people in Shu are the best at doing it. The red oil and spicy pepper are indispensable. They're the ones you hate the most. When you wanted to cook another bowl for me, I didn't accept it. However, I don’t need to taste what you made, I already know that there is only one word that can describe it.”

Chu Wanning did not open his eyes, his eyebrows were slightly creased.

It seemed this way, he would be able to avoid the sharp sword.

“I haven’t studied much. Fortunately, I heard from Xue Meng about it a few days ago. I feel that it’s a good idea to use it on Shizun’s handwork.”

What is it?

A waste of effort?

In vain?

Chu Wanning searched in his mind in confusion, as if he was busy finding a suitable armor, and finding up the most unpleasant words first to avoid being humiliated too much.

Worth nothing?

Mo Ran still did not speak. The word stuck playfully between his lips.

Yes, worthless.

Chu Wanning was convinced that there was nothing more chilling than this.

He calmed down.

Until he heard Mo Ran say calmly, “Dong Shi imitates Xi Shi’s frown.”[166]

He opened his eyes, almost at a loss.

He never expected the other party to be so venomous, his hands were trembling under his sleeves.

He mixed the noodles, seasoned the ingredients, and then kneaded the filling…

As he looked at “The Story of Bashu”, he looked at it seriously, one word at a time. His face was covered in flour, and the hands he used to wrap it were all twisted from crooked to perfectly round and adorable.

He had been learning and trying to understand.

Just hearing those words.

Dong Shi imitates Xi Shi’s frown.

The beach at night was suffused with a silver glow. Mo Ran looked at him. Chu Wanning stood there for a while, then without a word, he turned and left.

For some reason, Mo Ran always felt that day, his leaving pace was a little fast. It was no longer as calm and steady as before — it was like he had been defeated, like he was escaping.

He did not know why, but he felt a little uncertain. He frowned as he looked at Chu Wanning’s back. Just as it was about to disappear, he called out, “Wait!”

Ch. 203 Shizun's Misplaced Ghost

However, Chu Wanning did not stop nor did he turn around.

He couldn't turn back.

He gritted his teeth to endure, but his tears still flowed.

It was too unfair.

But even if he felt wronged, so what?

Explanation?

Rage?

Since he had already reached this point, how could he still have the face to tell Mo Ran the truth? Did he want him to explain himself when the flames of anger and hatred were mocking him? In addition to being seen as a crude imitator, did he also want to be seen as taking all the credit?

He left.

That night by the Bridge of Helplessness, by the Yellow Springs, the conversation between Shizun and disciple flowed down the surging river, into the river, into the underworld.

As for that gentle youth, if he had known in the underworld that he would hear such a conversation, would he have felt sad because of the discord between the teacher and pupil?

He stood alone on the riverbank for a while, thinking that this might be fate.

Chu Wanning suspected someone else, but not him.

Speaking of which, it was indeed quite a coincidence. Chu Wanning's Tianwen had been used when he was patrolling the back of the mountain, and it had been used by a little ghost.

The golden Tianwen was shining brightly in Chu Wanning's white robes. The rattan whip that could get him to tell the truth and kill the future emperor Taxian-Jun was shining brightly all the time.

However, Chu Wanning did not take it off, nor did he interrogate him.

Mo Ran escaped from Tianwen and slowly walked away by himself into the depths of the rustling bamboo forest. He walked to the darkest part of the night and was finally completely engulfed by darkness.

From then on, he began to concoct chess pieces in secret, two, four, ten of them in advance.

More and more.

He had planted them one by one into the bodies of the Sisheng Peak disciples, making them his eyes, ears, fangs, and arrows.

After the initial joy, Mo Ran began to become irritated and gloomy. He became more and more irritable, more and more irritable, and he became more and more unsatisfied.

Too slow.

He felt that it was not enough.

He was afraid that Chu Wanning would detect some movement, so he did not dare to waste all his energy to make a Zhenlong chess match like the first time. He only did one attack at a time, and left half of his energy behind. He was no longer tense and hostile, but had finally put away his claws and returned to Chu Wanning's seat, following him in his cultivation.

He calculated that Chu Wanning could help him raise his cultivation as fast as possible, and he would lay the bricks for his first step of clearing out the bones in the world. Why not?

On this day, he had trained too hard and was completely exhausted. He accidentally lost control of himself on the slender treetops and fell straight down.

In just a split-second, Chu Wanning's white clothes flashed past. He held onto Mo Ran, but for a moment, he could not summon out his hand to summon the enchantment. The two of them fell under a tree. Chu Wanning was crushed by Mo Ran. He groaned in pain. When Mo Ran opened his eyes, he saw that Chu Wanning's hand had been scraped. There was a bloody cut on his flesh.

At that time, his temperament had already started to distort, and he actually did not feel too much gratitude or guilt. He only felt that the blood was really good, and that it would be better to let it flow a little more.

However, he knew that it was not the right time yet, he could not reveal his sinister face under the hood, so he helped to clean up Chu Wanning's wounds and bandaged his wounds.

Neither of them spoke as they each had their own thoughts. Pale white gauze covered their faces as they spoke.

Finally, Mo Ran said meaningfully, “Thank you, Shizun.”

This sudden and unexpected ‘thank you’ surprised Chu Wanning. He raised his eyes and looked at the his face. The sunlight shone down, illuminating Mo Ran’s face. The brown color was very faint under the light.

At that time, Mo Ran was curious, what kind of opinion did Chu Wanning have towards him after he thanked him?

Finally a prodigal son turning back?

It finally began to slow down?

However, Chu Wanning didn’t say anything. He simply lowered his eyelashes and rolled down his sleeves.

The wind was blowing, and the sun was shining.

In his previous life, he had never been able to see through his Shizun, just like how his Shizun had also misjudged him.

After that, Mo Ran became more and more powerful. He had an astonishing talent. The number of chess pieces he could make with half his spiritual energy consumed increased from one to two, then to four.

But not enough.

What he wanted was a million strong army, a force that could take down Sisheng Peak in one fell swoop and trample Chu Wanning beneath his feet.

Mo Ran’s calculations were not good. The man who was about to become the Emperor Taxian-Jun held his abacus as he began to calculate furiously.

When Xue Meng came to see him, he coincidentally saw this scene, so he curiously went over and asked, “Hey, what are you doing?”

“Settle them.”

“What are you counting?”

Mo Ran paused for a moment, his eyes dark. Then he smiled and said, “Guess.”

“I can’t guess.” Xue Meng walked over and picked up the book in front of him to read carefully. As he read, he mumbled, “One… 365 days… 365… 4… 365 days… What’s all this nonsense?”

“I want to buy some sugar,” Mo Ran said calmly.

“Sugar?”

“One month’s worth of Cheng Zhai’s best candy costs one coin. If you save up one copper coin a day, you could buy three hundred and sixty-five candies in three hundred and sixty-five days. If you can save up to four copper coins a day, that would be…” He lowered his head, bent his fingers, and couldn’t figure it out. He shook his head again, and started to make calculations with a crackling sound, “Just a thousand…”

Xue Meng’s mental calculations were faster than his, so he quickly replied, “One thousand four hundred and sixty candies.”

Mo Ran raised his head, and after a moment of silence, he said, “You’re really fast.”

Xue Meng was rarely praised by him. He stared blankly for a moment, then laughed and said, “That’s not right. After all, I’ve been helping Mother with medicine since I was young."

Mo Ran muttered to himself and laughed, "I don't know which way to go. Why don't you do the math for me?"

It had been a long time since Mo Ran was this calm after Shi Mei passed away. Xue Meng faced the sunlight and looked at him, feeling pity in his heart.

So he nodded, pulled back his chair, and sat down beside Mo Ran.

"Come on, tell me."

Mo Ran said warmly, "Ten candies a day, how much can you save in a year?"

"Three thousand six hundred and fifty. That's not worth counting. It's too simple."

Mo Ran sighed and said, "Add some more, 15 in a day…" After thinking about it, he felt that it was beyond his limit to make such a chess piece, so he asked, "Twelve pieces a day. How much?"

"Four thousand… Four thousand three hundred and eighty."

"I want five thousand candies. How many more days do I need to wait?"

"I have to…" Xue Meng scratched his head, thinking too hard, so he asked, "Why do you need so much candies? You can't eat them all."

Mo Ran lowered his eyes, covering the sinister glint in his eyes. "Next year, Sisheng Peak will have been established for thirty years. I want to give everyone a piece of candy."

Xue Meng was stunned. “You actually have this kind of thought…”

“Yes.” Mo Ran smiled, “Are you surprised? You too.”

“I don’t need it.” Xue Meng waved his hand. “I don’t need this candy. Come, I’ll continue to help you calculate. See how long you have to save before you can buy over five thousand candies.”

As he spoke, he took the abacus and began to seriously burn it down under the reflection of the flower trees by the window. Mo Ran rested his chin on his cheek as he watched, a luster flowing in his eyes. After a long while, he chuckled and said, “Many thanks.”

Xue Meng snorted. He was very focused and did not pay any attention to him.

In his eyes, there were only those crackling black beads. One and two were like black pawns, and they piled up one after the other, increasing bit by bit.

At that time, Xue Meng would probably never have imagined that what he was calculating was not candy, but rather the lives of many people, overturning the lives at Sisheng Peak.

He did not know that it was because of his appearance by the window that caused Mo Ran to feel a trace of kindness.

As such, he had to consider his old relationship with the five thousand blackstones. In the end, he hadn’t gotten a single share out of the five thousand blackstones.

“That long?” Finally, he looked at the number Xue Meng had written down. Mo Ran shook his head, “It’s too long.”

Xue Meng said, “Why don’t I lend you some money?”

Mo Ran smiled. “There’s no need.”

After Xue Meng left, he thought about it again and again. After flipping through a few scrolls, he gradually came up with a plan — and this plan became the prototype for the “Shared-Heart Formation” created by Immortal Taxian-Jun.

That night, Mo Ran had refined ten chess pieces. Those chess pieces were incomplete and could not be controlled with full strength. They could not even control the stronger corpses.

He carried these ten chess pieces down the mountain to the Wuchang town and hummed a small tune as he arrived at a place in the outskirts of the town:

Returning Crane to Slope.

A man dies riding on a crane, returning to the nine heavens. This was a beautiful and simple illusion of a mortal. In other words, this hillside was a graveyard. The families of the people that died in the Wuchang Town were all dragged to this mountain to be buried. This was the town’s burial ground.

He walked between the rows of tombs without much delay, his eyes swept across the words written on the tombstones, and very quickly, he stopped in front of a fresh grave with bright writing, and in front of the tombstone, there were still fresh fruits and buns. He raised his hand, and clenched his fingers tightly in the air.

Because of some childhood experience, Mo Ran had no fear of corpses and had no respect for them. He jumped down from the hump, summoned Mo Dao, forced open the coffin, and kicked away the thin lid.

The moonlight fell on the corpse's face. Mo Ran leaned his head over to measure the color of the pork and looked at the skeleton inside.

It was a newly buried old thing with a shroud wrapped around its shriveled face and sunken cheeks. Because the burial environment wasn't good and it didn't have much money to use for embalming, the coffin was filled with a strong stench. Some parts of its flesh had already begun to rot and give birth to maggots.

Mo Ran frowned and endured the stench. He put on the metal gloves neatly and grabbed the old man by the neck, pulling him out of the coffin. The old man's head drooped down stiffly. Mo Ran's eyes were ice-cold. With a flash from his hand, he had already sent the precious black seed flying into his chest.

"Be good, be good." Mo Ran affectionately caressed the dead man's face, and suddenly slapped the corpse back, smiling. "What are you so listless for? Stand up straight, my dear obedient little baby."

Although the incomplete black chess piece was unable to control the strong corpse, he was still more than enough to control a lethargic old man with legs.

The corpse's body began to move. A pair of tightly shut eyes suddenly opened, revealing a pair of grayish eyes.

Mo Ran said, "Speak your name."

“My name is out of my control.”

“Where are you?”

“My location is out of my control.”

“What day is it?”

“The days are out of my control.”

Mo Ran narrowed his eyes, weighing the remaining nine fragments in his hand. Indeed… If he had only controlled the corpse to such a degree, he wouldn’t have to spend so much spiritual power to create such a pure black hole.

He grinned, a smile that was extremely handsome. Slowly, he asked the last question:

“What do you want?”

The old man said in a hoarse voice: “I only care about what you ask for, as the king’s chess piece.”

Mo Ran laughed out loud. He was very satisfied with this result. He then used the remaining pieces of the chess piece to make the other nine corpses, picking out fresh ones.

These corpses were old, weak, and handicapped. They fell when the wind blew, and they did not have any power. However, Mo Ran looked at them, his eyes flashing with a crazy and joyful light.

He took out ten small boxes from his Qiankun bag and opened one of them. He saw two small, blood-red insects curled up inside.

“Alright, I’ve already enjoyed myself enough. I’ll be troubling you two to stop now. It’s time for you two to be of use to me.” As Mo Ran lazily spoke, he flicked his finger to brush away the two worms that were interacting with each other. He then took out one of the male worms and said to the old man who was playing the first chess piece, “Friend, please open your foul mouth.”

The old man obediently opened his mouth to reveal a rotten tongue. Mo Ran threw the worm into his mouth and said, “Eat it.”

There was no resistance, no hesitation.

The corpse obediently ate the Soul Devouring Insect into its stomach.

Mo Ran followed the same pattern and fed all of the worms in the box into the mouths of the corpses. Then it said, “Alright, go back and lie down. All of you should rest.”

On the second day, Mo Ran had refined another ten blackstones. They were also damaged and didn’t consume too much spirit energy. After he finished refining, he attached all the remaining female Soul Devouring Insects to the chess board and then quietly entered the bodies of some low-level disciples.

At first, those disciples only felt an itch on their backs, but there was no special feeling. Mo Ran was not impatient, he was waiting…

Wait until the female Soul Devourer lays eggs, then leave the larvae in the hearts of these disciples that resonate with the males.

In this way, two unrelated pieces passed through the adult and larva and became a corresponding mother puppet.

This was just like flying a kite. Those weak corpses became kite strings as one end led the black ink to burn while the other end led the even more valiant Jinlong black seed. Mo Ran only needed to give the order to the dead body of the adult, which was hidden inside the dead body of the corresponding child, and would do the exact same action.

It was called the common heart.

This ultimate move had been created by Mo Ran himself. Before him, those who had come into contact with Zhenlong Chess were all grandmasters, who did not lack spirit energy, nor were they crazy enough to want to make tens of thousands, or even hundreds of thousands of Zhenlong Chess, so they did not need to think of such opportunistic methods.

At that time, Mo Ran, who was obsessed with demonic techniques, didn't realize that he had already done something that no one in the cultivation world had ever done in the past tens of thousands of years.

Turning an evil technique that could destroy the heavens and the earth, everyone could learn it.

Everyone can do it.

"Brother!"

Suddenly, an explosive shout was heard.

Mo Ran suddenly became clear-headed as a blood-red light flashed before his eyes.

The Phoenix Evil Spirit that was buried in the heart of the Mount Huang Range had already turned into even more vines than before, fiercely chopping down. The Phoenix was originally a flying beast, its speed was extremely fast, it was unable to avoid in time, and its shoulder was suddenly cut open, causing blood to immediately spurt out.

Xue Meng exclaimed, “How are you?!”

“Don’t come near me!” Mo Ran panted. His gaze was cold as he stared at the tentacle-like vine on the ground that was ready to pounce at any moment and launch a second wave of assault. He stopped Xue Meng sternly, “Quick, go to Shizun’s side! Tell him to stop! Make everyone stop!”

Blood dripped, and he gripped the heart and the chess piece tightly.

His mind spun rapidly as all kinds of thoughts surged in his mind.

This formation of the heart was not wrong, and it was even better than the one he had used in his previous life. However, no matter how much improvement there was, the principle was here. Only by maintaining the mother body on one side could the child on the other side display its strength.

Mo Ran held the Chess in his hand, his entire body still trembling. It wasn’t because of the pain in his shoulder, but because of the cold and fear that spread out from the bottom of his feet.

There was no doubt that someone had been reborn.

Then, does the person who was reborn know that he is also a living ghost? If he knew, then…

A cold chill went down his spine as Mo Ran suddenly fell into despair.

In his eyes, he saw the pale face of Taxian-Jun, with his crown on the head and a sinister smile on his face.

He sat high on the dragon throne, eating his food. He was cold and mocking.

“Mo-zongshi, please escape! Where can you escape to?”

Ghost shadows rose up like a tide. They were all people he had killed in his previous life, and they were all debts he had owed in his previous life.

He saw the bloodied Shi Mei, the bloodless Chu Wanning, the hanging woman dragging a three feet long piece of white silk, and the man with his stomach all over the ground.

They were all here to take his life.

“You won’t be able to dodge it sooner or later.”

“Someone already knows what kind of dirty spirits you have in your shell. You’ll never be able to reincarnate.”

Mo Ran closed his eyes.

If the person behind the scenes really knew that he had also been reborn, and if that person revealed all of his past, then… What should he do?

He didn’t dare think about it anymore.

Ch. 204 Shizun Protects Me

On the other side, Xue Meng had already run to the region of intense chaotic battle. He waved his arm and shouted, “Stop! Stop! Stop fighting! It’s useless!”

In fact, these people had already felt that something was amiss before he had arrived.

Thousands of elites were fighting against the unorganized corpse tide. The scene looked very grand and heroic, but the more they fought, the more confused everyone became because it didn’t look like a fierce battle was about to begin.

Everyone kept killing their way here. Aside from two people who were slightly injured, the rest of the cultivators were unharmed. Thus, when Xue Meng shouted, everyone stopped and turned to look at him.

“I…”

It was the first time that so many people were simultaneously looking at him. Moreover, many of them were well-known figures and elders. Xue Meng unexpectedly choked for a moment.

Chu Wanning asked, “What’s wrong?”

Only after hearing his Shizun’s voice did Xue Meng calm down. He pointed at where Mo Ran was fighting against the vine willow and said, “Mo Ran seems to already know what is going on here. It shouldn’t be very useful against these zombies.”

The crowd looked at each other in dismay. The Sect Leaders were not ordinary people, how could they be willing to listen to the advice of a junior? Their faces became extremely ugly. Jiang Xi's expression was the gloomiest as he said, "Mo Ran is just a young man in his early twenties. What does he know?"

If it was any other person who spoke, Xue Meng might have been a bit more polite, but since this person was Jiang Xi, Xue Meng became angry when he saw him. He immediately said angrily, "If you still drink milk when you are twenty, it doesn't mean that I have to be like you! If you are so narrow-minded and want to die, you can forget about it!"

This was truly amazing. To publicly embarrass Jiang Xi in front of the crowd, all of Guyue'ye's disciples were unable to stand anymore, and angrily rebuked his one after the other.

"What are you talking about!"

"Xue Meng, keep your mouth shut!"

Xue Meng felt uncomfortable being silently stared at by everyone. In this situation, he was actually not afraid. After quarreling with Mo Ran for so many years, he was used to being provoked. Immediately, his handsome brows slanted as he said, "What, am I wrong? It's because you, Sect Leader Jiang, are in front of this big event that you don't care about the severity of the matter. How can you use your age to talk about your qualifications!"

Jiang Xi had a bad temper as well. He was like an immortal fairy, unexpectedly squinting his eyes. In front of all these people, he had started a war of words with a junior.

“Age and seniority are linked. When you reach your father’s age, you should understand one thing — when talking to an elder, etiquette is the first thing you do.”

Xue Meng angrily said, “Even with Sect Leader Jiang’s confidence, you can still be an elder?”

“Alright, Meng’er.” Xue Zhengyong frowned, “Stop talking. Where is Ran’er? Quick, lead us there.”

Although Xue Zhengyong stopped Xue Meng in time and Jiang Xi had no way to argue with him, he still left behind a sentence with a flick of his sleeve, “Xue Zhengyong, you are truly a good teacher.”

Xue Zhengyong’s face was ashen, as if he wanted to say something. However, he seemed to be hindering the number one Sect Leader from his words. In the end, he didn’t say anything and followed everyone towards the mountainside.

Halfway up the mountain, he saw Mo Ran dressed in black, floating over.

Half of his sleeves were covered in blood, and the chess piece was tightly gripped in his hands. The vines behind him had already been burnt, and there were no new vines to be seen.

Seeing him get injured, both Chu Wanning and Xue Zhengyong’s face changed. Xue Zhengyong quickly asked, “Ran’er, how are you feeling? Heal… Heal, someone come quickly! Shi Mei! Come and help!”

Shi Mei seemed to be shocked as well. He looked at Mo Ran’s bloodied arm and his face turned pale. For a moment, he just stood there in a daze, unable to move.

Guyue'ye's Cold Scale Sacred Hand took a step forward, and with a flick of his sleeve, Mo Ran felt the burning pain in his wound slowly disappear. He nodded to Hua Binan, "Many thanks, Sacred Hand."

"Thank you." Hua Binan's voice was cold and indifferent. "I wonder what Mo-zongshi has discovered. Can you share it with everyone?"

At this moment, Mo Ran's mood had already dropped to the extreme. He was very clear that if he were to reveal the "Shared-Heart Formation" at this moment, he would definitely be met with suspicion and speculation from some people.

However, he could not care that much. He was very clear on what kind of bloody scene would follow if Zhenlong's chess game were to appear in large numbers in the martial arts world. It was something that he himself, Chu Wanning, would not wish to see.

"Look at this."

He opened his palm and showed the black piece in his hand to everyone.

Jiang Xi sneered, "Chess? Didn't he already know about it? Could this be the discovery of Mo-zongshi? If not for Zhenlong Chess, how could these corpses be at the mercy of others?"

Mo Ran pursed his lips and said, "It's not a Zhenlong chess piece. It's the Soul Devouring Insect on the chess piece."

He showed it to the others. "Here it is."

Jiang Xi stood with his hands behind his back. He didn't say anything, but just looked at him coldly. "…"

Xue Zhengyong moved closer to the insect and looked at it. After a long time, he could not think of anything, so he asked, “What’s wrong with this insect? Is there anything wrong with it?”

“Every single chess piece has it. This Zhenlong chess game is not as simple as you see it.”

Many pairs of eyes were staring at him, and he swept them with his gaze as well.

Of course he knew what he was doing.

He told everything he knew to prevent a catastrophe from happening.

However, he was very clear about the price…

This was actually the place where the mastermind was brilliant. If that person wasn’t sure if Mo Ran was a reincarnated body, the Shared-Heart Formation would undoubtedly be the best bait.

Unless Mo Ran was ruthless enough to not open his mouth and allow disaster to descend. As long as he gave guidance, he would undoubtedly reveal a piece of information to the person behind the scenes.

He must have been reborn.

But Mo Ran had no choice but to ponder, “I don’t know if any of you have ever seen a puppet show.”

Someone answered, “… Of course I have. But why do you say that?”

“I’ve seen it too, but when I was young, I was short and couldn’t squeeze into the front row, so I could only stand behind the counter and listen from behind the scenes." Mo Ran said. "So the puppet show I'm watching might be different from what you guys are watching. What you guys are watching is a story show, where a few puppets appear on stage, fight, kill, and talk and sing."

Jiang Xi impatiently asked, "What are you trying to say? Can you be more concise?"

"No." Mo Ran said, "Not everyone understands that it is faster than Sect Leader Jiang. I want everyone to understand that."

"…"

Seeing Jiang Xi's gloomy face and not utter another word, Mo Ran continued, "Will the cloth puppets on the stage move by themselves?"

Xue Zhengyong said, "Of course not."

"Then how did they move? Do I need to have a few people squatting under the curtain, holding up sticks and ropes and manipulating them?"

"That's right."

"Alright." Mo Ran said, "I have an idea. I don't know if Xu Shuanglin thought like this, but I think it should be pretty close. The 'Mount Huang' we are currently on, is just like the 'Mount Huang' below the stage. These soft zombies are like people who are controlling the puppets at the foot of the stage – naturally, these people don't need too much skill. As long as they move the puppets, it will be enough."

Jiang Xi said, "… Go on."

“If it’s really like this, then Mount Huang is actually just a backstage. The real show will not be performed here, but on the stage. Xu Shuanglin is like the leader of this troupe. If he were to give an order, to whom would he give it?”

Xue Zhengyong said, “Of course it’s the people squatting behind the curtain and carrying the ropes.”

Mo Ran said, “That’s right. This is the logic. The people on Mount Huang are the people carrying the threads. Xu Shuanglin gave them the instructions, and they led the cloth puppet in their hands to stand up and act.”

After Jiang Xi heard this, he narrowed his eyes and said, “You mean, other than Mount Huang, there is another place with corpses piled up like a mountain. That place is the so-called ‘platform’, and those corpses are the so-called ‘cloth figures’?”

“Sect Leader Jiang is so perceptive.”

“You don’t have to flatter me.” Jiang Xi said, “I just want to know, what you said seems like a bunch of flowers, the head is clear, but the truth is that you are indulging in wild fantasies. Mo-zongshi, words are empty, what makes you think that you have the right to speak?”

“… I don’t have much of a basis. The reason why I was able to think of all these is because I accidentally discovered a chess piece with a Soul Devouring Insect inside the corpse.”

The pitch-black chess piece in his hand was still stained with blood and was very dirty. Not long after the Soul Devouring Insect left his body, it was still alive.

Mo Ran was silent for a moment. He raised his head and looked at the Cold Scale Sacred Hand behind Jiang Xi. “Sacred Hand, you should know best what kind of compatibility Soul Devouring Insects have.”

“There are many of these insects. Which one is Mo-zongshi referring to?”

Mo Ran said, “Imitate.”

Hua Binan said, “Of course. Soul Devouring Insects, larvae can easily imitate their male counterparts. They will imitate their male counterparts’ every move until they become adults.”

Mo Ran said, “Alright, then what happens if I throw the larva that corresponds to this chess piece into another person’s body?”

“…” Hua Binan’s expression changed slightly as he said, “What are the corpses doing here? That side of the body will do the same.”

“How?”

“There’s no way to cure it, except when the bugs die.”

Mo Ran nodded and said, “Everyone, spread out a little. Be careful and watch.”

When his voice fell, a cold light suddenly appeared in the bottom of his eyes as he fiercely hacked at the Soul Devouring Insect on the chess piece. At this moment, the ground suddenly trembled. The thin curtains that had been raised up abruptly once more charged towards Mo Ran. Everyone was shocked, but Mo Ran quickly retracted his killing intent and dodged a round of vine attacks.

He let out a breath, stood with one hand behind his back, and said, “Did you see that? Mount Huang was deliberately protecting these Soul Devouring Insects, preventing them from being easily killed. If there was anyone who insisted that it was just a coincidence that this bug would appear on the treasured chess set… Or maybe it’s just an act, then I have nothing else to say.”

Almost everyone was deep in their thoughts, digesting Mo Ran’s conjecture.

A bold, almost outrageous guess.

However, for some reason, he was unable to find any loopholes.

The idea of Mo Ran was too crazy, but his words were firm and his gaze was hard.

It was as if he had full confidence in Xu Shuanglin’s every move and thought, and he was doing his best to convince them.

However, this kind of belief was very scary. In the crowd, even Chu Wanning was a little uneasy. He frowned as he looked at the pale face of Mo Ran from afar. Suddenly, he felt his heart palpitating. He felt as if something had exposed a little bit of its clue, a little bit of its fangs.

Tear it open.

Perhaps only someone like Xue Zhengyong could think so simply. He didn’t care too much about why Mo Ran could think of such a peculiar “puppet control” in such a short period of time. He only thought about it seriously for a moment before patting his head.

“So, Xu Shuanglin is not here at all?!”

Mo Ran: “I don’t think so.”

Elder Xuanji’s concern was different from everyone else’s. He frowned and said, “Along the way, if we didn’t kill tens of thousands of zombies, there would have been at least 9,000. Where did he get so many corpses? If there was a place where so many people suddenly died, then there would be no reason for us not to alarm the ten great sects.”

Mo Ran sighed and said, “He just died. Have you forgotten?”

“Where did he die?”

Seeing everyone not understanding, Mo Ran simply said two words.

“Linyi.”

“Impossible!”

Immediately, someone refuted him.

“Linyi was in a sea of fire. The Heaven Calamity Flame was raging, and the city was even burnt to ashes. How could there be a corpse left behind?”

“Because there are space cracks.” “Aside from Xu Shuanglin, he has another companion who knows space cracks.”

No one objected this time.

Not because they believed, but because it was too ridiculous, too ridiculous.

After a while, Jiang Xi said, “That was the first forbidden technique that has long been lost…”

“The first forbidden technique is the Gate of Time and Space. Not space.”

“There are several thousand people here, not just Xu Shuanglin.” Jiang Xi’s expression was extremely cold, “How much ability do you have to send thousands of people to Mount Huang before they are engulfed by the sea of fire?”

“Sect Leader Jiang, why don’t you think about it another way? I feel that these people were not sent here while alive, but before they were burned to death and turned to ashes. With this teleportation technique, it’s much easier to teleport dead than alive.”

Jiang Xi didn’t like the way his juniors guided his thoughts. He narrowed his eyes, but before he could say anything, a pale, slender hand pressed down on him. Hua Binan smiled and looked at Mo Ran, “Mo-zongshi, you speak with such confidence, as though you’ve seen it with your own eyes. What proof do you have?”

Mo Ran didn’t expect the medical sect to stand up and say something. He was startled for a moment before saying, “No one knows better than master Hua whether the flesh of these zombies is burnt or rotten.”

He glanced at the zombies that were lying on the ground with their legs cut off, unable to get back up. Then he looked back at them and blandly said, “Even if they were burned, are you sure they are Linyi’s corpses?”

Mo Ran’s black eyes stared at him unflinchingly, saying, “Just guessing. If master Hua thinks it’s too absurd, then you can come up with another way and have Xu Shuanglin bring over thousands of corpses to Mount Huang without anyone noticing.”

Hua Binan smiled. “I’m not good at evil arts, so I can’t guess.”

“…”

No one said anything else for a while.

These words from the Cold Scale Sacred Hand had stabbed the hearts of everyone.

When Mo Ran speculated on the use of the Soul Devouring Insects, many people began to feel a faint sense of dread and trepidation in their hearts, and goosebumps rose on their backs.

There’s a good saying, you can see what kind of person you are.

Many of the people present weren’t naive characters, so they were able to immediately think of the crux of the problem. That was, how could Mo Ran have made such a terrifying yet meticulous guess in such a short period of time?

Naturally, he was not Xu Shuanglin’s henchman. If he was, then he would absolutely not reveal this conjecture.

In that case, did this mean that Mo-zongshi, who had always shown a ‘righteous’ attitude, had actually long since been involved in this kind of demonic technique, or had at least thoroughly studied it?

The veil on Hua Binan’s face fluttered gently as he smiled and said, “In the end, when it comes to guessing what Xu Shuanglin is thinking, I feel that I can’t compare with Mo-zongshi.”

Mo Ran wanted to refute for a moment, but he suddenly felt that he could not stand up for himself. He could not say it out loud.

At this time, he suddenly heard a cold voice, “grandmaster Hua, why do you need to use insinuations?”

“Ah!” Hua Binan smiled. “Chu-zongshi.”

Chu Wanning was wearing a snow-white robe and standing under the moonlight, his expression was very dull, “Individuals in different positions will think differently. The ones in the seats can only see the puppets on the stage, but some can only watch from the back of the stage, watching the ordinary people squatting behind the tables. Grandmaster Hua, do you understand what I mean?”

Hua Binan smiled and said: “Forgive my stupidity.”

“Mo Ran has his own ideas.” Chu Wanning said coldly, “He is a disciple of my sect. I will leave it to you not to make any further guesses.”

Such trust made Mo Ran’s throat throb as he muttered, “Shizun…”

Hua Binan looked at Chu Wanning for a moment, wanting to say something. But in the end, he didn’t say anything. Smiling, he went back to Guyue’ye’s team.

Jiang Xi retrieved his face, but his expression was still ugly.

He said coldly, “No matter what, we’ll discuss it after we reach the top.”

When everyone reached the peak, it was completely empty. There was only a gigantic spell formation, and red lumps of light constantly emerged from the core of the formation.

When Mo Ran saw this array, his heart sank and his fingertips turned cold.

It was indeed a Shared-Heart Formation… It was an array formation that required refining a common heart chess piece and combining the Soul Devouring Insects into a Zhenlong chess piece.

The palace master of the Taxue Palace frowned, sizing up the strange array totem, and said: “What array is this? Never seen it. Sect Leader Xue, you have seen a lot, have you ever seen one?”

Xue Zhengyong moved closer to take a look and shook his head. “No.”

Jiang Xi’s brown-black eyes shone with a ghostly light. He looked at the eye of the formation for a while, and then slowly probed it with his hand. He was the most proficient at this type of alchemy array. He closed his eyes for about an incense stick of time before suddenly withdrawing his hand and turning to Mo Ran, “Do you have any other ideas?”

His reaction told everyone that Mo Ran’s conjecture was correct!

Mo Ran said, “… Yes.”

Jiang Xi said, “Speak.”

“Since it’s a mother bug, then it’s just as I said. One is on the stage, the other is off the stage. As a result, as many precious pieces of chess as Xu Shuanglin has done here, countless corpses will rise up and similarly obey his orders. However, in that place, there will definitely not be piles of ordinary zombies that are as weak as a chicken. I’m afraid they are all the remains of people with extremely powerful cultivations when they were alive.”

Xue Meng said in surprise, “Is this the reason why Xu Shuanglin killed so many ordinary people? In order to make the corpses of the cultivators under you easier to control?”

“I’m afraid so.”

“…”

Xue Meng turned around and looked at the mountain of corpses and the sea of blood below. Instantly, the color of his face completely drained. It was unknown if it was because he felt too disgusted or too shocked, or if it was because he thought of another place and the equivalent number of dead cultivators they were going to face.

Perhaps it was both. Xue Meng seemed to be swaying a little.

Suddenly, someone shouted, “Look here! There is a corpse here!”

There was no longer any tall shelter at the top of the mountain. There was only a bush. Those with sharp eyes noticed that there seemed to be a white robe sticking out from the top.

Ch. 205 Shizun, a Great Disaster Is About to Befall

Several men went to investigate and dragged it out of the bushes. It was a corpse that was charred black all over. It was burning so strongly that one could easily see that it had struggled in the sea of fire before it was born. Its face had become completely viscous, and its facial features could not be seen.

She could only be judged to be a woman when she was alive by her physique, as well as by the way she was dressed in snow-white clothing that would never melt in the face of fire.

Chu Wanning put his hand in the air, closed his eyes and said, “There are no traces of Zhenlong chess pieces.”

Someone mumbled, “Strange, could it be that Xu Shuanglin missed out on an entire mountain of Zhenlong chess?”

Immediately, someone retorted, “Have you ever seen a corpse that was left alone at the top of a mountain?”

Mo Ran also walked over, going back and forth as he carefully examined the female corpse. As the person who was the most proficient at using Chess in his previous life, he naturally knew about some of the restrictions of this technique. Therefore, he was concerned about the identity of this female corpse.

He had a more convincing guess, but he needed a little corroboration.

The evidence was quickly found.

Mo Ran took off a burnt black chain from his hand and wiped off the dark gray color on it, revealing some faint red Spirit Stones.

He handed the chain to Jiang Xi and said, “Song Qiutong.”

“… Why are you…” Jiang Xi asked halfway, then reacted with the chain in his hand. “Do you recognize this chain?”

“The wedding gift I gave her. Song Qiutong is the descendant of Song Xingyi. The clan of Butterfly-Boned Beauties who subdued the Phoenix Evil Spirit is the key to opening the Mount Huang Forbidden Area.”

Someone asked, “Xu Shuanglin killed Song Qiutong and used her as a key to open the gates to Mount Huang?”

Mo Ran shook his head and stared at Song Qiutong’s face for a long time. He did not feel pity, but his emotions were complicated. “No, I’m afraid she was still alive when he took her up the mountain.”

“What do you mean?”

Before Mo Ran could speak, Jiang Xi spoke first. Perhaps it was to save his pride, but when he met with this kind of question that he could easily answer, Jiang Xi did not plan on bringing this junior into the limelight again. Instead, he lightly said, “In order to give the order to Mount Huang.”

Mo Ran glanced at him, thinking that this was for the best. If he were to say everything, it would be harder to justify himself if suspicions were raised about him in the future. Thus, he walked to the side and handed over all the seats to Jiang Xi, allowing his to speak.

Someone asked, “Order? A weak girl like Song Qiutong, what orders can she give?”

“Although she is weak, her ancestors may not all be pustules. The Phoenix Evil Spirit of Mount Huang will only obey the orders of the bloodline that tamed it.” Jiang Xi was no fool, he said, “Song Qiutong is the last descendant of this bloodline.”

The man gasped, “Ah, the one who tamed the Phoenix Evil Spirit was the Butterfly-Boned Beauty Feast Venerable One?”

“That’s right.”

“This is indeed unheard-of…”

Jiang Xi said, “I’ve never heard of it, but it’s normal. Besides guarding, the four great evil mountains don’t have any other uses, so no one will care if they can be activated by anyone else. Song Qiutong had been displaced earlier and used as an auction item, so she probably did not know that he could hide on Mount Huang… she should not have even heard of her own ancestors defeating the Phoenix Evil Spirit.”

“So… So Xu Shuanglin brought her here?”

“That’s how it should be.” Jiang Xi continued, “At that time, a calamity broke out in the Rufeng Sect, and everyone was forced to flee for their lives. No one will be able to return to the main hall to bother about that weak woman. The only person who can take care of his is Xu Shuanglin, or that comrade behind Xu Shuanglin.”

Xue Zhengyong thought on the side and nodded, “Since the person behind the scenes can tear open the space crack and take Xu Shuanglin somewhere else, it would be a simple task for him to take Song Qiutong. We might as well make an assumption — he took her to Mount Huang. Song Qiutong was naturally a person who took advantage of the situation.

If she grabbed onto this life-saving straw, she would only do as she was told. At this time, that person only needs to bring her to Mount Huang and have her give an order. She won't reject."

Someone asked, "But why didn't he use the piece to control Song Qiutong?"

"Because the person who gave the order was under control due to the Phoenix Evil Spirit Identification. Only those who are alive and those who are willing will be willing to follow the command of this mountain."

Everyone slowly started to ponder about the smell. Someone exclaimed, "Then what are we doing here? They had all been tricked by him and ran into his 'background', and it was also because of this damned mantle of Mount Huang that they had no way of getting rid of these Soul Devouring Insects… What do we do now?"

Jiang Xi furrowed his brows, as if he despised the 'behind-the-scenes' analogy that Mo Ran was using, but he still said, "Find the 'front of the stage' and go directly destroy Xu Shuanglin's puppets."

"Mo-zongshi."

After Jiang Xi finished speaking, he suddenly called out to Mo Ran. Mo Ran was originally listening attentively with his arms crossed. He couldn't help but be startled when he mentioned him.

"Hmm? What's wrong?"

Jiang Xi said faintly, "Mo-zongshi's analysis just now was very thorough. Then, I would like to ask Mo-zongshi one more time, where is the stage now and how should I look for it?"

Mo Ran: “… Try and see?”

“Try… What?”

Mo Ran coughed lightly. The flame in his palm lit up, and the willow vine suddenly appeared. He said, “That’s it, it’s called ‘Jiangui’.”

Jiang Xi: “…”

Just like Tianwen, Jiangui has the ability to interrogate. It can interrogate living people, Evil Spirits, and even corpses with separated souls. The only difference was that the interrogator and the Inquisition had the two of them speak, whereas the inquiry had the spirit soul directly to communicate with the interrogator.

Song Qiutong had been dead for more than a month, her soul had long disappeared, but fortunately the mountain was still full of Yin Qi and her corpse had not rotted. Mo Ran whispered, “Jiangui, let’s go investigate.”

The only thing he saw was that Song Qiutong’s body had been wrapped in red three times by the extended branch and leaf vines immediately following his command, emitting a blinding red light.

As the red light flickered in the depths of Mo Ran’s eyes, he opened his mouth and asked in a low voice, “Was the person who brought you here Xu Shuanglin?”

It was hard to tell the facial features of Song Qiutong charred face, so they did not move for a while.

“… Is it not working?” Someone muttered softly.

Mo Ran narrowed his eyes and asked again, “Is the person who brought you here Xu Shuanglin?”

Still no movement.

Jiang Xi said, “Seems like Mo-zongshi is still too young. Why don’t you switch to your Shizun instead?”

However, just at this moment, Song Qiutong’s neck suddenly moved! His movements were stiff and extremely slow, but she undoubtedly shook her head in the most obvious manner.

“It’s not Xu Shuanglin?” Xue Zhengyong asked in shock.

Mo Ran tightly gripped the damned thing as his meridians slightly protruded from the back of his hand. He then asked, “Then, have you seen the person who brought you here?”

After a few more moments of silence, Song Qiutong suddenly opened her mouth but she did not reply. What came out of her mouth was a sticky, slippery snake that slithered to the ground and slithered away.

Some of Guyue’ye’s disciples immediately recognized her, “She has a Swallowing Snake in his stomach!”

The Swallowing Snake, an evil beast, was not poisonous. Its entire body was covered with spirit armor, and it could live for more than twenty years in a person’s stomach.

From then on, besides being able to answer the truth with the Swallowing Snake’s owner, the rest of the Dark Guard could only answer lies or be mixed in with the truth. Otherwise, this kind of snake would wake up from its slumber, and instantly tear apart the host's internal organs, throat, and tongue.

The devilish red light was extinguished abruptly, and Song Qiutong's entire body was trembling. She could not help but shake her head as a large amount of blood spurted out of her mouth. It looked like her internal organs had been shattered, as well as her tongue and throat…

She could no longer speak the truth.

Suddenly, someone suggested, "Since she can't say it, why don't you let her write it down and read it?"

The moment Mo Ran saw the Swallowing Snake, he had already understood that the person behind the scenes was very meticulous and was not something an ordinary person could handle. However, he still went forward and raised Song Qiutong's hands to examine them.

"How is it?" Xue Zhengyong asked.

Mo Ran shook his head and said, "All her bones and tendons have been cut off and she can't write anything at all."

All of a sudden, a cold wind blew past, and the leaves in the mountain forest began to cackle, the howls of zombies could be heard from far and near. The atmosphere on the mountain peak became extremely tense and strange, and Ma Yun, the owner of the Peach Blossom Villa broke the silence, saying, "T-that lead to the end?"

No one said anything.

Jiangui had been retracted, and Song Qiutong's corpse fell limply to the ground.

Soon, the vines of Mount Huang creeped over, carefully coiled up the corpse, and dragged her into the bushes, as if to preserve her with this little bush.

Earlier, he had actually not understood why Xu Shuanglin and the rest did not directly kill Song Qiutong, burn her, and then spend so much effort to cut off the meridians in their hands and feed it to the Swallowing Snake. However, seeing this scene, he suddenly understood —

Mount Huang obeyed the clan of Butterfly-Boned Beauties, from life to death. As long as his corpse was in Mount Huang, the Phoenix Evil Spirit would not allow others to burn her to ashes.

He didn't know what feeling Mo Ran had, but he suddenly thought of his previous life. He was dead, and no one had ever taken his body from him. Before he died, he had to lie down in a coffin he had dug out beforehand. Actually, there was no point in doing that. Later on, the rebel soldiers who attacked him from the mountain, it would be weird if they didn't cut him into pieces.

In his previous life, the way he died was probably even more miserable than Song Qiutong's death. When he arrived, he didn't even have a vine willing to protect him.

Many people in the surrounding area were whispering, talking to each other, frowning, and discussing how to deal with the situation. Some of them had their eyes closed and were deep in thought, such as Jiang Xi and Chu Wanning.

Mo Ran closed his eyes and combed through what was happening before him. Such a bloody tactic was extremely similar to what he had experienced in his previous life. Perhaps because of this, Mo Ran felt that it was not that difficult to guess Xu Shuanglin's thoughts and actions.

He seemed to see Xu Shuanglin pacing back and forth barefooted in his Three Lives Courtyard. Xu Shuanglin was thinking and asking himself: If I don't have enough spiritual energy, I can't control the cultivators' corpses, what should I do?

Then, he came up with an idea —

When using the Shared-Heart Formation, he could kill the same number of ordinary people. Each cultivator would have an ordinary corpse, just like a marionette, which he could use to drive.

Where is the safest place to do this?

Four Great Evil Mountains.

What if he couldn't open the Mount Huang barrier?

He brought along Song Qiutong's corpse.

All the clues were rapidly connected together. Mo Ran's eyes were dark, and he was deep in thought.

Where did the corpses of commoners come from?

Linyi had burned in the calamity fire.

Even though it was all a guess, every single one of them matched each other. The luster in his eyes scattered and disintegrated, disintegrating and disintegrating, and he could even feel that he was Xu Shuanglin, and Xu Shuanglin was him. Standing at the summit of Mount Huang, his gaze frantically roamed about, watching the surging corpse tide below.

More and more clearly, more and more clearly, until suddenly, it was at a point.

If he was Xu Shuanglin, then after doing all this, shouldn't he build the "front of the stage" and perform the puppet show that he had painstakingly arranged?

Where should "the front stage" be chosen?

Where would they be able to find such a strong and considerable amount of cultivators' remains?

If he wasn't discovered, he could be protected…

The gradually flourishing sunlight suddenly dimmed down.

"Mount Jiao…" he murmured.

Jiang Xi cast a sidelong glance at him. "What?"

Mo Ran's expression changed as he looked to the east. He suddenly became somewhat furious. The Hero Tomb! — The stage he found was in front of the Hero Tomb in Mount Jiao! Linyi's calamity, the majority of the casualties were commoners. Xu Shuanglin was able to obtain so many corpses of commoners, but not cultivators with even greater magic power! — The Hero Tomb!"

Jiang Xi also reacted. "Are you saying that Xu Shuanglin's corresponding summoning is the skeleton of the Rufeng Sect that was buried in the Hero Tomb during these hundreds of years?"

Mo Ran was too lazy to waste words with him. He cursed under his breath and dashed down the mountain.

Xu Shuanglin was truly a madman! The Hero Tomb was filled with generations of Sect Leaders from the Rufeng Sect, even the original Sect Leaders whose corpses had been dissolved into immortals. It was fine to control the common cultivators with the Shared-Heart Formation, but to control these people?

Once Xu Shuanglin's magic power ran out of steam, these strong bones would go berserk and break free. At that time, Xu Shuanglin would be counterattacked and die, while the most powerful corpses of the Rufeng Sect in hundreds of years would go berserk.

That would be a great calamity no less than the Unbroken Hell's Heavenly Rift!

Ch. 206 Shizun, Just Who Am I?

Mo Ran swept past the rolling corpse tide, heading straight to the foot of the mountain. After exiting the barrier, his gaze immediately fell on Nangong Si.

At this moment, Nangong Si's imprisonment had already been released. Ye Wangxi knelt down on one knee to the side, bandaging his wounds. Mei Hanxue, on the other hand, had a cold expression on his face as he quietly sat on the floor between the Jiangdong Hall and Nangong Si.

It had to be known that Mei Hanxue was the da-shixiong of the Taxue Palace in Mount Kunlun. It was also said that he had appeared and disappeared mysteriously, and his movements were extremely strange and unpredictable.

With his blessings, although the group of people from Jiangdong Hall wished that they could cut Nangong Si to pieces, they had no other choice but to obediently sit on the rocks at the side and glare at them.

Seeing that Mo Ran had come down, Mei Hanxue's zither music abruptly stopped. He retrieved his zither, stood up and nodded slightly.

The style of a sect was extremely dignified and righteous.

"What happened on the mountain?"

Mo Ran said, "It's all fake."

"Fake?" Mei Hanxue frowned slightly. When the people of Jiangdong Hall heard this, they all gathered around. Huang Xiaoyue was still lying in the pavilion beside them.

A few disciples were massaging his legs and shoulders as they feigned a weak and dying appearance. However, when they heard his words, they could not help but narrow their eyes and prick up their ears to listen.

Mo Ran said, “Xu Shuanglin is not on this mountain, but I’m afraid at Mount Jiao. I —”

He had not finished speaking when Nangong Si’s face turned pale. He stared at Mo Ran and asked, “Xu Shuanglin is on top of the Mount Jiao?”

“Perhaps, but not with absolute certainty.”

Nangong Si was stunned for a moment before muttering, “… That’s impossible. Mount Jiao will only listen to the orders of the Nangong Family. Xu Shuanglin, he…”

He thought of something and was suddenly at a loss for words. The last bit of blood on his face faded, and his pair of bright eyes stared at Mo Ran face.

He had actually forgotten that Xu Shuanglin also wore the surname Nangong.

The Nangong family had once had a young hero that was praised by everyone. Everyone felt that the Rufeng Sect would once again rise to glory in the hands of this pair of brothers, like the sun at high noon. Who would have thought that these two brothers and the Rufeng Sect would end up like this?

Nangong Si silently lowered his eyelids and did not say another word.

At this time, the others had also successively descended from Mount Huang. Several thousand people were like a migratory school of fish that crowded as they returned to the front of the mountain.

Chu Wanning walked over with Xue Meng and Shi Mei following behind him. He looked at Nangong Si, “How did your hand get injured?”

“It’s fine, I did it myself.” Nangong Si said. “Thank you for your kindness, zongshi.”

Xue Meng sighed and said, “Call him shizun, call him zongshi… Seriously, Shizun is giving you face, yet you don’t want it… you…”

“I’ve never taken a teacher before.” Nangong Si’s parched lips slightly opened and closed, “What I have learnt, I have never learned from a zongshi. When my mother asked for it when I was young, zongshi did not need to take it to heart.”

Chu Wanning: “…”

“Sorry. But I can’t even remember the three kowtows back then.”

Before Chu Wanning could say anything, he saw Jiang Xi and the other heads of the other sects walking towards them, with most of them hugging each other. He was not used to speaking in private in front of so many people, so he only pursed his lips and did not speak any further. He only handed a small pot of medicine from his Qiankun bag to him.

“It will be used externally every day for three days.”

After he said this simple sentence, the others had already arrived.

Huang Xiaoyue was also being supported from the pavilion as he walked over while trembling. This cup of soup was something that the Jiangdong Hall would definitely not miss.

Now that Guyue'ye was the head of the various sects, Jiang Xi should be the first one to speak in the face of such a big matter. However, Jiang Xi looked at him and wasn't sure what attitude he should take to be the most suitable for him…

The Rufeng Sect had been domineering and tyrannical for so many years, and they had accumulated a lot of enmity with other sects and clans. They had nowhere to vent their hatred and hatred on, and in the end, it all fell to Nangong Family alone.

But what was wrong with him? He didn't take away the Bitan Manor's sword manual, nor did he sell it for a sky-high price. He didn't even have time to find out where the sword manual was… His father, Nangong Liu, had committed countless crimes and died quite happily. Now, everyone said that his father would repay the debts, but if his son were to repay the debts, how many of those present would be able to remain clean and innocent?

Moreover, this young man was currently the only descendant of the Nangong family, and he was the key to open the gates to Mount Jiao.

"You…"

Jiang Xi hesitated for a moment before speaking.

Just as he was speaking, he suddenly heard someone by his side say shakily, "Benefactor Nangong, you have to come with us. To untie a bell you need the person who tied it, it's the Rufeng sect mess, we need you."

When Jiang Xi saw that, he sneered in his heart as he knew it was master Xuanjing from the Wubei Temple. He thought to herself, "This old bald donkey is dirty; I really want to pick a fight with him."

But this was just right, since he was not good at socializing, he lazily closed his mouth and stood to the side, watching Great master Xuanjing leaning on his magic staff.

After Nangong Si heard this, he said, “Sure, I will go with you to Mount Jiao.”

Great master Xuanjing did not expect him to so readily agree to help unblock the Divine Barrier. He was stunned for a moment before closing his eyes and said, “Amitabha, the benefactor is wise. Buddha has knowledge, and sin should be reduced.”

For a moment, Nangong Si seemed to want to say something, but he did not. Naobaijin in his quiver was whimpering and trying to climb out, but he quietly pushed it back.

“I went to Mount Jiao because I did not want the elites of the Rufeng Sect, who had existed for hundreds of years, to become the accomplices of a tiger”, said Nangong Si. “However, I thank grandmaster for your kind intentions in guiding me on the way.”

Thus, the key to Mount Jiao could be found.

It was different from Mount Huang. If they wanted to go to Mount Jiao, whether it was the people from the Nangong Family or any outsiders brought in by the Nangong Family, they had to do two things —

First, fast for ten days.

Second, when reaching the mountain range belonging to Mount Jiao, one must walk on foot. One cannot ride a sword or ride a horse, and with just his feet, he must cross the first three mountains to express his sincerity.

Xue Zhengyong calculated the time and said, “From here to the Panlong Mountain Range, if I were to ride a horse, it would take me about ten days, just after fasting. I think that if you do not have any urgent matters to attend to, there is no need for you to return to your own sects.

The palace master of the Taxue Palace said: “That’s fine, if we go together, we can discuss our next plans.”

Xue Zhengyong said, “We have at least three thousand men here, so it’s a little difficult to find horses…”

At this moment, a weak voice suddenly came from the crowd. With one hand raised, it was the head of a deer, a scoundrel, wearing a large red brocade robe. The edge of the brocade robe was embroidered with the totem of a black cat: “My Villa has some, it should be enough.”

“Palace Master Ma?” Jiang Xi raised his eyebrows.

This person was the Sect Leader of one of the nine great sects of the Upper Cultivation World, the “Peach Blossom Villa”, Ma Yun. He was the third richest person on the « Cloud Ranking » that Xue Meng bought, but now that Nangong Liu had died, he should be ranked second in terms of wealth.

Compared to Jiang Xi, Ma Yun was much more grounded and looked like a businessman. However, the ways in which the two of them amassed wealth were different. Jiang Xi was ferocious. He had a wide range of treasures. What he did was on the black market.

Palace Master Ma, on the other hand, had set up many large and small relay stations in the cultivation world to receive all kinds of parcels and deliveries, as well as leases of immortal horses, immortal boats, and spiritual energy carriages. His manor specialized in making all sorts of spirit carriages, and kept a large number of powerful oxen and horses.

Facing the cold-faced Jiang Xi, the horse that received the guest seemed to be a little scared. It shrank its neck and said, “How about… Or to Rinling Island? Sect Leader Jiang’s mansion definitely has more horses than mine, hehehe.”

Everyone: “…”

Jiang Xi looked at his smile which was full of wrinkles and was speechless for a moment. He then said, “I am just moved by Palace Master Ma’s generosity and have no other intentions. This place is very close to the Peach Blossom Villa. Since Palace Master Ma is willing to lend us all our mounts, it naturally cannot be any better.”

When this Palace Master Ma heard this, he heaved a sigh of relief and smiled, “Then I invite everyone to move to this lowly manor. It’s already late in the night, why not stay in the manor for the night and depart together the next day?”

Taobao Villa is located at the edge of the West Lake, built on the summit of the Lonely Mountain. However, even though this Lonely Mountain was called a mountain, it was actually just a small hill. Climbing to the peak of the mountain would only take half an hour.

“We’re here!” Palace Master Ma excitedly stood in front of the massive crimson mountain gate and lifted his hand to remove the protective barrier. “Everyone, please come in, please come in.”

On the journey to Mount Huang, the various sect masters were either anxious or worried. Only Palace Master Ma was able to quickly act as if nothing had happened, and he was even able to bring out a steaming smile. Everyone looked at each other and bitterly smiled, but they didn't say anything. The Sect Leader was first, the Elders were second, and the direct disciples of the various sects followed. One by one, they entered the Spirit Formation gate of the Peach Blossom Villa.

Xue Meng whispered to Mo Ran, "What the hell is this receiving horse doing? Laughing until my hair stood on end, could it be that he is also with Xu Shuanglin? Is he inviting someone to join him?"

"… No."

"Are you sure again?"

Mo Ran said, "The Sect Leaders and elites of the nine great sects are all here. Now, everyone is well armed. If he is Xu Shuanglin's partner, he won't be able to do anything, and will instead expose himself."

"Then why is he so happy?"

Mo Ran sighed and said, "He's happy to be rich."

"What money? What he did was clearly a loss-making business." Xue Meng was stupefied. It was said that when he was young, Madam Wang had given him a silver leaf and told him to go to the hawker to exchange it. In the end, he got a small kite and three oily copper coins, which made him fall into the pit to the point where he felt that the kite was very pretty.

How could someone like him know the thoughts of a guest horse.

So after thinking about it for a long time, he still said in a daze, "Did you hear wrongly? He said he was going to lend our horses, not rent one. He doesn't take a dime, he —"

At this time, the lower level disciples of the Villa that were in charge of receiving guests came to receive them. Mo Ran waved his hand, indicating for them to stop talking.

This row of courtyards were all located at the edge of a mountain. A single courtyard could accommodate six people. At dusk, Mo Ran stood at the window of his own room, gazing out at the cold mountains and the smoke of the West Lake.

Ever since he came down from Mount Huang, Mo Ran had been very anxious and restless. Now that he had closed his door, he finally revealed his complete restlessness. He ran one hand along the windowsill, the other unconsciously playing with something warm in the palm of his hand.

The scenery in Jiangnan was always beautiful, but at this moment, he was not in the mood to appreciate it. The setting sun was setting. If someone were to see the expression on his face at this moment, they would definitely not believe that he was the honest Mo-zongshi.

This was a face that belonged to the emperor Taxian-Jun from his previous life.

Perverted.

The setting sun pierced his hazel eyes.

In the twilight, Mo Weiyu's face changed.

The reincarnated person behind Xu Shuanglin caused him to shudder. He felt as if there was a blade on his neck, the blade of the blade sticking to his skin and piercing through his flesh. Blood was already seeping out.

But the man did not strike down, and he could not turn his head. He couldn't even see clearly who was standing behind him, as if they were going to take his life at any moment.

His mind was in a mess. He had a feeling that he wouldn't be able to hide the matter of his rebirth for long.

If the day of the final battle was the day the truth was revealed, what should he do?

What would his aunt and uncle think of him? How would Shi Mei see him? How would Xue Meng view him?

And there was also Chu Wanning.

Chu Wanning…

If his past life was exposed, how much hatred would Chu Wanning have towards him? Would he be unwilling to even glance at him from now on?

The more he thought about it, the colder he felt —

… Plop.

Suddenly, the object in his hand fell to the floor.

He picked it up in a daze and glanced at it indifferently.

There was a bit of dust on that little toy. It seemed like no one had lived in this courtyard for a long time. It was not tidied diligently and the floor was covered in dust…

He stopped.

Mo Ran's face suddenly turned pale.

He suddenly realized what he was playing.

Lying on his palm was a warm, pitch-black chess piece.

Zhenlong Chess!

The expression on Mo Ran's face changed!

In his previous life, he'd formed a habit during the last two years before his death. Every time his emotions became extremely complicated and irritable, he would uncontrollably gather his spirit energy in his palm and condense it into a tiny black dot, turning it over and over in his hands.

Mo Ran had overheard the people of the palace discussing this matter. They all felt that he must be sulking, angry, and wanted to create a pawn. He wanted to kill people, and he wanted to turn living people into puppets.

"I was so afraid that His Majesty would throw out that chess piece in his hands at any moment."

"To be honest, I'd rather see him play with a dead man's skull."

"What's there to be afraid of? I am a servant of His Majesty. Heaven knows how many times my legs have gone soft. How much spiritual power would it cost for His Majesty to create a pawn? He can't be playing around, can he? He must have a purpose, or maybe he wanted to vent… What if I vent on you, then what should I do…"

Mo Ran was speechless, but at the same time, he found it funny.

He did not understand what these jabbering court maids were thinking, and why they were so confident to guess at his inner thoughts.

Actually, there was no meaning in making these chess pieces. They were merely a personal hobby of Emperor Taxian-Jun's. They were as simple as that. However, ever since he had heard the discussion of the palace maids, he would occasionally play with them and pretend that he wanted to throw the Zhenlong chess piece in his hand at one of the servants, scaring those people to the point that their legs were like sieve chaff. His expression was as cold as ever, but he secretly felt amused in his heart.

Those were the only pleasures he had in the last two years of his life.

It had been a long time since he had used Zhenlong Chess.

It was as if he wanted to break away from his past self. Ever since he was reborn, Mo Ran had never cast this spell again.

In the blink of an eye, seven or eight years had passed. He thought that he would soon forget about the mantra and the mantra.

However, he could not escape at all.

Sin was planted in his soul.

As Mo Ran stared at the black piece, his hands began to tremble…

He was suddenly filled with despair.

He suddenly did not know who he was. Was it the Venerable Taxian-Jun? Or was it Mo-zongshi?

He suddenly didn’t know where he was… Was it by the lakeside? Or was it in front of Wushan Palace?

Suddenly, he was unable to distinguish between dream and reality. He was trembling uncontrollably, and that small black dot appeared in his eyes like a heavy nightmare, like a dark stain of blood.

“Mo Ran! Mo Weiyu! You can’t escape! You can’t escape! You can only be an evil person forever, you can only be a malicious ghost! You scourge! Scourge!”

The ground was shaking.

“Toc toc toc.” Suddenly, someone knocked on the door.

Mo Ran jolted awake, cold sweat pouring down his back. Gripping the chess piece tightly in his hand, he turned around and sternly asked, “Who is it?”

“It’s me.” The person outside replied, “Xue Meng.”

Ch. 207 Shizun, I Want to Tell You Something

Mo Ran opened the door.

It was not completely open, only a narrow gap. He saw Xue Meng bathed in sunlight, beside him followed Shi Mei in green clothes.

“We brought you some medicine,” said Xue Meng. “What are you doing? Open the door and let us in.”

Mo Ran was silent for a moment before he let go of the door frame. The two entered the house. Xue Meng walked over to the window and peeked out to look at the western red light. He withdrew his head and said, “Your house has a nice scenery. There are several large camphor trees outside of mine. It’s all blocked, and I can’t see anything.”

Mo Ran said absentmindedly, “If you like it, I’ll trade with you.”

“There’s no need, I’ve already put down the things, I’m just saying them casually.” Xue Meng waved his hand and walked over to the table. “Let Shi Mei apply the medicine on you. The wound on your shoulder that was cut by the vine, if you don’t deal with the suppuration then you should.”

His dark brown eyes stared at Xue Meng — If Xue Meng knew about his previous life and what kind of spirit soul was hidden under his cousin’s shell, would he smile at him like this and give him medicine…

Xue Meng was somewhat afraid from his stare and asked, “What’s wrong? Is there something on my face?”

Mo Ran shook his head, sat down at the table, and lowered his eyes.

Shi Mei stood aside and said, “Take off your shirt. Show me the wound.”

Mo Ran felt depressed, but he did not think too much about it. He lifted his hand to take off his shirt and said, “I’ll have to trouble you.”

Shi Mei shook his head and sighed: “You, ah, don’t know how to pay attention. If you follow your Shizun, you don’t have to learn from him. If there’s any danger, you can always run to the front. In the end, you can always cause yourself injuries.”

As he spoke, he took out the contents of the medicine box and carefully wiped off the wounds, applied medicine, and wrapped the medicine in gauze.

After doing all this, Shi Mei said: “Don’t go into the water anymore and don’t make too much of a move. There’s poison on the vine and the wound won’t heal easily. Also, extend your hand and let me take a pulse.”

Mo Ran stretched out his arm.

Shi Mei’s ten fingers were as white as soft jade. After patting his pulse for a while, a trace of worry flashed across his eyes.

The expression disappeared in a flash, only to be seen by Mo Ran, “What happened?”

Shi Mei came back to his senses and said: “Nothing.”

“Is the poison serious?”

Shi Mei shook his head. After hesitating for a while, he smiled at him: “Just a little bit. Remember to rest up a bit, otherwise it will cause trouble.”

As he spoke, he lowered his head and packed the medicine box, saying, “I still have some medicine to clean up. I’ll be leaving first, you guys can continue chatting.”

The door closed behind him.

Xue Meng looked at the place where he had disappeared and slightly frowned. “Why do I feel that his mood has not been very good recently? It’s strange, as if there’s something on his mind.”

Mo Ran was not in a good mood. He said, “I think after my pulse examination, you discovered that my time was up. Do you feel sad for me?”

“Pei pei pei, crow’s beak.” Xue Meng stared at him. “How can you curse yourself like this? Besides, I’m telling you seriously, Shi Mei has been very low these past few days.”

Mo Ran started to care. He stopped what he was doing and asked, “Is there?”

“Yes. Let me tell you, he was in a daze quite a few times. I called out to him two or three times before he reacted. “Do you think he could be…”

“What is it?”

“He fell in love with someone?”

Mo Ran: “…”

Shi Mei fell in love with someone? If it was eight years ago, when Xue Meng had told him this, he would probably be able to stand up and curse. However, at this moment, he felt a bit surprised. He wanted to find some clues, but he realized that he had paid too little attention to Shi Mei. It was actually impossible to find any traces of Shi Mei.

“Don’t ask me. I’m not the one he likes anyway.” As he spoke, he pulled up his open robes and put them on. “Besides, it’s not like you care about the feelings of others, what do you have to do with so much?”

Xue Meng was a bit embarrassed. With a red face, he coughed and said, “How am I supposed to care!? I was just casually saying it!”

He stared furiously at Mo Ran, at the guy with the perfect figure dressing himself, staring at him, and suddenly felt that something was not right.

After looking carefully once more, his gaze landed on the tightly muscled chest and stopped —

Mo Ran did not care and said casually, “Why are you staring at me? Like me?”

“…” Xue Meng did not utter a single word.

Mo Ran said with the tone of someone about to die, “Stop looking, it’s impossible for the two of us.”

Only then did Xue Meng turn around with a pale face. He pretended to be calm and said, “Pfft, what a beautiful idea.”

However, his heart was pounding — he saw a crimson red crystal pendant hanging near Mo Ran’s neck. It looked extremely familiar, as if he had seen an identical pendant somewhere. He could not recall what had happened, but for some reason, goosebumps appeared all over his body and his mind buzzed.

Where have I seen it before?

After Mo Ran had put on his clothes, he suddenly noticed that there were a few stains of medicinal liquid on the table. He asked Xue Meng, “Do you have a handkerchief?”

“Hmm?…Oh, yes.” Xue Meng came back to his senses, took out a piece and gave it to him. “You still don’t remember taking one with you.”

“I’m not used to it.”

Xue Meng said with a straight face, “Last time, I said that Shizun would give you a piece, but this is not how you brag.”

Mo Ran then remembered that he had begged him to give him a haitang handkerchief. He didn’t know if he had forgotten or not, but he had never given it to him. He couldn’t help but feel a bit embarrassed. He cleared his throat and said, “I have been busy recently. Shizun isn’t free…”

“Even if he has free time, he won’t make it for you alone.” Xue Meng sneered, “I definitely have a share. Maybe that person… Nangong Si also has a share.”

When it came to Nangong Si, the already bad mood of Mo Ran turned even more cloudy.

“Did you see him?”

“No, I’ll go and see what he does.” Xue Meng said. “He and Ye Wangxi are staying next to that old fogey. I wish I could be thousands of miles away from them.”

Mo Ran nodded. “It’s good over there. Although Jiang Xi has a bad temper and has a lot of problems, he can still be considered a reasonable person. He shouldn’t make things difficult for them.”

Xue Meng angrily snorted, “Him? If that b * stard can be reasonable, then I’ll be able to have his surname. I won’t be called Xue Meng, I’ll just call him Jiang Meng.”

Mo Ran: “…”

Xue Meng always had this ability. He was always making a ruckus and was always making a fuss about nothing. But perhaps it was also because of his clamor that Mo Ran felt the warmth in the room.

Only then did the terrifying nightmares of his past life slowly fade away.

Xue Meng said, “Speaking of which, it can’t be that Shizun really wants to accept Nangong Si as his disciple, right?”

“Shizun definitely wouldn’t have wanted to do it in the past. But now, neither you nor I can stop him.”

Xue Meng was stunned. “Why?”

Mo Ran sighed, “Let me ask you, previously, Li Wuxin was adoring and revering Nangong. He is obviously an elder, but he has never dared to contradict or contradict Nangong. Why?”

“Because his dad is powerful, the number one Sect Leader in the cultivation world. Is there even a need to say that?”

“Very well, let me ask you this again. Why would someone like Huang Xiaoyue, as well as those people who do not even know their names, dare to bully him?”

“… Because of enmity?”

Mo Ran was speechless. He thought to himself, only Xue Meng could say such words.

He suddenly felt very envious. Even though Xue Meng was already over twenty years old, he sometimes still thought like a child — “being like a child” was a very subtle description, because the most obvious characteristic of a child was innocence, simplicity, bluntness, but at the same time it also meant that a person had not grown up, was immature, and was reckless.

However, for Mo Ran, he felt that even after living for twenty years, his eyes were still extremely clean. It was a miracle.

He looked at the miracle in front of him and said with a wry smile:

“Where did all these enmity come from?”

“The Rufeng Sect has revealed so many matters regarding the cultivation world…”

“It was Xu Shuanglin who shook it. How much does it have to do with Nangong Si?” Besides, aren’t those secrets that were revealed by Nangong Si one of the most injured people there? He learned that his mother had been killed by his father, and that he was not the perpetrator at all, but a victim.”

Xue Meng opened his mouth and wanted to say something, but Mo Ran did not say anything and waited for him to say something. In the end, Xue Meng just opened his mouth wide for a long time before bitterly closing it again.

He didn't know how to respond.

After a long while, he reluctantly asked, "Then what do you think it is?"

"First, to watch the show." "With regards to the matter of the Rufeng Sect, it's too late for everyone to get excited just by looking at it. It's much more satisfying to bully a Young Master in distress than to bully a little beggar."

This was the same as in his previous life, Xue Meng. When the young phoenix was in a difficult situation, what kind of exclusion did he suffer?

Xue Meng did not know, but Mo Ran saw it clearly.

In order to not offend Emperor Taxian-Jun, no sect was willing to take him in, and no sect was willing to cooperate with him. He had gone through all sorts of hardships, begging all the leaders of all sizes to join hands and overthrow Mo Ran before he did anything even more crazy.

It was the first year of Mo Ran's accession to the throne.

Xue Meng ran for nine years and lobbied for nine years, but no one listened to him. In the end, the only person who was willing to give him a place to stay was Taxue Palace on Mount Kunlun, and the only person who was willing to help him was Mei Hanxue.

Mo Ran rejoiced that the Xue Meng of his life would no longer need to suffer such humiliation.

Xue Meng was completely oblivious, so he asked, "Then what about the second item?"

“The second thing is to think that he is acting on behalf of the heavens.”

“What do you mean?”

“Do you know what our descendant, the Tianyin Pavilion, will do when it comes to dealing with felons in the cultivation world?”

“Let’s make it public for now, let’s hang ourselves for three days and three nights.” Xue Meng muttered, “Why are you asking me this? It’s not like you haven’t seen it before. When you just arrived at Sisheng Peak, there was already a felon who was sentenced to death. You saw it during the execution, but you were really timid then. After reading it, you were so scared that you had a fever. It lasted for four to five days before it subsided…”

Mo Ran smiled, and after a while he said, “There’s nothing I can do about it. That was the first time I saw someone digging for spiritual cores.”

“What are you afraid of? It’s not like someone will dig up your Spiritual Core.”

Mo Ran said, “The world is unpredictable.”

Xue Meng was a little taken aback. He lifted his hand to probe Mo Ran’s forehead. “There’s no fever. Why are you saying such silly things?”

“I dreamt that someone’s sword would pierce my chest, and a few more inches and my heart and spirit core would be destroyed.”

“…” Xue Meng was speechless. He waved his hand and said, “Forget it. Although you are quite annoying, you are still my cousin. I will be the first one to unceremoniously dig out your spirit core.”

Mo Ran then laughed. His pitch-black pupils could not see the bottom. There was light, there was shadow, light and shadow, his thoughts were endless.

Why did he mention the past about Xue Meng's Tianyin Pavilion?

Perhaps Xue Meng hadn't noticed it at all, but those faces had left a rich and colorful reflection in the heart of Mo Ran back then.

He remembered it was a woman, in her twenties, very young.

Men, women, elders, children, cultivators, commoners, everything was gathered in front of the plaza of the Tianyin Pavilion. All of them raised their heads and looked at the woman on the platform who was bound by the three magical artifacts, Immortal-Binding Ropes, Soul Locking Lock, and Demon Subduing Chain.

"Isn't this Madam Lin?"

"She's only just married into a famous family, what crime did she commit? She actually alarmed the Tianyin Pavilion…"

"Don't you know? She was the one who set the fire in the Zhao Family! She killed his husband!"

"Ahh…" When the surrounding people heard this, they all sucked in a breath of cold air. Someone asked, "Why is she so frustrated? I hear her husband is very nice to her."

Whispering amongst themselves, the Tianyin Pavilion's master leisurely walked onto the platform. He first greeted the audience with the sect scroll and then unhurriedly opened the sect scroll to read out the crime of this woman surnamed Lin.

The offense was very long, and he read it for less than an hour.

In other words, this woman surnamed Lin was not the young miss of the Zhao family that was going to marry her. She was just a substitute, a puppet wearing a human mask. Her real purpose in approaching Young Master Zhao was to commit murder for personal grievances. The lady who was originally going to marry into the Zhao Family had long become Miss Lin's target.

"What a great show, a leopard exchanging for a crown prince." In the end, the Tianyin Pavilion master commented righteously, "However, the Heaven's Net is always the same. Miss Lin, it is time for you to tear off your mask and let everyone have a good look at your original appearance."

The human skin mask was torn off in public and thrown to the ground like a snake's skin.

Under the messy hair of the woman on the stage, another pale and flirtatious face could be seen. The disciples of the Tianyin Pavilion stroked their chin, showing his off to them.

The audience immediately burst into an uproar. Someone shouted, "What a vicious woman!"

"Killing an innocent young miss and causing the destruction of the Rong family just because of his personal grudge?"

"Beat her to death!"

"Cut out her eyes!"

"Ling Chi She! Cut off her skin inch by inch!"

The crowd was made up of separate people, but in the end they grew the same heads, like a slow, lackluster beast whose tail doesn't grow, slobbering, growling, and growling.

This ugly thing probably thought of itself as a auspicious beast. It could represent the Azure Sun and the Moon, and it could represent the Emperor's afterlife. Standing in this world, it was fair and upright.

The screams became louder and louder as they scratched Mo Ran ears of the youths. He was shocked by their anger, like a woman who had died in vain, or a Young Master Zhao who had never lived in this world before, but now they were all their own relatives, friends, sons, mistresses. They wished that they could personally avenge their friends, family, and their sons, and their mistresses, and that they could tear up that sinner with the surname Lin alive.

Mo Ran blankly opened his eyes wide and said in a daze, "A conviction… Isn't it supposed to be decided by the Tianyin Pavilion?"

Xue Zhengyong then consoled him, "Don't be afraid, Ran Er. It was decided by the Tianyin Pavilion. Everyone just can't stand watching it happen. They were all speaking on the surface. In the end, the Tianyin Pavilion would of course judge them according to the instructions of the Divine Martial Realm. It will be fair, don't worry."

However, things did not go as Xue Zhengyong said. The crowd's cheers were getting more and more crazy and exaggerated.

"This bitch! Killing the innocent! How could he let his die so easily? Pavilion master Mu! You are the Justice Division of the cultivation world, so you must properly judge her, giving his ten times or even a hundred times the pain! Let his have good results! and get what you deserve!”

“First, tear his mouth to pieces, pull out his teeth one by one, and cut his tongue into countless pieces!”

“Spread mud on her! After it was dried, it was torn off, and a layer of skin was attached to it! Now, if he were to pour chili concoction all over his body, the pain would kill her! Kill her!”

The brothel’s bawd came to watch the commotion. He knocked on the melon seeds and then giggled sweetly, “Aiya, tear off his clothes. Shouldn’t this kind of person be naked? Put snakes in his groin, stuffed loaches in his groin, and find a hundred men to take turns with her. That would be the right thing to do.”

Were these people really angry because of their own righteousness?

When he was about to take Xue Zhengyong away from the grandstands, there was a loud bang from the stage. No one knew where in the crowd, but someone had thrown an detonator at the woman’s feet, which was against the rules, but it was unknown if the people from the Tianyin Pavilion were able to stop it in time or if they did not want to stop it at all. The detonator exploded very quickly, causing the woman’s leg to explode into a mess of blood and gore.

“Uncle!”

He was shaking too much, he was shaking too much…

“Alright!”

The crowd erupted into cheers and applause. The heroes were all clapping their hands in glee.

“Well fought! Punishment for evil and good! Again!”

“Who threw it? Don’t throw things.” The Tianyin Pavilion disciples shouted twice on the stage before they left with the crowd. All sorts of things were thrown down on the stage, including vegetables, stones, eggs, knives, and so on. Those people cast a barrier around themselves and stood to the side to watch; as long as it didn’t immediately kill her, they wouldn’t stop her.

The Tianyin Pavilion had always been valiant, and would not go against the masses.

As Mo Ran thought of this, he felt his heart stifled and didn’t want to think about it anymore. He closed his eyes for a moment, then opened them again.

“Just watch, Xue Meng.” If he insisted on not admitting that he was his Shizun’s disciple, then he would completely lose his barrier in the cultivation world. “When the trip to Mount Jiao is over, if they really did bring Nangong Si to the Tianyin Pavilion for questioning, you will see exactly the same scene as back then.”

Xue Meng said, “But that year when the Tianyin Pavilion interrogated them, everyone was so angry because that woman had killed someone, so…”

“So with the knife in your hand, you can do whatever you want, right?” Mo Ran’s mood turned increasingly heavier. There were still the latter half of the sentence that he did not say out loud.

How many people in this world, by the banner of “justice”, are doing malicious things, venting the resentment in their lives, the madness, the shocking murderous intent in their chests, into such a place?

After finishing his tea, they chatted for a while. Seeing that the sun was setting, Xue Meng left.

Mo Ran walked to the window and took out Zhenlong Chess that he had stored in his sleeves. He stared at it for a moment, then exerted some strength into his fingers and twisted them into ashes.

The wind had picked up, all the leaves were trembling, and so was the man at the window. He slowly raised his hand to cover his face. He was almost exhausted. After standing on the windowsill for a long time, he turned around and left. He walked into the depths of the room and was engulfed by darkness.

He sat in the dark room for a long time, thinking and thinking and thinking and thinking until his whole body was broken and broken and he really didn’t know what to do, and he felt that there were some things he should have said, but they would have been even more disorderly and unmanageable.

What should he do?

He didn’t know…

The more he thought about it, the more unwilling he became. The more he thought about it, the more confused he became.

He thought about the mastermind behind him.

He thought of the reverence and superstition the Tianyin Pavilion possessed in the cultivation world.

He thought of the woman they interrogated, her legs mangled.

Mo Ran paced around the room like a trapped beast, like a lunatic. The shadows of Taxian-Jun and Mo-zongshi appeared on his handsome face, one after the other.

In the end, he could not hold it in any longer and stood up.

He pushed the door open and walked out.

It was late at night.

Just as Chu Wanning was about to fall asleep, he heard someone knocking on the door. He opened the door and was stunned to see Mo Ran standing outside.

“Why are you here?”

Mo Ran felt like he was going crazy. He was going to be driven mad by the calamity that would descend at any moment. He summoned up his courage and was about to open his mouth to explain all this nonsense. But when he looked at Chu Wanning’s face, his courage was shattered into pieces, he became a pile of mud, he became selfish and weak.

“… Shizun… I can’t sleep. Can I come in and take a seat?”

Chu Wanning stepped aside and Mo Ran entered the room, closing the door behind him. Perhaps it was because his restless aura was too thick, so thick that even if he didn’t say anything, Chu Wanning could feel the anxiety in his heart. He asked, “Did something happen?”

Mo Ran didn't say anything. He silently looked at him for a while, then suddenly walked to the window and closed it with his hands.

"I…" The moment Mo Ran opened his mouth, his voice became hoarse and fierce. Suddenly, his state of mind surged up, encouraging him to go crazy. "I have something to tell you."

"About Xu Shuanglin?"

Mo Ran shook his head, hesitated, nodded again, then shook his head again.

The light from the lantern was reflected in his eyes, like snakes spitting out their tongues, scarlet red tongues twisting and twisting. His expression was too messy, and the light from his eyes was very sparse. Chu Wanning was startled for a moment, then he raised his hand, wanting to touch his face.

But as soon as his fingertips touched his face, Mo Ran suddenly closed his eyes. His eyelashes were trembling and his Adam's apple was rolling as if he had been stung by a scorpion. He turned around and mumbled, "I'm sorry."

"…"

"Can you put out the lights?" Mo Ran said, "I can't say it when I see you."

Although Chu Wanning did not know what had happened, he had never seen Mo Ran like this before. It made his hair stand on end, as if something was about to fall and crush everyone below.

Chu Wanning did not say anything else and just stood there for a while before nodding. Mo Ran walked over to the candlestick and stared at it for a moment. Then, he raised his hand and extinguished the last bit of light.

The room was plunged into darkness.

However, Mo Ran had been staring at it for a long time. The shadow of a candle flame was still flickering in front of his eyes. It changed from orange yellow to colorful, from concrete to blurry.

He stood in place with his back facing Chu Wanning, but Chu Wanning did not rush him and waited for him to speak.

Ch. 208 Shizun, Are You Sure You Want Me to Hide Under the Bed?

Mo Ran tried to speak a few times, but all he could do was move his lips. His temples were throbbing, his blood was flowing wildly, and he felt that his blood was no longer hot, but cold, and icy.

As he struggled, even the tips of his fingers became a little cold.

“Shizun.”

“…”

“Actually… I…” He finally opened his mouth, and as soon as he opened it, only three words came out before everything was thrown into chaos again.

Why did he say that?

That was all from his previous life. He had already killed himself at the Wushan Palace. He had long since died. He was only carrying his memories from his previous life… Why do you have to say it?

If he said it out loud, his conscience would be satisfied, but was this really the right choice?

How great it was to be like this now, Xue Meng would smile at him, Chu Wanning was his, his uncles and aunts were all alive, and so was Shi Mei… Nothing is more important than to be a fugitive for the rest of your life, even if you feel guilty for the rest of your life.

He did not want to destroy everything in front of him either.

But he felt that was what he should say.

Now, he was sure that the person behind the scenes must have experienced a rebirth.

He was the only one who could give some pointers to everyone else, so that they would all be prepared. This was his chance to atone for his sins. Perhaps the heavens let him die once, but he still retained his memories for this very moment. The reason was because at this very moment, there was someone who could stand out and stop this storm.

Even at the cost of his life.

Mo Ran closed his eyes. He was trembling, and moisture could be seen between his eyelashes.

He was not afraid of death. He had already died once, but there was actually something more terrifying than death in this world. He had had enough in his previous life, and that was why he chose to commit suicide in order to escape from it. All these years, especially since his death in this life, he had been running with all his might, trying to get rid of the invisible beast behind him, but now he was forced to a dead end.

Its talons dangled from his throat.

People had left their families and were scolding them for generations.

He wouldn't be able to escape… He wouldn't be able to escape…

Mo Ran cried silently, but his tears flowed down onto the ground.

He suppressed the trembling in his voice and said, "I'm sorry. I… I don't know how to begin. Actually… I…"

Suddenly, a pair of strong yet well-proportioned arms surrounded him.

Mo Ran suddenly opened his eyes and realized that it was Chu Wanning who had come over and hugged him from behind.

“If you don’t want to say it, then don’t say it.” Chu Wanning’s voice came from his back, “Everyone has their own secrets… and they do things wrong.”

Mo Ran was stunned.

Chu Wanning understood.

He already understood… That’s right, how could Chu Wanning not see through it? He had seen Mo Ran admit his mistake many times in fear, sincerely, fakely, unwillingly, and sincerely.

Although he did not know what kind of mistake Mo Ran had committed, he knew that Mo Ran must have wanted to confess something from the past, something that he did not want to say.

“Shizun…”

“If it bothers you, if you want to tell me, then say it. I’m here. But if you feel that it is very painful to say it out loud, then if you don’t open your mouth, I won’t pursue the matter. I know you’ll never do the same thing again.”

Mo Ran’s Heart felt like it was being stabbed by a knife.

He shook his head slightly. No.

It’s not as simple as you think. It’s not that simple…

I didn’t break a flower that I shouldn’t have broken. I killed people, bled to death, and have ten thousand li of dried up bones. I destroyed half of the cultivation world, I destroyed you.

He collapsed again.

I have destroyed you, Chu Wanning!

Why did you comfort an executioner. Why did you comfort the man who stabbed himself in the heart, why did you ask me before you died to let myself go?

Why didn’t you kill me back then?

He was trembling uncontrollably. Chu Wanning suddenly felt warm water dripping onto the back of his hand. He murmured, “Mo Ran…”

“I want to say it.”

“Then tell me.”

Mo Ran was a mess. He shook his head and said, “I… I don’t know what to say.”

His voice had been well controlled until now, when he finally choked up.

“Really… I really don’t know how to begin…”

“Then don’t say it.” Chu Wanning let go of him and turned him around. In the dark night, he caressed his face, dodging Mo Ran. However, Chu Wanning still resolutely touched him, grabbing his face. What was moist was the tears that had flowed for a long time.

Chu Wanning said, “Don’t say anymore.”

“I…”

Suddenly, the fragrance of the haitangs came so close to him, Chu Wanning kissed him. This seemed to be his first time taking the initiative to kiss Mo Ran, raw and clumsy. He stuck close to his lips and bit by bit opened his bitter mouth.

Chaos, uneasiness, madness.

Mo Ran didn’t know why, but perhaps love was like an escape from all pain. After all, humans were similar to beasts. In intercourse, anything could be thrown to the back of their minds. In this desire, only joy was real.

For the helpless.

For those in desperate straits, let them rest for a moment.

No one said anything more. They kissed until they came to a spot where they could kiss. Chu Wanning could feel the desire of Mo Ran through his clothes. He hesitated for a moment before reaching out to touch him, but Mo Ran held his fingers tightly, turning them into ten interlaced fingers, “This is enough.”

He held him in his arms. Only the person in front of him could suppress his pain.

It could cleanse his soul.

“There’s no need to do anything else. This is sufficient…”

Chu Wanning raised his hand and caressed his face, feeling heartbroken for no reason, “Why are you so silly.”

Mo Ran then grabbed his other hand, so both his hands were connected. He pressed his forehead, “It would have been better if I had been that silly earlier.”

Seeing that he was unable to persuade him, and didn’t know how to say anything softer, he could only clumsily rub his cheeks, the tip of his nose and finally lightly press against his lips.

When he was doing all this, even though his ears had turned red, he still tried his best to appear very calm and at ease. He took the initiative to kiss Mo Ran, to embrace him, to do things he was not used to doing in the past.

“Shizun…” Mo Ran dodged, but his breathing got heavier and heavier from his kiss, “I don’t want it anymore… Don’t do that.”

“You’ve always been the one to do this.” Chu Wanning pulled his hand away and put it around his neck, “Today you will listen to me.”

“Shizun…”

Chu Wanning looked at his watery eyes and patted the back of his head, feeling relieved and gentle, “Be good.”

There were no lights, so they kissed and caressed against the wall, from tenderness to intensity, from intensity to thirst, from thirst to death, full of male lust and urgency.

“Shizun… Wanning…”

Mo Ran kept calling out his name, pitying, loving, demented, and guilty.

As long as Chu Wanning gave him even the slightest bit of love, it would be the strongest love medicine in the world.

He finally stopped thinking about it. He pressed Chu Wanning against the wall, fiercely kissing and rubbing him. In the end, both of them were gasping for breath, their hearts pounding. He was in a frenzy, his eyes were red. Chu Wanning frowned and said, “Lantern…”

“Isn’t it already gone?”

He continued to kiss him, kissing his earrings and neck. He heard Chu Wanning whisper in his ear, “No, light it up…”

Mo Ran was stunned.

“I want to see you,” Chu Wanning said.

The lights lit up.

The darkness was gone.

Chu Wanning’s phoenix eyes were bright, clear, stubborn, and firm. His face was covered with a layer of lust, as if there was a layer of frost on it. However, his ears were red, filled with color.

He said, “I want to look at you.”

Mo Ran suddenly felt his heart ache so much that he was on the verge of death. How could his dirty, battered and cold heart survive under such a gaze?

He hugged him, kissed him, and pressed Chu Wanning’s hand against his chest, where his heart was beating.

He said, “Remember this position.”

“…”

“If one day I am guilty of an unforgivable crime. Kill me, from here,” Mo Ran muttered as he rubbed the tip of his nose against Chu Wanning’s nose.

Chu Wanning was shocked, he stared at him in disbelief, “Do you know what you’re saying?”

Mo Ran smiled, which contained Mo-zongshi’s beauty and sincerity, as well as the evil spirit and madness of Taxian-Jun.

“My spirit core was formed because of you, and my heart is yours. If one day I have to die, both these things will belong to you, so that I can…”

He did not continue.

The shock and fear that had never appeared in Chu Wanning’s eyes made him unable to continue speaking.

Mo Ran finally lowered his eyes and said with a wry smile, “I was just teasing you. I just wanted to tell you.”

He hugged him tightly.

He didn’t know how many more opportunities he would get like this.

“Wanning…”

I love you, I want you, I can’t leave you.

There were many things that he wanted to tell him, but just like what had happened in his previous life, he had no way to tell him.

Chu Wanning was still in a daze. He had no idea how much mistakes a person had to make to be able to say such words.

But when Mo Ran kissed him, his consciousness fell apart in the chaos. He wasn't someone who had such poor mental fortitude, and perhaps this wasn't the fault of Mo Ran's kiss. It was because he didn't want to think too deeply about it.

There was despair in passion, like a drop of boiling oil in a flame.

The entanglement later became primitive and crazy. Before he even reached the bed, he had already taken off more than half of his clothes. Chu Wanning was pressed down by Mo Ran on the bed.

His undergarments were quickly removed, Mo Ran buried himself in kissing him, sucking on him, occasionally raising his eyes to look at Chu Wanning who was lying under the light, slightly gasping for air with his head raised.

How many times had they been stuck together like this?

Twice? Once?

He was about to go to Mount Jiao. Perhaps he could immediately meet the person behind the scenes. If that person really used his Zhenlong chess piece, then the only person who could quickly crack the formation would be him.

Then everything would come to an end.

However, while pestering him, he coaxed his Shizun and himself who was on the verge of despair. He said that there would be many, many more opportunities in the future.

They will always be together.

It was just like how, from night to day, he would bully him many times in the course of a night, sleeping and entangling with each other in a posture that was intertwined. At dawn, when the first rays of the morning sun shined, he would wake up in his gentleness, make love in the daytime between the beds, be filthy to the extreme, love to the extreme and reach the extreme.

Mo Ran held them together and stroked them and released them together.

Chu Wanning's phoenix eyes were filled with desire and mist. As Mo Ran, his mouth opened slightly to catch his breath, and his eyes gradually became blurry.

While he was still engrossed in his thoughts, he suddenly heard a knock on the door.

Chu Wanning snapped out of his daze, the color of his blood drained. Mo Ran immediately covered his mouth, not allowing him to make a sound. The room was quiet, but his other hand was still rolling around anxiously, stimulating him and the person in his embrace.

Chu Wanning wanted to shake his head, but the power of Mo Ran was too great. He could not move, and could only reveal a pair of phoenix eyes, feeling comfortable, painful, and resentful.

"Shizun, are you there?"

Hearing that sound, Chu Wanning became angrier and angrier as he glared at Mo Ran. He then lightly knocked on the bed.

Mo Ran swallowed his saliva, his Adam's apple moved sexy, and his voice was low and hoarse. "I know, Xue Meng."

“Shizun?” After waiting for a while and seeing that no one agreed, Xue Meng muttered, “Strange, the lights are obviously on… Shizun?”

From the looks of it, Mo Ran was not going to pay any attention to him. He was still leaning on Chu Wanning, immersed in his love for him. It was too dark in the room, he even mistook the angry look in Chu Wanning’s eyes for a moist wave of emotion.

“Shizun?”

The disciple outside did not plan to leave, nor did the disciple on the bed plan to stop. Chu Wanning was grind by the two of them, so he bit on Mo Ran’s finger, causing it to hurt. Only then did he move his hand away, with a trace of grievance in his eyes.

His voice was low, “You bit me so much…”

“Forget it.” Chu Wanning took a deep breath, glared at him, and said to the door, “I’m already in bed, what’s the matter?”

“Ah, nothing, nothing.” Xue Meng said, “It’s me… I can’t sleep, but I have something on my mind that I want to tell Shizun…”

His voice gradually grew softer, and one could almost imagine Phoenix’s head drooping outside the door.

Chu Wanning: “…”

What was going on? How come one or two of them had something on their minds tonight?

Chu Wanning was worried, he patted Mo Ran on his body and whispered, “Get up, quickly get dressed.”

Mo Ran's eyes opened wide, looking like a dog as he asked, "You want him to come in?"

"His voice doesn't sound right…"

"What about me?"

"…" Although Chu Wanning was embarrassed, he still said, "Put on your clothes and hide under the bed."

Ch. 209 Shizun, Isn't It Exciting?!

>>sexual content

Mo Ran also choked. Xue Meng was really powerful. After such a ruckus, how could he not talk about the haze from his previous life? His mind was filled with rage and resentment.

He could not understand why Xue Meng would come to talk to Chu Wanning at this time – was he that free?

However, he could not force Chu Wanning, so he pushed himself up and looked under the bed, then stood up and kissed him, saying, "No."

"You…"

"Don't be angry, it's not like I'm not going to listen to you. But the bed is too low for me to go in."

Chu Wanning: "…"

"There is no wardrobe in this room, and there is only one window facing the door. I have nowhere else to go, so just let him go."

Chu Wanning thought about it and agreed, "Whatever it is, we can talk about it tomorrow. I'm about to go to sleep."

"Just sit down for a while, okay?" Xue Meng's voice was aggrieved and moist, and seemed to have a faint voice. "Shizun, my mind is really a little messy. There are some things that I want to ask you directly."

"…"

“Otherwise I won’t be able to sleep until tomorrow.”

Mo Ran was extremely annoyed by his soft pleading. He also wanted to know what exactly Xue Meng had to say tonight.

He stood up, looked around, and suddenly thought of a way. He whispered to Chu Wanning, and Chu Wanning’s face immediately darkened by half, “You… This is ridiculous.”

“Then let him go.”

Chu Wanning wanted to say something, but he stopped himself when he heard the rustling sound of Xue Meng kicking leaves outside the door. Thinking that it was very rare for Xue Meng to insist on pestering his like this, Chu Wanning cursed under his breath. He pushed Mo Ran away and said, “Next time… In addition, hide all the clothes on the ground and don’t leak them out.”

Xue Meng waited outside for a while, but Chu Wanning did not agree. Even though it was hard to bear, he still insisted on calling out, “Shizun?”

“… I heard it. Come in.”

The moment he entered, he frowned. This room seemed to have a faint, indescribable smell, but it was too faint. He could not tell what exactly this smell was. In short, he smelled somewhat familiar.

The thick curtain on his bed had been drawn down, covering the scene inside. Hearing the sound of Xue Meng entering, he lifted up the curtain and revealed a drowsy sleeping face. His eyes were half closed, as if he had just woken up and were still sleepy.

Xue Meng was slightly embarrassed as he mumbled, “Shizun, I’m sorry to disturb your sleep.”

“No problem, sit down.”

Xue Meng sat at the table.

Chu Wanning asked, “What do you want to tell me?”

“I…” Xue Meng seemed very conflicted. After he went back home, he thought about it carefully and suddenly remembered why the necklace on Mo Ran’s neck looked so familiar. On his way to the Rufeng Gate, Mo Ran had bought one for Chu Wanning.

At that time, Mo Ran had personally told him that it was the last one.

The more he thought about it, the weirder it felt and the more uneasy he became. He was someone who could not hide his thoughts, wandering between words and suffering. In the end, he couldn’t hold it in anymore and came to this place.

However, facing Chu Wanning’s gaze, Xue Meng hesitated. He really did not know how to express his doubt.

After brewing for a long time, Xue Meng finally said in a muffled voice, “Shizun, do you feel that Mo Ran… Is he a little weird?”

Upon hearing these words, both Chu Wanning and Mo Ran’s heart skipped a beat.

Chu Wanning’s expression did not change as he asked, “…What’s wrong?”

“Did Shizun not feel it?” It was difficult for Xue Meng to say anything. After hesitating for a while, he finally threw caution to the wind and bit the bullet, “I feel like he is… Uh… he’s particularly interested in pleasing Shizun.”

Xue Meng naturally did not dare to say “in pursuit of Shizun”, but he stole a glance at Chu Wanning, his eyes were full of worry and fear.

Chu Wanning said, “… Why do you say that?”

“Actually, today I…” It was hard to get down from the tiger’s back, so Xue Meng braced himself and said, “Today… I saw something on his neck.”

Mo Ran, who was hidden behind the bed curtains, was startled. He raised his hand to touch the crystal pendant hanging around his neck, and his expression slightly changed.

Chu Wanning didn’t have time to react when Xue Meng saw something. He just frowned and looked at him, waiting for him to continue. He waited for a while and before Xue Meng could say anything, a big, warm hand touched his leg.

The color in Chu Wanning’s eyes suddenly changed. He thought that Mo Ran was going to do something ridiculous, so he took advantage of Xue Meng’s inattention and looked towards the depths of the bed which was covered by the curtain. He saw Mo Ran pointing at his chain, using his mouth to remind him.

Chu Wanning understood everything in an instant.

He thought for a moment and said, “Did you see the exact same chain as me on Mo Ran?”

“No, no, no, I didn’t mean anything else!” Xue Meng was anxious and embarrassed. He quickly waved his hand and said, “I just think it’s a little strange, I…”

“It’s fine. I was the one who gave him that chain.”

“Ah, Shizun returned it to him?”

“If you don’t feel comfortable wearing it, you’ll return it.”

Xue Meng immediately let out a sigh of relief, his pale face finally had some color to it. He smiled, “He already told me what happened. At that time, he clearly told me that it was the last one. I thought he…”

He tossed and turned so many times that in the end, he simply slapped his forehead and said dejectedly, “Shizun, pretend I didn’t say anything. My mouth is so stupid I don’t know how to explain it. Ai, I am such a fool.”

Chu Wanning didn’t know how to lie, so he didn’t know how to answer him. In fact, there were many things that went against one’s conscience. With just a few casual words, he could completely forget about the relationship between Mo Ran and himself. What Xue Meng had was just this one sentence.

As long as Chu Wanning said “no”, even if the truth was out in front of Xue Meng, he would still choose to believe in his Shizun. However, it was this complete trust that made Chu Wanning unable to say anything, so he could only silently watch Xue Meng deceived in front of him, scratching his head and sighing.

He didn’t want to be too harsh with his words.

Looking at Xue Meng, he couldn't stop apologizing. He couldn't stop saying that he was too stupid and had gone forward recklessly. Chu Wanning suddenly felt pained and guilty. Although his expression did not change much, it was still as calm as before. He said slowly, "Xue Meng…"

Xue Meng suddenly stopped talking, waiting for him to speak.

What should he say?

He couldn't just say, "I'm sorry. I hope that you will not be disappointed with me in the end, and that you will always be willing to acknowledge me as your Shizun?" These words were too soft, too greasy, and too cruel.

What right did he have to ask Xue Meng to be willing to acknowledge him no matter what happened? People would face separation, separation, growth and transformation, just like bamboo shoots being pulled up high. Sooner or later, the outer layer of bamboo shoot clothes would peel off, turning yellow and turning into mud.

Xue Meng's life still had many decades, and there weren't many people who could accompany another person through these decades. The past, the old people, will become the snake slough, bamboo clothes.

Xue Meng, who was waiting left and right, could not wait for the next part. He uneasily opened his round eyes and muttered, "Shizun?"

"Nothing." Chu Wanning said flatly, "I felt that you were thinking too much and wanted to ask Elder Tanlang for two bottles of Tapir Fragrance dew."

Xue Meng, "…"

"Anything else?"

Xue Meng thought for a moment, then said, “I do.”

“What?”

“Does Shizun really plan on taking him in as a disciple?” Xue Meng had been holding back this matter in his heart for a while. “Then, then won’t he become my Eldest Senior Brother?”

“… You care about that?”

“Yes.” Xue Meng somewhat embarrassed rubbed the corner of his shirt. “I was the first before. If you count him, then I…”

Seeing him like this, the haze in Chu Wanning’s heart lessened a bit, and he couldn’t help but smile.

Xue Meng loved to act coquettishly with Madam Wang when he was young, and after Mo Ran came, he also loved to play with Mo Ran in front of his parents.

“There’s no difference, it’s all the same.”

“That’s no good. I don’t want him to be the eldest senior brother. Although he was the first to be accepted, he was admitted by his Shizun the latest! I don’t mind for him to enter the sect, but can you make him into the last position to be a junior disciple or something?” Xue Meng was very serious about this. “In the future, I will call him Junior Nangong.”

“…As you wish.”

Xue Meng became even happier. Now that he was happy, he actually didn’t want to leave anymore.

The more he waited on the bed, the more agitated he became. He thought to himself, “Why is this guy still talking so much? Why isn’t he leaving?”

Xue Meng did not want to scram. Xue Meng said, “I also have something that I want to ask Shizun.”

“Yes.” Chu Wanning, on the other hand, was indifferent. “Go ahead.”

Mo Ran: “…”

“It was Mo Ran who told me today that Shizun had promised to give him a handkerchief…”

Chu Wanning asked, “About that… Yeah, but I haven’t done it yet. Do you want it too?”

Xue Meng’s eyes immediately lit up. “Can I have one too?”

“I had intended to give each of you a side.” Chu Wanning said, “I was busy all along, so I was delayed.”

Hearing this, Xue Meng was pleasantly surprised, while Mo Ran was completely stunned.

No… He wasn’t the only one?

Mo Ran felt wronged at that moment. However, Chu Wanning had his face turned to the side as he chatted with Xue Meng. He didn’t notice Mo Ran’s unsettled expression at all.

The more Mo Ran thought about it, the more upset he felt. Even though he knew there was nothing between the two of them, he still felt a lot of unhappiness in his heart.

“Pollia is difficult to sew. If you want a pollia pattern, I’ll go ask Madam Wang later.”

“Hard to sew?” Xue Meng was stunned for a moment. “Then it won’t be troublesome. It’s good enough to hurt Shizun. What is Shizun good at sewing?”

“… Actually, I’m not very good at all kinds of flower and bird ornaments.” Chu Wanning felt a little awkward. He coughed lightly and said, “The best way to sew something is through the Great Perception Scripture.”

“?”

Chu Wanning said, “When I was young, I was at the Wubei Temple, I… Huaizui taught me. I…”

He hadn’t even finished speaking when his brows suddenly knit together. His expression changed slightly as he suddenly pursed his lips.

Xue Meng was stunned. “Shizun, what’s wrong?”

“…” Chu Wanning seemed to hesitate for a moment before saying, “Nothing, is there anything else?”

“Yeah, there’s one more, but I forgot it all of a sudden. Let me think…” Xue Meng lowered his head and thought again. After he lowered his eyes, Chu Wanning gasped for breath, unable to hold it in anymore. He glared at the person in the depths of the bed with fury in his eyes.

Mo Ran’s original intention was for Chu Wanning to rush Xue Meng to leave as soon as possible, but as he looked back, the corner of his eyes turned red and he could not resist. Suddenly, a fire started burning in his heart.

He was a possessive person who was very barbaric and primitive in a certain aspect. The only reason he restrained himself was because he loved Chu Wanning too much, and felt too guilty. The love and guilt were like shackles around his neck, preventing him from doing anything excessive on his bed.

But at this moment, the shackles on his neck were broken off due to frustration and jealousy. His moist black eyes silently and dangerously stared at Chu Wanning for a while, then he suddenly did something rash.

He bent over and crawled into the blanket at a distance away from Xue Meng's sight. Then, he climbed up along Chu Wanning's long and sturdy legs.

It was dark all around, and the bedclothes blotted out all the light, making the senses all the more irritating. He could clearly feel that Chu Wanning was trembling slightly. Suddenly, he stopped his shoulders with his hands. His fingers were burning hot as he grabbed his sturdy shoulders and pushed him to the side.

This was the only thing Chu Wanning could do to stop him from getting out of bed.

On the contrary, Mo Ran had the desire to tear him apart.

Xue Meng was still talking, but whatever he said was not important. Mo Ran only listened absentmindedly, and when he heard him say, "It doesn't matter what Shizun is working on, I'll like it". Mo Ran became even more furious. His breath was already at the sensitive point of Chu Wanning, he knew where his pitiful desire was, but he did not touch it.

He leaned over his face and his eyelashes moved. He kissed the skin on the inside of Chu Wanning's thigh, sucking and licking, leaving traces of kiss marks that were destined to fade eventually.

Chu Wanning trembled even more. He must be regretting his decision to leave Mo Ran behind. His fingernails dug deep into Mo Ran shoulder, but they couldn't stop the madman.

"Shizun, are you listening?"

"Hmm…"

Mo Ran was waiting. His lips were lingering near Chu Wanning's desire, his hot and humid breath stalking the other's dick. He was waiting for a crazy and exciting opportunity.

Xue Meng asked about something that didn't matter to him, and Mo Ran didn't mind so he didn't hear it clearly. However, Chu Wanning had to answer him. The instant he opened his mouth, Mo Ran moved closer to him under the blanket, almost greedily sucking him in.

"…!"

Chu Wanning was tightened in an instant. His Adam's apple moved, his fingers had grabbed onto Mo Ran's flesh, but Mo Ran did not care. He was excited by Chu Wanning's reaction, excited by the feelings they shared in the dark. He knew Chu Wanning was patient, and even if he pulled his pants down and went inside, he would not make a sound, so Mo Ran did not care.

Of course, he also knows that although Chu Wanning was reluctant, his pleasure was real, his dick was hard and hot, the full and round tip was right against his throat. It wasn't a pleasant taste, but when he took it this deep, he sucked sweetly.

Chu Wanning was deeply stimulated. However, he could still answer Xue Meng's questions with patience and repression. His concentration, whether in his life or in his previous life, was equally amazing.

He could actually suppress it very well, his voice was a only a little deeper than usual, and his speech a little slower. As for the rest, if it wasn't for the fact that Mo Ran was currently on his bed, it would be simply impossible to believe that this man was enjoying such extreme joy and excitement.

In the end, Xue Meng nodded and said, "I understand."

"If you know, then go back quickly." Chu Wanning said, "Don't let your imagination run wild, it's not too late."

Xue Meng stood up and said, "Then Shizun, I'm leaving… Right, should i turn off the lights for Shizun?"

"… Alright."

Coincidentally, it was a deep throat, so Chu Wanning opened his mouth slightly but did not let out a sound. But he frowned, his eyelashes trembling, his face slightly flushed.

Xue Meng hesitated. "Shizun, are you having a fever?"

"… No."

"But why is your face a little red?" Worried, Xue Meng didn't think too much about it. He raised his hand to probe Chu Wanning's forehead as he got up.

This was something Chu Wanning had never expected. On one hand, he was forced to do this sort of thing with Mo Ran, and on the other, his forehead was touched by an unknown disciple. Xue Meng's gaze was filled with concern, but underneath the bed, he was sucked by Mo Ran, the warm mouth was wrapped around him, imitating the action of penetration. The pleasure was almost extinguished and the sense of humiliation almost drowned him. He had to use every bone and inch of flesh to restrain himself from letting out a gasp and a groan.

"It's not that hot either…" Xue Meng muttered, "Shizun, do you feel uncomfortable anywhere?"

Mo Ran thought, uncomfortable? How can he not feel good? Your Shizun is probably going to die from the pleasure. It's you who is standing here, I could let him feel even better.

While his heart was heavy with gloom, Chu Wanning finally sent Xue Meng away. Xue Meng was very diligent. He extinguished the lamp for his Shizun and bid him farewell before walking out.

Hearing the sound of the door closing, Chu Wanning went mad with anger. He threw aside the quilt that had been wrapped around his black hair and forced his to come over. Then, he slapped him lightly in the face and scolded in the dark in a low voice, "You bastard…Ugh!"

Mo Ran responded to his urgent gasps, his blurred black eyes. Most men were beasts in front of desire, and when they went to bed with someone they loved, they were beasts who had taken sexual medicine. Mo Ran felt no pain from being hit by him, and instead grabbed his hand and pressed it to the bed, then tore at his last clothes. Both of them could not help but groan as their skin and skin came into contact.

Mo Ran didn’t say much, and his eyes looked somewhat crazy. His lower body was hard to the point it hurt, and his horrible tip was permeated with crystal liquid. He rubbed himself against Chu Wanning’s belly drunkenly. The foul liquid made it wet and sticky.

Only then did he bully Chu Wanning as much as he wanted to when he was under the blanket, the fire burned in him just as strongly. Only then did Chu Wanning stop holding himself back from moaning and let out a sound. Only then did Mo Ran stop holding back from letting himself lift Chu Wanning’s legs and insert his cock inside him.

His muscles were tense, he kissed him fiercely, he rubbed around without thinking. He just wanted to be inside him, he wanted to burn his heart. His primitive nature drove him to get inside, he wanted to conquer him thoroughly, tear him apart, make him bear him, accept him, huff him, be done by him and become his man.

“Get up… Baby, you get up…” He murmured, “Quick, I can’t stand it any longer, my legs are tighter…”

While the last light of reason had not disappeared and Mo Ran kept murmuring, he pulled Chu Wanning up and thrusted his hot sex between his thighs as he did last time, striking fiercely and rubbing in.

He hit so hard that his chest was sweating and his eyes were bright with lust.

He held Chu Wanning's waist, and felt more desperate and dissatisfied because of the itching of his boots, and he became more passionate. He didn't say too many dirty words, he just slammed into him hard and fast.

His hot cock rubbed against Chu Wanning's, his pubic hair brushing against the top of his thighs, heavy balls hitting his backside.

Chu Wanning was distracted by his bump, but his other hand was not properly explored, holding the high tip in front of him, rubbing and moving.

“Ah…”

Mo Ran bit him on the shoulder and licked the mark left there. Then he whispered, “Don’t shout, the walls here are not good, I’m afraid Xue Meng didn’t go far.”

Chu Wanning didn’t say a word after that. His eyes were covered with mist. He was pleasured by Mo Ran on the bed, and he was subjected to the vicious impact of the knife edge repeatedly. The huge, tough and terrible thing came in and out between his legs nonstop. He dared not imagine how it would feel when it came inside. He trembled slightly…

In fact, Chu Wanning was tossed and came three times in the evening. In the end, his consciousness was scattered. He remembered that he held the man tightly, kissed and lingered, and felt heartache for no reason.

Chu Wanning kissed him, the gesture is still clumsy, but Mo Ran could not withstand the stimulation. He let out a chaotic gasp: “Don’t touch me…”

Chu Wanning was shocked.

Not touch him?

Who induced him?

It was funny and helpless. Chu Wanning said, “Then I can’t do anything but leave it to you?”

Mo Ran came over and kissed his ears. “Just let me do it.”

There was still a tinge of bitterness in his tone, and under his nose, a storm was brewing. The room was very dark, but Chu Wanning raised his eyes and clearly saw the constraint of Mo Ran’s burning eyes.

He didn’t know what to make of it. Chu Wanning suddenly had a fever in his brain. Before Mo Ran could react, he turned over and sat on his solid waist, holding Mo Ran’s hands and looking down at him.

Mo Ran was slightly startled: “Shizun, you…”

Chu Wanning did not say a word, phoenix eyes bright, earlobes burning red: “Today I told you to listen to me, I have no intention of repeating this sentence.”

Then he slowly rose and lowered down. Mo Ran watched his movements closely. His scalp was numb and his blood was rushing around his body. He said, “don’t mess around. If you… You won’t be able to make it tomorrow.”

But Chu Wanning pretended to be deaf. When this person is stubborn, he really does his own thing, without taking other people’s words in mind.

On the one hand, he longed very much for Chu Wanning to ride on his own initiative and sit on it. On the other hand, he was very unwilling for him to do such a thing at this time. He knew that once he went in and endured it for so long, it would never be possible to quit just once.

In fact, looking back, on his last life, either day and night lingering, has he ever been able to withstand doing it only once? On the craziest night, the night he gave Chu Wanning aphrodisiacs, he tortured the man who kept moaning all night almost nonstop.

He didn’t come until the end, but he wasn’t satisfied and refused to quit, so he stuffed himself into Chu Wanning’s inner walls, which were wet and contracted.——

He was grinding with his legs, his lips and tongue lingering, he inserted himself within him, and spoke in his ear a blush of heartbeat.

“Are you happy?”

“Shizun, you’re still sucking me down here.”

“Have you satisfied yourself with all that ejaculation?” At that time, he even forced Chu Wanning to bow his head to see where they were connected. Then he extended his hand gently to touch Chu Wanning’s tight lower abdomen and said slowly and hoarsely, “You have all my semen in your stomach. What should you do?”

He spoke those absurd words, his eyes full of lust, the breath of beasts.

“Will the shizun be pregnant with this one’s child? Hmm?”

He stood up inside again, and the sticky loving liquid he had released many times before seeped out from the entrance where they were connected because of this action.

The drug was still in effect. Mo Ran looked at the man in his arms, on his shivering sour and soft, gently humming, and couldn’t help but look darker. In the end, it was unbearable. He began to play tricks on him one by one to please him.

At that time, he could not resist being emperor of the mortal world.

His desire for Chu Wanning has always been so strong that he only wanted to find a room to lock him up, do nothing every day, see no one, only concentrate on making love with Chu Wanning. Let Wanning be fucked by lying on his front, pressed against the wall and fucked by him, lying on the bed, spreading his long legs and fucked by him, or riding on top of him,repeatedly thrusting inside him.

It was good to see that Chu Wanning was fucked into murmuring aphasia, crying and begging for mercy, and climaxing uncontrollably, his genitals covered with their fluids. It was good not to come out of Chu Wanning's body at all in this life. That's the ultimate joy in the world.

Mo Ran knows his heart's lava-like animal desire. His throat was gathering saliva and his black eyes kept staring at Chu Wanning. It was a warning and a plea: "Shizun, don't do this…"

"Then I'll do something else." Chu Wanning's cheeks were hot, but his eyes were stubborn.

Before Mo Ran had the time to think about what else he said, he bent down and buried himself with him. He moved very fast. He did not give Mo Ran the chance to refuse, nor did he give himself time to hesitate.

He held Mo Ran's burning, ferocious cock.

"Ah…"

Mo Ran's abdomen was tense and his spine was lightning-stricken. He closed his eyes instinctively from pleasure, and then threaded his fingers into Chu Wanning's long hair curtain. His big, well-knit hands held the back of Chu Wanning's head tightly, and his muscular chest fluctuated violently.

“Wanning…”

Tears oozed from the corners of his eyes. Was it pleasure or gratitude?

Was it pain or pleasure?

It was not clear anymore.

His cock is uncontrollably swollen in the hands the beloved, and his muscles are distinct, making him extremely brutal and aggressive.

Chu Wanning could not accommodate such a big thing at all, but he still imitated what Mo Ran did to him, licking on the tip. Shame made him tremble all over, but love made his chest warm again. He tried his best to contain the huge glans and stems, but half of them, he had withstood the throat, the hot touch and light. He was almost nauseated by the slight stinging.

Mo Ran was so distressed that he busily said to Chu Wanning, “Baobei, no need, just…”

Before he had finished, he could not help groaning.

Because Chu Wanning stubbornly refused to accept defeat, even in bed, he began to move, began to suck and suck… Mo Ran was not a short practise man, but when he became Taxian-Jun, he was even more not so.

But Chu Wanning could lie in his crotch, kiss him, suck him. His eyes pale and dark, sometimes colorful and sometimes empty.

And it was the most exciting thing for him.

Mo Ran uncontrollably tilted his head back slightly and gasped in a low voice. His slender and symmetrical arms could not help touching Chu Wanning's long hair, making a sexy and blazing muffled groan.

His Wanning, his shizun…

Yuheng Beidou Xianzun.

The most beautiful man in the world…

Someone as innocent as Chu Wanning was willing to do such a thing for him.

No aphrodisiacs, no coercion.

It's all by his own will…

Mo Ran's eyes were moist and his dark eyelashes trembled slightly.

It was a wish of the Sui Dynasty.

Chu Wanning's skill wasn't good, his technique wasn't good, and sometimes even his teeth didn't pay attention to him, but he almost uncontrollably surrendered to Chu Wanning's stimulation. At last, when came, there were tears in the corners of his eyes.

He held Chu Wanning in his arms and kissed him. He only felt so heartbroken, but it's so warm and painful.

"Wanning…" Over and over he whispered in his ear, "Wanning…"

Chu Wanning looked at him with a moist black phoenix glance because of his desire, then drooped his eyelashes because of shame. After a while, he asked in a husky voice, "Did you like it?"

A word of tenderness, into the flesh and blood.

The pain was especially deep.

Mo Ran hugged him tightly and said slowly, “I liked it.”

Chu Wanning’s ear became more and more red, he got approval, and no longer spoke.

Mo Ran couldn’t help himself and stroked his hair. He whispered, “Just like you… I love you the most… Wanning.”

No one in the world is better than you.

Nobody but you can touch my heart any more.

Shizun.

I love you so much.

Ch. 210 Shizun's Handkerchief Can Only Be Given to Me

In the middle of the night, Chu Wanning woke up from a shallow dream. Mo Ran had gotten out of bed, and his clothes were all properly dressed. He was sitting at his desk, lighting a single lamp and looking down at a pile of objects.

All the uneasiness and helplessness from before was replaced by the faint afterglow of the lamp. Chu Wanning looked at him lazily for a while and then said, "What are you doing?"

"Shizun is awake? Is the light too bright…"

"No." Chu Wanning asked again, "What are you doing?"

Mo Ran pursed his lips and smiled embarrassedly.

Chu Wanning got up, put on his robe and walked barefoot to his side. He leaned against the table and looked at him. It turned out that the handkerchief on the table was his own. Mo Ran took the other three plain white handkerchief and was sewing at the ornaments on it.

"You're embroidering a handkerchief?"

"… I think that what Shizun has done, will be given to me alone." Mo Ran put down the needle and thread, put his arm around Chu Wanning's waist, leaned over and kissed his chest.

There was a scar on Chu Wanning's heart.

Since Chu Wanning did not explain the origin of the scar, Mo Ran did not ask further.

It was just that when they were touching, they would subconsciously and often tenderly kiss here.

Mo Ran said, “I will just sew the other’s handkerchiefs. They don’t know who did it anyway…” As he spoke, he picked up a piece of handkerchief that he had already embroidered and asked with a smile, “Shizun, does the needlepoint look similar to yours?”

Chu Wanning sighed, “You don’t even need to look to know it’s true.”

Why was this man so possessive?

Chu Wanning stroked Mo Ran’s hair, and Mo Ran smiled as he raised his head to look at him.

The lamp was too dim. It burned so hard that it hurt his eyes. When he lifted his eyes, there were traces of blood on them, but his face and smile were both gentle and brilliant.

Chu Wanning asked, “Do you still want those that don’t exist?”

Mo Ran stared blankly for a moment and then softly said, “I don’t want to.”

“Yes.” He said. “That’s good.”

“Let nature take its course…” This sentence seemed to be directed at him, but also at Chu Wanning.

Let nature take its course.

Too few days like this.

He was no god. He was just a tiny duckweed in the endless red dust. Everyone had their own selfish thoughts. They would give a person who was about to die of thirst a cup of water, and then ask that person to voluntarily pour out the cup of water. They would then choose to die of thirst — this was too difficult, and almost no one in the world could do that.

Drink a little more of the sweet rain, he thought.

If he entered Purgatory again in the future, it wouldn't hurt so much.

There is a clear past, enough to comfort a dry life.

On the second day, everyone gathered outside of the manor and left for Mount Jiao together.

Palace Master Ma ordered his subordinates to prepare a strong steed for each of them. In front of the black and gold saddle hung a Qiankun bag embroidered with a cat design. Xue Meng sat on the horse's back and picked up the bag to take a look, immediately wrinkling his nose in disgust.

Suddenly, he heard someone beside him chuckling. "Palace Master Ma's taste is really terrible. Not only is there a big cat embroidered on the Qiankun bag, but there's also the word 'horse' embroidered on the back. Interesting."

Xue Meng turned his head and saw Mei Hanxue riding on a tall white horse, playing with the bag. He raised his light green eyes and looked at Xue Meng with a smile that was not a smile. The droplet-shaped crystal hanging between his forehead was exuding a warm luster. It swayed slightly, causing his face to appear even more enchanting.

Xue Meng rolled his eyes and softly cursed, "Scum."

The scum only smiled and squinted his eyes, not angry at all. Instead, he said: “Looking at you today, Young Master Xue’s complexion is not too good. Are you not full?”

“…”

“There’s a tinge of green in the eyes, and the Fate Palace is still dark. I have some herbal ointment to calm the deities and help them sleep…”

“Mei Hanxue, are you very free?” After enduring for a while, Xue Meng realized that he could not hold it in and turned around in anger. “The Taxue Palace kicked you out of the sect? Why are you wandering around Sisheng Peak?”

“My master told me to come here.” Mei Hanxue was still smiling. “Give your father the concealed weapon he wanted yesterday.”

“Then hurry up and fuck off.”

Mei Hanxue actually did not get angry. He smiled and said, “En, I’m out of here.”

“?”

The few times he saw him, he was either soft like a woman, or cold like a stone. The last time he ran into him at the Rufeng Gate, he had beaten him up, and today, he had changed to a good person’s face, “You hit my left cheek, and I’ll also send my right face up.” Xue Meng couldn’t help but think of this as he turned his horse around and stared at the extremely handsome man on top of the horse.

“No, Mei Hanxue, I have no enmity with you, right?”

“Nope.”

“Then do I know you well?”

Mei Hanxue smiled. He didn’t answer him immediately, but his pale eyes were filled with tiny bits of light. When the wind blew, his golden hair would fall to the side. When the sun shined on it, it only served to soften the light.

Xue Meng didn’t really want to hear his answer. He frowned and said, “Scram right after you send the concealed weapon. If you want to hook up with someone from another sect, I don’t care. Don’t think of getting along with me.”

“… Pfft.” Mei Hanxue couldn’t help but laugh out loud. However, his hands immediately curled into fists. Covering his lips, he gave a light cough and very interestingly sized up Xue Meng for a moment before saying, “Okay.”

He took the reins, a silver bell tied to his white wrist, and the wind blew and clanged.

Mei Hanxue smiled and cast a sidelong glance at him. “I’m leaving.”

Xue Meng stared at him. “Leaving so quickly? Do you want me to send you off with firecrackers?”

Mei Hanxue really did leave. His horse’s hooves had taken two steps when he suddenly remembered something. He turned his head and said, “Oh right, there’s one more thing.”

Xue Meng did not want to hear it, but Xue Meng was curious, so he snappily asked, “What?”

Mei Hanxue faintly smiled and pressed a slender white finger to his lips. He spoke in a low voice, “You are really ruthless.”

Xue Meng’s face instantly turned green!

“You… You — you!” He was thoroughly disgusted. After a long time, he still could not come out even half of the way. This was the order from the Sect Leader at the front to assemble and prepare to leave. Mei Hanxue waved at him with a smile and urged his horse to go further.

By the time Mo Ran rode his horse to Xue Meng’s side, Mei Hanxue had already disappeared into the sea of people.

Mo Ran was stunned for a moment. “Did you eat something bad?”

“Owehh — don’t talk to me now, I’m so fucking early in the morning, and I ate dog shit…”

Mo Ran: “… Although you are very hungry, no matter how hungry you are, you shouldn’t eat dog shit…”

“Scram!” Xue Meng pushed Mo Ran’s chest away, pushing Mo Ran and his horse away. He was simply angered to the point that he was about to ascend to the heavens and reach the Second Nirvana Realm. He roared towards the distance with a red face and a thick neck, “Ouch —! Bullshit! You’re the fucking spicy one!”

After a period of clamor, thousands of people departed from the lone mountain and headed in the direction of Mount Jiao. This scene was truly rare. Normally, when everyone left the city, they would use the Imperial Sword Technique. Even if a large group of people gathered, they would arrive in an instant. It was rare for a group of cultivators to ride on horseback.

It was a good thing that on the first day many people had not ridden so long, and it was not easy to bear it for a long time. Fortunately, Palace Master Ma had everything in his Qiankun bag, such as refreshed pills, scented fans, and even a few books made of silk with the prices and suitability of the new products of the Valley of the Peach Blossom.

Xue Meng stared at the master of the horse farm, who was shouting in the shade while he rested. The second richest man in the world was shouting with all his might, “My lords, if you have any goods you want, just put them in the booklet. When I return, I will return and deliver them to the mansion, returning in seven days and exchanging them in fifteen days.

There were many people who had nothing to do, and Palace Master Ma was definitely doing it on purpose. With such a huge Qiankun bag, there was nothing else to look at but these booklets.

Even Xue Meng couldn’t help but draw a circle on the paper: “Young and old, delicious, light tasting, good selection, greatly increased spiritual energy — the Spirit Yan Yan Yan Nest Cake on the South Mountain.”

At last, he understood the method Mo Ran was referring to as “earning money”.

After seven days of travelling, Palace Master Ma had made a huge profit, causing everyone to feel a bit tired. On this evening, they finally arrived at the mountain range of the Pan Long mountains.

“The dragon has a prideful backbone, I hope to see the Emperor.”

Xue Zhengyong looked at the huge boulder that stood in front of him and recited the words on the boulder. He turned around and asked Nangong Si, “Young Master Nangong, what do you mean by this?”

“The meaning is that we must walk on foot for the rest of the journey. Moreover, from the moment we enter the mountain until the opening of the Mount Jiao barrier, we must not speak dirty words or else we will be punished.”

Since Nangong had warned them, the Sect Leaders immediately passed down the message. Jiang Xi stood there unmoving, and it was Hua Binan who had sent the message. Hua Binan waved his sleeves, and a ball of black smoke surged out from his sleeves, and upon closer inspection, he realized that it was not smoke, but hundreds of little flying insects, one by one, stopping at the ears of the disciples of Lone Moon.

Xue Meng was extremely disgusted and said, “The Cold Scale Sacred Hand is really abnormal, could it be that his entire body is filled with bugs?” Then, he suddenly thought of something and turned to Shi Mei, “Speaking of which, you’ve even gone to Rinling Island to study, but you haven’t had any contact with Hua Binan, have you? Don’t try to play with bugs when the time comes.

Shi Mei turned his head and smiled: “… The Young Lord is truly worried.”

At this time, the Sisheng Peak began to send out messages, the other sects were more or less ready to show off their abilities.

“After entering the valley, do not use vulgarities! He couldn’t control himself, so he used the Silencing Mantra to cover his mouth! Did you all hear that?”

A loud and confident voice echoed through the forest, shaking the trees and making the clouds tremble. The echoes lingered in the air —

“Did you hear that? Did you hear that? Have we arrived? “Is that so?”

All the cultivators were speechless.

Ch. 211 Shizun, Let's Enter Mount Jiao

Abandoning the horse and entering the mountain, he came out unscathed on the first day. On the second night, when everyone was meditating and resting, an accident occurred.

One of the cultivators went into the jungle in the middle of the night to relieve himself. When he finished, he felt an itch in his leg. He looked down and saw a huge poisonous mosquito sitting between his legs.

He was drinking blood and enjoying himself. That cultivator killed the bug with a single slap, and in the end, he even chattered out of habit, "fuck your mother, daring to bite your grandpa."

In the end, as the sound of his voice faded, he heard strange sounds coming from the surrounding trees. This cultivator was shocked and suddenly remembered the words of Nangong Si in front of the mountain. He was so scared that he did not even have the time to pull up his pants before he ran for his life, shouting loudly, "Help!"

"Master! Help!"

It turned out that this person was a disciple of Jiangdong Hall who was standing by Huang Xiaoyue's side. He called out to his mother with a loud voice, as if he was a giant boulder entering a lake.

It stirred a thousand ripples, and the people who were originally quietly meditating all stood up one by one. They saw a Jiangdong Cultivator running towards them from afar while urinating.

This person was bare-chested, shaking his head as he ran while crying. Behind him were at least a hundred black skinned snakes, some of which were already wrapped around his legs.

Huang Xiaoyue said in shock, “Disciple?”

“Don’t go over there!”

The disciple ran over while wailing, but more and more snakes climbed on top of him. In the end, he fell to the ground and wailed, “Shizun! Shizun, save me!”

Originally, Huang Xiaoyue was going to lend a helping hand, but Nangong said, “This snake is made from the whiskers of a dragon. If you kill one snake, he will kill another. The more you kill, the more you will kill. If Taoist Huang is not afraid, then go and accept the challenge.”

When Huang Xiaoyue heard this, he immediately submitted and muttered, “The bigger picture is important, the bigger picture is important.” He watched helplessly as his disciple was engulfed by the tide like a black snake. That person writhed and writhed in pain, and the snake tide had already completely covered him, turning into a black mass of low hills. This mass of low hills was denting at a speed visible to the naked eye, and when the tide scattered, other than a pool of blood, not a single bone remained…

After this incident, no one spoke any more nonsense during the last day of the journey.

Words cannot fail, this was a principle that everyone was well aware of.

Xue Zhengyong had even given himself and Xue Meng a Silencing Spell. It was for no other reason but because the father and son duo usually talked too freely. If they casually muttered a “dog thing”, they would become a food for the snakes in the blink of an eye.

Finally, on the night of the third day, after passing through the mountains of the Mount Jiao, they arrived at the tomb of the hero of the Rufeng Sect — at the foot of Mount Jiao.

Mount Jiao’s barrier was different from Mount Huang. Flood Dragons were detestable, so the barrier was transparent and one could clearly see the scenery at the foot of the mountain from the outside without using any obstructing techniques.

Looking at the scene before him, Jiang Xi asked, “Is this the burial ground of the elites of the Rufeng Sect?”

The moonlight shone on Nangong’s face. After a moment of silence, he said, “That’s right.”

Mount Jiao was created by a demonic dragon. After the first sect leader of the Rufeng Sect subdued this dragon, he established a blood contract with it. It turned it into a mountain to protect the spiritual soul and treasures of the Rufeng Sect for generations, as well as the ancestral temple and ancestral hall.

This mountain, Nangong Si remembered, every winter solstice would come here with his father to sweep the tomb. Previously, when he came here, he could see a vast and endless stretch of white jade stone steps. The dark city guards who were already waiting for him were guarding the two sides of the mountain road.

“Welcome, Young Master.”

Rumbling sounds could still be heard as everyone fell to their knees. As he walked up the mountain path, he would be able to see his father, who was already preparing for the Rites of Sacrifice at the very top of the ancestral hall.

“Young noble Nangong, it’s best to let go of the sad spring. The great battle cannot be delayed, so you should open the barrier as soon as possible so that we can enter. Demon Execution Squad.”

The person who spoke was Huang Xiaoyue.

During the golden age of the Rufeng Sect, even if this kind of person was on a whim and gave him ten slaps without any reason, he would not dare to retort.

Today, they could all brag and glare at him in front of his ancestral grave, flaunting their might.

He had no choice but to endure.

He gritted his teeth in pain and tried his best to hold it in.

“All of you, step back a bit.” As he spoke, he arrived at the entrance by himself.

On the left and right stood two tombstones made from Evil Spirit Stones. Their toes alone were the size of a five-six year old child. Each of the two deities held a magic tool in their hands, and their arms were wrapped around the arm. Strangely, these deities were normally opened wide like leopards, but their eyes were closed and they were frowning. They seemed to be somewhat strange.

Without batting an eye, Nangong Si drew a spell on the Evil Spirit Stone and said, “The seventh generation ancestor of the Rufeng Sect, Nangong Si, pays his respects.”

“Rumble ~ ~ ~ ~”

The earth trembled.

Some of the less experienced people exclaimed, “He has opened his eyes! That statue!”

Standing amongst the crowd, Mo Ran also raised his head to look.

If the situation had not been tense, he would have told the man: not the statue, but the two statues.

One on the left and one on the right, the two Grave Gods both opened their eyes. Their eyes were amber in color and their pupils were narrow like the eyeballs of a snake.

The statue on the left slowly spoke out, his voice was like a loud bell, buzzing loudly, “Nangong Si, do you remember it well, the Seven Edicts of Rufeng Sect?”

Nangong Si said, “It is impossible for a gentleman like me to commit crimes such as molesting.”

Behind him, Huang Xiaoyue sneered, “What you say sounds better than what you’re singing.”

It was not only Huang Xiaoyue. Many people were muttering in their hearts. These seven things could not be done. This was truly the greatest mockery of the current Rufeng Sect.

The statue on the right opened its mouth as well. Its voice was distant, as if it came from the past, “Nangong, there is a mirror hanging above, and below it is the vast Yellow Springs.”

“I have no regrets.”

These two paragraphs were the questions and answers that he had memorized since he was young. No matter who it was, as long as they stepped into the Hero Tomb, they would have to go through these two questions first and answer these two questions.

The reason why the ancestors of the Rufeng Sect had asked these two questions was because they hoped that their descendants would be able to remember the teachings of their ancestors and reflect on themselves when they went up the mountain to pay their respects.

At this moment, Nangong couldn’t help but wonder if his father had ever felt the slightest bit of emotion or guilt when he answered these two questions by coming here every winter solstice to pay his respects.

He was truly going to answer this question one after another as if it were the key to the key. He was going to use it as a body examination talisman to open the Divine Seal of Mount Jiao. That would be it.

The barrier opened.

The two stone statues that were originally standing suddenly began to vibrate slowly, changing their positions. In the end, one left and one right knelt down.

“Master, please enter the mountain.”

Nangong had his back facing the crowd as he stood there for a while. No one could see the expression on his face, not even Ye Wangxi.

Only Naobaijin whimpered in his quiver, and its white claws reached out and clung to the edge of the quiver. “Meow, meow.”

“Come in.”

After saying those three simple words, he took the lead and stepped into the Mount Jiao region.

Xue Zhengyong undid his Silencing Mantra and asked, “Do you still need to be careful when you’re here?”

“No need.” Nangong Si said, “Caution is done in the vicinity of the mountain range, but it is also done to prevent those who have ill intentions towards the Rufeng Sect from entering the mountain. Now that the Flood Dragon has determined that the person who has arrived should not be an enemy, it will no longer use words.”

However, even though he said those words, many people still felt sad and were unwilling to speak anymore. They could only silently follow Nangong Si up the mountain. Every three hundred meters, there would be two totem stones carved into the body. First it was male and female, then it was female and mouse, then it was male and female, tiger and rabbit… From the middle of the mountain, it was the burial ground for the Rufeng Sect’s heroes.

These heroes would go from the lowest to the highest in accordance with the contributions they had made throughout their lives. They would rest at Mount Jiao for a long time, one after the other.

The first place they came to was the lowest level, the Boneyard.

There was a white piece of jade about eight feet tall that was engraved with the names of individuals. At the very top, there were four handwritten words, “Soul of Loyalty”.

“I heard that the people buried here are the loyal servants of the Nangong Family.” Xue Meng whispered to Mo Ran, “There’s always around a thousand.”

What he said was right. This mountain region was densely packed with graves, and there was no end in sight.

Shi Mei said worriedly: “What if all these thousands of servants get up? The Nangong Family’s servants are not bad, I’m afraid that they will be able to stall them for a while.”

Xue Meng hurriedly covered his mouth. “Shh, you’re crazy. Pah, pah, pah, pah, don’t be a crow…”

Mo Ran gloomily said, “I’m afraid it really isn’t a jinx.”

“Hey, you dog, where are you going?”

Mo Ran did not pay any attention to Xue Meng. He directly left the group and walked in front of a loyal soul tomb. He half knelt down and carefully sized it up.

The Hero Tomb of the Rufeng Sect was different from an ordinary burial ground. It did not have a tomb as it was made from a translucent jade coffin, similar to the thick ice surface. Half of the coffin was buried underground while the other half was exposed outside.

This kind of cold jade was similar to the coffin at the Sisheng Peak, the Frosted Sky Hall. It could preserve the corpse without rotting away, just like when one was alive. As a result, the surface of the jade coffin was covered with a thick layer of dust. Mo Ran could only vaguely make out the outline of the deceased person below, but his facial features could not be seen. From the looks of it, he seemed to be a woman.

He stared at the woman for a while, then his gaze wandered around the coffin —

He felt that there was something wrong with this coffin.

However, he did not know what exactly was wrong.

He looked around, and while no one was paying attention to him, he placed his hand on the coffin surface, closed his eyes, and carefully probed around…

Suddenly, his palm trembled.

Mo Ran opened his eyes, his expression extremely ugly.

There was indeed an evil aura inside the coffin, but it was not thick enough. The piece of jewelry was not inside… Could it be that he was wrong?

“Mo Ran!” Xue Meng and the others were already walking far away as they yelled at him from afar.

Mo Ran muttered to himself, “Quick.”

His slender hands brushed the surface of the coffin inch by inch as he tried to wipe off the thick dust on it. He wanted to see the woman’s face more clearly if he couldn’t open the coffin.

He was wiping it when he caught a glimpse of a detail out of the corner of his eye and stopped abruptly.

He knew what was wrong.

Ash.

There was something wrong with this coffin!

Besides the place he had just wiped, Mo Ran suddenly discovered that there was another spot that was free of dust — on the side of the coffin, there were four marks of varying lengths. He hesitated for a moment and then extended his hand to compare them, only to discover that it was exactly the place where a person climbed out from.

Mo Ran’s expression changed in shock. Just as he wanted to make everyone stop their footsteps on the mountain, he suddenly felt a cold, wet air in front of him.

He jerked his head up and caught a dead white face.

A woman in a shroud squatted behind the tombstone, staring at him.

Book III: Decisive Battle

Ch. 212 [Mount Jiao] Too Much

“Don’t go forward! Retreat! Retreat! Go to the foot of the mountain!”

With a sudden shout, everyone turned their heads and saw Mo Ran, dressed in black, rushing towards them. Behind him, a female corpse was chasing after him, letting out terrifying howls from its mouth.

Xue Zhengyong said in shock, “Mo Ran? Why… What’s going on?!”

“Step back! Go back!” Beneath his pitch black eyebrows, his gaze was like a bayonet drawn from its scabbard. He called out to Nangong Si, “Nangong Si! Drop the Soul-Resisting Stone in front of us!”

On the tombs of the loyal souls, there were tombs of the senior disciples of the Rufeng Sect. In order to prevent future generations from intruding, a long wall was built between the two tombs as a barrier.

He started to run with all his might, with Ye Wangxi following closely behind him. However, before he could reach the Soul-Resisting Wall, he suddenly stopped.

At the top of the mountain path, a group of people slowly walked down, all of them were wearing green clothes and cranes, their silk ribbons fluttering. At a glance, they looked just like a group of valiant and valiant disciples that had just arrived.

But Nangong knew it was wrong.

Ye Wangxi was also clear about this.

There was a difference between these disciples of the Rufeng Sect and the ones who they had been together with from morning to night. That was, each of them had a green ribbon embroidered with the shadow of a crane embroidered on their eyes.

It looked like an extremely small difference, but the people from the Nangong family understood what it meant — a living person would never wear this blindfolded ribbon. This was the funeral that the Rufeng Sect disciples were given before they were buried. It meant that their eyes would be covered by auspicious clouds, and they would be able to grow up happily…

Those who went down the mountain were all dead people from the Rufeng Sect!

Nangong Si took a step back and raised his hand to stop Ye Wangxi.

Without turning his head, he whispered, “You may leave.”

“…”

“Go down! Go tell Mo-zongshi that it’s too late.” Nangong Si took a deep breath and spat out a quivering sentence, “All the high ranked disciples of the Rufeng Sect have been exhumed and are now heading down the mountain.”

“What about you?”

“I’ll hold it off for a while, hurry up.” Mater Nangong Si turned his head to the side and said to Ye Wangxi, “Let them try their best to retreat towards the foot of the mountain. When they reach the foot of the mountain, ignite their fumes and I will come down immediately.”

Ye Wangxi bit her lips. She knew very well that this matter had not yet occurred and the last thing she could do was to untie her quiver, toss it to Nangong Si, and say in a low voice, “Catch. You never remember to take more.”

By the time he reached the side of the mountain, there was already a fierce battle going on. The previously hidden corpses of the servants of the Rufeng Sect were swarming out from the bushes and behind the rocks like locusts from all possible hiding places, pouncing towards the enemy cultivators. These corpses were all wearing burial coats and their entire bodies were pale white. When mixed together with the various cultivators in different attires, they looked like a snowstorm rolling over the land. From afar, it looked extremely spectacular, but the price was simply too high.

Her foster father was like a crafty rabbit, leaving them with a peaceful “tomb of loyalty”. In fact, he had already summoned the corpse of the corpse inside the tomb and hid it in the darkness, just so that when they reached the highest point, he could mobilize the “High Disciple Tomb” in front of them to attack from the front and then attack from behind.

They were the fish in the net.

Ye Wangxi found Mo Ran in the free-for-all. “Mo-zongshi!”

Mo Ran was in the middle of fighting with the five corpses when he heard Ye Wangxi’s voice. He raised his head abruptly and said anxiously, “What is it?”

Before he could say anything, he saw Ye Wangxi’s face and knew the answer.

Mo Ran cursed. At this moment, a zombie bit his arm, but he couldn't get rid of it. In his fury, he directly put his hand into the zombie's mouth.

"Aooo!"

Black blood splattered everywhere. The zombie could no longer bite him. It was hit in the chest with the back of its elbow and fell to the ground.

When he looked at Ye Wangxi once more, he couldn't help but shiver. However, she steadied herself and said, "A-Si told you to retreat as soon as possible and wait for him at the foot of the mountain."

Mo Ran nodded. Instantly, the sound amplifying technique spread throughout the entire battle arena.

"Don't keep fighting. Go to the foot of the mountain. All of you retreat to the foot of the mountain."

Huang Xiaoyue immediately became anxious, "We had originally prepared to fight Xu Shuanglin to the death, but the scene in front of us is something we had expected. How can we retreat now?"

He wanted to go to the top of the mountain with all his might to find the treasure hidden in the Heavenly Palace of the Rufeng Sect. That was his own business, he repeated in a stern voice, "Those that don't want to die, go down the mountain! Immediately! All of you, go down!"

Although the servants' corpses were not powerful, they were not weak commoners on Mount Huang. Furthermore, they numbered an astonishing number and were not afraid of pain. One after another, servants rushed forth, and by the time everyone retreated to the foot of the mountain, more than 10 cultivators had already died.

Huang Xiaoyue also retreated. He knew that with his own ability, it was impossible for him to reach the peak by himself.

However, he blew his beard and sneered, “Mo-zongshi, that’s great. The one who wanted to come to Mount Jiao was you, and the one who told us to withdraw in the middle of the fight is also you? How about you take the lead and we follow you out of the barrier?”

Even if he were to kill him, he would feel that his hands would be dirty. In this lifetime, it was only because Mo Ran was no longer Taxian-Jun, and had become a clean and upright Grandmaster that he could not be slapped in public.

But Mo Ran could choose to ignore him completely.

Just as Huang Xiaoyue was about to say more, he suddenly saw a cloud of smoke rise up in front of him. It was Nangong Si riding the re-transformed demonic wolf, Naobaijin, and he rushed over like a gale, followed by a few hundred high ranking disciples of the Rufeng Sect. Huang Xiaoyue looked over and exclaimed: “Oh, that’s incredible! I’ve fallen into his trap!”

This old thing finally reacted. He knew that this was an ambush set up by Xu Shuanglin, and it wasn’t too stupid after all.

However, the last part of Huang Xiaoyue’s words were, “Nangong Si! How dare you! You actually gathered the remnants of the Rufeng Sect, and want to fight against the other sects?”

Mo Ran: “…”

Nangong Si lowered himself above the demon wolf, running for the road. Naobaijin was as fast as an arrow that had left the bowstring, leaving the corpses chasing behind him further and further behind. At this moment, Huang Xiaoyue realized that he had misunderstood him. However, he didn't feel the slightest bit of guilt. Instead, his eyes were wide open as he stared at the zombies that were approaching them like a tide.

Nangong Si rushed into the crowd and jumped down from the demon wolf. He stuffed the arrow quiver into Ye Wangxi's arms and gasped, "There are still some arrows left. I'll return them to you first. Take everyone and retreat."

When Ye Wangxi heard the first part of the sentence, she felt a little relieved. However, the latter part made her suddenly raise her head and stare into the face of Nangong Si. "What do you want to do?"

"A small matter."

At the side, Huang Xiaoyue watched as the upper echelons of the Rufeng Sect approached closer and closer. Seeing that he was about to fight with the elites of the Rufeng Sect that was born a hundred years ago, he broke out into a cold sweat and turned his head to scold, "Nangong Si! You're a nuisance! Like your father! Why did you lure these monsters to us? You want us to kill the enemy for you?"

Seeing that Nangong Si did not look at him and did not utter a word, Huang Xiaoyue became even more furious and said with a trembling voice, "Alright, I finally know what your plan is now. You are afraid that if you do not go up the mountain peak by yourself, you will not be able to obtain the treasure that your father left for you. O Nangong! Such vicious thoughts!"

Seeing that his words were getting out of hand, Xue Zhengyong, who was standing beside him, could not help but frown and say, "Alright, Taoist Huang, stop talking."

"Stop? Why should I stop?" Huang Xiaoyue did not even put the lower cultivation world in his eyes. Normally, he would be a little more calm, taking into account Xue Zhengyong's face, but at this critical moment, how could he still have any intentions of putting on an act? He pointed at Nangong Si and scolded, "You really are the son of an evil creature, the heart of a tiger and the wolf! You actually used such a famous hero to clear the barricade for you! Where did you get your face from?"

Nangong was at a loss for words: "…"

Huang Xiaoyue was still not giving up, growling in anger, "People like you should die to thank the heavens, but you actually escaped from the corpses, and you even lured these beasts over to us, you…"

"Pah!"

An extremely resounding slap landed solidly on Huang Xiaoyue's face.

The Noble Wind Ye Wangxi was still maintaining her position by slapping Huang Xiaoyue on the face. She was slightly trembling, gasping for breath, and her gaze was ruthless as she stared at the person in front of her.

"Bastard." She said hoarsely.

"How can a man like you speak such foul language in front of the Hero Tomb of the Rufeng Sect?!"

The crowd in the Jiangdong Hall drew their swords and pointed them at Ye Wangxi. A middle-aged female cultivator sitting under Huang Xiaoyue raised his eyebrows and shouted, "You are a man, not a woman, but a man! You dare to make a move on an elder? You are the animal! You dog!"

She shouted and was about to rush over to take care of Ye Wangxi. Just as Mo Ran was about to help, he suddenly heard the sound of a rattan whip fiercely whipping away the air.

Chu Wanning walked out of the crowd, his hands held in the air as he squinted his phoenix eyes.

With his back facing Ye Wangxi, he faced the east side of the river.

“I did.” He spoke word by word, “Nangong Si is my disciple. Everyone, if you do not wish to pass the judgement of the Tianyin Pavilion, then please come before me. We can discuss about fairness, or about punches and kicks.”

In the dead silence, he threw out the last part of his sentence.

“I’ll follow you to the end.”

The atmosphere was extremely tense.

Not only did he fail to advance to Jiangdong Hall, he failed to retreat as well. Yet, he retreated and lost all face. He finally made it in… Would they really be able to shake the Beidou Immortal? What’s more, should they have formed a feud with Chu Wanning and become enemies from now on?

The corpses were still approaching, getting closer and closer…

Someone could not hold it in anymore and shouted loudly, “Stop fighting! Let’s talk about it after we get out of here! Think of a way first! What should I do!?”

“Fight?”

“Are we just going to fight like this? Then why did we retreat to the foot of the mountain? What’s the difference between fighting on a mountain and fighting on a mountain?”

Right, even Mo Ran couldn’t help but think, what’s the difference?

Even though he knew that Nangong Si’s actions were not without purpose, as the last disciple of the Nangong Family, since Nangong Si wanted them to retreat to the bottom of the mountain, he must have other plans in mind.

He couldn’t help but look at Nangong Si, who hadn’t said a word since the beginning. However, he suddenly discovered that man’s eyes were flashing with an indescribable light.

A light that made him shudder.

“Nangong!”

He shouted, but it was of no use. Nangong Si had been silently chanting a forbidden spell ever since Huang Xiaoyue pointed at him and yelled at him.

He realized that it was already too late.

Countless vines burst out from the ground. Mo Ran, Ye Wangxi, Xue Meng… Almost at the same time, everyone was caught by the vine and thrown out of the boundary, out of the mountain range.

Ye Wangxi’s face changed in fright, “A-Si! What are you trying to do?!”

She wanted to charge in again, but Nangong Si raised his hand and swung it fiercely. The two grave gods stood up with heavy steps, their bodies covered in dust and stones, and they each lifted their left and right hands against each other. In that instant, a new translucent barrier enveloped the entire mountain entrance, blocking everyone's path to the mountain.

Nangong Si stood alone in front of the barrier, facing the thousand over corpse tide, his back facing the people behind the barrier.

He said: "Mount Jiao has rattan, is formed of dragon tendons, can pull everything into the ground. But you can't be inside. — As long as the Nangong Family's blood isn't flowing through your bodies, once I use this array, the Dragon Tendon Vine will drag everyone into the ground and bury them alive, regardless of who they are.

Ye Wangxi was angered by grief and anger, he shouted angrily, "Honorable Nangong! Do you know that you are alone!" She pounded her hammer but could only call out to him from outside the enchantment: "Nangong!"

"Why is there only one person?" Nangong Si turned his face to the side and said, "Don't we still have you?"

"…"

Then, he seemed to have thought of something and grinned.

After the annihilation of the Rufeng Sect, that brilliant smile never appeared on his face again. It was wild and unrestrained, as if years of high spirits had returned to his face, and his eyes were bright and unrestrained.

It was the same situation as when he and Ye Wangxi first entered the Mirage Realm. With his face turned sideways, he raised his sword and smiled at her.

"However, you girls are truly useless. In the end, I will still have to protect you."

Finished speaking, he turned around and walked towards the rolling tide of corpses.

One step.

Two steps.

Three steps.

Stop.

Nangong kept his sword in the ground, opened the bandage on his hand and slashed down fiercely along the sharp sword tip.

Blood flowed down along the bloody groove of the sword and flowed into the moist earth of Mount Jiao.

He looked straight ahead without fear.

He did not know that at this moment, he was standing outside the barrier in front of Mo Ran. His figure overlapped and overlapped with Ye Wangxi, who had fought to the death in his previous life.

“Blood Sacrificing Azure Dragon, obtained tendons and bones. Open the formation!”

Countless tree vines broke out from the ground that was already cracked, and in a split-second, sand and mud began to fall. That tree vine was completely different from the one that had bound them. It was a scarlet vine without any leaves on it. It could even be said that the blood vessels rose up from the ground one after another, instantly latching onto each and every corpse under the control of the Exquisite Pagoda.

With just the power of a single person, over a thousand dragon tendons had been pulled out and a huge amount of spirit energy had been consumed in an instant. Beads of sweat seeped out of his forehead, and the hand holding the sword trembled slightly.

“Immerse!”

His face was pale and trembling as he gave his final order.

The thousand dragon tendons began to pull the corpses down fiercely, but the zombies obviously wouldn’t sit still and wait for their deaths. They all tried their best to shout, roar, and struggle.

At this moment, Nangong Si was also working with his dragon tendon, so he had to squeeze out more of his power to use more blood to sacrifice the dragon tendon. He had to use more power to pull the corpses down.

Ankle, calf… thigh…

The zombies all over the mountains were howling, hissing and salivating.

Nangong gasped. Their legs. It was still their legs…

He could feel that his spiritual energy was almost exhausted, but he hadn’t yet sunk those zombies into the ground. They were still furiously twisting their bodies, using their hands to prop themselves up and try to break free.

More, to the waist. At least to the waist.

Only by doing this could they unravel the barrier and allow the people outside to enter. This way, the zombies wouldn’t be able to break free and turn the situation around in an instant.

At least…

A little more.

He exhausted his spirit energy and used up his spirit core.

Nangong Si only felt a dull pain in his heart. The spirit core that was prone to cracking slightly trembled in his chest. He clenched his teeth, but blood still flowed out from the corner of his lips.

A little more.

Back…

Very good, they were all extremely difficult to move, but they were still not the most stable. The zombies' strength was even greater than when they were alive, and once buried here, they could still make a breakthrough.

A little more!

"Cough cough —!" He once again released the power of his spiritual core, causing Nangong Si to feel a wave of dizziness. He could not hold on any longer and knelt on the ground. He vomited a mouthful of blood, dripping onto the black soil.

Nangong shakily raised his eyes. In the swaying shadow, he saw that the corpses had been dragged deeper and deeper by the dragon tendon, almost burying their chests.

The monsters were temporarily unable to move.

The corners of Nangong Si's lips turned blood-red as he laughed.

He heard Ye Wangxi shouting outside, “Nangong Si! Enough! Open the enchantment! Open the barrier!”

Xue Zhengyong was also shouting, “Open the enchantment, Nangong! We’ll help you!”

“Nangong, quickly open the barrier! Open the enchantment!”

More and more people started shouting. In this world, not everyone was heartless.

After the annihilation of the Rufeng Sect, he had not cried even after suffering so many grievances, but at this moment, tears started to roll down his face.

He choked with sobs and mumbled hoarsely, “… I know, it’s just… It opened…”

He raised his trembling hand and prepared to remove the barrier that was blocking the crowd. However, the ground suddenly shook and then began to shake.

He was startled. Then he raised his head and looked at the scene before him with an expression of disbelief.

The dragon tendons that had obeyed him just now and dragged the zombies deep into the ground all of a sudden loosened, then wrapped around the corpses’ chests and backs, pulling them out of the ground one by one…

“Impossible…” Nangong said blankly, “That’s impossible!”

How could Mount Jiao not listen to his master’s orders?

Even if Xu Shuanglin had given the order to the contrary, these dragon tendons would not have been able to obey. To the Demon Dragon's Evil Spirit that was hibernating here, the Nangong Family's descendants were all the same.

If the two descendants of the Nangong clan gave the opposite order to the Mount Jiao, then Mount Jiao would only stop what it was doing and not help anyone, turning neutral.

Unless…

Nangong Si suddenly felt goosebumps all over his body. He thought of someone.

This thought made him tremble all over, and the pain in his heart seemed to be even more intense than before. He panted and slowly raised his head.

A tall and straight man with a valiant appearance was slowly walking down the long stairs.

He wore a luxurious robe embroidered with flood dragons swallowing the sun and moon, billowing the seas. With every step he took, the golden threads and silver threads that were fused into his clothes would emit a luster like flowing water under the moonlight.

Above his tall and straight nose, there was a neatly tied silk ribbon, worn by the dead men of Jinfeng, covering his eyes. However, the silk ribbon was not green, but black. What was embroidered on it was not a crane, but an Azure Dragon with strong claws and a surging flame electricity.

He stared at the man who walked down the steps step by step, his eyes opened wide in disbelief as he muttered, “Why… How was this possible… Grand Sect Master…”

Moonlight shone from the leaves of the trees, illuminating the handsome, clean-cut face of the man.

It was him.

In this world, there was only one person who could make Nangong Si disobey the Nangong Family’s heirs’ commands, submit to the Demon Dragon, and suppress the ancient evil beasts under the pagoda. He was the one who founded the greatest immortal sect in hundreds of years.

He was the greatest Grandmaster of the world hundreds of years ago. He was the one who gave up flying to enter the Heaven Realm while he was still alive in order to survive the worldly tribulation.

Nangong Changying!

Ch. 213 [Mount Jiao] Life-and-Death Battles

Although the Sect Leader of Changying was a man of ancient times, many of the paintings in the world had portraits of him.

The first generation Sect Leader of the Rufeng Sect is worshiped by the Xian Hall, therefore, Ye Wangxi reacted instantly, “Ahh, quickly open the barrier! You can’t beat him!”

Of course not…

Who could beat him?

Perhaps even the most powerful master in the cultivation world, Chu Wanning, would not have a chance of victory in a battle.

Nangong Si was trembling, not because he was afraid, but because he felt extreme grief and anger — Grand Sect master… Xu Shuanglin had actually turned the Grand Sect master’s corpse into a Zhenlong chess piece!

Crazy…

This was insane!

They were their ancestors, the souls of the Rufeng Sect, and the roots of the Rufeng Sect. They were gods that had been respected by their disciples and heirs for hundreds of years.

It was Nangong Changying!

The veins on Nangong Si’s neck throbbed, he let out an extremely twisted roar, like a tiger howling in the mountains, “Xu Shuanglin! No, Nangong Xu! Come out! Come out!”

The lingering sound lingered on for a long time like that of a vulture.

If no one replied, Xu Shuanglin would naturally not come out.

The only one who reacted was Nangong Changying, whose eyes were covered by a silk ribbon. He turned his face slightly, his pale fingers sliding across his sword sheath.

He raised his sword and slowly took another step forward.

At the same time, Nangong Si took a step back and muttered, “Grand Sect Master…”

Nangong Changying walked steadily, the tip of his sword pointed at the jade steps.

It made an ear-piercing scraping sound. His eyes were covered, and the silk ribbon was tied to a mage after death, so he could not see the road in front of him. He could only rely on sound and scent to determine the location of Nangong Si’s voice.

“Who are you?”

Suddenly, a low and ethereal voice sounded.

It was actually Nangong Changying speaking!

“Why did you trespass?”

After hearing hundreds of years of ancestors speak, even as a mere chess piece, he was still stunned.

Nangong Si swallowed his saliva and said, “Grand Sect Master, I…”

“…”

He suddenly let go of the sword he was supporting and knelt down to kowtow, “This junior is unfilial, the direct disciple of the seventh generation of the Rufeng Sect, Nangong Si has come to pay his respects.”

“The seventh generation… That’s right!” Changying’s corpse slowly and numbly repeated these words. Then it shook its head, raised its sword, and only said one word, “Kill.”

The two weapons clashed!

Under the attack of Nangong Changying, he felt his arm go numb. The strength of his predecessors were shocking, his ghastly pale face was approaching and his breath was as cold as ice.

“Those who trespass, kill them.”

“Grand Sect Master!”

Dazzling Sword Flower. The sword aura was both sharp and astonishing. As the metal blade and metal blade clanged against each other, flower flames flew in all directions, quickly turning the snow into snow.

Xue Zhengyong punched the barrier and said: “Are you crazy? How could he possibly win?”

Who didn’t know how brave Nangong Changying was? According to legend, with his astonishing strength, even if he didn’t use a weapon, he could still smash a rock into pieces with a single hand.

Deal with him?

Most likely, not even ten of them would be enough to fool around with his ancestor.

He had never thought that one day, he would be able to exchange moves with the first generation leader of the Rufeng Sect in Mount Jiao. After the first clash between the two swords, he was suddenly pushed ten feet back, and if he did not grab the sword in time, he would have already fallen on his knees in the weeds.

Nangong Changying raised his treasure sword and slowly closed in.

He repeated the order in a low voice, “Kill…”

At the moment, outside the barrier, Xue Zhengyong was furiously hammering the membrane. Jiang Xi was frowning and pursing his lips without saying a word, while Palace Master Ma simply covered his eyes, “Aiyo, aiya,” not daring to look, while Huang Xiaoyue was secretly shocked and glad that he did not capture Nangong Si back then.

Only Chu Wanning kept a close eye on Nangong Changying’s actions. He felt that something was wrong.

Who was Nangong Changying?

Of the two demonic beasts he subdued, one was a Demon Dragon, and the other was a Gǔn. There was no need to explain how terrifying this person’s spiritual energy was. Even if his soul had already left his body and was merely a shell in the world, many magic techniques could not be used. However, it was obvious that fighting techniques should not be affected.

Then how fierce was Nangong Changying’s fighting technique?

Near the Flying Flower Island of the Far East, there was a remnant left behind by the Rufeng Sect, the Wind Gate — a lake in the island.

This lake was neither big nor small. Furthermore, it was stagnant water without any magnificent scenery. Walking leisurely around it, it would take around half an hour.

Everyone knew, however, that the lake was not a lake but a small hill, which was used to hide from the battle between Nangong Changying and the Gǔn a few times. In the battle between Nangong Changying and the Gǔn, he landed a heavy punch on a rock several dozen times, but in the end, the final punch actually shattered a thousand feet tall rock, causing the earth to collapse and the ground to crack.

Thus, it was not that Chu Wanning was looking down on Nangong Si. However, he felt that when Nangong Changying's first sword strike clashed with Nangong Si, Nangong Si would have flown out a hundred feet, and there would not be a chance for him to get up.

There was something fishy about this corpse.

Chu Wanning's gaze was like a shiny blade scraping through every inch of Nangong Changying's body.

Suddenly, his sharp gaze focused on the arm that Nangong Changying was using to wield the sword. He paused for a moment as his mind suddenly lit up with fire. He suddenly realized where something was wrong.

On the other side, Nangong Si was struggling to hold onto his sword as he staggered to his feet. He was like the wolfhound he was raising; he could lose, but he would never run away. He used his sleeve to ruthlessly wipe away the blood at the corner of his lips. Just as he was about to continue fighting, he suddenly heard a familiar voice say from behind him, “Attack his left side. All the meridians in his left arm have been cut off.”

“Chu-zongshi?”

“Don’t get distracted.” Chu Wanning stood outside the enchantment, his brown eyes staring at the two men’s attack, “Even if Nangong Changying has lost his left arm, you still can’t let your guard down.”

Hearing Chu Wanning’s words, the surrounding Sect Leaders all looked at the left arm of Changying, and discovered that the left arm of the corpse was weak, Xue Zhengyong said in shock, “Did Changying’s meridians get cut off after Sect Leader died?! Who did it?”

……

No one answered.

However, people like Ye Wangxi, who were familiar with the history of the kingdom, quickly understood what was going on.

Who did it? In this world, who would break his meridians?

Nangong Si, who was fighting with Nangong Changying, stared at his ancestor’s face. His face was exactly the same as the jade carvings of the Xian Tang. It was as if Nangong Changying was still alive in this world and had never walked towards death.

If he really was still alive, if he truly was not dead, if he was to write off the hundreds of years he had been living through, was he still being tested by the first generation Sect Leader, given a trial by his guidance?

“Naobaijin! Come here!” Slowly, Nangong Si regained his senses. He shouted at the demon wolf and jumped onto its back, staring at the Sect Leader’s left arm, attacking it at an extremely fast speed.

The scene of his childhood flashed before his eyes.

He stood in front of the magnificent jade carving of the Hall of Sages, tilting his head to look at the statue of the First Sect Leader.

A child’s perspective was always strange. He suddenly turned his head towards Rong Yan and said, “Mother, this statue is incomplete.”

“Why isn’t it done?” Rong Yan pulled her luxurious robes over her mouth and coughed softly. She walked to the side of the child and looked up at the statue of the Sect Leader, “Isn’t it good? It’s so slim and lifelike.”

“… I don’t understand.”

Rong Yan sighed, she was an impatient person, she wished that she could put the knowledge that others had spent twenty years on, into her son’s head in these two years, “It’s carved to look like a living person, every detail is vivid. Didn’t I teach you these two words before?”

Nangong Si pursed his lips and said, “But the carving is wrong.”

“What’s wrong with it?”

“Mother, look.” He pointed to the first Sect Leader’s left arm and then to his right arm, “his left arm is a lot thicker than his right arm. I’ve been staring at it for a long time, I’m sure it’s thick and thin, not symmetrical at all. It’s wrong!”

As he said that, he raised up his arms for his to see, and explained to his seriously, “My arms are as thick as the sides, and mine are the same, my father’s is the same too… So, this carving was wrong. Let the craftsmen reconstruct it!”

“So that’s what I meant.” Rong Yan shook her head, and said, “This is not the fault of the craftsmen, rather, the Great Sect Leader’s left and right arms were somewhat lacking.”

“Why? Is it natural?”

“Of course not.” Rong Yan said, “Grand Sect Master usually uses his left hand. His left arm’s strength is much greater than his right arm, and over time, the left side became thicker and stronger than the right side. In other words, not only did the craftsman who carved this statue not make a mistake, he was actually very meticulous and noticed these minute details.”

“Clang!”

When the two long blades clashed, Nangong Si and Nangong Changying were standing very close to each other, clenching their teeth as they used their weapons to defend against the enemy.

Having lost his left hand, Nangong Changying was now facing a heavily injured and exhausted Nangong Si. This was a close combat battle.

Xue Zhengyong had an idea that made him gasp, “The meridians in his left arm, could it be… Could it be that he broke it himself?!”

Actually, it wasn’t only Xue Zhengyong. Many of the spectators outside the barrier also gradually had the same guess in their hearts.

From the time the high-level disciples of the Rufeng Sect were buried, their eyes had to be covered with spiritual power. Was it really just to “ride on a crane and view the sky and the clouds”?

Was it possible that Nangong Changying had also predicted the changes in the human world after hundreds of years?

Therefore, when he founded the Rufeng Sect, he had already thought of the end of the day. The reason why he covered the eyes of every disciple was to prevent them from displaying their strongest battle prowess, to prevent them from bringing disaster to the human world.

Therefore, the godly weapon that accompanied him throughout his life was not inside the coffin. What he held in his hand was only a long sword.

So, before dying, he cut off all the meridians in his left arm. Even if there were truly unrighteous people in the future who used his corpse to stir up the wind and waves, they would not be able to gain his entire battle power.

However, the answer was still unknown.

Dozens of attacks were exchanged, and just as the exchange of blows was getting more intense, Nangong Si suddenly saw the Great Sect Leader’s eyebrows slightly knitted, and he muttered: “Nangong…” No one dared to say anything. The seventh generation…

Outside the barrier, Mo Ran was observing every single movement that was happening to Nangong Changying. As Taxian-Jun, he was different from all the other decent people present. He was able to accurately detect things that would be difficult for someone who had never played a chess game before to immediately discover.

From Mo Ran's point of view, this corpse was clearly different from the others. He seemed to be struggling the entire time to regain his consciousness.

This was also one of the worries of Mo Ran before — Although Zhenlong Chess was one of the three forbidden arts, there was no spell in the world that was perfect. If a person's willpower was especially strong, then the caster would have to continuously use Spirit Flow to suppress the resistance of the chess pieces.

Once the caster ran out of spirit energy, the piece would go berserk, and sometimes even backfire on the caster. This was also the reason why many of the casters in the history of the game had suddenly died from an evil disease, or from having their meridians reversed, resulting in their deaths.

Mo Ran's face was overcast as he followed Nangong Changying with his eyes.

He was almost certain that Xu Shuanglin could not completely control Nangong Changying.

"Bam!"

A sudden muffled sound caused the five fingers of Mo Ran's caress on the barrier to clench tightly, his veins protruding.

The difference in power was just too great.

Everyone present could clearly see that even though Nangong Changying had severed his own arm and forcefully cut his own strength, a Grandmaster would still be a Grandmaster. Even though he had pulled out his sharp claws and teeth, this empty corpse was still able to fight evenly with Mei Hanxue and Xue Meng, the juniors of the same level.

If he really wanted to suppress him, he would have to make the Sect Leader and Elders take action.

However, the Sect Leader and the Elders couldn't enter. With the barrier sealed and the Nangong Family's territory inside, if any one of them rashly broke in, it would cause the spirit of Mount Jiao to erupt.

This was the civil war of the Rufeng Sect, and no one was allowed to interfere.

If it was Nangong Si who was brimming with vitality, he would probably be able to take care of this broken corpse in front of him by himself. However, he had already suffered too much before this. Another heavy blow. Nangong Si could have easily dodged it. However, when he flipped his back up with the gold ring on his neck, the wound on his palm tore and he was momentarily unable to stop it.

"Wuuaaooo ~ ~ ~"

The Agate let out a sorrowful cry. The sword in Nangong's hand was struck and sent flying, rolling back to the edge of the barrier.

Mo Ran saw that the hilt of the sword was already stained with the blood from Nangong's palm…

"A-Si! Stop fighting! Come out! Let's think of another way!" Ye Wangxi kept shouting at him.

People were always like this. Ye Wangxi would never beg for mercy herself, but Nangong Si was her weakness.

She was crying, crying.

Mo Ran had never seen her cry like this in his previous life. At this moment, she really did have the shadow of a girl. The two brothers Nangong Liu and Nangong Xu had selfishly placed a cold and resolute mask on her face.

She had always thought that she would never be able to take off this mask. However, the moment she saw the sword that was stained with blood, she instantly turned into ashes.

“Father…”

The blow was too heavy. Nangong Si clenched his teeth and began to sweat profusely. He tried to get up from the ground without making a sound. However, a cold light flashed and a snow-white blade light shone on his face.

He raised his face that was similar to Nangong Changying’s, and stared at his ancestor through the bright sword light.

Nangong Changying’s sword was already hanging right above him.

Within and outside the barrier, it was deathly silent.

Ch. 214 [Mount Jiao] Spirit Core Fragmentation

His hands were clenched in the dark, and his heart was beating like a war drum.

The veins on his temples throbbed as he stared at the tense situation in front of him. A crazy thought was running through his mind — Nangong Changying could take Nangong Si's life at any time. Was he really going to stand like this? Could he really just stand there like that?!

He was trembling. He was suffering, but fortunately, no one could see what was wrong with him. The line between life and death within the boundary was like a fine sand that sucked in water. Everyone's eyes were focused on him.

The sharp sword could be stained with blood at any moment.

Mo Ran gripped the hidden weapon in his sleeve, his fingers stroking the edge of the sharp arrow. He wanted to do one thing, but that matter made his fear grow as wild as grass…

Suddenly, Nangong Changying's body trembled.

The trembling was too obvious. Everyone could see it very clearly.

Xue Zhengyong asked in surprise, "What's wrong?"

Nangong Changying could not see exactly where Nangong Si was. He was actually slightly off in the distance when he was raising his sword. But Nangong Si could not make a sound. A single sound, a strange movement of the wind could make Nangong Changying react.

He stared at his ancestor's face, pale and stubborn. He pursed his lips, which were stained with blood.

"You are… Nangong… no?"

"AHHHHHH!"

This time, not to mention Xue Zhengyong, even the people who were standing in front of him started to shiver.

Nangong Changying's will?!

The expression on Mo Ran's face also changed. A cold light flashed from his sleeve, and he took back the hidden arrow that was about to be used. His back was soaked with cold sweat and his heart was pounding wildly.

So close… He was about to be exposed…

He felt lucky that he didn't have to do anything, but then he felt uneasy and disgusted by the luck he'd just had.

In front of this Mount Jiao, his past life had been a battle of attrition against the two spirit souls of his current life.

He didn't know how long he could last.

"Nangong…" No one dared to say anything. "Seventh…"

Inside the boundary, Nangong Changying's sword was moving slightly.

Little by little, inch by inch…

Xue Zhengyong was extremely shocked. "He really has a consciousness?"

No, not completely.

He was recovering his consciousness, restoring the last bit of consciousness in this corpse.

Mo Ran knew that Xu Shuanglin, who was hiding in a corner of Mount Jiao, was like a clumsy puppet artist. He had never danced with such a complex and massive puppet before, and he was on the verge of collapsing.

Nangong Changying was about to struggle free from his grasp.

“Swish!”

Before Mo Ran could finish his thoughts, the muffled sound that penetrated his skin caused his scalp to go numb and his pupils to contract.

In that instant.

Blood blossomed!

After a few moments of silence, suddenly, an extremely twisted shout exploded in his ears, and a cold sword thrust straight into his periosteum.

“Miss Ye!”

“Ye Wangxi!”

Ye Wangxi, whose eyes were bloodshot, was on the verge of going berserk. He was afraid that Ye Wangxi would do something too extreme, but people soon realized that this was too much. What could she do? She was not a member of the Nangong Family. No matter how powerful she was, in front of Mount Jiao, he was only an outsider.

She couldn’t get in at all.

Nangong Changying's sword ruthlessly pierced the back of Nangong Si's shoulder. If he could see with his eyes, he would have opened a hole in Nangong Si's chest that was as cold as the wind.

Nangong was stunned for a moment, as if he wanted to say something, but then Changying pulled out his sword, causing blood to spurt out. Nangong Si was on the ground, spitting out a large mouthful of blood.

He did not know what Xu Shuanglin had done, but perhaps he had donated his spiritual core's energy, or perhaps he had used all of his consciousness to control Nangong Changying.

His body, which had almost recovered its consciousness, suddenly became a killing puppet. With his sword in hand, blood continued to flow from the thin sword slot, dripping on the ground. Under the moonlight, it gathered into a small pool of dark and gloomy liquid.

Once again, he tried to get up from the ground, but to no avail. In the mud, he barely managed to raise his face.

Mo Ran's eyelashes trembled as he closed his eyes.

He would rather not let anyone see this face. It was a face that was originally proud, flying in the air, and had always been clean and handsome. At this moment, there was only blood and mud on the face, and one could barely make out its facial features.

Although there was no sadness in his eyes.

There was still fire in his eyes, still light.

Nangong Changying wanted to use his sword again, but a white light charged over and started to fight him. The white light kept on attacking him.

“Nangong Si…”

Ye Wangxi was on the verge of collapse, but Nangong Si was not looking at her. Instead, he was staring at Jiang Xi with his bloody lips moving.

He couldn’t make too much noise now, but Jiang Xi understood the words on his lips. He put his hands behind his back and stared unblinkingly at the movement of Nangong’s lips with his brown eyes.

Nangong Si was finished.

Jiang Xi said, “…” Good. “I know.”

Wu wu wu…

With another dull bang, Nangong Changying struck out with a single hand. The sound of its fall was much louder than its Master’s. Nangong Si’s snow-white body smashed into the trees and leaves, crushing a large part of the leaves. A cloud of smoke rose from the spot with a “pu” sound. Before the smoke had dispersed, a fluffy white puppy, no bigger than a human palm, staggered out and bit onto Nangong Changying’s clothes with all its might.

It was the original form of Naobaijin as a cub.

Nangong Si turned his head and coughed softly, “Let’s go, let’s go.”

“Awoo, awoo, awoo, awoo!” The onyx won’t leave.

However, this bit of force bit onto Nangong Changying’s body, like a clay ox entering the sea, it never came back. Nangong Changying could not be bothered with it at all, he moved his fingers, causing the ground to shake, and all the hundreds of corpses that had been tied up by Nangong were instantly pulled out of the ground.

His strength was unstoppable.

It was like pulling apart rotten weeds.

His eyes flashed with an intense luster and he actually pressed his hand down hard on the ground. In an instant, his chest was in pain, his spirit core had been shattered!

He used the spirit core that he had cultivated for more than twenty years, and the blood that he had trained with for more than twenty years, to risk everything and never turn back as he yelled in a low voice, “Immerse!”

Crack.

He could clearly feel that the core of his heart, which had been with him for twenty years, had cracked in an instant.

It was very light, like the wind passing over a spring lake, causing ripples in the air.

It was very heavy, as if mountains and rivers had shattered, and rocks and soil had tumbled down.

In the end, all of them were reduced to smithereens.

At that moment, Nangong felt a vague sense of relief. So this was what it felt like to have one’s Spiritual Core being exhausted to pieces? Although it was painful, it was not heart-wrenching.

Then, when Mother died, she shouldn’t have suffered too much, right?

Just for a moment, it was gone.

The evil dragon's spirit was actually trembling slightly because of his sacrifice. The blood vines that were about to release suddenly closed up again, tightly clinging to the zombies that were about to break out. Nangong Changying raised his chin, and said in a low voice, "Huh?" After saying that, he walked step by step to stand in front of Nangong Si.

At this moment, Nangong Si could not even take a single step. Without his spirit core, he was no different from a normal person.

He couldn't even recall his own sword.

He gasped for breath and raised his head. His eyes reflected the moonlight, reflecting Nangong Changying's face against the moonlight.

"Grand Sect Master…"

Nangong Changying's blindfolded ribbon fluttered in the cold wind. He stood in his original spot for a while, and then moved his fingers a little, but due to the sacrifice of Nangong Si's spirit core, the Mount Jiao Spirit could not immediately respond to the orders from the original owner's corpse. As a result, the blood vines did not move at all.

But Nangong knew that he could not hold on any longer.

As long as Nangong Changying went all out to give the order, Mount Jiao would most definitely listen to his first master's instructions. He could not change all of this.

However, even though it couldn't be changed, he would still pay such a price to do it.

He felt ashamed.

Outside of the spirit formation, Mo Ran clenched his teeth tightly. The arrow in his sleeve was once again at his fingertip. The lines on his face were stretched to the extreme, and his hand was trembling under his robe.

Inside the boundary, Nangong Si said, “Grand Sect Master… I’m sorry, I still… could do… Nothing at all…”

The ancestor raised his sword again, and Nangong Si closed his eyes slowly.

Suddenly, just as he was about to cut off the throat, he saw Nangong Changying turn his neck with difficulty, and squeeze out a word from between his teeth, “You… were called… Nangong… ?

Nangong Si suddenly froze, and said hoarsely, “Great Sect Leader? Do you, do you have any consciousness? You. Do you understand what I’m saying?!”

Mo Ran could no longer clearly hear the rest of the sentence. However, everyone could see that Nangong Changying’s underlings had suddenly slowed down and their lips were slightly parted. It was obvious that they were talking to Nangong Si.

“I… shouldn’t… Fight… With you…”

Nangong Changying’s sword was still hanging in the air, but he kept making little sounds from his throat.

“My heart still exists… Memories of the past… Before I died, I was worried that there would be a change in the future…” He had just recovered his consciousness, so his words were unclear. He said hoarsely, “Unexpectedly… Indeed, today it came.”

Nangong Changying paused for a moment and then continued, “Nangong… After a while… When I. After I finished chanting the incantation… You’re going to. Take the bow and arrow away… I…”

Bows and arrows?

What bow?

Nangong Si’s mind was buzzing and he could not react in time. However, he had already turned his sword and slashed at the ground, letting out a long dragon’s roar. Soon after, he flew back a few feet with his clothes fluttering in the wind, looking like an immortal that had been exiled from the heavens.

Nangong Changying was trembling. At that moment, he was barely able to get his lips and tongue out of the caster’s control. Every word he said consumed a lot of power.

“Cloud, Cloud, summon, come.”

The ground in front of Nangong Si suddenly split apart, and a dark blue bow repeatedly buzzed within the tumbling silt, illuminating the endless night.

Everyone was terrified, even a cold person like Chu Wanning had a slight change in expression.

Legend has it that the first Sect Leader of the Rufeng Sect of Wind was buried in the hands of a Martial God.

Cloud Piercer!

“Quick, take it away!” His hands were trembling violently, as if he was fighting against the invisible spider web, and did his best to not let himself go forward to pick up his divine bow and go through the clouds, “Cloud-piercing arrows can burn flesh and blood…… Burn.”

But the excitement was too great. He could not believe it, so he asked in a dry voice, “Burn what?”

“Me!” Nangong Changying suddenly shouted in anger.

“Grand Sect Master!”

“Don’t let my corpse… do… The thing it hated the most… when it was alive. It’s a matter of fact.” Nangong Changying was tall and elegant, and his clothes fluttered in the wind. He said the last word a hundred years later, “Burn it.”

Ch. 215 [Mount Jiao] Incineration of Body Remnants

In the thousand years of the cultivation world, many heroes had appeared and there were only ten people listed in the Cultivator Manual. Nangong Changying was one of them.

In the past, Mo Ran did not think much of it. He once crushed the 72 cities of the Rufeng Sect with his little finger and felt that there were hundreds of waste pustules in the Immortal City. Before the blade had even reached his neck, he began to cry out for pain.

Just as Ye Wangxi had said before he died in his previous life, none of the people in the 70 cities were men.

In Mo Ran's eyes, the Rufeng Sect was just a piece of loose sand, and with Nangong Changying who had gathered this piece of loose sand, what kind of amazing person could they be?

The blood stains were mottled on the ground, the hundred year old foundation was instantly razed to the ground, corpses were everywhere, and crows were pecking at the intestines of the dead. Back then, when he climbed the stairs, he didn't show any expression as he pushed open the door to the Hall of Sages.

He wore a black cloak that reached the ground and walked through the long corridor that was hung with paintings of sect leaders and elders. Finally, he stopped at the end of the hall.

Under the hood, he could not see Taxian-Jun's entire face, but only his pale chin. The smile on his face was fierce and arrogant as he raised his head slightly to size up the statue that was taller than the real person.

It was a statue carved with white jade spirit stones, and it depicted a young immortal in a wide robe and wide sleeves, standing tall and straight with a bow in his hands.

The half of the face under Taxian-Jun's hood suddenly revealed a smile, revealing a sweet dimple with white teeth.

He tidied up his clothes and clasped his hands together. Then, he lifted up his handsome face and said with a smile, "I've heard a lot about you, Nangong Immortal."

Naturally, the statue did not speak, only the black crystal glistened as if it was staring at someone.

No one paid any attention to him. He was still able to happily put on an act for a long time. "Junior Mo Weiyu is fortunate to be here today. Immortal Elder Nangong sure is impressive."

He talked for a long time, laughing and talking animatedly, while the living went mad at the statue.

"I've seen your profound mystery…" He snapped his fingers and sighed, "I don't know. Who knows which nephew of yours is yours? I wonder which disciple of yours is yours."

Then he smiled brightly. "But now they are all ghosts under my sword, so if you haven't been reincarnated, you've probably met them before."

"It's a pity I didn't see your Xuan Xuan grandson. That guy escaped before the city got destroyed. I don't know if he's still alive or dead, but I feel somewhat regretful."

He was happy again as he chatted intimately with the statue for a while. Then he said, “That’s right, I heard that Elder Nangong was also an outstanding person in his generation. Wherever he goes, there was people vowing their loyalty and following him.”

Mo Ran said with a smile, “Then wouldn’t you be as impressive as I am today? Thus, what I have come here to say is all nonsense. I only have a question — why did Senior Nangong Changying not refuse to ascend to the throne back then?”

He paused for a moment and then took a few steps forward. At this moment, his gaze landed on the warning tablet behind Nangong Changying’s sculpture. Actually, this tablet was very large.

The stone tablet was carved by Nangong Changying when he was ninety-six years old. It was originally simple and unadorned, but later on it was dyed gold and dyed red.

Mo Ran stared at it for a while, then laughed, “Oh, I understand. ‘Greedy and resentful, acting like a killer or a pervert, is something I, a gentleman, can’t do?’ Immortal Elder is really a good person.”

He stood with his hands behind his back, and continued, “But Immortal Elders Hao Bai, with a clear reputation, and a profound teachings to the future, until death, but I am very curious, did Immortal Elder ever expect that one day, Rufeng Sect would become like this?”

As he spoke, he pursed his lips, as if he was trying to come up with a suitable phrase to describe the situation. Then, he thought of something and laughed.

After he finished speaking, he laughed heartily and wildly with a pure and evil smile. For a long time, the sound reverberated throughout the empty and solemn Sect Temple, like the tearing of silk, as if he was about to tear apart the paintings that were swaying slightly in the wind, and tear apart the portraits of the elites of the Rufeng Sect of Wind.

The laughter finally stopped in front of Nangong Changying's ice-cold sculpture.

Mo Ran no longer smiled. He withdrew his smile, and a layer of ice slowly formed on his face.

His pitch-black eyes were fixated on Wu Zong's previous Master, the one who could command the world and wipe out all immortals, just like him back in the day.

It was as though time and space had intersected here, with the First Immortal of two eras standing in confrontation amidst the flow of time.

In the end, Mo Ran said softly, "Nangong Changying, your Rufeng Sect is a dirty pool of water. I do not believe that you will be clean."

He suddenly swished his sleeves and turned around, striding out of the Hall of Heroes. Suddenly, a gust of violent wind blew past his hat, revealing the nearly crazed face of Taxian-Jun the Immortal Emperor.

He was the most handsome man in the world, a man worthy of being called a handsome man. However, on his face, there was a vicious gaze akin to that of a carrion vulture.

The black robe was like thick clouds flipping over ink, rolling down along the long path.

He was an evil spirit from the mortal world, an Asura from the mortal world. When he looked around, he could only see the dead bodies of the disciples from the imperial court.

At that moment, an extremely cruel feeling of joy arose in Mo Ran's heart. He looked at the splendor of the morning glow at the horizon. The rising sun pierced through the clouds, and a dazzling golden light shone on his blood-colored face.

He closed his eyes, took a deep breath, and squeezed his hands in his sleeves, trembling with ecstasy and excitement.

He had been a man with a life like grass. When he was young, he had begged for food in Linyi's territory and had seen his mother starve to death. He did not even have a mat to wrap her in. At that time, he had asked a cultivator of the Rufeng Sect if he could get her a coffin. The weakest coffin was fine, but that person had ridiculed him with one sentence —

The cultivator said, "Any person should get a coffin. It's hard for you to find a third of a meter."

There was nothing he could do. He wanted to bury his mother on the spot, but Linyi was under strict control, and the nearest unmarked cemetery was outside of Dai City, over two hills.

He dragged his mother's body all the way through repulsive, contemptuous, surprised, and sympathetic looks, but no one helped him. He walked for fourteen days, a child dragging a woman's body for fourteen days.

Fourteen days. No one was willing to help him.

In the beginning, he would kneel by the side of the road and beg for help. He would plead with the gentleman, the groom, and the peasants to take him and his mother on a wooden cart.

But who would want to put a complete stranger in their care?

Then he stopped begging and just gritted his teeth and dragged his mother along, step by step.

The body stiffened, softened, and began to rot. The stench and the liquid seeped out, and the passersby all backed away from him, covering their noses with their hands.

On the fourteenth day, he finally reached the unmarked cemetery.

There was no longer the smell of a living person on him, and the stench of his own body had seeped into his bones.

Without a pick, he used his hands to dig a shallow hole at the bottom of the mound — he really didn't have the strength to dig a deep hole. He dragged his own mother, who was in a disfigured state, into the hole and then sat down beside his in a daze.

After a long time, he said stiffly, "Mother, I should bury you."

He began to scoop up the dirt and threw it at his mother's chest. He collapsed, and began to cry bitterly.

It was strange that he thought his tears had dried up long ago.

"No, no, no, we won't be able to see it once it's buried." He crawled back into the pit and lay on the rotting body, wailing, tears streaming down his face. As soon as he felt better, he went back to the earth, but it smelled as if it could open up a man's tear ducts, and he was defeated again.

"Why is it so rotten… It's already rotten to this extent…"

"Why is there not even a single mat?"

"Mother… Mother…"

He rubbed his face against her, and he did not despise her for being dirty. She stank, she was dead, she had no good skin, she was bleeding pus, and maggots were crawling all over her body.

He was crying in her arms, choking and choking. Every sound was like a gouge of blood in his throat.

Finally, his wails echoed from the cemetery. They were hoarse and indistinct, sometimes like the cries of a human, but more often like the wails of a young beast that had lost its mother.

"Mother… Mother!"

"Someone come… Is there anyone… Someone bury me too… Bury me as well…"

In the blink of an eye, twenty years had passed.

Mo Ran returned to Linyi and stood at the top of the mountain of Bi Wa in front of the mountains of corpses and the sea of blood.

The young cub that reeked of corpses years ago already had bright fur and sharp fangs. He once again opened his eyes, and his pupils flickered with a crazy and excited brilliance.

If he stood here today, who would dare to tell him that he had hit three feet?

Ridiculous! He wanted to be thirty meters tall, three hundred meters, and three thousand meters!

He wanted them, wanted everyone in this world to kneel down, rub their knees against the ground, and present to him on his knees —

He had trampled over all Immortals, and was now the sovereign of the world!

After entering the Hall of Sages and meeting Nangong Changying, he had become increasingly certain of his desires and ambitions. Yes, he had stepped through all immortals to gain the respect of the world.

He would no longer be the child who wept over a corpse. He would no longer let the person he loved die in front of him. She rot in front of him. Her skin would turn white and her face would turn into mud.

Never again.

In a hundred years, he would also become a god like Nangong Changying, worshiped by the people, revered by the mountains, white jade for the body of gold powder.

No, he would be even better than Nangong Changying, the Sisheng Peak would be far superior to the Rufeng Sect School, and he, the first emperor of the cultivation world, would be even more admirable than Nangong Changying, a hypocrite who could not be put down.

Sin?

He did not believe that Nangong Changying was innocent. How could a person who gave birth to a monster like the Rufeng Sect be a righteous gentleman that sacrificed his life?

Isn't it just "greedily killing and raping, is something that I, a gentleman, can't do"? Who doesn't know how to speak pretty words? Before he, Mo Weiyu, died, he could find someone to think of some brilliant and admirable words of exultation for him, find someone who would flatter him and write a history book for him. From then on, he, Taxian-Jun, would also become the master of the divine arts and the mind of all the people, as well as the master of everything in one fell swoop.

That's great.

There was no ending. It would be better than this.

"Greedy and resentful, killing and raping… It's me……" said the gentleman. Seven… "It can't be…"

A weak whisper was like a clap of thunder, ringing in his ears.

Mo Ran suddenly pulled himself out of the quagmire of his memories, but his vision was still blurry. He looked up at the barrier where Nangong Changying had pierced his chest with an arrow pierced through by Nangong's Cloud-Piercing Arrow.

It was the exact same face as the jade carving from back then.

Someone exclaimed, "How can he draw the Cloud-Piercing Bow when he's already injured like that?!"

"Was that bow prepared long ago?!"

“Look, there’s some spirit energy attached to the bow… It was not Nangong Si! Yes, yes…”

No one continued.

However, everyone was well aware of this fact.

It was from Nangong Changying.

The only person who could control the Sky Cloud Divine Bow was Nangong Changying.

On the bow, there was the final spirit stream that Nangong Changying had left behind before he died.

The fire spread and burned Nangong Changying’s chest. The arrow that pierced through the clouds pierced his heart, and the fire immediately spread to his entire body.

However, the corpse did not feel any pain. Nangong Changying’s body seemed so tall and straight in the flames, and his face was so serene that it seemed as if he was unperturbed.

Beside him, Mo Ran heard Xue Zhengyong mumbling, “He already expected it?… He… Did he already foresee such a day?”

No…

It wasn’t something he had expected. It was just a coincidence.

His body was covered with a black ink, and his pupils were twisted into two thin slits.

This was only a coincidence!

But how could he convince himself? To be able to break free from the control of Zhenlong chess pieces, long broken meridians, and even buried in Mount Jiao, the unburied Divine Martial Chenyun, and also the bow and arrow that was filled with spirit energy.

…… If not for meticulous planning, how could he have achieved such a state?

He staggered back a step.

He had thought that they were the same. He had thought that all the legendary heroes in this world had the ability to cover the sky with their hands, to wipe away all the stains on their lives, to put on a clean life jacket, and to leave behind a trail of whiteness. He had thought that Nangong Changying was just like all the other men he had seen in Rufeng Sect.

Was he wrong?

He looked at Nangong Changying, who was surrounded by blazing flames. A few hundred years ago, he was the same as him.

Was he wrong?!

Nothing can drown in sin, no matter how grandly the official history is written, it will leave an unexplainable flaw, the mouth can never block.

Nangong Changying was a man of the best. He refused to dominate, nor did he ascend. He once thought that it was nothing more than a disguise and cover up for himself by those at the pinnacle of power.

Was he wrong…

Nothing could bury the truth, just as the snow that had accumulated for a winter would melt away, and when the whiteness had faded and the earth was bare and ridged, there was no escape from the filth that lay in all the wrinkles, and the sun shone down and they screamed in the day.

He… Was it wrong…

He stared fixedly at Nangong Changying, who had also raised his head. He was still wearing the black silk ribbon embroidered with the Soaring Dragon pattern, so no one could see his eyes, nor could he see his eyes.

However, he did not know if it was his imagination or not, but he felt as if Nangong Changying was smiling. A smile could be seen under that black ribbon, and it was impossible to wash it off with water.

If he could, he would like to be selfish and leave behind this broken body, always accompanying Qing Shan, Tsui Bai, and the future heroes.

The world was too beautiful. No one wanted to leave.

However, he also knew that sometimes it was impossible to not leave. So, he had already planned to break the meridian to hide the bow, and in the future, his body would be used as an accomplice.

The human world was too beautiful. Having flowers was enough, one shouldn't be infected by blood.

"Grand Sect Master…" Nangong Si knelt on the ground with the Cloud-Piercing Divine Bow in his hand. The light from the fire illuminated his young face and also the tears on it. "This junior is unfilial…"

The Cloud-Piercing Fire had destroyed the precious black seed in Nangong Changying's body. His body was almost burnt to ashes and became fainter and fainter in the flames.

Nangong Changying, who was completely free, asked Nangong Si, “How many years has it been since the founding of the Rufeng Sect?”

He was just a corpse, and his soul was no longer there.

There weren’t many memories and consciousnesses left in his body, so if he wanted to ask, he could only ask such a simple question.

Nangong Si did not dare to be negligent, and replied in a choked voice, “The founding of the Rufeng Sect has already reached 421 years of age.”

Nangong Changying tilted his head, even smiling.

He said, “A long time.”

That voice was faint, like a gust of wind that had pierced through the mountain and forest, scattering without a trace.

“I thought it would be over in two hundred years.” Nangong Changying’s voice was gentle and rich, flowing through the leaves of Mount Jiao, “All living things in the world have a lifespan, when the lifespan reaches the end, only humans can continue on. Moreover, old age will one day be replaced by youth, and old age will one day be replaced by new. Anything that was used for a long time would become dirty and old. Someone would throw it away and overthrow it. This was a good thing. No need to blame yourself.”

He had lost too much blood and his face was as pale as a sheet of paper. His voice trembled slightly as he said, “Grand Sect Master!”

“In fact, the long history of the Rufeng Sect does not lie in the fact that they have existed for a few years and have retained many disciples.” Nangong Changying’s figure was almost gone and his voice was getting further and further away, “There are still people in this world who remember that I, young master of the Rufeng Sect, can’t kill, be greedy, or rape.”

As he spoke, his sleeves gently waved. In that instant, the vegetation around Mount Flood began to shake, and vines rose up from all directions. The corpses that were on the verge of escaping their restraints all sank into the depths of the earth.

“As long as you remember, your job is done.”

After he finished saying those words, Nangong Changying’s body, amidst the raging flames, suddenly broke apart and turned into specks of dust. The golden-red starlight scattered throughout the vast forest.

His body had vanished, but the sound of it had not dissipated yet.

Inside the barrier, Nangong Si was already sobbing. Outside the barrier, Ye Wangxi had already knelt down. One after another, people began to kneel down.

After they died, they were all heroes.

Ch. 216 [Mount Jiao] Degradation to Slavery

The great Mount Jiao was calm again, the blood vine disappeared, and the bodies manipulated by chess pieces sank into the depths of the earth one after another. In the end, Nangong Changying died against the spirit of the dragon, even if it was his descendant.

The moon is white and the wind is clear, and the land is in a mess.

After shooting the last arrow, the bow in the hands of Nangong Si gradually became dull and sunk because of the loss of Nangong Changying's power. He dripped blood to the ground, almost the moment when the boundary was unraveled, Ye Wangxi ran to him and knelt beside him. "Don't move, don't move." Her voice was trembling. "I'll heal you…"

"Come on, I could have jumped around, and if you had cured me, I would probably have gone to see Taishou." Nangong Si coughed gently, pushed aside Ye Wangxi. Black eyes looked at Jiang Xi. "Sect Leader Jiang, still bothering you…"

Jiang Xi nodded his head and said, "I'm coming."

He is the leader of the Pharmacist Sect. He is willing to help others. Naturally, it is beyond the reach of others.

Jiang Xiyu's white fingertips were placed on Nangong Si's wrist. Almost as soon as he touched them, his pupils narrowed slightly, then he did not utter a word and looked at each other with Nangong Si.

He could clearly feel that the spirit core of Nangong Si had been crushed. Therefore, he was not different from ordinary people. He could no longer use magic or spiritual power.

It was impossible for Nangong Si himself not to know about it, but Ye Wangxi was there. As she watched Jiang Xi, she shook her head slightly and unconsciously.

“What? Sect Leader Jiang, what’s wrong with A-Si?

“…”

Jiang Xi silently withdrew his hand, and then took out a shallow porcelain bottle from cosmic bag and handed it to Ye Wangxi: “It’s nothing serious. The trauma is not harmful, you can rest assured. If you take this powder and apply it to the affected area every day, you will recover after ten days at most.”

When Jiang Xi finished, he put the spiritual power on his fingertips, and then passed several acupoints on Nangong Si, finally covered the palm that was injured by the sword, and the blood soon stopped flowing. Having done all this, Jiang Xi rose to the public and said, “it is not advisable to stay here for a long time.”

He turned and left, but the conversation between Ye and Nangong Si still fell to his ears.

He heard Nangong Si whisper to Ye Wangxi: “He said it’s all right, in a few days it will be all right. What are you crying about? Alas, how can it become so useless, well, no such minor injuries…”

Jiang Xi closed his eyes.

He thought of the lip service to himself when he was thinking that his life was hanging on the line in the border area. He sighed and led the crowd to the long white jade steps leading to the ancestral temple and the heavenly palace.

From the foot of the hill to the top of the hill, there are three checkpoints that need to be smeared with the blood of the Nangong family before they can pass smoothly. However, Nangong Si does not need to cut his finger and drip blood at the moment. He already has wounds all over his body. Every little bit can dispel the boundary maze.

All the way up, there is no obstacle.

When Nangong Si put blood on the dragon's eye of the White Jade Carving Dragon, the last heavy stone block gate sank slowly and solemnly into the ground. The heavenly palace at the top of Jiao mountain appeared in front of everyone.

It was a fairy-spirited shrine, with a dense forest outside the palace gate. They were standing outside the forest at the moment, across the flowers and vines, flowing water. They could see a long step up the sky, with a total of 9,990 steps. The steps were so high that the top ancestral temple palace seemed to be lying on the top of the clouds. They could only see the dim shadows, spreading under the infiltration of the moonlight. Brilliant and translucent light, such as Guanghan Palace, like Xiaoxiao Palace, I do not know heaven and earth.

Almost everyone at first glance at the temple was shocked by its magnificence and miraculous workmanship, followed by anger, jealousy, greed and salivation… Various feelings came to mind.

The most wordless of them is Ma Zhuang master.

As he patted his forehead, he cried out, “my mamma, what a long step, why can’t the sword on this hill run with its feet? This is another mountain!”

Huang Xiaoyue laughed and said, “the old man is not malicious. He is only making a joke. According to the old man, it is true that Nangong’s immortal dragon does not have to fly up. He can create such a heavenly palace. What is the difference between the human world and the heavens?”

Suddenly they heard someone say coldly: “The construction of Rufeng sect Heavenly Palace was started during Nangong Yu, the third sect leader, and finished two generations later, under the fifth sect leader Nangong Xian. This Heavenly Palace has no connection with Nangong Changying.

Huang Xiaoyue: “…”

He looked back and saw the extremely cold face of Chu Wanning. As soon as Ink burned the face, he knew that Chu Wanning had almost endured the limit. As long as the fire was added, Butterfly Town asked about the old stories that attracted people in that year, I was afraid that it could be repeated.

Chu Wanning said coldly: “like Huang Xianchang, I do not have any malicious advice. Before you read the book thoroughly, you’d better learn to be cautious and prudent.”

Huang Xiaoyue has always wanted to maintain face, but in front of all the younger generations, he was broken in pitiless way by Chu Wanning. For a moment, he was extremely embarrassed. His lips were waiting fight back. Suddenly, Jiang Xi said, “Huang Xiaoyue, is it a joke to you that the reputation of Nangong Xianchang is pure?”

At Jiang Xi's speech, his status and position were self-evident. Huang Xiaoyue looked suddenly pale, but still forced a laugh calmly. "Why should Sect Leader Jiang take it seriously? This old man spoke without any malice."

"Shall I indulge your malice because you think it's no harm?" Jiang Xi rolled his eyes coldly and looked at Huang Xiaoyue. He didn't even want to give him the eye. "Do I have to endure your ignorance because of your aging?"

"…" Master Chu is a master, but in the final analysis, he has only ability, not real power. But Jiang Xi is not the same. Now he coughs on the lonely night, and the world must shake three times.

Jiang Xi brushed his sleeves and walked coldly into the woods toward the long steps at the end. Others glanced at Huang Xiaoyue with disdain or sympathy. Of course, others completely ignored him and followed Jiang Xi away. The abbot of Wubei Temple sighed "Amitabha Buddha". If it wasn't for the situation, Mo Ran would really laugh.

They walked in the woods, but they didn't take even a few steps. Nangong Si said, "Hmm?" A sound.

Jiang Xi asked, "What's wrong?"

"Orange trees…" Nangong Si looked around and there were orange trees everywhere with white orange blossoms. "Why is there an orange tree? All the trees planted here are dragon nursery trees."

"Look over there!" As he spoke, a sharp-eyed man pointed to a distant spring and whispered, "There's a man there!"

They looked where the man's fingers pointed, and sure enough, they saw a man sitting with his back to them, buried in a bushy orange tree, beside the tinkling spring.

Xue Zhengyong frowned and said, “Is it a man or a ghost?”

“I’ll go and have a look,” said Mo Ran.

His light work is excellent. He skimmed past and instantaneously hid lightly and silently in the nearby trees, and then carefully circled around the side.

He was stunned.

Because he saw the man’s face clearly.

That was the father of Nangong Si, the last leader of Rufeng Sect.

—— Nangong Liu.

What’s the matter? Hadn’t Nangong Liu suffered lingchi? He should have been dead for three hundred and sixty-five days now. But why did he seem to have flesh and skin at the moment?

Washing a basket of oranges??

The spring rippled with waves, and the silver moon was grind in the spring water. With a dreamlike look on the Nangong Liu’s face, he hummed a tune, drenched the washed oranges one by one, and then put them in the back basket beside him.

“Weak crown time is the best, light-footed horse, see the end of the world flowers.”

Nangong Liu hummed softly, sleeves rolled high, arms soaked in clear water, arms intact, and did not swallow the mottled scars of the Lingchi guo.

He can clearly perceive that something is missing on Nangong Liu. This man has apparently been made into a chess piece, but he and the corpses in the grave are different. Nangong Liu has obviously retained a large part of his consciousness. Looking at his behavior, it is not too different from a normal living person.

“What’s the matter?”

Xue Zhengyong asked anxiously when he saw that Mo Ran had gone quickly and returned.

Mo Ran first looked at Nangong Si and then whispered, “It’s Nangong Liu.”

There were many people who had hatred with Nangong Liu. On the spot, a monk raised from the ground and drew his sword: “That animal! I’m going to kill him!”

Nangong Si’s eyes were dim, his face grey and his head drooping silently: “…”

“There is something fishy, this Nangong Liu is obviously also controlled by the Zhenlong chess game, but strangely enough, he has no scar left by the Lingchi. I think it is better not to disturb him rashly.” Mo Ran said.

Chu Wanning pondered and asked. “Can the effect of the Lingchi fruit be eliminated?”

Guyue’ye was the best one at this kind of problem, the Cold Scale Sacred Hand said: “It may be possible, but it is more troublesome. I don’t think Xu Shuanglin should have stuffed him with a Lingchi fruit, and then took great pains to help him to untie the curse of the fruit. It’s totally meaningless to do so.”

Jiang Xi said, “Anyway, Nangong Liu is here. Xu Shuanglin should be in the temple palace. At last we did not make another trip in vain.”

As he said this, Yu Guang suddenly caught a glimpse of a shadow shaking in the distance. Jiang Xi turned his head. Others followed his eyes and saw the head of the Rufeng Sect, full of a basket of oranges, coming out of the woods. He still had a stick in his hand, and walked lightly. When he got closer, he could see that his face was still smiling.

Nangong Si had made up his mind not to see it, but finally he could not resist it. He looked up at his father and his eyelashes shook like flocks in the wind. He could not tell what he felt and hated at the moment. Heartache? Or something else?

He did not know if he wanted to look away, but the figure was like a fishhook, and it was impossible to loosen the hook.

At this time, suddenly someone who could not suppress his emotions shouted loudly, “Nangong Liu! You’ll pay your debt of blood today!”

With a loud voice, the plume and arrow left the string and went straight to the back of Nangong Liu.

It was too late for others to stop him, but fortunately the man’s bowing skills were not good enough, so the screaming arrow went straight into the basket behind him and pierced several round oranges.

Suddenly, many people cursed in their hearts. This is not good because there are too many of them. They always mix in some silly things when someone stir up the water. But at this moment, it’s meaningless to think about which dumb person put the cold arrow. What’s important is that Nangong Liu has noticed their existence and slowly turned his head around.

Seeing so many people standing in the mountains and woods, Nangong Liu was stunned for a moment, then walked towards them, his face was still that vague color.

As he approached, many monks had shone their swords several inches on their waists, and their eyes were watching him with great vigilance. Under the pressure of thousands of eyes, Nangong Liu seemed to finally feel some pressure. He slowly stopped and stood still in the shadows of the swaying trees.

“Gentlemen…”

When he opened his mouth, the silence was broken. Dozens of people couldn’t resist it. Subconsciously, he took a step forward. Several people even had their swords out of sheath.

Nangong Liu suddenly smiled, this smiling face, standing at the front of the array of several palms are familiar with, this is Nangong Liu once faced with everyone the kind of flattering and warm-hearted smile.

The owner of Taxue Palace was shocked: “This…”

Several people looked at each other and thought the chess piece was too weird to know what kind of medicine was sold in the gourd. At this time, they saw the Nangong Liu brushing his sleeves around, rolling them down, and then kneeling down on both knees and nodding respectfully to hundreds of monks.

“Ah, Nangong Liu, a slave, is a courteous room. You distinguished guests have come all the way, from far away.”

Following his kowtow, a basket full of orange bones rolled out of his back and sprinkled all around him.

Nangong Liu knocked his head, knelt on the ground again, laid down the basket to pick up the oranges without shame, restored and tidied the oranges under the staring gaze of a crowd, then rubbed his hands and laughed, “You distinguished guests, but you are going to see his Majesty?”

His majesty!

Mo Ran instantly had goosebumps. After all, he had been the so called Emperor for nearly ten years. When he heard the word “Your Majesty”, he still habitually felt that he was addressing himself.

Others were confused. Look at me. I look at you. Xue Zhengyong even gave a bitter laugh, but no one answered for a moment.

When Liu saw that everybody ignored him, he scratched his head in some doubts and carefully asked, “Hey, you distinguished guests, are you going to see his Majesty?”

Jiang Xi: “…”

Nangong Liu was slightly discouraged, but he repeatedly asked, “You distinguished guests, but you want to see your majesty?”

“…”

“Your distinguished —”

“Who is your majesty?” he asked quietly.

“Your Majesty is your Majesty.” Nangong Liu was glad to see that he had been attended to at last, and said, “If you want to see your Majesty, you have to go up all the way, but he is very busy. He may not have the time to attend to you. He has great matters to attend to all over the world.”

At last, Xue Zhengyong could not hold back. It was in such a tense atmosphere. He could not help but laugh. “What’s this ‘great matter all over the world’? Haha, what’s the most important thing in the world? Managing a dead man on a hill, playing chess with himself and playing puppets with string, is this also a big event in the world? Haha ha ha ha Xu Shuanglin, he is too, too funny.”

There was an uneasy gloom between the burning eyebrows. He then asked, “It means that he is in the palace of heaven at the moment. Although he is very busy, we can go to see him, right?”

“Yes. Of course you can go to see him. If he closes the door to thank his guests, you can wait in the city. When your Majesty is busy, he will come out. I’m going to go to the top too. The oranges over there have been eaten up again. I need to fill them up quickly. Otherwise, his Majesty will be angry later again.” He said, and went away, leaving everyone looking at each other.

“What shall we do?”

“Go up?”

“Will there be any deceit…?”

But Mo Ran had already taken the lead, and he was walking fast. He quickly left Nangong Liu and all the people behind.

Finally, breathing heavily, he took the lead in reaching the Heavenly Palace. Standing in front of the main gate of the palace, he looked up and realized how magnificent the palace was.

Only two palace gates have the potential of blinding the sun. The top is carved from the Yellow River to the blue sky. The left side of the gate is Tenglong Tengyi, on the right side is Huohuang Tuyue, the sun and the moon shining, and the crevices of the dragon's scales are filled with melted pure gold. Their momentum is astonishing. The tails of the phoenix feathers are all set with jewels. There are bronze Chiba lamps with whale oil hanging from the rafters on the top of the palace. The lights will not go out for thousands of years. In the light of the tens of millions of candles, the door to the sky is golden and blue, with beautiful flowing light.

Mo Ran originally thought that the door was very heavy and difficult to open. However, when his fingers touched the door lightly, with the blooming thunder, the dragon and phoenix gate[167] did not need him to use one's strength to slowly shrink back.

And in the moment of seeing the front of the Heavenly Palace, the whole people were shocked by Mo Ran.

This… What kind of a tricky scene is this?

Ch. 217 [Mount Jiao] Nightmare

He walked along the long central path of the front of the Heavenly Palace. Every brick and stone beneath his feet was shining like thin ice, reflecting his figure.

Du. Du. Du.

Step by step, the empty footsteps echoed lonely in the hall.

But Mo Ran was not alone. He is standing at the center of the hall of the front door of the Rufeng temple in the endless distance. The two sides are densely packed with men, women, old and young, with different faces.

He stood in the middle, just like a small city pool. On his left hand, the corpse of Nangong Liu and those of Xu Shuanglin became humble people, who were delayed and severed, and were executed by various criminal laws, then resurrected. And the other side there is singing and dancing, free and easy.

He even saw Luo Xianxian, who should not be the real soul, but the appearance of other corpses made of illusion, controlled by sunspots, like those of Jincheng Lake.

Luo's bun was tied up, and at the moment, together with her husband Chen Bohuan, the two of them looked comfortable and laid back. He also saw the Chen's youngest daughter, sitting beside her brother and sister-in-law, talking to them with laughter. And Luo Xianxian was snuggled up to Chen Bohuan. When she heard something interesting, she would cover her mouth with her sleeve and smile with joy.

It was a beautiful dream, but there was a sudden chill up Mo Ran's back.

He paced along this long corridor, half hell and half heaven, where good and evil were clearly separated. On his left, there was laughter and smiles, and on his right, cries and groans.

He walked forward as if he were walking through water and fire, light and shadow. He looked to the left, butterflies flying in clusters, a stream of water flowing from behind the beams and pillars, with clear wine in it. By the river of wine, some people were reading leisurely, others were singing poems and fu, children were laughing, women were drunk and managing clouds and clothes.

He looked to the right, the brass was hot, the cooking oil was hot, a twisting body was poured with rolling oil, the tongue was pulled through, people cursed each other, they tore each other, eyes flashed with the cold beast.

He also saw the former abbot of Wubei Temple, the old monk who had planned the dark screen of the Spiritual Mountain Competition with one hand. He was surrounded by three people, each with a rusty small stew knife in his hand. He was cutting his face, legs and brother's desk separately. One knife after another, the cut flesh and skin soon recovered. The old monk kept screaming, but only expressed his intention. An ambiguous roar - his rumored tongue had already been torn off.

The farther Mo Ran walked, the more shivering it feels.

He didn't even want to look on either side, cries, laughter, anger and joy.

On the left, a woman said in a soft voice, "Life and death, loneliness and destiny. A lover cannot call out a lover."

On the right, a woman is being bitten by a vicious dog and screaming.

Half of his remaining light saw light and half saw darkness, which were absolute, just like the chessboard pieces, black and white confrontation, clear about the good and evil.

Mo Ran feels a splitting headache.

He stood in the middle. He simply stopped and closed his eyes. He did not want to see the scene of nine days in purgatory.

He was there, waiting for the big army to catch up with him.

“Dreams of falling leaves are frightened and broken, and the dust of idle strolls is red……”

“No! Don’t do this to me anymore! Beg you! Save me… Help me…”

But the voices on both sides are endless, like arrows, into the wood three points.

He heard Luo Xianxian gently say to her husband, “Chen Bohuan, the orange flowers in the courtyard are all blooming. Shall I show you around?”

He heard Qin Shi, the former head of Jiangdong Hall, laughing wildly: “Adultery? Ha ha ha ha, yes, I was adulterous with Nangong Liu! I’m a slut, a prostitute, I’m a slut, a poisonous woman. I killed my husband, I want to be in charge. Hahaha, you all come to see my true face ah, see I’m an ugly bitch, aha ha ha ha…”

Everything was gathered together.

Living people, dead people.

Real or illusory?

Black or white, good or evil?

The voice around him was gradually like the tide, and the waves were rolling. He seemed to see two dragons breaking through the water and the moonlight shining on their cold, wet scales.

Are those two dragons?

No, they are two souls of their own.

Fighting began again, snarling and spewing dragon breath, biting and crashing together.

The earth shakes the hills.

Mo Ran could not stand this crazy noise. He covered his ears, but he could not stop the noisy voice. Eventually, he could not bear it. He wanted to raise his hand and drop the curse of silence.

He opened his eyes violently.

The surrounding scenery disappeared.

Mo Ran looked with horror.

He's stunned in place - what's wrong? How can all the sights around disappear?

Where is he?

Why is it black everywhere, endless black…

Is it Xu Shuanglin's illusion?

Mo Ran looked around, nothing, all dark.

He took a few steps and tentatively shouted, “Shizun?”

“Xue Meng?”

“Has anybody come?”

No one answered him, black, deathly black.

Who has seen countless storms, such black and creepy, he walked forward, straight goosebumps on his arms, he went forward…

Suddenly, he saw a faint white light shining far ahead, which seemed to be an exit.

He went to that place.

Suddenly there were figures around him, not so clear, but he heard the voices of those people, and the tide generally knelt down to him.

Those people are singing grandly, their voices are low, and they are rolling together into rivers.——

“Congratulations to the Emperor Taxian-Jun for a life of balance with heaven.”

Emperor Taxian-Jun?

No… No!

He shivered. He shivered. He ran forward as fast as he could, but it seemed that tens of millions of hands were coming from all directions to catch him.

“Your Majesty-”

“Taxian-Jun immortal.”

“Life is endless, fortune is not central.”

Mo Ran was forced into madness, he tried hard to break away those invisible hands, he ran towards the light: “No, not me! Go away… Go away!”

“Taxian-Jun…”

But those voices followed him like shadows, lingering, Mo Ran began to think that Xu Shuanglin was the devil of the ghost world. At this moment, he came out to catch him.

“Why does Your Majesty want to go?”

“Emperor, emperor…”

Mo Ran staggered under his feet, his eyes flashed fiery light, he wanted to go, but all the grievances were trapping him. He was forced to be trapped, and he had no way to hide. He suddenly became furious. He turned his head in anger. Suddenly he drew his sword and swore, and cut all the shadows into broken darkness.

He looks like a wolf and a leopard. He’s almost ferocious.

“Get out!” He roared, “Get away from this Venerable one! Roll!”

His voice fell and his face looked sad.

He heard someone murmuring around him and snickering, “This Venerable One?”

“He said this Venerable One… Yes… He’s talking about this Venerable One…”

“Emperor, what’s wrong with us? You should know in your heart who you are and where you came from. You can’t escape.”

Mo Ran retreated with his sword and shook his head. “No, it’s not… Not so…”

The black smoke which he had chopped was gathered and shaped again, and a vague shadow fell in front of him, pressing towards him step by step.

The shadow whispered softly, “Not so?”

“I am not Taxian-Jun!”

“How are you not Taxian-Jun?” The voice is dim and soft, like the smoke curling up from the veil curtain in summer, “Of course, you have a debt, only you, you can’t escape…”

“But it’s over!” Mo Ran stared at the dark shadows. “It’s over! Taxian-Jun had already died before the Heaven-Piercing Tower. It had nothing to do with me when he entered the grave. I’m just… I’m just…”

The shadow smiled softly, as delicate as a flower stamen: “What are you?”

Mo Ran: “…”

“Are you just a reincarnated soul?” It asks, “Just a memory of the flesh? Are you just an innocent life living in the shadow of Taxian-Jun? Or… Are you just a dream?”

If anger and fear are still there, once this sentence come out, Mo Ran's mood became as hard as ice, and his blood froze all over.

He was almost at a loss, he did not respond. He tried to speak, but he could not speak a whole sentence for a long time. After a while, he opened his mouth, and his voice was harsh. He dug out his throat and dug up a broken word. "Dream?"

"You know you're reborn, but who knows for sure? Do you think it must be true? Is it you or me who is real at the moment?" The blurred smoke surrounded him, gathering more clearly. "You said you died under the tower of heaven, but now you are standing here vividly… Are you really dead?"

Mo Ran stared at the black smoke.

He no longer trembled, he felt cold, like falling into an ice cave, and stepped into the abyss of ten thousand feet.

It's cold.

Did he really die?

The cold of the Wushan hall seems to be still in the bone marrow. The fire of the ten major factions in the uprising is like a long snake winding its way from the foot of the mountain to snap his neck.

Xue Meng seemed to have just stood in front of him, with nothing left and tears in his eyes. He said ruthlessly, "Mo Ran, give me back my Shizun."

Did he really die?

He remembered taking the poison, the poison pierced his heart and lungs. He staggered to the Tower of Heaven, climbed into the excavated grave with his last strength, and lay in the coffin.

Haitang flowers blossom very gently, light fragrant, clouds and shadows wandering.

He closed his eyes…

“Then you opened your eyes. You went back to your sixteenth year, back to the time when everything could be saved, right?”

The black image was able to see through his heart and murmur with a low laugh.

“You came back, Sisheng Peak was not destroyed. Although the Rufeng Sect was turned into scorched earth for the second time, it was not you who did it. Ye Wangxi and Shi Mingjing did not die. You saw your mind clearly. You fell in love with Chu Wanning, you became Master Mo. He finally accepted you. Now you’re the leader of the Rebel Army. You’re the leader of the Qingzheng Road. You’re the hero of a generation of young people who want to hunt down the bully leader Xu Shuanglin on the mountain.”

A few deaths.

The blood vessels of the neck burned up, and the heart beat fiercely together.

The shadow had no face, but it was staring at him. He knew it was staring at him.

“You think beautifully.”

Cold swords pierce the heart and poisonous teeth pierce the neck.

Mo Ran can feel despair spread in his body, poison spread in general, like the deadly poison he took when he was thirty-two years old, spreading… Immersed in liver and gallbladder… Immersed in the heart…

“You’re not reborn at all. You’re all dead. Everyone’s dead. Xue Meng is alive, but he hates you so much.” The shadow said, “Now wake up, open your eyes, Taxian-Jun, you are still the Lord of Darkness.”

“No…” Mo Ran heard someone talking, and the voice was so weak and broken that it seemed to have been beaten up countless times and glued together. Then he was surprised to find that the person who uttered the voice was himself, “No…”

He drives his courage in every inch of bone and every drop of blood. He keeps his eyes open and his eyes full of madness.——

“You lie! It’s impossible! It’s impossible!”

He gathered his sword and swung it, panting furiously.

The black smoke dispersed again.

But his voice did not fade, and he was laughing in a low voice: “Lying? But your Majesty, why don’t you look down and see what you hold in your hand?

Ch.218 [Mount Jiao] The Emperor's Return

He lowered his head.

He lowered his head —

The blood was flowing in reverse, his head was buzzing, and he saw… Bu'gui.

The blade held in his hand was actually the Blade of the Hundred Fights, Bu'gui!

The black blade Bu'gui was maliciously lying in the middle of the night. The hilt was long and thin, the strength was hard, and the Tang Sword style was sheathless. It was extremely similar to a sword.

On the hilt of the saber, which was inlaid with a golden ring, there were two characters written on it.

Bu'gui.

Affairs of the past upon vermilion bridge in emerald green.

Another year goes but still you do not return.

Mo Ran looked as if he had been struck by lightning, the light in his eyes was as thin as a needle, and his face was paler than a dead man's, and more hideous than a ghoul.

"No… No… No… No!"

He almost despaired, threw Bu'gui to the ground, but the Wu and his heart, automatically to the waist.

“No!” Mo Ran was hysterical. He tried to summon Jiangui out of him, but Jiangui couldn’t come. He called that piece of scarlet willow vine again and again.

Jiangui, no rattan whip.

Only Bu’gui was with him.

“Do you believe it now?” The ghostly figure closed in again. This time, it gathered even faster than before. Soon, it had shape, four limbs, waist, head…

Mo Ran refused to believe it.

He refused to believe it.

He ignored the cloud of black smoke and ran toward the end of the light.

This was an illusion created by Xu Shuanglin… This was just an illusion…

Go where the light is, and it will all be over.

He sprinted towards that direction.

But his arm was held tight again.

Mo Ran didn’t want to pay any more attention to it. He threw it away and shouted angrily, “Get lost! Get lost! What is true? You know better than me what’s true? I know what’s real! He treats me well, it’s true! It was true that he was not dead! What has happened between him and me all these years, how could it be false?! Jincheng Lake, Peach Blossom Springs, Ghost Realm Butterfly Town, we will send —”

The voice interrupted him softly, almost with a sigh, “A-Ran, why don’t you remember that I’m the one who married you?”

He suddenly turned around and saw that the black fog had condensed into a human form. Her face was as beautiful as a lotus, and she was truly a beauty in the mortal world. She gently snuggled over and wore a head full of emerald and flowery hairpins, wearing the bright red dress she wore when she was married.

“Xu Yingfeng, I couldn’t walk anymore. You’re the one who carried me up. You told me not to call you ‘Your Majesty’, and from now on I will only call you ‘A-Ran’, have you forgotten that?”

Her smile was soft as grass, but her hands were surprisingly strong.

Mo Ran suddenly struggled free from her. This was definitely not Song Qiutong. His wrist had already turned purple, and he continued to move forward… The white light grew closer and closer…

He seemed to know somehow that this was the way out.

Over there. As long as we get there.

He heard Song Qiutong say with a smile, “Your Majesty, where are you going? Chu Wanning is dead, you got yourself killed, do you really have to go there?”

“…”

“Over there is…”

He did not hear her clearly, he had broken free from the clutches of the wraiths, he ran, he threw her voice to the back of his mind, the white light grew brighter and bigger before his eyes, he was like a drowning man trying his best to swim on his feet towards the shattered shadow of the sea.

Suddenly!

He plunged into the great white light, and the darkness disappeared.

He gasped for breath, his feet weak, breathing slowly, like a man who has just emerged from water, breathing greedily, unable to get used to the light for a moment. He raised his arm to shield his eyes, and after a long while he heard the birds chirping and smelled the faint fragrance of the haitang.

He slowly opened his eyes.

… Where is he?

The first thing he saw was a luxuriant haitang tree, which was covered in a bright red glow, just like the glow of a brocade.

It was not in the Ancestral Shrine of the Rufeng Sect.

This illusion… Is it still not over?

However, his mind was already slowly falling apart. He was suddenly not so sure who he was, where was it a dream, and where was it real.

He sat up, an haitang flower that had landed on the tip of his nose fluttering in his lap.

…… Sit up?

Only now did he realize that he was actually lying down just now, as if he had just finished a nightmare. He looked around and realized that he was looking at the Heaven-Piercing Tower which was at Sisheng Peak's door, while he himself sat inside an open coffin that was pitch black.

Instantly, even Mo Ran's fingertips seemed to turn cold.

He stood still for a long time, then suddenly got up and stumbled out of the coffin. In front of the coffin was a stone with no words on it. Instead, there was a bowl of wontons and several plates of stir-fry, his favorite food. He stared at them. He stared at the coffin.

No…

No.

The nightmare was not over.

He had fallen into a deeper nightmare, or was he now sober?

Could it be that what the black shadow said was true?

Did he really just submit, lie down in front of Heaven-Piercing Tower, and have a long, long dream? Everything in the dream was…

He didn't dare to continue thinking about it. He crawled up as if he was crazy, and directly ran towards the peak of the South Peak which was the Sisheng Peak.

However, it was different from before he died. He remembered that back then, he clearly chased everyone away, but when he was halfway there, a group of people rushed out, and the one in the lead was Liu-gong who had served him for many years. He held a box in his hand, and his wrinkled face was filled with joy: "Your Majesty, we have found the Rebirth Immortal medicine! This is the immortal medicine for rebirth!"

He stopped abruptly.

When everyone knelt down to congratulate him, Liu-gong also knelt down. His withered hands held up the embroidered box, and he shakily handed it over to Mo Ran. He said hoarsely, “Immortal medicine, ah! The immortal medicine that His Majesty has been begging for finally moved the gods.”

Mo Ran was taken aback, “No… I, didn’t I chase you all down the mountain?”

All the servants’ faces were ashen as they kowtowed repeatedly. Liu-gong was also extremely frightened: “Why would His Majesty chase us away? But where could this old servant not serve? Old servant —”

“What about the top ten sects?”

Elder Liu was confused and raised his head blankly: “What top ten sects? Your Majesty, what’s wrong?”

As soon as he left the forest, he pointed towards the tomb in front of the tower. “Look over there, I was just sleeping there, I —”

He turned to find that the coffin and grave were gone.

There were only two lonely tombs of empress and concubine, with his dog crawl scrawled on them.

Mo Ran: “…”

Elder Liu asked worriedly, “Your Majesty, what’s wrong?”

“I…” Mo Ran stared at the two graves, his mind in a state of confusion. For a moment he could clearly sense that all of this was false, but then he felt a blur of reality, and he couldn't tell where he was or how long he had been there.

Elder Liu sighed, "Your Majesty's worries are too deep. Have you been dreaming?"

"It's not a dream… No, of course this is a dream…" He rambled on for a long time before suddenly turning his head to stare at Elder Liu. "What about the rebirth medicine?"

Elder Liu then handed the box over.

He didn't go to get the box, instead, he just opened it. Inside was a pill that was as white as jade and gave off a warm glow.

Trembling, he picked it up, his Adam's apple bobbing in his throat, and headed in the direction of the Red Lotus Pavilion.

However, Elder Liu suddenly stopped him, and when he suddenly turned around, his nerves were stretched taut, about to break, so he asked, "What's wrong?"

Elder Liu, who had been amiable a moment ago, suddenly darkened his face. A strange light flashed in his eyes as he spoke darkly: "Your Majesty, have you gone in the wrong direction?"

"What do you mean by heading in the wrong direction…"

"The place that Your Majesty should go is the Soul Recruitment Platform." Elder Liu said slowly as the servants slowly surrounded him, surrounding him and slowly approaching him. "His Majesty has always been thinking day and night about reviving your senior brother, Shi Mingjing?"

“I…”

“Now that the Rebirth Immortal Medicine is in our hands, why did His Majesty abandon the Soul Summoning Platform and instead go to the Red Lotus Pavilion?” Old Liu said faintly, “For this method of rebirth, His Majesty had killed tens of thousands of people, flattened the Rufeng Sect, and caused the world to be filled with grief, blood to flow like rivers. Did His Majesty do all of these things, and end up going against his original intentions and taking this pill into another person’s mouth?”

Mo Ran’s mind was in a mess. He tightly held onto the immortal medicine and said, “You don’t understand.”

“Your Majesty must go to the Soul Summoning Platform. You are not allowed to go to the Red Lotus Pavilion.” Everyone’s eyes flashed with a terrifying light. Their ghostly faces surrounded him as they repeated, “Your Majesty must go to the Soul Summoning Platform. You must not go to the Red Lotus Pavilion!”

Mo Ran protected the immortal medicine with all his might. His face was pale as he said, “All of you, get out of my way.”

“His Majesty has to go to the Soul Summoning Platform…”

“Out of the way!”

He pulled out Bu’gui and held onto that ice-cold saber hilt. Those people seemed to have shrunk for a moment. Then, their pupils became as long and narrow as a snake’s, and they all revealed twisted smiles.

“You will be punished…”

“What do you think you can change?”

“You’re breaking your promise.”

“Three to four.”

“Hoh, how could such a heartless and unrighteous person be worthy of possessing immortal medicines?”

“Get it back! Get it back!”

Mo Ran, protecting the immortal medicine, fiercely cut open a path of blood and rushed towards the Southern Peak, where was Sisheng Peak. Regardless of whether it was a dream or real, he knew that Chu Wanning was there… Regardless of life or death, he had to go there. He had to stay by Chu Wanning’s side to be at ease.

He ran into the boundary of the Red Lotus Pavilion.

Elder Liu and the others were all blocked outside the boundary.

He turned around and glanced at them, then closed the jade green bamboo door. He did not want to see anyone else. This was the Red Lotus Pavilion. He only thought of himself, and…

“Shizun?”

His eyes widened in surprise as he saw Chu Wanning standing under a haitang tree. He wore a high ponytail and a pair of metal gloves. He had a focused expression on his face as he tried to complete a Holy Night Guardian. The wind began to blow, and the light pink petals began to rustle down. Like the first snow, they fell in front of the stairs. On the table, they were gentle as ripples.

Mo Ran's eyes turned moist red, and in a split-second, he was choked with sobs.

"Shizun…"

Chu Wanning heard his voice and looked up. Because he was busy, he was biting on a small file. Seeing Mo Ran, he was slightly surprised. He took the file and stood up, nodding at him, "Why are you here?"

Ch. 219 [Mount Jiao] Don’t Go Away

Mo Ran did not answer, or perhaps he could not. He walked forward and hugged Chu Wanning.

“… What’s the matter with you?”

In his arms was a slightly cold shirt and a warm body.

“Why are you crying?”

He didn’t know. Dreams, reality?

He was no longer clear about the details, but in the Red Lotus Pavilion, there wasn’t a body of Chu Wanning lying cold. his Shizun was still alive and worried about whether his mechanical armor joints were agile or not. He was considering whether he should use some oil or varnish.

It seemed enough.

For a moment he was absorbed in this, and did not want to wake up again.

He and Chu Wanning finished the mech pilot together. It was already late in the night, so he pulled Chu Wanning back into the room. Just like his previous life, they intertwined with each other with their heads rubbing together.

Chu Wanning in his dream was not so docile, he always had this kind of ruthlessness, the kind of thing he couldn’t let go.

Even when the happiness between the two had reached its peak, he would often bite his lips refusing to vent out. His phoenix-like eyes formed tears, but he remained silent. He only gasped for air, unable to restrain it.

The candle flame did not extinguish, the light from the lamp was shining on the person's face, Mo Ran was staring at his infatuated appearance, he was staring at Chu Wanning's facial features, his black eyes, and the shadow of the candle in his eyes.

The candle flickered like a flower petal falling in a deep pond.

While Mo Ran looked, the petal was floating in the water. The ripples spread out, and in the end, some moist water fell from Chu Wanning's eyes and was kissed by Mo Ran.

He knew very well what kind of person Chu Wanning was. If he did not use any love potions, it would be difficult to get him to orgasm. His self-control was truly remarkable.

But so what?

He couldn't control his tears, and his gasps and his rapid breathing. It was good to see him get fucked until he started crying, his face flushing and his eyes losing focus. His firm chest heaving up and down as he gasped for breath again and again.

The night was charming and gentle. It was only at the Yin hour that they embraced and went to sleep.

Mo Ran tightly embraced the person in his arms. Both of them were sweating, his hot and wet body was sticking to his hot and wet body, and even his hair was glued to the side of his face.

He kissed his earlobe softly and hugged him tighter with his neck.

"That's good, Shizun. Now that you're by my side, that's good."

He fell asleep.

He opened his eyes and was surprised to find that Chu Wanning was no longer beside his bed.

“Shizun?!”

He sat up.

Then, he saw Chu Wanning standing by the half-open window. It was already dawn, and light rain was drizzling through the window.

Mo Ran breathed a sigh of relief and stretched out his hand. “Shizun, come here…”

However, Chu Wanning did not move. He was dressed neatly, wearing a snow-white robe as he quietly looked at the man on the bed. Mo Ran stared at him and suddenly felt a strong sense of unease.

Chu Wanning said to him, “Mo Ran, it’s time for me to go.”

“Leave?” He was still in a daze, the bed was still warm, there was hair cut off on the pillow, and a hint of obscenity in the air. But Chu Wanning, who was standing in front of him, seemed to be separated by a lake and a sea. “This is the Red Lotus Pavilion, your home. We are already at home, where else can you go?”

Chu Wanning shook his head. He turned his head to the side and looked out the window at the pale face slowly appearing. He said, “There’s no more time, the sky is about to brighten.”

“Wanning!”

It was just a blink of an eye.

The room was empty, leaving nothing behind.

He jumped out of bed in a panic, and, without putting on his shoes and socks, stumbled out the door.

The night before, the branches of the haitang blossoms that had shone brightly had already been cut in half. The broken flowers covered the steps and chairs, and on the stone table, there was a finished Holy Night Guardian. The metal gloves and file were tossed aside, as if Chu Wanning had just left, as if Chu Wanning would return at any moment.

“Wanning? Wanning!”

He frantically ran around the Red Lotus Pavilion to search, but he kept bypassing the lotus pond. Subconsciously, he didn’t dare go to the lotus pond, and he didn’t dare to go…

However, in the end, he still walked over in a daze.

Barefooted, he stepped onto the ice-cold limestone road.

He stopped a good distance from the lily pool, moving up from his pale toes, until he could see a face that was not human.

He blankly opened his eyes wide. He saw the man lying in the lotus pond in the distance, and it was the same man he would see almost every day in the last two years before his death in his previous life.

Lying in the depths of the lotus, his body uncorrupted and his clothes clean, what difference was there between him and when he was alive?

…… What's the difference!

He walked over step by step.

Closer.

Closer.

As long as he continued forward, he would arrive at the edge of the pool. He would be able to clearly see every eyelash, his sword-like eyebrows that were slightly furrowed after death, and his phoenix eyes that were no longer open.

However, he hesitantly knelt down.

Kneeling on the stone floor, he curled up into a ball and trembled for a long time. Suddenly, he thought of the immortal medicine Elder Liu had given him, the one that could revive the dead, and he became ecstatic, his fingers trembling fiercely as he rummaged through the Qiankun bag and took out the items inside one by one.

"Immortal medicine… Immortal medicine… I want the immortal medicine that can bring the dead back to life… Where's the immortal medicine! Where's the Immortal medicine?!"

After digging through everything, he flipped the entire Qiankun bag upside down. He was not willing to let go of even the gaps between needle and thread.

But no.

The elixir was gone, the elixir was not inside.

Or perhaps it was just a dream that he had rammed into Elder Liu and obtained some immortal medicine?

No, it was all a dream, a dream after a dream…

He collapsed, his mind was in chaos, he desperately raised his hand to rub his cheeks and eyelids, he muttered, “No, yes. I put it in there. Immortal medicine… Those with immortal medicines… Some… Yes.”

He searched frantically again, kneeling in front of Chu Wanning’s corpse. His eyes were filled with a terrifying radiance, but his voice was getting more and more choked up, more and more desperate. Finally, he started to cry.

“I put it here, I put it in here!”

He brushed away the debris in front of him with his palm. Countless jingling porcelain bottles tumbled, even shattered, and he crawled forward on his knees amid the debris, the debris digging into his flesh and knees. Ignoring it, he crawled towards the man lying in the lotus pond.

He finally lifted him out of the pool and held the cold body tightly in his arms.

— That was something he had always wanted to do in his previous life, but had never done.

The rain continued to fall and the sky brightened up, but it had nothing to do with them. He held his body and cried. He pressed his cheek against him, kissing the bridge of his nose, his eyes, and his lips.

“Shizun… Please… I beg you…”

At that moment, his figure and the orphan who had once been on the cemetery, crying and breaking down while holding his mother's rotting body, begging him to bury him with his mother, just like that.

That year, he was only five years old. A five-year-old swears never to see a loved one again, his flesh rotted and turned to mush in front of him.

In the blink of an eye, so many years had passed. At the age of thirty-two, Taxian-Jun Through the Heavens held his Shizun's corpse in his arms. Sometimes he would laugh maniacally, and at other times he would cry bitterly.

It was a body that looked exactly the same as it had in his previous life. Now that he had succeeded, he could make the dead look like strangers. The skin of the corpse even seemed to be faintly colored, as if he was sleeping.

This time, he did not beg anyone to bury him along with Chu Wanning.

The day after Chu Wanning died, he drank a whole jar of pear blossom white, and every day after that, he would fall asleep in a tomb of a living corpse called the Red Lotus Pavilion. From that day on, he had buried himself.

"Shizun, please pay attention to me…"

"Mo Ran!"

"You… pay attention to me…"

He could vaguely hear someone calling to him, a familiar voice. It was dark again, and he clung to a piece of driftwood like a drowning man, and someone offered him a hand, and he choked and clutched at the man, and said, “Don’t go, I won’t do anything bad, I won’t make you angry again.”

He caught the man’s fingers and locked his fingers together.

He could smell the faint fragrance of flowers, the fragrance of haitang.

“I have an elixir of life, but I… I don’t know why, but I can’t find it… I can’t find it, but can you please stay, please…” Ignoring everything else, he followed the warmth of the body and embraced it. “Please, I’d rather…”

“I would rather die.”

“Mo Ran! Wake up!”

However, he couldn’t wake up. The pain was even worse than the sea, and he was about to drown to death. He couldn’t wake up.

His throat was choked with sobs. He tightly embraced the person who had called out to him, and his eyelashes actually became moist. “The person who I would rather die is me, Shizun…”

“You dog! What are you trying to do! Hey!”

Suddenly, a person rushed over and grabbed him. Then, all around him was a mass of chaos. Someone poured a pool of ice-cold water between his teeth.

Mo Ran suddenly felt a chill all over his body. The water was as cold as a thousand-year ice, almost freezing his internal organs.

He suddenly opened his eyes!

“…”

The first thing that caught his eye was Jiang Xi's gloomy face. He was even holding a green jade bottle in his hand. Apparently, it was the bottle that had been given to him just now.

"I…"

As soon as he opened his mouth, he found that his throat was hoarse, and he was unable to say more.

After that, he looked around and discovered that he had returned to the Ancestral Shrine's Heavenly Palace. He was drenched in cold sweat, and the surrounding people were all looking at him with strange expressions.

He was lying on Chu Wanning's lap with his hands around his waist. The solemn and respectful clothes he was wearing were all messed up by him in his dream. The hem of his robe had slipped to his shoulders.

Mo Ran: "…"

He didn't. He didn't say anything he shouldn't have?

Chu Wanning's face was also ugly, but he was still calm. He asked, "Why is it that you run so fast by yourself?"

"Shizun, I… Just now, I…"

"You got a nightmare." Jiang Xi put away the jade bottle and stood up again, saying, "Rest for a while, I'm feeding you the Dream Breaking Cold Water. You'll feel very cold. Just wait for about a cup of tea."

Mo Ran still hadn't recovered from the terrifying layers of dreams, but his eyes were still somewhat confused. After a long time, he muttered, "The Nightmare stopped?… But I've been careful not to. I didn't notice any traces of arcane skills at all…"

Jiang Xi showed his sharp fangs and claws, "Art? What is that stupid thing?"

Everyone present: "…"

"The world is the most ruthless, the most brutal, and the most intangible. Do you think it's a magical technique?" The medical sect Leader squinted his eyes as he waved his sleeves in disdain, "You are ridiculously wrong. The most amazing thing in the world is medicine."

"In this palace, there is a type of incense called 'Nineteen Hells'. This kind of spice is colorless and tasteless, but it can make people hallucinate and experience the biggest fear in their life." At this point, Jiang Xi paused for a moment before sizing up Mo Ran, "The greater the fear, the deeper one goes. I have also saved a few people who were trapped by the Nineteen Hells Nightmare and gave them four to five drops of Dream Breaking Cold Water before waking them up — but do you know how much you drank?"

"… How much?"

Jiang Xi seemed displeased and said, "Half a bottle. Enough to save a hundred people, to bring your consciousness back. I'm curious now. Mo-zongshi, why are you so afraid at such a young age? What exactly are you afraid of?"

Ch. 220 [Mount Jiao] Walking Side By Side

Mo Ran fell silent.

If it were not for this big dream, he would not know that deep inside his heart, he was hiding such a terrifying fear. He was terrified of Chu Wanning's death.

He lowered his head, unsure if it was due to the dream-breaking cold water or some other reason.

He felt cold, shivering.

Chu Wanning stood up from the ground. There were too many eyes here. He couldn't have a closer act with Mo Ran, not to mention the fact that Mo Ran was hugging him tightly in his nightmare.

Call his name. If he had not tried his best to suppress it, he would have been crushed to the ground by Mo Ran in front of the crowd. Even though none of this had happened, Mo Ran was still extremely emotional.

He did not know how many people around him had detected the difference.

Chu Wanning slowly stood up. He had been sitting there for too long and his legs were tingling.

Xue Meng subconsciously lifted his hand, but for some reason, in the end, he did not step forward to support it. On the other hand, Shi Mei reached out his hand and said, "Shizun, please slow down."

Lowering his eyelashes, Chu Wanning did not say much and did not explain anything. He only removed the robes that were already in disarray, the white robes fluttering as they landed on Mo Ran's shoulders.

"Wear it. Give it back to me after the cold energy from the medicine has disappeared."

Mo Ran didn't dare to look at him and replied in a low voice, "Yes, Shizun."

The others were all carefully inspecting the scene in the hall, or checking to see if there were any hidden traps. Then, all of them dispersed. Xue Zhengyong asked a few questions. Seeing that his nephew was unharmed, he patted him on the shoulder and walked over to where the other heads were.

However, Xue Meng did not leave. After everyone had left, he suddenly bent down and looked around. Then, he suppressed his voice and howled angrily in a low voice, "Just what did you dream just now?"

Mo Ran: "…"

Xue Meng gritted his teeth. "I'm asking you a question."

"It's all just a dream."

"Those are all the thoughts in your mind!" The light in Xue Meng's eyes was somewhat chaotic. He was extremely anxious, "What are you thinking? Are you. Are you…"

"I dreamed I killed someone." Due to the bone-piercing cold, Mo Ran was trembling slightly, and his lips were white. "Dream on to the day I kill Shizun."

“You-!”

“There’s nothing else…”

Xue Meng’s lips quivered, as if he wanted to ask something else. However, hearing what Mo Ran said just now, it didn’t seem like he was lying. However, he said that he dreamt of killing his Shizun…

He didn’t know why Mo Ran felt such fear even though he had respected his Shizun. However, he held on tightly to Chu Wanning with that expression on his face. Was it possible for him to be a disciple? Was there something more? More. Xue Meng did not dare to continue thinking about it.

One more step and it would be a bottomless abyss.

The medicinal strength gradually dissipated, and Mo Ran slowly stood up from the ground. Xue Meng hesitated for a moment, but still supported him.

Mo Ran said, “Thank you.”

He then looked at the cultivators walking in front of him and asked, “Is there anyone else who has been captivated by the incense?”

“No more, you’re the only one. You ran too fast.” Xue Meng was still preoccupied with his own matters, but at least his mood was not as intense as it was at the beginning. “The moment we entered the hall, Jiang Xi sensed that eighteen ghosts’ incense was lit up here.”

“… Not eighteen ghosts, but nineteen.”

“It’s this thing anyway. Name doesn’t matter. He dispersed, so if we enter again, we’ll be fine.” He paused for a moment and suddenly thought of something, then said, “However, this is just a coincidence. If there was any more trouble just now, it would be troublesome.”

“What do you mean?”

“You walked so fast that you didn’t see it. While we were on our way to the Heavenly Palace, several poisonous snakes suddenly sprang out of the rattan basket carried by Nangong Liu. The venom was extremely toxic. Jiang Xi had wanted us to go first, so he decided to stay behind and extract the poison for them. He would only follow us after he was done with the venom… If that’s really the case, then all of those who arrived at the Heavenly Palace would be hit by it.” Xue Meng said, “He only has that bottle of Dream Break Cold Water, he really can’t wake up so many people.”

Feeling that something was wrong, Mo Ran asked, “Then why didn’t he stay and help everyone extract the poison?”

“He had a young disciple who said that he knew how to solve the problem. Therefore, Jiang Xi left his disciple there, and came up with us first.”

Mo Ran’s frown deepened.

Looking at the back of Guyue’ye’s group, he looked around the crowd, but didn’t find the one he was looking for.

If Jiang Xi’s disciple didn’t know how to cure the snake’s poison, then there would only be two people who would remain where they were. One was Jiang Xi, and the other was Hua Binan.

“Where’s Hua Binan?”

Xue Meng was stunned for a moment. “You suspect the Cold Scale Sacred Hand?”

“Just a question.”

“There is nothing to be suspicious about. Hua Binan has been bitten himself and is currently meditating below. However, he already has a lot of poison in his body, so he can just rest for a while.

The expression on Mo Ran’s face became even more gloomy.

The Cold Scale Sacred Hand was injured and unable to move. In that case, the only person capable of healing was Jiang Xi. It was fortunate that Jiang Xi still had a disciple who could cure the snake poison. If not for this person, Jiang Xi would still be below, trying to extract the poison from the injured cultivator.

When he ascended again, what would the scene in the ancestral hall be like? A bottle of Dream Break Cold Water, could it still save the situation?

“Xue Meng.”

“Hmm?”

“Watch out for Hua Binan”

As these words fell, he suddenly felt the ground shake, and then a dragon’s roar pierced the sky from far away, coming from outside the hall.

Some people were already frightened like a bird that had been frightened by its bow as they said, “What’s going on? What was that sound just now?”

One of the more daring cultivators said, “I’ll go take a look.”

He quickly arrived at the entrance of the hall and looked down. He also looked up at the sky before saying, “It’s fine. It should only be the occasional sound coming from this mountain. It’s the transformation of the Flood Dragon’s Evil Spirit after all.”

He started to walk back.

But at that moment, something grabbed his ankle. The cultivator looked down and saw a pale hand. For a moment, he did not react. He just stood there in a daze in the distance.

Xue Zhengyong’s eyes were sharp, but he shouted from afar, “Be careful!”

However, it was too late. A corpse flew up into the air, wrapped in a silk ribbon and tied up by a crane from the Rufeng Sect. With a single sword strike, it firmly pierced through that cultivator’s chest.

“I…” The cultivator blankly stared with wide eyes. He raised his hand and subconsciously touched the sword before spitting out a mouthful of blood and plopped to the ground, no longer moving.

The ground began to rumble and shake again. Everyone looked towards the door of the hall at the same time, only to see thick dragon tendons rising from the ground, piercing through the clouds, each dragon tendon carrying the body of a first generation disciple of the Rufeng Sect. From afar, it looked like a dense swarm of bees was gathering in the air, ready to rush into the hall and mash everyone into meat paste at any time.

Palace Master Ma covered his eyes in shock, “Oh my God, oh my God, I’m going to die! I’m going to die!”

Xue Zhengyong spat blood from being angered by Shang Jia, he slapped the back of Shang Jia's head to shut him up, then shouted to everyone: "Quickly close the doors! All of you, go fucking block the palace doors! Don't let them rush in!"

As he said this, he took the lead and faced the zombie that was swaying along with the dripping blood sword. He waved his fan and kicked it out of the hall.

However, for some reason, the door was easily pushed up from the outside, but it was as heavy as a rock from the inside. Xue Zhengyong's veins were bulging, but his strength was like a mud bull entering the ocean. Seeing the zombies getting closer and closer to the dragon tendon, Xue Zhengyong cursed, "What's going on? Didn't Nangong Changying just seal them? This shitty flood dragon was disobedient! Going against your own master!"

Mo Ran and Xue Meng also immediately rushed to Xue Zhengyong's side to help. "My great-grandfather sent four thousand porters to deliver these two spirit stones, so it's impossible for you to touch them."

Huang Xiaoyue was so angry that he was about to burst into flames. He cursed, "Your great-grandfather sure is capable!"

However, Nangong Si completely ignored him. He said to the group of people who were trying their best to fend off the zombies from the gate, "From the inside, we have to go to the end of the hall to pull the trigger. You guys can stop for a while, I'll go open the engine."

Xue Zhengyong waved his fan in the air, sending three or four zombies flying forward. Black blood immediately splashed all over the fan, falling on the words “Xue Lang is very beautiful.” However, these zombies were brave men, they rolled down the stairs, got up immediately and continued to rush forward.

Xue Zhengyong turned his head and said: “Hurry! More and more! Fuck me… What exactly is going on?”

He knew that the temple door was the last line of defense, so he decided to rush out and fight with the zombies on the long stairs. But the steps were long and narrow. He could not use his full strength, so he had to be even more careful not to step into the air and descend from the nine heavens. Because of this, fighting was extremely strenuous.

He lashed out at a row of corpses that were about to climb up, but more monsters were being lifted up from the ground by the stench of dragon tendons. In the end, he was almost trapped in the sea of corpses, unable to escape.

However, Mo Ran did not intend to immediately escape. These zombies were aware of the human nature of the situation and felt that he was the closest target. Almost all of the dead bodies were heading in his direction.

Palace Master Ma, who was shivering with fear, hid behind Jiang Xi, sighing with emotion, “Aiya, Mo-zongshi is full of righteousness and strength. How bold, how bold.”

Jiang Xi was infuriated. He turned his head and asked, “Can you use it for something other than business?”

“What I know is something that needs time to study. For example, formations, techniques, weapon assembly, etc. I’m really not good at dealing with short ranged weapons…” Palace Master Ma looked at Jiang Xi with cold eyes, choked for a while, and then tried, “How about… I’ll give you guys a toast?”

Jiang Xi: “…”

Each of the sects had their own strengths and weaknesses, and only a few people would be able to survive a bloody battle like this. The rest of them would all be sending themselves to their deaths, and even Jiang Xi would not be able to get close to them, since the powder was useless against corpses.

Xue Meng stood at the entrance of the hall with the Longcheng in his hand. His eyes were fixed on the black figure floating in the center of the crane. He saw a bloody vine rise up from the ground. Xue Meng could not hold it in any longer. He swung his sword and cut off the arm of the corpse. Then, he leaned against the back of Mo Ran and chopped off the twisting dragon tendon with his sword.

Instantly, blood splattered everywhere!

Xue Zhengyong cried out involuntarily, “Meng’er! Come back quickly!”

“I’m fine! I’ll go with him!”

It was naturally self-evident who he was referring to.

Mo Ran turned his face to the side and said to Xue Meng, “Quickly go back. I will take care of this place. If you make a second line of defense, I won’t be able to hold you —” “Shut up!” Longcheng in Xue Meng’s hands buzzed as he said snappily, “Were you first in Spiritual Mountain, or was I first in Spiritual Mountain?

Are you the Young Master of the ‘Sisheng Peak’, or am I the Young Master of the ‘Sisheng Peak’? Are you strong, or am I strong?”

“…”

Mo Ran’s chest began to heat up, and he no longer spoke. He wholeheartedly focused on fighting alongside Xue Meng, back against back, welcoming the zombies that were rising in all directions.

Just then, he heard a loud noise from both sides of the stone door as it started to slowly move towards the middle. Xue Zhengyong was overjoyed and said hurriedly, “Good, good, good. The door is about to close. The two of you, come back! Come this way!”

Mo Ran and Xue Meng combined their powers to form a shadow around the bloody red light of Longcheng. With a clang, countless corpses fell from the sky, their dragon tendons bleeding profusely.

They slowly moved closer to the door, and it began to close.

Xue Meng said, “You go in first.”

Mo Ran said, “Let’s go in together.”

“…”

“Let’s go! What are you still standing there for!”

Xue Zhengyong said anxiously: “Quickly! Come back quickly!”

Mo Ran grabbed Xue Meng’s clothes and Xue Meng said angrily, “Let go of him! Don’t try to mess with me, you —”

“Who wants to play hero with you? Gone!” As he spoke, he dragged Xue Meng with one hand and stepped on the stone steps with the other. Then, he ruthlessly threw down the hell, repelling a group of zombies that were about to charge at him.

The door was only half closed, but he wasn’t in a hurry at all. Mo Ran threw Xue Meng to Xue Zhengyong, leaned against the door of the hall, and held onto the exploding cane whip as they stood against the wind. His expression was gloomy as he slowly retreated.

Suddenly, the two closing boulders stopped.

Xue Meng said in surprise, “Why aren’t you moving?”

He turned around and saw that Nangong Si’s face was ashen white. Coming out from behind the Heavenly Palace’s pillar that had ten adult men holding onto it, he said extremely gloomily:

“The central axis of the machine has been destroyed. Halfway through it, the chain breaks and cannot be reattached.”

After Nangong Si finished speaking, he raised his hand. In the palm of his hand that was riddled with wounds, there was a half bronze lock in the middle of his hand that was shaking slightly.

Ch. 221 [Mount Jiao] Handing Over

Xue Meng almost choked on his blood, but Mo Ran didn't have the time to act cocky. When he heard these words, he turned around and returned to the group of corpses, blocking the first line of defense.

Chu Wanning had been helping Nangong Si adjust the situation. When he saw that Mo Ran was in the middle of a bitter battle, he immediately flew to the door and shouted, "Mo Ran, come back!"

"Shizun…"

Chu Wanning hacked down a golden enchantment. The light from the enchantment lit up the crowd of corpses and pushed them back several meters. Then, he threw down three enchantments on the ground, on the ground in front of the palace, and on the rock door.

"Stop right there."

Mo Ran said anxiously, "Shizun's barrier won't be able to hold out for long inside Mount Jiao! Shizun, what is there to do?!"

Chu Wanning's eyes were like blue frost and purple lightning. He gritted his teeth and pushed Mo Ran back into the hall. "Shi Mingjing!"

"Shizun, I'm here."

Chu Wanning pointed at Mo Ran and said, "Help him heal."

Shi Mei nodded: "Yes, Shizun."

"Shizun, your barrier will only last for the time it takes for an incense stick to burn here. It will consume a lot of your spiritual power, you…"

Chu Wanning stood in the sunlight without even turning his head, “Then, I’ll hold on for the time it takes for an incense stick to burn.”

Mo Ran wanted to continue speaking, but he was pulled back by the healer. Shi Mei’s slightly cold hands touched his skin and rolled up his sleeves as he started to cast magic to heal his wounds. Mo Ran looked at him and shook his head.

Chu Wanning called, “Xue Meng.”

“Yes, Shizun.”

“I can’t hold on any longer, so you go. Don’t force yourself. If you feel that your strength isn’t enough, then switch to a Sect Leader.”

Xue Zhengyong quickly said, “Alright, it’s better to come on your own.”

Chu Wanning continued to channel his spiritual energy into the third layer of the barrier, and said, “There is something else that I have to trouble the Sect Leader with.”

“Go ahead.”

Chu Wanning gritted his teeth, “Ask that group of trash hiding in the back. Apart from those who aren’t good at fighting, let them fight anyone they can against, including those from the Taxue Palace and Guyue’ye!”

“… What if they don’t come?”

Chu Wanning said, “Then we’ll just have to break the door and sit on the ground and wait for death. “See if they can make it.”

Xue Zhengyong walked over eagerly. Nangong was staring at the broken lock in his hand with a gloomy expression. He didn't know what to do. He also didn't know why the prohibition under the First Sect Leader was suddenly broken.

Logically speaking, as long as it was Nangong Changying who gave the order, no one would be able to change the Evil Dragon's Spirit anymore. Why would it suddenly become like this…

Xue Zhengyong asked those who could handle the situation to go to the front to deal with it. Ye Wangxi said, "I'll do it."

Nangong Si immediately snapped out of his daze and pulled her back. "You're a girl, how can you —"

Ye Wangxi stared at the submissive group of disciples and said coldly, "Even if there are only two people in the Rufeng Sect, we are not cowards."

The middle-aged cultivators who had mocked her before were now silent. Their gazes were diverted away from Ye Wangxi's face.

Just like that, Xue Zhengyong gathered some people and was suddenly stunned for a moment: "Hanxue? How did you. No, no, no. You're not good at this sort of thing. You can go back."

Mei Hanxue looked cold and collected today. He said, "Uncle, don't worry. I know what I'm doing. It won't be a child's play."

Xue Zhengyong looked at the Palace Lord of Taxue Palace. Seeing that the Palace Lord had no objection, he had no choice but to let Mei Hanxue join this group.

Jiang Xi said with a frown, “Just like that? Leave a few people suitable for a battle and send them to the rear hall to take a look at the situation.”

Xue Zhengyong said, “We’ll deal with them for a while and see if we can fix the machine. It’s the best idea to go with them. If we can’t fix them, we can only split them into two groups. One to block them and the other to check out the situation in the rear palace.”

Jiang Xi said, “… This was good as well. But who can fix a machine?”

At this time, Ma Yun, who had been scolded by Jiang Xi to the point that he was like a pariah, stuck his head out and weakly said, “T-this mechanical and technical work. I-I think I can still give it a try.”

Jiang Xi was both angry and amused. “Why aren’t you going?”

Ma Yun dragged Nangong Si away and stumbled over. Xue Zhengyong and his welcoming team left.

Jiang Xi turned around and surveyed his surroundings. He was lost in thought as he looked at the palace that had been split into two — Purgatory and Nine Heavens.

His gaze swept across the chessmen who were still in their original spot joking, chatting, or being tortured on the other side of the table. Finally, it landed on Nangong Liu who was squatting beside a basket of oranges with a blank expression.

He felt very strange.

Why was it that neither Nangong Liu nor the other chess pieces in the hall had gone berserk like the corpses on the outside? Why weren’t they trying to kill each other?

If Xu Shuanglin were to control these Zhenlong chess pieces in the hall and attack them as well, they would definitely be unable to make ends meet and would fall into a trap of internal and external difficulties.

Why didn't he do it?

Don't want to do it?

Or… What if he couldn't do it?

Jiang Xi was surprised, but Mo Ran wasn't surprised at all.

He could clearly sense that all the precious treasures in the palace retained the temperament, obsession, and even some memories of the puppets before they died.

Xu Shuanglin did not control these living corpses for a single reason — his spiritual energy had already reached its limit.

"Chu-zongshi, lend a hand!"

Suddenly, a soft call came from the bottom of the stone steps. Chu Wanning looked up and saw Hua Binan leading about a dozen cultivators. They were struggling to break out of the encirclement.

They were bitten by poisonous snakes and were resting on the spot. They never thought that they would encounter the second berserk corpse horde. Over 20 cultivators were instantly killed and half of them were now fighting with their blood. All of them were seriously injured. Chu Wanning immediately raised his hand and cast another layer of barrier around them, protecting them. He then cast Tianwen to repel the zombies that were fighting around them.

“Come here!”

Chu Wanning stretched out his hand towards Hua Binan.

Mo Ran suddenly became alert. He could not care less about using only half of the medicine in his body, so he stood up to stop them. “Be careful, Shizun!”

However, there was nothing unusual about Hua Binan. He held Chu Wanning’s hand with trembling hands and was dragged behind his into an even stronger protective barrier. He turned around and said, “A few people, please help me!”

One by one, the survivors were pulled back into the hall, gasping for breath. Their faces were covered in blood and they looked extremely miserable.

Jiang Xi led a group of Guyue’ye’s disciples forward, bending down in front of Hua Binan, his face showing a rare look of anxiety, “Why are your injuries so severe…”

“I’m still fine, Sect Leader should go check on the others first.” Hua Binan leaned against the pillar. His bamboo hat and veil had been cut, and his robe was stained with blood. Jiang Xi was about to check his pulse, but he raised his hand to stop him, “It’s nothing, it’s just a small wound, but it’s the little disciple of the Sect Leader… Cough cough, he, his injuries are too severe. Sect Leader, hurry up and treat him, there’s no need to worry about me…”

This group of people’s injuries were all very serious. Some of them even had their legs broken. Compared to them, Hua Binan, who could still speak properly was indeed very light.

Jiang Xi cursed in a low voice as he glanced at Hua Binan before turning around to help heal the others.

With trembling hands, Hua Binan fished out a bottle of blood medicine powder from his Qiankun bag. Just as he was about to sprinkle it all over his wounds, a hand suddenly grabbed the porcelain bottle in his hand and said, “I will help you.”

“… No need.”

Mo Ran looked at him with his dark eyes. “It’s just a powder. It’s no big deal.”

Hua Binan took the bottle and said softly: “I’m not used to being touched by others. Moreover, you are not a healing cultivator at all.”

“Then I’ll help you.”

“Shi Mei?” Mo Ran turned his head to the side and saw that Shi Mei had swiftly put down the medical pouch. When Hua Binan saw the medical pouch, he curled his lips and didn’t say anything else. He also didn’t resist.

Shi Mei unwrapped his silver needle cloth, and said in a low voice: “Senior Sacred Hand, please forgive me if I may be in the wrong.”

Hua Binan: “….”

His injuries were severe, and he was immediately forced to cast a magic curse to stop his bleeding. He had to use a spiritual needle to block it. A cold light suddenly flashed, and a sharp light flashed, and in the blink of an eye, more than ten needles fell from his eyes.

“Senior’s veil and bamboo hat…”

A trace of gloom flashed through the eyes of the Cold Scaled Saint, but he knew that there were a few acupuncture points that needed to be pricked on the face, so he said with a ruthless expression, “I will take them myself.”

The blood-drenched veil fell down, revealing the cold, scaly hand that refused to show its face.

It was an extremely weird face, the upper half of which was considered pretty, but from the bridge of the nose, the entire face was twisted and burned, like that of some kind of seastar.[168]

Hua Binan raised his head. There was hatred and ridicule in his eyes: “What? Mo-zongshi, are you still here?”

“… Sorry.”

Hua Binan sneered from behind: “I told you not to stand here long ago, you were the one who didn’t listen. At this time, you are saying that you are sorry, but I don’t know what you are thinking in your heart – you are probably thinking, ‘This Cold Scale Sacred Hand is really ugly, haha.’”

Mo Ran shook his head and left without saying anything else.

Palace Master Ma was still struggling with the broken iron lock. At the entrance of the Heavenly Palace, Chu Wanning’s spiritual power was almost depleted. He turned to Xue Meng and said, “Xue Meng, take over!”

Xue Meng immediately understood what was going on. He raised his saber and welcomed the attack. Their handover was extremely smooth and there was not even a moment for a zombie to squeeze in.

Once Chu Wanning removed the barrier, he could not help but take a step back. Seeing his pale face, Mo Ran felt extremely pained, but he couldn’t do anything in front of the crowd. He couldn't even hold Chu Wanning's hand, so he could only suppress himself and ask, "Wan N… Shizun, are you alright?"

"It's fine." Chu Wanning coughed lightly, "I just used up some spiritual energy."

However, Mo Ran knew that Chu Wanning's spirit core was fragile to begin with. To others, expending more spirit energy might not be a big deal, but to Chu Wanning…

Mo Ran closed his eyes.

In his previous life, the Shizun and disciple pair went against each other and broke up. Because Chu Wanning had exhausted his spirit energy in that battle, his spirit core was instantly destroyed and he became no different from a mortal. His body was even weaker than a mortal's.

How could there be no harm…

Mo Ran's heart was in pain. His eyes were slightly red. He silently draped the clothes Chu Wanning had given him over his shoulders. Only at this moment could he gently squeeze his shoulder through his shirt.

All his heavy love for him could only be hidden in this moment between his fingers.

He supported his to the side. He specially found a secluded place to hide and sat down with him.

Before anyone realized it, Mo Ran quietly held onto Chu Wanning's hand.

It was very cold.

It was the same feeling he had when he bent over and stepped on his chest before reaching out to pinch his chin.

Mo Ran lowered his eyes, his fingertips trembling.

Chu Wanning wanted to pull his hand away. After all, there were too many eyes here. However, he felt a slight tremble, so his fingers were intertwined with the hand that was about to be pulled away.

“Let me see.” Chu Wanning raised his other hand and asked Mo Ran to lift up his face. His face and nose were both injured, “Does it hurt?”

Mo Ran shook his head as he stared at Chu Wanning’s face. He looked at the man who was still concerned about him even though his lips were already green and white.

He felt pain.

Not a wound.

It was the heart.

He finally learned to lie like Chu Wanning and said, “No, it doesn’t hurt.”

“Why are you trembling if it doesn’t hurt?”

He did not make a sound, and was unable to make a sound, so Chu Wanning misunderstood that he was still trembling because of the pain, and a faint jade light surrounded his fingertips. His pupils suddenly contracted, and he grabbed onto Chu Wanning’s hand, which was about to touch his cheek: “Are you crazy? How can you use your spiritual power?!”

“This is nothing. It’s just a tiny healing spell to stop the pain.”

His fingertips touched his scar.

Analgesic.

However, his heart felt as though it had been cut by a knife.

Mo Ran naturally knew that this was only a small amount of spiritual power, like a drop in the ocean. Chu Wanning gave everyone almost all of his spiritual power, with only a small amount being distributed to him.

In his previous life, he had been angry at Chu Wanning because he had always been too kind to him and also because he had given himself too little to him.

But he would not have known then.

In fact, the little things that Chu Wanning had given him, even though they were very little, were all that he had left.

“Alright! It’s fixed, it’s repaired!”

Suddenly, a cultivator under Palace Master Ma rushed to the door, his cheeks were flushed red, as he shouted, “Prepare to retreat, it’s about to close soon! It’s about to close soon!”

At this time, Mei Hanxue had been used to fight the zombies, and when Xue Meng retreated, he was also injured. However, his injuries were not serious, so he had to wrap himself in gauze and tie his knot while watching Mei Hanxue retreat.

Strangely, he remembered that Mei Hanxue had a water and wood type Spiritual Core, but he didn’t know why he was able to use a fire type technique. He alone, with the broken water lying on the ground, his face was cold. He attacked with the fire-red barrier of flames, pushing back all the corpses that were trying to get close to him.

“It’s closed! Young Master Mei!”

Mei Hanxue was lying on the ground, and as he retreated step by step to the door, he suddenly realized that something was wrong. He turned his head and said, “Can you open the door a little more? This zither is too broad, I can’t enter it…”

“No need.”

Mei Hanxue coldly and succinctly interrupted Xue Meng’s words. He suddenly put away the harp in the music box, and after losing the suppression of the zither sound and the spiritual fire, a group of zombies rushed up in an instant. Xue Meng knew that he was not good at close combat, so his expression suddenly changed, and he pulled out of the Longcheng to rush out to help.

Before he could go over, he saw a flash of silver light and a silver sword appear in Mei Hanxue’s palm. As the wind blew at his hair, his sword danced in the air before retreating abruptly and throwing the sword out. Before the door closed, Mei Hanxue raised his hand and shouted, “Shuofeng, come back!”

The sword turned into a bright flash of light as it flew through the crack. Mei Hanxue caught it abruptly and brought it back to his side.

The door to the Heavenly Palace slammed shut.

A muffled sound came from the outside, it was the sound of corpses and dragon tendons smashing on the door, but it seemed like it came from very far away. The Nangong family's building of a palace wasn't easy to break through.

Everyone let out a long sigh of relief. There were a few disciples from the higher cultivation realms who had never seen the greater good. Their legs went weak as they knelt on the ground. "What the hell is going on…"

Mei Hanxue, who was behind him, heaved a sigh of relief. However, the way he heaved a sigh of relief was no different from his usual self. If it weren't for the fact that Xue Meng was watching him from the side, he probably wouldn't have noticed him slightly opening his lips and letting out a sigh of relief.

Suddenly, Mei Hanxue discovered two terrifying gazes from the side. He turned his head, "… What? Why are you looking at me?"

Xue Meng's throat was a little dry. "That sword of yours…"

Mei Hanxue cast a sidelong glance at the flowing silver sword. "Sou Feng."

Xue Meng's face was unsettled for a moment before he opened his mouth and asked: "When did you learn how to use the sword?… No, no, no. It should be you."

"Always."

Xue Meng asked in surprise, "Then why didn't you use it during the Spiritual Mountain Competition?"

"… I don't want to use it."

Xue Meng was clearly very confused and even somewhat angry. "Are you looking down on us? If you take out your godly weapon, then maybe you would have been the first… Second?”

Mei Hanxue rolled his eyes. His ice-cold eyes seemed to show some ridicule. He looked at Xue Meng for a while, whose face had turned slightly red due to anger. Then he said, “Third place is very good, first…” He pursed his lips, walked over to Xue Meng, and said a few simple words into Xue Meng’s ear.

“First place is too stupid.”

Ch. 222 [Mount Jiao] Frightening Change

Xue Meng stood in a daze for a while before he suddenly felt the strength come over him. He angrily said to Mei Hanxue, “You bastard! Who did you say was stupid?”

Xue Zhengyong pulled him back, “Meng’er!”

“This person called me stupid!”

“Alright, alright. You misheard. Hanxue clearly didn’t say anything.”

“That’s because he whispered in my ear!”

It was noisy over here while Jiang Xi was taking inventory of the injured and checking the situation. After the inspection, Jiang Xi told everyone to stay where they were for a moment to recover from their injuries and to meditate. There was no helping it, he had consumed a lot of his most powerful combat power.

It was as if the bow had not been fully drawn and the arrowhead had been sharpened. If he continued forward like this, if there were any more surprises, he would not be able to handle it.

After giving out the instructions, Jiang Xi walked over to Nangong Si, “Nangong, I have something to ask you.”

“Please speak, Sect Leader Jiang.”

Jiang Xi did not say a word. Instead, he gave Ye Wangxi a look.

“There is no need for her to leave.”

“It’s better if she does.” Jiang Xi lowered his gaze as he spoke, his gaze landing on Nangong Si’s heart. That was the location of Nangong Si’s spirit core.

After Ye Wangxi left, Jiang Xi sat down next to Nangong Si.

“What about your spirit core? You plan to hide it?”

“I still don’t know how to explain it to her.”

“Are you afraid that she will turn her back on you? Actually, you’re overthinking things. Miss Ye is not a —”

“No.” Nangong Si interrupted Jiang Xi’s words, “I am not afraid that he will despise me. I was just afraid she’d be upset.”

“…” Jiang Xi was silent for a moment, as if he had been stabbed by Nangong Si’s pride. He sneered, “You sure are confident.”

“Sect Leader Jiang is wrong. I don’t believe in myself, I just believe in her.”

Jiang Xi heard that his tone was tough and said lightly, “You’re a tiger that has fallen to the bottom of the sun, yet you still talk to me in such a manner. Aren’t you afraid that I’ll cause trouble for you in the future?”

“You won’t.”

Jiang Xi paused. “Do you believe me?”

“Along the way, I also know what kind of person Sect Leader Jiang is. That’s why I thought I said those words to you when my life ended.”

“…” Jiang Xi kept staring at Nangong until he brought up the matter. Only then did he turn his gaze away. “Now that you’re still alive, are those words still true?”

“Count them all. After I defeat Xu Shuanglin, I will explain everything to everyone.”

Jiang Xi did not continue speaking. After a long while, he finally said, “Nangong Si, it’s a pity that we can’t see the Rufeng Sect shine in your hands. Otherwise, you would be considered as a worthy opponent.”

Nangong Si’s answer was very calm, but there was a faint hint of pride in his tone, “Sect Leader, you are still wrong. I have already learned the best in the Rufeng Sect.”

It was very rare for Jiang Xi to not refute others, and it was also very rare for his not to mock and ridicule others, and it was even rarer for his to admire or approve of others. However, this time, he remained silent for a long time and did not attempt to deny what Nangong had just said. Finally, he said: “Let’s not talk about this anymore. I have something more important to ask you.”

“… I know what the Sect Leader wants to ask. The demon wolf was injured. A piece of its forehead was scratched on the fur, and blood was still seeping out. But, why did Mount Jiao suddenly lose control and go against the Great Sect Leader’s wishes? That is something that I do not know about. I also think that’s impossible.”

Jiang Xi said, “There’s no trace at all? Think about it again. Is there any secret information regarding this mountain in the Rufeng Sect?”

Nangong Si shook his head and replied, “No. From generation to generation, the Nangong Family knows that this Mount Jiao follows the orders of their family's heir, but the one who is ranked first must be the Changying Ancestor."

"There's absolutely no one else?"

"Absolutely not. The Flood Dragon's soul recognizes its first master as the Grand Sect Leader, and will never change."

Jiang Xi's eyes were unsettled, his expression even more vicious because of the deadlock. "How did Xu Shuanglin do it?"

"I don't understand either." Jiang Xi thought that he had thought of something and turned to look at him, only to discover that he was staring at a person in the distance. Following his gaze, Jiang Xi saw Nangong Liu, who was peeling an orange.

Nangong had been trying not to look at his father, who had been turned into a pawn. However, when his eyes met Nangong, his expression immediately turned extremely painful. Jiang Xi was actually around the same age as Xu Shuanglin and Xue Zhengyong, but because of the difference in mental cultivation methods, he still looked young and handsome. However, this had nothing to do with his state of mind. His state of mind was not as grand as it had been a long time ago. When he looked at Nangong Si, he was unable to bear it any longer and said, "Stop looking."

"…"

"Stop looking."

It seemed as if it took all the strength Nangong had left to tear his gaze away from his father. When he lowered his eyes, his shoulders seemed to tremble slightly. Finally, he buried his face in his palms, but he could not conceal the sobs in his voice.

He mumbled hoarsely, trying to change the topic. “I also don’t understand how Xu Shuanglin did it. That was the Demon Dragon tamed by the Grand Sect Leader…”

His shoulders shook more and more violently.

Jiang Xi had been stiff all this time, and his face had always been pale, but he had finally extended his hand and patted Nangong’s shoulder. He seemed to want to comfort Nangong Si, but he had never comforted anyone before. In the end, he only said dryly, “It doesn’t matter, everyone has their own lives. Even though you and your father have been in this situation for so long, there has still been a battle between father and son. Think about it.”

After saying that, Nangong Si ignored him. He also felt that it was dry. After all, what he said seemed to be worse than nothing.

Jiang Xi stood up, feeling a little awkward. “I’ll take a look elsewhere. You should rest for a while and continue moving forward later.”

“…”

“Right, what is that place ahead?”

Nangong said in a muffled voice, “Dragon Soul Pool.”

“For what?”

“That is the blood pool where the evil dragon’s spirit is sacrificed. The Primordial Spirit of the dragon sleeps in the pond. Every year, the people of the Rufeng Sect will worship it."

Jiang Xi frowned when he heard this. Finally, he said, "I hope nothing bad will happen over there."

Everyone rested for less than an hour in the front hall. The wounded and people who had expended too much spiritual energy were gradually recovering with the help of healing cultivators.

Jiang Xi looked left and right at the 'kindness' and 'evil' that Xu Shuanglin had made. These two extremes caused the creases between his eyebrows to tighten even more.

This sort of thing that had no battle prowess, what did Xu Shuanglin use it for? Do you look good?

Listening to Nangong Liu call him 'Your Majesty', it seemed as if Xu Shuanglin regarded him as the emperor, and these precious puppets that were split into black and white, good and evil, as his subjects?

He looked around and finally arrived in front of Nangong Liu. Nangong Liu was sitting on his bamboo basket and slowly peeling an orange.

Jiang Xi paused for a moment, and then suddenly bent down, not willing to give up, and asked him something that he had asked before. "Can you take us to His Majesty's place?"

Nangong Liu replied with the same answer as before, "His Majesty has his own matters to attend to, how can he be seen so easily?"

"…" Jiang Xi said in a displeased manner, "There's no use at all. A trash pus is a useless pustule. No matter if you're alive or have been made into a pawn, you're still a waste pus."

Nangong Liu was scolded and cowardly hugged his orange cane basket. After a while, he started crying, “Why are you so fierce? Since I’m useless, then it’s useless. I’m just a useless piece of trash anyway, so what can you do if you’re angry at me?”

His wailing and howling was so loud that it attracted the attention of the people around him.

By now, Chu Wanning had also finished meditating. He frowned and said, “This Nangong Liu is so strange.”

Mo Ran asked, “Why?”

“I can’t say. I feel that this person is Nangong Liu, but there’s something fishy about it. It doesn’t feel like he’s the Nangong Liu that I know.”

Mo Ran was staring over there. Jiang Xi was staring at Nangong Liu with an ashen face while Nangong Liu was sobbing. From time to time, he would rub his eyes with both of his hands, feeling wronged.

“…” Seeing his actions, Mo Ran felt that something was indeed amiss. It was an indescribable contrast, as if he was a child with the head of a middle-aged man, causing goosebumps to rise all over his body. Suddenly, Mo Ran froze for a moment before he muttered, “Child…”

“What?”

Mo Ran suddenly turned his head and asked, “Shizun, do you think that he looks like a child?” As he said that, he glanced at Nangong Liu for a while. Seeing that Nangong Liu was actually starting to blow his nose, he said, “… And he’s only five or six years old.”

When he said this, Chu Wanning looked again and it was true.

Although Nangong Liu still looked like he was in his forties, his every move revealed his immaturity.

Chu Wanning mumbled, “Could it be that Xu Shuanglin did something to him that caused his spiritual sense to only be kept at the age of five or six?”

Mo Ran said, “Shizun, please wait. I’ll go give it a try.”

“How are you going to try?”

Mo Ran did not reply. Under the watchful eyes of the crowd, he walked over to Nangong Liu and picked up an orange. He offered it to him and probed, “Don’t cry anymore. Eat a tangerine.”

“I won’t eat it. I’ve already eaten it. This is for His Majesty.”

Mo Ran placed the orange back into the basket and asked, “Who is Your Majesty?”

Jiang Xi asked, “What’s the use of it? I have already tried him for that.”

Sure enough, Nangong Liu said, “Your Majesty… His Majesty is his Majesty, who else could he be?”

Mo Ran was not discouraged and instead asked for a second sentence, “Alright, His Majesty is His Majesty. Since you are so loyal and sensible, His Majesty will definitely be very happy if he finds out. Oh right, I’ve been asking you about His Majesty and haven’t asked you about it yet. Little brother, what’s your name?”

Huang Xiaoyue watched impatiently from the side and was about to say something when Jiang Xi stopped him, shaking his head. He also faintly felt that something was wrong.

Nangong Liu who was holding a basket of oranges looked at Mo Ran for a while before timidly saying, “My name is Nangong Liu.”

Mo Ran smiled and rubbed Nangong Liu’s head. He calmly asked, “Let’s get to know each other. My name is Mo Ran, I’m 22 this year. What about you?”

“I, I am five years old…”

…

For a moment, there was complete silence.

Although Nangong Liu’s reply was not loud, the surrounding people were all quietly looking over. Thus, his trembling “I’m 5 years old” was like a clap of thunder as it exploded within the palace hall.

Almost everyone was stunned.

If not for the tense situation, many people would have burst into laughter. They were laughing until tears were flowing down their faces. Five years old? Five years old?

But three years ago, they had to believe that the world’s number one sect, the Sect Leader, was actually cowering beside a basket of oranges, mumbling, “I’m five years old.” These people would probably rather believe that the sow would climb the tree.

However, at this moment, Nangong Liu had clearly said those words. The group of people were stunned by what they heard. They stood there stiffly. They looked at each other, but did not know what was going on.

Jiang Xi took a step forward and asked with a stern voice, “What do you do in this palace every day?”

Nangong Liu hurriedly retreated behind Mo Ran. He tugged on Mo Ran’s sleeve and said, “Big Brother, I don’t want to talk to him. This uncle is so fierce…”

Jiang Xi: “…”

Nangong Liu was older than him, so he never would have thought that one day Nangong Liu would call him uncle.

If he was really a five-year-old child, then he would have been alright. However, the person holding him back at this moment was a man with wrinkles at the end of his eyes. The corner of Mo Ran’s mouth twitched as he coughed and comforted, “Alright, alright. You don’t need to care about him. Let me ask you, what are you doing in this palace everyday?”

Jiang Xi widened his eyes — he was already impressed by Mo Ran. It’s not bad, this kid can even tolerate this?

“Every day, I pick some oranges and wash them clean. After that, I’ll carry them on His Majesty’s back and wait for him to come out to eat.” Nangong Liu said, “Your Majesty likes eating oranges the most. He can eat an entire basket of oranges every day. At the foot of the mountain, there used to be a type of tree that only bloomed but did not bear fruit. Since His Majesty said it was boring, the trees were all replaced with orange trees.”

He chattered on for a while, but his eyes suddenly dimmed. “It’s a pity that His Majesty’s health hasn’t been very good these days. Even after picking a basket, he can only eat half of it…”

Jiang Xi grasped the crux of the matter. “Has His Majesty been ill recently?”

Nangong Liu was very vengeful. He curled his lips and puffed up his cheeks as he said, “You’re annoying. I’m not talking to you.”

Jiang Xi held himself back for a moment. Unable to hold himself back, he quickly turned his head around and used a handkerchief to cover his nose and mouth.

Huang Xiaoyue asked with concern, “What happened to Sect Leader Jiang?”

“Don’t talk to me.” Jiang Xi frowned in disgust and refused to look at the giant child, Nangong Liu, who was squatting there with a pout. “I feel a little fucking sick.”

Mo Ran asked, “How is His Majesty’s health unwell?”

“That’s right… It’s just that he’s always coughing up blood. He’s also very thin, yet he refuses to eat even though he’s so skinny. There are many places on his body that are rotten…” As Nangong Liu spoke, his tears dripped like a broken pillar. He began to mourn and cry, “I’m so worried about him. If he isn’t here anymore, what should I do? After that, no one will play with me anymore. Talk to me and feed me oranges.”

“… And he fed you oranges?”

However, from what he had seen back at the Rufeng Sect, Nangong Liu and Xu Shuanglin’s relationship was like a bloody feud. It was already a miracle that Xu Shuanglin did not continue to feed his brother the fruit.

He couldn’t even imagine it.

Jiang Xi muttered to himself, “Many parts of his body are rotten…”

Xue Zhengyong said, “It sounds like the backlash from a Zhenlong chess game.”

Mo Ran was very clear on this point. The three great forbidden arts including Zhenlong chess. If the caster’s spiritual energy was insufficient and the chess piece was forcefully manipulated too many times, the body would slowly begin to fester.

In his previous life, when he first started cultivating, he had also gotten tired of it. From his toes onwards, Mo Ran must have been discovered by Chu Wanning, so he did not dare to act rashly. Only after he invented the “Heart of Unity Formation” did he continue cultivating. Later on, when he became the Emperor of the Immortals, he had abundant spiritual energy and could control thousands of troops without the use of a Heart Array. However, he was unable to recover that dead left toe.

Mo Ran could not help but feel curious.

The zombies outside were obviously controlled by the Heart of Tranquil Water. Only the free movement of the corpses in the hall was completely controlled by Xu Shuanglin’s spiritual energy.

Since Xu Shuanglin could not support so many chess pieces, why did he need to do things that were not worth it?

It was useless to be stuck here. Jiang Xi replied, “Let’s move forward.”

After activating it, the back door of the front hall that was embedded with a Seven Star Arrays immediately let out a muffled rumbling sound. The stone door shrank into the wall, and the middle hall of the Deities Templar slowly revealed its appearance in front of everyone.

It was an hexagonal, enclosed room. The walls were cold and damp, and at the top of the sky, there was a carved, solid sculpture of a soaring dragon. Its muscles were sharp, and its eyes were staring angrily.

In the center of the hall, there was a pool of blood-red foam, steaming hot.

Nangong Si said, “This is the Dragon Soul Pool. The demon dragon’s primordial spirit is sealed in this pool of blood.”

Someone wanted to get closer to take a closer look, but Nangong Si said, “Don’t look too much, this pond is filled with evil Qi. If you keep staring at it for too long, you will lose your mind. Let’s go.”

Under Nangong’s lead, the group passed by the blood pool one by one. They entered the corridor behind the central hall. Although it was dark and there were no references, Mo Ran could still feel that they were going uphill.

After walking for about an incense stick of time, Nangong Liu stopped. In front of him was a door that was narrower than the previous ones, but filled with jewelry and decorations.

“Once this door is opened, we’ll be at the exit of the passageway after a short walk. After we leave this place, we will reach the last part of the Heavenly Palace. It is called the Soul Summoning Platform. Xu Shuanglin should be on it.”

Huang Xiaoyue suddenly asked, “How many places are there in the Heavenly Palace? The front hall, the Dragon Blood Pool, and even the Soul Summoning Terrace?”

“That’s right.”

“Is there no secret chamber?” He was momentarily anxious, and almost became a hidden treasure chamber. Thankfully, he managed to react in time. “I’m saying that Xu Shuanglin might also be in the secret chamber.”

Nangong Si gave him a meaningful glance. That gaze of his made Huang Xiaoyue feel somewhat uneasy. Finally, Nangong Si said, “Let’s go to the Soul Recruitment Platform first.”

When he opened the last door, he also needed the Nangong Family’s blood. Nangong Si smeared his blood on the Dragon Mark’s eye. The mechanism on the door began to move and spin. Then, he heard a faint sigh.

Huang Xiaoyue was frightened, “Who is talking?!”

And then he pointed at Nangong Si and said, “You little rascal, are you trying to trick me? You want me to accept your offer?”

Nangong Si said indifferently, “If Taoist Huang doesn’t trust me, then it is still too late to leave. Let’s sit in the great hall and wait.”

Of course, Huang Xiaoyue didn’t want to, but before he went in, he was careful — all this way, he discovered that all the important doorsteps required the Nangong Family’s blood to open. The legendary hidden treasure chamber must have the same result. Thus, before Huang Xiaoyue entered, he intentionally wiped his hands on the Dragon Eye and secretly dropped some of Nangong’s blood…

Suddenly, an empty voice sounded from the pitch-black passageway…

“Who are those people?”

Huang Xiaoyue was guilty of being a bandit and was so shocked that he almost jumped up in fright. The others also looked around. Nangong Si said, “That’s right. The seventh generation member of the Rufeng Clan, Nangong Si.”

“Lost and separated… Welcome… Master…”

After the voice said this, it disappeared.

“That is the name of that Demon Dragon.” Nangong Si said to Jiang Xi, “Sect Leader Jiang, please.”

Jiang Xi looked at the tunnel in front of him. About a hundred feet away, there was a white light emitting from it. Presumably, it was the Soul Summoning Platform. Jiang Xi took a few steps forward.

“I am perplexed, respectfully welcoming… Master… … People…”

“What’s wrong with this dragon?” Jiang Xi frowned. “It said the same sentence twice?”

However, Nangong Si’s expression had already changed. He immediately turned his head to look in the direction of the Soul Summoning Terrace, where light suddenly flickered. Before he could see clearly, he heard hissing sounds, followed by a flood of light.

Nangong Si’s pupils suddenly contracted as he shouted sternly, “Run!”

Ch. 223 [Mount Jiao] Getaway

How could it be Hong Bo that was madly rushing towards them? It was obviously a venomous snake that was gathering into a stream!

The narrow passage was a mess. If you push, you'll be pushed to death, and if you step in, you'll be stomped to death. Jiang Xi pushed him forward, "You go first, I'll deal with this."

As he spoke, his sleeve had already released a sparkling powder. When the snakes smelled the powder, they froze in place, not daring to move forward.

Jiang Xi shouted angrily towards the front, "Calm down, quickly retreat to the middle hall! Don't push!"

He stopped the snake tide, then quickly caught up with the group. When he retreated to the stone door, he found that Nangong was there looking at the Soaring Dragon relief, he asked Nangong, "What exactly happened?"

"The demon dragon must have been controlled. I want to go back and check on the Dragon Soul Pool."

As he was about to leave, Jiang Xi grabbed him, "What about the rest of the snakes behind us? I didn't bring much of the powder with me, so it will definitely come back when the effects of the medicine are over."

Ye Wangxi, who was standing beside him, said, "Let me do it."

She had been taught in the dark city of the Rufeng Sect since childhood, so she was more adept than anyone else at fighting on his own in the dark and narrow areas. Although Nangong didn't want her to stay, Ye Wangxi had a resolute expression on her face.

And indeed there was no better choice than her, so in the end he had to pat her on the shoulder.

"It's too dark here. I know you don't like it. Stay here for a while, I'll be right back."

Jiang Xi and Nangong Si were the last to leave the tunnel. The moment they came out, Huang Xiaoyue pounced on them. His vicious attitude was truly not the type of appearance that a white-haired old man should have.

"Nangong Si! You still dare to say that you were the one who did this?"

Nangong Si endured it for a long time, and at this moment, he finally stretched to his limit and shouted angrily, "It's me who is messing with you, you think you can still stand here? Go away, don't block the way!"

Huang Xiaoyue was shocked at first, but then pointed at his nose: "Look, look! Did you tear off the mask? Did the fox's tail show? You have always been pretending to be a grandson. Now that you have reached your territory, even your voice has sounded out. Do you think you are still the heaven-defying descendant of the Rufeng Sect? How dare you be so arrogant!"

"Huang Xiaoyue."

Other than Nangong, there was another person who had endured to the limit.

Jiang Xi couldn't stand the sand in his eyes. He gritted his teeth and said, "Don't think I don't know what you're trying to do."

Huang Xiaoyue's expression changed, but he forced himself to remain calm: "Sect Leader Jiang might not be able to understand this old man's feelings, I have a blood feud with the Rufeng Sect, I…"

"I really can't understand Taoist Huang's feelings." Jiang Xi rolled his eyes as he coldly stared at him, "I am not the least bit interested in the hidden treasure chamber of the Rufeng Sect."

His gaze was like two unsheathed knives. Huang Xiaoyue took two steps back, staring blankly at Jiang Xi. His lips opened and closed, but it was as if he couldn't say a word.

Jiang Xi said, "Nangong, go and check it out."

However, the Dragon Soul Pool was only this big, and he could see every inch of it clearly. He observed for a few rounds, but didn't find anything unusual. Nangong Si shook his head and said, "I'll go to the front hall to take a look."

The furnishings in the front palace hall were much more complicated. Furthermore, there were so many Zhenlong chess pieces. When Nangong Liu was previously left in the palace and Nangong Si entered, he was holding the basket of oranges and sleeping soundly.

He stood in front of his father for a moment, his eyes blank and empty, but his eyes red involuntarily. He didn't dare to stand there for too long. He didn't try to wake up his father, who had been turned into a chess piece. Instead, the chess pieces looked over one by one, hoping to find some clues.

He only knew that it was divided into two parts, "Extreme Pleasure" and "Purgatory". At this moment, each puppet looked over and saw the silhouettes of quite a few old friends, he saw his fourth uncle, who had always been on bad terms with Xu Shuanglin, had sunk deep into “Purgatory” and was being roasted over a fire in the rifling. He saw that the maids in Three Lives Courtyard were currently in the “Extreme Pleasure” area, capturing butterflies…

He even saw his grandfather.

But Nangong didn’t have much time to be sad, because he suddenly felt that he was about to see someone.

Then he heard it.

In that tide of murmurs, he heard it.

There was a trembling sound, as light as the sound of a mosquito.

“No need…”

Before he could look back, his eyes were already wet with tears.

He turned around. In the hazy mist, he only saw a blurry azure figure. He ran towards the figure in a panic as he shouted in a hoarse voice, “Mother! Mother!”

Tears streamed down his face, and he could see clearly.

In the world of ‘bliss’, there was a person standing there majestically. It was Nangong Si’s mother, Rong Yan. Just like Nangong Changying, this woman was extremely strong and stable, coupled with the fact that Xu Shuanglin had retained the personality of a chess piece in the main hall, even though Nangong Si was no longer the same as when he was young, but with his broken body, he was still able to recognize her after he entered his field of vision.

Trembling, Nangong stretched out his stiff finger with great difficulty. “Er…”

The clothes that Rong Yan was wearing was the exact same one that Nangong Si had seen her wearing when he last saw her. He knelt in front of her, and it was as though he had returned to that time, to that night in the Rufeng Sect. The mother went to the child’s study to look for him. Outside the window the moon was full.

He raised his head and looked at her. He had a lot of things he wanted to say, but in the end, he said with a trembling voice, “Mother… All the people in the world are praised for it, but not advised against it. All the people in the world are praised for it, but not discouraged…”

That was how time went wrong.

His stern mother stood by the window, frowning as she asked, “All the people in the world are not the same. What was the last sentence?”

The child stammered, but could not answer.

Then he left too suddenly, and when he knelt in front of his dark coffin, he still could not recite the last volume of scripture his mother had made him recite.

This sentence, “all the world’s reputation without persuasion, all the world without Ju Ju,” after more than ten years of hazel, the dust finally settled.

He knelt in front of her, still in the same posture as when they left Yue Ye. Their figures finally matched each other back then, just that at that time, they were filled with resentment, but now, they were filled with pain.

Rong Yan caressed Nangong Si's hair and face. Finally, he grabbed her bloody hands and closed his eyes, trembling.

"No problem. Mother's body is currently being controlled. She's like a piece of meat on a tree, and will lose consciousness again at any time… But you must believe. Mother, these words are all from the bottom of my heart… It was all in his mind before he left. Although he hated his uncle for his actions… But mother is also grateful to him…"

"Mother…"

"If not for him… Turn me into a chess piece, how can I meet you again… Following… I'm telling you…" She was trembling as she reached out her hand and then held on tightly to Nangong Si in her embrace.

"Before mother left, what she regretted the most was…" She was choked with sobs, she was choked with sobs, but it was not because she needed to be controlled by Xu Shuanglin again. She hugged her child so tightly, her voice trembling as she said, "What I regret the most is that I've never, never hugged you so well before. I've never held you like this before. Honest child…"

"Mother loves you too."

Nangong Si was already sobbing, "I know… I know everything, Mother, I know everything from a long time ago."

Suddenly, the earth began to shake again. Rong Yan suddenly shivered, opened her eyes, and muttered: "The lost blood contract is about to be torn apart…"

"What?"

“The blood contract of frustration is about to be torn apart! I can see it every day!” Rong Yan suddenly tensed up, “Si’er, nothing must happen to you, I have to go stop him… I am going to stop Nangong Xu…”

Nangong Si wiped away his tears and pulled her back, “Mother, what did you see here? What blood contract is about to be torn apart?”

“Listen.” For a moment, she seemed to be at a loss of what to do, but she clenched her teeth tightly, and with the help of her will, she managed to block the control of the chess piece, “Listen carefully, Nangong Xu has collected five godly weapons, and these five godly weapons drank ten thousand people’s blood. Together, they will be able to sever the link between the Demon Dragon and the Nangong Family.”

“Break the bond?!”

“Not bad, the dragon tendon was the first to be severed.”

Nangong Si was frightened, “So those zombies outside suddenly got rid of their dragon tendons and got out of control?”

“Exactly.” Rong Yan said hoarsely, “The second, is the dragon scale.”

Nangong Si suddenly recalled that those poisonous snakes he had just encountered were probably all formed from dragon scales.

“Third, is the dragon’s tail.”

Nangong Si’s face paled, “Then that vibration just now, was the draconic tail severed?!”

“That’s right. Then the dragon head, and finally the body of the dragon.” Rong Yan said, “The moment Nangong Xu succeeded in using the fifth godly weapon, he would lose control of the entire Mount Jiao. Never again… He will never acknowledge the Supreme Sect Leader as his master again…”

Her expression became pained once more. For a while, she could not say more. Xu Shuanglin seemed to have already sensed her actions, and was doing his utmost to take over her body.

Rong Yan moaned softly, her long and pale fingers pressed tightly into her head: “No… No…”

“Mother!”

“No, no, no…”

Her voice caused her to wake up abruptly. She was like a person dying of thirst receiving a sweet spring. She tightly held onto him with a somewhat helpless and fearful expression.

It was a helplessness he had never seen on her face.

He held her in his arms. In the past, he was still a child, and his mother was always cold and solemn. She rarely hugged him.

Now he could finally protect his mother.

Although it was just a reflection of the moon and the water, it was still a body that contained some of the consciousness of before death, and even the soul was no longer there.

That’s enough.

Rong Yan's stooped body trembled slightly in Nangong Si's embrace. After a long while, she raised her head again, her face was covered in the blood and tears of a Zhenlong chess piece.

She raised her hand to wipe her throat, but no matter how she did it, it was all dirty. No matter how she wiped it, the bloodstains would not be wiped away. She painfully closed her eyes.

Rong Yan said, "I can feel that he is… He has sensed me. I don't have much time left. Listen, he cut off the blood contract for… It was all for the sake of resigning the contract with the demon dragon, and at that time… Ahhh!"

Her consciousness blurred and she was unable to continue.

But Nangong Si had already understood what was going on. The last bit of color on his face also disappeared. "At that time, we will only listen to his orders. We will not be able to escape from Mount Jiao?!"

"We can't do this…"

"Absolutely not!"

Both mother and son spoke at the same time.

Nangong looked down at his mother. "What should I do?"

"Nangong Xu can't train…" A hint of coldness flashed across Rong Yan's face, "He… He couldn't suppress the treasured chess piece at all… This is why there was a backlash. This was also why I… To be able to reflect on the inner workings of his heart… I know what to do — you listen to me."

Rong Yan held onto Nangong Si's arm, her gaze swept across every inch, and in the end it landed on her husband.

Due to the shaking of the earth just now, Nangong Liu was awakened. He was holding his basket of oranges as he looked around with a confused expression on his face. He did not know what was going on.

She stared at him like a falcon staring at a snake in a cave.

“Someone has to die.” With her red lips opened and closed, Rong Yan said, “Si’er, go kill him.”

Ch. 224 [Mount Jiao] A Gentleman's Promise

"Mother?"

"The contract with the Demon Dragon can only be strengthened by the Nangong Family's blood sacrifice." Rong Yan said, "Only you…"

Or her. So, of course, he. She was already a pawn, a walking corpse… Moreover, what right did he have to live on? Her is unfaithful for a husband, unscrupulous for a father, disrespectful for a king, and unworthy of being a man. Who knew why Nangong Xu's kindness of thought had broken his curse?

Only made him a fool?!

Nangong Si froze where he was, as if he, too, had become a chess piece, rigid and immobile.

"Si'er, mother is unable to control herself and is unable to make a move. You're the only one. Only you can throw him into the Dragon Soul Pool… The only thing that remained was… A lowly life could be exchanged for everyone's safety, so count him… After death, virtue was accumulated!"

Before he could react, he suddenly heard someone from the Dragon Soul Pool shout, "What happened? Where did these beetles come from?"

Beetle…?

Immediately, miserable shrieks and the shouts of Xue Zhengyong, Jiang Xi, and the others could be heard from the hall. Rong Yan said anxiously: "As soon as possible, the blood contract for the Dragon Tail has already been broken. There are still the last two contracts. Once it's completely undone, even if you throw it into the pool of blood, it will be of no use."

Nangong Si woke up from his stupor.

"What's there to hesitate about?!" Rong Yan said, "It is he who committed heinous crimes everywhere, causing the Rufeng Sect to be in such a state today, no matter the consequences! Wake up! There's no other choice, you-!"

She suddenly lost her voice.

Immediately afterwards, her eyes rolled up slightly, and her pupils rapidly contracted. Xu Shuanglin finally seemed to be unable to bear it any longer and used the most ruthless amount of spiritual energy to hold her back.

She no longer had any consciousness of her own.

A dream-like expression appeared on her face once more. She slowly got up and walked to the side of the "Extreme Delight", returning to the inconspicuous place she was originally staying. Her eyes were empty as she muttered to herself. "Tell my aunt that the world is destroyed without a break. What is the first sentence? I… I… destroyed the whole world."

Nangong was trembling.

He knelt on the ground and trembled. He was not controlled by anything, but he felt that there was no way out.

All the world's reputation without exhortation, all the world to destroy without Ju Ju.

This was what his mother wanted him to do. It was so difficult.

It was really difficult.

When he was young, whether it was memorizing the obscure, carefree travel or the fact that he had to hit the red heart nine times out of the ten arrows, it was too difficult.

Now, he told him that he was going to use his father's blood to strengthen the blood contract on Mount Flood.

Listening to the pitiful screams coming from outside and hearing the voices, he knew how terrifying the beetles would be. He thought of Ye Wangxi, who was still fighting the snakes alone in the darkness, waiting for him to find out everything about her.

"No need…" Behind him was his mother's muttering.

He slowly unsheathed his sword and walked towards Nangong Liu.

Hate.

How could they not hate him?

He looked at this man…

How could he not hate him?

He had dug up his mother's heart, secretly colluded with the East River Hall's leader, harmed Bitan Manor's Palace Master Li, caused the Rufeng Sect to be destroyed, leaving behind a pile of mess and a notorious reputation. He and Ye Wangxi were in a panic and had nowhere to return.

He raised his sword, and snow illuminated Nangong Liu's face.

That face that was no longer young carried a serenity and calmness that only a child would have.

Nangong Liu looked at Nangong Si. Thus, Nangong Si's hands trembled and he turned his head away. He said, "Stand up."

"Who are you? Why should I get up? I want to sit here, and wait for His Majesty…"

"What His Majesty?! That's your brother!" he shouted at him, his heart pounding and his blood pumping in his veins.

"Little brother is also his Majesty." Nangong Liu was startled and curled up, "Don't be so fierce, you…… You. Why are you crying?"

Am I crying?

Nangong Si thought blankly.

I… Am I crying?

Bitter, salty tears rolled down his face, falling to the ground with his sword.

Nangong Si suddenly knelt on the ground and started wailing.

Why did this happen?

He hated him. He truly believed that he could hate to the point of forcing his father to follow him to the Dragon Soul Pool and then reforming the blood contract between Mount Jiao and Fushe.

Why couldn't he hate it? If the person in front of him caused him to become homeless and lose his family, then why wouldn't he hate him?

However…

But he really couldn’t do it.

When the sword light illuminated the man’s face, when he saw the wrinkles around the man’s eyes, he thought of —

It was actually when he was very young, he had stumbled around the Howling Moon Grass Field chasing after Naobaijin.

His legs became unstable and he finally ran and fell.

Rong Yan stood in front of him and told him who was crying, “Stand up.”

So painful.

However, it was truly painful. He struggled and tried his best, but he could not get up.

He reached out and begged his mother to give him a hug.

However, she did not extend her hand, nor did he do so.

Finally, another warm big hand lifted the little man from the ground and held him in his arms. Sunlight shone down and he saw a face.

A young, amiable, nice gentleman’s face, always kind and angry.

“Aiya, we’ll need someone to help us out occasionally.” The man stroked his silky hair, his eyes very gentle. “If they all crawled up on their own, what would I need my parents for?”

That was the earliest impression he had of his father in his memory.

In this spacious hall full of living dead, the only living person staggered, stumbled, and crawled up on his own.

He got up, but quickly fell to his knees again.

He kowtowed three times towards the direction that Rong Yan was at, then stood up again and turned to leave.

Suddenly, his sleeve was caught.

The person holding him back was Nangong Liu.

"…"

Nangong Liu fished out an orange from the basket and handed it over to him. After thinking for a moment, he peeled off another orange and placed it next to his lips.

"Don't cry, though I don't know what you're going to do. But the oranges are sweet and very tasty. I got it. Try it."

Nangong Si did not want to eat it, but that piece of orange was just beside his lips. Nangong Liu passed it to him, just like how he had fed him countless times when he was young.

The sweet and sour juice flowed down between his teeth. Nangong Si wiped his tears away and finally made up his mind to throw down his sword. He turned around and walked out of the front hall in big strides.

He came to the side of the Dragon Soul Pool, which was in a chaotic battle.

The beetle formed by the dragon's tail was too vicious. Many cultivators had already died in battle, and blood flowed like a river from the ground.

Since the bugs were too small, Chu Wanning, Jiang Xi and the other Shizuns could only protect the few people behind them. The scene was jumbled, as if it was a pot in boiling water and a wok in a wok.

No one noticed that Nangong Si had come in.

He entered the hall.

A few hours ago, he lost his spirit core and thought that he would become a mortal for the rest of his life.

At this moment, he suddenly felt that fate knew that he was a person with a high heart. Even though it wasn't thicker than him, at the very end, it wasn't weaker than him either.

The only thing he owed…

His gaze landed on the tunnel that led to the Soul Summoning Platform.

Ye Wangxi.

Nangong Si suddenly revealed a smile.

Fortunately, in the end, he didn't have the time to thank her for not leaving and for not giving up. Fortunately, he didn't have time to tell her that he had finally understood her good intentions, and that he was willing to stay with her forever.

Otherwise, if he were to implicate that young lady for no reason at all, then…

"Plop."

So what?

He did not finish his thoughts. If he continued to think about it, he probably would not have the courage to do so anymore. He did not finish his thoughts, so the boiling pool of blood engulfed him. He did not finish his thoughts, and he turned into bones, melting into ashes.

The last thing he had been able to do before he died was to untie the quiver at his waist, and throw the quiver that his mother had stitched for him along with the howling demon wolf, Neptune, to the side of the pool.

The moment when Nangong Si felt that he had disintegrated into ashes, it was as if he was conscious, but not in pain. He could clearly hear the sound of the quiver of arrows safely landing on the ground.

He thought.

He wanted to reply:

Shizun…

I'll take you.

How could I not recognize you?

Actually, I still remember that year under the flower tree, kowtowing to the ceremony of taking in a Shizun.

But you won't take me.

I also have my own pride, afraid that you do not like my bone root, so always pretended to be too young, had forgotten.

Later on you were willing to acknowledge me, but I was also afraid of implicating you.

It’s all right now.

I have a Shizun, so I gave my mother a free and unrestrained tour. Ye Wangxi and Naobaijin are both fine.

Right, I didn’t expect to be able to eat a piece of orange before I died.

It was that person… Personally peeled…

It’s the same taste as when I was a kid and I was fed oranges.

So sweet…

Nangong’s spirit was suddenly shattered. Everything had faded, and everything had become a mirage. The past and the dreams had passed.

To the blood contract.

Wherever the light touched, the dragon’s cry and sword’s roar could be heard, as if it was tearing through dry weeds. All of the dragon-tailed beetles, dragon-scaled slithering snakes, and the sinister-looking dragon tendons that were holding up the corpse tide outside all turned into ashes and turned into smithereens.

When Ye Wangxi rushed out of the cave, what she saw was Nangong Si falling into the pool at the very last moment, the pool of blood which was illuminated by the dragon’s light, and all the cultivators who were staring at the pool of blood. There were also the moaning and helpless Naobaijin at the side, and Chu Wanning who was bending over to hold Naobaijin in his arms…

Her sword clattered to the ground.

“A-Si!”

Her voice was hoarse as she tore apart the heavens!

At this moment, Ye Wangxi was covered in wounds. She staggered a few steps forward, but before she could reach the pool of blood and even shed tears, the heavy injuries and crazy emotions had finally destroyed her. The snake poison spread throughout her body. Her bones and blood were ice-cold, and her entire body was ice-cold.

“A-Si…”

Her lips were purplish, moving, choking, and tears were streaming down her face. But she couldn’t hold on any longer. She hit the cold brick hard.

It was dark, but she was still trying to crawl forward, her bloody fingers pressed against the ground.

She knew it was too late.

She had clearly seen Nangong Si jump into the Dragon Soul Pool.

It was all over.

But she couldn’t accept it. How could she accept it…? How could she be willing!

It seemed that as long as she kept climbing to the edge of the pool, she would be able to bring that person back. It seemed that if she persisted for even a moment longer, she would be able to return to his side.

He said so.

In front of the snake den, he had clearly promised —

It’s too dark in here. I know you don’t like it.

Tears rolled down her face.

She persisted, clenching her teeth and clenching her teeth until they shattered. She slowly crawled to the edge of the Dragon Soul Pool, which had already died out.

I’m here.

What about you?

Her vision was very dark and her surroundings were very cold. Could it be that another evil spirit was coming? Could it be that another poisonous snake was committing crimes? Could you act like how it was in the past? A spiritual talisman dropped down as it majestically turned its head around.

Tell me again: “Come with me, I will protect you.”

“Nangong Si… A-Si…” She sobbed and finally burst into tears. “Come back! A word from a gentleman. You have to keep your word, come back!”

However, the crying did not last long. Before she lost consciousness, the last thing she needed to do was to extend her hand and touch the walls of the Dragon Soul Pool, as if that way she could catch the clothes of the person in the pool and keep him by her side.

Everything was going to be better. Ye Wangxi could think of a way to stop the spirit core’s tyranny, and everyone no longer hated them that much… Originally… She was almost out of it.

But the darkness came again. This time, for her, perhaps there would be no more daylight.

“A-Si…”

Ye Wangxi murmured and slowly closed her eyes.

The evil spirit of the Demon Dragon was finally suppressed. Nangong Si sacrificed his flesh and blood to strengthen the ties that were on the verge of breaking down. Now that he had fused with the Dragon Blood Pool, Xu Shuanglin was no longer able to destroy it.

It’s over.

There was not a single blade of grass or tree in Mount Jiao that could be used by Xu Shuanglin. Although Nangong was not as capable as Nangong Changying, in the end, he was the one who sliced off Xu Shuanglin’s sharpest claws.

No one spoke. They could only hear the faint words of the men who had been wounded.

The light from the Dragon Blood Pool gradually dissipated. Mo Ran walked to Chu Wanning’s side. Chu Wanning’s head was lowered and his eyes were closed. His hand that was holding Naobaijin was cold. Because he was enduring, the veins beneath his skin bulged out.

“Shizun…”

Chu Wanning did not say anything. In the end, he just placed Naobaijin at Ye Wangxi’s side along with Nangong Si’s quiver.

He stood up, water vapor in his eyes, but when he looked at the path that led to the Soul Summoning Platform, the water vapor had turned into ice.

He did not say a single word as golden light flowed from Tianwen in his hand. He walked towards the pitch-black passageway.

Mo Ran followed him, and all the disciples at the Sisheng Peak followed silently.

No one asked, no one spoke.

They all knew what it meant to be in the lead, but none of them backed down. And then there was the Taxue Palace, Guyue'ye…

Before Jiang Xi walked into the tunnel, he ordered a few healing and guarding disciples and said, "You all stay here and take good care of the wounded, especially Miss Ye. If these people who have not died lose their lives again, the entire year's salary would be deducted."

"Yes, Sect Leader."

The door leading to the Soul Summoning Platform had already been opened. They arrived at the last part of the Heavenly Shrine of the Rufeng Sect after losing a large amount of troops.

They had finally arrived at the location of the Soul Summoning Worship.

The Soul Summoning Platform.

Ch. 225 [Mount Jiao] Laughs at Me for Being Insane

Chu Wanning was the first one to walk out of the aisle, which was different from the narrow one in the Yong road. When he stepped out of the last stone steps, he saw the vast open platform. He could hardly see the end of his eyes, like a pure land floating on the nine sides of the sky.

At this time, a bright moon is in the sky, the four fields of Gaotai are lonely, the grass is barren, look up, but see the bleak wind gusts, clouds and shadows, and the most central place of Gaotai is sitting a person.

Xu Shuanglin.

Afterwards, people came out one after another, but they were stunned when they saw Xu Shuanglin. Xue Zhengyong was even more shocked and said, “How… This is… What is this?”

Others took a cold breath and whispered, “Oh my God, why is this so?”

“Is he alive or dead?”

The nearer Mo Ran got, the more frigid the scene was. Xu Shuanglin sat cross-legged on the ground with his eyes closed. The right side of his body had rotted completely, and he could not see the human form at all. His body was constantly gushing with pus, blood and black water. The stench was terrible. Around him, there were five fierce spirits.

Mo Ran’s fingertips curled up involuntarily-he saw Bu’gui.

Bu’gui was on the ground, the light green glow climbed all the way from the ground, and finally converged with the light of four other weapons into the heart of Xu Shuanglin, which shone a rugged and thin face of Xu Shuanglin in a shady and shadowy twinkle.

Behind Xu Shuanglin, there was a black cloud of smoke circling and twisting, which seemed to be some kind of boundary about to coalesce and form.

Others followed in succession.

Huang Xiaoyue muttered incredibly, “This is… Is this the art of the Wu soul?”

Xue Meng didn’t know what was the art of the soul of war. He just wanted to ask his father, but when he turned his head, he saw Xue Zhengyong’s face turned pale. Obviously, he didn’t believe anyone would use this technique at all.

It’s hard to believe that someone would use it.

“What on earth is this?”

Obviously Xue Meng was not the only one who didn’t know the skill of Wu soul. A younger disciple was asking quietly as well.

Chu Wanning stared at Xu Shuanglin’s face and said, “The art of the soul of Wu is to dedicate one’s soul to the God Wu dyed with blood, make a contract with the God Wu, swear that after death, its soul will be torn up and swallowed by the weapon spirit of the God Wu, and become a sacrifice to temper the God Wu.”

“Life sacrificial weapons?” Xue Meng was astonished. “Why would he want to do this?”

“Because he’s not smart enough.” Chu Wanning said, “This is a way to rapidly and substantially enhance their own strength. He dedicated his soul to the divine force, which lent him his strength.”

While he was talking, he suddenly heard a sigh.

Almost everyone could not help stepping back. Xue Meng stepped out of his place and stared closely at Xu Shuanglin’s face.

Xu Shuanglin slowly opened his eyes. In the moonlight, he raised his face. Half of it was normal, and half of it was a foul mud.

“Master Chu… Gentlemen, you are still looking for it.”

With one hand on the ground, he staggered to his feet, and his eyes swept through the faces of vigilance, nausea and fear.

He didn’t care, but his normal eye rotated, and there was even a malicious trick and evil in it. But he swept over one time and another, and could not find someone. The malicious laughter on his face froze and disappeared.

Xu Shuanglin muttered, “What about Ye Wangxi?!”

Xue Meng said angrily, “You have the nerve to mention her name, too?”

“What did you do to her?!”

Xue Meng was even more angry: “How could you? What face do you have to miss Ye Wangxi, you heartless, heartless, flesh and blood?”

“I miss her?” This word seems to startle Xu Shuanglin. He was stunned at first, then squinted, and seemed to calm down slowly. “No, how can I miss her? It’s ridiculous…”

Jiang Xichen said, “What do you do with his nonsense? Kill him!”

Speaking of raising his right hand, the sword Xuehuang was now in the palm of his hand. He was about to cut down Xu Shuanglin. Unexpectedly, a dark shadow, like lightning, cut off his offensive.

Jiang Xi raised his eyebrows and gritted his teeth and said, “Why did Master Mo stop me?”

“I have something to ask him!” Mo Ran turned around and his eyes shone with complex light. He wiped his lips. He seemed to want to say more, but in the end he vomited out only four words, “What about your accomplices?”

Xu Shuanglin rubbed his toes slowly.

Mo Ran noticed that he was not wearing shoes today.

“They said they were my partners.” Xu Shuanglin smiled, and the smile on the other side of the face seemed very bright, with a hint of sarcasm. “Then you should know that I would never say. I Xu Shuanglin, at this point of righteousness. You heroes, gentlemen, you do not have to spend this part of the heart.”

He glanced at the weapon in Mo Ran’s hand and said, “Other interrogation methods need not be used. It’s no big deal to cut off one’s tongue. There’s always a way I can avoid to tell the truth.”

Xue Meng looked very astonished: “You… even though you are such a person, how can you not be ashamed to talk about righteousness…”

“Strange, why can’t I speak of righteousness?” Xu Shuanglin said, “Friends help each other, brothers are respectful, teachers are kind and filial, the good enjoy peace, the evil get punishment, this is what the world should look like. Do you think only you people can understand this?”

Xue Meng was shocked and stunned by his wall-thick face, pointing at him and saying, “Brothers and friends, courtesy? Teachers, kindness and filial piety?… You?”

Xu Shuanglin said slowly, “Yes, how about it?”

“Do you have a face? You are the one who mutilated your brother, and it’s you who encouraged Nangong Liu to eat Luo Fenghua’s core. You’ve done all the bad things, you actually… you can still say so confidently——This is what the world should be like?”

Faced with a series of questions from Xue Meng, Xu Shuanglin grinned, but did not deny it. Instead, he suddenly asked, “How old is this little brother this year?”

“Why do you ask?”

“Don’t tell me.” Xu Shuanglin looked up and down at him and said, “I think you are in your twenties. Twenty-year-olds, who are always full of hot blood, innocence and pride, stand in front of the world, feeling that nothing in the world is impossible for them to do.”

He paused and smiled, “What a wonderful age.”

The glory of the earth’s martial arts is flowing continuously, and continues to give him a strong spirit. He uses this spirit to maintain his manipulation of thousands of Zhenlong chess pieces and fight against the counter-phage of chess pieces. But let alone, his skin is still decaying at a visible speed with the naked eye.

Xu Shuanglin didn't seem to take it seriously. He didn't seem to see his body being swallowed up by exhaustion. He paced back and forth in front of the winding junction behind him: "Twenty years old… Do you know what I was doing when I was about your age?"

"What else can you do?" Xue Meng said indignantly, "Who doesn't know what you did? You seized the Sect Leader's ring and replaced your brother as the leader of the sect. Within two months, you killed two lords of the upper spiritual circles. Later, someone came to you to ask for a comment, and you dug out all their eyes - you are a dead pervert, unjust, deaf-blocked listener, you have done all of these! If I was to do these things at the age of twenty like you, I would rather die at the age of twelve!"

When Xue Zhengyong saw his anger, he was afraid that he might attract Xu Shuanglin's attention. He could not eat and walk around in his fingers. He whispered, "Meng'er, you shouldn't speak so much."

"No." Unexpectedly, Xu Shuanglin heard this sentence, and he waved his hand with a smile. "Then, why not say a few words more?"

When Xue Meng saw that he was still laughing, his face looked like a parrot flapping its wings on a shelf and singing. He was having fun. He couldn't help but feel his blood rising and became angry and said, "You, you are so shameless! There is no remedy for you!"

"What am I shameless about? What you said is nothing at all." Xu Shuanglin said, "You said I took the Sect Leader's ring from ancient times. My garbage brother can't do anything. With a three-inch glib tongue, he can even mix the wind and water. People who haven't actually competed with him all think he is one of the top two figures. They call us Rufeng scholars, equal in spiritual skills. Don't you think it's ridiculous?"

“Me, and him?” Xu Shuanglin patted his forehead and sneered. “Don’t be funny. I could beat him with one hand from an early age. Want me to keep pace with him? All day long, when I was working hard, he only knew to peel oranges and eat them in his wife’s arms. I practiced every day and every month whether its summer or winter. He didn’t have a single school day in spring. He was sleeping in the hot summer days! Later, I sought a true reputation at the Spiritual Mountain Competition, but behind my back, he made a discussion and enjoyed his success! What happened later? Is it fair for you to give a hard-working man the name of plagiarism and to give him the reputation of being the first handsome man in the world?”

Xue Meng hesitated for a moment, but still insisted, “Then you can’t do that either…”

“Nonsense! It’s easy to accuse others. But when it’s your turn, you will all turn into a different face. Can you tolerate things like that in the Spiritual Mountain Competition?!”

Xue Meng was stunned by his counterattack

Can he bear it?

“Hundreds of people at the competition pointed at you and said you have no shame. All the rankings and applause are his, leaving you with only one injustice that will last a lifetime. Your diligent cultivation and hard training, defeated by his silver tongue— that’s fair?”

“I…”

Seeing Xue Meng worried and speechless, Xu Shuanglin sneered: “Talk again about me killing those two leaders. Two of them, one knocking on wooden fish all day long, and the other one is magnificent and dignified.

The honest and upright gentleman is known all over the world, but they pushed me down to the abyss without facial expression for their selfish interests. Ask gentlemen, why should I spare his dog's life?"

When the people of the two factions heard him say this, their faces were blue and purple, and they wanted to refute, but they could not find any sentences of restraint and frustration. Finally, the Great master Xuanjing of Wubei Temple sighed softly and closed his eyes and said, "When is it that the grievances are repaid?"

"Yes, when did they say that they would like to get rid of their grievances, but why am I?" Xu Shuanglin said angrily word by word, but his face was still smiling, laughing lightly, even a little ridiculous, "I slapped you, and then said when the grievance was repaid, not let you fight back, would you like to, bald donkey?"

Someone was angry and said, "Nangong Xu, please clean your mouth! How can you talk to your predecessors like that?!"

"I'm your fucking predecessor, too." Xu Shuanglin said with a laugh, "My dear, let me clean your mouth."

"…"

Huang Xiaoyue twisted his way and said, "Nangong Xu…"

Before the words were finished, the other party made a stop gesture, pulled half of the sound, half of the rotten corners of his mouth: "Can you call me Xu Shuanglin? I don't like the name Nangong Xu."

Huang Xiaoyue flicked his sleeves: "Even if you wanted to ask for justice and kill those two leaders, it would have been long overdue. What's the reason for digging out so many people's eyes?"

Xu Shuanglin said happily, "I used to reason with you. But nobody listened to me."

After a pause, he laughed and said, "Later, I became a madman, but you are going to drag the madman into black and white, you honest gentlemen! Interesting." He clapped his hands and said, "It's so interesting."

Mo Ran was standing beside him. At this moment, he suddenly asked, "So, you ask for fairness yourself, right?"

"…" Xu Shuanglin's eyes moved up inch by inch and moved to Mo Ran's face.

The two of them looked at each other on a steep windy stone platform.

In the eyes of Mo Ran, Xu Shuanglin's shadow gradually blurred, and he did not seem to see the man whose limbs were rotten and lingering.

Through Xu Shuanglin, he saw another shadow, wearing a pearl corona and a black-and-gold gown. He saw the emperor Taxian-Jun and himself in his previous life.

"We met Nangong Liu on our way here. He called you Your Majesty, and you sealed up the God for yourself. You have become the emperor of this heavenly palace, holding the power of judgment," said Mo Ran. "What you say is right, is right, what you say is wrong, it's out of line. It's up to you to kill or allow to live. That's your fairness?"

Xu Shuanglin was silent for a moment, then sneered.

Mo Ran saw Taxian-Jun sneering, his pale and handsome face covered with ridicule.

“Yes, and what? As you can see, I once believed in the so-called fairness of the world, such as honest gentlemen, but what’s the result?”

He paused and paced back and forth before the battle of martial arts. His eyes flashed with excitement: “It is you who regard cowards as heroes and step on heroes under your feet. It’s you who regard hard work as dung and build latrines into altars. It is you who regard flattery as friendliness and arrogance as humility. You have done all the evil things to trample me into the mire! Then tell me that even if I suffer more crimes, even if my brother’s walls are planted, even if my clothes are uncovered and humiliated, that’s my own business, and how can I vent my resentment on innocent people? Ha, it’s a joke!!”

Mo Ran saw that Taxian-Jun’s sneer became more and more exaggerated, and gradually turned into a sneer.

“Thousands of men do not refer to you. It is not you who bears no guilt. Of course, you can say all the beautiful things in the world. And I, I am only in my own way, seeking the right way in the world.”

“… Is there a way in the world?” Mo Ran stood opposite of Taxian-Jun. He asked, “How many people have been killed for your own view of right in the world. You self-proclaimed emperor, your feet are heavy bones and blood. Have you never had a single regret?”

“What can I repent of? I killed them, but I will give them a chance to rebirth. They will all be my chess pieces. From then on, everything I do is under my control. From then on, there is a clear distinction between black and white, between good and evil, which is the fairness of the world."

Mo Ran was silent for a moment and said, "It seems that you really regard yourself as a ruler to measure the world."

"I am the ruler."

Xu Shuanglin hunts in the wind.

He is Nangong Xu in the eyes of all.

It's Taxian-Jun in the eyes of Mo Ran.

He said, "Look at the front hall, don't you think it's beautiful? Good people live and work in peace and contentment, while ugly people burn themselves in flames and cook and fry in tripod brackets. Anyone who has stabbed another person will let him lead the neck and make up for it. It's clear that every account is settled. Is there any mistake in paying blood debts and blood repayments?"

Mo Ran: "You really look up to yourself."

Then he heard Taxian-Jun reply, "Why should I look down on myself? In my opinion, this is the best karma."

No one spoke for a moment.

Most people were shocked by Xu Shuanglin's crazy remarks.

Before they came, many people thought that Xu Shuanglin did all this, probably for power, for personal hatred, and so on.

None of them thought that Xu Shuanglin thought he was doing everything right for the sake of fairness and justice.

But who can be the fairest ruler in the world? Even the descendants of the gods, Tianyin Pavilion, may not be able to do so.

Mo Ran stood where he was. After a while, his heart finally recovered some calm. He looked at the emperor who stood up against him.

The crown disappeared, and the handsome face sank and became blackened.

He blinked. The man in front of him was Xu Shuanglin, not the Emperor Taxian-Jun. Because Xu Shuanglin's actions are too similar to those of his predecessors, he had an illusion of distant dialogue with himself across time and space.

"Well, can I understand that the chess pieces in the hall, even if you lack spiritual power, should let them retain their minds before they die. You built your own kingdom in this heavenly palace. From then on, you are God or Buddha, your Majesty, you divide the world into two parts, good to good, evil to evil, that is how you want to be fair?"

He said this.

At the same time, his mind was like a snowstorm, flying through many memory fragments related to Xu Shuanglin.

In the past, in order to save Ye Wangxi, Xu Shuanglin died under his sword.

Standing in the Sansheng courtyard, laughing with bare feet, teasing the parrots.

At Jincheng Lake Xu Shuanglin asked his brother for a piece of orange as a reward.

Mount Jiao orange tree, the mind back to the pure child Nangong Liu, and Luo Fenghua, who was rotting in hell… One by one, the mountains rushed into his mind like a tsunami.

Mo Ran raised his dark eyes, which were neither ridiculous nor contemptuous, but looked at him quietly like that: “Am I right, Nangong Xu?”

“Call me Xu Shuanglin…”

“No, you’re Nangong Xu.” Mo Ran stepped forward. He looked at the man in front of him. He knew that no one in the room knew better than himself what Nangong Xu was thinking at this moment. They were all people who had been driven to extinction. The former Emperor Taxian-Jun, Xu Shuanglin of this world, were the same.

As he watched, he kept a close eye on the most subtle changes in Xu Shuanglin’s face.

He stopped and suddenly looked down.

“It’s so cold, so cold on the ground. Why don’t you wear shoes, Nangong Xu?”

The smile on Xu Shuanglin’s face suddenly froze, but he soon froze his twinkling eyes firmly as gold: “I don’t wear what I want -”

“Do you like Ye Wangxi?”

“…”

“I went to Sansheng that day. The first time I saw you, you didn’t wear shoes. It was she who later told you to put it on, and the satisfaction on your face, I’m afraid you didn’t notice it.”

Mo Ran stared at Xu Shuanglin’s face.

That’s the answer he was guessing when he was on Feihua Island, watching the fire and smoke billowing in Linyi on the other side.

“Nangong Xu, you’ve always wanted someone to notice your bare feet and someone to tell you—”

Xu Shuanglin, who had been laughing and singing, suddenly flashed a trace of fear on his face. He stepped back, wrinkled his nose, and had a fierce face: “Shut up.”

Mo Ran naturally wouldn’t shut up. He looked at Xu Shuanglin, who was only speculating about something. In Xu Shuanglin’s sudden and fierce reaction, it turned into reality.

Mo Ran to look at him, he feels that what he sees is not Xu Shuanglin, but the oneself who has nowhere to escape in the dark.

“Put your shoes on. It’s cool on the ground.”

Like a cheetah leaping up, the light and shadow gathered together to contend, Xu Shuanglin suddenly rushed up and grabbed Mo Ran’s robes in a fury. The normal hand and the stinky claw grasped him at the same time. Xu Shuanglin’s eyes were full of blood. He gritted his teeth and said, “I told you to shut up! You shut up for me!”

“Well, before I shut up, say one more word.”

“Don’t say—!” Xu Shuanglin was almost desperate. He was like a dragon pulled out of the scales and bleeding like a pour, “Don’t say…”

“Ye Wangxi really looked like Luo Fenghua.”

This light description, but in an instant emptied all the strength of Xu Shuanglin.

He stood dumb and blank.

The surrounding people who have seen Luo Fenghua and Ye Wangxi were stunned. They recall in their minds that these two completely different people have no relatives. Even in the tumultuous world, one is dead, the other is alive… But at this point, they suddenly realized - ah, that’s true.

Ye’s every move, every move, even temperament, voice and expression are the same as Luo Fenghua, Xu Shuanglin’s mentor.

Xu Shuanglin abruptly withdrew Mo Ran’s hands, twisted his fingers and claws, buried his face in his palm, and his shoulders trembled slightly.

Xue Meng muttered, “He… Is he crying?”

Cry?

No.

Xu Shuanglin buried himself in his palm. After a long time, the shaking of his shoulders became more and more obvious. A twisted and sophisticated smile leaked from his fingers: “Ha…” The smile grew like a ripple. Suddenly he put down his hands and laughed wildly. “Ha ha ha ha ha, they look alike? That’s ridiculous! Master Mo, have you seen Luo Fenghua? You also saw his corpse at the beginning of Infernal Hell. After seeing that, you think they were like? You're a little too confident."

"Since you mention hell, you mention Luo Fenghua's body. Where is he?" Mo Ran asked.

Xu Shuanglin's eyes were grim and his smile suddenly tightened. "Where is he?"

"In your kingdom, punishment for good and evil, or sinking or honoring, are under your control. But you didn't even want to kill Nangong Liu. You also solved his curse. I don't know why, but since he is here, there is no reason for Luo Fenghua to be abandoned by you. You are weak in spirit and want to devote your soul to a divine force, but Jincheng Lake Peach Blossom Springs has dealt with you several times. I know that your strength is not so weak."

Xu Shuanglin: "…"

"In addition to the use of Zhenlong chess games too much, there's another reason why you can't stand it. That's the second entrance guard technique you've been practicing so hard these years."

Mo Ran looked up, and the knife finally stabbed down: "Did your rebirth finally save Luo Fenghua from the eighteenth level purgatory?"

Xu Shuanglin's face was like plaster before his words fell. He was about to say something. Suddenly, a white smoke was rising from the black lacquer that had been circulating behind him.

Xue Zhengyong's response was the quickest: "Mo, there's something behind that!"

Ch. 226 [Mount Jiao] Will Never Be Forgotten

Everyone unsheathed their weapons. Xue Zhengyong placed Xue Meng behind him with a terrible look on his face, “Meng’er, don’t go over there. Stay behind father!”

Just now, when everyone saw the Martial Spirit Formation, they naturally did not think of breaking it, because once someone broke it, Xu Shuanglin’s spirit energy would quickly run out and he would most likely die, and they still had questions for him.

No one had expected Xu Shuanglin to be hiding a formation beneath the Martial Spirit Formation.

What kind of formation would that be?

Was it a Heavenly Rift used to escape? Furthermore, it was a ferocious blood curse that allowed one to fight to the death.

Chu Wanning raised his hand and placed a barrier between the two of them.

He did not want to see more young cultivators die before his very eyes.

“Everyone be careful, don’t advance recklessly,” Chu Wanning warned.

The sky turned dark, and the clouds converged. The moon that was originally hanging high in the sky was covered by thick clouds that looked like they were turning ink. In an instant, sand and rocks were sent flying, and dust flew everywhere in confusion.

Dressed in a pure white single robe, Xu Shuanglin stood amidst the raging winds, suddenly grinning at them. “Thank you for listening to my gossip for so long. Thank you. Everyone, the array formation has been activated.”

While he was speaking, the withered ghost claw pointed backwards. The black formation was like a dragon soaring through the clouds and surfing crazily into his palm. After this layer of formation was retracted, a curse formation flowing with colorful lights was revealed.

Xue Meng said in surprise, “What formation is this?”

“Is this a Rebirth Array?” Xue Zhengyong turned his head to ask the Master of Xuanjing, but he shook his head and said, “Although my sect has the sin of knowing the path of rebirth, we never used it in front of others, so the old monk doesn’t know about it.”

Everyone stared fixedly at the array, all of them seeming to pull their bowstrings to the extreme. They were waiting for Xu Shuanglin’s tiny movements, the air extremely quiet, with only the eerie sound of a strong wind whistling past.

They were a pot of oil that seemed calm, but was actually boiling hot.

A drop of water was all that was needed…

“It’s the Corpse Soul Formation!”

Suddenly, there was an explosive shout.

The world shook with earth-shattering rumbles and explosions.

It was the Cold Scale Sacred Hands, Hua Binan. He recognized the formation instantly and shouted, “Corpse Soul Formation! Xu Shuanglin is going to summon Luo Fenghua's Demonic Corpse and perish together with us! Fast! We must not let this formation take shape!"

Hearing the three words 'Corpse Soul Array', almost everyone was thrown into disarray. They all knew that this was a demonic technique second only to the three great forbidden techniques, and a kind of evil Medical Sect technique. As the number one master in the entire world, the Cold Scaled Sacred Hand's words were absolutely true.

Jiang Xi had been familiar with the words 'Corpse Soul Array' ever since he was young, so he reacted faster than the average person. He rushed to the front of the barrier, released the Silver Phoenix, and fiercely attacked the center with his full spiritual power!

"Clang!"

Sabers and swords clashed, flames flew everywhere, Xu Shuanglin actually managed to quickly appear in front of the Soul of the Dead barrier, pulling out his saber and blocking Jiang Xi's weapon. His eyes were cold.

"This is what I hoped for all my life. Don't even think about getting close."

Jiang Xi flew into a rage, "What you want the rest of your life is for us to fight to the death?"

Xu Shuanglin gritted his teeth and said, "Bullshit!" His hand that was holding the sword was trembling, veins popping out, and his face was flushed red.

Jiang Xi said: "You are already covered in wounds, so what can you do even if you become a Corpse Demon? You and the others will be buried with him?"

“What Corpse Devil? What funeral?! Open your eyes wide and let me see clearly, where is this…”

“Swish!”

While Jiang Xi was holding Xu Shuanglin back, an arrow filled with spiritual power shot out at an unknown speed, aiming for the barrier behind the two of them.

“Don’t —!”

Xu Shuanglin, who had always been calm and composed, let out a terrified cry for the first time tonight. “Stop!”

Almost at the same moment as he was distracted, Xu Shuanglin was struck by Jiang Xi’s falling sword. In an instant, blood spurted out, and he fell to his knees in pain, his eyes filled with madness and despair, but what he saw was not his severed flesh, but his arm covered in bones. His eyes were bloodshot, and he was looking in the direction of the Spirit Formation.

His face was still smeared with blood, his eyes bulging, his lips quivering.

Neither Nangong Xu’s nor Xu Shuanglin’s face had that kind of terrifying expression before.

He trembled as his palm maintained the posture of releasing spirit energy.

He had unleashed his full power with this attack in order to stop the cold arrow before the spirit formation.

He had succeeded.

Xu Shuanglin was gasping for breath, his arm that had been cut by Jiang Xi was continuously gushing blood, and the corner of his mouth was oozing blood. However, when he saw that arrow successfully block and shatter under his spiritual energy, his green and white lips quivered, and he actually forced out a smile.

At this time, Mo Ran heard master Ye mumble beside him, “This… This is not a Demonic Corpse Array.”

When Huang Xiaoyue heard that, he snorted and said, “Aren’t you ashamed of being so young? How can it be wrong for the Cold Scale Sacred Hand to say that it is a Demonic Corpse Formation?”

However, Shi Mei shook his head, “The Corpse Devil Formation isn’t like this.”

“I say, you, are you venomous in the eyes of the Saint Hand of the Medical Sect, or in your eyes?”

Shi Mei was about to say something, but Mo Ran stopped him.

“Shi Mei, stop wasting words with this old man. Are you sure this isn’t a Demonic Corpse Formation?”

“It’s only an image, but definitely not. The Corpse Devil Formation has the luster of fish scales. Although there is light on the array, it’s continuous, and not fragmented.”

At this time, Jiang Xi angrily shouted, “Nangong Xu, what the hell are you doing in your gourd?!”

Xu Shuanglin completely ignored him. The formation emitted a dazzling brilliance as he dragged his badly damaged body all the way to the front of the array, blood dripping onto the ground.

The smile on his face became more and more obvious. The light from the magic array illuminated his face and unexpectedly gave off a high-spirited feeling. In an instant, he looked like a young man.

He murmured, “Soon…”

He raised his hand and lightly touched the surface of the formation. His fingers descended and ripples appeared on the surface.

It was as if he was about to meet an old friend who had been separated for many years, a relative who had been separated for a long time, a sinister injury and rotten flesh that could not stop his happiness.

His eyes were bright as he muttered to himself, “Soon… Almost there, just a little bit more…”

The surrounding gales suddenly stopped. The thick clouds dispersed and a full moon appeared in the sky. Xu Shuanglin’s eyes were wide with hope. He was shaking again, but this time it was not because of fear, but rather excitement that he could not contain.

“Shizun…”

Everyone discovered that a golden light suddenly floated within the barrier, and then a translucent spirit core appeared. The barrier continuously sent light to the center of the barrier, and countless strands of light gradually took the shape of a human.

“It’s Luo Fenghua?!”

“It’s Luo Fenghua!”

Luo Fenghua, who had been dead for so many years, appeared on the spiritual altar of the Rufeng Sect just like that! Within the barrier of golden light, an orange tree with blooming white petals appeared. Luo Fenghua, who was dressed in the same robe as the Heavenly Blue Crane, was sitting under the tree with his eyes closed.

He was still a shadow, a blurry, mirror-like scene. Only the Ghost Birth Spirit Core that he obtained from the Underworld was real, and it was emitting light from that empty body.

“Falling Flower of the Pond, twittering on the strings on the shore.”

A light male voice came from the Spirit Core without surprise.

Luo Fenghua, who was under the flower tree, continued with the letter and sang a melody from Shu.

“Weak crowns are the best in years. Light hooves, fast horses, see all the flowers in the world…”

Suddenly, a hoarse voice and Luo Fenghua’s dreamy voice blended together. Xu Shuanglin was actually trying to please him. That voice was choked with sobs, which was too unpleasant to listen to. It was like a broken gong or rotten iron, but it was still as stubborn as before.

“This, this is Corpse Demon?” Xue Zhengyong was startled, “What is going on?”

Apparently, there was more than one person who shared the same doubts as him. Even Jiang Xi slightly frowned, pursed his lips, but didn’t say anything. There seemed to be traces of doubt in his eyes.

Golden light floated as Luo Fenghua slowly took form. His facial features, nose, and lips became clearer and clearer. Amidst Cen Yuan's peaceful singing, Hua Binan suddenly shouted, "Quick! Corpse Monsters are about to form!

Shi Mei kept a low profile along the way. He knew that he was very soft, so he didn't say much, but he suddenly turned his head and shouted at Hua Binan, "Senior Sheng Hand is wrong, this is not a Corpse Demon! It's…"

It was a Rebirth Formation.

Mo Ran's heart had already understood.

Yes, Shi Mei was right, this was not a Corpse Devil Formation, this was a Rebirth Array!

But with a group of people gathered together, would they believe in a nameless cultivator, or a famous Sacred Hand of the Medical Sect? As soon as Hua Binan mentioned that the Corpse Monster was about to take shape, no matter how hard Shi Mei tried to refute him, it was always more important for him to stay alive. Immediately, a dark green shadow flew past them at an extreme speed. Before Xu Shuanglin could react, the shadow had already ruthlessly thrust a dagger filled with spiritual energy towards the barrier.

"NO!"

That one strike shattered Luo Fenghua's spirit core. The golden light of the barrier flickered for a moment and then recklessly dissipated, disintegrating the barrier.

"NO! No! Shizun! Shizun!"

Xu Shuanglin suddenly got up, furiously roaring as he knocked that person down in the air. A few feet away, it was a Guyue'ye cultivator who had listened to Hua Binan's instructions in the face of danger, and suddenly vomited a large mouthful of blood — Xu Shuanglin's attack had used 100% of his strength. Even though he was at the end of his strength, that person was still beaten down by him until he couldn't stand up, curled up on the ground, and quickly lost his breath.

But it was too late.

The death of this cultivator did not change anything.

Xu Shuanglin had tried his best to take back the Luo Fenghua Ghost Body's spirit core from the 18 Hells of Flame, but it had already opened a huge hole. Xu Shuanglin crawled all the way to Luo Fenghua's side in an attempt to pull his clothes, but the human form had already begun to scatter. Luo Fenghua's clothes were placed in his hands like sand.

"Shizun… Shizun…" he said first.

Then he went crazy, his eyes flashing with a sinister, quivering light.

"Luo Fenghua! Luo Fenghua!"

It was useless.

No matter how he shouted or how he addressed himself.

Luo Fenghua's afterimages quickly dissipated. In the end, they turned into tens of thousands of dots of light, blowing into the wind…

Nothing was left.

Xu Shuanglin knelt there blankly, straight-backed and stiff.

He did not move.

Didn't cry.

No more shouting.

On the Soul Summoning Platform, a cracked spirit core lost its light in the cold wind. It fell to the ground, dim and colorless.

The magical formation that was supposed to take the form of Luo Fenghua's new body was now like tens of millions of willow leaves floating in the air, speckled with stars and floating in the air.

Xu Shuanglin knelt in the midst of a dream of dust and smoke.

After a long while, he seemed to be mumbling to himself, but he also seemed to be laughing at himself as he said, "The age of the Weak Crown is the best. Look at the ends of the world?"

What a good song.

When he was young, he had often heard Luo Fenghua sing.

His eyes were filled with memories of the past. In those floating golden catkins, he saw the first scene of his Shizun's childhood —

At that time, both he and his brother were still young, and their father had brought them to the front of the academy. At that time, it was autumn, and the academy had an old, desolate orange tree with heavy fruits growing on it. Under the tree, two men were conversing.

The other was valiant and brave.

Father led them over and said, “Quickly meet your master.”

His brother quickly bowed and said, “Disciple Nangong Liu greets Shizun.”

The man waved his hand and said, “I’m just here to ask Mr. Luo for some advice. I’m not your Shizun. Young Masters, you’ve recognized the wrong person.”

His father also smiled and led them towards the man who did not look too impressive, saying: “This is your Shizun, Immortal Elder Luo Feng.”

He raised his head and saw Luo Fenghua’s bashful smile. At that time, Luo Fenghua was already young, but once he tensed up, he became even more immature. His round eyes reflected the image of his two disciples, and his cheeks were slightly red. The old head took his hand and told him, “Immortal Elder, my two children have very different personalities, so the cultivation path they should take is also different. In the future, please take care of them and teach them accordingly.”

Luo Fenghua was holding an orange in his hand, as if he was trying his best to extract the dignity of a teacher. However, as he continuously twisted and turned the orange in his hand, his youthfulness and blush was revealed.

Nangong Liu was a kind boy and immediately called out sweetly, “Shizun Luo, Shizun Luo.”

Luo Fenghua’s face immediately turned deep red, the tips of his ears had been taken over by the color of blood, he waved his hands, “I… No, there’s no need to be so polite. It’s my first time as a teacher, and I don’t know anything at all… In the future, I hope that the two Young Masters can give me some pointers, I…”

Xu Shuanglin clearly remembered the sunlight from that day in Linyi. This Luo Fenghua, who was more like a “little brother” rather than a “Shizun,” stood under a tree covered in oranges and stood in the light of day.

The edges of his ears were thin. In the reverse light, he could see the faint cyan veins beneath his skin. The edges of his ears had been reflected into a sparkling and translucent orange color.

Thus, Xu Shuanglin said his first words to Luo Fenghua.

“Mr. Luo Fenghua, are you 20 this year?”

This was originally a taunt that even the father standing beside him could hear, but Luo Fenghua was unable to do so. He actually smiled and replied sincerely, “I’m not really, I’m seventeen this year.”

“…”

Xu Shuanglin moved his lips, wanting to say something, but in the end, he did not, so he just walked away.

His father pulled him back to a corner and said sternly, “How can you just look at your abilities when you’re young?”

“He’s not much older than us.”

“The Immortal Wang that I hired you earlier, you think he’s old?!”

“Isn’t he old?” Xu Shuanglin rolled his eyes, “97, I think he’s about to decompose into an immortal.”

“You don’t like him even if he’s seventeen or ninety-seven. What exactly do you want?”

Xu Shuanglin said lazily, “Dad, can you not look for someone twice? There’s a difference of eighty years between the two of them?”

“…” The old head became angry, but he was embarrassed by his son’s words. Gritting his teeth for a long time, he finally said, “Although his ability isn’t the best, he’s very knowledgeable and knows a lot, and his skills are all top-notch. In short, if you honestly follow him, we can exchange after a year if you’re still not satisfied!”

After talking for a while, the two of them came out from the corner. When they returned to the front of the academy, Xu Shuanglin saw that his brother and Luo Fenghua were actually having a very pleasant conversation. From the look on his face, it seemed like he had known Master Luo for more than ten years.

However, this was not too strange. After all, Nangong Liu had an ability. As long as he wanted to, he could do whatever he wanted with anyone.

On the other hand, Luo Fenghua was still a bit nervous and restrained in his actions. When he looked up and saw Xu Shuanglin, his nervousness and restraint became even more obvious.

He looked at Xu Shuanglin’s impatient face as he was pulled over to him by his father.

He hesitated for a while and used the most clumsy and childish way to please his wayward little disciple.

He handed Xu Shuanglin the tangerine that he had been holding tightly to and had not eaten.

Xu Shuanglin: “…”

“It’s very sweet. Try it.”

That seventeen year old little Shizun looked helpless, panicked, and even a little pitiful.

Only now did Xu Shuanglin notice that on the corner of his clothes, there was even a flat patch.

So poor?

To be able to obtain the positions of Master of the two Young Masters of the Rufeng Sect, it was no wonder that he was so anxious and wanted to beg for it.

“I don’t like oranges.” Xu Shuanglin said, “Since master Luo wants to stay here and not leave, then this is the first thing I want to ask Master Luo to remember.”

“Xu’er!”

As the old head was about to reprimand him, Luo Fenghua waved his hand and quickly put away Tangerine. He said, “It’s alright, Sect Leader, you don’t have to worry about it.”

“Ai, this child is rude and doesn’t know how to respect his teacher, causing the immortal elder to feel wronged.”

“It doesn’t matter.” His gaze was warm and friendly, and it was also a bit cautious. “Actually, it doesn’t matter whether I take you in as my disciple or not, as long as you follow me and learn from me, you don’t have to acknowledge me as your Shizun.”

The old head quickly said, “How can that be…”

“Their reputations are all empty.” Luo Fenghua’s cheeks turned red as he scratched his head uneasily, “Actually, I feel that I’m too young…” He turned his head and said to Xu Shuanglin, “If little gongzi cares, you can call me by my name from now on.”

Xu Shuanglin quietly watched him for a while, then suddenly sneered. Just as Luo Fenghua, this poor honest man, was confused by his actions and grew more and more embarrassed, he tidied up his clothes, gave him a proper bow, and then raised his head.

The tangerine tree was fragrant and the light and shadow were moving.

Xu Shuanglin smiled, his eyebrows raised high and domineering, the corners of his mouth slightly arrogant and evil, but in the end, he was still young at the time. When he smiled, it naturally carried with it a hint of peach like tenderness.

That was true. Their reputations were all empty.

So why should he care so much about what he called the other party?

Thus, Xu Shuanglin lazily called out to him in a slow and unhurried manner, “Shizun.”

The orange leaves rustled, and the ground was mottled with leaves.

The wind was blowing.

‘Forget it. I just barely managed to find a Shizun. In less than a year, I’ll have to look for another one,’ he thought.

Back then, Xu Shuanglin had truly believed that everything had been as it had been, as if nothing had happened, and this day was just one of the most ordinary days of his life.

Ch. 227 [Mount Jiao] Old Words

In the blink of an eye, two years passed.

Two years later, on an autumn day, Xu Shuanglin was lying on the roof of the Rufeng Gate's main hall, squinting at the red clouds all over the sky, a dogtail grass in his mouth.

Very few people would go up to the top of the hall. Originally, he was alone, but now there were two people sitting on his left and right sides.

One was his older brother Nangong Liu. The other was Master Luo, who was about the same age as them.

Xu Shuanglin felt that he sometimes seemed like some grimacing beast that would not easily allow others to invade his territory, so he didn't know why, and he didn't know when, but he was willing to bring these two people up to the roof to stare blankly with him.

Looking at the clouds, look at the dragonflies flying low, catkins floating high.

"Liu'er! Xu'er! Where are you?" came his father's anxious, slightly angry voice from below.

"Seriously, every time I get them to help clean the courtyard, they run faster than a rabbit. These two brats."

"Aiya." Nangong Liu quietly stuck his head out from the corner of the eaves and looked at his father who was walking away hastily. He then turned his head back and said, "Haha, let's go."

“The old man is stupid too.” Xu Shuanglin lazily crossed his legs, looking down at them disdainfully. “I knew he’d never come up to the roof to look for us.”

On the other hand, Luo Fenghua was a bit worried: “Isn’t it bad that we’re doing this… Ai, how about you all go down in a moment. Don’t make the Sect Leader anxious.”

“What does it matter? Anyway, the sky is falling and we’re holding it up.” Nangong Liu made a face at him, “What are you worried about? A-Xu, tell me, right?”

Xu Shuanglin was neither right nor wrong. He spat out the dogtail grass in his mouth, stretched, and sat up straight. “Give me some seeds.”

Nangong Liu had poured more than half of the melon seeds that he had brought along into his hands. Xu Shuanglin slowly knocked on the melon seeds while squinting his eyes. He looked at Luo Fenghua with a funny expression of unease.

He spat out a piece of melon seeds that stuck to his lips and smiled. “Shizun is afraid?”

“I just don’t think that’s good…”

“What’s not good about it?” Xu Shuanglin said, “If the old man blames you, I’ll give him a hard time.”

Luo Fenghua: “…”

Xu Shuanglin extended his hand towards Luo Fenghua. “Give me one tangerine.”

“Didn’t you say that you don’t like to eat…”

Xu Shuanglin furrowed his brows. “You’re just being long-winded, are you going to give it or not? If I don’t grab your ankle, I’ll throw you down.”

His brother came to defend his teacher. “A-Xu, don’t always be so fierce when talking to Shizun.”

“Shizun, what are you talking about? You are always asking others to listen to you.” Xu Shuanglin said, “How could there be a Shizun who would sneakily go up to the roof with his disciple to knock on a melon seed?”

Luo Fenghua was embarrassed by what he said and he slowly lowered his head.

Xu Shuanglin loved to see him like this. Every time he saw him, he felt like a bully bullying the weak. He looked at Luo Fenghua for a while, before suddenly opening his mouth and exposing his white teeth.

“Big Brother Shizun, is what I said right?”

Shizun and older brother were nicknames that Xu Shuanglin had come up with all of a sudden. They were respectful but intimate, and there was also a hint of teasing hidden within their intimacy. Thus, Luo Fenghua appeared very anxious and also very sad: “No, don’t call me that.”

“Salutation is just a formality. Shizun, Big Brother said so himself.”

Luo Fenghua: “…”

After teasing him, Xu Shuanglin stretched out his hand again, begging for more, “Tangerine.”

“You don’t like it. I only brought one for Liu.”

Xu Shuanglin opened his eyes wide, but he was not glaring at Luo Fenghua. Instead, he was glaring at his brother.

Nangong Liu was stuffing pastries into his mouth when he suddenly choked. He vaguely waved his hand and said, “Erm, I don’t really want to eat oranges today. Shizun, please give it to him.”

Luo Fenghua thought for a moment and said, “You guys can split it in half.”

He wiped the orange on his sleeve and peeled it off, trying to break it in half fairly, but it was still big on one side and small on the other.

Thus, Luo Fenghua appeared to be troubled.

It was probably because of his poor background that he was always troubled by such trivial matters.

“Sigh…”

“Give me the big one.” Xu Shuanglin was not courteous at all. He took the tangerine and made a decision for Luo Fenghua, who was trying to make things even, “I’ll give it to him.”

Luo Fenghua said, “Don’t always bully your brother…”

Before he could finish his sentence, he was stuffed with a fresh orange juice. He widened his round eyes in astonishment, blankly staring at Xu Shuanglin.

“What are you talking about?” Xu Shuanglin laughed. His attitude was carefree, but his eyes were very gentle. “This part of me… I’m going to split with Shizun and Big Brother again.”

Nangong Liu also came over and took the other half of the tangerine. After counting the number of petals, he gave a few pieces to Xu Shuanglin and Luo Fenghua.

The later sect leader of the Rufeng Sect chuckled. Under the sunset, his fine, soft hair was like lint, slightly falling in front of his forehead. Xu Shuanglin looked at him with amusement. “What are you doing?”

“We’ll have oranges to eat together.”

He divided the melon seeds, the pastries, and the dried fruits into three piles.

“Let’s have some snacks and try it together.”

“You all… You all are really…” However, regardless of whether it might be Xu Shuanglin or Nangong Liu, they seemed to not be affected by his words at all. Instead, they were looking at him with a kind and mischievous gaze.

Luo Fenghua felt happy and ridiculous under this kind of friendly gaze. After a long while, he muttered: “What a mess…”

Nangong Liu said, “If they are not messing around, then it is the three of them that are messing around.”

When Xu Shuanglin heard this, he finally burst out into laughter. With one hand on the roof and the other on his forehead, he smiled and said, “Okay, then the three of us will have oranges to eat together in the future. If there’s any snacks, then we’ll have some.”

He paused for a moment, looking at the magnificent scenery of the Rufeng Sect house, then grinned, “if there’s a roof, let’s climb together.”

The scene flashed by.

It was still that year, the Lantern Festival.

Xu Shuanglin was walking lazily along the main road of the Rufeng Sect, barefooted and holding a branch in his mouth. From time to time, he would point at the lantern and say, “Hang it a little higher and say ‘you’. What are you hanging it so low for? Someone else with a short leg will go up.”

An anxious voice suddenly came from behind: “A-Xu, wait a moment.”

Xu Shuanglin turned around and saw Luo Fenghua bringing a pair of shoes over. With a frown, he asked, “Why are you running around without wearing shoes again?”

“This road is filled with Qi Refining Stones. You don’t have to wear shoes to absorb spiritual power.”

“The sky is so cold, so what’s with this little spiritual energy? Put it on quickly. Look at you, your toes are red from the cold.”

“Tsk, you’re so annoying.”

However, even though he said that, Xu Shuanglin still slowly put on his shoes. He didn’t wear any rules, so he casually stepped on them. With his eyes closed, he asked Luo Fenghua: “What, are you free? Do you want to come with me to the lantern market?”

“A-Liu’s class hasn’t been completed yet, I have to finish his lesson before I…”

As his voice fell, he was interrupted by Xu Shuanglin.

He raised his chin with a haughty look in his eyes, “If you want to keep an eye on my brother, that idiot, writing for him, then you’ll have to waste the entire Lantern Festival. Don’t overdo it.”

Luo Fenghua had a good temper as he laughed, “But it’s just that, I don’t really like the liveliness either.”

Xu Shuanglin stared at him for a while, before suddenly kicking off his shoes in anger, sending them flying far away. Luo Fenghua asked in astonishment, “What’s wrong with you?”

“I won’t wear it, I won’t wear it!” He exclaimed. “Fuck off.”

“Wear shoes, it’s cold.”

“I won’t wear it! Scram!”

“… Are you angry?”

Xu Shuanglin’s face was filled with disgust. “I’m angry? What’s there to be angry about? You and my brother, you two are idiots and poor people. Go. Don’t pay any attention to me.”

With that, he waved his hand and casually walked forward.

At that time, he actually hoped that Luo Fenghua would catch up.

Even if his feet were red from the cold, he didn’t care.

He just wanted to kick off both their shoes and wait for someone to call him from behind. He was anxious to get mad and tell him that he was going to catch a cold.

Xu Shuanglin walked forward expectantly.

However, after waiting for a while, Luo Fenghua did not catch up, nor did he call out to him.

He paused, then slowed down.

After walking for a hundred meters, he would reach the city gate, but no one called out to him. He pinched his knuckles and thought to himself, whatever, since I've never had any playmates since I was young, how many years has it been since I've last seen the lanterns on my own? It's not that big of a deal.

He stepped down the steps.

One level.

Two levels.

Finally, he quickly turned his head around, wrinkled his nose, changed his appearance, and couldn't help but shout: "Luo Fenghua!"

Actually, Luo Fenghua hadn't left yet. He stood at his original spot and had already retrieved his shoes. He was currently in a dilemma and didn't know what to do. At this moment, hearing Xu Shuanglin's explosive shout, it was like a blow to the head. Suddenly, he regained his senses and opened his round eyes wide, saying in a daze, "Ah…"

"…"

Forget it.

I really admire him.

Therefore, on that year's Lantern Festival, he and Xu Shuanglin accompanied Nangong Liu.

Nangong Liu was distressed to the extreme as he clashed against the magic scroll to the death. He rolled his eyes and recited, "The bottom of the heart is an inch and a half, for the Great Ravine Acupuncture Point, for the Curtain of the Heart. What did you do that for? I don't remember."

"Stupid! Just forget it!"

Xu Shuanglin used the bamboo slip to knock on his brother's head, his face full of hostility. "In the lower half, I'll wake up with my fist. If I don't heal after I wake up, I'll die a hundred days later. The water acupoint on the navel belongs to the small intestine and stomach, and dies on the 28th day of a severe injury. The ninth time! How come you're not dead stupid?!"

Nangong Liu was clearly very depressed. He laid his head on the table and let out a long sigh. However, he opened his eyes and blew out a strand of his soft hair that had fallen in front of his forehead.

"I also feel that I'm very stupid… If only I were as smart as you."

"Impossible." Xu Shuanglin said resolutely, "Keep dreaming."

With a flip of the warm curtain, Luo Fenghua who had just gone out to cook on the Lantern Festival returned.

He was wearing a thick cloak, and his dark hair and eyes were covered with a fine layer of snow. Under the light of the fire, his ordinary face gave off a pleasant feeling.

It was just like welcoming the spring, when the snow fell, it would be beautiful.

“I’ve been carrying it for a long time, let’s eat some of it. Let’s rest for a while.”

Luo Fenghua brought the wooden tray over. There were three bowls of supper and a bowl for each of them.

Nangong Liu cheered and immediately rushed to the front of the table. Just as he was about to extend his hand, he was stopped by someone behind her.

Xu Shuanglin’s face was gloomy. “What’s the rush? There’s no need to be so reckless, thank you!”

Nangong Liu was flabbergasted. It was as if he was surprised that his younger brother, who did not follow any rules, would talk back to him like this.

“What?”

Seeing that his brother’s eyes were squinted in danger, Nangong Liu quickly waved his hand. He brushed his sleeves and made a big bow. He raised his head and jokingly said, “Little servant thanks Shizun for the gift ~”

Luo Fenghua: “…”

Xu Shuanglin saw this fellow’s mischievousness and felt that it was both good and funny. He knew that this person had probably learned it from some sort of book, so he said, “Alright, let’s eat some snacks.”

Luo Fenghua rubbed his hands that were a little stiff and red, then put them to his mouth. Xu Shuanglin helped him take off his cloak, and he was a little flattered: “Ah, no need to trouble yourself.”

Xu Shuanglin was too lazy to pay him any attention. He indifferently asked, “It’s snowing outside?”

“Yes, I just got off. I don’t know if I can pile it up tonight, but we can have a snowball fight the next day.”

“… Shizun.” The sudden greeting was not out of respect, but out of ridicule. “How old are you already?”

Xu Shuanglin couldn’t help but feel warmth in his heart, but when he felt this gentleness, he felt infuriated for no reason. He hurriedly searched for a reason to vent his anger, and sure enough, Luo Fenghua did not disappoint him. He quickly found one, which was why he pointed at a patch on his cloak and said:

“Are you poor? You had been in the Rufeng Sect for so long, why didn’t you throw this piece of trash away? What if people outside think we’re bullying you, are you stupid!?”

Luo Fenghua immediately became apprehensive: “This, even if it’s broken, I can still wear it after making up for it. Thinking about how there are still so many people suffering in the lower cultivation world, I can’t eat well, ah…”

“…” Xu Shuanglin’s finger was still on the bandage, glaring at him angrily.

Luo Fenghua cautiously sought the approval of his disciple, “Don’t you think so?”

“I think you’re sick! Poor sick!”

But even so, he hung the cloak back on the rack.

The three of them surrounded the stove and ate the Soup Dumplings.

Although he couldn’t see the lanterns, the three youngsters who were about the same age as him could chat for a while and not feel bored at all.

It was snowing outside the window, and the frost that covered the edge of the red window frame was crystal clear.

Inside the house, the firewood crackled and reflected the room as if it were spring.

Afterwards, after drinking a bit, the atmosphere became even better. Luo Fenghua was unable to refuse them, so he accepted the shimmer from Nangong Liu. His face was red and slightly drunk. He fiddled with it a couple of times and sang a song to his hometown.

“Falling Flower in the pool is about 3 or 4 points, the chords on the shore are about 1 or 2 chimes, the Weak Crown is about the best. Light hooves, fast horses, all the flowers in the world…”

“Shizun, this sounds good. What’s its name?”

“Young You.” Luo Fenghua said gently, “It’s a short song from Shu. I think it’s very suitable for the occasion.”

Nangong Liu raised his head and laughed. His smile was always overly friendly and always had a hint of flattery, but after drinking too much, it turned out to be straightforward and hearty. “Hahaha, a young man’s travels are nice.”

Xu Shuanglin gave a cold humph and folded his arms. “You can’t recite a book even after you’ve recited it nine times. Which young man would be as stupid as you?”

“Aiya, each person has their own strengths and weaknesses.” Nangong Liu smiled. He actually refuted his younger brother with energy, “Although you are a heaven warping talent, I might have my own natural endowments.”

“… You drank too much.”

Luo Fenghua also smiled. He raised his wine cup and said, “I hope that all of you will live a weak life. Each of you will depend on your own director to be a gentleman for your entire life.”

When he pushed him away, Nangong Liu did not seem to mind. He laughed loudly and said, “When Shizun said this, I suddenly remembered that even though we did not put out the lanterns, we still had to make a wish. Let’s all make one wish.”

Xu Shuanglin pursed his lips. “I think making a wish is rather disgusting.”

Luo Fenghua said, “Write it on paper. After you finish writing it, throw it into the fire and it will come true.”

In the end, they still wrote down their wishes. Of course, there was no need to explain what Luo Fenghua was talking about. He had already mentioned it when he was toasting earlier.

Nangong Liu had a problem with reading and liked to read while writing, “Weng… Eat well, drink well, have good prospects, be harmonious, and reunite.”

Xu Shuanglin was extremely disgusted, but within the disgust was a subtle emotion that could not be described with words.

He was a bastard, and no one in the family paid much attention to him.

It was only after Luo Fenghua arrived that he had a companion. He, Nangong Liu and his Shizun would often play together and cultivate together.

Rather than saying that Luo Fenghua was his Shizun, he would say that he was his first best friend.

With Luo Fenghua around, he was no longer jealous of his brother for being so useless, but instead paid attention to his identity as Luo Fenghua's disciple. As they spent their days together, they were able to see how cute Nangong Liu was.

"What did A-Xu write?"

Xu Shuanglin did not answer, throwing his folded paper into the fire.

His heart's desire was quickly swallowed up by the light and the heat, and the flames that splashed out reflected his eyes.

"Nothing, white paper."

Luo Fenghua and Nangong Liu were greatly disappointed and revealed expressions of disappointment.

Xu Shuanglin then revealed his teeth and laughed. His smile was also a little sweet, carrying a sort of pride that came from teasing people.

I lied to you.

The writing on the paper was neat, straight, and careful. It said —

I hope that Luo Fenghua, Nangong Xu, and Nangong Liu can be friends for life. They can eat oranges together, share pastries together, and climb on the roof together.

From a weak crown to white hair at the temples.

Ch. 228 [Mount Jiao] An Empty Space

On the spiritual platform of the Rufeng Sect, Xu Shuanglin gazed at the specks of golden light floating in the night sky. Suddenly, he felt very much like that snowy night when he had thrown a piece of paper into the furnace.

In an instant, it was burnt to ashes, and only a few sparks remained.

Luo Fenghua, Nangong Xu, and Nangong Liu.

Being able to be close friends for life.

However, there was no Nangong Xu in the world. Xu Shuanglin was now standing here, a madman or a demon who had crawled out of the depths of hell to seek the lives of all the righteous and proper people in the world.

There was no more Nangong Xu.

He was just like his name, adrift and helpless, floating in the vast world.

After the passage of time, the mountain range had been torn apart.

What's more, it was just a tiny willow leaf.

After so many years had passed, the willow tree was old, the Feng Hua withered, and they drifted about. What they saw was not the Heaven's End Flower, but the blood that filled the mountains and covered the lands, filling the sky with hatred.

However, why did he still give up everything that Luo Fenghua taught him that year to Ye Wangxi? Why did he feel pity and not be vicious when he saw a true man of kindness?

Why…

Why are you crying?

Xu Shuanglin knelt on the Soul Summoning Platform and finally broke out into a loud wail, his tears flowing down his ugly face.

His twisted face kept on falling, he rubbed the spirit core that was in Luo Fenghua's hand, finally crying until his heart was broken, as if every inch of sound was dug out from his throat and blood.

"Shizun… Luo Fenghua…"

He did all the calculations he could think of. He was filled with madness and hatred, distortion and longing.

Was it destroyed just like that?

When he thought of the Spiritual Mountain Competition, he was filled with resentment. When his father told him that Nangong Liu was his son, he felt indignant and took the throne out of anger.

—

He remembered the old, pale face of his father, staring at him in disbelief.

"This Sect Leader position is mine." His hand was placed on his father's throat, slowly closing, his expression was cold and ruthless, a light flashed in his eyes, "Rufeng Sect's hundred years of foundation, if father does not want to ruin it, then I will take it. You are old enough to rest."

"Xu'er…"

He closed his eyes and did not allow his father to continue speaking. The meridians in his hands bulged, and he could only hear a “kacha” sound. It was the sound of his throat breaking.

He took the ring of Rufeng Sect Leader and pressed it to his lips.

The thumb ring was cold, but so was his face.

“I just want justice. If you don’t give it to me, I’ll take it for myself. Father, you don’t have to hate me in the underworld.”

He turned around and walked out.

The scenes in his memories changed.

That was the first night after he usurped power. His servants cleaned up the bloodstains on the ground after the great battle, his father was dead, Nangong Liu and his family were imprisoned, and all those who tried to resist him were suppressed. Everything was set, and he did not know what to do.

He built a stove in the yard and drank his own tea. He was the only one in the courtyard. He rubbed the Sect Leader’s ring that was shining brightly on his thumb.

From then on, he was the Sect Leader of the Rufeng Sect.

There was no need to talk about the outsiders who had plotted against him at the Spiritual Mountain Competition. They would all be chopped to pieces if they found a chance, but he did not know how to deal with his big brother, much less Luo Fenghua.

As the twilight deepened, the golden crows began to sink.

Seeing that the sky was darkening, Xu Shuanglin finally made up his mind. He went to the water prison to meet his brother and his Shizun who were in custody.

He brought a few followers with him and walked halfway through the journey. The last bit of sunlight was swallowed up by the night sky as he shivered. Suddenly, he felt a little cold, and his head felt a little dizzy.

“Sect Leader, what’s wrong?”

Xu Shuanglin waved his servant away and said, “It’s fine. I suddenly remember that I haven’t dealt with one thing properly. I’ll go back to the main hall first. You guys don’t have to follow me.”

Suppressing the increasingly obvious pain, he put on the hood of his cloak and strode towards the main hall of the Rufeng Sect. In the end, he truly could not hold on any longer. Even if he could endure no more, he still could not resist running a bit further. He fiercely pushed open the door and entered, and then tightly shut the door.

“Sect Leader?”

“All of you, stand guard at the door. You are not allowed to enter, and you are not allowed to act rashly. If anything happens, inform me at any time.”

With these orders given by the guards, Xu Shuanglin staggered into the depths of the hall, panting. He suddenly took off his hood, and when he lowered his head to look, he discovered that his flesh was already completely chapped and his eyes were full of sinister scars.

His first reaction was that his father had cursed him.

Then, he felt that it was impossible. The old man was already very ill and didn't even have the strength to cast spells. How could he do such a thing without anyone noticing?

What was that all about?

The pain was excruciating. His muscles were broken, his skin was hideous, and he continued to spasm and tremble by the window. His knuckles were pale and twisted, and he was lying on the ground, scratching out streaks of red.

It was too painful…

He did not dare to call out nor call for a medical officer. As the leader of the rebel army, how could he expose half of his weakness?

He kept gasping in the hall, rolling and twitching in pain. As he kicked, he accidentally pulled down a curtain and landed on his body due to the intense pain.

The moonlight outside the window was obscured.

He felt the pain suddenly slow, and he was cold with sweat. He huddled under the curtain, gasping for breath, and after a while, thinking the pain was over, he pulled the curtain back down and sat up, trying to get up.

Who would have thought that under the moonlight, the skin would be ripped open again, and the pain would pierce through the bones and tendons.

Only now did Xu Shuanglin suddenly realize that it might be due to the moonlight shining on him. Therefore, he staggered to his feet, struggled to close the window tightly, and hid in the darkest part of the hall, unable to see his fingers in front of him.

His breathing gradually calmed down.

The pain was gone, and the bleeding flesh was healing at a speed visible to the naked eye.

Xu Shuanglin felt that something was off, so he donned his cloak tightly and did not reveal any of his body. He rushed to the library and searched through the night until he found a scroll of his grandfather's past —

It turned out that Nangong Changying, the first head of the Rufeng Sect, had fought against the beast Gǔn. Although he had defeated the evil beast and kept it under the Golden Drum Tower, he had been cursed by the Gǔn.

The ancient evil beast was yin, and it was closely related to the night and the moonlight. It then cursed the previous leaders of the Rufeng Sect. As long as they saw the moonlight, their skin and flesh would be torn apart, and they would feel an excruciating pain that could pierce through their hearts and gouge out their bones.

And every full moon night, the Yin Qi was the most abundant. Even if one hid in the darkest corner without the moonlight, it would still make one feel extremely tormented.

Therefore, for hundreds of years, this had always been the greatest secret of the Rufeng Sect. Every previous sect's leader had always kept this a secret, afraid that someone would take this opportunity to sneak in.

Ironic.

He had spent a lot of effort, but what he got in return was a position of power that had been cursed at?

On the second day, Xu Shuanglin arrived at the water prison.

Nangong Liu and his wife, Rong Yan, were both locked inside, while Luo Fenghua was in another secret room.

Without looking at Luo Fenghua, he first went to his brother's prison.

"A-Xu! A-Xu! What are you doing? What are you trying to do…" Seeing him, Nangong Liu was extremely excited. However, his hands and feet were sealed by a seal and he could not move at all. He could only kneel on the ground and tear at his younger brother, "Have you gone mad? For the sake of a Sect Leader position, do you really have to go this far?"

After a night of torture, Xu Shuanglin still looked weak. He laughed coldly, "I just got back what I deserved."

"…"

"You stole my sword technique and ruined my reputation. I am only twenty years old, Nangong Liu." He paused, his eyes cold. "I am only twenty years old, and you have let me see for the rest of my life."

He walked over slowly, his robe tied around his waist, and then bent his head to look at his brother's face.

"Nangong Liu, trash like you all possess the ambition to gain power. If you all wish to become outstanding, then what about me?" he said slowly. "I am more diligent than you, more gifted than you, more superior than anything but your tongue."

He pinched Nangong Liu's chin and used his two fingers to pry open the other party's tightly shut mouth.

He stared at the slimy, sticky, reddish thing inside.

"What a bloodless weapon. Cut it."

Nangong Liu widened his eyes in fear, but because his mouth was stuck, he could not say a word. He could only moan in pain as saliva dripped from his mouth.

"No cutting?" Xu Shuanglin sneered. "It's fine if you don't cut your tongue. Seeing that you and I have been brothers for so long, and have happily killed you, at least I have shown mercy."

The moment he let go, Nangong Liu cried out, "Don't kill me! Don't kill me! No, isn't that the matter with the Spiritual Mountain Competition? You, bring me out, I will give you… I… I will give you justice in front of the entire world!"

"Too late." Xu Shuanglin took out a snow-white handkerchief and wiped his hands, glancing at him indifferently. "No matter what you say, everyone in the world will only take it as a forced admission from me. The sewage you poured on me can no longer be washed away."

Nangong Liu did not have the time to speak when he heard a girl's voice beside his that was as sharp as a knife.

"Nangong Xu! You know you've been wronged, but what are you doing now? You had killed your own father, deprived the Sect Leader of his ring, and now, you want to kill your brother? You… How could you be so heartless?"

“Oh, Senior Sister Rong.” Xu Shuanglin gave a slight smile. “If you hadn’t spoken, I would have forgotten you were here.”

Although Rong Yan was restrained by the curse, she was still kneeling. However, she had a resolute expression, and although her eyes were filled with tears, they were not weak. “I really misjudged you back then.”

“So what if you don’t see wrongly with me?” Xu Shuanglin smiled. “The one who gave me the scented sachet was you, and the one who married Nangong Liu was also you. You were the one who gave me the scented sachet first. You don’t want to tell me that you were forced by him to do this, do you?”

Rong Yan’s face turned white as if she wanted to say something, but in the end, she bit her lower lip and closed her eyes.

Tears ran down her cheeks.

The blade was already in his hand, glowing with a cold light.

“No… No… A-Xu, you can say anything, I can talk to you about anything… Don’t kill me. I beg you, don’t kill me…”

“Are you sure you’re not in the wrong place?” Xu Shuanglin wiped the blade, his lips still carrying that evil smile, “Nangong Liu, I am the Sect Leader now and you are a prisoner. You have nothing in your hands, yet you still want to negotiate conditions with me? What are you trying to use as a bargaining chip, your dog life?”

“I can be your slave! Yes. I can plant the grass, I, I am willing to do anything! As long as you are willing, Senior Sister Rong can return it to you!”

Rong Yan suddenly opened her eyes, she turned her head furiously, “Nangong Liu!”

Nangong Liu was scared out of his wits. He ignored his wife and sobbed to his brother, “As long as you let me go…… I beg you, please let me go…”

“Come on.” Xu Shuanglin lazily patted him on the face with the handle of his blade. “Do you think I’ll ever touch that tangerine you licked?”

“Then I can — I can —” Nangong Liu searched his stomach, but he could not think of anything. Only tears and snot flowed incessantly, and in the end, he cried out, “A-Xu, we once said that we ate the pastries together and climbed up on the roof together… We will cultivate together, spend the night with Shizun, and learn how to play the zither. Those days, have you forgotten about them?”

Xu Shuanglin’s face darkened, but in the end, he only laughed coldly. Raising his blade, he slashed down.

“AHHHHH!”

“Wait a minute!”

The cold blade stopped just a few inches away from Nangong Liu’s neck. In truth, Xu Shuanglin was not sure. Even without these two shouts, his blade would not be able to move a few more inches forward.

However, his expression remained unchanged and he said indifferently, “What now? You two really have a lot of last words.”

Ch. 229 [Mount Jiao] From then on, It Became Cloudy

Rong Yan did not look at her husband, but instead looked at him with moist almond-shaped eyes, her back was straight, and she choked with sobs: “Out of friendship from the past, can you please let me have my child?”

“…” Xu Shuanglin’s gaze slowly moved down and landed on Rong Yan’s lower abdomen. At first glance, it looked normal, but upon closer inspection, it was already bulging slightly.

Rong Yan kowtowed but her face was cold.

“Please.”

“…”

“Father’s guilt is irrefutable. But Nangong Xu, I want to beg you to spare your nephew’s life.”

Xu Shuanglin stared at this woman for a while and only felt that it was laughable.

Spare her of the vile spawn in her stomach? What did that unformed lump of flesh, nephew or niece, have to do with him?

However, in the midst of his viciousness, he suddenly recalled the excruciating pain from last night. Xu Shuanglin paused for a moment, suddenly realizing that this was a very good thing — the Sect Leader of the Rufeng Sect could only pass on the inheritance to the Young Master after the Old Sect Leader had passed away.

Or through usurpation. As for the rest, it didn't matter if he abdicated, gave way to meritocracy or resigned his position to someone more virtuous. It was all useless.

Thus, it was impossible for him to give up the seat to Nangong Liu. However, a hundred years later, he would be able to pass the seat to Nangong Liu's child.

It was best for a father to repay his son's debts.

For a moment, he was in a good mood. The corners of his brows raised into a bright smile. Before the two of them could react, he threw his saber and walked out of the cell, laughing loudly.

Later on, he did not kill Nangong Liu, nor did he kill Rong Yan. Instead, he placed them under house arrest in a small courtyard, planning to wait for the birth of their child before bestowing him the title of the next Sect Leader, establishing a blood contract with himself.

He was afraid that he would be able to boast of his magnanimity in the world, regardless of his past grudges.

But he did not see that day.

Not long after he ascended to the throne, he committed many atrocities. At that time, he had accumulated a lot of grievances between the outside and the inside of the sect. Later, a city lord held resentment against him, so he secretly released Nangong Liu and Luo Fenghua when he was unprepared.

Luo Fenghua did not know what was going on behind his back. He only thought that he had done all these crazy things for the sake of the sect's high position. With Nangong Liu's clever tongue, he became more frustrated. Thus, he joined hands with Nangong Liu to seize the position, trying to drive Xu Shuanglin out of the Sect Leader’s position, which was still warm from the sun.

That night, there was a civil war in the Rufeng Sect, with over a hundred casualties. Amidst the flames of war, Luo Fenghua was the first to find Xu Shuanglin who had taken refuge in the Moonhowl Courtyard.

It was a full moon that night, and Xu Shuanglin was in terrible pain. His entire body was covered in blood, and as he lay in the leaves, he looked like a snake that had its skin ripped off, exposing bright red flesh.

When Luo Fenghua saw him, he thought that he had been injured by the magic curse during the war. Although there was resentment in his heart, he could not help but feel pity for his beloved disciple because of his miserable state.

Xu Shuanglin shivered in the forest as he raised his head, revealing a pitiful smile. “You came.”

“…”

“I fought with him, and you always helped him in the end.”

Luo Fenghua said, “This time, you went too far. Did you kill Grandmaster Tian Chan?”

“That’s right.”

“Where is Taoist Master Lin?”

“He deserved to die.”

“… What about your father…”

After a moment of silence, Xu Shuanglin said, “He’s unfair. He believes me to be a thief. He asked for it.”

Luo Fenghua closed his eyes, his eyelashes became moist: “You… How did you get to this point…”

“Heh.” Xu Shuanglin laughed sinisterly, “You only permit me to be cheated, not others? I am only allowed to let others stab my body, and I am not allowed to pull out my sword and return the favor.”

The expression on Luo Fenghua’s face was broken as he swayed on his feet. He walked up to Xu Shuanglin, but before he even opened his mouth, tears had already begun streaming down his face.

“What are you crying for? What’s there to cry about? If you want to kill me, kill me. If you want to do it, just do it. Why would you pretend to shed a few tears in front of me? In your eyes, in the eyes of the old man, in the eyes of everyone else, that piece of trash is always more important than me!”

Luo Fenghua shook his head. He did not say a word. Instead, he raised his hand and began to chant a forbidden spell.

“… I forbade the spells that you and I learned from childhood.” Luo Fenghua said, “From now on, Nangong Xu, you and I are no longer Shizun and disciple.”

“…” Xu Shuanglin felt a heart-wrenching pain, a curse, a deep pain that pierced his heart.

He rested in place for a while and then said stubbornly, “Don’t think too much about it. I’ve never treated you as my Shizun.”

Luo Fenghua stared at him blankly. After a long while, he seemed to want to say something, but from behind came a clamor. The soldiers were approaching, their swords flashing.

Nangong Liu rushed over, “Shizun!”

Seeing that Xu Shuanglin and Luo Fenghua were talking, his heart suddenly skipped a beat. He immediately said anxiously, “Shizun, don’t listen to anything he says! He’s the one who lied to you!”

Xu Shuanglin chuckled.

This elder brother of his was always so naive and adorable.

He thought that he would still bitterly pull on Luo Fenghua’s sleeve and explain the whole situation, the cause and effect? No.

To him, life was like a game of chess. With a single move, all the twists and turns in his heart were no longer important. What was important was the result.

If you kill someone, you kill them. If you stain their blood, you stain them.

He couldn’t wash it, and he didn’t want to wash it for himself.

Luo Fenghua would never forgive him.

There was no need to say anything.

He held onto a nearby tree and staggered to his feet.

Moonlight shone on his face as his skin and flesh split open inch by inch, revealing a bloody and hideous appearance.

When Nangong Liu and the surrounding cultivators saw this, they could not help but take a step back. Some of them misunderstood and said in astonishment, “This, this was caused by Daoist Luo? Thousand Knives Curse… This is too cruel…”

Xu Shuanglin grinned, revealing a mouthful of dense white teeth.

He stared outside the forest at his younger brother. He suddenly felt that he did not want to let this pair of Shizun and disciple go so easily. So he turned to Luo Fenghua and said, “Tell them to scram, I have something I want to tell you personally before I die. I just want to talk to you alone.”

He held onto the pine tree and slowly moved, arriving at a dark place with Luo Fenghua.

The moonlight was obscured by the dense shade, and Xu Shuanglin’s complexion slightly relaxed. His chapped skin also began to heal bit by bit. Although there were still many small scars, they were no longer as frightening as before.

Xu Shuanglin did not turn around. With his back facing Luo Fenghua, he first asked, “If you come here alone with me, aren’t you afraid that I’ll kill you?”

“You won’t.”

“…”

“If you wanted to kill me or Liu, you could have done it a year ago.”

Xu Shuanglin suddenly turned his head, his eyes flashing with an excited and twisted light. “How laughable. You think you understand me very well?!”

Luo Fenghua suddenly looked at his face and opened his eyes wide: “Your scar…”

“It’s not as scary as it was, is it?”

Xu Shuanglin scoffed.

“What do you think this is? Incantation of Law? Lingzhi?”

He slowly raised his hand. In his palm was a ring that shone with a ghostly light. His lips were touching each other as he said in a mocking and malicious voice, “This ring is enchanted. When you and Nangong Liu chased me down from the Sect Leader’s position, it fell from my thumb. It knows that I am no longer the leader of the Rufeng Sect. However, there are two chiefs who conspired to usurp me, so it does not know which one it should recognize.”

“If you take over Liu’s position, you should return it to him.”

Xu Shuanglin grinned. “I really did think that way.”

He placed the ring in Luo Fenghua’s hand, and patted it twice before saying, “Hold it well, hold it steady. When you go out later, give this good thing to him. Remember, you must personally help him put it on. He’s the genuine Sect Leader of this sect.”

He paused and stared at the face of Luo Fenghua that was enduring the pain.

Then he leaned over, lowered his voice, and whispered in his ear, “Next, I’m going to tell you a secret. Don’t be afraid, this secret isn’t too dark. It’s just a part of a hero’s story, that’s all.”

Slowly, in a low voice, he told the story of when Nangong Changying subjugated the Gǔn, and it attached the curse of the leader of the Rufeng Sect, which, with malice, sank between his teeth and hardened into fangs, into the flesh of Luo Fenghua.

He saw that Luo Fenghua’s expression was getting uglier and uglier, and his round eyes were growing bigger and bigger.

He saw Luo Fenghua being pressed against a tree and was trembling slightly.

He felt overjoyed.

Ha.

Aren’t you spoiling him?

You. One or two, didn’t they treat Nangong Liu as a treasure?

I want you to hand it to him.

The corners of Xu Shuanglin’s mouth slowly widened, and then revealed a snake-like sinister smile. He raised his hand and caressed Luo Fenghua’s cheek, “Shizun, the story is over. You can leave.” He paused for a moment, and then his expression became even more radiant, “Go visit the Rufeng Sect. The sixth generation Sect Leader — Nangong Liu, go.”

That day, he was covered in blood. He had escaped from the Rufeng Sect on his flying sword, and after wandering for half a night, he exhausted his energy and landed in Butterfly Town.

He met a little girl sitting in the yard.

When the little girl saw that he was injured, he lost all his blood. She was so scared that her face turned pale and she trembled. However, she still poured a bowl of water from inside the house and passed it to him to drink. He drank the water and stared at her. Then, for some reason, he suddenly felt that the girl looked so much like his best friend, his mentor, his sworn enemy. Her eyes looked so much like Luo Fenghua's.

When he saw that the orange tree in the yard was filled with fruits, a thought suddenly appeared in his mind. He really wanted to eat it, but that little girl's words were filled with a rancid, sour smell, and she spoke with a righteous gentleman's tone. It was as if he was seeing that ridiculous Luo Fenghua saying sincerely:

"I hope that all of you will live your lives in the prime of your lives, relying on your own authority to become gentlemen for the rest of your lives."

A gentleman of his time.

…… How ridiculous.

He shook the tangerine out of the branches, cut down the orange tree, and walked away, leaving the little girl crying in the yard, but he was still angry. That night he had killed several villagers, and as his hand fell and the word "gentleman" grew farther and farther away, he felt more and more pleased.

Afterward, he left, planning to hide his identity and live his remaining life.

However, at that time, he heard from the teahouse that Luo Fenghua had usurped the throne and became the next head of the Rufeng Sect.

The customers that came and went were all saying, “Ai, I didn’t expect this. They really don’t know how to judge a person’s appearance and heart.”

“Pity Nangong Liu for raising troops to rebel this time. I never would have thought that he was actually helping others.”

“He should hate his Shizun to death, right?”

“This Luo Fenghua is truly a person whose heart is filled with greed. He is not a person to be trifled with.”

Xu Shuanglin sat in front of the greasy table, holding a cup of tea that he was about to bring to his lips.

His vision went black as the earth spun and the sky spun.

However, he never expected that Luo Fenghua would make such a decision.

That he would rather bear the blame for misunderstandings and hatred, rather be pointed at by thousands of men and despised by tens of thousands of people.

He’d rather suffer the evil curse himself, and would suffer on the night of full moon, until the end of this life.

It was impossible for Luo Fenghua to personally stab this sharp sword into his disciple’s heart.

In the end, they were still lacking one step.

“Ta. Ta. Ta.”

The sound of footsteps slowly sounded.

Xu Shuanglin broke free from his reminiscing. He opened his eyes, and in his blurry vision, he saw the face of a young man.

Mo Ran walked up to him on the empty Soul Summoning Platform and half-knelt down as he stared at him.

In that instant, Xu Shuanglin felt that this young man’s gaze was very strange. There were too many things hidden within, so he didn’t seem like a young man in his early twenties.

Mo Ran said, “… Nangong Liu, you plan to revive him?”

“None of your business.”

“Leave Nangong Liu behind and revive Luo Fenghua. From then on, there will no longer be anyone idle on this Mount Jiao. Am I right that you wish to live a peaceful life here?”

Xu Shuanglin yelled back, “It’s none of your business!”

Mo Ran picked up the broken spirit core from the ground. Inside the spirit core, there was still light flowing. He said, “You disguised yourself and returned to Nangong Liu’s side as Xu Shuanglin. You incited him to send troops to seize the position because you could not bear to see Luo Fenghua suffering from the curse. Life was better than death.”

“What right do you have to guess my intentions?!” Xu Shuanglin’s eyes were bloodshot, shining with a moist and ruthless light. “You think you understand everything?!”

“I don’t understand. I can only guess. But looking at your expression, I also feel that my guess is not too far off the mark.”

Xu Shuanglin cracked every word between his teeth and spat out these four words, “The next generation is arrogant.”

“It’s the same. When you were twenty, didn’t you go crazy?” Mo Ran looked at him quietly, “Nangong Xu, that year, you helped your brother reclaim the position of Sect Leader, but you did not expect that after being plotted against twice, for the position of Sect Leader he would be ruthless. You did not expect him to kill Luo Fenghua after taking over his position. You never expected his death.”

“You were confused, and at loss. You didn’t know what to do.” He stared at Xu Shuanglin’s face.

He knew that feeling of despair better than anyone else.

He was reading Xu Shuanglin’s heart, reading his own.

“In your despair, what are you going to do?”

Ch. 230 [Mount Jiao] Young Man

If it was him, what would he do?

Rebirth.

He would want that person to be reborn.

Mo Ran looked at Xu Shuanglin who was curled up on the ground and said softly, “You never expected Nangong Liu to be so vicious that he killed Luo Fenghua. In desperation, you decided to just do as he said, saying that the curse on the ring was left by Luo Fenghua and instigating Nangong Liu to follow the rules of the Rufeng Clan.”

“Throw Luo Fenghua’s body into the blood pool and send him to the eighteen levels of hell.”

“Is he crazy?” Xue Meng, who was at the side, was stunned, “Since he wants Luo Fenghua to come back to life, he definitely values this person. Then why did you push him into the eighteen levels of hell?”

“Because once a soul enters Purgatory, it cannot be reborn.” Mo Ran looked at him with pity in his eyes.

“This way, Luo Fenghua won’t be reincarnated immediately. You can study the method of rebirth and let him come back. Then, build an ideal state, a place where you are a god, fair and just.”

Xu Shuanglin: “…”

After a moment of silence, the man with the festering face chuckled. He stared at Mo Ran’s face and said, “Mo-zongshi, I’ve only realized today that you are a madman.”

He paused and then said in a very soft voice, “Because only madmen can understand me.”

After he finished speaking, he burst into laughter.

The laughter was like that of a bald vulture, even though he was already old, he was still fiercely and persistently occupying the cliff face, not showing any sign of weakness even in death.

Mo Ran closed his eyes, and also softly said to him: “Nangong Xu, listen carefully, there are still people in this world who know the technique of rebirth. If you are willing, I will do my best to plead with Huaizui, Grandmaster of the Wubei Temples, and even have his life with your Shizun.”

“…”

He opened his palm and handed the broken spiritual core back to Xu Shuanglin. “But please, tell me…”

It was as if he was trying to catch the last blade of grass to save his life.

He frowned. In a place where no one could see, his eyes revealed a trace of helplessness.

“Please tell me who has been supporting you from behind.” Mo Ran said, “Who told you about such an evil rebirth technique? Who taught you how to play chess?”

Memories coincided with those of his previous life.

In the rolling beacons of the Rufeng Sect, Xu Shuanglin stood in front of Ye Wangxi, blocking his path. He had died under a knife.

Since this was the case, Xu Shuanglin in his previous life had not had a specific plan before he died. But in this life, everything was different. Xu Shuanglin had long set up a mystery in the Jincheng Lake, designed the Peach Blossom Springs shocking, Butterfly Town's Heavenly Rift, and after using the method of offering sacrifice, he quickly changed methods and went around collecting godly weapons, finally pulling Luo Fenghua out of the purgatory.

This kind of rebirth method was definitely not something he came up with on his own.

"You want to know?" Xu Shuanglin's eyes flashed with a malicious light, "My skills have indeed been taught by someone, but I am not willing to tell you."

"Would you rather die and be one of his chess pieces?"

"Chess pieces?" Xu Shuanglin smiled, "You're thinking too much. He understands me and can understand my feelings. He and I are the same person. Mo-zongshi, just give up. I will never tell you who he is. All of you have gone to great lengths to climb Mount Jiao, and all of you have contented yourself with forcing me onto a dead end, but so what?"

"…"

"In the end, the world will still fall into chaos. He would still flatten the upper and lower worlds, turning them into scorched earth. Then, the good will be rewarded, the wicked will be rewarded, and those who are able to live in high places will become slaves.” The smile in Xu Shuanglin’s eyes grew brighter and brighter. “Truly… It can’t be any better.”

Xue Meng flew into a rage when he heard this, “What good person gets repaid for evil person! What kind of person could become a slave to a high and mediocre person?! Whether others are good or evil, whether they are honest or not, is it up to you to speak your mind? Those people you made pawns out there. And Nangong Changying… And… Also…”

He stole a glance at Chu Wanning’s face and could not help but lower his voice, “There is also Nangong Si.” Xue Meng seemed very dissatisfied and wronged. “Are they willing to control it for you? Do they deserve to die?”

“Sacrifice is always a must.” Xu Shuanglin glanced at him indifferently. “young master Xue, you are still too young.”

His expression was rather dispirited, as if he was not very willing to converse with a person with such an intense temper like Xue Meng. He once again turned his head towards Mo Ran.

“If he falls into your hands, you can kill him or cut him into pieces as you wish.” He even said in a casual tone, “I still have a Lingchi Fruit in my Qiankun bag. If you guys don’t think that’s enough, you can feed it to me.”

As he spoke, he coldly mocked, “In any case, when I was twenty years old, I had long since been outdone by those famed righteous warriors. I don’t want to miss a chance to come back again.”

Huang Xiaoyue asked, “Who was faster than you? It’s simply shameless to open your mouth to speak such lies!”

But Mo Ran was clear on Xu Shuanglin’s intentions.

The Ling Chi of the year he turned twenty wasn't in his body, but in his spirit soul.

Nangong Xu had also wholeheartedly trained in martial arts and had also thought of kindness. He had also listened to his Shizun's reminders that he wanted to be a gentleman and use his sword to exterminate evil.

However, he'd been hacked into a thousand pieces in the Spiritual Mountain Competition.

Mo Ran closed his eyes. Seeing Xu Shuanglin in such a miserable state, he did not have much time to live. Perhaps it was because he was too similar to himself in his previous life, and even though there were some grudges, at this moment, he could not help but say, "… Luo Fenghua's Soul Core is still here, if you use that rebirth incantation, you might be able to see him again."

"Again?" Xu Shuanglin smiled. He looked at the spirit core in his hand with interest, then looked at his own flesh that was rapidly festering due to the lack of spirit energy. He said lazily, "I'm going to die. If I die, there will be no justice in this world. What's the use of him coming back? He will still suffer from the bullying of you big sects."

As he spoke, his expression suddenly darkened. He had actually broken the soul core with his own hands and stabbed it into the palm of his hand, filling it with blood.

Mo Ran: "!"

Xue Meng, "Are you crazy?!"

Everyone was at a loss as to what had happened. Some of them were dumbstruck, some had ashen faces, and some had their eyes filled with vigilance as they stared at the man on the ground who was neither human nor ghost.

Xu Shuanglin ignored everyone. He looked at Luo Fenghua's last bit of evidence in this world, and watched as he completely turned into ashes. Finally, he began to laugh loudly, his face full of blood and tears.

From now on, no one will ever see him, no one will ever hate him, they will all be turned to dirt and ashes, great, great.

He slowly got up and staggered under the watchful gaze of the crowd. He walked to the front of the martial art formation, where there was a weapon.

He sat down and strummed the strings a few times with his rotting fingers.

The backlash from the Zhenlong's game was getting worse and worse. His seven orifices were bleeding and his fingers were burning. In the end, his entire body was engulfed in the fire, but he was still playing.

His expression seemed to be one of relief, of relaxation, but soon it was no longer visible, and his flesh was rapidly shrinking, curling, and shriveling.

The inferno bullied the heavens.

Xu Shuanglin's unhurried voice came from the fire. That voice was calm and unruly, as if no matter how much pain he suffered, it would not affect him. No matter how close one was to death, it would not coerce him.

"Weak crowns are the best in years. Light hooves, fast horses, see all the flowers in the world…"

There were quite a few elderly people in the crowd who suddenly thought of the young man at the Spiritual Mountain Competition in this lazy and carefree little tune.

The crane was dressed in green, with an upright appearance.

That young man walked out from the pitch-black corridor, out of the wilderness of his memories. He confidently walked into the arena, carrying his sword that he had experienced hundreds of battles on, his hands covered with calluses from practicing sword techniques.

He was so young, so handsome, so grand, even arrogant. He glanced at the Sect Leaders of the ten great sects and the noisily shouting guests. Suddenly, he grinned, his smile extremely clean. This twenty-something year old young man stopped walking, straightened his back, faced the arena that was filled with sunlight, faced the brilliant future in his eyes, and cupped his fists as he said:

“Rufeng Sect, Nangong Xu. For today’s first battle, I hope that all seniors will be generous with your advice.”

In the end, he had failed. He was just a teenager.

After a long time, the fire finally died down, and only five masterless divine mights were left on the Soul Summoning Platform. There was also a rebirth array formation that was still spinning in the air.

Whether it was Luo Fenghua or Xu Shuanglin, they were both gone.

Xue Zhengyong couldn’t believe it. He opened his eyes in a daze and mumbled, “This is… Is it all over?”

“Amitabha, Samsara of Karma, it is all retribution.” Great master Xuanjing closed his eyes and heaved a long sigh, “I hope that all the grudges in this world will be lost in the dust.”

Xue Meng’s eyes rolled back at him. This old bald donkey hadn’t put in much effort along the way, so he was quite good at shooting people behind their horses.

“What should I do next?” He turned to his father and asked, “Are we going down the mountain just like that? But he still has a colleague, we don’t even know who that person is.”

While speaking, Jiang Xi suddenly shouted, “Be careful! Everyone retreat!”

Everyone followed his gaze and looked over. When the Rebirth Array had shrunk to the size of half a palm in the air, it suddenly expanded at an astonishing speed. It seemed as if a hole had been split open in the sky, and strands of twisted black Qi poured out of it.

Xue Meng said in surprise, “What’s going on? Xu Shuanglin is dead, shouldn’t this Rebirth Array disappear along with him?!”

Jiang Xi pinched his fingers, and after staring at the formation for a moment, he cursed in a low voice, “No, no! This was not a Corpse Demon! It wasn’t rebirth! Both us and Xu Shuanglin were deceived!”

“What?” Xue Meng was surprised, “It’s not a Corpse Demon, nor is it a rebirth? What could that be!”

Jiang Xi said angrily, “What is it? It’s not important at all. The most important thing is that we can’t let this formation be fully formed.”

Other than him, the other experts were also quick to react. In a split-second, the least talkative of them all, Chu Wanning, had shot straight to the heart of the enchantment! Unexpectedly, although he was in the lead, someone followed closely behind him. A dark green shadow suddenly appeared from the crowd, like a cheetah pouncing on its prey. The dagger in his sleeve flashed with a cold light as it stabbed towards Chu Wanning's back, seemingly wanting to stop him.

"Shizun!"

"Shizun!"

The two exclamations were respectively Xue Meng and Shi Mei, but they were too far away and it was already too late for them to help.

A "chi" sound was heard.

It was the sound of the blade piercing into flesh. Xue Meng abruptly closed his eyes, and when he opened them again, his face was already devoid of color. He looked towards that direction with an ashen face.

He was stunned.

Ch. 231 [Mount Jiao] Medicine Sect Struggles

Chu Wanning was not hurt, and in that split-second, he reacted quickly.

He stood in front of the dark blue cloaked figure that was floating in the air. The man's dagger had completely sunk into his shoulder, leaving only the handle with the silver snake pattern on it. The clothes on Mo Ran's shoulder were instantly dyed red with blood. He lowered his eyebrows.

Gritting his teeth, his eyes flashed with a sharp light.

That was the ruthlessness in the eyes of the falcon when it finally pounced on the sly rabbit.

"Grandmaster Hua." He suddenly clenched Hua Binan's hand, which was still holding the dagger, and endured the pain as he pulled the dagger out of his own flesh. His forehead was covered in a thin layer of cold sweat, but he still sneered, "You sneaked an attack on my Shizun from behind, did you think I was dead?"

As the night breeze blew, Hua Binan put on the blue dress to cover his ugly appearance. After a moment of silence, Hua Binan asked, "How long has Mo-zongshi suspected me?"

"From the moment you were poisoned and left on the mountainside."

Hua Binan laughed softly: "Um… That is something that cannot be helped. After all, I was hoping to bring down a group of people in the main hall."

Mo Ran gritted his teeth. "Why did you stop Xu Shuanglin earlier?"

“Following the change in the array formation, he would have realized that the Rebirth Array that he painstakingly laid down was actually fake. Wouldn’t that be troublesome?”

At this point, Chu Wanning had shot down Tianwen, directly into the heart of this mysterious array.

However, as soon as he descended, he realized that the Spiritual Qi of the formation was extremely strong and could not be easily contained. When he turned his head to see that Mo Ran was behind him, and his shoulder was injured by Hua Binan’s dagger, he could not help but cry out in anger, “Mo Ran —”

“Don’t worry about me. Destroying the formation is more important. I’ll be watching over this place.”

Chu Wanning had no choice, inside the secret array flowed a kind of evil spirit flow that he had never encountered before, it was so powerful that even the former Butterfly Town’s Heavenly Rift Heaven Shattering Sword could not touch it. He continuously poured his spirit energy into the Heaven Seeking Palace, he could only prevent this array from continuing to evolve, but had no way of shattering it and disappearing it.

On the other side, Jiang Xi also suddenly understood what was going on. However, he couldn’t believe that the number one Saint Hand had some other plan behind his back. He couldn’t help but feel defeated. After a while, he said, “Hua Binan, you…”

At this moment, Hua Binan’s hand was tightly clenched by Mo Ran. He didn’t turn his head around, but upon hearing Jiang Xi’s voice, he faintly smiled, “Sect Leader, don’t act rashly. Guyue’ye had a rule that states that everything must be kept in mind, and I will naturally bear that in mind. Thus, on this journey, I found an opportunity to land Heart Drilling Worms that I had meticulously raised for many years on top of a lot of people."

"AHHH!"

Everyone's faces changed in fear as they became silent. In an instant, they were making a mess with a pot of boiling porridge.

The Cold Scale Sacred Hand put bugs on their bodies?

It was clearly neither painful nor itchy, to the point that they didn't feel anything at all. However, they suddenly felt as if their entire bodies were fiercely itchy, as if every corner was hiding a soul worm that could only take one's life.

"Hua Binan, you madman!"

"What vicious thoughts!"

There were even some who cried out anxiously, rubbing their bodies, "Where is it? Where is it? Did I get it? I didn't have any contact with him, so I don't think I have any…"

Some of them were upright and hated Hua Binan the most for his despicable methods. They shouted angrily: "That guy with the surname Hua! Don't try to seduce the masses by speaking nonsense! There are so many cultivators here, and all of them are experts of the top sects, do you think they would be afraid of a threat like you?!"

Before he finished his words, Hua Binan gently waved his hand.

The provocative man's body suddenly swayed and his eyes bulged. Holding onto his throat, he suddenly fell to the ground and rolled on the ground while shouting, "Ah! "AHHHH!"

The pus and blood quickly gushed out of his nose and eyes, he rolled his eyes, violently twitched and spasmed, the feces and urine flowed uncontrollably through his crotch, giving off a terrible stench, he quickly stopped moving, he collapsed to the ground, his skin quickly lost water and deflated, his mouth was still malevolently open, a red bug full of human blood crawled out from it, shaped like a spider, but with ten legs on either side.

This sudden change of events made a lot of people who were originally filled with righteous indignation, wanting to make Hua Binan suffer. Their faces all paled and they silently looked at everything that was happening in front of them.

"Although the bugs are small, they can instantly take a person's life. If you don't want to repeat the tragic scene of the annihilation of the Rufeng Sect in one night, you'd better stay where you are. Don't be anxious and don't cause trouble. Just listen to my orders. Especially Guyue'ye's people."

His gaze landed on Jiang Xi, and he looked at the group of Medical Sect cultivators dressed in light jade-green robes behind her. He smiled and said, "In consideration of the fact that we share the same sect, I will definitely not harm any of you."

Jiang Xi said with an ashen face, "Hua Binan! You actually have such wild ambition?"

“Wolf ambition doesn’t live up to it.” Hua Binan seemed to have suddenly remembered something as he said to Jiang Xi, “That’s right, Sect Leader, you also have a Heart Drilling Worm on you.”

Jiang Xi said coldly, “Guyue’ye has not treated you unfairly for the past ten years. What are your intentions?”

“Of course I have my reasons, but I might not have to tell you.”

He turned his head to look at Chu Wanning, then looked at Mo Ran who was in a confrontation with him, and turned back around.

“Alright, you all may not know who has the worm and who doesn’t, but this is a matter of life and death. I think if you’re smart enough, you should know who you’re on.”

Dead silence.

Then, a gentle and cold voice suddenly sounded out from the crowd.

Shi Mei stood beside Xue Meng and said, “The Breach of the Heart Worm will attract fire. As long as you all ignite a fire curse or fire talisman in your hands, you will be able to see that there is a bulge under the skin. That is, you will be hit by the Breach of the Insect.”

“…” The Cold Scale Sacred Hand suddenly narrowed his eyes and said, “Shi Mingjing, you’re secretly reading my scripture?”

Shi Mei’s face seemed to turn red, but his blush was not obvious. He was not used to being the center of attention. Now that he was being watched by so many people, his expression was a little stiff.

“I once asked Shizun to go into seclusion for five years in order to learn Guyue’ye. I didn’t read any of senior’s scriptures, and unintentionally discovered this worm, so… So I did some research…”

Hua Binan said angrily: “You are so shameless to steal my writings!”

Xue Meng raised his black eyebrows and immediately defended Shi Mei. “I wonder what face do I have to deal with a person like you who only has two or three sides?” As he spoke, he immediately followed Shi Mei’s instructions. Seeing that there was nothing amiss under his skin, he said joyfully, “That’s great. It’s all thanks to you. Look, I don’t have any worms on me!”

When the others saw this, they also followed suit. For a moment, everyone on the Soul Summoning Platform followed one another: “I did not!” Or “What should I do, I have a Breach!”

Hua Binan closed his eyes and sneered: “Even if I can identify who has who and who doesn’t, so what? Those who were infected by the insect Gu, listen carefully! Come to my side and help me take down Chu Wanning and defeat Mo Weiyu. Of course I won’t treat you badly, otherwise —”

He pointed at the Warlock on the ground who had been bitten to death by the Bugs.

“This is your fate.”

Under the deterrence of others, the first one to turn the tables was a female cultivator from Guyue’ye. Under the gaze of everyone present, she rushed to Hua Binan’s side, slightly raising her head, with an arrogant expression.

Mo Ran was also amazed. Someone who had become a traitor actually still had the face to act so arrogantly.

“Apologies, Sect Leader Jiang.” She said, “The reason why I am on the side of the Sacred Hand is not entirely for the sake of protecting myself, but because I have always admired the talent of the Sacred Hand. The reason why I sought knowledge from Guyue’ye is also because of his name. Not mentioning whether I have been hit by a Soul Devouring Insect, even if I have not, I am still willing to be the lackey of the Sacred Hand.”

She then glanced at Hua Binan’s face and saw that although he was fighting with Mo Ran, his face was full of smiles. Apparently, he was satisfied with her words, so she comforted him and urged, “Senior Saint Hand has already said that he will not make things difficult for us on account of the fact that we are all from the same sect. Everyone, you should be clear about the choice you have made.”

She waited for a little while, but only three cultivators came from Guyue’ye, standing by his side.

The others glared at them, scowling.

The three cultivators exchanged words, “All these years, Sect Leader Jiang has been taking care of Guyue’ye more and more poorly. If not for the presence of the Cold Scale Sacred Hand, I would have left long ago.”

“If Hands is capable, we will only follow those who are.”

One of Guyue’ye’s people couldn’t take it anymore, and shouted in anger, “Traitor! You really can say that!”

“Exactly! Traitor!”

“Shameless, get the hell out of Guyue’ye!”

I never thought that so many people would still refuse to comply even if they were hit by the Heart Drill Bug. The woman looked extremely embarrassed, but her face was still red, and he forced herself to calm down: “No need for you guys to say, we have already given up on staying in this Broken Sect. If you follow Jiang Xi, then you’ll be like a lonely ghost following a ghost!”

She turned her head again and stared at his former Sect Leader.

“I will forever be with Guyue’ye, Jiang Xi and I —”

Before she could finish her sentence, Jiang Xi interrupted her.

Jiang Xi was expressionless, but his eyes were extremely cold. He looked at her disdainfully, “Stop slashing. Who are you?”

“I — I’m in —”

“I can’t remember your name a hundred times a day.” Jiang Xi said, “Scram.”

The female Medical Sect member was extremely embarrassed and bit her lower lip for a while, but she was still indignant. “Heh, I didn’t think that a sect head would have this kind of demeanor.”

“You only saw me today?” Jiang Xi sneered, “But speaking of this, out of the thousands of Guyue’ye’s disciples, this is the first time I’m seeing you. To tell you the truth, if it wasn’t for this scene today, just you alone might not have had the chance to speak to me in this lifetime.”

After speaking, he flicked his sleeve and a gust of fragrant wind blew. Jiang Xi had already started fighting with Hua Binan.

Hua Binan already had an extremely annoying Mo Ran in front of his eyes. Now that Jiang Xi was here, he could no longer bear the consequences. He controlled a wave of Heart Drilling Worms, causing all the people with Soul Devouring Insects to immediately bite their hearts.

“AHHHH!”

“Help, help me!”

Jiang Xi’s body also froze, but as expected of the head of the Guyue’ye Sect, he immediately pressed a few acupoints on his body to ease the pain, still wearing the same white face as Mo Ran against Hua Binan.

Hua Binan was not stupid, and with a flick of his finger, he released the three people whom Guyue’ye betrayed, and declared sternly, “Accept the fight.”

Under the pain, some of the less sane people saw that surrendering to Hua Binan would save them from this sin and rushed over. In an instant, a small part of the crowd knelt down and shouted at Hua Binan: “Please, Hands of God! Release the curse! We are willing to serve the Sacred Hand!”

“I can’t take it anymore, it’s too painful… I beg of Senior Hua…”

Hua Binan gave a faint smile in the midst of the fierce battle, and said to Mo Ran who was still engaged in a heated fight with him: “So, Mo-zongshi, look. The strongest person in the world is still the Medical Sect.”

Before he could finish his words, Jiang Xi had already pulled out his Xuehuang and said with a stern voice, “The two words ‘Medical Sect’, how could someone like you, who is used to using underhanded methods, be worthy of saying that?" After finishing his sentence, he said to Mo Ran, "Help your Shizun before you go to the array. I'll help you block this place."

Hua Binan sneered: "Is the Sect Leader going to make me his enemy today?"

"Cut the crap."

"You dragged your body infected by the Soul Devouring Insect, and now you still want to fight with me? Sect Leader Jiang Xi, you really think you have lived a long life."

Jiang Xi said with a gloomy face, "How can you decide how long I live? If I do not stop you today, I am afraid that the reputation of the Medical Sect will be destroyed!"

With that said, the two people who were good at using poison had already dealt with it. There was even poison powder against poison powder between blade and shadow. Seeing that Jiang Xi had the strength to fight back, Mo Ran turned around to help. Halfway there, there were ten dark yellow shadows rushing towards them.

Mo Ran gritted his teeth, "Huang Xiaoyue —!"

These people were none other than the ten over high-ranked disciples of Huang Xiaoyue and Jiangdong. Huang Xiaoyue's wide sleeves fluttered in the wind as he said, "Mo-zongshi, the Heart Drilling Worm is not a joke. Man is the meat of a fish, and in the face of life and death, we can only offend Grandmasters."

He wasn't the only one. There were experts from other sects who couldn't bear the pain and all rushed over to kill.

Right now, the entire Soul Summoning Platform was a mess of fish and dragons.

The cultivators of the various sects were in internal strife. The ones that were infected with the Soul Devouring Insect and those that weren't, the ones that were betrayed and the ones that weren't, all of them were fighting against each other.

Jiang Xi and Hua Binan fought with all their might. As the last line of defense in front of Chu Wanning, Mo Ran was being attacked from the back. He was battling with Huang Xiaoyue and other cultivators, while Chu Wanning fought against the mysterious array with all his might.

On the other side, Xue Zhengyong and the people from the top of the mountain were guarding the frontline, preventing the rebel army from approaching Chu Wanning, who was sealing the mysterious array. Shi Mei was also among those cultivators who had been hit by the Heart Drilling Worm and refused to surrender, trying to remove the Insect Curse.

"It hurts…" "Kill me, please kill me!" Shi Mei bent down to pick up a young man who was rolling on the ground, that young man grabbed his hand and wailed, "It's too painful, I don't want to fall, I don't want to fall, just kill me! Please, kill me! Kill me!"

"Bear with it." As Shi Mei consoled him, he placed his fingertips on his pulse.

"I can't take it anymore!"

“Look at me. Look into my eyes.”

However, that youth didn’t listen to Shi Mei’s words. He tightly clenched his fingers, and his entire body was like a fish out of water, constantly twitching and gasping for breath. “I can’t take it anymore…”

Shi Mei had no choice but to force his cheek and lift his closed eyelids. This wasn’t easy because the youth was constantly kicking and struggling, leaving a red mark on the back of his hand.

“Look at me, look at me!”

That person had just regained some of his consciousness. He panted as he rolled his eyes. His eyes were filled with tears as he looked at Shi Mei. Shi Mei chanted an incantation and stared into the other party’s eyes. Suddenly, the young man quivered as he felt something quickly climb up his waist. Soon, it reached his chest, throat and mouth.

“Ouch!”

He flipped over, and with a strong sense of nausea, he spat out a large pool of vomit. The stench was extremely pungent, and a red worm was convulsing inside.

Shi Mei pointed at the air and the insect immediately crumbled into dust.

He suddenly stood up and said loudly: “The Drilling Heart Insect can be controlled by the eye healing technique, it can be solved! I can unravel it for you!”

He ran around, shouting anxiously, “Stop fighting! It can be undone, don’t kill each other, it can be unraveled — it can be undone!”

However, not many people listened to him in the free-for-all. His voice was not loud either. Soon, it was drowned out by shouts and wails, explosions and collisions.

However, Jiang Xi heard his shout and shivered. Eye healing technique?

Just like how many bugs converged on fire for light, some poisonous insects would only need to use the appropriate eye healing technique to guide them, and they would be lured out of the body like moths to a flame, allowing the Gu to dispel the poison.

Apparently, Hua Binan also heard it. He secretly cursed as his eyes flashed with a cold and fierce light.

“Along the way, I killed all of Guyue’ye’s cultivators who knew the eye technique. I didn’t expect that at the Sisheng Peak there would actually be such a high level technique from the Medical Sect. Really?”

The blade in his hand slashed violently against Jiang Xi’s Xuehuang, causing sparks to fly out.

Hua Binan gritted his teeth and said: “The younger generation is truly fearsome!”

He suddenly unsheathed his sword and retreated like a bat, leaping towards the middle of the battling crowd.

“This is bad!” Jiang Xi was startled. He had already seen through Hua Binan’s intention. He was about to use his Qi to keep up, but the Heart Drilling Worm’s attack stopped his in his chest. He spat out a large mouthful of blood and half-knelt on the ground.

He opened and closed his blood-soaked lips, looking at the direction where Hua Binan left. He wanted to warn the others, but he couldn't make a louder sound, "Dang… Heart…"

Shi Mei was currently detoxifying the Taxue Palace's cultivator. After that cultivator vomited the Heart Drilling Worm, he could no longer feel the pain, so he quickly stood up and shouted.

"Stop fighting! It is here to remove the Gu, it can be removed!"

Xue Meng was also busy persuading them to stop, he dragged about ten people over to Shi Mei and kept shouting: "Alright, alright, endure it, don't cry out in pain, I will immediately release you guys, I will immediately release you guys. Who is my shidi? The most talented disciple, not one bit inferior to Guyue'ye's disciple, I —"

As Xue Meng spoke, he called for Shi Mei. Just as he raised his head, his words were cut off by his lips.

"Shi Mei! Behind —!"

Ch. 232 [Mount Jiao] Insignificant Eyes

Xue Meng let out a hoarse scream and pounced towards Shi Mei, but it was too late. Hua Binan was like a demon descending from hell as his Death God rushed through the sky and grabbed Shi Mei's neck from behind.

"Shi Mei!"

"Shi Mingjing!"

Whether it was the elders on the Sisheng Peak, or Xue Meng, they all heard about it and looked back. Hua Binan had already brought Shi Mei into the air.

Xue Meng was about to go crazy. He stepped on the Longcheng to catch up, but was forced to retreat back to the ground after being pushed back by Hua Binan's killer bee.

Hua Binan held onto Shi Mei's neck, his slender finger that wore the Spirit Serpent Ring slowly caressing his throat. Suddenly, "Zheng!" With a "sou" sound, a long thorn appeared on the ring of the spirit serpent, flashing with cold light.

"Eye Healing is extremely difficult to cultivate." Hua Binan slowly said, "This young friend is still young and not a disciple of Guyue'ye. To be able to use it so smoothly, I think he must have some talent."

How could the people fighting on the ground not notice his actions?

Xue Zhengyong, Mo Ran, and even Chu Wanning, who was standing in front of the boundary, could all clearly see that Shi Mei had been captured by Hua Binan.

In his rage and anxiety, a bloody red light suddenly shone, causing Huang Xiaoyue and the others to retreat several meters. A few unlucky ones were even knocked off the precipice of the platform. The vast sea of clouds did not even have an echo before they were swallowed up.

“Hua Binan! Let him go!”

Shi Mei’s face was pale as he looked down at Mo Ran and at Xue Meng.

He pursed his lips, and finally said, “Go and help Shizun. Don’t worry about me.”

“Shi Mei!”

In front of the array, Chu Wanning’s face was as pale as a sheet of paper. His hands that were pressed against the eye of the array were trembling uncontrollably, the veins on the back of his hands were popping out, and his heart was hanging in his throat.

Shi Mei’s gaze turned and landed on him, a trace of sadness in his eyes.

“Shizun…”

“What a coincidence.” Hua Binan was stunned for a moment and then smiled, “I just grabbed it casually, is it Chu-zongshi’s disciple?”

Chu Wanning: “…”

“Then it’s no wonder that he has already mastered it at such a young age. Such a good disciple. Don’t you feel sorry for him, Shizun?”

“Hua Binan, if you hurt him, I will make you pay in the future!”

“So the meaning behind his words is that the Grandmaster has decided to ignore him today?” Hua Binan smiled and whispered Shi Mei, “Did you hear what he said? To save you or to do the seal formation, he chose the latter.”

Shi Mei closed his eyes, his lips trembling slightly, but he remained silent.

Hua Binan laughed and said, “I feel sorry for this young friend. Having a Shizun who thinks righteousness is more important than his disciple’s life. Shi Mingjing, you are truly pitiful.”

No one answered for a long time.

Perhaps it was because his life was hanging by a thread, but in the midst of this silence, Shi Mei slowly opened his eyes and said, “Shizun, I’m sorry.”

“…”

“I know. As you will recall, I have done some things in the past out of selfishness. I still don’t know if it’s right or wrong. Actually, I am not worthy to be Shizun’s disciple. Many times, I would be unable to sacrifice my life to take justice…”

“Shi Mei…”

On the high platform, when Xue Meng heard his words, he could not help but think of the night that Chu Wanning died, when his guilt caused them to go to the Underworld to save their teacher.

Mo Ran thought of the bowl of wontons and the inn. He made an apologetic bow and told him that the bowl was made by Chu Wanning.

As for Chu Wanning?

Chu Wanning thought of him asking for a sword, and then sighing at Shi Mei's request for a divine weapon.

Besides that, he didn't expect that he would have even more flaws.

Shi Mei had always been a gentle, perfect, and obedient person. He was like a winter's new snow, pure white and unsullied. As a result, every speck of dirt and speck of plum blossoms fell from the snow was particularly eye-catching and disheartening.

Whether it was his fault or his hesitation, his occasional selfishness and insight were all so obvious and unforgettable.

However, he was also an ordinary person. He was not a statue or a silk painting, so he had his own personal feelings.

But no one really knew him.

As far as Xue Meng was concerned, Shi Mei was his friend. He felt that his friend should follow behind him, accompany him, affirm him, and support him.

To the former Mo Ran, Shi Mei was the object of admiration. He felt that this object was naturally holy, tolerant, warm and flawless.

To Chu Wanning, Shi Mei was his disciple. He was gentle, approachable, and had a tolerance that he admired and liked.

At this time, they suddenly realized that all along, in front of Xue Meng's best friend and follower, Shi Mei had been silently burning the mosquito blood on his cinnabar mole.

The only person he had never been before was himself.

Hua Binan sneered: “Do you have some last words to say?”

“Hua Binan, let him go!”

“Don’t hurt him!”

“I won’t hurt him. All of you are willing to surrender, sit still and wait for death. Naturally, I don’t need his life.”

“…”

The array in front of Chu Wanning’s eyes flickered between bright and dark. It was clear that the array was now at a critical point of existence. Whether it was sealed or exploded, it was time for another attack. He did not withdraw the strength in his hand, but it was slightly trembling.

This wasn’t the Ghost World Heavenly Rift, the choice was only made in a flash, and there wasn’t enough time to think.

It was like putting a knife on his disciple’s neck, letting him hesitate, letting him see it with his own eyes, making him feel pain that was hard to bear.

Hua Binan slightly raised his chin and said with a smile, “Well, the array is open, so you guys can continue the fight, but it will be very difficult to come back to life after this blade attack. Grandmaster, you should think about it carefully.”

At this moment, Shi Mei spoke.

His voice wasn’t very loud, but it was still audible.

“Actually, I don’t like candied fruits.”

"…" Hua Binan stared down at him as if he didn't understand what he meant.

Shi Mei didn't cry. Instead, he looked at his close friend, his old friend, and his Shizun on the ground and smiled.

"I don't like eating candied fruits, but Young Master, when you were young, you always let me help you eat them. What I wanted to learn the most was to cultivate Spirit Formation techniques, but Shizun felt that I was lacking in talent and wasn't willing to teach me too much. I…" His eyes fell on Mo Ran, "A-Ran, I actually know what you wanted to say on the day of Butterfly Town's Heavenly Rift."

Mo Ran was suddenly startled as he blankly looked at him.

Master Mo's smile was still as gentle and soft as ever "… However, Shizun came back later on and you never finished what you were about to say. In the restaurant, I saw you all eating together, and the way I looked at you, I knew you wouldn't say anything else for the rest of your life."

Mo Ran: "…"

"I'm actually very envious of Young Master, I also… I am also very envious of Shizun." Shi Mei said softly, "Can you guys not find it annoying just because I'm envious…"

"I never thought you hated it!" Xue Meng shouted anxiously, and his eyes couldn't help but turn red. "I, I didn't know that you didn't like candied fruits, I really didn't know…Shi Mei! Shi Mei!"

However, Hua Binan was getting impatient. He grabbed Shi Mei's neck, stared at Chu Wanning and said in a stern voice, "I will count to three. If you don’t stop, I will destroy him!”

“No!” Xue Meng turned his head in panic and anxiously shouted at Chu Wanning, “Shizun, please stop for now! We can’t just watch as something happens to Shi Mei in front of our eyes! Stop!”

“One.”

The trembling of Chu Wanning’s fingers had gone from almost imperceptible to the point where everyone could see it clearly.

He looked at Shi Mei. His usually sharp phoenix eyes met with the usual gentle peach blossom eyes. The phoenix eyes became moist.

“Two!”

“Sha —”

At this moment, blood splattered everywhere.

Xue Meng and Mo Ran’s shouts seemed to have turned into sharp swords piercing through the dome of heaven. “Shizun!”

“… No need to count to three.” Blood dripped and dripped. Shi Mei raised his hand and covered his eyes.

He hadn’t cried since the beginning.

However, at this moment, blood was gushing out from his eyes and running down his cheeks.

He actually hit the cold thorn that was hanging in front of him on the second floor. Hua Binan was so shocked that he tried to pull back his hand. The sharp thorn was a few inches away from his body. The blade that was originally about to cut into his neck slid across his eyes. In an instant, his eyes became wide open!

“Yuheng has never descended, also… There was no… Weak.”

“Shi Mei!”

“Shi Mei!”

The sound split the clouds.

Chu Wanning was also shocked. He had already used up all his strength, but now that his disciple had destroyed his eyes and face, he couldn’t help but feel his hand go soft. The backlash from the formation was so strong that it sent him flying out ten feet.

Chu Wanning coughed up a mouthful of blood, but he was too busy trying to patch up the magical formation. Hua Binan was startled and then burst out laughing. He grabbed Shi Mei’s lapel and pulled him up, his eyes shining with joy.

“I didn’t expect you to be so useful! It would be a pity if I were to kill you.”

“Hua Binan, what are you trying to do?”

Hua Binan did not answer and only glanced at Xue Meng. Then, he turned his gaze towards the mysterious black enchantment that was rapidly cracking open and smiled: “This array formation has combined the strength of so many people’s hearts and it’s finally about to open. This is the first time in my life that I have ever activated this formation, so it is only right that I give it a try.”

As he said this, he quickly lowered his sword, bringing Shi Mei with him as he rushed down the corridor towards the Soul Summoning Terrace. As he disappeared into the corridor, he threw his last sentence to everyone —

“You two can stay here and have a good time. This Mount Jiao is grand and imposing. Using it as a burial ground is not a loss at all.”

Almost at the same time, a deafening sound came from the sky. The formation was like ink that had been poured on paper, quickly spreading and swallowing up half the sky in the blink of an eye. Even the moon was covered in a dark shadow.

“What’s wrong!”

“What kind of formation is this?!”

“Is it the Ghost World Heavenly Rift?”

“But the Spirit Realm’s Heavenly Rift is not the same color!”

The group of people who had previously fought in an unrelenting manner had now become grasshoppers on a boat. They all raised their heads in alarm to look at the pitch-black opening in the sky.

Perhaps this could no longer be called a rift. On the platform, more than half of the sky had already cracked open. A dull and hurried vibration faintly came from the bottomless darkness.

Huang Xiaoyue’s face was sallow and his nostrils flared, “This is… Are there any monsters coming out from behind? How could there be such a big commotion?”

Mo Ran took the lead, holding his hand as he stood at the very front. Suddenly, a bolt of lightning flashed across the night sky.

“Rumble ~ ~ ~ ~”

Heavenly Thunder Void Break!

“It split open!”

“There’s something behind us! Something came out!”

“Is it a ghost?!”

Xue Meng saw that Mo Ran and Chu Wanning were too close to the crevice. He quickly wiped away the tears on his face and ran towards his cousin and his Shizun. However, he was held back by Xue Zhengyong and dragged closely behind him.

“Father!”

“Don’t go over, stand here!”

“I don’t want it! I want to be with Shizun, I want to be with my brother!”

Xue Zhengyong’s eyes were filled with an unprecedented sternness, he could not deny it: “You want to die?! Did you know —”

The rest of the words were like dried twigs falling from the sky. He stared blankly and did not continue.

Xue Meng began to cry.

He cried out: “Dad, I’m going to help them. Shi Mei has been taken away, I can’t hide behind you anymore to see any of them get hurt! Please!”

Before Xue Zhengyong could respond, green smoke and lightning were emitted from the middle of the black magic formation. From the smoke, one could see a rolling cloud rushing towards them.

When they got closer, they realized it was a group of masked cultivators dressed in black!

Groups after groups of people could not be seen, nor could they see where they came from. The man in the lead wore a luxurious cloak embroidered with golden threads and silver threads, wearing a hood, and also had a hideous silver-gray mask covering his face. He stood with his hands behind his back in the air, and as the wind blew in all directions, the clouds gathered, and even though he did not say a single word, there was still an immeasurable amount of killing intent radiating from him.

“What is this?”

Xue Zhengyong was stunned.

Those who had seen little of the world could not say a word and could only look up at the sky blankly.

Is it a ghost?

But no, there was no such thing.

More and more people flew out from the black cloud. Dozens, hundreds… In the end, they reached the clouds and were no match for the cultivators on the ground. There were nearly a thousand of them!

Xue Zhengyong was startled, he gathered his energy and shouted, “Are you a human or a ghost? Why not introduce yourself?!”

“…” The leader rolled his eyes. When his gaze fell on Xue Zhengyong, it seemed to have some meaning to it.

“Speak! Do you understand what we’re talking about?” Xue Meng also shouted.

The man didn’t say anything. He paused for a moment, then raised a pale, slender hand and held it in the air.

And then, with a wave of his hand, he cut to the chase.

“Kill!”

Ch. 233 If You Want to Change the Title of This Venerable One, Change It! Wayward!

In the blink of an eye, those cultivators who were covered in black swooped down from the clouds at the same time. They were like herons who were fighting for food, and rushed down towards the heavily injured camp below.

Mo Ran had already realized what was going on. As Taxian-Jun Emperor in his previous life, the auras these people had under the control of these treasured chess pieces were too obvious. These chess pieces were exquisite, perfect, strong, and completely different from the half-baked pieces that Xu Shuanglin had made.

There was no way he would be a match for them.

Mo Ran turned around in shock, shouting to those who had never experienced the true power of Zhenlong Chess, “Run!”

He held on tightly to Chu Wanning’s wrist and pulled up Jiang Xi, who was kneeling on the ground. He pushed everyone along the way, his pupils contracting rapidly.

“Run! Get out of here! Leave the Soul Summoning Platform! Don’t stay! Don’t fight! We can’t beat them!”

He didn’t need to say it again. When the first chess piece fell to the ground and swung his sword, everyone was already aware of his terrifying strength. They all rushed towards the corridor.

At the front of the pack was the timid Palace Master Ma. He was the first to reach the stone door of the passageway before stopping.

One by one, the people behind his all stopped in their tracks, falling and smashing into each other. Some of them angrily shouted: “What’s wrong?! Why did you stop?!”

The voice of Palace Master Ma was filled with terror and a sobbing tone. It came from the front of the pitch-black corridor.

“It… it’s closed…”

“What’s closed?”

“When Hua Binan escaped, he closed the stone door…” As Palace Master Ma said this, his legs went soft and he fell to his knees with a plop. His face was filled with tears as he said, “This is the Mount Jiao Stone, once it closes…”

“Without the blood of the Nangong Family, it… It definitely can’t be opened.”

Someone said anxiously: “Although Nangong Si is no longer here, there’s still Nangong Liu! Wasn’t his father, who had been made into a Zhenlong chess player, still on the mountain? Where is he?”

“In the front hall, I thought that he was useless and didn’t bring him here at all…”

Despair filled the entire tunnel, and a dark aura seeped into their very bones.

“What should we do?”

“Going out to fight head on?”

There were still unknown people squeezing in from the outside. There were even more people that couldn’t squeeze in, so they could only bite the bullet and stay at the exit to fight against the mysterious chess pieces that came out from the sky.

In the darkness, Huang Xiaoyue suddenly shouted, “Let me pass! I can open this door!”

He pushed them away with all his might, like a fish on its way to a stone gate.

Palace Master Ma raised his teary face as he said in a daze, “Leader Huang?”

“Out of the way, let me do it!”

“But you’re surnamed Huang, and you don’t even have the Nangong surname…”

Huang Xiaoyue ignored him. The golden blade horse charged towards him. He waved his wide sleeves, but fortunately, he still had some of Nangong’s blood. He had secretly saved it in order to sneak into the hidden treasure chamber. He even cast a spell on the blood to prevent it from drying up.

However, the curse would not last for long. At this moment, he could not help but be glad that all of this happened in an instant. He hoped that the blood was still useful.

Huang Xiaoyue used his skinny old hand to viciously press down on the broken rock.

Mo Long's misty voice came from the tunnel, "Who are you?"

His heart was pounding.

Huang Xiaoyue said, "The younger generation of the Rufeng Sect… The seventh generation member of the Blood Origin Sect, Nangong Si, pays his respects."

He was stunned for a moment. "Hualala! Hualahhh"

The Demon Dragon said hoarsely, "Disorders… Greetings… Maste…"

"Boom —"

Huang Xiaoyue was the first to exit the corridor as the other disciples of the Jiangdong Hall followed behind her. Palace Master Ma quickly stood up and said, "Wait for me! I'll come out, I'll come out, I'll —"

A sword was placed against his chest.

Palace Master Ma's face froze as he raised his head in astonishment: "Sect Leader Huang, what are you doing?"

Huang Xiaoyue sneered, "When I was hit by the Heart Drilling Worm earlier, my side and yours were already opposed to each other. If I let you out at this moment, the chaos in the battlefield will probably subside in the future. The people who want to settle the score with me will be like ants. I am old and cannot afford to go through with it."

Palace Master Ma said in panic, "No, no, no! What are you trying to do! Don't mess around! We can talk it over! Aiya, what kind of hatred are you looking for? We're all going to do business here. Chief Huang, quickly let us out. From now on, all the goods from the Peach Blossom Villa are to be sold for half the price to your sect — no, half the price!”

Huang Xiaoyue’s swarthy old face revealed a trace of malevolence as he ridiculed, “Half price? After obtaining the treasure of the Rufeng Sect, how could the wealth of this world enter my eyes? It’s just the Peach Blossom Villa, what is it!”

As he spoke, he viciously pushed Palace Master Ma away.

Ma Yun fell to the ground, along with the rest of the crowd, who were squeezed together behind her.

As they struggled to get up, the last scene they saw was Huang Xiaoyue and the people from the Jiangdong Hall standing outside. Huang Xiaoyue had pulled the trigger to bring down the seal stone. Greed, desire, and schadenfreude flashed on his face…

The group of people from the Jiangdong Hall behind him even acted as if they had achieved their goals. Some of them even spoke bluntly: “Serves you right. I’ll make you look down on me for all this time.”

“We, the Taoist Huang, clearly have no faults, yet we were scolded all the way here. He risked his life to leave behind that blood of his.”

BOOOOOOOOM!

The stone door was once again sealed shut.

This time, the tunnel was filled with endless darkness and hesitation.

Dead silence.

In despair, a female cultivator finally collapsed and started sobbing. Her grief was contagious, and very soon, most of the people were feeling dispirited, losing their will to fight. They were trapped inside, unable to move forward, and also unwilling to go out.

“Sister… I don’t want to die yet…”

“Shizun…”

“Father, let’s go out and fight to the death. It’s better than being trapped here.”

The voices buzzed.

At this moment, there was a voice that had been silent for a long time. It trembled a little as it made a decision.

He said, “I’ll do it.”

The pale-faced Palace Master Ma trembled as he turned his head and saw a flame light up. His eyes widened slightly as he asked in astonishment, “Mo-zongshi?”

Mo Ran held the firework in his hand, his handsome face flickering with light. He walked to the front of the rock formation and stood still.

“You, you also have Nangong Si’s blood?”

Mo Ran did not answer. He knew that although there was someone blocking the entrance to the passageway, they would not be able to hold on for long. The chess pieces would soon charge in.

Along his way to the mountain, when Nangong Si was facing danger, there were many times when hot blood boiled in his heart. He wanted to do this, but in the end, he did not succeed.

He had originally thought that he would be blessed by the heavens, and this time he would be able to escape from everyone's eyes and escape a calamity.

But with his back to his stomach, he knew that he finally had no other choice.

There was no way out anymore.

"Mo-zongshi…?"

He didn't take care of Palace Master Ma, instead drawing out the silver short knife from his waist and fiercely slicing his palm.

In an instant, blood flowed all over his palm.

By this time, both Xue Meng and Xue Zhengyong had arrived. Chu Wanning was also there, so they stopped behind Mo Ran. Xue Zhengyong's voice was filled with confusion, "Mo'er, what are you doing? It's useless. It will only listen to the orders of the Nangong Family."

Mo Ran did not look back. His bleeding hand was trembling slightly.

In the end, it still hit the rock hard.

The tentacles were cold and piercing.

He closed his eyes.

The Demon Dragon's confused and distant voice once again reverberated in this darkness.

"Who are you?"

His throat moved.

Under the gaze of the crowd, Mo Ran slowly replied in the midst of an extremely stifling silence.

"Rufeng Sect… The seventh generation Blood Origin Sect relatives."

Xue Meng's expression suddenly changed. He staggered back a step and could not help but shake his head. "What…"

Xue Zhengyong's face was even more unsightly than his. His eyes were wide open as he stared at the black silhouette that was burning with a black flame and he muttered, "How is this possible…?"

One word at a time, just like a sharp knife.

Even though he knew that blood would flow profusely, he had no other choice.

He softly finished the last part of his sentence, "Mo Ran, Mo Weiyu, kowtow."

Xue Meng's voice was hoarse as he shouted, bare-eyed, "Impossible!"

However, the door still opened in the end.

He was lost in that thin, smoke-like voice, yet it was like a bright, piercing blade that stabbed into the heart of his eardrums.

“Lost and separated… Greetings… Master…”

“Mo’er…”

Xue Zhengyong was completely stunned and couldn’t say a word.

Chu Wanning’s mind was also in a mess. He caught Xue Zhengyong in time and raised his head to look ahead.

The door rumbled, and inch by inch, two inches, it sank back into the ground. Outside, the orange light of the Dragon Soul Pool rushed back into the darkness.

“Mo Ran! Mo Ran! How can you open it? What do you mean by ‘the seventh generation ancestor of the Rufeng Sect? How could this be?! How could it be like this!” Xue Meng seemed a little anxious and mad, “How can you be related to the Nangong Family by blood? You are. You clearly…”

Mo Ran paused for a moment. In the end, he could only see shadows swaying before he whispered, “Everyone, let’s leave this place first.”

“Mo Ran!”

His voice was hoarse.

For a split-second, Mo Ran tilted his face, as if he wanted to turn around and say something. However, in the end, he did not say anything. He did not linger, no longer hesitating. As he moved forward, the light and shadows moved with his tall figure. Finally, he disappeared at the end of the corridor.

After him, the various great sects began to fight and flee. They appeared aggressive and unstoppable, and when they went out, they were as if fish that escaped the net.

Mo Ran walked alone amidst the rushing torrent of water and the carp's flight through the river.

He did not look back. He did not dare to.

He saw Ye Wangxi in the main hall of the Dragon Soul Pool. He walked over, picked her up since she had yet to awaken and brought her away.

Actually, the person who jumped into the Dragon Soul Pool with his life on the line wasn't Nangong, but rather, it was him.

Although at that time, Mo Ran didn't know that doing so would ensure the safety of Mount Jiao, he actually didn't have the confidence…

What if he knew? Would he really die in place of Nangong Si?

He had already lived for two lifetimes, and despite his entire body full of sins, he was still able to live on. However, Nangong Si had only lived for twenty years, and before he had even walked halfway, he had already turned into dust.

Logically, he knew that Nangong Si was far more valuable than him in this world. However, humans still desired to live.

Suddenly, he heard someone screaming behind him, "Those monsters, those monsters are chasing us!"

"How is this possible?!"

Mo Ran suddenly turned around.

The broken stone had already landed once again when the last group of people was coming out of the tunnel. It was impossible for those chess pieces to break open the rock, unless…

His face went pale.

Unless, among those chess pieces, there was someone who bled from the Nangong Family.

In that split-second, he thought back to the mysterious black rift he had just seen. He suddenly thought of the third forbidden art, the Portal of Life and Death.

Mo Ran only felt a strong chill spreading from the bottom of his feet, spreading across his entire body in an instant.

Could it be that the person who came out was actually —?

No, that's impossible.

Impossible.

This was ridiculous. Even in his previous life, no one had been able to achieve such a feat… Who could do it?!

At this moment, Mei Hanxue retreated to his side, and Mo Ran handed Ye Wangxi to him. With a crazed look in his eyes, he hastily ran in the opposite direction from everyone else.

"Mo Ran!"

"Ran'er!"

Xue Meng and Xue Zhengyong saw him in the torrent. They were shouting at him, but he really didn't know how to face them.

Paper can't wrap fire.

Two lifetimes, the same.

Suddenly, someone grabbed onto his arm. Mo Ran turned his head around. "Shizun?!"

Chu Wanning said, "You can't go. I'll handle those people. Since you are able to activate the Mount Jiao Formation, in order to be absolutely safe, you should stay together with the others and bring them away from this place smoothly."

"…"

"Go quickly!"

While he was speaking, the black clothed man in the lead had already calmly walked out of the passageway. Behind him, all the black robed Daoists with their faces covered appeared one after another.

Chu Wanning said sternly, "Hurry! Take them away!"

There was no choice.

No matter how uncertain or unstable Mo Ran was, he could only retreat with everyone. Xue Meng refused to leave, and was dragged forward by Xue Zhengyong. Eventually, only Chu Wanning and those mysterious cultivators were left in the Dragon Soul Pool hall.

The magma in the Dragon Soul Lake boiled, and an orange light illuminated the cold stone walls.

Chu Wanning stood alone, the Tianwen electric current reflected in his pair of snow-white eyes that were as sharp as a bayonet.

He looked at the mysterious black clothed man in the lead.

As for the man, he was also looking at him through the heavy veil.

The man stood there silently. Behind him, there was someone who could not control his temper and wanted to be the vanguard as he shouted: "How dare you stand alone in the way of so many people? How arrogant! Come, let me experience your powerful technique!"

However, before he could even move ten feet, he was suddenly caught by the man in black.

That person exclaimed, "Your Majesty?!"

The man in black ignored him. He didn't even turn his head around. He was still staring at Chu Wanning's face. The veins on his hand bulged and with a "kacha" sound, he broke the neck of the man who was fighting for the vanguard and threw him on the ground.

Chu Wanning's expression changed slightly.

This man actually killed one of his own?

"Who do you think you are? Do you think you are worthy to be taught by Chu-zongshi?" The man casually walked towards Chu Wanning.

No one dared to move behind him.

Chu Wanning crossed the sky and asked sternly, “Who exactly are you?”

When the man heard his words, he stopped in his tracks.

He stood not too far away from Chu Wanning, an indescribably strange feeling flowing through his eyes. After a while, he chuckled softly and said, “It has been many years since we last met. I didn’t expect that the first words you would say to me would be so bland and salty.”

“… When did I ever know you?”

“Oh, you don’t know him? Chu Wanning, you are always so heartless.” The man moved forward again, and this time he did not stop. Since Chu Wanning was adamant about it, he could not retreat.

Therefore, the man walked right up to him. The distance was extremely dangerous and abrupt.

A cold light flashed from Chu Wanning’s hand as he raised his palm to strike.

With such great agility, he was easily grabbed by the man by the wrist.

“Actually, I have experienced this move many times.” The man lowered his head and stared at Chu Wanning’s face, taking in all the details of his face. His gaze was almost lustful as he said, “But you seem to have forgotten.”

Chu Wanning felt goosebumps all over his body as he stared at him.

He had never been a person who feared the strong, but the look in this person’s eyes was too complicated and too sinister, as though he was hiding an earth-shattering truth and secret. “Who exactly is it?!”

“Do you want me to remind you?” The man said in a deep voice. He was using too much strength in his hands for Chu Wanning to break free.

“The first time you used this move was when I was sixteen. You taught me how to fight in close quarters, and you told me that although this attack seems simple, it is very difficult to learn.”

Chu Wanning suddenly opened his eyes wide and looked at him in disbelief.

There was a smile in the man’s eyes, but also a strange light.

“The second time, you used this move. Back then, when we were fighting, I was caught off guard and was struck by you. I received an extremely heavy injury.”

He held Chu Wanning’s hand and pressed it against his heart.

Chu Wanning suddenly realized that this man did not have a heartbeat.

Like a corpse.

“You… Just who are you?”

“Don’t be impatient.” The man dipped every word into his mouth and then licked his ear. He was even closer now, almost touching Chu Wanning’s face.

He whispered in his ear, “The third time you used this trick was in my bed.”

“…”

“I wanted to get on top of you. You said that it was enough, so you didn’t agree.” He held onto Chu Wanning’s wrist tightly, forcing his hand to slide down his chest until it reached a private place.

Chu Wanning looked as if he had been stung by a snake or scorpion. His expression changed as he went all out, ready to fight to the death with Chu Wanning.

However, the man seemed to be familiar with all his movements and easily dissected all his moves. He then hugged him in his arms and spoke in a soft voice, “What do you think we should do, Chu Wanning? I should have come to kill you and destroy you, but I didn’t expect that after so many years, you would have changed, and I have changed as well.”

“You, let go of me!” Chu Wanning could not have imagined that things would turn out like this. His face was red and red, red and white. He looked like he was about to faint from anger, but he was unable to break free from the man’s grasp no matter how hard he tried.

He was like an inescapable web, like a spiderweb, entangling and embracing him.

Under the watchful eyes of the crowd, he hugged him tightly in his embrace, forcibly, domineeringly, maliciously, and crazily.

Narrow and sticky.

“Hard to the point of pain, hard to the point of swelling.”

“I’ll kill you!”

The man seemed to be amused, but he suddenly smiled and let go. Chu Wanning’s killing intent rose as he moved in a ruthless and fierce manner. He was really going to kill the man in one blow.

His cloak fluttered, and he retreated quickly, floating like a kite and landing firmly on the green brick surface.

However, his face was not spared. He was hacked into two halves by Chu Wanning, falling to the ground.

The man did not look up, his face hidden in the shadow of his hood.

He stayed silent in the shadows for a moment, then sighed and said, “With your temper of always shouting and shouting, you can’t change it. It’s the same no matter where you go. But Chu Wanning, Chu-zongshi…”

The black-clothed man raised his hand and a pitch-black wind attacked from behind.

He caught it quickly.

Chu Wanning caught a glimpse of it. It was the godly weapon blade that had appeared at the Xuanyuan Auction House. It was one of the five Hundred Battle Ferocious Blades that Xu Shuanglin had collected.

The man rubbed his hands together while speaking in a slow and unhurried, extremely vicious tone.

“Are you really willing to kill me?”

After he finished speaking, he suddenly raised his head.

He lowered his hood.

Chu Wanning felt as if a bucket of ice water was being poured over his head, chilling him to the bone. His mind was buzzing, and he was completely numb to it.

In the gloomy hall, the man in black had a handsome face and a pale face. His smile was laced with evil and coquettish emotions; he was both a disaster and a monster.

“Taxian-Jun, Mo Ran.”

Not coming out of the sheath, the frost lit up his purplish black eyes.

Taxian-Jun’s smile was like that of a demon’s, or a tiger’s.

“Please enlighten me, Shizun.”

Ch. 234 [Mount Jiao] The Emperor's Return

At the same time, at the foot of Mount Jiao, other than the people from Jiangdong Hall disappearing, all the other cultivators had successfully escaped. The moment they stepped out of the barrier, even though they knew that they were still in danger, many of them had already exhausted all their energy and collapsed to the ground.

Ma Yun rolled his eyes and lay on a big rock as he wailed, "No! No way! I can't take it anymore. Friends, quickly go back to your homes and put up your guard. We really don't have the strength to continue tormenting you."

Jiang Xi said, "The person who exited the mysterious array has not been thoroughly investigated. Are you going back now?"

"Then what can we do? If we still had the energy to fight them, we wouldn't have escaped in such a sorry state."

Grandmaster Xuanjing also said: "Sect Leader Jiang, we should just listen to Palace Master Ma this time. Rather than stubbornly resisting here and fall into a heroic and miserable situation, it would be better to go back and regroup, and then make preparations."

Jiang Xi pursed his lips and didn't say a word, as he looked at the one standing at the Sisheng Peak. However, Xue Zhengyong and Xue Meng's expressions were very relaxed. They looked at the main road of Mount Jiao until a person walked in from the thick dust cloud.

"Mo Ran…" Xue Meng muttered.

Mo Ran was the last person to come out of the barrier. He frowned as he swept his eyes across the crowd and said, “It’s Zhenlong Chess. It might be related to the first forbidden technique, the Time Death Gate.”

“If that’s the case, who do you think will be the first to leave? You all better hurry up and leave, don’t wait here for your deaths, it’s more important to keep your lives.”

He paused for a moment, and then said to Jiang Xi, “Sect Leader Jiang, may I trouble you to bring everyone to Linling Island, which is protected by the Black Tortoise Formation and can resist Hua Binan for a while. In addition, your sect is called the Medical Sect, and people who have been infected with the Heart Drilling Worm are also allowed to cure the poison.”

Jiang Xi asked, “What about you?”

“Shizun is still on the mountain. After you leave, I will go back and help him. After everything is settled, we will meet up at your sect.”

Jiang Xi did not speak for a long time. In the end, he raised his arms and made a bow towards Mo Ran. He said, “Waiting for Lord Guyue’ye. Farewell.”

Their injuries were severe, they were tired, and they were crippled. They were prepared to leave this place together with Jiang Xi. Mo Ran suddenly called out to him.

“Sect Leader Jiang!”

“Is Mo-zongshi busy?”

Mo Ran said, “Miss Ye…”

“I know, I won’t let anyone hurt her again.”

Only then did Mo Ran relax. Jiang Xi and the others had gone far away, but the people who were at the top of the mountain of the dead had yet to move. Xue Zhengyong paced around for a long time and then asked in a hoarse voice, “Chi’er, what’s going on?”

Mo Ran looked at his uncle, then his cousin, and his heart ached. He forced a smile and said, “It’s a long story, but I will tell you everything. Uncle, you will lead Xue Meng away first. Later, I will tell you the whole story.”

However, Xue Meng did not want to wait so long. His heart was burning with passion as he said, “No, how could you be a member of the Rufeng Sect? You’ve always been brought up on Sisheng, you — you —”

He repeated the word “you” for a long time. Finally, with bloodshot eyes, he squeezed out a sentence: “You are my brother, right?”

Mo Ran stared at him.

Xue Meng was trembling. Although he tried his best to restrain himself, he was still trembling.

His blank and sorrowful expression was really too pitiful. Mo Ran’s throat was sore and he didn’t know what to say.

Finally, he walked up and patted Xue Meng on the shoulder.

“When I first arrived at Sisheng Peak, you didn’t even want to recognize me.” Mo Ran bitterly smiled. He didn’t dare to look at Xue Meng’s wide, misty eyes again.

Those eyes were too clean, too hot.

And he's dirty.

He was afraid.

Xue Meng was silent for a long time before speaking, his voice hoarse. "Can you give me a definite word?"

He gripped the Longcheng tightly. The black ink had already burned his crystal stone, and the curved blade had embedded itself into his body.

He grabbed it like a lifesaver.

In just a short night, he had seen Nangong Si sacrifice himself as a dragon. He had seen how both of Shi Mei's eyes had been destroyed. He had seen Mo Ran pour his blood and unseal the seal that only the people from the Nangong family had been able to open.

He couldn't breathe. He felt like he was about to drown.

Mo Ran in his heart could not bear it, "… Good. I'll give you that promise."

He held Xue Meng's shoulder. He already did not know who was trembling, whether it was Xue Meng or himself, but it was no longer important. He looked into Xue Meng's eyes, word for word.

"Listen, I have never been a member of the Rufeng Sect. In my entire life, I have never done anything that would harm the Sisheng Peak. If possible, I am willing to serve the sect for the rest of my life."

Xue Meng's lips moved, he seemed to want to say something, but before he could finish, his tears had rolled down. He bit his lower lip with all his might, and after biting for a while, broke down: "Shi Mei said that I never understood him, but actually… Actually, I've never understood you either…

I was too willful before, I never thought about it for you, I don't know anything, I don't know anything. But… But…"

He paused, tears streaming down his face.

"But I really do care about you. I won't scold you in the future, and I won't bully you anymore… I think everything is the same as before. As long as things can be the same as before." At the end of his sentence, he sobbed, "Brother, don't lie to me…"

He pushed Xue Meng to Xue Zhengyong's side, his voice soft and moist, like the dew on a flower at dawn.

"Be obedient, go with uncle. I'll come look for you guys the moment things here are settled."

After he finished speaking, he turned around and returned to the Mount Jiao Spirit Formation. He placed the seal on the barrier and did not look back again.

The tiles and bricks within the Dragon Soul Pond's great hall were broken, and the stone pillars toppled over. The fierce battle had passed, and only the smoke remained. Taxian-Jun's Saber was placed on Chu Wanning's neck. He used a bit more force and the blood that flowed out from his skin dyed the blade black.

Chu Wanning closed his eyes and pursed his lips in silence.

"Shizun, you have been too absent-minded in this fight."

"…"

“You’re not focusing.” Taxian-Jun pulled him up from the ground and lifted his finger. Bu’gui didn’t return instantly, but at the same time, he cast his strongest restriction on Chu Wanning. The eerie green light tightly bound him, and he pinched Chu Wanning’s chin to force him to raise his head.

“Tell me, what are you thinking about?”

Chu Wanning slowly opened his eyes. The reflection of his eyes revealed a face that was extremely familiar and foreign to him.

He felt a chill run down his spine.

He knew that this was not Mo Ran, but this person’s moves were all so similar to Mo Ran. What was even more horrifying was that he suddenly felt as if he had seen this face in his dreams.

There were many times in his dreams that he would wallow in love with Mo Ran. He always seemed to have a slightly pale and thin face with an evil aura lurking within his handsomeness. His pitch-black pupils could not see any warmth, only viciousness and only madness.

“Actually, even if you didn’t say anything, I would have still known.” He spoke slowly, “Shizun must be thinking, who am I, and what nonsense I am spouting, and where did I come from.”

His fingers caressed Chu Wanning’s cheeks.

“No rush. These… I can tell you all about it. By the way…” His gaze shifted down to Chu Wanning’s left hand.

“Jiuge and Huaisha, don’t even think about summoning them. This Venerable one has long been on guard, and will not repeat the same mistakes as back then.”

Hearing him mention the names of his other two godly weapons, Chu Wanning's face turned even uglier. Although his eyes were gloomy, they were still filled with confusion. Taxian-Jun had probably been pleased by his stubborn and blank expression, to the point where he started to chuckle.

He touched Chu Wanning's face and asked, "What's wrong? Do you wonder how I know Jiuge and Huaisha? However, this is no wonder. I already received the news long before I came, so I understand this world fairly well. I know that the 'I' of this time and space 'has not finished stepping on the mountains of corpses and the seas of blood, forcing you to draw your sword against him. Naturally, he has never seen those two godly weapons before."

"This mortal world's… You?"

Taxian-Jun, the cultivator just smiled and didn't reply.

Chu Wanning suddenly felt a chill run down his spine. He felt that the way this Mo Ran was looking at him was like looking at a corpse or a dream. His eyes were too naked, too crazy, and they were filled with emotions that could drive a normal person crazy.

"The Gates of Life and Death." He slowly said, "Shizun should be very knowledgeable about this forbidden art."

"!"

"In the other cultivation world, Shizun, you have already been dead for many years."

He looked at Chu Wanning's pale face and saw that the last bit of blood had left his skin. Taxian-Jun stared at him, his eyes shining with a bright light.

Suddenly, it was as if a flood dragon had just jumped out of its scabbard and broken through the water.

This person's calm state of mind seemed to be stretched to its limits. He suddenly grabbed Chu Wanning up, and gradually became a little crazy, "Yes… That's it, that's the face."

"…"

"This is the face. I look at your face, I look at you lying like a dead man in the Red Lotus Pavilion, every night. You don't have any trace of blood on your face. Your corpse is rotten, but you will never speak or open your eyes. In that cultivation world, you have long been dead — you have taken revenge on me!"

He took a deep breath, the light in his eyes blazing.

Desperately, the flames were surging and the dragons and snakes were dancing in the air.

"Chu Wanning, I hate you. Leave me alone."

As he said this, he raised his arms and hugged him.

So hot.

It was like fire.

He was stung by the warmth he hadn't felt in a long time, and a deep sigh came from his throat. He clung to him, holding him, wishing he could rub him into his bones and blood and swallow him into his lungs and live from then on be either dead or warm or cold.

He was always accompanied by martyrs and no longer hung up.

No, no, no!

Chu Wanning's scalp was tingling and his vision was turning black. He didn't know what was going on exactly. He didn't understand, who was dead? Who left one person?

The door to the Dragon Soul Pool opened once again.

From within the moving light and shadows, a person hastily walked over. That person anxiously called out, "Shizun!"

Hundreds of soldiers were on guard, blocking the way.

When Taxian-Jun heard this voice, he was stunned for a moment, then laughed coldly. "So it's him." He lazily waved his hand and said to the chess pieces that were following him, "Disperse. It's alright. Let him in."

He felt that Hua Binan was definitely not the last person to do this. If all of this had been designed by Hua Binan, then there was no reason for him to harm Xu Shuanglin like this in front of the Soul Summoning Platform. Xu Shuanglin would not be able to recognize him.

Then, who was the last hand?

He had a crazy idea in his mind. The idea made him feel cold all over, but he didn't believe it. He didn't believe it when he ran all the way. He didn't believe it was true.

Until he broke into the Dragon Soul Hall.

Until he could clearly see that person.

Mo Ran only felt a buzzing sound in his head as all the blood rushed into his brain. For a moment, he was unable to breathe. His lips moved, and his eyes were bloodshot.

No…

No!

How could this be true?

The man in the hall, under the crowd of people, had such a disdainful and cold expression, yet his eyes were also so disdainful and playful.

He watched Mo Ran indifferently.

They had the same facial features, nose, lips, face, charm, and physique.

The difference was within a few seconds. He looked like he was looking at himself in a mirror, but also looked like he was looking at himself through the passage of time.

The corner of Taxian-Jun's mouth quirked upwards as he let out a smile that reeked of blood.

He held Chu Wanning in front of him, tapped his lips with his fingertip and cast a silent incantation. Then, he smiled at the person at the door and said,

“Oh, Mo-zongshi, I’ve heard of Mo-zongshi’s fame and have been curious about him for a long time. Now that the Gate of Life and Death has been opened, we can finally meet again.”

He paused for a moment, his eyes flashing with a ghostly light. His white teeth knocked on his chest as he typed out two sweet and cold words.

“Nice to meet you.”

Ch. 235 [Mount Jiao] Going All the Way

“Why…” Mo Ran took a step back and muttered while shaking his head,

“How is this possible? It’s really you…?”

“Yes, it’s me.”

Taxian-Jun slowly looked at him, then smiled: “Oh… I originally thought that after you were reborn, you wouldn’t be able to remember too much of what happened in your previous life, but looking at your current state, it seems like you’re still very clear about everything.”

“…”

“And judging from your expression, you seem to have guessed at my existence. If that’s the case, then you’re not that stupid.”

Mo Ran stammered. He had many words to say. Those words were about to rush out of his throat as he bared his teeth, but in the end, the person who had rushed out of his encirclement was only an angry shout of disbelief. “But you’re clearly dead!”

“Oh?”

“You had already taken it back at the Wushan Palace. The Poison, there’s no way you could have survived! You died in front of Heaven-Piercing Tower and were buried in a coffin underneath a tree.”

Taxian-Jun smiled. “That’s not good enough.”

His eyes were like the beak of a bird of prey, ready to tear through Mo-zongshi’s body.

“How about I say one for you?” He spoke softly and slowly as if he was toying with someone. He then smiled, “Yes, I am indeed dead. The person who can best prove that I am dead is standing in front of me right now.”

Mo Ran: “…”

“Because you are the spirit soul that I just escaped from.” Immortal Taxian-Jun laughed. “The most compassionate of all, Mo-zongshi, is that even in the world of mortals, someone would frequently come to me to tell me about your… What, heroic good deeds?”

He grinned.

“You are really interesting. I thought you didn’t remember too much about your past life, which was why you acted like nothing happened. But you actually remember it.”

“…” Mo Ran gritted his teeth.

“Ah, Mo-zongshi, do you really think that as long as you remain silent, no one will know the truth? Do you think you can start over just by putting down the butcher’s knife? Most importantly, do you think that…”

Taxian-Jun’s actions became even more ruthless. He grabbed Chu Wanning by the neck, his nails digging into his flesh. He pinched his skin so hard that it turned purple. He frowned furiously, but couldn’t say a single word.

“Do you really think that now that there is no fire in my world, I will still be kind and let you enjoy the light by yourself?”

“Don’t touch him!”

Taxian-Jun laughed, “Don’t touch him? Don’t you think it’s ridiculous for you to say that to This Venerable one?”

He held Chu Wanning in his arms and slowly walked in circles.

He and Mo Ran looked at each other.

Immortal Taxian-Jun was staring at Mo-zongshi.

Mo Ran stared at him.

In his previous life, he had been staring at this life.

Taxian-Jun mocked him, “Don’t you know how I touched him? And now you’re putting on an act again, acting like a good person.”

“Don’t say it!”

“Hmm? Why not? Don’t you think those things are funny and unpleasant? It’s been so many years since we’ve last met. Don’t you think you should take it out and happily chat with me?”

Mo Ran could not help but shake his head. His face was probably even uglier than Chu Wanning’s right now. He was both angry and helpless, both guilty and desperate, “Don’t say anything.”

“Oh, so you want This Venerable one to shut up just like that? Interesting, our wise and kind Mo-zongshi seems to be…” Taxian-Jun considered for a moment before spitting out three words. “I seem to be very afraid.”

Mo Ran couldn’t wait any longer. He saw Chu Wanning being held tightly in Taxian-Jun’s embrace, and a violent surge of emotions surged through his heart. He didn’t know what to do, he just wanted to stop this demon in front of him from speaking. He just wanted to bury all the ugly things from his past in the ground and seal them in a coffin.

The red starfire crackled in the air, the flames were even more ferocious and ruthless than ever before.

Avoiding the attack, Taxian-Jun's expression changed slightly: "… Tianwen?"

No, he already knew the answer after he finished speaking. This willow branch shining with red light was not Tianwen.

"… Your new godly weapon is quite interesting." Taxian-Jun's face was slightly complicated. He stared at the cane for a moment, then raised his head to look at Mo Ran. His expression turned even colder.

"If that's the case…"

As he spoke, he passed Chu Wanning over to a subordinate behind him. Then, he raised his hand and called for Bu'gui, "Come, let's exchange moves with me. I am curious, whether I am more powerful when holding the whip than when I am not."

As he said that, he used his finger to wipe the blade inch by inch. A green light surged out as his spirit energy was quenched to the peak.

At the same time, Mo-zongshi's fingers grazed the willow vine inch by inch. Bloody red light spewed out in all directions, and the flame was blazing ferociously.

"Fire element?" Taxian-Jun laughed, "Although I have a wood fire dual attributed Spiritual Core, I clearly remember that I'm more adept at using wood than fire. Why did your temper change?"

Mo Ran remained silent. His expression was cold and solemn. He pursed his lips and a trace of sadness could be seen in his eyes.

They were the eyes of someone standing on the edge of a cliff, on the verge of collapse.

“Clang!”

Two nearly identical figures jumped up into the air and clashed fiercely with each other.

Like a flood dragon encountering a whale, a flood struck down upon a ferocious beast. In an instant, the bricks of the Dragon Soul Hall were splattered everywhere, and rocks flew everywhere. Their surging torrent even lifted up the magma in the Dragon Blood Pool, spewing out a height of a few dozen feet in one go and trickling down onto the ground.

Everyone was attuning to the spirit, preventing the overflowing lava from burning them.

Taxian-Jun and Mo-zongshi were no exception. The two of them fought intensely while the sound of their blades clashing rang out. The black shadow pounced towards the black shadow, its bloody eyes locked onto the despairing one. Each and every move of its attack was at its peak, causing the fire lightning to surge violently!

Another sharp whistle of a weapon rang out. Both of them pointed their feet and leaped into the air. Jiangui and Bu’gui clashed against each other, causing the Spiritual Energy to splash out and reflect the two pale faces.

One came back to life.

One is nothing but death.

As he fought back with his strength, a thousand lumps of snow appeared in Taxian-Jun's eyes. He then shouted out sternly, "Bu'gui, temper your spirit!"

Mo-zongshi gritted his teeth and said in a low voice, "Jiangui. Temper your Spirit."

In the blink of an eye, their spiritual energy gushed into the Divine Martial Realm. The two godly weapons emitted a brilliant light as they clashed against each other — in the end, there was only the sound of an explosion.

Both of them groaned as they landed on the ground on their left and right sides, gasping for breath. They did not feel the pain in their wounds at all as they paid full attention to each other. They are like beasts in a cage, either you die or I live.

Taxian-Jun's eyes were dark. "The moves of your Whip of the Vines are too similar to his."

"He" naturally referred to Chu Wanning.

Mo-zongshi did not wish to waste any more time with Taxian-Jun. His eyes flashed with killing intent, "You are still not leaving?!"

"You want me to scram? Mo Xianyu, what qualifications do you have to do so? After being covered with sheepskin for so long, you can't have forgotten that your lips are still stained with sheep's blood."

He didn't even say a single word before he leaped up once again. He was going to fight to the death. However, how could he not be clear about his own movements? It was as if he was looking at his own reflection in the lake, and the moment his blade descended, he had already retreated several meters back, and the blazing sun beneath his feet was blazing with raging flames.

As the two of them advanced and retreated, their actions were as expected of the other. In the blink of an eye, over a hundred rounds of peak battle had concluded, neither side was able to gain an advantage over the other.

Taxian-Jun was panting heavily as well. They continued to hover there, staring at each other as they continued to spin around in circles.

Sweat seeped between his pitch-black brows, and after a moment of concentration, it suddenly started dripping down.

Mo Ran gritted his teeth and whispered, “What are you doing all this for?”

“Like I said, Shizun is gone from this world. Don’t be so delusional as to take all the fire for yourself.”

Mo Ran suddenly flew into a rage, “That will also be your last strike!”

“But I can’t get him.” Taxian-Jun said, “Besides, is there any difference between us? This Venerable one’s hands are covered in blood, and you’re just clean? Why am I the only one who can fall asleep in the middle of the night, while you can only guard your Shizun’s orders, your ridiculous uncle and cousin — why is it you?”

Upon hearing his words, Mo Ran was suddenly startled. After a long while, he said, “You’ve already obtained it.”

“…”

Mo Ran gazed at his own past self. He had always thought about this, but he had never said the words out loud. He just muttered them aloud like this, “What you got was that you stepped on him yourself. You personally extinguished him.”

Taxian-Jun’s expression suddenly became extremely dangerous. His nose wrinkled slightly, and his eyes seemed to be filled with the roiling waves of an evil Flood Dragon. He was so gloomy that even his self-proclaimed self had unconsciously changed: “I destroyed him? Ridiculous. How do you know that he didn’t destroy me?”

“You don’t know the truth about the ‘Heavenly Rift’!”

“I don’t need to know. Mo Weiyu, it’s already too late. I feel that this is pretty good. As long as he is alive, he is mine. It doesn’t matter if he is happy, or unwilling, or hating me, or resenting me. It doesn’t matter.”

He paused. “I just want to see him.”

Mo Ran’s voice was boiling with anger and pain. He trembled slightly as he spoke, “You have already destroyed him once. You still want to destroy yourself, and you also want to destroy him in this world… The second time…”

Taxian-Jun suddenly revealed a beautiful face as he looked at Mo Ran’s face from head to toe.

Then he said, “What is there to destroy? Don’t you think so? It doesn’t matter whether this person is dead or alive, as long as he is in your hands, you can do whatever you want.”

Mo Ran shook his head, closed his eyes and said hoarsely, “You are wrong. You shouldn’t have done this to him. He’s the best man in the world for you.”

“How ridiculous.” Taxian-Jun’s smile suddenly tightened, “He’s the best person in the world to treat me like this? Then what about Shi Mei? Mo-zongshi, don’t you think that you’re laughable? The person you should be thinking about is the person who has always treated you gently and has never looked down on you, Shi Mingjing. You’re telling me that Chu Wanning is the best person in the world? Do you know what you’re talking about?”

“The person who doesn’t know what he’s talking about is you!”

They stuck close together, their spirit energy hissing as they collided with each other.

Mo Ran was burning red in the eyes.

“He used up all his sincerity when he was with you, but he was very stupid. A lot of things have been done so stupidly that he won’t tell you. Wake up, the person you like isn’t Shi Mei. In all these years, when have you ever had such an intense desire for Shi Mei? Who were you thinking about when you were lying on the empty bed in the Wushan Palace?”

“… This Venerable one does not deny that he had a good fuck.” Taxian-Jun said calmly, “But so what? He will never be a substitute for Shi Mei.”

Upon hearing his words, Mo Ran, who clearly belonged to his previous life, was so angry that his blood was boiling and his head was buzzing. He gritted his teeth and said, “You are not allowed to insult him.”

Taxian-Jun narrowed his eyes, “What, you’re protecting him now, is he involved with you again?”

“…”

“You’ve been in love with him before?”

His eyes narrowed like a snake’s.

The power and spiritual energy in their hands didn’t stop. The powerful magic techniques they used made it so that the other chess pieces couldn’t even hold on. Some people even curled up on the ground.

Taxian-Jun stared at Mo Ran for a while before his eyes landed on Chu Wanning. He muttered to himself, “Mo-zongshi, I’ve heard that Shi Mei is still alive and well in this world. However, you must treat him like this.”

Mo Ran did not know how to argue with such a person who came from the Gate of Life and Death, nor did he know how to revive.

Finally he said, “What about you? Now that you’ve come to this world, Shi Mei is still alive and well. But when I came in, why were you holding onto my Shizun so tightly?”

“Your Shizun?” Taxian-Jun rolled his eyes, and said with a mocking expression, “Heh, you yourself know what sort of person your Shizun is to me.”

“…”

“Do you think I can hug him?”

Mo Ran was determined to get him to let go of Chu Wanning, so he asked, “You think you’re worthy calling him Shizun?”

“Shi Mei is such a pure and swarthy person, of course, he cannot be desecrated. But Chu Wanning is different. He looks cold, arrogant, strong and conceited, but have you forgotten how he looks like when he is acting?”

Mo Ran did not expect him to say it in such a straightforward manner. He was stunned.

Then, he couldn’t help but think of Chu Wanning hiding underneath him and groaning. Even though he didn’t want to, he thought about how, in his previous life, Chu Wanning had finally succumbed to his desire and crazily pestered him to cater to his desires. He was soaked in sweat and had an animal-like sex.

The phoenix eyes that were filled with dissatisfaction and shame, yet were covered with mist, slightly closed. Chu Wanning’s eyes lost focus, his lips slightly opened as he gasped for breath.

He closed his eyes abruptly and reopened them again. His eyes were burning with anger, “I am not the same as you! All my life. I still haven’t…I still…”

“What do you mean you still haven’t?” This time, Taxian-Jun didn’t understand.

He felt that he had never pitied Chu Wanning, so he could not imagine the love and restraint Mo Ran showed in bed.

After a while, he finally understood from the other party’s angry and embarrassed expression. However, after realizing what had happened, he was even more stunned.

“Are you joking?”

“…”

“Haven’t you and him…”

Mo Ran gritted his teeth. The bloody red light was about to materialize at any moment, tearing the entire Dragon Soul Hall apart.

Taxian-Jun laughed out loud. “Mo-zongshi, I suddenly feel like you are not related to me anymore. Are you still me? Hmm?”

Of the two of them, one was like a mad dog, while the other was as loyal as a dog.

He bared his teeth and laughed.

The loyal ones were silent and blushing, stubbornly and resolutely confronting him.

It was just that the look on the loyal dog’s face when he was faced with the monstrous past that he had cast down was actually extremely pitiful and helpless.

It was hard to tell who would emerge victorious in this battle.

Taxian-Jun was beginning to get a bit tired.

He suddenly said, “Alright, I’ve played enough with you. Mo-zongshi, it’s time to meet with the truth.”

As he said this, he waved his hand. Those Zhenlong chess pieces that had listened to his commands to stand still at the edge of the stage rushed up one after another.

“This is your true seal?”

Taxian-Jun left the battle and strolled towards Chu Wanning. As he walked, he turned his head and said with a sneer, “The chess pieces that I made were naturally my battle prowess. How could they not be real?”

Mo Ran saw him holding the knife, patting Chu Wanning on the cheek, and then he raised his hand and pinched his face, saying something to him in a sweet manner.

He could not take it anymore. In his rage, he had forgotten that there was a connection between Chu Wanning and his Bu’gui. He shouted, “No!”

The blade flashed with a bright light and actually started to shake in the hands of Taxian-Jun. It seemed to be hesitating and struggling.

It did not know who it should listen to.

Taxian-Jun frowned, then lowered his head to look at his own blade. “Oh? Do you want to listen to him?”

However, it was at this moment that Chu Wanning suddenly felt a splitting pain in his brain.

The dreams he had experienced, the messy fragments, rolled into his mind like sand.

Scarlet red sheets, with a pungent smell of animal skins.

Intertwined limbs.

Kneeling outside the main hall in the snow, the palace maid could only mock him arrogantly.

Taxian-Jun felt his strangeness and lifted his hand to remove the silence curse. He then asked, “What’s wrong with you?”

Chu Wanning didn’t want to answer, he was in excruciating pain and his head felt like it was about to split open.

He saw the ashes of the skeletons that blotted out the sky, the crabs’ blue skies filled with dead ashes, and a man in black robes standing between the sky and the earth, with corpses all over the field.

“Shizun.” The man turned around. It was Mo Ran’s face. He had an evil grin on his face.

He was holding something bright red in his hands.

On closer look, it was a beating heart.

“You finally came. Are you trying to stop me?”

He exerted a little more force and the heart burst open in his hand, revealing the sparkling and dazzling spirit core inside. Mo Ran absorbed the spirit core into his own palm.

He walked towards him, closing in step by step.

“I didn’t expect that Shizun and disciple would be unable to escape from this battle for the rest of our lives.”

Chu Wanning closed his eyes, the veins on his forehead were popping out and there was a surge in blood flow.

Taxian-Jun felt that his expression was off. He raised his finger and touched his cheek, then turned his chin over. “What’s wrong? Pain?”

“…” Chu Wanning trembled slightly under his fingers.

Taxian-Jun got even more confused. He frowned and said, “I didn’t hurt you too much. How come you became so weak?”

Seeing that Chu Wanning was still silent, he raised his eyebrows as if he wanted to say something, but before he could open his mouth, he heard a heavy cracking sound from outside.

Taxian-Jun’s expression changed slightly. “Someone broke the barrier forcefully?”

His eyes were like lightning as he suddenly turned his head.

However, he saw an apricot-colored shadow flying over with astonishing speed. The path was strange and eerie, as though it was a ghost.

In the blink of an eye, Chu Wanning was captured by that man.

Mo Ran said, “Shizun!”

Taxian-Jun said, “Wanning!”

“…”

The two men who had shouted at the same time looked at each other with disgust in their eyes. However, Mo Ran and Taxian-Jun turned back and stared at the uninvited guest whose cassock was fluttering in the sky.

Master Huaizui.

The expression on Huaizui’s face was not that good. Compared to five years ago, his expression was much more withered, but the sharp look in his eyes did not decrease in the slightest. It was as if the rivers and seas had condensed and rippled.

Mo Ran was relieved. He did not know why Huaizui had suddenly appeared, but since this person was willing to use the Rebirth Technique to save Chu Wanning, it was likely that he would not harm his Shizun.

However, Taxian-Jun had never seen him before, so his expression became very dangerous: “What a good little bald donkey, where did you come from? You must be another foe.”

Huaizui shot a glance at him before his gaze landed on Mo Ran.

He did not seem to be surprised by the appearance of the two Mo Weiyus. On his face, there was a look of worry instead of surprise.

“Benefactor Mo.” There were too many people here. In order to prevent Taxian-Jun Jun from hearing it, he used a voice transmission to send this message to Mo Ran, “I can’t stay here any longer. Come to Mount Longxue and see me quickly.”

He paused and then added two words, “Must be quick.”

As soon as he finished speaking, he disappeared as fast as the wind. Regardless of whether it was Zhenlong chess or the barrier that protected Mount Jiao, it seemed that they couldn’t stop him.

There was even a moment where Mo Ran could see that one of the cultivators had already grabbed his arm, but in the next moment, his figure was already far away outside the hall. The cultivator had nothing in his hand, only a lump of ice-cold air.

Taxian-Jun was about to rush out to catch up, but suddenly, a sharp whistle came from the sky. His face turned serious as he cursed in his heart: “At this time?”

The whistling sound was sharp and ear-piercing. His eyebrows were twisted into a stream as he squinted his eyes. Although he was unwilling, his finger still pointed to the sky, “Consider yourself lucky. Next time, there will be a chance for us to fight.”

As he said this, he led the rolling wave of chess pieces and quickly retreated in the direction of the Soul Summoning Platform.

The fierceness of this battle also left quickly.

There was no one left in the Dragon Soul Hall. Mo Ran rushed out of the Soul Summoning Platform, only to see Taxian-Jun leaping up and flying towards the center of the formation. The precious pawns followed him one after another, and in an instant, they were all swallowed up by the endless darkness.

After the last wave of cultivators entered, the formation immediately began to shrink and distort before disappearing into the night. Only a crescent moon remained in the sky with a hint of scarlet.

The Gate of Life and Death in Time and Space closed.

Mo Ran stood on top of the Soul Summoning Platform. Looking at the endless night and the mess on the ground, he felt a chill in his heart, unable to recover for a long time. It was like a dream, but he knew it wasn’t. He knew in his heart that everything that happened today was just the beginning.

He… It was a ghost that had been reborn from the dead.

Some things are only a matter of time, there is no escape.

The sin he had committed was like a sharp sword hanging over his head.

At last he was found guilty and killed.

He seemed to see Taxian-Jun's ferocious eyes that seemed to be suffused with red light. He laughed sinisterly: "Redemption? How to atone for it? You and I are the same. You should never even think of washing off the blood on your body."

He saw Xue Meng in his previous life shouting at him with all his might, "Mo Weiyu! I wish I could cut you into a thousand pieces! I will never forgive you even if you're reborn!"

He heard the terrifying sound of Song Qiutong falling into the boiling oil, screamed instantly. He heard Ye Wangxi say that there was not a single man in all the 70 cities of the Rufeng Sect. He saw Xu Shuanglin standing in front of Ye Wangxi with a face full of determination and anxiety.

"Foster father!"

The sound was like a sharp awl piercing into one's ears.

Blood flowed freely.

Finally, in the flickering light, in the foul past, he saw a figure in the nightmare of yesterday.

Pale and peaceful.

Standing under the haitang tree, he turned his head and faintly smiled amidst the brilliant light of the sky and the shadows of the clouds.

“Mo Ran.”

“…”

“I’ve let you down, and I don’t blame you for dying.”

He suddenly knelt down. After going through a bloody battle all night, his clothes were in a sorry state, and his whole body was covered in blood. Under the reflection of the moon, he was stunned for a while, then he curled up like an ant and started to tremble with sobs.

“Shizun… Shizun…”

He moaned, and choked with sobs, “It’s not like that… It wasn’t me. Please. Please. That’s not me…”

“I want to go back, I want to start over. I can pay any price, I’m begging you…”

“I can give my heart up, as long as you don’t let me die under the title of Taxian-Jun.”

“I really… I really didn’t want to be that person anymore… I beg you…”

He thought of Xue Meng and of Shi Mei.

He thought of the string of candied fruits Xue Meng had given him when he was young, and proudly told him if he liked it or not.

He thought about how before he left, Xue Meng tightly held onto his shirt with tears in his eyes and told him, “Brother, don’t lie to me.”

He thought of how Shi Mei had come to see him when he was a teenager, holding a burning hand and telling him, A-Ran, I don't have any parents. From now on, we are family, okay?

He thought of Shi Mei on the Soul Summoning Platform, his eyes wide open as blood and tears streamed down his face. He said, In fact, you never understood me.

Then, he thought of Xue Zhengyong and Madam Wang.

Thinking about how they died in their previous life, thinking about how Xue Meng's face was submerged in a sea of blood and deep hatred.

He thought of Chu Wanning.

He choked up.

His fingers clung to the ground, so hard that his knuckles were torn and lacerated.

"What should I do… What should I do…"

He howled in despair and grief, like a trapped beast that had been whipped to the point where its skin and flesh was torn and its bones were mangled.

At this moment, he suddenly understood. He had thought that Taxian-Jun was an outsider from the mortal world, so what about him? Isn't he the same? He suddenly didn't know how big the world was, or where it was peaceful. He suddenly didn't know who could forgive him since his old friend was still here.

He came out more.

He was curled up, trembling.

He wailed and hugged himself.

It was just like many years ago, in a place of mass graves, beside the rotted remains of his mother.

Tears streamed down his face. He didn't know where he would stop, nor did he know where his home would be.

At this moment, he was even more miserable than when he was a child.

He was suddenly not so sure. Just who was he, Mo Weiyu?

Immortal Emperor Taxian-Jun, Mo-zongshi.

The seventh generation Nangong Family bloodline, Second young master retrieved to Sisheng Peak.

An unforgivable fiend.

A master of good will.

The sharp edges of every fragment was enough to completely destroy him thousands of times.

Dead.

Alive.

He was all alone.

"I'm not Taxian-Jun…" It was cold. Every inch of his body was trembling. He closed his eyes as tears streamed down his face and he sobbed, "I am not the emperor Taxian-Jun… What to do… I really don't know what to do. Spare me… Spare me…"

But who should he beg? Chu Wanning? His past self? The countless evil spirits that had died under his hands? It was still a matter of living in isolation.

No one could give him forgiveness, no one could.

He buried his face in his palms. In this desolate world, he finally choked with sobs:

"What the hell… Just what else can I do…"

Ch. 236 [Mount Longxue] Parinirvana

After coming out of Mount Jiao, Mo Ran was like a wooden sculpture. His eyes were a little stiff as he walked forward in silence.

He stood at a fork in the road, lost in thought.

The great battle had already passed. The rising sun had risen to the east, and the morning glow had washed away all the lead from the night. Only dewdrops and the scent of grass remained, just like greasy powder floating in the morning light.

He turned his head and looked at the lofty peaks. Then he looked at the road ahead. Straight ahead was Linling Island. Xue Meng and his uncle were both waiting for him, waiting for an explanation and an answer. But he couldn't go. He had to go to Mount Longxue.

Mo Ran vaguely understood. The things that the Master Huaizui knew were far more than he had imagined. Otherwise, he wouldn't have been so calm when he saw the Emperor Taxian-Jun. Perhaps it was because of this that he became even more at a loss.

He didn't know what was waiting for him in front of him.

At this moment, his mind was in a mess. He was not in the mood to think, and in the end, he could only numbly understand…

He had to go, because his Shizun was there.

In the early years of the old times, there were monks who would occasionally go up the mountain to meditate, meditate, and meditate.

However, there were many people who were confused. Many people said that they had encountered a matter of ghosts beating the walls, and once they entered, they wouldn't be able to leave. As a result, they gradually became a barren mountain.

After a day of travelling with the Imperial Sword, he finally arrived at the foot of the Mount Longxue at sunset. He had not eaten or drank anything the entire day, so he was already very tired. So when he saw a stream of clear spring water flowing out from the cypress trees, he walked over, scooped up a handful of water, and washed his face.

First the mud, then the melted blood, and finally his face, reflected in the rippling water.

It wasn't an ugly face, but Mo Ran stared at it for a moment, feeling nothing but disgust and hatred. He broke the surface of the water, shattering the reflection, then closed his eyes and rubbed his face against his palm, almost painfully.

Is there any way in this world that can completely separate a person's past from his present? Are there any sharp weapons that can remove the rotten memories from my mind?

Is there anyone who can save him? Who can tell him "you are not Taxian-Jun, you are just Mo Ran, you are just Mo Weiyu."

But when he opened his eyes, the water was calm again, and the man inside was still staring at him with hatred and despair.

He knew he had no way out.

He got up and went up the mountain.

Halfway up the mountain, a fog suddenly rose up. It was so thick that one couldn't see one's own fingers even though one couldn't see them.

At first, Mo Ran thought it was a sneak attack, but after sensing it, he did not feel any malice at all.

It was not early anymore. The sound of rhododendrons could occasionally be heard from the forest. The surroundings gradually became colder. The sunlight slowly disappeared, and the surroundings became dark.

"Shizun?"

His voice was a little hoarse, and he rubbed it as he walked forward.

"Master Huaizui?"

No one answered him.

Strangely, though he was walking blindly, he was not stopped. The path was creepy, as if someone had set him up in the fog and was waiting for him to fall into a trap.

"Is anyone there?"

The fog gradually dissipated.

The scenery in front of his eyes became clearer and clearer. Thick mist descended, and the mountain rocks and trees appeared before his eyes.

He discovered that he had unknowingly arrived at a flat and open area. When he turned around, the path he took was still covered in mist. Only this area was filled with vegetation, and the moon was bright and the stars were sparse.

He stepped on the dewy grass, moving forward, and then he saw the back of a person.

Mo Ran was stunned for a moment before running forward in panic, calling out anxiously, “Shizun?!”

Chu Wanning was kneeling in front of a cave covered by a Violet Vine. In front of him, the Master Huaizui was sitting cross-legged with his eyes closed. His expression was calm, and he was completely silent.

“Shizun! You…”

He was suddenly rendered speechless when he saw Chu Wanning turn his head around. His eyelashes were moist and there were tears on his face.

Mo Ran was stunned. “What’s wrong?”

Chu Wanning did not say anything. He had always been suppressing himself, ever since a long time ago. He had always been aloof, serious, and awe-inspiring. It seemed that when he was born, he was an elder, an immortal cultivator, and was not weak or young.

“Mo Ran…”

But this time, he used up all his strength, but he only said two words. He could no longer hold back his sobs and they flowed out of his lips.

Mo Ran muttered as he stepped forward, walking to his side. He knelt down and hugged him tightly. “What’s wrong? Why are you crying?”

As he spoke, he lowered his head and stroked Chu Wanning’s hair. Chu Wanning was feeling cold, but now that he found him, he could still hug him, while his heart felt hot.

His every moment of safety was stolen, and every word he said to Chu Wanning became a godsend. If he could get even a little bit more, he would treat it as a treasure, and would not dare to take it lightly.

“Alright, alright.” Even though he was helpless, he still hugged him to his warm and wide chest, comforting him, “It’s okay, I’m here, I’m here.”

As he spoke, he kissed Chu Wanning’s forehead. At this moment, he suddenly realized that even though he was hiding in his arms and restraining himself, he was still trembling and crying. His fingers tightly gripped the lapel of his shirt, looking very much like the shidi in the Peach Blossom Spring who would never appear again.

No one was born to be an expert, so Chu Wanning should also have a young face.

Mo Ran’s heart trembled as he seemed to have understood something. He hugged the trembling Chu Wanning and kissed him, stroking his hair as he looked at master Huaizui.

The old monk sat on a huge, ice-cold rock, his eyebrows furrowed, his eyelashes lowered. His half-closed eyes had no light in them, and in his hand he held a haitang flower, slightly leaning forward, as if he was giving it to someone. But that person must have refused his good intentions. The flowers had already decayed, and only a few had yet to wilt from the branches.

Master Huaizui was dead.

At the last moment, the face of this person who was hiding many myths and many mysteries was not at ease at all.

His expression was pained.

What was even more unbearable was that after his death, his face no longer retained the appearance of a thirty year old youth. He had thoroughly become a thorny old monk, and for some reason, his face was being eaten away by a golden bug at a speed visible to the naked eye.

“This insect…”

“It’s a worm.” Chu Wanning finally opened his mouth, but his voice was frighteningly hoarse, “People who hate their looks will make blood contracts with these bugs. The worm can change the host’s appearance, and in return, on the day the host dies, the worm will devour the host’s entire body.”

Listening to him trying to keep his tone even as he spoke slowly, Mo Ran could not help but hug him even more tightly. The person in his arms had probably been kneeling there for a long time, his hands and feet were cold.

From his previous life until now, it had always been Chu Wanning who was his lighthouse. His flames were dispersing the darkness of the night, giving him a feeling of warmth that was within his capabilities.

However, Mo Ran embraced him at this moment and felt that the person in his embrace was made of ice.

He was cold.

His heart ached.

“I’m here, I’m here.”

“He told me to come to Mount Longxue a long time ago.” Chu Wanning looked extremely exhausted, as if someone had drained all of his warm blood and injected it with endless pain and suffering.

“He knew that I would not speak to him face to face, and would not listen to any of his explanations, so he had left me a letter in which he had spoken with all his might, but I was still headstrong, and I refused to believe him. I was suspicious of him.”

Mo Ran touched his face. He had never seen Chu Wanning like this.

Not even in his previous life.

This did not stop him from panicking. He asked, “What happened?”

However, Chu Wanning only replied, “I was the one who suspected him…”

This person, who had always been calm and rational, had finally broken into pieces.

He was like a horned bow, and his bowstring was stretched to the point where it suddenly snapped. He trembled in Mo Ran’s arms, so desperately, so pitifully.

Chu Wanning was curled up on his back. Once a person who had been tensed for half a lifetime collapsed, the accumulated grief would be enough to burst a dam, “I should have come here a long time ago… If I had listened to him, many things wouldn’t have happened. Nangong Si wouldn’t have died, and Shi Mei wouldn’t have been blind. He would have been able to make it in time… all in time.”

“Shizun.”

“If I had listened to that letter, I wouldn’t have ended up like this…”

After a long time, Chu Wanning finally stopped crying. But his eyes were out of focus, and as he pinched the tips of his fingers, he found that they were not warm at all, just like that slight tremble.

“Why didn’t I believe him again…”

Mo Ran listened silently. Actually, on the way here, because of Taxian-Jun, Mo Ran had anticipated countless scenes where he would meet Chu Wanning again, and he had thought of many explanations and pleas.

However, he found that it was all useless.

He hadn’t expected to see this kind of situation the next time he saw him.

“He… He even left behind a memory scroll…” Finally, Chu Wanning calmed down, Mo Ran touched his face, and it was ice-cold, “… Before he left, he had always hoped that you would come and personally give it to you.”

Hearing that it was related to him, Mo Ran’s fingers froze.

Memory scroll?

What would it say? What did Master Huaizui know about him?

Mo Ran felt his hands turn cold. His hair was standing on end, and he was chilled to the bone.

Chu Wanning said hoarsely, “But he won’t be able to wait any longer. His lifespan is almost up.” After he finished speaking, he seemed to have been touched by some extremely painful scar. He frowned and no longer said anything.

He was afraid that if he spoke another word, he would collapse again.

Chu Wanning covered his eyes with his arms. He calmed himself down and slowly tidied up the mess. Calm, peaceful, cold, reliable. He picked up the pieces and slowly put them on himself.

In the end, he was not used to being a weakling.

Finally, Chu Wanning lifted up his moist eyes and took out the scroll from his bosom, handing it over to Mo Ran.

“These are all the secrets he knows.”

Mo Ran’s voice trembled a little. “…Did he show it to you?”

“Yes.”

Mo Ran’s heart quivered.

He looked into Chu Wanning’s eyes, and at that moment, he had a terrifying thought.

He felt that Chu Wanning knew everything.

He took the jade scroll.

He suddenly felt uneasy, so he held Chu Wanning’s fingers and caressed them.

“Wanning…”

“…”

“If it’s at Mount Jiao, then that person… What I’m telling you is true, will you hate me?”

Chu Wanning's face was already pale, and now it was completely drained of color. Even his lips had turned green.

"Will you hate me?"

Mo Ran held his hand. The strength was so great, so stubborn, even barbaric. However, the thing that was completely different from that force was the pleading under his soft eyelashes.

"Will it?"

Chu Wanning shook his head and didn't answer. He just closed his eyes, "… Look at the scroll."

The scroll left behind by Huaizui a very heavy Yin Qi. It was not similar to the spells of the mortal world, but it was close to the Illusory Creation Realm of the Peach Blossom Springs' Feathers.

Then, he opened the scroll and placed it between his eyebrows, letting out a bright jade-like glow.

The scene at Mount Longxue disappeared and what followed was an unfathomable darkness. In the darkness, the voice of Master Huaizui echoed in Mo Ran's ears with a few sighs.

Chu-zongshi, Benefactor Mo, this old monk knows that time is running out, but now that the world is changing, a great calamity is about to befall us. If we do not do everything in our power to inform the two of you of what we know, it will help us return to the continent.

The voice paused, then slowly spoke.

“The memories in this scroll are all outrageous. There are even old monks who were previously wrong, unable to be concealed. I know that in my half life I have committed a great sin, that I was dull, shallow, and narrow-minded, and that my two hundred years of life and sobriety have been few and far between, and that I have done very few good deeds. I have sinned all my life, and I can’t be redeemed. After I die, I will also fall into the Unbroken Hell and never be able to reincarnate. However, I still have hopes. I hope that the two of you will not dislike the old monk and think of him… Flies are inferior to beasts.”

A faint light gradually lit up before Mo Ran’s eyes. He blinked his eyes. All he could see were broken walls, old trees and crows. There were birds pecking at eyes and stomachs everywhere.

He was slightly startled. For some reason, he felt that this scene was very familiar, but he could not immediately recall it.

It was not until a group of people arrived at the city gate. They rode thin horses while holding onto their foreheads and carrying arrows on their backs. One of the young men suddenly pulled on the reins, rolled off the horse, and threw himself at a corpse at the city gate while shouting, “Father! Father!”

Mo Ran was taken aback and felt chills behind his back.

This was…

Peach Blossom Springs’ Feathered People’s Illusion Realm?

Was this the same as Gu Linan in the flames of war?

Ch. 237 [Mount Longxue] Shenmu

Unlike at Peach Blossom Springs, he was no longer involved in it. He was just a bystander, and no one in his memories could see him. He walked up to the horsemen, lowered his head, and looked at the youth who was weeping bitterly.

A blue vein was pulsing in his skull.

He felt a bone-piercing chill, and goosebumps rose all over his body.

Seeing this scene once more, he was well aware of just what sort of role this youth had played in Linan's sudden change in fortune — betraying the Supreme Guard's son, Chu Xun, in order to revive his adoptive father, he didn't hesitate to donate the entire city's life.

"Little Man, we can't revive after death, so don't be too sad. We can't stay here for long, let's go back quickly."

"No… No… I'm not going anywhere, I want Abba… He, he went to find food for me, that's why he died. I let him down, Dad! Daddy!"

Mo Ran stared at the youth.

Who was this person?

Was it his father? Or.

His gaze fell on the little man's left hand. In the palm of his left hand, there was a black mole the size of a grain of rice.

He suddenly thought of the hand of master Huaizui. It was also in this position, and in the exact same place, there was also a mole. It was exactly the same.

Mo Ran was astonished.

At this moment, that distant voice slowly sounded again.

“Since I was a child, I was born in Lian. I had no parents and was adopted by a groom of the Grand Guard. The year I turned fourteen, when the ghost realm was in a state of chaos and suffering, when there was no rice and no food in the family, when I was hungry, my foster father took the risk to leave the city to find food for me, and he did not come back in the evening.”

His heart skipped a beat —

Was he really the same person as two hundred years ago?!

“When I came out of the city and found him, he had already been killed by evil, his intestines were overflowing, and his eyes were empty. I will never forget that scene for the rest of my life.”

His ears were buzzing as he followed Little Man into the city. Back when Linan had been in the midst of a bloody storm, the Ghost King had coerced everyone into handing over Chu Xun. He had seen all of these things before, but when he looked at them again, he still felt miserable and sad, and his heart was filled with evil.

He saw that on the night of the incident, Little Man begged everyone to not dismember his foster father and to let him wait until Chu Xun returned to see if he could leave his father’s corpse intact.

“I beg of you, wait a little longer. The young master will be back soon, I’ll definitely look at his corpse. If his corpse is found, I’ll definitely stop him, I beg of you…”

“You can’t stop us from getting the bodies up, but you have to be clear about which is more important!”

“NO! Don’t tear him apart, please don’t tear him apart…”

In the torrential downpour, Little Man knelt on the ground and kowtowed nonstop, kowtowing so hard that his head was covered in blood, but he was still unable to stop his father’s corpse. His father’s corpse was still violently pulled out from his embrace, dragged outside the magistrate office by the steward.

Little Man’s vision was blocked. After a while, he saw blood flowing out from under everyone’s feet. The blood was instantly washed away by the rain and turned into a faint pink color.

“At that time, I was selfish. I only felt dispirited and full of resentment towards everyone. So, I betrayed Linan and recommended myself as the Ghost King’s subordinate. I wanted to take revenge on them.”

Following his narration, Mo Ran once again saw the scene that once shook his heart.

The mother ate the child’s intestines.

The citizens betrayed their hero.

Chu Xun knelt on the stone steps in front of the temple of the city deity, bent over in the mud, and sobbed.

He saw the mob take Chu Xun to the temple like a carrion vulture and surround him in a black circle. They were willing to sacrifice Chu Xun’s life for the sake of his survival.

He saw Chu Xun pull out his heart along with his spirit core and hand it over to the scattered citizens who were crying for him. He wanted them to leave this place as soon as possible and not stay any longer…

The little one had noticed all these.

“Later on, I went to the ghost realm. No matter how many times I was alone, I would always think of the miserable state that young master Chu was in. I would think of the heart that he had given up. I would also think of his past… Be good to us. Every time I think about it, I feel uneasy, and the more I think about it, the more I can’t escape the condemnation in my heart.”

Huaizui paused.

His voice became bitter.

“I’m a traitor.”

It was hard to say what he felt in his heart.

Sometimes good and evil only in a single thought, some people stabbed down the knife, in fact, already regretted it, but so what?

There was no retreat.

“Not long after, I heard that Chu Xun’s soul was cast into the Underworld. He is a kind man, although his cultivation is not at his peak, and he cannot be dissolved into an immortal, but it is enough for him to enter the cycle of reincarnation. Because of the great catastrophe that had occurred that year, his children and his wife had had their souls confused and broken into pieces. Thus, he had gone to Nangong to beg, willing to use the power of the Third Fu Lu in exchange for the release of his wife and children. But the end result, was not that smooth."

He was ashamed and had no face to treat Chu Xun, so he carefully avoided Chu Xun, but he tried his best to pull the ghost soldiers and ghosts to ask, "What about the wife and children? What did Yan Luo say in the end? Can you think of a way to assemble their souls and let them return to the cycle of reincarnation?"

"Can you think of something? Please."

"I beg of you to help young master Chu Xun to think of a solution, we can discuss no matter the price…"

A ghost guard mocked him, "I've long heard of your glorious past. Back then, it wasn't you who helped the Ninth King and caused the death of Chu Xun's family? Why did you suddenly change your personality when we arrived to the Underworld? Are you afraid that Chu Xun will come and settle things with you after he becomes a ghost?"

Mo Ran followed behind the culprit. Seeing how many people he begged, he knelt before him. Maybe he shouldn't have called for a person, but a ghost. But most of the time, people and ghosts were the same.

Just as Chu Wanning had said, the soul could change character, hobbies, and temperament, but the nature of the soul would never change just because of the cycle of life and death.

The nine kings soon found out that he had asked Chu Xun about his wife and son's reincarnation.

When the Ninth King had fought with Chu Xun and destroyed one of his eyes, he had already resented him. When he heard that his subordinates had helped their old master secretly ask about the art of reincarnation with Huaizui, he couldn't help but get angry.

He took back the incriminating medallion that allowed him to travel back and forth from the ghost realm to the human world, and took away his eternal life as a ghost pawn.

"Scram back to the mortal world. When all the Underworld energy in your body dissipates, you will die. After death, you will forever fall into the Infernal Realm of the Unbroken, and your soul will never be able to reincarnate." The Ninth King used his only eye that was still usable as he stared at Master Huaizui, "This is the price you pay for plotting for the old master."

The darkness of the Underworld vanished.

Mo Ran heard the patter of rain. It was spring, and the drizzle was soft, moistening the green sprouts.

He saw that he had become a monk from the start of his life. He was walking in the spring rain.

"When I returned to the world, a hundred years had already passed. Although the Spirit King took away my medallion, the remaining Yin Qi on me can allow me to return to the Ghost World when my Yin Qi was at its peak, but staying here for a long time would consume a lot of it. Actually… I'm still very afraid of death, so I don't dare to stay in the ghost realm for long. Only when I really need some clues and help do I secretly return to the Underworld."

Mo Ran listened to his low recount, and saw the stick lit before him as he walked alone in the bamboo forest. Winter plums laid on the snow, and Xia He listened to the rain. He walked alone, from the spring to the frost forest.

One pair after another.

Master Huaizui was searching everywhere, inquiring, hoping to get even a little bit of information, which would give the mother and son whose souls had been destroyed by him, the opportunity to be reborn.

“It is also an opportunity for me to redeem a little of my sins,” he said.

Perhaps others might not feel it, but it was laughable that they should feel guilty. However, when Mo Ran heard this, tears suddenly appeared in his eyes.

Atonement.

Everyone who had committed a crime and wanted to repent was like a fish that thirsted for redemption.

He was, and so was Huaizui.

They were not kind people. Their hands were covered with blood, and their feet were covered with severed heads.

How to atone for it.

With the hand that has killed before, put life into the pool of virtue, can sin be written off in one stroke? He hoped that all good and evil in this world, all blessings for karma, would be as simple as this.

But he knew it wasn’t.

“I’ve been in the mortal world for nearly a hundred years. In these hundred years, I have been in trouble and have saved you. I know that it will be useless to do so. No matter how many good deeds I have done, I will still go to hell and suffer. But I just want to make myself feel better, I just want, if young master is still in the human world, he will definitely… It will also cause people to worry, making things difficult for them, right?”

The memories of the past passed by in a hundred years.

He saw orphans with their blind eyes walking through the forest, he saw him working in the fields, he saw him sewing old clothes under a single lamp, and he gave money to repair two villages that had been destroyed by evil.

“Young master Chu has never been reincarnated. Later on, I picked a branch of haitang, and thinking that it was his and Madam’s favorite flower, I became so dazed that I mustered the courage to go to the ghost realm and see him once. As a result, needless to say, he rejected me and told me never to come back.”

On the screen, it showed the thin back of Huaizui, standing in between the streets of the ghost realm.

At this moment, his back was already hunched.

“I didn’t dare to bother him, so I never appeared in front of him again. However, he didn’t throw away that bunch of haitang. I think that he might still like this mortal world. Since he couldn’t see it in the Underworld, I picked it up and gave it to him. I hope that his hatred for me will be reduced, if only by a little bit.”

“Later on, I heard that Lady Chu’s soul could be recovered, but it would take some time. However, the young noble’s soul and spirit had been shattered, and I’m afraid that he would no longer be in this world. When I learned of this news, I felt even more guilty and regretful — until one day, I obtained something.”

Spring Moon Night Mountain, Misty River.

Master Huaizui sat in the cabin, reflected in the river and reflected in the objects in his hands.

Mo Ran walked over and looked. He sat down next to Huaizui and when he got closer, he saw that it was a piece of wood. The wood looked strange. The other branches had rough bark and fine lines, but it didn’t.

It was only the size of a palm, and its bark was smooth and exquisite, emitting a faint lustre. Even in an illusion, Mo Ran could feel a faint fragrance flowing from this piece of wood.

“Flame Emperor’s Divine Wood.”

Mo Ran suddenly opened his eyes wide and looked at the broken branch that was flowing with brilliant light in disbelief.

This was… Flame Emperor’s Divine Wood?!

The holy tree that was said to have been in the East Sea for tens of thousands of years, where no one had ever been? Mo Ran had lived two lifetimes and had roamed the martial arts world for many years. How could he not know the legend of the Flame Emperor’s Divine Wood?

It could save the flesh and bones of the dead.

It could be refined into a divine weapon that was even more powerful than a godly weapon.

It could even help a mortal ascend, directly breaking away from the suffering of reincarnation and establishing an immortal class forever.

It was clear that Huaizui knew of these rumors as well. He whispered: “The Divine Wood has a spirit. Once you refine it into a spirit core, you will ascend and become an immortal… I no longer have to suffer the curse of Purgatory. From then on, I can be free.”

Mo Ran suddenly recalled the rumors about Huaizui.

He refused the invitation from the Heaven Realm and stayed in this world forever.

Could it be that the truth was that he failed to refine the Flame Emperor Divine Wood and failed?

“I really… really wanted to use this part of the Divine Wood. For some time, I even felt that this was heaven’s will, that the heavens pitied me, forgave me, and did not want me to fall into hell and suffer. That was why I made this divine wood come to my side by chance.”

Inside the hold of the ship, Master Huaizui stroked the divine log, his eyes shining with longing and confusion. His expression was so contradictory that it was like the voice that was burning in his ears and reverberating in his ears.

“However, I once read in an ancient book that the Flame Emperor’s Divine Wood is the same as the Nuwa Tomb. With this divine wood, a living person can be created.”

Ch. 238 [Mount Longxue] No Soul

“What?!”

Mo Ran was shocked and took half a step back. If he wasn’t an empty person in this memory scroll, he would have already knocked over the fishing basket and rope beside him…

The Flame Emperor’s Divine Wood could recreate a living person?

“The Flame Emperor’s Wood, the Nuwa Earth, and the Fuxi Zither were all divine artifacts created by the Three Sovereigns.

The spiritual energy here was extremely pure. According to legends, the first batch of Immeasurable Immortals in this world were all created by these divine artifacts. I got a piece of the Fire Emperor Wood, even without the magical powers of Shennong,

It’s not hard to make a man. “Just like how, after the Grand Preceptor died, his mother reconstructed his body with lotus roots, I decided to carve this piece of wood into the shape of young master Chu.”

Mo Ran felt the world spinning around him. He felt giddy all of a sudden.

Sculpting into… young master Chu… Chu Lan’s appearance?

“I want to return a son to my benefactor,” he said.

Mo Ran’s throat was parched, as if something had blocked his throat. After a long time, he muttered, “Impossible…”

In the painting, there was no sorrowful temple bell ringing, and the color of dusk was everywhere.

The tired birds had returned to their nests. The monks' robes fluttered in the wind, and the wide sleeves of their robes passed under the veranda.

Master Huaizui sat in the meditation room with the doors and windows closed, carefully sculpting them bit by bit with the aid of the green light.

He did not dare to use his blade without thinking. Before using the Flame Emperor's divine wood to reconstruct a living person, he had already engraved hundreds, if not thousands of puppets until they were just as vivid as he remembered.

That night, he finally took out the Flame Emperor's Wood carefully. After observing it for a long time, he carefully made the first cut.

Sawdust flew everywhere, turning into gold dust when it hit the ground.

With every stroke, he did his best. With every stroke, he saw the figures of his two friends. A hundred years went by under the sword. The old monk buried his head very low, and his neck seemed to have been broken by sin.

"Thus, I went into seclusion. I spent five whole years in the temple before I finally finished inscribing Chu Lan."

He watched as the monk slowly put down the carving knife. It was the last stroke, and bits and pieces of ash were swept away by the guilt.

Huaizui trembled as he caressed the wooden sculpture's young master's face and his clothes. He cried as he knelt on the ground and kowtowed towards the wooden statue.

Mo Ran stared blankly at the small portrait on the table.

The Divine Wood as the body, and Huaizui as the blade.

The tiny figure was the same as Chu Wanning when he was a child.

It was currently evening. The bell tolled, and only the last bit of the blood-red sun remained in the world. It shone through the windows onto the few cases.

The morning bell rang throughout the temple. Outside the temple, monks were burning cypress and pine leaves. The fragrant aroma was still tainted with a bit of bitterness and coolness.

Night was approaching, and the Zen Courtyard was at peace.

“I’ll just call you Chu Wanning.”

The last strike landed as he spoke softly to the wooden statue.

He bit his finger tip and dripped a drop of blood filled with metallic spirit energy. In that instant, the entire room was filled with resplendent light.

His eyelids could not stop trembling. He tried his best to see everything in the light, but because of his tears and the bright light, he could not see clearly. He could not see anything.

When he was stabbed to the point where he could close his eyes, the thought that came to his mind was —

Chu Wanning already knew all of this. How much pain would his heart ache?

Not alive.

No parents.

It was just a piece of dead wood, a drop of blood.

He had lived for more than thirty years, unbeknownst to anyone in the world.

“The Divine Wood has a spirit. Once it has a drop of blood in it, it will truly become the appearance of Chu Lan, just as I wished. I brought him up in a monastery and took him in as my apprentice, and gradually, as he grew older, he began to ask me about my own life and where I came from.”

Seeing Chu Wanning sitting next to Master Huaizui and eating the candied fruits, he asked, “Shizun, you always said that you carried me back from the snow, where did you bring me back?”

He gazed at the distant mountain where Han Dai was. After a moment of contemplation, he sighed and said two words.

“Linan.”

“So am I from Linan?”

“Yes.”

“But I’ve never been out of the temple. I don’t even know what Linan is like. Shizun, I’d like to go down the mountain and have a look outside. I… I would like to see Linan.”

The illusion gradually faded away, and the Wubei Temple disappeared into the distance. What followed was a bright and resplendent summer scene in the southern part of the Yangtze River.

It was June, and the lotus flowers in the lotus pond were gorgeous. Fangfei pounced on Chu Wanning, who was a lot smaller than Xia Sini, and followed behind him on the bluestone path.

“A-Ning, go slowly. Be careful you don’t fall.”

Chu Wanning turned around with a smile.

It was a young and inexperienced face that Mo Ran had never seen before, a carefree smile.

“Alright, I’ll wait for Shizun.”

At that time, Chu Wanning was wearing a green and grey monastic robe, with his hair tied up in a small bun, with a lotus leaf on his head. The lotus leaf was still stained with some crystal clear dew, making Chu Wanning’s face look even more pure and bright.

Master Huaizui walked over to him and took his hand, “Alright, I’ve seen the lake. Where do you want to go next?”

“Would you like something to eat?”

“Then… Go to the city.”

They entered the city together, and Mo Ran was walking beside them. He looked at Chu Wanning, who was holding onto a lotus leaf, with a heart full of love and sadness.

He stretched out his hand, knowing that he could not touch the person inside the illusion, yet he still reached out his hand to touch Chu Wanning’s head.

“Hmm?”

However, at this point, Chu Wanning suddenly stopped in his tracks.

“What is it?” he asked kindly.

Chu Wanning raised his head and looked up. His eyes, under the sunlight, were as clear as two pools of spring water. Unbiased, they landed on Mo Ran.

Mo Ran was stunned. He could hear his heart pounding and blood flowing rapidly.

He felt that this was unbelievable, but he was also secretly anticipating it…

“What’s that?”

Chu Wanning let go of his hand and walked towards Mo Ran.

The more Mo Ran saw, the more he felt uncomfortable. He had never seen Chu Wanning without any worries. He could not help but lean over and open his arms, wanting to hug him.

However, Chu Wanning went straight through his shadow.

Mo Ran was stunned for a moment. He turned around and saw the child walk to a dim sum shop behind him. He raised his head to see the stall owner lifting the bamboo cage. Smoke rose up, revealing a pale pink cake made from flowers.

Mo Ran felt slightly relieved, but he also felt a tinge of disappointment.

It really was just a coincidence.

He followed Huaizui over. Seeing that Huaizui had arrived, Chu Wanning smiled, “Shizun, this pastry looks delicious.”

“Do you want to try it?”

“Can I?”

With a somewhat absent-minded expression, he said, “You both really like it…”

Chu Wanning heard it and his eyes opened wide. He asked innocently, “Everyone likes it?”

Huaizui pursed his lips and said: “… Nothing. Shizun has thought of an old friend.”

He paid for three glutinous rice cakes and watched thoughtfully as Chu Wanning took a bite. The steam rose and obscured the boy’s face.

The past surged past him like a river.

Master Huaizui sighed softly and closed his eyes.

Suddenly, someone lightly tugged at his sleeve. Lowering his head, he only saw the two halves of the pastry. The red bean paste inside was exquisite and soft, and it emitted the fragrance of hot air and dessert.

“Shizun is half, while I am half. The eldest is for Shizun.”

“Why would the big one be given to me?”

“Just by being tall, you eat a lot.”

“…” Mo Ran watched as Huaizui took the pastries, and the two of them stood by the stall, eating and chatting. He was quiet for a moment, standing in the bright sunlight and smiling slightly.

It hurts.

However, he could feel the spring water flowing in his heart. He felt that no one would dare to be soft-hearted and dislike a person like Chu Wanning.

He was the most obedient and best child in the world.

The sun was fading again.

This time, the new picture scroll did not appear immediately. Mo Ran stood in the pitch-black darkness, and beside his ears was the voice of a ghost of a person who had committed crimes.

“I spend my days with him, teaching him to read, reading, lecturing, and understanding. However, what I was most concerned about was his spell — I still hadn’t forgotten that I had created such a child in order to return him to my benefactor. From the beginning, I have already planned that when Chu Wanning grows big and his spirit energy and body can bear it, I will bring him to the ghost realm.”

Huaizui paused, his voice became even deeper.

“Take it with you and melt the remaining broken spirit soul of young master Chu Lan into his body.”

Mo Ran: “!”

“At that time, I did not think it was wrong. What was Chu Wanning? He is not a real living person, he is just a piece of wood, a wooden sculpture. I gave him his life and taught him the ways of the world, but in the end, what flowed on his body was not real blood, and the flesh that covered his bones was also not real flesh.”

Mo Ran had already kept it in his heart from the start. After hearing Master Huaizui’s words, he could not hold it in any longer and shouted, “No!”

But what’s the use?

Huaizui could not hear his indignant retort, but the monk's voice was still like a whirlpool, taking Mo Ran into a deeper and more painful whirlpool.

"Chu Wanning is unnecessary, he has no life and no soul."

"No! Why didn't the Divine Wood have a soul? He had life, he had soul! He wasn't anyone! He's not like anyone else!" Mo Ran howled out like a trapped beast in the illusion. "Master Huaizui, it's you who raised him. Watched over him everyday… Isn't he alive? What's the difference between him and you, or me?"

But Huaizui was still mumbling to himself, like the numbness of Buddha chanting scriptures, his words were forged from his lips. It was unknown if he was truly bent on paying respects to Buddha, or if he just wanted to numb the excruciating pain in his heart.

"He is a physical body that I carved for Chu Lan. Only his soul can be considered a complete human."

Mo Ran felt a chill run down his spine. He did not know what happened next, but he felt that he was going crazy, almost crazy, he was running in the dark, but everywhere there was an abyss, nowhere to go. He kept muttering, muttering, and then he was shouting, "No, no, no. "You can't destroy him. You have to bear the guilt, he has a soul in him, he is a living person…"

He knelt down.

He suddenly felt such fear, even more so than the fear he felt when the truth was revealed in his previous life.

He was afraid that he would see Huaizui bringing Chu Wanning to the ghost realm, cutting open his chest and merging his spirit core with Chu Lan's soul.

What about the original Chu Wanning?

The Spirit of the Divine Wood would leave Chu Wanning. With six paths of reincarnation, where could he go to a broken piece of wood?

The sky, the ground, the clouds, the Yellow Springs.

No one would want him anywhere.

"No…Huaizui… You can't…" His lips were blue and white. "You can't…"

How could he not have a soul?

Why is he not alive?

The child with the jade-green lotus leaf giggling as he ran along the road.

The child that carefully broke open the cake and gave the older one to his Shizun, the younger one had to eat it himself.

He was still so young, but he had more affection and more voice and more color than many people.

He was not inferior to any life form formed from flesh and blood.

How could this be? They weren't alive…

However, Mo Ran's desperate begging and screaming could not wake him from his stupor.

The centuries-old knot in his heart was right here. He felt that he owed the Chu Xun family a debt. He had gone through countless hardships to create such a righteous body, how could he let it slip by?

“Life goes on day by day. Chu Wanning slowly grew up. He was the reincarnated body of Chu Lan. I was worried that his life would be better than mine by a hundredfold. For all these years, when he was five or six years old, I only took him to live in Linan for a few months.

“Sometimes I would think to myself, ‘Have you ever seen the beauty of the human world?’ He lived until he was fourteen, and apart from Linan, he had never gone anywhere else. From beginning to end, he had only been to the Heaven and Earth of the Zen Temple, the size of Spring and Autumn.”

His eyes finally lit up again.

It was a moonlit night, and Mo Ran was the first to see Huaizui standing at the door of the meditation room, looking out of the courtyard.

He also hurriedly walked over. Under the frosty moonlight, he saw the fourteen-year-old Chu Wanning dancing with his sword, the haitang blossoms fluttering. The white-clothed youth looked like a goddess under the reflection of the petals and the cold moon.

Huaizui’s voice still remained, and the sharp sound of a sword breaking through the air lingered beside his ear.

“But I also feel that it is a good thing that he has seen less. There are too many sufferings in the human world. If this Divine Wood Spirit was destined to only have a short lifespan of 10 years and was then replaced by Chu Lan, wouldn’t it be much more merciful?”

The sword dance ended.

The fragmented flower fell.

Chu Wanning sheathed his sword behind his arm, his two fingers on his other hand were raised as he concentrated on calming his breathing.

He calmed his slightly rapid breathing and raised his head. When he saw Huaizui looking at him, he smiled.

The night breeze brushed against his forehead, causing it to itch. He blew lightly, trying to blow away the pieces of hair that were constantly scratching his cheeks, but it was obviously useless. So in the end, he could only use his hand to stroke it.

That was also where Mo Ran was standing.

“Shizun.”

“Yes. That’s right.” Huaizui nodded, “Come here, I’ll test how far your cultivation has progressed.”

Chu Wanning walked over unhesitatingly, stroking his snow-white sleeves, and passed his hand to Huaizui.

With a test, he said, “It’s very robust, but it’s still a bit unstable. You should be able to practice more. Before winter, you should be able to achieve great success. Mhmm… great… !”

Chu Wanning smiled, “Thank you, Shizun.”

When he said this, perhaps it was an illusion, Mo Ran saw the shoulders of Huaizui and it seemed to tremble slightly.

But in the end, he still did not say anything. He did not express anything, nor did he change.

He turned and entered the house.

Standing in his original spot, Mo Ran stopped looking at Huaizui in the room. He desperately wanted to see the young man in front of him who would disappear at any time.

He was still clean, pure, and gentle.

How could such a person not have a spirit soul?

His gaze fell onto the white chest that was moving up and down.

Mo Ran suddenly thought of something and felt as if lightning struck his chest. A huge boulder seemed to have fallen on his chest, stirring up a thousand layers of shock waves.

“No… No…”

He took a step back.

But what could he do?

His memories had already extended their ferocious claws and grabbed into his internal organs.

He remembered, there was a scar on Chu Wanning’s chest.

…… His heart was opened! He… He…

Mo Ran trembled. The Chu Wanning before him danced under the moonlight, stepping on the flying flowers.

So handsome.

However, he felt as if a bucket of ice had fallen on his stomach. He could only feel a chill run down his spine.

He was… Cut through the chest.

So in the end, did he really commit the crime?

He really did take Chu Wanning to the ghost realm, to merge Chu Lan's soul fragment into his heart. That was why the original Chu Wanning was no longer around.

He put his head in his hands and curled up on the floor.

He was trembling and didn't dare to think about it anymore.

Pain.

My heart hurts.

The one who would rather have his heart dug out was him, the one who would rather have his spirit soul taken away from him was him.

Chu Wanning.

He's so good.

Why did he suffer so much and end up with a judgement that he was not alive, that he would be treated as a lifeless shell to carry another life?

Then who exactly was the Shizun he had taken in?

Was it Chu Lan, or Chu Wanning?

Mo Ran felt like he was going crazy. His head was aching and he even felt dizzy and nauseous. He did not know how long he had been sitting there.

Then the sky darkened and the meditation room and the trees disappeared.

Chu Wanning also faded away.

The voice of guilt slowly flowed through the darkness.

He said, “By the time Chu Wanning turned fourteen, the time was already ripe. I intend to bring him to the Ghost World in another year to merge with Chu Lan’s soul.”

Ch. 239 [Mount Longxue] A Mind Is Set

Mo Ran listened, hollow and wooden.

He stopped shouting. He sat there, staring straight ahead.

“Everything was going smoothly at first, but during that period of time, the lower cultivation world was in a state of chaos.

It was early winter, and snow was falling in the leaden sky. A mountain road slowly appeared in front of Mo Ran. The road was covered with a layer of frost and was covered with fresh snow. There were also crisscrossing marks of carriages and horses.

“I never expected that one day, when we were on our way to the foot of the mountain to retrieve the spirit stones, we would run into a child who was on the verge of starving to death.”

Mo Ran continued to look on numbly.

Chu Wanning and Huaizui appeared on the mountain path. Behind Chu Wanning’s back was a basket filled with spirit energy ores. He was wearing a cotton cloak that protected him from the cold as he walked beside Huaizui.

“Shizun.” Suddenly, Chu Wanning stopped and turned around to look at the grassy slope. “There seems to be someone there.”

“Let’s go take a look.”

The two of them walked over together. Chu Wanning brushed the grass with his slender white fingers. He was surprised, but then his eyes widened, “It’s just a child…”

He immediately turned around and said to Huaizui, “Shizun, quickly come over. Quickly look at him, what’s wrong with him?”

What’s wrong?

He could tell the culprit at a glance, be it in Huaizui or Mo Ran.

The child was dirty and smelly, and his clothes were ragged and thin. If he took them off, he would definitely be no longer wearing them. To put it bluntly, all the dogs in the temple who were eating leftovers were even more glorious than this child.

If it wasn’t for the fact that the child was still moaning and breathing, it would be no different from a pile of rotten meat.

What’s wrong? What else could happen?

Every time there was a disaster, the manpower would be tiny and insignificant. Not to mention a child, Yi Zi and his food were not a rare thing.

Only Chu Wanning, who grew up in a temple since he was young, was able to ask such a stupid question.

“You don’t need to worry about that, you can go back for now,” said Huaizui with a frown. “I came to see him.”

Chu Wanning trusted his Shizun, so he immediately stood up obediently. But before he could leave, the hem of his cloak was grabbed by a small, dirty hand.

The hand was so weak that the pulling force was so small that it was like a pup gently scratching.

Chu Wanning lowered his head and stared at the small, dirty face before him.

The child's voice was as light as a mosquito's buzz, as if another snowflake falling from the sky would crush him to death.

"Rice…"

Chu Wanning was stunned, he didn't know how to react, "What?"

"… Rice…" The child whimpered. His face was black except for two spots of white in his eyes. He made a trembling gesture that indicated he was going to eat something. "Eat…"

Outside of the painting, Mo Ran blinked once and regained half of his consciousness.

However, his mind was still numb. There was no way for him to quickly react, and only a vague feeling in his heart that this scene was very familiar, as if he had seen it somewhere before.

He stared.

Inside the painting, Chu Wanning was stunned.

He widened his eyes in shock. He, who had finally understood what was going on, was first at a loss and could not believe what was happening. Afterwards, he became flustered, his heart burning with anxiety.

He only knew that things were good in the mortal world, but he had never seen a skinny child who was only skin old. He was like a starving kitten or dog, huddled in the grass under the heavy snow, the only thing that could withstand the cold was a piece of rags that he wore during the summer. There was only one word that came out of his mouth.

Eat, eat.

“You go back first.”

But this time, Chu Wanning did not listen. He looked at the small, dirty dog like child, and his heart ached. He quickly took off his cloak and wrapped it around the child’s body.

He was burning with anxiety, as if the one suffering was not the child but himself. He said, “Hungry? Wait a minute, I have rice porridge here.”

He went to get it from Master Huaizui, but Master Huaizui frowned.

“I told you to go back, that’s not your business.”

“Why shouldn’t I?” Chu Wanning was at a loss, “He… He was so pitiful. Shizun, did you see that? He just wanted something to eat, otherwise he’d starve and freeze to death.”

When he said this, he was somewhat baffled. He muttered, “What is going on? Didn’t they say that the world is peaceful? Why would it…”

“Let’s go back.”

Chu Wanning was stunned. He didn’t know why he was suddenly so guilty. In the end, he bit his lips and said, “I want to feed him some rice soup…”

“I couldn’t force him, so I agreed.” The voice of Huaizui carried a bit of a sigh, and along with the wind and snow, it floated and drifted next to Mo Ran’s ear, “I gave him a pot of rice soup, allowing him to personally treat that unhurried child. At that time, I didn’t know what it would make Chu Wanning feel, or what it would make him decide. At that time, I didn’t know anything.”

Mo Ran stared blankly at Chu Wanning as he opened the pot and moved it to the child’s mouth.

The child hungered over, but could not suck.

He was on the verge of starving to death, so he didn’t have any extra strength left.

Mo Ran’s Adam’s apple moved.

He suddenly felt that there was a seed sprouting inside his brain, forming a layer of mud.

He suddenly felt that everything before him was so familiar…

He watched.

He was regaining his senses.

And then, at a certain point, a flood dragon broke through the waves, and the clouds and water churned.

He suddenly stood up and clenched his fingers into a fist —

He remembered!

“It’s you?” He quickly ran towards the painting, his pupils contracting rapidly. “You’re him? Was it him? You actually… You actually…”

He could not continue. Suddenly, he covered his eyes with his arm.

His throat was filled with misery.

He had never expected this to happen.

It was actually Chu Wanning.

The child who was about to freeze to death in the haystack, the child who had climbed down from the cemetery after burying his mother, begging everywhere for his life!

The illusion merged with his memories, and Mo Ran never forgot about that youth in the snowy sky who had taken off his cloak and wrapped it around his body.

Chu Wanning asked worriedly, “What’s wrong? Can’t drink?”

Little Mo Ran could not say more. He could only let out a weak whimper from his throat. He narrowed his pitch-black eyes and looked at him dispiritedly.

“Then I’ll pour it out for you. Don’t mind it.”

He opened the pot and placed the rice porridge in the palm of his hand. He carefully held it out. His expression showed some hesitation. He probably felt that this child wouldn’t be willing to drink because it was a bit dirty.

But in the end, he had been thinking too much.

Dirty?

From Linyi to the Wubei Temple, Mo Ran drank the river, the rain, the mud in the puddles. After eating wild fruits and leftovers, when he was at his most helpless, he would even swallow earthworms, lick ants, and eat dirt.

He crawled on the ground and leaned over to drink the rice soup. At that time, he only felt that the dew from a poplar branch was in his throat, and the person who brought him the soup was a fairy from the nine heavens.

“Slow down, slow down, there’s still more if it’s not enough.” Chu Wanning was both shocked and sad. He looked at that dirty little head buried in his palm, miserable and bedraggled, greedily and pitifully licking the rice porridge, rolling his tongue like a small animal drinking water.

“Where did you come from…” he could not help but ask.

Mo Ran whimpered but didn’t reply. He had finished the rice milk, and only had a tiny bit of it left in his palm. He kept licking his little brother’s palm, causing him to feel itchy and painful.

It was the hand that itched, and the heart that hurt.

“It’s fine, I’ll get you some more.”

Chu Wanning then scooped up another handful of the liquor while Mo Ran watched eagerly. When his hand reached over, he moved closer and continued licking the liquor impatiently.

The pot of rice milk was full to the brim, Chu Wanning carried it in his hands, squatting down and feeding it to him.

Mo Ran never forgot.

In fact, he had thought about this person countless times in his subsequent ups and downs — what would have happened to him if he hadn't met him at that time.

He had deduced many possibilities and come up with many ideas, but in the end, not a single one could escape.

Dead.

He was starving, frozen to death, taken away by a wild wolfhound, opened up to eat his heart, liver, spleen and stomach.

If he hadn't met his brother, he would have gone to the underworld to meet his mother.

He had specifically gone back to the Wubei Temple to look for his old benefactor, but because so much time had passed, he could not remember his benefactor's face. Facing the courtyard full of shiny bald heads, he felt an indescribable sense of annoyance, so he finally waved his hand and left.

At that time, the abbot was trembling with fear. He did not know what had happened to the Wubei Temple that offended Taxian-Jun. He had been anxiously waiting for news. However, on the second day, the Emperor ordered people to bring over hundreds of boxes over. When they opened them, there was a resplendent stream of light. The boxes were actually filled to the brim with gold.

"His Majesty did not know who an old friend was, so he treated all of them equally. He rewarded the monks of the Wubei Temple with ten thousand gold each in return for their lives."

It turned out that his benefactor, whom he had wandered around but could not find, had been trapped at Sisheng Peak, imprisoned by him all day, harassed by him?

In the past, when he was on the road, his little brother had taken off his warm cloak and wrapped it around his small and thin body.

Fate played tricks on him, but every night he roughly and mischievously ripped apart the clothes of that little brother of his. He pressed him down between the sheets of the bed that had fallen into a deep slumber, then fell in love.

He went around the world looking for his benefactor.

Without knowing it, he forced his benefactor to kneel between his legs and bow in humiliation.

Mo Ran looked at the scene before him, his eyes slowly filling with blood.

“Why… How could it be you?”

In this life, in these two lives. The deep meets the Emperor, the shallow misses the Emperor.

It was all fate.

Everything in front of his eyes turned dark once again. Only the sounds of the wind and snow could be heard, as well as the voice of Huaizui, which was still echoing in the distance.

“I asked the child if he was willing to stay at the Wubei Temple, but the child said that he would repay a favor for his mother, so no matter what, he had to return to Xiangtan first. I couldn’t let him go, so I gave him some food and some silver. When the child staggered down the snowy slope, Chu Wanning stood there watching until his back was completely engulfed by the snow and disappeared into the wilderness. Only then did he turn around and return to the temple. I went to take his hand. I remember his hand was as cold as ice."

He was quiet for a while, but the pain in his voice was still unquenchable.

"After that day, Chu Wanning mentioned to me several times that he wanted to go down the mountain to support the road, but I refused. I even scolded him for his unsteady heart, and when a rock fell into the water, it moved his meditative heart. Therefore, I punished him to go to the face of Mount Longxue and ponder over the matter. He was captured for a full one hundred and sixty-four days."

"At first he asked me to let him out, but then he was so disappointed that he didn't say anything more. One hundred and sixty-four days. Every single day, I would ask him what enlightenment he had comprehended. Every single day, I hoped to be able to change his attitude. Huaizui let out a long sigh, his sigh was as ethereal as snow."

"Enter the mortal world."

People all cultivated outside the heaven and earth, but he was willing to be caught in a disaster because he had seen one son suffer once.

"Later, he burned me and his scripture, reversing life. I am worried that I cannot continue like this, so I ended his house arrest. I plan to find another way to teach him, and after another year, when his spirit core is stable, I can bring him to the ghost realm, and all of this will be over."

“… What I didn’t expect was that on the same night that I finished my thoughts, Chu Wanning left without saying goodbye. I found a letter in his meditation room. The letter said that although he had been gone for a long time, every time he thought about the child he had met, he still felt very miserable, so he wanted to go down the mountain and travel for ten days. He was afraid that I would lock him up again and leave by night. Back then when I was holding that letter, I was both angry and anxious, but there was nothing I could do about it.”

“I had no idea where he went.”

The new scene lit up again.

This time, it was at the Wubei Temple in the courtyard.

Chu Wanning had returned. His body was covered with blood and filth, but his eyes shone brightly under the moonlight.

At this moment, he was like an unparalleled divine weapon that had finally been unsheathed after many years of forging. No one could stop his sharp edge.

Master Huaizui stood in front of him, and neither of them spoke.

However, his voice was still slowly recounting in Mo Ran’s ears, “Ten days later, he really arrived on time. I was relieved and glad that nothing had happened. I wanted to reprimand him a few times and let him go back to his room to have a good rest. But I didn’t expect that I would be expecting a knife without a sheath.”

In the picture, Chu Wanning knelt down and kowtowed to the ground.

Master Huaizui frowned slightly. “What are you doing?”

“Shizun might have been out of the world for a long time, but the things Shizun said are very different now. I sincerely request for Shizun not to stay in the mountain and go down the mountain to have a look. This world is a sea of bitterness, and it is no longer the Peach Blossom that you speak of.”

“Preposterous! Do you know what you’re talking about?”

Chu Wanning thought that if he told the truth about himself, he would be able to change his Shizun’s attitude of listening carefully. He never expected that Huaizui would react in such a way. He was startled for a moment before saying, “Shizun has always warned disciple that it is difficult for people to worry about the safety of others… In these ten days, this disciple went to the upper and lower cultivation world where there are a total of twenty-three villages. The scene that I saw was extremely shocking. If Shizun were to go down the mountain and see it, he would also…”

Before he could finish his words, he was interrupted by Huaizui: “Who allowed you to leave the mountain on your own?!”

“There is no sun or moon in this mountain, so you should cultivate well and ascend quickly. How can you leave this mountain and meddle in the affairs of the mortal world before you reach the Heavenly Mystery Realm?!”

“The human world has never stopped suffering, how can a little cultivator like you manage it? Why do you think so highly of yourself!”

The more he spoke, the angrier he got, the wider Chu Wanning’s eyes widened.

He watched his Shizun pace under the moonlight. He flicked his sleeves, pointed at the tip of his nose, and loudly berated. He sternly berated, and the haitang tree cast a deep shadow. Mo Ran looked at Chu Wanning with a puzzled face. Then, it turned into shock, then into disappointment, and finally into pain.

Chu Wanning closed his eyes.

“You know you’re wrong?!”

“…”

“Say something!”

“This disciple…” Chu Wanning paused, his voice hard as iron, “…doesn’t know.”

“How dare you!”

A red blush immediately appeared on Chu Wanning’s cheeks, but he immediately turned his face back, his eyes flashing with puzzlement and resentment, “Shizun, all these years you have taught me to behave properly and worry about the world. Why do you want me to stand by and ignore such a catastrophe?”

“… It’s not the same thing at all.” Huaizui gritted his teeth, “You… What could they do if they left the mountain at this moment? You are indeed endowed with extraordinary talent, but the dangers in this world are beyond your imagination. In order to let me down on my fourteen years of upbringing, you want me to give up my life in order to do what you want?”

He paused for a moment. Each word rang out loud and clear as metal and stone fell to the ground.

“Chu Wanning, you can’t do it yourself, what do you have to do with it?”

At this moment, Chu Wanning looked at his Shizun with both anger and sadness.

He slightly raised his chin, his phoenix eyes gradually becoming misty.

Master Huaizui had probably never seen Chu Wanning cry before, but the light in his eyes had extinguished the anger in his heart. He was startled for a moment and then said hesitantly, “You… Ai, whatever, did you feel hurt?”

But the onlooking Mo Ran knew very well that it was not.

Chu Wanning was no longer in pain from that slap. He had been the Shizun of his heart since childhood, how could he have spoken in a way that did not match the lofty image in his heart?

Chu Wanning slowly closed his eyes. After a while, Mo Ran heard those familiar words.

He said, “If you don’t know to save others, how will you save yourself?”

His body was like a statue of clay in a Buddhist shrine, immobilized by the worship.

Chu Wanning’s voice was slightly hoarse as he said, “The suffering of the mortal world is right in front of me. Please forgive this disciple’s stupidity. I don’t know why Shizun sits up all day with his eyes closed.”

He got up slowly.

Under the moonlight, his clothes were no longer pure white. There was mud and blood.

But he was so tall and dignified.

“This Immortal… it’s fine if he doesn’t want to cultivate.”

With a dazed look, he said in a stern voice, “Traitor, do you know what you are saying?!”

“I just want to do what you taught me since you were a child.” Chu Wanning was also in a state of tension, but his eyes were filled with sorrow and he was shivering slightly, “You taught me that. Is your morality only on paper?! Could it be that millions of victims were homeless, and orphans were dying day and night? What I should do was not to walk out of the mountains to support the path, but to train in Zen Buddhism along with the green light and the ancient Buddha?!”

“After you ascend to the Dao, you will be able to do many good deeds!”

Chu Wanning glared at him as if he had never seen this person before.

Mo Ran’s chest heaved up and down as he clenched his palm into a fist. Ripples surged through his eyes as he thought that he would leap into the air in the next moment. Like a flood dragon breaking through the water, he raised up and set off a violent storm.

However, Chu Wanning trembled for a moment and did not do anything.

Finally, his eyes turned red and he hoarsely said, “Shizun, I’m not cultivating for the sake of being carefree and transcending the mortal world. Could it be that cultivation can only be used to achieve Immortal Ascension? If so, I’d rather not. I’d rather give up halfway, I’d rather do nothing, I’d rather stay on earth.”

“With all my strength, I will exhaust myself to death.”

“…”

“Shizun, you can ascend. Once I’ve crossed all the people I can, I’ll come and follow you.”

“Chu Wanning!”

Even in an illusion, Mo Ran could still feel the rage that overflowed to the heavens at the time of Huaizui. The hidden chestnut in his heart, as well as the deep-seated disappointment.

This wooden sculpture, how could it dare to stare coldly at the person who gave it its life? What did “it” count for?

With bloodshot eyes, Huaizui’s eyes shone with a bloody light.

He was unwilling, he became angry from embarrassment, who should he tell about the bitterness and secret in his heart?

He had no place to vent.

Finally, he called out to Chu Wanning, who was about to step out of the courtyard. His voice was icy cold as he said, “You unfilial disciple, stop right there.”

Ch. 240 [Mount Longxue] Human Being

This sound was like the sound of an apocalypse.

Mo Ran seemed to know what he was going to see next. His hair stood on end and his blood and bones surged. He wanted to escape from the illusion and escape, but he also wanted to rush into the past to protect Chu Wanning.

“No… Huaizui… You can’t…”

However, he couldn’t stop anything. All of this had happened a long time ago.

He could only watch the scene in front of him with his scalp numb. He could only watch as Chu Wanning, with his black, sharp eyebrows, unyielding face, calmly met the gaze of Huaizui.

Mo Ran could not help but shout at him, “Run! Run!”

The young man, Chu Wanning, had always trusted his Shizun, who had brought him up as a sacrifice.

Trust his adoptive father and benefactor. Therefore, even though he was extremely disappointed, he couldn’t see the killing intent in the eyes of Huaizui. Mo Ran stood in front of him – he knew it was useless, but he couldn’t just stand by and watch.

“I beg of you, run…”

Chu Wanning didn’t leave. He walked towards Huaizui like cypress, and finally stood still. His ponytail was messed up by the wind, and his bloodstained robe was messed up by the wind.

“If you want to leave the temple and go down the mountain, you can.”

“Shizun?” Chu Wanning’s phoenix eyes widened. He didn’t know how to deal with people, so he could only use the executioner’s blade as a crescent moon by the window. For a moment, he was grateful and happy.

He thought Huaizui finally understood him.

However, his killing intent was already apparent. He said guiltily, “When you walk out of this courtyard tonight, you will no longer be a person of the Wubei Temple. Your relationship with me as Shizun and disciple for fourteen years is thus, cut in two.”

“…” The phoenix eyes were still wide open, but the content within them was pleasant, and it slowly turned into astonishment and grief.

Chu Wanning probably did not expect that he would be so adamant. He stood frozen in place for a long time before moving his lips. Mo Ran stood at the side anxiously, muttering to himself, “I beg you, please leave, leave this place, don’t say anymore, leave this place.”

Her lips moved, but he could not speak the entire sentence.

This was the most important bet he had placed on him, the most important one at night. They had been his companions for the past fourteen years, and if he broke his Shizun’s and disciple’s relationship, it would be like cutting his heart with a knife.

Chu Wanning knelt down.

“…” Huaizui was stunned.

He was still numbly thinking, no, how could he be so decisive and stubborn?

Chu Wanning knelt down and kowtowed.

One kowtow, two kowtows, all the way to nine kowtows.

He lifted his face again. His eyes were clear and devoid of moisture, but his cheeks were moist.

“This disciple Chu Wanning thanks Shizun for his guidance. From then on…” His Adam’s apple bobbed up and down. He didn’t know. He couldn’t continue.

Perhaps it was because the wind was cold, because his body swayed in the wind, causing his cassock to flutter, filling his sleeves with strong gales. His face grew darker and colder, and his lips lost all color as he stared at the person kneeling in front of him.

That…

Wood! Wood!

He carved and engraved, made a blood oath and gave his life, taught with all his heart and thought with all his heart.

He had waited for fourteen years to send this piece of wood to the ghost realm so that it could become the shell that carried Chu Lan’s spirit.

— A scrap!

Chopping firewood!

The fire in his chest burned into his eyes. It was devastating to the point of recklessness.

This kind of crime was too dangerous. Mo Ran bent down to hug Chu Wanning, but he couldn't catch him, he couldn't touch him. He was still as stubborn as before, kneeling obediently in place, stubbornly because he had his own plans, and also because he felt guilty inside.

Chu Wanning's face turned even more sinister as he reflected the look of Huaizui in his eyes. In his chest, there was a burning passion that couldn't be quelled.

He was born for someone else. This wood chopping, this wood, this thing without a spirit soul.

He was kneeling on the ground, and the only thing he had never thought of was himself.

"Wanning…" He raised his hand to touch his face, which he could not touch, "Please… go… go…"

"Clank!" It was the sound of metal hitting the ground.

Mo Ran slowly turned his head. There was a scimitar lying on the green brick floor.

Under the moonlight, the butcher's eyes were filled with endless bloody light. He kicked the knife and sent it flying towards Chu Wanning's knee.

"No, no, no, no."

Mo Ran was panicking. He tried to grab the blade, but the tip of the blade went through his fingers. He couldn't grab hold of it. No matter how much he tried, he couldn't grab hold of it.

Finally, a slender and well-proportioned hand reached over and grasped the blade that no matter how hard Mo Ran tried, he could not hold onto.

At this time, Chu Wanning's expression was calm. The initial shock had disappeared, and the great pain was gradually subsided as he threw the curved blade at Chu Wanning.

He looked relieved.

"If Shizun wants my life, then so be it. To live fourteen years, or a hundred and forty years… if one only sits here in this world, there really will be no difference at all."

The guilty look in his eyes suddenly did not resemble that aloof monk at all. For a moment, Mo Ran clearly saw Little Man's shadow on his face.

The shadow of that youth who had appeared on the eve of the mutiny on that rainy night.

"Chu Wanning. If you want to end this with me, I won't ask you to stay. For the past fourteen years, he had not cared about food or clothing. But you must return to me what you have learned."

"…"

"I want to take away your spirit core."

Spirit cores were the purest form of crystals for cultivators. If it were divine wood, it would also be the same. As long as one had a spirit core, it was possible to reconstruct Chu Wanning.

This time, he definitely could not teach him about morals and the common people. He definitely could not let him learn about kindness and kindness.

He wanted Chu Wanning's spirit core.

The heart of the living.

Chu Wanning looked at him for a moment. The light and shadow of the Zen Courtyard flickered. There were monks attending evening class in the Great Hall of Magnificence. The sounds of praise came from afar, just like the fragrance of sandalwood.

The voice that bore guilt suddenly resounded in Mo Ran's ears. However, this time, he only said two sentences. These two sentences seemed to have exhausted all of his courage and strength.

His voice seemed to have aged a hundred years in an instant.

"He knelt on the ground and looked at me. I suddenly felt that when the Buddha was forgiving those mortals who hurt him, wasn't that kind of gaze?"

"He is pitying his executioner, the creature under the knife, the bloody butcher."

"No!" Mo Ran hissed.

However, when the saber light flashed by, he suddenly closed his eyes. With a clear piercing sound, Mo Ran curled up on the ground.

"Don't…"

Hot blood spewed out as his bones and flesh separated.

Mo Ran wailed in pain as he crawled over to Chu Wanning's side. He could not help but shake his head miserably. He tried to stop the bleeding by infusing his spiritual power into Chu Wanning's wounds.

Nothing was of any use.

Nothing was of any use.

He watched helplessly as Chu Wanning endured the pain and used a technique to prevent himself from fainting from the pain. He watched as Chu Wanning stabbed the knife into his chest inch by inch, blood flowing everywhere.

Hot, running, hot.

How could he not be a living person?

Meat. What was torn was meat.

It was bright red, sweet, and broken.

How could he not be alive? How could that be!

Huaizui stood there stiffly, his expression still fixed at the last moment, looking ferocious and cruel. However, the light in his eyes flickered, trembled, trembled, and was at a loss…

Was that really what he wanted?

At that moment, the scroll suddenly became unstable and blurry. The scene before Mo Ran's eyes became distorted and messy due to the emotions he felt when he was creating the scroll.

He had seen so many old things spring up in his blood, all of them soft and real.

Mo Ran saw that the eleven year old Chu Wanning had been summoned by Jincheng Lake. Just as he was about to leave, a wooden zither emerged from the lake. The instant it floated up, Chu Wanning's body emitted a dazzling light, as if it resonated with it. He touched the zither string in confusion, "What's going on?"

Huaizui immediately guessed that this zither was probably cut down by a section of the Flame Emperor's Divine Wood. Since it and Chu Wanning came from the same bloodline, they would naturally be able to sense each other. His expression was very excited, somewhat surprised, and also somewhat happy. "This should be your destiny to become a Martial God."

"Destiny Grasp?"

Huaizui was pleasantly surprised, but his eyes were dodging: "… That's right, someone with Heaven Rooting Bone Clearing Qi was born with a mysterious connection to the Divine Martial Art."

Chu Wanning laughed, "My Innate Ability is Qi?"

"…" Huaizui avoided answering, and only caressed Jiuge's wooden body, sighing, "This guqin is fated to be yours, I'm afraid it doesn't need a spirit core to summon it… It is related to your blood vessels."

The scene changed, and Mo Ran saw two people walking outside of Linan city. They were following behind Little Wanning, and they kept telling him to walk slower.

He saw the steaming hot cake and the happy smile on Chu Wanning's face through the steam.

In the inn, he saw Chu Wanning holding a small fan, trying his best to cool down Huaizui while he was meditating.

He saw Chu Wanning laugh at Guihua Sugar Lotus for the first time, the sweet juice had filled his mouth.

Finally, the illusion was fixed at the edge of a lotus pond in the summer of this year. The lotus leaves continued to fall as the lotus blossoms bloomed brilliantly. Red dragonflies rose and fell in spirals. It could not have been a better evening.

The five to six-year-old Chu Wanning sat cross-legged in meditation, imitating Huaizui. His black eyes were warm as he looked at his Shizun, "Shizun, let's play again, we'll play again."

Huaizui said, "I won't play anymore. Shizun will go to the Ramadan Hall to recite scriptures, to help an old friend transcend the class."

"Play again, go again. Last time, it really is the last time."

After that, without waiting for the monk to speak, the little guy had already rolled up the sleeves of his green and gray monastic robe, causing the lotus flowers to sway.

"You against one, I against one, what blossoms in the water? Lotus blooms in the water.

You against two, I against two, what blooming string? A string of blooming elms."

There was nothing he could do about it. Looking at his smiling face, he could only shake his head in the end. Then, he clapped with him while smiling, playing an extremely childish game.

“You against nine, I against nine, what blossoms with the wind? Dandelion blossoms with the wind.

You against ten, I against ten, what flower has no leaves? La Plum blossoms without leaves.”

Blood stained the front of his clothes, causing his to be drenched in blood.

In the Zen Courtyard, Huaizui closed his eyes.

It was… A log was cut off.

In the past, Lang Lang’s laughter was still resounding in his ears.

Yes, a person without a soul.

“What blooms in the water? Hahaha, Shizun is so stupid. The lotus blossoms in the water.”

It was an empty shell! The body that he was going to sacrifice to Chu Xun was the Wood of Atonement that he had spent a hundred years of his life for! Not a living person! No soul!

“Shizun, I’ll give you half of the cake. You eat the big one, I’ll eat the small one.”

Tears of guilt streamed down his face.

Trembling and trembling, he ran toward the child who had already driven the blade into his heart and whose core was beginning to crack and was about to be dug out.

He knelt down, he cried miserably, he screamed with all his might, he was like Mo Ran, who could only pass between him and Chu Wanning. The weeping in his throat was like blood, as if the knife was not stabbing Chu Wanning's heart, but his voice, his soul.

How could he not have a spirit soul…

He was the one who closed his eyes and refused to listen.

He had known it all along, he had always known it.

He could see that person's soul through his smile, his seriousness, his tolerance and gentleness, his stubbornness and persistence.

But for his own sake, for his so-called atonement, he pretended to be deaf and dumb, he paralyzed himself.

Chu Wanning had never been a wooden sculpture or an empty shell.

He was a person of flesh and blood. He would cry and laugh…

"I've watched him grow up day by day ever since he was a child. He was like Chu Lan when he was young, a bit older, and also like Chu Xun. However, I've never been mistaken between him and any of them."

The guilty voice sounded like a broken gong, hoarse to the extreme.

"It was he who gave me half of the cake and dragged me along to call me Shizun. It was he who secretly brought me a palm-leaf fan to help me and thought that I did not realize it at all. He was the one who accompanied me at the Wubei Temple for fourteen years, smiling at me, trusting me, saying that I was the most benevolent Shizun in the world."

It was like swallowing gallbladder.

"The most benevolent Shizun…" he mumbled to himself.

In the painting, Huaizui had restrained Chu Wanning's hand and stopped his spiritual energy. The instant the curse failed to work, Chu Wanning fainted in pain.

Huaizui held the living, bleeding body in his arms. It was as if he was carrying Chu Xun, who had illuminated everyone's escape path two hundred years ago when they were about to return to the Calamity Calamity Calamity Calamity.

But it was different.

Chu Wanning was very stubborn and proud. He had his own little hobbies, such as sleeping without a blanket, biting his chopsticks when he was tired from eating, and never washing clothes. He would just immerse them all together.

It was all his own habit, his own love.

Not like anyone else.

The image went black again.

It wasn't a bad thing to be in such a situation, but if he were to look at it again, he would probably go crazy.

In the darkness, there was a faint sigh.

“Actually, when he coldly glared at me and told me that he wanted to go down the mountain to help with the road and that he didn’t want to sit down and ascend the mountain, I knew that he was a living person.”

“I was weak and selfish. I almost destroyed the child I raised with my own hands.”

“He’s not Chu Lan, he’s not my sin offering.”

“He is Chu Wanning, because the hour when I woke him up was a peaceful evening. The bell of the Zen Temple rang out and he was born under the gaze of the Celestial Buddha. I gave him his name.”

“But what I gave him was only a name. I have always considered myself to have created him, and have therefore decided that he should belong to me, to be mine, to be mine, to be my sacrifice. But when I looked at him, just like you, Young Master Chu, for your own morals, you didn’t hesitate to cut off your own heart to prove yourself…”

The guilty party choked on his words, unable to speak. Only after a long time did he mutter.

“I finally understand. I’ve never given him a spirit soul, not even a life. It was all his own, because. Because a dirty, weak sinner like me will never be able to create a life as clean and resolute as his.”

“Never.”

Ch. 241 [Mount Longxue] The Truth

The painting once again lit up. It was a rainy morning, and he was sitting in the meditation room, holding the Bodhi Pearl and chanting a Buddhist scripture. Suddenly, there was a flash of light at the door. He didn't turn around, but only dropped the wooden fish.

He sighed, "You're awake?"

Mo Ran turned around and saw Chu Wanning standing outside the door. His pretty figure looked like it was melting into the thin sunlight.

"Why did Shizun still save me?"

"Blood is not to be seen without the Wubei Temple."

"…"

"Since you've already cut off your own heart and testified, I understand your meaning. You can go down the mountain yourself. From today onwards, you must not return."

Chu Wanning did not take any luggage. He looked at the familiar figure in the candle, and said after a while, "Shizun."

Shizun.

And then what? So they said goodbye? Thank you for your kindness?

The gauze on his chest was still bleeding, the knife had been pulled out, but his heart was still throbbing.

After fifteen years of trust, the last thing he received was a sentence from Huaizui: “I want your spirit core.” For the past fifteen years, he had always thought that Huaizui was the most benevolent, that he would worry about the grass and trees.

Pitiful ants. He had always thought that the entire world was as peaceful and peaceful as Linan city and the Upper Cultivation World.

But that was all fake. It was all a crime against him.

This was a tribulation that was tens of thousands of times more painful than having one’s spirit core shattered.

Chu Wanning closed his eyes, and finally he said to him, “Goodbye… Shizun.”

He had left his gentleness, trust, and innocence in this solemn temple, which Huaizui had once given him.

He turned and walked away.

“I knew he would hate me. Even if I followed him down the mountain, he would never be able to get past this barrier in his heart. I let him go. From then on, an ungrateful and selfish image of myself was left in his memory. He no longer recognizes me, and I no longer have the face to call myself his Shizun.”

“At that time, shortly after his birth, he was fifteen years old. Fifteen years of being a duckweed, spring, summer, autumn, winter, joy, anger, sadness, from that day onward, I will never look back.”

Huaizui swept his gaze across the steps of the courtyard. The leaves turned from green to withered yellow, and finally, there was not a single strand of life left on the branches. Another year's worth of winter snows had fallen.

The monk stood under the eaves, wrapped in a thick robe, squinting at the snow.

His face was still young, but his eyes were filled with a certain age. He was like all the other old people, fond of staring blankly. As long as he sat still for a while, he would unconsciously fall into a deep sleep.

"I am already very old, two hundred years old. The memories of my youth have already slowly faded from my mind, but I still remember more and more clearly the years when Wanning was by my side. I sometimes wonder if this is how the elders feel about their children… But what kind of elder am I? I'm just a butcher who doesn't have the courage."

"The yin aura in my body is becoming thinner and thinner. I probably won't have any hope of atoning for my sins for the rest of my life. I don't want to go anywhere else, I just stay in seclusion in the Wubei Temple all day long. I only fold up the best one when the haitang blossoms bloom and take it to the ghost realm, and hand it over to Chu Xun as usual."

"I have never been a broad-minded person, so the only thing I can do is a tiny bit. If I have more, I can't do it well, and if I encounter a choice, I won't know whether I'm right or wrong. I'm going to spend the rest of my life like this. Until one day, a person suddenly came to my courtyard."

It was late at night, and the door was being knocked.

Huaizui stood up to open the door, and he was suddenly stunned.

"… It's you?!"

Following behind him, Mo Ran saw the man's face clearly.

It was Chu Wanning.

Chu Wanning was very anxious and his complexion was very bad. The weirdest thing was that even though it was winter and the moon, he was only wearing a thin summer shirt.

Mo Ran's first reaction was that he gave his jacket to some refugees who were on the verge of freezing to death, but he soon realized that was not the case. Chu Wanning was dressed very properly, and with the permission of Huaizui, he entered the bedroom.

There were so many kinds of words that were stuck in his throat, but he could only ask one last question: "You… What's wrong?"

"I can't sustain my spiritual energy for too long, I can't explain it to the master one by one. This censer is very important, I really don't know who to give it to. There are too many unknowns in this world, I don't know what 'he' will become in the future, I don't know who will be able to survive and protect this secret, so I have no choice but to come and bother you."

"… What are you talking about? Are you sick?"

Huaizui did not manage to react, but Mo Ran, who was standing by the side, felt his head buzz as his vision turned black! He suddenly realized what was wrong with "Chu Wanning".

Ear hole!

Chu Wanning had a hole in his left ear, and he wore a scarlet earring, looking like cinnabar.

It was just a tiny detail, but it made Mo Ran feel as if it had been struck by lightning, rendering him unable to speak.

This was not Chu Wanning at all… Or perhaps, this was not his world's Chu Wanning at all!

He… He was from his previous life, the time when he was Taxian-Jun, otherwise he would not have possessed this imprint. Mo Ran clearly remembered that this earring was made from his own spirit blood. It had a love curse attached to it that made Chu Wanning more sensitive to his touch and invasion.

It couldn't be wrong!

He could clearly recall what kind of thoughts he had, how he had created this needle, and then when he had absent-minded Chu Wanning, he fiercely licked his left ear, feeling the trembling release of the man below him, while taking advantage of the spasms of Chu Wanning to pierce through his earlobe without saying a word.

Chu Wanning groaned. His brows were furrowed as he grabbed the blanket, but he could not get rid of the man who was lying on top of him.

"Does it hurt?"

He licked the blood from the tip of his ear, his eyes shining.

"Is it pain or pleasure?"

The earring pierced through the soft flesh, as if it were a different level of subjugation to this man. It was always painful when a foreign object stabbed into the flesh, no matter what it stabbed into.

Seeing Chu Wanning trembling and whimpering from the pain, Mo Ran felt even more excited. He stroked his chin, and kissed him hot and wet, gasping for breath.

“It’s just an earpiece, why are you trembling?”

He knew what he was doing, so he used force in his hand and roughly broke the earlobe with the needle. He did not pity him at all. He was vicious and crude.

“Look, it pierced you.” He stroked the earring that Chu Wanning had just put on his ear and said hoarsely, “It went in.”

“…”

“It’s in your flesh and blood. From now on, you’re mine.”

In his previous life, Chu Wanning came into this world.

This knowledge caused Mo Ran’s heart to palpitate. His scalp tingled and his vision blurred. He felt like he couldn’t even breathe. He looked at everything in front of him with a blank expression on his face. Just what was going on?

He tried his best to focus his mind and listen to the conversation between Chu Wanning and Huaizui, but the excitement was too great, he could not recover his wits immediately. He only knew that Chu Wanning had said something to Huaizui, and from time to time, he had heard the words ‘Door of Life and Death’ and ‘Forbidden Destruction’ and ‘Unstoppable’ from time to time.

He saw Huaizui slump into a chair, his face sallow, his eyes narrowed.

“How do you prove that what you said is true?”

“… I can’t prove it.” In the end, Mo Ran heard Chu Wanning’s words, “I can only ask for your trust in me, Shizun.”

“… This is ridiculous. You said that you came through the Gate of Life and Death from another world, and in that world, there is a person called Ta Ta… Tax…”

“Taxian-Jun.”

“There’s a Taxian-Jun emperor who is destroying the heavens and the earth, turning the entire cultivation world upside down. You discovered his secret, so you found a way to open the Gate of Life and Death to come to this world? In order to change rewrite the past?”

“Not rewrite, but stop it. If this goes on, sooner or later they will learn the curse of the Gate of Life and Death. When that time comes, our world will not be the only one to end.” Chu Wanning paused for a moment, his eyes reflected in the dim candlelight, “No one can escape.”

“Ridiculous. How can that be… This was simply… Nonsense…”

From time to time, Chu Wanning would look at the water leak in front of the door to recrimination. He held on to the time, his eyes gradually filled with anxiety, “Even if Shizun doesn’t believe me now, he will understand in the future. Before this, please seal this censer in the cave of Mount Longxue. I have set up the most important spell in the censer to let it slowly evaporate in the cave. The only thing to do is…”

Huaizui raised his head and looked at him like a madman. A dream-like expression appeared on his face as he looked at Chu Wanning.

“The only thing to do is to not let anyone near the caves of Mount Longxue. Until Shizun believes what I have said, and then think of a way to bring this world’s ‘I’ and that person called Mo Ran together to Mount Longxue — for the rest of the matters, the censers have already set up the Incantation of Law, so there is no need to worry."

Huaizui weakly moved his mouth as if he wanted to say something, but suddenly, a shrill whistle came from outside the window.

This whistle sound was exactly the same as the sound of Taxian-Jun's disappearance.

When Chu Wanning heard this, his face turned even paler. He stared at Huaizui's eyes anxiously, "Please, other than you, there is no one else in this world who I can entrust this to."

Hearing the word 'trust', Huaizui was stunned.

Within his pupils, it was as if there was suddenly the muddiness and vicissitudes of old age within him.

Finally he took the censer and gave a slight nod.

The whistle grew sharper. Chu Wanning looked out the window at the night sky, then said to Huaizui, "Please Shizun, you must guard this cave well. Also, if there is a Taxian-Jun in this world, perhaps… Just as I said, with the appearance of a great Heavenly Rift, the situation will definitely change — at that time, Shizun should be convinced that what I have said today is definitely not a lie."

The shrill whistle almost tore his eardrums.

Chu Wanning turned and ran into the night, only able to take one last deep look at Huaizui. He originally wanted to be a Shizun and disciple, but his hand stopped halfway. He closed his eyes, bowed deeply, and bid them farewell.

At that moment, without knowing where, Huaizui got the courage to stand up and shout at Chu Wanning, “You… Do you know what I did? Didn’t I do the same to you in that world? You won’t believe me anymore!”

Chu Wanning just shook his head. His face was blurred in the dark.

“Shizun…” His figure was getting further and further away, “I don’t have time anymore… Please, think of a way…”

“No matter what you do, this matter is too important. Please persuade me to listen to you and let me come with him to Mount Longxue.”

He was finally gone.

The night was dark and the stars were shining.

After being chased out of the courtyard, he only saw a flash that was even heavier than the dark night. Chu Wanning was nowhere to be seen, only the censer in his hand was still there, full of spiritual energy, which he held tightly in his palm, confirming that this was not a dream.

The scene before Mo Ran’s eyes began to shake violently. The scenes he had seen earlier were like an avalanche as they fell apart like broken bricks.

“He said that no matter what method he used, it would be fine. But, what could I do? He no longer trusts me,” he said, sighing. “Furthermore, I still have some reservations in my heart, and I do not dare to believe that all of this is a conspiracy.”

“It wasn’t until Butterfly Town was split and Wanning died that I made up my mind. After reviving him, I would cultivate and deal with him.”

“I have hesitated for a while over that letter. Because I do not know how powerful the person behind this letter is, I did not dare to say the truth in it. I really had no other excuse to find him. Moreover, his cultivation was strong, and he was also at the Sisheng Peak, an important position for Elder Yuheng. It was impossible for me to force him to leave. In the end, I thought that it would be inconvenient for him to not have completely restored his Spiritual Core in all these years. So I used this as a reason to invite him to come to Mount Longxue.”

“But I lied to him for fourteen years. So no matter how sincere my words are, he still doesn’t want to believe me…”

A long, faint sigh, the sound almost perplexed.

“I’ve been waiting. Just like nearly twenty years ago, when I imprisoned him on the mountain, I would come to him every day, hoping that he would change. After that, I went to Mount Longxue every day to look for him, hoping that he would come back.”

“If only he would give me another chance.”

The old monk’s voice sounded like a kite with its string cut as he floated far away, “My days are numbered, I know I can’t wait any longer. So in the end, I made this scroll. In this, I have a lot of thought, several changes, put in a little bit of memory once did not want to put in. But in the end, I’m still a coward. I don’t really want him to see this scroll while I’m still alive… I couldn’t stand his sad eyes. When he was fourteen, I had seen enough of that look.”

“So, Wanning…” He sighed softly as if he was weighed down by a heavy burden, “When you get here, I… It should be already lonely.”

“I am still a very selfish person. In order to not see that you hate me, only before I leave did I dare to give you the entire truth, to the child called Mo Ran that you spoke of. I’m sorry, that year, Shizun was wrong. You’re a living person, always have been.”

Huaizui stopped for a moment before suddenly becoming hoarse. He said the last words that he had left behind in the world.

“Young Master Chu, can you forgive me?”

It was unknown if the name “Young Master Chu” was this “him” or “him” from a hundred years ago.

At the end of his speech, a wind suddenly blew. Countless memory fragments, like the bright snow, drifted past one another. At this moment, the two hundred years of sin and punishment, the fourteen years of joy and sorrow, all intersected.

The child laughs: “You against one, I against one, what blooms in the water? The lotus blossoms in the water.”

The young man was arguing, “Since you don’t know how to treat others, then why should you? This Immortal… it’s fine if he doesn’t want to cultivate.”

In the end, his phoenix eyes closed. “So long… Shizun.”

All of this happened in succession like a passing lantern. When the light was at its brightest, Mo Ran saw the stooped figure of Huaizui appearing in front of him. He leaned over the table and carved the last line for the Divine Wood.

The clock struck midnight.

“I’ll just call you Chu Wanning.”

As soon as he finished speaking, Mo Ran floated in waves around the torrential stream of memories. Then, he was suddenly pushed out of the scroll, falling onto the sandy ground in front of the cave of Mount Longxue.

Time passed differently inside and outside the scroll. At this moment, it was already dusk, and the world was filled with a majestic red glow as the sun set peacefully. As he lay there, Mo Ran felt like he had returned to that night many years ago. He felt guilty and blood dripped from his wounds. From then on, there was a child called Chu Wanning.

He lay on the ground, his eyes unfocused.

“Shizun… Wanning…”

He finally understood why such a strong man like Chu Wanning would cry in his arms.

It was just that the price he paid was too high. It was as though he was hacking away at it with thousands of blades.

Was it all his fault?

It was the fault of Taxian-Jun in his previous life, Chu Wanning had spent two lifetimes trying to stop him from making a mess of the world.

Chu Wanning’s spirit core had been dug out.

The big brother who saved his life before the Wubei Temple.

Not human… It was the Spirit of the Divine Wood…

Every single strike was like a brick smashing down. Just the truth alone was enough to cause one's muscles and bones to shatter, causing them to be badly mutilated, let alone so many piles of them.

For a moment, Mo Ran felt as if he was lying on the ground. All the bones in his body seemed to have been shattered, and he was unable to do anything else.

It was all a mess.

He looked around and saw Chu Wanning sitting quietly with his eyes closed. Suddenly, his regret turned into a bone. His love and compassion turned into a meat, and the pain turned into blood. He wanted to protect this person's desires, to let him struggle free from the extreme feelings of helplessness and blankness, to free himself from the mud.

He slowly stood up and walked towards Chu Wanning.

Chu Wanning opened his eyes and looked at him.

Neither of them spoke first.

In the end, Mo Ran bent down and embraced him, "Shizun, it doesn't matter if you are divine wood or human. As long as you are willing to take me…" He tried to hold it in, but he choked. "I'll always…"

How are things?

Standing by his side?

He wasn't worthy.

So at last he said, humbly and painfully, "I will always stand in front of you."

I can’t accompany you, I’m not worthy of you, I’m so cheap and dirty, so destructive, but you’re pure.

I can’t stand by your side anymore, Wanning.

Let me stand in front of you and protect you from the blood and the knife.

Until the day of my death.

Ch. 242 [Mount Longxue] Imperial Consort Chu

Chu Wanning did not confirm the matter of Taxian-Jun again, nor did he speak much.

Actually, the uneasy look on Mo Ran was the best answer. There was no need to ask anything else. What's more, he felt extremely tired at the moment, and his mind was numb after being hit one time after another.

It took him a long time to break away from Mo Ran's embrace and get up slowly. Instead of looking directly at him, he closed his eyes and opened his mouth, with a chillingly calm voice. He said, "I want to go to the cave."

"…"

"Since the other me has worked hard to set up this setup, I want to see it."

"… Do you know the truth and hate me?" It was almost childish, but Mo Ran asked, and then he muttered, "You'll hate me."

Chu Wanning's eyes moved slightly, and eventually he turned around and looked at him: "Taxian-Jun… What on earth have you done?

He didn't ask "you". He used the name "Taxian-Jun".

Mo Ran felt a ray of vitality because of this title, but this line of vitality is too dim. On one hand, he wants to grab it, on the other hand, he is frightened.

Chu Wanning's lips moved slightly, eyes slightly raised.

"Killing?"

Mo Ran shut his eyes. He was silent.

“Slaughtered a city?”

Mo Ran remained silent.

Chu Wanning thought of the dreams he had made before, those spring dreams that had once felt absurd and ambiguous, and the man in the Dragon Soul Hall who spoke and behaved towards himself. He had already understood the original idea implicitly, but when it came to his mouth, he could not ask, and finally only said, “What about me? What on earth am I beside him?”

The knot in Mo Ran’s throat rolled, trying to answer, but he couldn’t.

He ran away and ran away for so long. Now he couldn’t speak. He feels that he is a sinner standing on the platform to die. He kneels on the ground and can see the shadow of the executioner’s knife.

When does he drop dead? When does his head fall to the ground?…

Suddenly he did not want to wait any longer. He didn’t want to run away. The process of waiting for the knife to fall was too long. He would rather touch the wall and die.

Mo Ran opened his eyes and said, “Go into the cave.”

He moved his fingertips as if trying to pull Chu Wanning’s hand, but at last he hung down and only rubbed his clothes in front of him.

Before entering the cave, he hesitated for a moment, then turned his head and grinned at Chu Wanning.

“Shizun.”

Chu Wanning rather looked at him, the man suddenly laughed so brilliantly and so warmly. It seems that all hope and happiness will be squandered at this moment.

The rest of his life is no longer needed.

Chu Wanning was suddenly awakened by the sting of this smile. He walked over, but he did not know what to say. He was so distracted that he raised his cold hand and touched the other side’s equally cold face.

“…” Mo Ran was stunned and opened his eyes slowly.

Chu Wanning sighed, pulled Mo Ran and dared not take the initiative to hold his hand again, as if to say to Mo Ran, as if to say to himself: “I… I watched you grow into what you are today. So it’s you, not him.”

“You are not the same as Taxian-Jun.”

Mo Ran was still, stiff for a long time, before laughing, his throat choking: “Hmm.”

But now it’s wet.

How can it be different?

He’s the worst man in the world. He’s a ghost who escaped from his previous life.

But before all is over, he can get such a recognition. He thinks God is serious to him. No matter what happens after Chu Wanning’s memory is restored, he has no complaints.

He closed his eyes, took Chu Wanning's hand, took a deep breath and went into the Longxue Cave.

After stepping in, all the scenes outside were invisible.

Looking around the cave, they found that it was very narrow, about the size of a disciple's bedroom on Sisheng Peak. Inside the empty four-walled place, there was only one small case with a rusty smoking stove on it, the one that appeared in the picture scroll of Huaizui. Smoke was waving in the smoking stove. Mo Ran didn't like smelling incense, but the smell in the stove was not pungent. There was only a faint taste of haitang flower.

"What kind of curse is this?"

Chu Wanning shook his head: his voice was low and slow: "… I don't know. This "I" is not what I am today. I don't necessarily know it because of the magic he learned by chance. Like how Taxian-Jun may not use Jiangui as a weapon, unlike you."

His eyes turned to the smoking stove. "Perhaps you have to touch it to find out what's coming?" When he finished, he raised his hand and lightly touched the hearth with his fingertips, but there was still no movement.

Mo Ran had watched Chu Wanning warmly and sadly ever since he entered the cave. Although he did not want Chu Wanning to recover his memory, he still said, "Since it is the illusion left by the Master for us two, it may be useless for one person to touch. To open it, we both need to be here."

"… Uh huh. Try it."

Two people, left and right, touched their fingers on the fine twining patterns of the stove, the flower fragrance inside the cave was instantly fragrant, smoke like a wave, instantly filled the whole cave. Mo Ran did not expect the abnormal changes to happen so quickly, and was ready to grab Chu's hand, but the rolling clouds immediately swallowed him up.

Mo Ran was stunned in surprise: "Shizun!"

It was too late. There was a spiritual force in the clouds. It was different from the ordinary spiritual core force, but it was very clear and powerful. He seemed to be floating in the sky, followed by all the limbs and bones as if they were frozen, and no longer under his control. Before even his voice left him, he tried his best to call out, "Shizun, are you okay?"

He could let out is just a vague statement, and then it can't move any more.

The situation on Chu Wanning's side was not much worse than that on his side. He called Mo Ran's name in the fog, and at first he heard some responses, but soon it became a dead silence.

"Mo Ran?"

Chu Wanning rubbed in the smoke and tried to touch the edge, but there seemed to be some kind of magic spell in the incense stove, which made the space here infinite and he could not reach the end.

"Mo…"

Suddenly his throat was suffocated and Chu Wanning, like Mo Ran, was shocked to find that he could no longer make a sound, and soon he found that he was restricted not only by the sound of speech, but also by the movement. He could not even control his body. It felt like a dream, in which he was still him, but he was no longer free to act and speak, and could only watch everything in front of him with open eyes. Without mak any changes.

His mind, which had been messing around, became more and more confused. If there was anything to say, would it be better to set up an axis of memories? Why do you want to do this?

It took a long time for the smoke to dissipate.

When he opened his eyes, he found that the original scene had disappeared. In his eyes, red candles flickered. He sat at a familiar yellow sandalwood table, which was neatly packed. There were not many things placed on the table, but there was a deep mark on the table. It was accidentally cut with a knife he used to make the Night Guardian.

… The cave turned into the Red Lotus Pavilion.

Chu Wanning sat stiff and his body was still uncontrolled. It looked like the Peach Garden's illusion. The only difference is that he can't control the development of things. He can only stay still and repeat some of the past events that have happened.

Why did he set this spell? What does he want him to see, and what does he want him to repeat?

It was late outside, and two servants he had never seen stood behind him, helping him to comb his hair.

He was manipulated by the illusion, raised his hand, stopped their movements, and said, "Don't comb, I'll do it myself."

He heard a "Crash!" Suddenly, the door was pushed open roughly. Chu Wanning felt that he seemed very unwilling to see the person who pushed the door. So he just sat at the desk with his back straight, without turning back, and even closed his eyes.

“Get out of here.”

Behind him came a familiar voice.

The two servants immediately put down their combs and basins, looked respectful and bowed their heads for blessings.

“Yes, Your Majesty.”

The two attendants went out, Chu Wanning still did not turn back, nor did he open his eyes, but of course he knew who was coming and, how could he have heard the voice wrong?

Chu Wanning has a beast-like alertness. He feels that the man was approaching him, step by step… Suddenly breathing is on the temples of his ears, with a strong smell of alcohol, hot.

“Why haven’t you slept yet?” Mo Ran asked mutely behind him.

Chu Wanning heard his own indifferent reply: “Preparing to sleep.”

“Uh… I see that.” Mo Ran said in his ear and smiled gently. “The outer gown is off, besides the hair crown, why don’t you like this suit? This Venerable One made it of the finest gold wire and inlaid with exquisite jade. What this Venerable One gives you is better than that for the queen. Why do you look down on it?”

“…”

“Nevermind.” Without waiting for Chu Wanning to speak, Mo Ran said to himself, “Anyway, you don’t like anything I give you. You look down on me from the bottom of your heart.” He said this and sneered, “But what about that? You see, you’re going to be mine in the end.”

Mo Ran said, extending his hand gently and wrapping Chu Wanning in his arms from behind. Chu Wanning’s body could hardly withstand such stimulation and anger. Eventually, he opened his eyes, so he could continue to see everything in front of him.——

In front of him was a bronze mirror, in which Mo Ran and his figure were reflected. Mo Ran wore a golden red dress, wearing nine beads crown. Unexpectedly, he was in a wedding uniform. The man hugged him behind him. His face came down and he began to kiss his earlobe and neck.

Chu Wanning shivered slightly, because of anger and also because of something else.

“Don’t make a fool of yourself.”

“Ah, don’t make any rash remarks. How does Shizun want me to move?”

Threats are useless, instead of being ridiculed, Chu Wanning had to bite his teeth fiercely and say: “evil beast!”

Mo Ran smiled lightly. His look was very obsessed, his handsome face has a half-awake and half-drunk lustful gaze, lips constantly rubbing Chu Wanning’s side face, murmuring: “What beast? You see now, at the end of the day, you belong to me…”

He didn’t know where the killing intent came from. Chu Wanning felt that his body had picked up something from the previous case, and thrust it back at the back of the Mo Ran's hand.

Mo Ran grunted with pain and snorted.

He took the opportunity to break free and stared angrily at the man in the lamp.

"Get out of here."

Chu Wanning, who was under his body, saw clearly that he had just used a golden hairpin to stab him, which was the ornament of a man when he gets married.

"Tsk…" Mo Ran raised his hand and looked at his bleeding wound. He laughed coldly at it first, then put out his tongue, like a poisonous snake spitting out letters, licking the blood across the length and breadth, and rolled it between his lips and teeth.

There was a crazy light in his eyes, which was full of beastliness. For a moment, it made his face not so handsome, but rather a bit grim.

"I can't believe that your soul and spirit core were scrapped and you can still hurt this Venerable One." Mo Ran's lips stained with blood, laughing and laughing out loud, "Chu Wanning, you have sharp fingers and claws, this Venerable One is really small in front of you."

"… Get out of here."

"'Get out of here', do you only know how to say one sentence?" He seemed to be enjoying the pain. His expression is somewhat abnormal and pleasurable. "How do you like to cast aside your Venerable One? Why don't you keep silent in front of all the guests in the hall today?"

“…”

“This Venerable One can block your actions, but not your voice, you can yell angrily, this Venerable One will not touch you.” Mo Ran approached him again, and stood close to him, holding Chu Wanning’s hairpin wrist with a tremendous twist.

He grinned, and there was blood between his teeth.

“But what you have done is to wash the half sleeves of this Venerable One with the water of the bath when you untied your hands.”

Mo Ran paused and then laughed. “Shizun, you were so angry. Why didn’t you call me that time?”

“You… Shameless!”

“This Venerable One is shameless, but who is a gentleman? Xue Meng? I sent him an invitation to the banquet today, but he didn’t want to come himself. What would you feel like if he came?” Mo Ran said with a light laugh, “Would you ask him to take you away when you are in the hall?”

Although Chu Wanning, caught in the clouds of recovery, could barely hear him, his body obviously understood the words of Mo Ran, and bitter with hatred he refused to say a word.

Mo Ran looked at him angrily and suddenly reached out the tip of his blood-stained tongue, turned his face, and gently licked his ear.

“…”

“Chu Wanning, do you know when you are most in trouble? That’s when you stare at me with such angry eyes.” He pulled his hand and went down.

“If you don’t believe it, touch it. Is it very big and hot? Shizun, elder Yuheng and Master Chu— One title is more respectful than another, but at last it is full of moisture.”

“Look, it wants you so much.”

“Get out!”

“You’ve said that for the third time.” Mo Ran stared at him, the malice in his eyes growing deeper. “Today is the day of this great celebration, climbing to the top, marrying a beautiful wife and a concubine… This Venerable One even left the queen to accompany you. Why are you still so fierce?”

He paused, full of malice, and finally quenched out two words:

“Concubine Chu?”

“!!”

Chu Wanning felt like he was killed by thunder, and he could not move. He seemed to be nauseated to the extreme by these two words, and his whole body started shaking.

But Mo Ran laughed and his eyes sparkled. “What’s wrong? You can’t speak happily when this venerable calls you so? Somehow I slept so long with you. If you were a woman, you would be playing with me endlessly every night for fear of having a baby for me because you were already unmarried and pregnant. If this Venerable One gave you a place, shouldn’t you be happy to wait in bed? This Venerable One is not an unreasonable person, ha ha ha ha.”

Chu Wanning was so angry that he couldn’t say a word.

Is this anger and nausea physical?

The controlled body and the free soul are strongly disgusted. Chu Wanning was full of nausea and disgust, but also creeped out and shocked.

Taxian-Jun…

The past of Mo Ran.

What on earth have you done?!

Madman! Crazy!!!

Mo Ran laughed enough, suddenly pinched Chu Wanning's chin, kissed him fiercely, and his mouth smelled of blood. He roughly turned Chu Wanning's wrists with one hand, pushed Chu Wanning down to the couch and then bent over.——

Chu Wanning closed his eyes and shivered.

The fiery and strong man's body pressed him down hard and held tightly.

"Do your duty as a gentleman. You and I are married now. You are my man. You can't escape anymore."

Ch. 243 [Mount Longxue] Third

>>noncon warning

The red-gold pillow rustled beneath him, and there was a fishy smell in his nostrils.

Chu Wanning looked at Mo Ran's face. The dreams he had, at this moment, overlapped with reality. It turned out that these were not dreams, but actually real.

He and Mo Ran had actually already been intimate with each other. They had actually already been married. He was imprisoned by Mo Ran, and he knelt in the frozen snow, begging to see Mo Ran face to face…

It was all true.

At this moment, Chu Wanning did not know what he was feeling. Perhaps under the influence of the intoxicating fragrance, his consciousness had become one with the Chu Wanning from another world.

He felt what it felt.

Knew what he knew.

Chu Wanning closed his eyes as his clothes were torn off and a kiss fell on his lips.

He felt very miserable. Who was he?

Was he the Immortal master Chu who relied on his sword, or the laughable consort Chu? Was he the one Mo-zongshi loved sincerely, or was he the one hated by Taxian-Jun?

Everything was no longer clear. Piles of memories floated before his eyes like falling flowers in a stream. He tried to catch those memories, but he could not see them clearly.

In the end, only the space between the beds was visible.

In this illusion, he was brutally clamped down by Mo Ran, pants were hastily and cruelly removed, there was no lingering foreplay he was once familiar with, only brutal intrusion.

Although the scene was false, he and the same manipulated Mo Ran were repeating the real action of the previous life. He was pressed into bed with Mo Ran, without even a caress or kiss. He heard the rustle of his clothes behind him, and then a hot sexual organ came behind him.

“Shizun, do you feel it well? Do you feel its desire? Thank you for this Venerable one.”

“You… Sinful beast!”

He answered with a sneer: “Don’t you want to stretch your legs open for this beast?” Then there was the tearing feeling, the entrance of a hole that had never been invaded was opened, and a fierce pulsating cock came in fiercely.

Pain.

It was really painful.

He was in a trance, thinking of Mo Ran’s soft eyebrow, kissing him in the hot spring torrent at night, and saying to him: “If it gets inside, you won’t be able to bear it. Listen to me, we can do it next time.”

But Taxian-Jun would not have pity on him. The terrible size seemed to break his internal walls. It was so hard and hot, it was so fierce, so thick and long that he almost felt that it would poke directly out of his abdomen, open his stomach and pierce him.

Chu Wanning was like a fish on the shore struggling, in exchange the Immortal Emperor raised his hand, slapped him on the face, gritted his teeth and said: “It’s not like I haven’t been in you before. We’ve been doing it so many times.”

A slap down, his cheeks flushed.

He turned his face away, his hair was chaotic, his eyes were red, he was silent and he did not cry. Tonight he was more humiliated than ever, but he was lonelier than ever.

Mo Ran held around his waist, hitting his hip incessantly. The place where they were joined was terribly hot and humid. Mo Ran tried to look at his face, wanting to see his humiliated expression. The thrusting stopped, and the handsome man who was on top gasped, his eyes darkened. He held his chin to force him to see him.

“You…”

He seemed to want to say some insulting words, but in the candle fire, those eyes that were obviously in extreme pain, but couldn’t bear to cry, were beautiful. Mo Ran stared for a moment, suddenly leaned over and caught his lips, wet sticky hot tongue intruded, rolling in his mouth. The fierceness of the man above grew. He became more and more vigorous, faster and harder, then deeper and deeper. The hot and thick cock beating in the body of Chu Wanning.

When the kiss ended, Mo Ran's behavior became more intense. His eyes were vague about whether what he felt was sexual desire or love. "Don't grab the quilt, you are my man, you can hold me."

This is the only sentence that resembled compassion in the whole sexual intercourse. Chu Wanning didn't listen. He did not embrace him as he wished, or fell in with him. As Mo Ran's face became cloudy, the coupling became even more wild.

Chu Wanning held the mattress tightly with his backhand, and his wrists were full of blue veins. He couldn't stand such abuse at all. But Mo Ran could not let him go. His rough palms rubbed his waist, buttocks and Chu Wanning did not know how long such a pull had lasted. The man suddenly got irritable and pulled himself out from his body violently. Chu Wanning heard a hoarse hum from himself. He turned over, the place where they were connected was sticky and lustfully stretched, it spasmodically contracted. The edge seemed to have the sticky fluid hanging from the sexual intercourse, before it could flow out, the man's ferocious cockhead pressed against his hole again, and he pushed his huge cock inside and trusted twice.

He heard Mo Ran say, "Big or not?"

"…"

"Did your husband make you happy? Uh huh?"

Chu Wanning heard his own voice, which sounded almost defeated: "… Get out of here…"

"Get out of here!"

Mo Ran cursed, and he seemed to be looking for something from the side. Chu Wanning felt that his legs had been opened even more, and there was a tube of cold paste that squeezed into his body.

Chu Wanning heard himself choking and scolding: “Mo Ran… Mo Ran, you beast…”

Mo Ran…

Mo Ran.

No, it isn’t him.

Mo Ran is the person who gazes at him with a smile under the flower tree.

“Shizun, I want to protect you with an umbrella for a lifetime,” Mo Ran said.

Mo Ran rubbed his hair and said gently, “You’ll hurt.”

Mo Ran is the person who holds a golden wheat straw in the corners of his mouth and spread his arms, will give him milk candies, will look down and smile because of a simple word, and blush slightly.

So shy and honest.

No, this isn’t him.

There was a sudden panic.

Later, perhaps because the incense has been put here for too long, the effect was not as good as the first time, so it slowly goes dark, Chu Wanning’s brain was also faint, he can’t see anything, he can’t speak yet, the only perception is that he is still trapped, Mo Ran's cock is still buried in his body. The hot, huge hardness made his scalp feel numb.

It was dark for a long time before it began to light up slowly.

After Chu Wanning's recovered his consciousness, the first thing he heard was an almost twisted curse from Mo Ran. The burning pain of the ear-slap fan on his face, and the seemingly insertion of a cold object in his lower body to alleviate the near-crazy spring tide in his body.

This was still the love affair of the newly married officials, Chu Wanning can clearly recall the details of this incident at this time.

He was constantly reminiscent of his past life.

He knew that he was later squeezed into an aphrodisiac ointment, and that Taxian-Jun, who drank too much wine, became more and more irritable, bloodthirsty and gloomy in his intense sexual affairs.

Alcohol and desire burned red eyes, hatred and pleasure controlled the young emperor.

Chu Wanning's throat was strangled. Mo Ran said in anger: "Chu Wanning, would you rather be like this? You think you are tough? Ah? When the fuck are you going to stop acting tough? Do you want to play yourself to death before you become willing?"

Chu Wanning heard himself say: "… I… Don't want… You…"

The voice was almost broken, and if he didn't feel his lips moving, he didn't even believe it was his voice. Chu Wanning felt tears falling down his cheeks.

“Mo Ran… You spare me…”

The man in front of him howled almost madly. He shouted at him and said, “Who’s going to spare me? Ah? Chu Wanning, have you ever wondered who will spare me? Who can spare me!!!”

The man pressed him on the bed and pulled out the hard object in his body and threw it aside, listening to the sound, it seemed to be a candlestick. Only then did he realize he was fucking him with the handle of Baozhao or a candlestick…

The man touched his face, his voice was anxious and crazy, but he did not know if it was an illusion. He actually heard a trace of sadness: “Chu Wanning, I hate you thoroughly.”

“You killed the person I loved most in my life. What can you do? What do you say? I can only let you make it up to me, let your life be destroyed in my hands… Chu Wanning…”

The man held his weapon. Because he was too crazy and too eager, he couldn’t push inside the first time. The smooth and hot stem hit the inside of the hip, and slipped out. The man gasped, straightened up, grasped Chu’s waist and inserted it again.

“Ah-”

Chu Wanning heard his mute moan and seemed to end up stretching to the extreme. There are also men’s heavy breathing, coated with love medicine, his walls eventually opened again by the hot cock, seamlessly filled, Chu Wanning constantly trembling, sweating all over, eyes out of focus… Desire finally engulfed him.

It was getting dark again.

Once again, he could feel endless bliss.

The body in the illusion and the body in the reality seemed to be inseparable from each other. He and the strong man struggle against each other. Mo Ran pressed him on the bed and wildly manipulated him. Looking in, he cried under the man, chokes and lies on the couch with his fingers deep in the fur of the beast.

Every time the man thrust, he wanted to press him to death against the bed. It was so fierce and powerful that he could feel the sweat gathering in his abdomen, dripping on his waist and flowing into his waist.

“Say… You want me to fuck you? How can you stand obstinately after all this lewdness? Fuck, I’ll come inside you…”

At this time, Chu Wanning seems to be defeated at last. His soul has been killed by the crazy lust. He only has a body that is played by men. It is lewd and sensitive, and he is not satisfied.

“Say ah…” Behind him, the man gazed at him with rapture and gasped roughly.

“Hah…”

Mo Ran groaned deeply and his huge cock pulsed in the wet entrance. He gasped, red-eyed, and grasped Chu Wanning’s buttocks up to thrust deeper. Then he inserted himself deeply, twitched and twirled slightly to stimulate the man who had been smeared with an aphrodisiac.

In fact, Mo Ran knew that he lost.

He almost squeezed inside half the tube of the strongest aphrodisiac in the world, which made the internal walls sticky. Only then Chu Wanning would submit to him.

He lost.

But what about that?

He had acquired what he wanted, and his noble master had finally become his consort Chu, breathless and lustful under him.

Nothing was more exciting than this.

As he thought so, the hard cock hardened again.

“Say it. Say you’re going to be fucked by me. Say you’re my man.”

Under such repeated torture and humiliation, Chu Wanning eventually heard himself muttering hoarsely, repeating in complete confusion: “Yes… I am yours…”

His consciousness has been separated, his expression has been broken, his pride, leaving only the body surging in horrible desire.

“Not for me. What you should say is to fuck you.” Although Mo Ran spoke so maliciously, he could not help but endure to the limit. His throat was gathering and he couldn’t help fighting against Chu Wanning’s buttocks fiercely and violently. He was full of beastly confrontation and agitation.

Chu Wanning was so weak that he did not even have the strength to kneel and lie on his knees. He was soft and dirty. His eyes were closed and he could not help but breathe heavily.

The ancient love poison, this aphrodisiac, used even a little bit, could turn anyone into a beast of desire.

Mo Ran had squeezed almost half the tube in his body.

“Pleased? Did I make you happy?” Mo Ran held the bed pillar with one hand, while the other hand touched Chu Wanning’s chest and waist incessantly.

The bed squeaked violently, Mo Ran’s eyes were intense and hot, his expression was sexy and intoxicated.

“Say, you want me to fuck you.”

Mo Ran’s thrusts were so urgent and fierce that they made the other tremble and get out of control. Chu Wanning eventually collapsed. He gasped roughly and finally almost cried out in a hoarse voice: “Ah… Ah…”

“Ask for it.” Mo Ran closed his eyes and looked up. His throat knot rolled. He patted Chu Wanning’s buttocks fiercely. “Say it out loud, I’ll make you feel even better.”

“Ah… Ah… I want to…”

“What do you want?”

Chu Wanning has been tormented to a point of insanity. He sobbed and shuddered in despair: “Fuck me…”

Mo Ran’s eyes burst into darkness, his lower body filled with excitement, the amplitude of the suction was too large, and when he pulled out, the wet sticky glans were slipping away, and he was holding fast to the heat and sticky insides. He pressed Chu Wanning under his body and looked closely. He murmured, “Shizun, you are so hot, humid and hot inside, sucking this disciple. It’s addictive.”

“Ah… Um… Don’t stop… Ah, pull harder a little, and then… Ah!” He gasped, “Quicker… A little deeper… Ah…”

The trembling arm was caught, and the man held him from behind, seemingly infinitely gentle. Suddenly, he called to him in his ear, “Wanning, today is our wedding night. I’ll cum on you, I will cum in you, and I will leave my seed in your stomach… Shizun… You’re really tight…”

“Ah…”

“Why do you have to force me to give you the medicine to do that?” The man said, licking his earlobe, “You obviously like how I treat you… Is that right?”

“I… Ah…”

Mo Ran’s cock was so long. When it reached the depths, it almost broke his belly through his core. Chu Wanning was unable to speak, but shook his head and tears shed from the corners of his eyes.

“Like it or not?”

“…”

“Don’t you like it?” Suddenly he stopped the fierce intrusion and buried himself in his body. Chu Wanning could feel that the tip inside it was beating angrily with the intense heartbeat of the two men. This subtle feeling made him more tormented. His throat was dry, but his soul was already very cold.

In his slippery body, he gently twitched a few times, which were like the roots of giant trees puncturing the soil, and the tender spring tide bursting out.

Chu Wanning convulsed violently and was soft on the couch.

The man said in his ear, “If you don’t like it, I’ll just…”

He opened his eyes sharply and his heart ached, but he almost abandoned himself. He said, “No… Don’t…”

His eyes trembled again, slowly closing: “I can’t stand…”

But it’s thousands of times more than the average person’s dose of aphrodisiac.

The voice was so chaotic and low-pitched that it was hard to distinguish, “So what do you want me to do?”

“Come in… I can’t stand it. Help me…”

The man behind him seemed to sigh, but at last he was satisfied. He picked him up, sat him in his crotch, and thrust into him fiercely from bottom to top. He had never gone so far. The hole squeezed in every time he went inside. Their flesh and blood could not fit any more. Chu Wanning would not stop moaning and panting, and he was soft and dirty in Mo Ran’s arms. The man who could not stop thrusting licked his face, his wet lips clipped him, and there seemed to be a vague gasp between his lips and teeth.

Mo Ran’s throat knot rolled in a low way: “Really good…”

And he muttered, lost in his mind, that his soul was no longer there. There was only one body drowned in the sea of desire: “Ah… Don’t stop… Ah…

It’s hot. Quicker…”

“I won’t stop, I’ll satisfy you… Chu Wanning… Wanning…”

He thrust for a long time, and after a long time inside Chu Wanning, he felt as if he would die in that person’s arms like this. Body fluids and melted paste flew out, foam was inserted, and ran to the root of the leg.

